Book Review Digest

1939

LIBRARY
OF THE
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO
CALIFORNIA

THE
BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL CUMULATION

MARCH 1939 TO FEBRUARY 1940 INCLUSIVE

EDITED BY MERTICE M. JAMES
AND DOROTHY BROWN

MANAGING EDITOR
SADIE BRACHFELD

Property of Graduate Theological Union
Return to San Francisco Theological Seminary

NEW YORK
THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY
1940

Printed in the U. S. A.

PREFACE

The thirty-fifth Annual volume of the Book Review Digest is a cumulation of monthly issues from March, 1939 to February, 1940, inclusive. No single number for February is issued.

There have been few changes in the list of periodicals used thruout the year. The news edition of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry changed its name to Chemical and Chemical Engineering News with the January 1940 issue.

Approximately 4200 books have been included in this volume.

Thruout the year Miss Marion Knight, former editor of the Book Review Digest, has continued to act in an advisory capacity to the present editors.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2026

https://archive.org/details/book-review-digest_1939-1940

Publications from which Digests of Reviews are made

Am Anthropol—American Anthropologist. $6. Peabody Museum, Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

Am Chem Soc J—Journal of the American Chemical Society. $8.50. American Chemical Society, Mills Bldg, Washington, D.C.

Am Econ R—American Economic Review. $5. American Economic Assn, Evanston, Ill.

Am Hist R—American Historical Review. $5. American Historical Association, 535 W 114th St, New York

Am J Psychol—American Journal of Psychology $6.50. Morrill Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Am J Pub Health—American Journal of Public Health and The Nation's Health. $5. American Public Health Assn, 50 W 50th St, New York

Am J Soc—American Journal of Sociology. $5 (libraries $3; students $2.50) University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Am Pol Sci R—American Political Science Review. $5. American Political Science Assn, 450 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Am Soc R—American Sociological Review. $4. American Sociological Society, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh

Ann Am Acad—Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. $5. 3457 Walnut St, Philadelphia

Atlantic—Atlantic Bookshelf of the Atlantic Monthly. $5. Atlantic Monthly Co, 8 Arlington St, Boston

Booklist—Booklist. $3. American Library Assn, 520 N Michigan Av, Chicago

Books—New York Herald Tribune Books. $1. N Y Tribune, Inc, Publisher, 230 W 41st St, New York

Boston Transcript—Boston Evening Transcript. $7.50 (Thursday, Friday and Saturday). Boston Transcript Co, Inc, Pub, 324 Washington St, Boston

Canadian Forum—Canadian Forum. $2. Canadian Forum, Ltd, 28 Wellington St, W, Toronto

Canadian Hist R—Canadian Historical Review. $2. University of Toronto Press, Toronto

Cath World—Catholic World. $4. Missionary Society of St Paul the Apostle, 411 W 59th St, New York

Chem & Chem Eng News. See Ind & Eng Chem

Chem & Met Eng—Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. $3. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York

Christian Century—Christian Century. $4. Christian Century Press, 440 S Dearborn St, Chicago

Christian Science Monitor (Atlantic ed)—Christian Science Monitor. $9. Christian Science Publishing Society, 1 Norway St, Boston

Class Philol—Classical Philology. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Columbia Law R—Columbia Law Review. $4.50 Columbia Law Review, Kent Hall, Columbia University, New York

Commonweal—Commonweal. $5. Commonweal Publishing Co, 386 Fourth Av, New York

Crozer Q—Crozer Quarterly. $1.50. Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa.

Current Hist—Current History. $3. C-H Pub. Corp, 420 Madison Av, New York

Economist—Economist. £2 18s; colonies £3 1s. Economist Newspaper, Ltd, 8 Bouverie St, London, EC 4

El School J—Elementary School Journal. $2.50. Dept. of Education, University of Chicago, 5835 Kimbark Av, Chicago

Eng N—Engineering News-Record. $5. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York

Eng Hist R—English Historical Review. 32s Longmans, Green & Co, 39 Paternoster Row, London, EC 4 (114 Fifth Av, New York)

Ethics—Ethics. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Foreign Affairs—Foreign Affairs. $5. Council on Foreign Relations, Inc, 45 E 65th St, New York

Forum—Forum and Century. $4. Forum Publishing Co, Inc, 570 Lexington Av, New York

Geog R—Geographical Review. $5. American Geographical Society, Broadway & 156th St, New York

Harvard Business R—Harvard Business Review. $5. McGraw-Hill Book Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York

Harvard Law R—Harvard Law Review. $4.50. Harvard Law Review Assn, Gannett House, Cambridge, Mass.

Horn Bk M—Horn Book Magazine. $2.50. Horn Book, Inc, 264 Boylston St, Boston

Ind & Eng Chem—Industrial and Engineering Chemistry News Edition. $2. American Chemical Society, Mills Bldg, Washington, D.C.

Name changed to Chemical & Chemical Engineering News, January 10, 1940

J Geol—Journal of Geology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

J Home Econ—Journal of Home Economics. $2.50. American Home Economics Assn, Mills Bldg, Washington, D.C.

J Philos—Journal of Philosophy. $4. 515 W 116th St, New York

J Phys Chem—Journal of Physical Chemistry. $10. Williams & Wilkins Co, Mt Royal & Guilford Avs, Baltimore, Md.

J Pol Econ—Journal of Political Economy. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

J Religion—Journal of Religion. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Library J—Library Journal. $5. 62 W 45th St, New York

Library Q—Library Quarterly. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Living Age—Living Age. $6. 420 Madison Av, New York

Management R—Management Review. $5. American Management Assn, 330 W 42d St, New York

Manchester Guardian—Manchester Guardian. 78s. Manchester Guardian, 3 Cross St, Manchester, 2. Guardian Newspapers, Inc, 220 W 42d St, New York

Mod Philol—Modern Philology. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Nation—Nation. $5. Nation, Inc, 55 Fifth Av, New York

Nature—Nature. $14. Macmillan Company, 60 Fifth Av, New York (£2 17s Macmillan & Co, Ltd, St Martin's St, London, WC 2)

New Eng Q—New England Quarterly. $4. Box 76, University of Maine, Orono, Me.

New Repub—New Republic. $5. Editorial publications, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York

New Statesman & Nation—New Statesman and Nation. 30s. New Statesman and Nation, 10 Great Turnstile, London, WC 1

N Y New Tech Bks—New York Public Library New Technical Books. 25c N Y Public Library, Fifth Av & 42d St, N.Y.

N Y Times—New York Times Book Review. $2. N Y Times Co, Pub, 229 W 43d St, New York

New Yorker (New York ed)—New Yorker. $5. F-R Publishing Corp, 25 W 43d St, New York

No Am—North American Review. $4. North American Review Corp, 420 Madison Av, New York

Pacific Affairs—Pacific Affairs. $2. 129 E 52d St, New York

Poetry—Poetry. $3. 232 E Erie St, Chicago

Pol Sci Q—Political Science Quarterly. $5. Academy of Political Science, Columbia University, New York

Sat R of Lit—Saturday Review of Literature. $4. Saturday Review Co, Inc, 420 Madison Av, New York

School Arts—School Arts. $3. School Arts, Printers Bldg, Worcester, Mass.

School R—School Review. $2.50. Dept. of Education, University of Chicago, 5835 Kimbark Av, Chicago

Scientific Bk Club R—Scientific Book Club Review. Subscription. Scientific Book Club, Inc, 80 Lafayette St, New York

Social Educ—Social Education. $2. American Book Co, 88 Lexington Av, New York

Social Forces—Social Forces. $4. Williams & Wilkins Co, Baltimore

Social Studies—Social Studies. $2. McKinley Publishing Co, 1021 Filbert St, Philadelphia

Special Libraries—Special Libraries. $5. Special Libraries Assn, 345 Hudson St, New York

Spec—Spectator. The Spectator, Ltd. 30s. 99 Gower St, London, WC 1

Springf'd Republican—Springfield Republican. $10. Republican Publishing Co, 32 Cypress St, Springfield, Mass.

Subscription Bks Bul—Subscription Books Bulletin. $2. American Library Association, 520 N Michigan Av, Chicago

Survey—Survey. $3. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York

Survey G—Survey Graphic. $3. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York

Theatre Arts Mo—Theatre Arts Monthly. $3.50 Theatre Arts, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York

Time—Time. $5. Time, Inc, 330 E 22d St, Chicago; 135 E 42d St, New York

Times [London] Lit Sup—Times Literary Supplement. 17s 4d; $4.15. The Times (London), North American Office, 280 Broadway, New York

Yale Law J—Yale Law Journal. $1.50. Yale Law Journal Co, Inc, 127 Wall St, New Haven, Conn.

Yale R n s—Yale Review. $3. Yale University Press, 143 Elm St, New Haven, Conn.

In addition to the above list the Book Review Digest sometimes quotes from America; Churchman; Cleveland Open Shelf; Living Church; Pratt Institute Quarterly; Publishers' Weekly; Wisconsin Library Bulletin; and other bulletins and papers.

Explanations

The descriptive note is separated from critical notices of a book by a dash.

The plus and minus signs preceding the name of the magazine indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the entire review.

In the reference to a magazine, the first number refers to the volume, the next to the page, the letters to the date and the last figures to the number of words in the review.

(W) Sets of Wilson catalog cards are available for all books marked with this symbol.

Publishers' directory will be found at end of volume.

KEY TO PRONUNCIATION

ā, as in fate; â, as in dare; ă, as in add; ä, as in arm; å, as in dance ē, as in eve; ĕ, as in met; ē, as in her; ê, as in event

ī, as in ice; ĭ, as in pin

ō, as in note; ŏ, as in not; ô, as in lord; o͝o, as in book; o͞o, as in moon ū, as in mute; ŭ, as in nut; û, as in urn; ü, as in grün; ù, as in affair

N indicates that the n itself is silent, but that the preceding vowel has a nasal quality

Single stress indicates accented syllable

Book Review Digest

Devoted to the Valuation of Current Literature

Cumulation of monthly numbers, March, 1939—February, 1940

ABBOT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Oursler, F.

ABBOTT, BERENICE, il. See McCausland, E. Changing New York

ABBOTT, EDWARD CHARLES (TEDDY BLUE). We pointed them North; recollections of a cowpuncher [as told to] Helena Huntington Smith; il. with drawings by Ross Santee, and photographs. 281p maps $3 Farrar

B or 92 Frontier and pioneer life—West. Cowboys (W) 39-27423

The author of these reminiscences was one of the old-time cowboys, who drove cattle north from Texas in the '70s and '80s, punched cows all over Montana and Wyoming, knew—and admired—the western plains Indians. Mr Abbott's stories give a realistic picture of the life, set down in homely language, which his collaborator insists is authentic. Index.

Booklist 35:329 Je 1 '39

"This is a beauty. It is the unvarnished, authentic story of Teddy Blue, cowpuncher in the great days of the Texas trail, set down by a skillful writer who has kept herself completely out of the picture and yet never let an old man's memories become mere loquacity. 'My part was to keep out of the way and not mess it up by being literary' says Miss Smith in her introduction. That kind of job is harder than it sounds, and Miss Smith has performed it with complete success." S. V. Benét

+ Books p5 Ap 30 '39 700w

New Repub 99:55 My 17 '39 70w

"Any one who cares for the West and its history and the way of life which was the cowboy's must be grateful to Miss Smith for her self-effacing work in taking down and putting together this story. She got it in the nick of time, for Teddy Blue died April 7. His friends and readers will be glad to know he saw a copy of his book before he died." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p2 Ap 30 '39 800w

" 'Teddy Blue' Abbott, who recently died at the age of seventy-eight, sounds like the real stuff. . . The drawings by Ross Santee catch the range-and-trail atmosphere nicely, and the photographs are just as flavorous."

+ New Yorker 15:123 Ap 29 '39 80w

"While Miss Smith deserves an award for not seeking to refine Abbott's account and has otherwise discharged her duties enviably, you have the feeling that Abbott would have come out on top, no matter what form the book assumed. He is all there, and a yard wide—lovable, real, open, talkative, but with enough reflective powers to give his story point." C. W. Ferguson

+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 My 13 '39 650w

Wis Lib Bul 35:144 Jl '39

ABBOTT, EDWIN MILTON. The law and religion. 92p $1.50 Dorrance

200.0134 Religion and law 39-488

"In sententious style, a lawyer and a Christian (one man) not only discusses the ethics of lawyers and clients but argues that the law and religion, by their common concern for human rights and the application of reason and good will to human relations, should be allies in working for a better world." Christian Century

Christian Century 56:291 Mr 1 '39 50w

"In this day when law is subject to violent change and international law is atrophied, when religion is contemptuously attacked and spuriously championed, this book with its high ideals and all-pervading faith commands attention. At the same time its brevity leads to dull platitudes, while the magnitude of its subject loudly demands specific application." J. P. E.

+ — Churchman 153:34 My 1 '39 60w

ABBOTT, GRACE, ed. The child and the state; select documents, with introductory notes. 2v 679;701p ea $3; set $5 Univ. of Chicago press [ea 13s 6d Cambridge]

331.3 Child labor. Children—Law. Family 38-35004

"These two volumes are a collection of original documents and source material from the late eighteenth century to the present time which give a realistic picture of family relationships, the role of children in industrial development and the effects of changing society upon children. In the words of the contemporary officials, judges, factory inspectors, and others who dealt with these problems at first-hand, accounts are given of the conditions that called for remedial action, of the measures taken, and of the long struggle to replace the first clumsy control devices with higher standards and more effective administration. Miss Abbott's editorial notes tie together the various excerpts with a narrative thread and a critical review from the standpoint of the administrator." (Survey) Contents: volume I: The legal status of the child in the family; Apprenticeship and child labor legislation in Great Britain; Apprenticeship in the United States; Child labor in the United States; International child labor legislation. Volume II: The dependent child; The state and the child offender; The state and the child of unmarried parents; Organizing for administration of child welfare services. Selected bibliography and index at end of each volume.

"The documents selected are excellent, and there is a good brief bibliography for further reference. The chief defect of the volume, in the opinion of this reviewer, is the small space accorded rural child labor, which employs more than all other forms of child labor put together. This lack, however, only reflects the paucity of adequate agricultural labor studies, even in recent years. There are indications that with present labor and government activities in the area of rural labor relations, more attention may begin to be paid to the problems of the agricultural child worker." D. W. Douglas + — Am Econ R 29:195 Mr '39 350w (Review of v 1)

---

ABBOTT, GRACE, ed.—Continued

Reviewed by H. I. Clarke
Am Pol Sci R 33:330 Ap '39 420w

Reviewed by G. B. Mangold
Am Soc R 4:456 Je '39 450w (Review of v 2)

"Breadth and perspective raise Miss Abbott's work above the level of a technician's manual and make it a professional work of reference." Geoffrey May
+ Am Soc R 4:767 O '39 150w

Reviewed by J. H. S. Bossard
Ann Am Acad 203:256 My '39 700w

Reviewed by Nathaniel Fensterstock
Columbia Law R 40:183 Ja '40 1150w

"Miss Abbott's work avoids the pitfalls that surround a new field carved out of two professional disciplines. She is not teaching substantive law to social workers. Although her presentation familiarizes her social service readers with legal thought and content on the social topics she treats, the law is presented primarily as a source and tool of social development. Thus the work avoids any impression of naïveté to a legal reader. Contrariwise, the social conception behind the work should be no deterrent to its use in law-school courses on criminology, domestic relations, and labor legislation." Geoffrey May
+ Harvard Law R 52:715 F '39 500w

"A notable contribution to social history." C. M. Beyer + Survey 75:92 Mr '39 210w

ABBOTT, JANE LUDLOW (DRAKE) (MRS FRANK ABBOTT). To have, to keep. 310p $2 Lippincott

39-15959

The complications of the first year of marriage were many in the case of Diane and Bill. He came of a fine old established family, with generations of legal forebears to look up to, but with very little money. Diane's family had money but no background. Bill was absorbed in his profession; Diane liked lively company. The loss of their first baby widened the breach, until only a wise family friend and Diane's common sense saved them from divorce.

"The complications are adroitly handled and the moral not too obtrusive." Lisle Bell
+ Books p9 Jl 9 '39 200w

"The book doesn't offer any startlingly original props for wabbly marriages but presents a readable romance of young married life, suitably light for hot-weather diversion." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p13 Jl 23 '39 210w
Wis Lib Bul 35:166 O '39

ABDULLAH, ACHMED. Deliver us from evil. 248p $2 Putnam

39-6260

On a rainy evening in Easter week many people are gathered in the Cathedral on Fifth avenue. The author picks out several persons in the audience, imagines their stories, and of those stories the book is composed.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p19 Mr 5 '39 180w

"Their dramas are outlined sparely and not always with sufficient motivation for credence. The author obscures them, when they most need clarity, with an effulgence of style that is reminiscent of the early Ben Hecht, describing the 'frugal, emaciated weariness of her voice,' and the next moment oh-ing and ah-ing clerically. But on the whole this is an agreeable novel of spiritual derring-do." Hassoldt Davis
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 1 '39 250w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p24 Mr 12 '39 180w

ABEITA, LOUISE (E-YEH-SHURE). I am a Pueblo Indian girl; with an introd. by Oliver La Farge; il. in color by native Indian artists. 28p $1.50; ltd sponsor's ed $5 Morrow

970.3 Pueblo Indians. Indians of North America—Juvenile literature (W) 39-27977

"In this volume Indian artists, Navajo, Apache and Pueblo, have been brought together to make, in cooperation, a truly Indian book. A young Indian girl's descriptions of the things that most interest her in her everyday life make up the text. 'E-Yeh-Shure,' or 'Blue Corn,' tells of her home, of the corn planting, of breadmaking, of the dresses and moccasins she wears and her silver bracelets and necklaces, of the seasons and the Pueblo country with its clear skies and far-away blue hills." N Y Times

Booklist 36:136 D 1 '39

"A book of beauty." M. L. Becker
+ Books p11 N 12 '39 200w

Reviewed by Ruth Page
Boston Transcript p5 N 11 '39 30w

"Probably the book's appeal will be to adults more than to children." A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 16:51 Ja '40 110w

"It is an interesting book but one which will have very limited appeal for children. Recommended only for large picture book collections." E. G. Mullan
Library J 65:37 Ja 1 '40 80w
New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 30w

" 'I Am a Pueblo Indian Girl' is an interesting addition to American Indian literature. Some older boys and girls may enjoy it, but it will find its most appreciative audience among adult students of Indian life. It would be a mistake, indeed, to consider this a book for the 8, 9 and 10 year olds, an age when interest in things Indian is particularly keen. These younger children, eager for action, adventure and conversation, find the style oversimple and desire more detail than the author gives." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p26 N 12 '39 200w
New Yorker 15:91 N 25 '39 30w
Sat R of Lit 21:21 D 9 '39 20w

ABEL, THEODORE FRED. Why Hitler came into power. 323p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

943.085 Germany—Nazi movement. Hitler, Adolf (W) 39-1099

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by C. V. Easum
Am Hist R 45:224 O '39 300w

"It would be difficult to imagine more interesting material for the study of the symbols circulated by Nazi propagandists up to that year [1934]. Yet Professor Abel has made astonishingly little use of it. . . Fortunately, the data assembled by Professor Abel still exist, and it is to be hoped that future handling of the material can be welcomed with more than appreciation of his energy in collecting it." H. D. Lasswell
— + Am J Soc 44:1003 My '39 550w

"Whether the book is entitled to be regarded as a systematic and comprehensive interpretation of why Hitler came into power may be open to dispute. Doubts will arise as to the reliability and the representative character of the autobiographies which not even the author's apparent circumspection and his elaborate attempts at objectivity will entirely resolve. There can, however, be no doubt that the book makes one of the most original contributions to an understanding of Naziism which has yet been written." A. J. Zurcher
+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:509 Je '39 550w

"The book has many virtues. The author will doubtless be attacked in these hysterical times for his impartiality. From the viewpoint of the sociologist that is an achievement. The effective application of the life-history document to explanation of historical processes is a valuable methodological contribution. From limited first-hand observation the reviewer would regard the cases as fairly typical. New insight is provided into a movement that has grave implications for the entire world. Finally, the book if it has the wide reading which it deserves, will tend to humanize the individual Nazi, who for most Americans is a stereotype de-humanized by propaganda." Clifford Kirkpatrick

+ Am Soc R 4:410 Je '39 550w

Reviewed by Clifford Kirkpatrick

+ Ann Am Acad 203:211 My '39 550w

"I certainly do not want to minimize Professor Abel's merits in having written a comprehensive and readable book. . . [However] though according to Emerson, 'there is properly no history, only biography,' the evidential value of these depositions for history would be rather doubtful, even if the card index contained instead of six hundred, six million life stories. . . What, however, is still worse is that these stories as a rule are quite uninteresting; they do not reveal anything but some well known true or untrue statements and the familiar effect Nazi propaganda had on the mind of the average lower middle and working classes." R. Vambery

— + Books p18 Mr 5 '39 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '39

Foreign Affairs 17:814 Jl '39 20w

"A picture that Americans should study with earnest self-searching." Leon Whipple

+ Survey G 28:161 F '39 330w

"Professor Abel's book unfortunately goes over a great deal of old ground. But his narrative is redeemed by an experiment well worth making."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p34 Ja 21 '39 150w

ABEND, HALLETT. Chaos in Asia. 313p $3 Washburn

951 Chinese-Japanese war, 1931- 39-30782

The economic and political background of the war in China, presented by the Far East correspondent of the New York Times. Index.

Booklist 36:147 D 15 '39

"[This] book is decidedly worth reading. Further than that, it is easy and agreeable reading, full enough of real meat (and I have no patience with superficial books about the Orient), but well cooked meat pleasantly seasoned with anecdote." Rodney Gilbert

+ Books p5 O 15 '39 1650w

Reviewed by Pauline Ehrlich

Boston Transcript p3 O 21 '39 480w

"Mr. Abend's account of Asia's difficult crisis is in very readable style and not so detailed as to confuse the average reader. Both the Chinese and Japanese views of the war are reviewed sympathetically. The book is highly recommended as one of the best on the current Sino-Japanese struggle. It is well organized and includes an excellent index." J. B. Parrish

+ Churchman 153:20 D 1 '39 140w

"It is a valuable work, one which is remarkably unbiased and objective, considering that Abend was in the thick not only of the war itself but of the welter of propaganda manufactured by both sides." Norman Cousins

+ Current Hist 51:4 N '39 260w

Foreign Affairs 18:383 Ja '40 70w

Reviewed by E. L. Van Alen

Forum 102:vi D '39 120w

Reviewed by Nathaniel Peffer

Living Age 357:391 D '39 150w

"The book's special merit is perhaps its lively readable style. Persons who know nothing of Chinese geography and less of Chinese personalities will probably find it the easiest reading of recent books on the East, while those who are familiar with the Orient will derive profit from its information and anecdotes. Apart from a somewhat annoying way of stressing the author's successes in prognostication, it has no conspicuous faults. It tells little about 'Free China' or guerrilla warfare, but that has been admirably done by other writers." M. S. Stewart

+ — Nation 149:531 N 11 '39 550w

"An excellently informative book." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p5 D 24 '39 1500w

New Yorker 15:79 O 7 '39 50w

Reviewed by T. A. Bisson

Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 30 '39 600w

Springf'd Republican p10 O 4 '39 800w

ABETTI, GIORGIO. The sun; its phenomena and physical features; tr. [from the Italian] by Alexandre Zimmermann and Frans Borghouts. 360p il $5 Van Nostrand [20s Lockwood, C]

523.7 Sun 38-27838

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"Of astronomical readers of the book, the solar observer will perhaps derive the greatest profit and pleasure, because the book is written from his point of view. To the theoretical worker, however, this comprehensive survey will be of use as a reminder (to quote from the prefatory note) 'of the existence of a large body of observational material which cries out for investigation by the inductive theorist'. During the last few years, there has been a growing body of wireless research workers and others who require information of the sun's behaviour during its 11-year cycle of activity. To these also, Abetti's book can be recommended to answer their questions. It will be surprising if nothing more than a transitory interest is felt after this introduction to a star in action."

+ Nature 143:662 Ap 22 '39 200w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:51 O '38

ABRAHAM, GERALD ERNEST HEAL. On Russian music. 279p $3.50 Scribner [8s 6d Reeves]

780.947 Music—Russia [39-32488]

"This is a supplementary, or complementary, volume to 'Studies in Russian Music' [Book Review Digest, 1936] which Mr. Abraham issued a few years ago, but most of the present series of essays have already appeared in Music and Letters and other periodicals. The two books range over much the same period of history, that is from the opera of Glinka to the achievements of the Balakirev group. The essays throw a number of side lights on certain of the minor works of these composers." Times [London] Lit Sup

"[Mr. Abraham's] new book is supplementary to the Studies in Russian Music which appeared five years ago; the two volumes, taken together, form a most valuable repository of first-rate criticism and contain much information unavailable to the student who cannot read Russian. One's only regret is that the author, instead of dividing his material into isolated essays, did not co-ordinate it into an extended study of Russian music as a whole. If he had done so, his book must have ranked as the standard English work on the subject." Desmond Shawe-Taylor

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:792 My 20 '39 220w

"Mr. Abraham includes many musical examples, aptly chosen to underline his thesis of the moment. He is not afraid to discuss details that might be of interest only to musicians and scholars. In fact, this collection of essays is for this reason more likely to be appreciated by the musician and scholar rather than by the layman. Its other disadvantage for the casual reader is the brevity of the essays. Since they are all independent the reader may have the sense that the book lacks sustained movement." Howard Taubman

ABRAHAM, G. E. H.—Continued
+ N Y Times p9 O 1 '39 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p222 Ap 15 '39 130w

ABRAMS, CHARLES. Revolution in land. 320p $3 Harper
333 Land. Land tenure—U.S. U.S.—Economic conditions 39-25970

"The author, who lectures on housing at the New School for Social Research, and is a consultant for the U. S. Housing authority, writes here of the land problem in both its rural and its urban aspects. He finds many factors involved, 'all strung together by the common themes of debt, of waste, of over capitalization,' and while he offers no hard and fast program, he outlines certain steps which would tend toward solution." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Booklist 36:143 D 15 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '39

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 31:289 Ja 19 '40 300w

"Unfortunately, the reader is sometimes forced to question whether Charles Abrams has not bitten off more than he can chew. His approach is so all-embracing that at certain points in the book the author could have devoted an entire chapter to the astronomical problem of land in motion without causing much surprise to the average reader. . . An enthusiastic word must be said for the style in which the book is written. Abrams's prose is beautifully rhythmic—at times almost Spenglerian, although lighter and more concise. Few books dealing with economic problems can compare with it in liveliness and fluidity of expression. For this reason alone—if not for the book's ambitious scope—it deserves a place of honor upon the bookshelves of the serious reader." B. M. Gross
+ — Nation 150:103 Ja 27 '40 850w

"This is a scholarly study of the American land structure. . . Mr. Abrams makes particularly clear a comparison of the hodge-podge, disorganized, and almost indifferent attitude of land ownership to the well systematized and carefully controlled direction of other large industries. The book is full of encyclopedic data and statistics to support its conclusions, and yet provides interesting reading for the layman as well as for the specialist. It sounds an extremely necessary warning to government, lending institutions, and land ownership, to 'Stop, Look and Listen'!" Joseph Milne
+ Survey G 28:760 D '39 300w
Wis Lib Bul 35:211 D '39

ABRO, A. D'. The decline of mechanism (in modern physics). 982p il $10 Van Nostrand
530.1 Quantum theory. Mathematical physics 39-7057

"Here are nearly a thousand pages dealing with the fundamentals of natural philosophy (in relation to physics), the physical theories and mathematics of the classical period, the various quantum theories, and the doctrine of causality in the light of the new discoveries. The author states that the non-mathematical reader should experience no serious difficulty in following the presentation, especially so since the more technical chapters (which may be skipped) are not essential to a general understanding of the new ideas." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by W. M. Malisoff
Books p10 My 14 '39 450w

"The book is historical and philosophical rather than practical. In view of the fact that the authors give a complete and careful mathematical background for each subject, the intelligent lay reader should have no difficulty in following this text."
Chem & Met Eng 46:786 D '39 80w

"As in his earlier and excellent The Evolution of Scientific Thought, Mr. D'Abro has only an ill-concealed dislike for philosophers who write on science; but his peremptory dismissal of their writings is not always based on familiarity with them. However, in spite of obvious blemishes Mr. D'Abro's book offers a valuable survey of physical theory, and no philosopher writing on science can afford to be ignorant of the matters with which it deals." E. N.
+ — J Philos 36:389 Jl 6 '39 650w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:27 Ap '39

"D'Abro has here given an excellent account of the rise and meaning of quantum mechanics, within the limitations he has set himself. . . It cannot be said that the author has attempted to popularize the theory, in the sense in which so many others have tried of late, and therein lies its greatest value. For, although it is not to be recommended to the uninitiated, it can be read with enjoyment and profit by the serious student of physical science—even by those who have concerned themselves intimately with the field which it so successfully treats." H. P. Robertson
+ R of Scientific Instruments 10:288 O '39 1450w

ACHESON, EDWARD. Murder to hounds. 300p $2 Harcourt 39-3406

Mystery story.

Booklist 35:272 Ap 15 '39

"This is an enigmatic affair ingeniously worked out, with a bit of frivolity here and there and no little Virginia color." Will Cuppy
+ Books p13 F 12 '39 150w

"While 'Murder to Hounds' is not a good mystery, it has enough good lines to compensate. The solution is melodramatic. On the other hand, the characters are lively." Marian Wiggin
+ — Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '39 40w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 18:96 Jl 15 '39 60w

"The story is a bit wacky here and there, but it provides good entertainment and all the mystery one could desire." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p25 F 19 '39 120w

"Best mystery of the new year. . . Mr. Acheson is lavish with suspense and good characterization."
+ New Yorker 14:84 F 11 '39 50w

"Good hunting!"
+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 F 11 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 120w
Time 33:63 Mr 6 '39 20w
Times [London] Lit Sup p375 Je 24 '39 190w

ACKERMAN, ISABEL T.; BATTERHAM, ROSE (MRS W. G. HOUSKEEPER), and THACHER, EMMA E. Harmony in flower design; photographs by William G. Houskeeper. 115p $3 Dodd
635.966 Floral decoration. Photography of flowers 39-30803

Forty-eight photographs of simple flower arrangements for the home, with descriptive comment on each.

Booklist 36:145 D 15 '39

"Judging by the photographs, which are quite good, Mesdames Ackerman, Houskeeper and Thacher certainly do have an eye for grace, but have scarcely revolutionized the art of flower arrangement."
+ — Boston Transcript p3 O 21 '39 100w

ACKLEY, EDITH (FLACK) (MRS STOW WENGENROTH). Paper dolls; their history and how to make them; drawings by Telka Ackley. 107p $2 Stokes

649.55 Dolls. Handicraft (W) 39-27620

Part one describes the making of paper dolls, and gives patterns for different types of dolls and their wardrobes. Part two gives a brief historical sketch of paper dolls in France, England, and America. The book is planned for the person wishing to make paper dolls for fun or for sale, or for children.

Booklist 36:16 S '39

"Could be used to good advantage by art teachers. Will have to be watched carefully in libraries as the patterns may prove tempting to children." Marian Herr

+ Library J 64:872 N 1 '39 100w

Wis Lib Bul 35:192 N '39

ADAM, THOMAS RITCHIE. The museum and popular culture. 177p $1; to members gratis Am. assn. for adult educ.

069 Museums. Education of adults 39-27062

Study of the work for adult education done by museums. Contents: Perspective; Vested with a public interest; The educational function; Art and culture; Art and society; The revival of nature lore; Methods of nature study; Science, industry, and commerce; History as a hobby; Beyond museum walls; For greater public support. Index.

Booklist 35:234 Mr 15 '39

Wis Lib Bul 35:138 Jl '39

ADAMS, BENJAMIN PETTENGILL, ed. You Americans. 348p $2.50 Funk

917.3 U.S.—Politics and government. U.S. —Civilization. National characteristics, American 39-27957

Symposium on the United States and its people, as fifteen foreign press correspondents saw them. Some of the writers had lived in this country for years; others for only a few months. Partial contents: You—and we—Americans, by Carlos Dávila; What is this aloofness? by Raoul de Roussy de Sales; You American women, by Mira Gavrilovitch; From the Argentine angle, by Alberto Caprile, Jr.; Candid comment from a Mexican cousin, by Antonio Iglesias; Education and politics in the United States, by Naboth Hedin; An Italian view of America's crisis, by G. G. Napolitano.

Booklist 36:131 D 1 '39

Reviewed by Julian Bach, Jr.
Books p30 D 10 '39 600w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones
Boston Transcript p1 N 4 '39 320w

Reviewed by Grenville Vernon
Commonweal 31:208 D 22 '39 320w

New Repub 101:269 D 20 '39 40w

N Y Times p26 N 19 '39 600w

"It is highly illuminating, wholesome, and thought-provoking reading, to be commended especially for swelled-headed hundred-percenters and 'old-stock' snooters; a symposium of criticism by people who have had good opportunity to observe, with ostentatiously kindly but often brutally discerning eyes; who deliver, smiling with almost Chesterfieldian politeness, shrewdly cutting thrusts at points at which we are prone to think ourselves invulnerable, or, with somewhat guilty conscience, prefer not to talk about." J. P. Gavit

+ Sat R of Lit 21:5 D 23 '39 650w

"One cannot say that these journalistic impressions by fifteen foreign press correspondents are always profound, but they are stimulating and generally encouraging." R. H.

+ Social Studies 31:44 Ja '40 130w

"All in all, especially when it is noted that the journalists were pretty much turned loose, 'You Americans' is a worth-while effort. What they—and through them much of the rest of the world—think of us is worthy of our consideration."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 D 28 '39 500w

"The editor warns that these are not the scholarly essays that foreign correspondents in America could write about us if they had time and opportunity but are 'journalistic impressions.' Their importance at this time is probably higher for that reason. Because they are by professional writers they make easy reading. . . Several of the pieces are marked by acute social interpretation." Clayton Hoagland

+ Survey G 28:762 D '39 450w

ADAMS, FRANK DAWSON. The birth and development of the geological sciences. 506p il $5 Williams & Wilkins [22s 6d Bailliere]

550.9 Geology—History 39-2208

"Whereas the widely used treatises of Zittel, Geikie, and Merrill deal mainly with the development of geological science during the last two centuries, [this volume] gives much larger space to the consideration of the more ancient writers and the first attempts, often naive and unscientific, to explain the phenomena of the earth. It will prove of great interest not only to geologists, mineralogists, and paleontologists but also to those who seek an intimate acquaintance with the thought patterns of ancient and medieval times." Scientific Bk Club R

"It is no hyperbole to say that geologists the world around owe Professor Adams a profound debt of gratitude for making available to them, in delightful form, the all too little known foibles of their scientific forefathers." Carey Croneis

+ J Geol 47:667 Ag '39 1050w

"During Dr. Adams' long life of devotion to education and science at McGill University he has become a conspicuous leader in geological research. His intimate friends have long known of his passion for rare and ancient books, and many have envied him his remarkable collection of more than a thousand such books dealing with geological topics. And now with characteristic generosity he gives to the world the benefit of his activities as a bibliophile."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 Ap '39 350w

ADAMS, FRANK RAMSAY. Gunsight ranch. 275p $2 Doubleday

39-27572

Western story.

Booklist 35:365 Jl 1 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p19 Ap 30 '39 100w

"Frank R. Adams has an uncanny deftness in getting his hero into, and out of, tight places. He has also considerable cleverness in intricate plot weaving and a decided flair for action." G. W. Harris

N Y Times p16 Ap 30 '39 160w

ADAMS, GEORGE PLIMPTON, and others, comps. Selected writings in philosophy; a companion volume to Knowledge and society. 355p $2.25 Appleton-Century

901 Philosophy. Civilization—Philosophy 39-18799

"The authors of Knowledge and Society [Book Review Digest, 1938] have assembled these sixteen selections, not to provide a comprehensive anthology of philosophy, but to illustrate the themes discussed in that volume. . . The whole forms a group of classics which any student of philosophy might read with profit. An appendix contains a topical outline and questions for use with Knowledge and Society." J Philos

Christian Century 56:927 Jl 26 '39 50w

J Philos 36:639 N 9 '39 180w

ADAMS, GRACE KINCKLE (MRS EDWARD HUTTER). Workers on relief. 344p pl $3 Yale univ. press

361.6 U.S. Works progress administration. Unemployment—U.S. (W) 40-150

"This is a book about WPA, describing the variety and magnitude of its work, indicating its effect on individual workers, and leaving still unsolved the problem as to whether the WPA is primarily a system of public work to be judged by its efficiency or a system of relief. The author cannot decide about that because, she suggests, Washington itself has not decided." (Christian Century) Index.

Booklist 36:229 F 15 '40

Reviewed by M. S. Nichols
Boston Transcript p6 D 30 '39 700w
Christian Century 56:1411 N 15 '39 50w

Reviewed by Rose Feld
N Y Times p14 N 26 '39 1000w
No Am 248:415 winter '40 210w
Pratt p7 winter '40

"Since Miss Adams fails to raise the basic question whether relief accelerated or impeded recovery, her specific carpings must be ruled out de minimis. And though her stories carry conviction, the author never really comes to grips with the other crucial issue, namely, whether relief fundamentally altered the psyches of the workers. . . Miss Adams's book is valuable for inciting us anew to appraise our objectives and techniques. Unfortunately, she contributes little to aid us in our difficult task." E. G.

— + Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 9 '39 450w

"The lack of personal and cultural data is particularly evident in the discussion of the experience of those engaged on the manual work projects. Miss Adams does not know these people so well as she knows the white-collar workers. Moreover, such persons do not appear in the book so frequently as, and their experience is not emphasized so much as, could be justified by their overwhelming preponderance among those engaged on work projects. Nevertheless, the author has woven into these fascinating personal histories an array of facts which will introduce most readers to a new world of experience. A knowledge of that world is essential for an understanding of the most extensive project of relief work in the history of modern industrial nations." E. W. Bakke

+ — Yale R n s 29:411 winter '40 1000w

ADAMS, HERBERT BAXTER. Historical scholarship in the United States, 1876-1901: as revealed in [his] correspondence; ed. by W. Stull Holt. 314p $3.50; pa $3 Johns Hopkins

907 History—Historiography 39-1218

"The purpose dictating the selection of these letters from the many hundreds in the files of Herbert Baxter Adams was to make available data that will contribute to a better understanding of historical scholarship in America during the most significant period of its development. More exactly, those letters were chosen which show what the historical scholars of that generation were doing, what problems interested them, what courses they gave, what books they used, what contacts they had with each other and with foreign scholars, and what kind of an intellectual atmosphere they worked in." (Introd) Index.

Reviewed by Henry Johnson
Am Hist R 45:420 Ja '40 500w

"The correspondence of Herbert B. Adams is important not only because it presents to us the personality of one of the most alert and genial scholars of the last generation but because it illuminates the development of professional historiography. Historical scholarship, to be sure, was not the creation of Adams or of the Johns Hopkins, but it is scarcely an exaggeration to say that professional history was. From John Smith to Henry Adams history had been a branch of letters, rarely dependent upon or even connected with the universities; from the '90s to the present it has been largely a monopoly of the academicians, and not always to its profit or its glory." H. S. Commager

+ Books p16 Ap 9 '39 650w
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 28 '39 90w

ADAMS, JAMES TRUSLOW. Building the British empire; to the end of the first empire. 438p $3.50 (15s) Scribner

942 Great Britain—History. Great Britain—Colonies (W) (38-27703)

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"The selection of factual material is on the whole conventional, but there is usually a generous amount of interpretative comment that both enlivens the narrative and ensures to the general reader, however slight or distorted his background of historical knowledge may be, a sympathetic as well as a significant introduction to the subject. . . [Mr. Adams'] easy style is generally lucid despite the condensation of the narrative, but there are some inexplicable errors of fact on important matters." R. G. Trotter

+ — Am Hist R 44:578 Ap '39 250w

"A clear, well proportioned, and informative history of the development of the British race." L. A. Mills

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:339 Ap '39 200w

Reviewed by G. W. Brown
Canadian Hist R 20:430 D '39 150w

"The book is in general well and interestingly written. But it would probably not be unfair to say that it contains little either in thought or in content not to be found in similar works already available. There are several errors of readily ascertainable fact, other statements are misleading, and here and there one encounters a sentence difficult to associate with so acknowledged a craftsman as Mr. Adams." Leonidas Dodson

+ — Social Studies 30:87 F '39 270w

"The chief value of a book of this kind must always lie in its architecture, in the way in which its masses are distributed so as to bring out one another's significance, and in the selection of facts whereby the author's interpretation of his great theme is expressed. . . It is very easy to criticise in detail a work of this character, which tries to express in brief compass the essence of a long and complex story. What one ought rather to do is to thank a distinguished American writer for a lucid, sympathetic and understanding survey of the achievement of a sister nation." Ramsay Muir

+ Spec 162:1097 Je 23 '39 850w

"This book will add neither to the author's reputation nor to the important literature on the subject." George Woodbridge

— Survey G 28:297 Ap '39 310w
Times [London] Lit Sup p172 Mr 25 '39 600w

ADAMS, MILDRED. Getting and spending; the ABC of economics; il. by Elmer Loemker. (Peoples lib) 125p map 60c Macmillan

330.1 Economics (W) 39-29410

Economics reduced to the least common denominator and illustrated with simple cartoons. The point of view is that of the ordinary worker.

Booklist 36:152 D 15 '39

"A really worth-while book for anyone who has neither the time nor inclination to tackle Sombart or Trotsky, or yet Keynes."

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 23 '39 60w

"The style is very simple, and the basic principles are not beyond the common understanding when clearly stated. The facts, of course, are always complicated. This little book is a help toward setting them in order, and especially toward seeing how one's private economic problem is related to the whole problem."

+ Christian Century 56:1548 D 13 '39 110w
Wis Lib Bul 36:12 Ja '40

ADAMS, RANDOLPH GREENFIELD. Three Americanists. (A. S. W. Rosenbach fellowship in bibliography. Publication) 101p il $1.50 Univ. of Pa. press

920.1 Harrisse, Henry. Brinley, George. Jefferson, Thomas 39-6767

This volume contains three lectures delivered in Houston Hall, University of Pennsylvania, in 1938. They deal with Henry Harrisse, a Frenchman, who lived for many years in America and was one of the leading bibliographers interested in the field of Americana; George Brinley (1817-1875), a book collector in the same field; and Thomas Jefferson, whose collection of books formed the nucleus of the Library of Congress. Index.

"Mr. Adams' book is an addition to the story of books and libraries in the United States that we would not want to be without. We are grateful to him for it and to the Rosenbach Fellowship in Bibliography which made possible the delivery of the lectures and their publication." L. C. Wroth
+ Books p25 My 7 '39 1250w
Boston Transcript p3 Ap 29 '39 30w

"Not the least valuable points of this book are Dr. Adams' ideas and incidental comments on bibliographies and bibliographers, libraries and librarians, and even such practical subjects as the comparative cost of photostats and microfilms which are liberally sprinkled throughout the book. Those interested in the history of printing should mark the distinction which he makes between the terms (Gutenberg and Mazarine) used to designate the first printed Bible. Indeed, these lectures are pre-eminently worth reading and study by a librarian or bookman, and they should be listed as a required reading by all library schools." G. H. Doane
+ Library Q 9:539 O '39 850w

Reviewed by Philip Brooks
N Y Times p20 Je 18 '39 1400w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 22 '39 1350w

ADAMS, SAMUEL HOPKINS. Both over twenty-one. 232p $2 Liveright 39-5592

The romance of an heiress, who posed as a secretary, and a young millionaire, who posed as a milkman, on a prize trip to Bermuda.

Booklist 35:308 My 15 '39

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p15 F 26 '39 110w
Wis Lib Bul 35:103 My '39

ADAMS, SAMUEL HOPKINS. Incredible era; the life and times of Warren Gamaliel Harding. 457p il $3 Houghton

B or 92 Harding, Warren Gamaliel. U.S.—Politics and government (W) 39-30355

Biography of Warren G. Harding, which is at the same time a study of American politics in the era beginning with the World war and ending with the death of Harding. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. M. Fuess
Atlantic Ja '40 300w
Booklist 36:131 D 1 '39

"Altogether the book provides an appalling account of the failure of good-natured mediocrity to weather great responsibilities, told with true intelligence and with a dramatic intensity of the first order." W. M. Houghton
+ Books p4 O 29 '39 1100w

"On one point, the lack of new light is disappointing. Mr. Adams quotes without comment, William Allen White's charge that oil controlled the convention of 1920, working through the Senate Cabal, led by the irreconcilables, who were easy victims of the greed for oil because they were so busy hating Wilson. But the positive contribution of this book is more important than the treatment of scandal." R. E. Moody
+ — Boston Transcript p4 N 11 '39 800w

"Mr. Adams is both a novelist and a first-class reporter. Not only is this history of Warren Gamaliel Harding's rise, fall and timely death a vivid, moving, wide-sweeping narrative, but it is a sound original source for future historians. . . In one or two respects, Mr. Adams falls a little short of justice to the man. . . But these are small points, after all; and the essential virtue of this book, aside from its lively interest, is its grasp of truth as a whole." Will Irwin
+ New Repub 101:296 D 27 '39 900w

"Mr. Adams tells the story dramatically and supremely well. Comprehensive though it is on the dirt-dishing side . . . it does not contribute anything vitally new; but it is the first attempt at something like a consecutive narrative. It concentrates heavily upon the scandals." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p3 N 5 '39 1400w

"Not the final biography, but a good, readable one, canny and warm."
+ New Yorker 15:86 N 4 '39 50w
Pratt p21 winter '40

"Mr. Adams has compiled faithfully a book of sources, assembling material with great care. However, he has edited his material with a pitchfork. It is all there—the important, the insignificant, and the mill run of Harding stories. The tale is told with meticulous detail, but it would have been a better book if its story had been a little more coherent and given a little more continuity. However, it is an earnest, honest attempt, and a readable book." W. A. White
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:6 N 4 '39 300w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 5 '39 300w

Reviewed by B. P. Adams
Survey G 29:39 Ja '40 350w
Wis Lib Bul 36:15 Ja '40

ADDIS, E. E. (PETER DRAX, pseud). Crime to music [Eng title: Tune to a corpse]. 316p $2 Appleton-Century [7s 6d Hutchinson] 39-4903

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p21 Mr 12 '39 120w

"While Mr. Drax's superimposed calm made it impossible for us to get excited, 'Crime to Music' held us at strict attention until the last-page return of the little secretary to her true love." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 18 '39 150w

"The author has succeeded in making his story both interesting and convincing without any apparent straining after effects." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 19 '39 220w
New Yorker 15:88 Mr 18 '39 30w

"London underworld life described with color and realism. Steps in weakling killer's descent to Avernus thrillingly traced. Engrossing."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Mr 11 '39 40w

ADDISON, AGNES ELEANOR. Romanticism and the Gothic revival. 187p $2.50 Smith, Richard R.

724.3 Architecture, Gothic. Romanticism 39-8194

A study of the romantic movement in literature and the arts during the last part of the eighteenth century and the first half of the nineteenth. After a preliminary chapter defining Romanticism and sketching its history and origins, the body of the book is devoted to an account of the Gothic Revival in architecture in England, France, Germany and the United States. A final chapter deals with the relationships between Romanticism and the Gothic Revival. Bibliography. Index.

ADDISON, A. E.—Continued

Reviewed by Humphrey Carver
Canadian Forum 19:63 My '39 470w

"If the chapters on the Gothic in France, Germany and America are sketchy, nevertheless her treatment of this one issue, the relative importance of Pugin and Ruskin, makes Miss Addison's book valuable to specialists as well as interesting to the general reader. Occasionally she makes flat, dogmatic statements of cause and effect where only the vaguest of influences can be discerned. There does not by any means exist so plain a cause and effect relationship between romantic nationalism and Gothic architecture as Miss Addison speaks of in her concluding chapter. Naturally the two tendencies are often related, but to state, categorically, that the Gothic revival is the expression of nationalistic sentiments can only lead to confusion and error." Thomas Merton
+ — N Y Times p4 Ja 29 '39 600w

ADLER, ALFRED. Social interest: a challenge to mankind; tr. by John Linton and Richard Vaughan. 313p $3 Putnam [10s 6d Faber]
131.3463 Psychology. Psychoanalysis. Neuroses 39-27219

In this, the last work of the eminent Viennese psychologist who died in 1937, the author restated his theories of Individual Psychology, particularly in connection with the individual's adjustment to society. Partial contents: The conception of oneself and the world; The problem of body and soul; The inferiority complex; The superiority complex; What really is a neurosis? Sexual perversions; Day-dreams and night dreams; The meaning of life.

Booklist 35:263 Ap 15 '39

"All interested in the problems of social psychology and individual maladjustment should read one of Dr. Adler's books, and this is, one thinks, the best for them to read." R. H. T.
Manchester Guardian p7 Je 17 '38 260w

"Dr. Adler has nothing to add to his previous works that is significantly new, but he restates his now familiar ideas on the inferiority complex, social feeling, the desire for power, pampering, and childhood education. The points made seem simple enough but they are sometimes obscured, in spite of what appears to be a highly adequate translation, by a propensity to an involved and somewhat pedantic style." B. D. Lewin, M.D.
Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ap 15 '39 210w

"This book may be recommended, as an authoritative account of one of the most influential of the present-day schools of thought and one which gives an easily understood description of a system which has as many, if not more, therapeutic successes to its credit as its competitors."
Times [London] Lit Sup p451 Jl 2 '38 650w

ADSHEAD, GLADYS L. Something surprising; pictures by Helen Rinald. 69p $1 Oxford 560 Paleontology—Juvenile literature 39-27220

Short, simple story of the wonders of prehistoric plant and animal life. Emphasis is upon the enormous span of time between the various stages in the earth's story. For grades four to five.

Booklist 35:277 Ap 15 '39

"The use of difficult scientific terms is avoided and sentences are short so that a child of average fourth grade reading ability should have no difficulty with the text. The author writes with enthusiasm, but her style is marred now and again by a touch of self-consciousness. The book is superior to much that has been written on the subject for little children." M. S. Wilkinson
+ Library J 64:244 Mr 15 '39 100w

"This admirably clear, simple little volume for younger readers is very welcome." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 My 28 '39 180w

AGAR, HERBERT. Pursuit of happiness; the story of American democracy. 387p $3 Houghton [15s Eyre]
329.3 Democratic party. U.S.—Politics and government (W) 38-27839

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by R. G. Gettell
Am Pol Sci R 33:106 F '39 490w

Reviewed by Read Bain
Am Soc R 4:414 Je '39 750w

"This is a brilliant and timely book. It is the story of American democracy told with realism, simplicity, and power. Coming as it does at a time when champions of free institutions throughout the world stand with their backs to the wall, it is an evidence of the enduring vitality of the democratic tradition among the American people." G. S. Counts
+ Ann Am Acad 202:240 Mr '39 500w
Foreign Affairs 17:633 Ap '39 10w

"Mr. Agar has written a book of real distinction. The only bad thing about it is its title and subtitle. There is little or nothing in it about the pursuit of happiness; it tells the story, not of American democracy, but of American plutocracy which has persistently defeated every attempt to make American democracy a reality. It is an extremely interesting and valuable book." Leonard Woolf
+ New Statesman & Nation 17:392 Mr 11 '39 500w

Reviewed by R. F. Nichols
Pol Sci Q 54:607 D '39 850w
Special Libraries 30:136 Ap '39

"Tying his story to great issues which have meaning for us as well as for America, Mr. Agar has succeeded in making alive many old political issues which, treated in the usual academic way, are dead. . . He begins his narrative with a mistake in chronology, not, it is true, an important one, and goes on to tangle the story of the Louisiana purchase with an offer to cede Louisiana made to Jefferson. . . Then there are judgements on individuals which suggest haste. . . None of these slips matters very much." D. W. Brogan
+ — Spec 162:359 Mr 3 '39 600w

"Although Wilson's Presidency is skimmed over, for adequate reasons, and Franklin Roosevelt's, which might well have provided a grand finale, is not dealt with at all, the book has at times something of the air, and even the narrowness, of party propaganda. A 'story of American democracy' which fails to mention, for example, Emerson, can scarcely claim breadth, much less completeness."
Times [London] Lit Sup p259 My 6 '39 330w

AIKMAN, DUNCAN, and BOLLES, BLAIR. America's chance of peace. 161p $1 Doubleday
327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. U.S.—Neutrality 39-32327

Survey of significant facts concerning America's preparation for peace. The authors contrast the differences in our reception of the news of war in 1914 and in 1939, and the preparedness of this country then and now.

"This summary combines the merits and defects of journalistic commentary. It touches upon a wide variety of important topics in a sprightly and often witty fashion. . . In almost every chapter, however, it appears to skim the surface and never to dive as deeply into detailed analysis as any thoughtful citizen would desire. The authors have performed a useful public service, nevertheless, in turning out a clear, concise, and readable introduction to the most difficult issues of the day." J. F. Green

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:19 N 25 '39 350w

"The presentation is as interesting as it is valuable."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 26 '39 360w

AKERS, DWIGHT. Sleepy Tom; drawings by Robert Ball. (Minton, Balch bk) 218p $2 Putnam

39-24731

Story of a boy's faith in a crippled colt, which was his very own, and how his faith was amply rewarded years later. The story is based upon fact.

Booklist 36:240 F 15 '40

"Here is an exciting story for older boys, based on historical fact. . . The author has once more combined his knowledge of light harness racing with his ability to write an exciting story for children." H. A. Du Flon

+ Books p12 N 12 '39 400w

"This is a sound, flavorsome story, for boys of any age, full of the understanding and knowledge of horse-nature which we might expect from the author of 'Drivers Up.' Not soon again will we have a story of a gamer horse." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 D 10 '39 350w

ALBEE, WILLIAM. Kanguk, a boy of Bering strait. See Kanguk

ALBERT, ARTHUR LEMUEL. Fundamental electronics and vacuum tubes. 422p il $4.50 (20s) Macmillan

537.53 Electrons. Vacuum tubes 39-975

"Although the author, who is Professor of Communication Engineering in Oregon State College, writes primarily for students and instructors in college and university courses, his work should be of assistance to practicing engineers and to electrical workers who desire to review, or to study, the basic principles of the subject. Heavy mathematics are avoided wherever possible and there are numerous well-executed diagrams. Reading courses are given at the chapter endings." N Y New Tech Bks

"Prof. A. L. Albert's book can worthily take its place among the excellent group of American works on vacuum tubes which have appeared in the last few years. The author has succeeded in his task of introducing to engineers the fundamental principles of electronics." L. Jacob

+ Nature 144:401 S 2 '39 180w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:14 Ja '39

ALBERT, KATHERINE. Remember Valerie March. 313p $2 Simon & Schuster

39-16111

The story of the rise—and then the inevitable fall—of a great movie actress, as told by the man who first made her—then broke her.

"The story [is] skillfully and fascinatingly told. . . Miss Albert does not spare the Hollywood actress [any] measure of her true fate. It emerges as a dreadful and a futile one—a world of spectres and flickering shadows—altogether the antithesis of the sun-swept glories of Hollywood that you read about in the fan magazines." Marcia Davenport

+ Books p5 Jl 23 '39 1000w

Reviewed by Virginia Fletcher

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 490w

New Repub 99:287 Jl 12 '39 40w

"Miss Albert's book has its points: it is a good reflection of an unrestrained element in Hollywood life; its people, such as they are, are true to type, and it isn't the author's fault that they live abnormally and seem too often preoccupied with matters above which evolution has raised the minds of most men and women." R. G. Doyle

N Y Times p7 Jl 9 '39 700w

"Style somewhat slick-paper-magazine, but there's a certain authenticity most of the Hollywood novels have lacked."

New Yorker 15:87 Je 24 '39 30w

"Miss Albert, writing in the person of Conrad Powers, is almost perfect in her simulation of the masculine point of view and the masculine idiom. One may not be able to believe that a hard-boiled director like Powers would feel constrained to put an end to Valerie's career. . . But Conrad's lapse into quixoticism does not invalidate Valerie's character. She is drawn from life, and she lives. Her existence and her story may not be important, but Miss Albert, without sensationalism or exaggeration, has written a lively, absorbing tale that shows of what stuff a great screen star may be, and often has been, made." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 20:5 Jl 8 '39 550w

"One becomes bored and disgusted by the vulgar language, the profanity, the magnifying of trivial things. The story is written at high speed. Everything is jacked up to its nth power. The tale has glamor and a constant artificial light. It is a dazzling book for those who like to be dazzled. It is rather an oppressive experience for those who do not, perhaps because the author seems more concerned with sensation than satire."

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 9 '39 500w

ALBIG, JOHN WILLIAM. Public opinion. 486p il maps $4 McGraw

301.15 Public opinion 39-6619

Study of public opinion from the sociologist's point of view. The subjects dealt with are the nature and development of public opinion, communication, psychological processes and opinion, legends and myths, violence and public opinion, geographic distribution of group opinion, censorship, propaganda, the radio, etc. The author is associate professor of sociology, University of Illinois. Selected bibliography. Name and subject indexes.

Reviewed by T. S. Barclay

Am Pol Sci R 33:697 Ag '39 500w

"Numerous charts and tables give the reader a sense of the tangible when working with a subject that is often as difficult to lay hold of as a jelly-fish. But the volume leaves something to be desired. An active practitioner, one who works in the field as journalist, press agent, public relations counsel, politician, will experience a sense of disappointment in reading the book, traceable, no doubt, to Professor Albig's preoccupation with library source materials, much of which has been contributed by academic men, and his failure to rub shoulders with the tough-minded and realistic propagandists who make their living by manipulating attitudes and opinions. The overtones, atmosphere, and vitality that grow out of the advertising agency, the publicity man's office, the politician's headquarters have no penumbra in this book, and many of the propagandist's tricks and techniques go unrecorded." R. D. Casey

— + Am Soc R 4:729 O '39 380w

Reviewed by W. C. Clark

Ann Am Acad 205:176 S '39 480w

Management R 28:215 Je '39 260w

"Written in a scholarly style, the discussions embrace a wealth of factual material. But many chapters seem inconclusive, as if the author were content simply to describe and define, while leaving it to the reader to determine the significance of what has been said. . . The book also contains a number of generalities which are hard to square with known facts. . . Such criticisms of Professor Albig's work are, however, criticisms of detail only. The book is a valuable source for students interested in the sociological aspects of public opinion. It provides background and orientation for the study of a subject rapidly growing in importance in modern society." George Gallup

ALBIG, J. W.—Continued
+ — Sat R of Lit 19:10 Ap 22 '39 750w

Reviewed by W. B. Graves
Social Forces 18:127 O '39 550w
Social Studies 30:284 O '39 100w
Time 33:87 Ap 17 '39 230w

ALBION, ROBERT GREENHALGH, and POPE, JENNIE BARNES. The rise of New York port [1815-1860]. 485p il maps $3.75 Scribner
387.1 New York (city)—Harbor. New York (city)—Commerce 39-27172

History of New York's coastwise and foreign commerce during the years 1815 to 1860. It is proposed to follow this volume with other studies of "the colorful two centuries which preceded this period and of the years since 1860, when the port rose to world primacy." Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by K. W. Porter
Am Hist R 45:415 Ja '40 500w
Booklist 35:244 Ap 1 '39

Reviewed by Lincoln Colcord
Books p3 Mr 12 '39 2000w

"While appreciating the more romantic aspects of the port's history . . . Mr. Albion never loses sight of facts and figures . . . in this plain, well written book. This reviewer's main objection to Mr. Albion's book is the dearth of maps; some of his readers will need the assistance of a world's atlas. More space might have been given also to the relations between the New York merchants and Western business men." Daniel Aaron
+ — Boston Transcript p3 My 27 '39 550w
Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 18 '39 480w

"While necessarily a considerable part of the book will be familiar to readers of a historical turn of mind, so much new information has been dug out of the records and is interestingly interpreted in the text, or preserved in the appendices, that no collector of New Yorkiana and no student of American economic and commercial trends can afford to dispense with it. One looks forward to Professor Albion's promised future publication of additional links in New York's port history." Drake De Kay
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 5 '39 1250w
Pratt p24 summer '39

"This is an unusually well-planned and carefully wrought volume, packed with the fruits of research, touching a wide variety of topics, and yet without a dull page. Some of its chapters merely open up large topics which are worth books in themselves; but taken in relation to its aim, the book shows no lack of thoroughness. The publishers have illustrated it with a wealth of attractive maritime prints and unhackneyed portraits." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 20:12 My 6 '39 900w

Reviewed by W. H. Mohr
Social Studies 30:231 My '39 380w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan
Spec 162:1045 Je 16 '39 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 26 '39 900w

"Dr. Albion has roused great expectations. His book fully satisfies the highest hopes. Here one of the greatest themes in modern economic history is treated with a fulness, a depth and width of learning and a lively critical power that call for the highest praise."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p254 Ap 29 '39 150w

ALBRIGHT, HARDIE. All the living. 148p $1.50 French
812 38-22310

A play based on Victor R. Small's book, I Knew 3000 Lunatics. "The play tells the story of a young doctor who discovers a treatment for dementia praecox and of his difficulties to get it adopted. In his struggles he loses his girl to another doctor, but gains his ambition otherwise." (Commonweal)

" 'All the Living' like its predecessor which it so much resembles, 'Men in White,' is not perhaps in the truest sense a work of art, in that it is not a play composed of materials which have passed through the fire of the dramatist's imagination, and emerged transfused into a complete whole. It is rather a play made up of separate incidents projected photographically. It is, in short, not a work of creative power, or one which bears the impress of any poetic or even literary sense; but as photography it is excellent. I personally do not know if it gives a perfect picture of life in an asylum, but it certainly gives the impression that it does." Grenville Vernon
+ — Commonweal 27:666 Ap 8 '38 400w
(Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by J. W. Krutch
Nation 146:423 Ap 9 '38 130w

"I should say of 'All the Living' that you have to do a good deal of shaking down to get its best content quite clear of drifting clutter, but that the result is worth the effort." Stark Young
+ — New Repub 94:305 Ap 13 '38 500w
(Dramatic criticism)

Reviewed by Rosamond Gilder
Theatre Arts Mo 23:309 Ap '39 40w

ALBRIGHT, WILLIAM FOXWELL. Haverford symposium on archaeology and the Bible. See Grant, E.

ALDEN, JOHN LESLIE. The design of industrial exhaust systems. 220p il $3 Industrial press
621.5 Exhaust systems. Compressed air 39-2870

" 'The purpose of this book is to tell the engineer how to design and build or how to buy an exhaust system that will adequately and economically perform the functions prescribed by the industrial hygiene expert or by law. . . The subject of exhaust ventilation embraces the theory of air flow, the application of this theory to practical design, the selection of commercial fans and dust collectors, the construction of the physical plant and the testing of the completed system.' " N Y New Tech Bks

"Although it has been treated as an incidental part of most books on ventilation and air conditioning, the question of how to put moving air to work in the conveying of gases, fumes, dusts and other solids has not heretofore received adequate treatment. Mr. Alden corrects this condition in excellent fashion and his little treatise is one that should be a 'must' on the shelf of every engineer whose duty it is to design or specify dust and fume removal equipment."
+ Chem & Met Eng 46:491 Ag '39 150w
Eng N 123:79 Jl 20 '39 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:23 Ap '39

ALDINGTON, RICHARD. Rejected guest. 378p $2.50 Viking [7s 6d Heinemann]
39-23871

The central character is David Norris, illegitimate offspring of a soldier of aristocratic parentage and the belle of a little English town where troops were quartered in 1914. After the death of his maternal grandparents who had brought him up, David took what little money he had and immersed himself in the study of science. With money received from his baronet grandfather David spent several idyllic months on the Riviera, fell in love with a wealthy, amoral young girl and lost her on the eve of the second World war.

"The manner of the book is pure comedy, the dialogue smiling cynicism. It is as though Mr. Aldington, wearily convinced that no sound bludgeon will do an atom of good, has decided to snipe the world's mistakes. The book is amoral, and peopled by unadmirable characters —rather, one gathers, like the world as Richard Aldington sees it." Frances Woodward

Atlantic N '39 170w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Books p4 S 24 '39 1000w

Reviewed by Ann Springer
Boston Transcript p1 O 14 '39 310w

"Rejected Guest is a very intelligently written novel, and the first hundred pages make very good reading indeed—swift in movement, good in characterization, sure in rendering the scene. But afterward the author yields to that temptation that seems to be always before the contemporary English novelist—the Riviera, smart living, and a loose lady of the nobility." M. M. Colum
+ — Forum 102:228 N '39 550w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p3 O 17 '39 300w

Reviewed by L. B. Salomon
Nation 149:447 O 21 '39 330w

"Hardly a person is allowed to appear in the book whose selfishness, jealousy, hypocrisy, shallowness or venality David doesn't ultimately see through; in the rather amusing but tonally incongruous later chapters he suddenly ceases being a melancholy and idealistic youth and begins throwing off flippant cynicisms like those of his creator. . . This is less like mature pessimism than adolescent shell-shock." Edgar Johnson
— New Repub 101:21 N 8 '39 300w

Reviewed by John Mair
New Statesman & Nation 18:583 O 21 '39 550w

" 'Rejected Guest' is wholly of its day in substance, spirit, realism and style. It can be passionate, hard or tender; never sentimental. If it spreads wings into the stratosphere it grips the ground again with a derisive and disarming grin. There is little doubt in this reviewer's mind that it marks not only a pleasant but an important milestone in its writer's literary journey." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p6 S 24 '39 950w

"Mr. Aldington is a cultivated writer with a nice satiric touch. His comments on the modern English scene are perhaps a trifle too elegant and pointed for the story he has chosen to tell. . . Amusing but not very consequential."
+ — New Yorker 15:69 S 30 '39 130w

"The flavor of the book is almost uniformly sprightly and comic, and the story does not sag under a burden of truculent fault-finding. In 'Very Heaven' Mr. Aldington as a critic of his times was too earnest, often angry; but in 'Rejected Guest' he is more amused than indignant, and smashes his idols not savagely but in boisterous high spirits." R. A. Cordell
+ Sat R of Lit 20:12 S 30 '39 440w

"This is one of Mr. Aldington's most readable books. . . This is the story of life doing things to you, and it would have been better if the author had intruded less and had allowed us to draw our own conclusions." Graham Greene
+ — Spec 163:600 O 27 '39 160w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 1 '39 800w

"Richard Aldington's bright, reckless style has improved since Death of a Hero, his epigrams are neater (though subject to an appalling tendency to show off his Greek), but his grasp of real experience is weaker."
+ — Time 34:70 O 2 '39 410w
Times [London] Lit Sup p623 O 28 '39 700w

ALDIS, DOROTHY (KEELEY) (MRS GRAHAM ALDIS). Before things happen; with drawings by Margaret Freeman. 85p $1.50 Putnam

811 39-30695

Simple poems for young readers about the different phases of a child's world.

"A book of simple, merry verses, will please those who are very young. Their parents and teachers, too, will be happy to find this new book by Dorothy Aldis." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 30 '39 70w

Reviewed by Marian Herr
Library J 64:1002 D 15 '39 50w

Reviewed by Marion Strobel
Poetry 55:222 Ja '40 170w

"Gay and imaginative."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:26 N 18 '39 20w

ALDRICH, MRS BESS (STREETER). Song of years. 490p $2.50 Appleton-Century

(W) 38-29081

Story of pioneer Iowa during the years 1854 to 1865. When Wayne Lockwood took up his quarter-section about a hundred miles west of Dubuque, he found his nearest neighbor to be Jeremiah Martin, a sturdy pioneer with a family of seven hearty daughters and two sons. From that time on Wayne's destiny was bound up with the Martins.

Booklist 35:190 F 1 '39

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p9 Ja 22 '39 320w
Churchman 153:34 Mr 15 '39 30w

"The substance of the book—and no one would deny that it has substance—lies rather in its study of a locale and a period, and perhaps in its groundwork of the same sturdy sentiment which has endeared Mrs. Aldrich's work already to a generation of readers." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 22 '39 650w
Pratt p30 spring '39

"Mrs. Aldrich handles only the easy emotions, but with complete mastery and conviction. Without literary capers, the story walks its straight road to laughter and tears and family affections and comradeships and griefs. When she approaches an emotional scene, the author herself feels it so strongly that the emotion carries. This novel will wet many eyes. That too is a reason for the popularity of Mrs. Aldrich's books. There is nothing phony in this sentiment. It comes from the heart. . . This is profoundly feminine fiction, and it does its job perfectly." Wallace Stegner
+ Sat R of Lit 19:10 Ja 28 '39 600w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 29 '39 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p91 F 11 '39 80w
Wis Lib Bul 35:27 F '39

ALDRICH, DARRAGH, pseud. (MRS CLARA CHAPLINE [THOMAS] ALDRICH). Girl going nowhere. 275p $2 Kinsey

39-3400

Story of a group of homeless young wanderers, not yet hoboes but rapidly progressing from stealing rides on freight trains and petty pilfering to more serious crimes and anti-social behavior. The two chief characters have come from cultured environments, but others are shown who also have in them something worth saving. The scene of the story is a small town in Minnesota.

"Mrs. Aldrich writes of the rootless younger generation with sympathy, gives the reader an insight into their psychology and tells a first-rate story, seasoned with hobo slang." Lisle Bell
+ Books p16 F 19 '39 200w

"To give the problem of straying children a more cheerful prospect, Mrs. Aldrich has introduced the figure of a good Samaritan. . . He can be helpful in giving some a chance

ALDRICH, DARRAGH, pseud.—Continued
through training and guidance, and this is the message of the book. It touches both the head and the heart, sentimental but dealing aptly with pertinent questions." M. L. Rossbach

+ N Y Times p23 F 26 '39 650w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 28 '39 270w
Wis Lib Bul 35:64 Ap '39

ALEKHIN, ALEKSANDR ALEKSANDROVICH. My best games of chess, 1924-1937. 285p il $3.50 Harcourt [12s 6d Bell, G]

794.1 Chess

Analyses of one hundred and twenty games by a Master and World Champion. The games are grouped in four sections: Part I (1924-1927) Tournament games and match with Capablanca; Part II (1929-1934) Tournament games and matches with Bogoljubow; Part III (1934-1937) Tournament games and matches with Dr Euwe; Part IV (1924-1933) Simultaneous and blindfold play exhibition and consultation games.

"A close study of the chess champion's games contained in this book and also of his commentary upon them increases one's respect for his genius. The word 'genius' is often misapplied to chess champions and chess masters who have great talent, considerable subtlety, and occasional flashes of brilliancy. Alekhine has the permanent genius which continually illuminates his play and turns a game or intellectual exercise into an art."

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:872 D 9 '39 160w

"This is a fascinating book. The brilliance and profundity of the present world champion's play need no emphasis; but he is also a highly entertaining annotator whose comments engagingly reveal his own personality. The notes are exhaustive and sometimes run to a column or more. They are an illuminating explanation of the working of the player's mind as he actually played the game."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p723 D 9 '39 120w

ALEKHIN, ALEKSANDR ALEKSANDROVICH. World's chess championship, 1937; official account of the games. 203p il $2 McKay [5s Pitman]

794.1 Chess [39-27182]

"This agreeably produced book contains all the games of the recent [1937] world championship match fully annotated by the players. Each has written the notes for his own victories; Dr. Euwe those for most of the drawn games. Dr. Alekhine has also written an important theoretical introduction, and has in some cases commented upon his opponent's annotations. In addition there are biographies of both players and an introduction by the editor, the well-known English amateur Mr. H. Golombek." Times [London] Lit Sup

---

Booklist 35:248 Ap 1 '39

"The book is of outstanding interest to chess players. It is impossible for the average player to understand games of such difficulty and complexity without lucid and impartial notes by the contestants themselves. With their guidance one can discover the ideas in the players' minds and the psychological explanation of their mistakes. The amateur will be consoled by the number of occasions in each game in which one or other failed to find the best move."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p510 Jl 30 '38 160w

ALESSIOS, MRS ALISON J. (BAIGRIE). Round the mulberry hill; il. by Alma Wentzel Froderstrom. 216p $1.50 Longmans

(W) 39-27622

Account of the daily life on a farm as seen by a very real little girl named Elly Russell. Printed in large type, for grades four to five.

Booklist 36:16 S '39

"It is told with such fresh, warm feeling for the country that one can smell the sweet spiciness of the grass round the brook and the cakes Elly's mother is forever baking."

+ Cath World 150:377 D '39 50w

Reviewed by Josephine Smith
Library J 64:904 N 15 '39 100w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 35:189 N '39

ALEXANDER, CONEL HUGH O'DONEL. Chess. 188p il $1.50 McKay [4s Pitman]

794.1 Chess [39-1651]

Textbook for the beginner at chess, setting forth the elements of the game, the principles of end-game, middle-games and openings. Each chapter is followed by a series of exercises. Index.

Booklist 35:248 Ap 1 '39

"Mr. Alexander is a master in a double sense, and his experience in teaching at a famous public school has no doubt contributed as much to the excellence of his book as his skill in the game he expounds. For a beginner there could scarcely be a better introduction. . . Mr. Alexander writes, moreover, with a considerable sense of humour, and his occasional obiter dicta on manners of the chess board are not the least valuable part of his instruction."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p45 Ja 15 '38 240w

ALEXANDER, HOLMES MOSS. American nabob. 473p $2.50 Harper

39-17410

"A carefully done American historical novel of the middle eighteen-hundreds in Virginia and West Virginia. The hero is the strong-unscrupulous-entrepreneur type, colorful, picturesque, and rough with his women." New Yorker

---

"It isn't a perfect novel. . . But it is a remarkably colorful and soundly based piece of work, with a fresh and interesting background, both in locale and in time. There is nothing tired about it and very little that is imitative. It seems to me one of the real discoveries of the season." S. V. Benét

+ — Books p3 Jl 23 '39 600w

"This long, bulky, formless novel suffers in exact proportion to its length, its bulkiness, its formlessness. The stirring and the moving passages (it is intended to be full of both) occur in the first 150 pages, when the story has a traceable theme and the semblance of a coherent plot. But after that too much happens, and happens without much relation to what has gone before and what will come after." Mark Schorer

— + Boston Transcript p1 Ag 5 '39 270w
New Repub 100:168 S 13 '39 40w

"The characters are lost in the shadows of the over-detailed scene. If the novel were one-third shorter it would be one-third better. As it is, it is work in no way to be taken lightly. It is honest writing of authentic native origin. It has scenes of brilliance and insight, particularly those between Curtis Larkin and his granitic wife. In quality this novel is genuinely above the average, but in reaching for the stars it must be compared inevitably with other major creative efforts that have carried immense designs to somewhat higher levels of passion and experience." Stanley Young

+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 23 '39 480w
New Yorker 15:75 Jl 22 '39 30w
Time 34:62 Jl 24 '39 260w

ALEXANDER, ROY. The cruise of the raider Wolf. 270p map $2.75 Yale univ. press [8s 6d Cape, J]

940.459 Wolf (raider). European war, 1914-1918—Naval operations (W) 39-23670

The "Wolf" was a German tramp merchantman, converted during the Great war into a raider and mine layer. The tale of her exploits in 1917 is told by an Australian who was serving as wireless operator on a British liner in the Pacific when she was captured by the "Wolf," and spent the next nine months on board as prisoner.

Booklist 36:130 D 1 '39

Reviewed by R. F. Armknecht
Books p4 D 10 '39 1500w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Boston Transcript p1 N 25 '39 400w
Christian Century 56:1345 N 1 '39 300w
Nation 150:52 Ja 13 '40 250w

Reviewed by Otis Ferguson
New Repub 101:148 N 22 '39 380w

"The author has added to the literature of the great war a very thrilling and worth-while book." R. G. Doyle
+ N Y Times p16 N 12 '39 1050w
New Yorker 15:86 N 4 '39 70w

"Although the introduction indicates that the tale is told for the quality of adventure and romance that it possesses in high degree, the book also is interesting and valuable, especially during the present renewal of Allied-German maritime warfare, as a serious contribution to naval history. For this reason its lack of an index is to be regretted." E. A. Falk
+ Sat R of Lit 21:6 N 4 '39 900w

"Mr. Alexander sensibly lets the facts speak for themselves, and his simple, somewhat ingenuous style suits the narrative admirably. The ordinary reader, with no special interest in the sea, will find that the book carries him on breathlessly to its triumphant conclusion in Kiel Bay. . . The book also contains much to interest the student of war. It is written by a seaman who knows what he is talking about, and has taken obvious care, for example, in the very valuable appendices, to have his facts accurate. It is, therefore, a most useful source for studying the impact of a genius at guerilla warfare upon our vulnerable trade routes." W. V. Emanuel
+ Spec 162:724 Ap 28 '39 600w
Time 34:82 N 6 '39 450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p271 My 6 '39 300w

"It would have taken a greater pen than Mr. Alexander's to do justice to this story. Unfortunately no one was there who could have done it. Mr. Alexander does the next best thing. He tells a plain unvarnished tale, without dramatics, without bombast, and with just enough nautical knowledge to make the entire story crystal clear." William McFee
+ Yale R n s 29:378 winter '40 1000w

ALEXANDER, RYLLIS CLAIR (MRS OMAR PANCOAST GOSLIN), and GOSLIN, OMAR PANCOAST. Don't kill the goose. 169p il $2.50 Harper

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Economic policy (W) 39-18614

In simple language and with frequent use of graphic illustration the authors analyze our economic problems and propose as a solution a four-year planning program to be formulated by government, agriculture and industry working together.

Booklist 36:2 S '39

"This reviewer found the Goslins' solution an unconvincing anti-climax to a very fine presentation of the whole puzzle of the idiocy of want in an economy of abundance." E. M. Stabler
+ — Books p8 D 31 '39 500w

"A sound and liberal approach to the present unbalance between consumption and productive capacity, with constructive proposals that go the New Deal one better."
+ New Repub 100:167 S 13 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 35:182 N '39

ALGER, LECLAIRE. Jan and the wonderful mouth-organ; pictures by Charlotte Becker. 177p $2 Harper

Children in Slovakia (W) 39-27769

Four Slovak boys, with Jan as their leader, were saving all their money for the wonderful mouth-organ they had seen in a village shop-window. When they heard of the crippled small brother of their favorite Hungarian Hussar the boys decided to send the mouth organ to the unfortunate boy. As a background to the story the author has depicted Slovak manners and customs for fifth and sixth grade readers.

Booklist 36:73 O 15 '39

"There's a real picture of the Slovak people, their customs, festivals and home life in this stirring tale. Charlotte Becker's illustrations portray the people, their costumes and home interiors in a vivid way." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 13 '39 120w

"The life of the Slovak people is vividly shown, both in the writing and in the pictures by Charlotte Becker. This can be heartily recommended to boys and girls from eight to eleven, for there is something very satisfying in it." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 64:952 D 1 '39 100w
Wis Lib Bul 35:219 D '39

ALIHAN, MILLA AISSA. Social ecology; a critical analysis. 267p map $2.75 Columbia univ. press [14s Oxford]

301 Sociology 38-38003

"This volume is not, as one might assume from its title, a treatise or a textbook on the subject of ecology. It is rather a critical estimate of what is now generally recognized among sociological students in America as 'the ecological point of view.' It is in fact something more than that. It is an attempt to piece together from scattered references to ecological method and theory, in the literature of the subject, a consistent theory of society; something significant and worthy of what the author describes as 'one of the most definite and influential schools in American sociology.'" Ann Am Acad

"The author confines her discussion almost entirely to the work of Park, Burgess and McKenzie on cities, and seems to have no knowledge of a considerable literature on human ecology which has resulted from the studies of rural sociologists. The book has little of interest for psychologists, as it is chiefly devoted to a philosophical discussion of concepts of sociological theory and entirely neglects the significant findings of social ecology." Dwight Sanderson
Am J Psychol 53:169 Ja '40 270w

"This volume adopts the twofold purpose of 'presenting and examining' the position, concepts and methodology of this particular school. By and large, the author succeeds somewhat better with the examining than with the explaining process; as one reads, the suspicion early arises that what is done in the latter is but to serve as an excuse for the former. One seems to sense, early, too, much writing with the knife protruding at the edge of the sleeve. This is not convincing craftsmanship: not to build up the picture adequately before cutting it to pieces. It is too much like academic shadow boxing. All this is unfortunate, too, because it detracts from what in many ways is a useful and valuable book." J. H. S. Bossard

ALIHAN, M. A.—Continued
+ — Am Soc R 4:119 F '39 500w

"The author of this volume has sought to collect and piece together, like blocks in a puzzle, precept, hypothesis, and theory, where she found them in the scattered writings of the school. She has done this, apparently, in the expectation or the hope that when the different pieces were fitted into place they would make a consistent and intelligent whole. The result has been disappointing, but nevertheless interesting. . . In any case, this is an important task that the author has undertaken, and there are other theories besides those of the ecologists that need to go through the wringer." R. E. Park
+ — Ann Am Acad 202:264 Mr '39 550w

"Alihan's Social Ecology is the most devastating criticism of current sociological theory the reviewer has been privileged to read. Dealing specifically with human or social ecology, the book is crowded from cover to cover with examples of loosely defined concepts, inconsistencies in the use of terms, illogicalities, and contradictions. That any good might come from a system of theory so patently devoid of all that is desirable would seem to be completely denied by this treatise. But the author contrives to be critical without malice, to find fault without blaming, and notes that for all the defects of their theory social ecologists have produced numerous valuable studies of social life." C. M. Rosenquist
+ Ethics 49:382 Ap '39 210w

Reviewed by J. I. Cohen
Nature 143:498 Mr 25 '39 260w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman
New Repub 99:79 My 24 '39 600w

ALLAN, TED. This time a better earth. 279p $2.50 Morrow

39-4904

Autobiographical novel written by a young Canadian journalist who spent eight months in Spain during the Civil war. The story is of six comrades, all of them comparatively young, who fought in Spain in the International brigades, and what happened to each of them.

Booklist 35:252 Ap 1 '39

"This story has vividness, veracity and power. If you open the book you will read it through. It is leanly written and possesses a peculiar living quality. In these respects, as well as in subject matter, it is definitely reminiscent of Hemingway's 'Farewell to Arms'; but its characters are soldiers of hope, rather than despair. . . 'This Time a Better Earth' is far and above mere special pleading. It is a stirring and faithful story. . . Beyond that Ted Allan knows how to write and he has something to say." Leland Stowe
+ Books p5 F 26 '39 1050w

Reviewed by J. D. Beresford
Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 18 '39 260w

Reviewed by Samuel Romer
Nation 149:557 N 18 '39 50w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 18:254 Ag 12 '39 450w

"Considered as fiction, the story has the shortcomings of most maiden attempts by youthful authors. Although there is an occasional bit of good dialogue and revealing incident, one misses the deft handling of plot and character, the style and spirit of the proficient novelist. But as eyewitness reporting of the ghastly incidents of warfare and as the emotional reaction of a clever young man to the war and the social conflict that engendered it the story has merits. It is a human document well worth perusing by those who feel that the Spanish civil war is symptomatic of a world-wide conflict of ideals." Drake De Kay
+ — N Y Times p7 F 26 '39 650w

Pratt p27 autumn '39

"There are good things in the book, though the prose is almost never one of them. Allan's very average style, however, gives the American boys he describes the ordinary American quality that was true of them. And much of his detail, though badly employed and wasted on the story, is true historically. The chronology of events is accurate, some battles are described by men who took part in them, all the names of places are real, and the men are often recognizable even with their false whiskers and fictional names. Anyone with an historian's eye for it will find meat here, most of all in the songs." J. B.
+ — Sat R of Lit 19:20 F 25 '39 280w

"The author has a vivid and not unpleasant style, but it is not clear why he preferred this thin and rather unsatisfactory coating of fiction to describe the realities of the war in Spain."
Times [London] Lit Sup p489 Ag 19 '39 300w

ALLEE, MARJORIE (HILL) (MRS W. C. ALLEE). Runaway Linda; il. by David Hendrickson. 220p $2 Houghton

(W) 39-27841

The time of the story is 1875. Linda Thornburgh, fifteen, and her brother Joel, ten, run away from an "uncle" who brought them from North Carolina to work on his Indiana farm. Then their problems are adjusted thru the kindness of another Indiana farmer.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p12 D 1 '39 40w

Reviewed by Irene Smith
+ Library J 64:843 N 1 '39 70w

"Girls will approve this story from an 1875 setting, with its uncomplicated drama and direct appeal to the sympathies. . . Gives an excellent picture of the era." Irene Smith
+ Library J 64:904 N 15 '39 160w

ALLEN, ADAM. Printer's devil; il. by E. A. Furman. 202p $1.75 Macmillan

39-5010

Describes a twelve-year-old boy's summer on a country newspaper and what he learned there. Bob Wilson does not cover himself with glory in any way; he merely learns the routine of newspaper work from start to finish.

" 'Printer's Devil' sets out to do just one thing, and does it. It answers all the questions a ten-year-old boy, fascinated by printer's ink, will ask when he gets inside a printing office. This is higher praise than may at first meet the eye." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 Mr 12 '39 350w

"Obviously the author knows printing and newspaper work. This book is far more plausible than the average quick success story of the cub reporter. However, the long pages of description, clear and comprehensible though they are, drag the reader too far from the story. Bob is unusually childish for a boy about to enter high school, for he acts and speaks like a fifth grader. The illustrations bear out this impression. We wish the author had written this book without the coating of fiction, or had centered on the story." Eleanor Kidder
+ — Library J 64:332 Ap 15 '39 140w

"The progress of the baseball championship series gives a thread of continuity to the story, but its main interest is the amazing amount of information on newspaper production which it conveys in a singularly painless manner to would-be reporters and serious-minded editors of school papers." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p11 Ap 9 '39 310w

"The insight given into newspaper work, rather than the excitement of the baseball field, provides the chief interest of an excellent juvenile book."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 2 '39 180w
Wis Lib Bul 35:116 Je '39

ALLEN, ARTHUR AUGUSTUS. The golden plover and other birds. (American bird biographies; second series) 324p il $3 Comstock pub. co.
598.2 Birds—Juvenile literature
(W) 39-4705

Companion volume to the authors American Bird Biographies [first series] (Book Review Digest, 1935). This volume contains studies of twenty-seven different kinds of American birds, told in an autobiographical form. Questions on each chapter are included. For grades five to eight.

Booklist 35:292 My 1 '39

"The photographs are far more than mere bird portraits. They are real illustrations, exhibits if you please, chosen to authenticate the statements made by the birds. On the whole they are so excellent that it is difficult to name any one as best; but that of the flying Golden Plover, the first in the book, is so full of vitality and atmosphere and so completely satisfying as a picture that we choose it. The multitude of readers of Dr. Allen's two volumes of bird biographies will be clamoring for more." G. M. Sutton
+ Books p18 O 8 '39 700w
Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 50:7 Ap '39 150w

ALLEN, ARTHUR MEREDITH, and others. Commercial banking legislation and control. 513p $4.50 (18s) Macmillan 332 Banks and banking. Banking law
[38-36478]

"The main principles of commercial banking legislation are outlined in this volume, and banking codes in the principal countries of the world are examined. Some historical background is included." Management R

"The amount of research which must have been necessary to prepare a volume of this kind is tremendous and explains the joint authorship of the volume, as the task would have been too great for a single author. . . . The volume is a valuable one for two reasons. First, it forms an excellent reference work for anyone interested in specific legislation pertaining to the commercial banks in any one of the particular countries covered. Second, the volume as a whole is useful in presenting a comparative study of the trend of commercial banking legislation in a wide range of countries." F. A. Bradford
+ Am Econ R 28:585 S '38 450w
Management R 28:36 Ja '39 30w

"An invaluable reference-book for students and business men."
+ Spec 160:550 Mr 25 '38 250w

ALLEN, CADY HEWS. The message of the book of Revelation. 180p $1.50 Cokesbury press
228 Bible. New Testament—Revelation
39-21189

"Mr Allen, a Presbyterian missionary in Iran, deeply moved by the struggles and despairs of peoples in this tragically transitional era, finds the Book of Revelation relevant and fascinating because of its triumphant faith in God and trust that he always makes right and truth and love triumph. He pictures vividly the Roman Empire and the church of the first century, studies the ground and assurance of victory that constitute the background of the New Testament's apocalyptic book and makes a sane interpretation of its imagery and symbolic language as relevant to the world today." (Churchman) Bibliography. Index.

Christian Century 56:975 Ag 9 '39 60w

"Even the Fundamentalists should admit that Mr. Allen has written an arousing and reassuring book that will help many and perhaps start a great many ministers and laymen toward further study of the somewhat neglected last book of the Bible." A. L. Murray
+ Churchman 153:18 O 15 '39 150w

ALLEN, GLOVER MORRILL. Bats. 368p il $4 Harvard univ. press
599.4 Bats 39-27424

"The natural history, habits and geographical distribution of bats, with some account of their place in folklore, and of their relation to the spread of disease. Illustrated with excellent photographs. Bibliography." Booklist

Booklist 35:324 Je 1 '39

"Dr. Allen has supplemented his absorbing text with excellent illustrations and a thorough index. Bats should have many more friends and fewer thoughtless detractors as a result of the publication of this volume. Mammalogists will find the bibliography and the carefully detailed accounts of permanent value." William Beebe
+ Books p2 Je 25 '39 800w

"Because so many people are ignorant of their origin and ways of life, Dr. Allen, professor of zoology in Harvard University and curator of mammals in the Museum of Comparative Zoology, has written this book for popular consumption. Unless one is an enthusiast on the subject of bats, some of the information may seem a little detailed, but nowhere are there technical passages too difficult for easy understanding."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 Je '39 320w

"A scholarly and comprehensive treatise, lucidly and interestingly written. . . Mr Allen's richly informing and fascinating treatise has illustrations that match the interest of the text."
+ Springf'd Republican p12 Je 9 '39 750w

ALLEN, MARIE LOUISE. A pocketful of rhymes; il. with phot. by the author [introd. by May Hill Arbuthnot]. 47p $1.25 Harper 39-6844

Simple rhymes and photographs show familiar happenings in the life of children between the ages when Mother Goose rhymes are popular, and the time for such poems as Milne's When We Were Very Young.

"The author is a nursery school teacher and her material has the sure authoritative touch that comes only from close association with little children. It is illustrated with excellent photographs. . . The price seems reasonable enough to warrant its wide purchase for the use of parents and teachers in libraries of all sizes. It is also a book to recommend confidently for home purchase." J. L. Sauer
+ Library J 64:614 Ag '39 110w

"These simple, matter-of-fact jingles, though they never rise to real poetry, will be helpful both to mothers and nursery-school teachers. They might have reached a far larger public, however, had they been published in a less pretentious volume, with gay and childlike line drawings, which, as a matter of fact, little children enjoy more than photographs. The photographs are excellent but in appearance the book lacks charm and distinction." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p8 My 14 '39 160w
Wis Lib Bul 35:114 Je '39

ALLEN, MERRITT PARMELEE. Black rain; il. by James MacDonald. 213p $2 Longmans 39-22048

Tale of the siege of Detroit by Pontiac. The hero is a fictitious younger brother of Major Gladwyn, commander of the fort.

"Some of the minor characterizations are well done. If one unpleasant passage in which a dog is tortured had been omitted, the book could be recommended more heartily. Those who demand more realistic 'red blooded' stories for boys will find it written to order. There is plenty of red blood here and much of it in plain sight, doubtless true enough to the practices of Indian warfare." J. L. Sauer

+ — Library J 64:806 O 15 '39 260w

"A tale of adventure to hold the interest and fire the imagination of juvenile readers."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 170w

ALLEN, ROY GEORGE DOUGLAS. Mathematical analysis for economists. 548p $9 (31s 6d); reissue $4.50 Macmillan

330.1951 Economics, Mathematical. Calculus
[38-10349]

"The aim of this book is to provide a course of pure mathematics that will be useful to students of economics. The earlier chapters, which deal with numbers and variables and their representation, with analytical geometry, the elements of the calculus, etc., will, as intended by the author, be helpful and valuable to the student of economics who has little mathematical equipment but must learn more in order to follow the modern treatment of economic theory, for which economists are considerably indebted to the late Prof. Alfred Marshall and later writers. The later chapters deal with functions of two or more variables, with differentials, problems of maximum and minimum values, differential equations, expansions and determinants, while a final chapter discusses some problems in the calculus of variations." (Nature) The book is based on a series of lectures given annually at the London School of Economics. Index.

Reviewed by Wassily Leontief

Am Econ R 28:525 S '38 180w

"In a condensed but readable style the volume covers a considerable span of mathematics. . . Each sub-division of the mathematics is applied to some economic problem, and there is an excellent supply of exercises for students. The economist who actually works through all this will have gained a vast increment in his powers of economic analysis." Harold Hotelling

+ Ann Am Acad 205:154 S '39 800w

"The completeness of the book may be a defect. To provide a textbook was the primary intention, and the most important. But the price is very high for those most likely to put it to much use. This defect could be remedied by the publication of a shorter 'Introduction.' No one could do it better than Mr Allen himself; and it would increase the appetite for the bigger book, which will doubtless become the standard work on the subject."

+ — Economist 131:143 Ap 16 '38 300w

"Mr. Allen's book fills a most important gap in our literature on mathematical economics. This subject has finally, after an uphill struggle of the great pioneers, established itself firmly and has become recognized even in academic circles in this country, mainly thanks to the efforts of the Econometric Society. The time has evidently come to give a broad survey of the field, and this once revolutionary subject is entering the stage in which textbooks are being written about it. Mr. Allen has fulfilled this task most admirably, and he has given us a textbook which stands up very well with the best we have in other fields." Gerhard Tintner

+ J Pol Econ 47:271 Ap '39 750w

Management R 28:180 My '39 40w

"Mr. Allen's book contains much that could be read by students who have no direct interest in economics, and it can be whole-heartedly recommended." W. P. E.

+ Nature 142:6 Jl 2 '38 550w

ALLEN, ROY MORRIS. The microscope in elementary cast iron metallurgy. 148p il $3 Am. foundrymen's assn.

669.1 Iron—Metallography. Cast iron 39-13619

"Discusses the value of the microscope to the foundryman and treats in a fairly simple way the fundamentals of physical cast iron metallurgy; sulphur and phosphorus in cast iron; special cast irons; the cast iron equilibrium diagram; and the technique and use of the microscope. The book is also well adapted to college metallurgical courses." N Y New Tech Bks

"An enlargement of the material presented at a series of lectures at the 1939 Convention of the American Foundrymen's Association in Cincinnati, Ohio, the book is written in simple language that can be understood easily by both the novice and the expert."

+ Chem & Met Eng 46:725 N '39 200w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:42 Jl '39

ALLEN, SHIRLEY WALTER. An introduction to American forestry. 402p il maps $3.50 (21s) McGraw

634.9 Forests and forestry—U.S. 38-36488

A textbook for first-year classes in forestry. The book considers general care and protection of forests, questions of policy and administration of a forestry service, and also the economic and social values of the forest. The author is professor of forestry, School of forestry and conservation, University of Michigan. Index.

Nature 144:614 O 7 '39 360w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:7 Ja '39

ALLEN, VAN NES. I found Africa. 306p il map $3 Bobbs

916.66 Liberia. Hunting—Liberia
(W) 39-27105

The author, a young American of eighteen, in 1933 traveled to Liberia with a returning missionary. There he enjoyed a full and adventurous experience, helping the medical missionaries, learning to know and love the natives, traveling in the interior, and hunting. His book contains a straightforward, informal account of his visit.

Booklist 35:228 Mr 15 '39

"Although some of the occurrences related are not unusual, they are told with a freshness and charm which make them enjoyable. The book is enlivened throughout with many amusing, fantastic tales, and much of it is filled with thrilling, fast-moving adventure." Katie Seabrook

+ Books p6 F 26 '39 950w

"Mr. Allen's youthful modesty gives his book a slight edge over the usual African travel record."

New Yorker 15:68 F 25 '39 50w

Wis Lib Bul 35:62 Ap '39

ALLEN, VICTOR THOMAS. This earth of ours. (Science and culture ser) 364p il $3.50 Bruce pub.

551 Geology 39-4772

"The most distinctive feature of this most recent popular survey of earth science is its wealth of carefully selected and beautifully reproduced photographic illustrations. Skilfully correlated with the textual material, they play an essential role in the process of introducing the reader to the science of physical and historical geology. Although intended for the lay reader rather than the serious student, the general plan is closely similar to that of the majority of college texts in this field. . . Dr. Allen is an experienced teacher of geology and has done notable work as an investigator of the geological features of California, Minnesota, Illinois, and Missouri. He is at present professor of geology at St. Louis University, and he carefully sets forth the official attitude of the Catholic Church concerning the doctrine of evolution." Scientific Bk Club R

Booklist 35:325 Je 1 '39

"The abundance of photographs, drawings and diagrams throughout the book serves to clarify further the expositions of a very readable text. Dr. Allen has, literally, left not one stone unturned in this scholarly treatment of a subject too little known outside the circles of science."

+ Cath World 149:381 Je '39 180w

"A brief, popularly written text covering the major fields of geology is always acceptable. This one is well written and unusually well illustrated. It is geology pared to bone, and suffers somewhat through omissions. Winds, lakes, soils, subsurface water, and earth structure are inadequately treated. There is no mention of the many ways in which man has accelerated the processes of erosion and deposition, and the section on metamorphism is too brief to be adequate. But, in spite of omissions, it requires more general acquaintance with science than the ordinary guide book and gives more in return. The scheme of presentation employed is as good as any, but the beginner should have a hand-book of minerals and rocks to use in conjunction with it." W. M. Agar

+ — Commonweal 29:671 Ap 7 '39 270w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:24 Ap '39

"Technical terms are avoided wherever possible; the style is terse, unambiguous and smoothly flowing. Details are omitted for the sake of brevity, and the general effect is scientifically sound. The professionally trained geologist might take exception to some of the statements which deal rather dogmatically with certain debatable ideas, but this is not a serious defect. All in all, the author has attained his objective with commendable success."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:4 My '39 350w

ALLERS, RUDOLF. Self improvement. 255p $2.50 Benziger

137 Personality. Conduct of life 39-4713

A volume of advice on self-improvement based on psychological principles but treated from the point of view of Catholic philosophy and morals. Index.

Cath World 149:637 Ag '39 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '39

"Professor Allers' book manifests rich clinical experience leavened by broad classical humanist background. The author protests that he tells nothing the reader does not already know, but the order and clarity of his argument illuminates a wealth of complexities of human existence." Harry McNeill

+ Commonweal 31:230 D 29 '39 180w

Reviewed by Martin Gardner

Ethics 50:122 O '39 90w

ALLINGHAM, MARGERY. Mr Campion: criminologist. 308p $2 Doubleday

37-36923

One novelette and six short detective stories, all dealing with the exploits of Albert Campion.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson Bulletin 13:460 Mr '39

"This entertaining volume will see you through a long autumn evening in great shape." Will Cuppy

+ Books p24 N 21 '37 230w

"To select any one of these seven stories as the best of the lot would be a difficult task. They are all excellent, and each one presents a different phase of the deductive genius of Albert Campion." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p22 N 28 '37 210w

"Absence of elephantine Mr. Lugg from much of book a pity but, with minor exceptions, tales are capital. Irreproachable."

+ Sat R of Lit 17:18 N 20 '37 30w

ALLIS, MARGUERITE. Connecticut river; il. with phot. by the author. 310p maps $3 Putnam

917.4 Connecticut river. Connecticut valley. New England—Description and travel

(W) 39-27349

Story of the Connecticut River valley over a period of three hundred years. The book is divided into sections: canoe days; sailboat days; canal days; steamboat days; railroad days; and motor days. Map on endpapers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:304 My 15 '39

"Miss Allis has organized her book well. . . [She] packs her pages with long-forgotten bits of history, but one notable omission is the lack of anything much about the most important part the Connecticut has played in the lives of at least five generations of river people who have lived along the stream between Pittsburgh, N. H., and Holyoke, Mass. Only two paragraphs touch vaguely on the billions of feet of long logs and the more billions of cords of pulpwood that have floated down two hundred miles of this river. The book is more than well illustrated with fine pictures taken by the author." S. H. Holbrook

+ — Books p4 My 28 '39 800w

Christian Science Monitor p18 My 5 '39 450w

"The author's own photographs make attractive illustrations, and her text has individuality and charm."

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 30 '39 450w

Pratt p22 autumn '39

"Miss Allis's book is very good reading away from the Connecticut, on it, or beside it. She has plenty of scholarship which she uses without pedantry, a good sense of human values, and an excellent faculty of description. The book can be highly recommended."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:16 My 6 '39 120w

"Miss Allis's impressions come easily to her and are spontaneously conveyed to the reader. . . If [she] fails occasionally in exactness and range of information she communicates to the reader her zestful appreciation of the Connecticut valley and its scenes. When she is describing the more colorful and romantic aspects of past history her humor and liveliness are at their best. The photographs, numbering about 40, are admirably chosen."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 23 '39 1050w

ALPERT, HARRY. Emile Durkheim and his sociology. 233p $2.75 Columbia univ. press [11s King]

B or 92 Durkheim, Emile. Sociology

39-13721

Monograph on the life and works of the French teacher and sociologist. About one third of the book is devoted to Durkheim's life story; the second part discusses some of the problems raised by his conception of the nature, scope, and method of sociology. Bibliographies. Index.

"A carefully documented, well-written, selective, rather than comprehensive, analysis of Durkheim. It will be of value even—or rather especially—to those who are familiar with the original sources." J. H. Mueller

+ Am J Soc 45:289 S '39 210w

Reviewed by W. R. Crawford

Ann Am Acad 205:204 S '39 270w

ALSOP, JOSEPH WRIGHT, and KINTNER, ROBERT. Men around the president. 212p $1.50 Doubleday

973.917 Roosevelt, Franklin Delano. U.S.—Politics and government (W) 39-27296

A study of the inner circle of Roosevelt advisers—the New Dealers—Corcoran, Cohen, Rosenman, Hopkins, Ickes. The authors show how this group originated and grew out of the earlier Brain Trust, what manner of men compose it, their ambitions, qualifications and achievements. Index.

Booklist 35:288 My 1 '39

Reviewed by B. R. Sears
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 550w

"Messrs. Alsop and Kintner are doing a remarkable thing. In their newspaper column and in this book, they are writing about Washington as if it were a police precinct. They treat of great affairs of state as if they were entries on a station-house blotter. The happy result is that you find no mention of 'circles close to the White House,' or 'sources usually reliable.' . . In the present book . . . Messrs. Alsop and Kintner preserve an admirable impartiality. Yet, in attempting to squeeze an infinitely complicated political happening into so brief a book, it was inevitable they should be guilty of omissions. In particular, the influence of Mr. Tugwell, the former Under Secretary of Agriculture, both as a person and a symbol, is grotesquely minimized." Jonathan Mitchell

+ — New Repub 99:108 My 31 '39 550w

"Merely to give the highlight summary of 'Men Around the President' is distinctly unfair to Messrs. Alsop and Kintner's achievement. It omits the best features of the book—a vibrant action story, brimful of incident, responsible gossip and phrase-making as neat as surgical incisions. The authors have mastered the difficult job of being fair without being stilted." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 9 '39 800w

"Well-informed little book."

+ New Yorker 15:86 Ap 8 '39 40w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman
Sat R of Lit 19:6 Ap 15 '39 850w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 16 '39 260w
Wis Lib Bul 35:102 My '39

ALTFILLISCH, MRS MARY (HUNT). Mary Hunt's pastry and sweets diary. 253p $2 Barrows

641.5 Cookery. Desserts. Pastry 39-27546

"Recipes that have been rated choice in her own tearoom are here presented by the author for the use of home cooks, especially on festive occasions. The striking use of type gives the pages a smart appearance and makes it easy to see the ingredients required." J Home Econ

Booklist 35:360 Jl 1 '39
J Home Econ 31:481 S '39 50w

ALTMAN, GEORGE TILDEN. Introduction to federal taxation (1938 act). 2d ed rev and enl 238p $2 Commerce clearing house

336.24 Taxation—U.S. Income tax 38-27616

"In non-technical terms Mr. Altman outlines the fundamental principles underlying Federal taxation, as exemplified in the income, excise, gift and estate taxes. The development of his theme is based on decisive opinions of the Supreme Court concerning the nature, scope and limitations of Federal taxes." (Management R) Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1936.

Booklist 35:28 S 15 '38
Management R 28:35 Ja '39 50w

AMBLER, ERIC. Cause for alarm. 284p $2 Knopf [7s 6d Hodder]

39-2716

Tale of international intrigue. The hero is Nicholas Marlow, a quiet young English engineer, who went to Milan as manager for the Spartacus Machine Tool company, and "succeeded in putting a kink in the Rome-Berlin axis."

Booklist 35:232 Mr 15 '39

"Picturesque adventure and up to the minute as such newsy fiction is likely to be by the time it gets to market." Will Cuppy

+ Books p14 Ja 22 '39 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 21 '39 100w

"This is the best spy story that has come our way in a long, long time." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 29 '39 250w

"Unusually good story about lurking figures and espionage. A pleasant surprise for readers who expect their international spies to be a bit weak on brains. Well written, too."

+ New Yorker 14:60 Ja 28 '39 30w
Pratt p30 spring '39

"Unsurpassed for slippery intrigue, totalitarian villainy, exciting chases, hair-breadth escapes, and general air of authenticity. Excellent."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:17 Ja 28 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 7 '39 210w

AMBLER, ERIC. A coffin for Dimitrios [Eng title: The mask of Dimitrios]. 281p $2 Knopf [7s 6d Hodder]

39-27993

Mystery and international intrigue in Istanbul.

Booklist 36:135 D 1 '39

"Here's another superior Ambler tale to place on your shelf of international doings beside 'Background to Danger' and 'Cause for Alarm.' Young Mr. Ambler is the boy who injects serious social comment, authentic current history and a minimum of that lurid stuff into his intrigue, at the same time providing all the surprises and such that every thriller needs." Will Cuppy

+ Books p13 O 22 '39 350w

"Somehow, even in its most exciting moments, 'A Coffin for Dimitrios,' manages to be pretty stodgey stuff."
Boston Transcript p2 O 28 '39 80w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 15 '39 80w

"Will fascinate students of the abnormal as well as detective fans."

+ New Repub 100:350 O 25 '39 70w

Reviewed by Edgar Johnson
New Repub 101:268 D 20 '39 170w

"This is the third of Mr. Ambler's mystery-adventure thrillers to be published in this country, and it affords additional proof of his genuine talent for that type of fiction." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p26 O 22 '39 120w

"Tops all other current tales of foreign intrigue."

+ New Yorker 15:96 O 21 '39 120w

"Masterpiece."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:36 O 14 '39 30w
Time 34:84 N 6 '39 50w
Times [London] Lit Sup p469 Ag 5 '39 150w

AMERICAN ALPINE CLUB KARAKORAM EXPEDITION, 1938. Five miles high. See Bates, R. H., ed.

AMERICAN FOUNDRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION. Gray iron division. Alloy cast iron committee. Alloy cast irons; a project. 257p il $3 The association

669.1 Iron alloys. Cast iron 39-17946

"Quantitative results of an exhaustive research concerning the compounding and properties of modern alloy cast irons, with discussion on heat treatment, foundry practice, and adaptability to specific ends. There is an extensive bibliography." N Y New Tech Bks

Chem & Met Eng 46:725 N '39 150w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:24 Ap '39

AMERICAN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION. The Constitution reconsidered; ed. by Conyers Read. 424p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

342.73 U.S. Constitution. U.S.—Constitutional history. Constitutions 38-39088

This collection of twenty-seven papers prepared for the American Historical Association's sesquicentennial celebration of the Constitution covers a wide variety of aspects and points of view. The papers are grouped in three sections dealing with (1) the background of political, economic, and social ideas behind the Constitution; (2) its influence upon American thought; (3) repercussions of the Constitution outside the United States. Index.

"It was an excellent idea to gather together in a single volume these papers on the American Constitution. Some of them, no doubt, are of largely ephemeral value. But the larger part consists of essays of high interest, and there are a few, notably those of Professors Salvemini, Hamilton, Lerner, and Commager, which are of outstanding value. The third part of the book is the most disappointing. It seems intended to display the influence of the American Constitution on foreign experiments and ideas. But a careful survey of its conclusions leads one to the inference that, Australia apart, the direct influence has been too small to warrant a discussion that occupies almost a fourth of the volume. What it seems mostly to show is that the American Constitution, in its effective substance, is not an article for export." H. J. Laski

+ — Am Hist R 44:649 Ap '39 800w

"It is informative and provocative, not to say exciting, reading." F. H. Russell

+ Boston Transcript p1 F 11 '39 1750w
Christian Century 56:353 Mr 15 '39 140w

"The essays are featured by a fine accuracy of statement and there is no reason whatever to deny to the facts and correlations here presented at least the fractional part of an eternal verity." J. N. Vaughan

+ Commonweal 29:415 F 3 '39 400w

"The reviewer has no doubts as to the value to the student of American constitutional history of the study either of origins or of constitutional experiments in other countries, and with a few exceptions these papers are entirely worth publishing." B. F. Wright, Jr.

+ New Eng Q 12:610 S '39 750w

"It is, without question, the most important 'document' about the American Constitution to appear in a period when we are seeking to evaluate its evolution, and its prospective influence on our future government, and our emergent social and economic pattern." Phillips Bradley

+ Social Educ 3:66 Ja '39 800w

Reviewed by Irving Dilliard
Survey G 28:341 My '39 330w
Times [London] Lit Sup p124 F 25 '39 390w

AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC RESEARCH. Life insurance from the buyer's point of view. See Harwood, E. C., and Francis, B. H.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF GRAPHIC ARTS. Work of Bruce Rogers, jack of all trades: master of one [prepared by Marie L. Richardson]. 127p pl $3 (12s 6d) Oxford

655.074 Rogers, Bruce. Book ornamentation. Printing 39-13698

"A catalogue of an exhibition arranged by the American institute of graphic arts and the Grolier club of New York, with an introduction by D. B. Updike, a letter from John T. McCutcheon, and an address by Mr. Rogers." (Subtitle) Index.

Reviewed by L. C. Wroth
Books p14 Je 18 '39 350w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p18 Je 4 '39 350w

"Enhanced by the warm sincerity of its introductions, this volume is a very adequate testimony of the power and fertility of a great American. It is also as complete a record of any single printer's activities as I can recall." Hellmut Lehmann-Haupt

+ Publishers' Weekly 136:390 Ag 5 '39 170w

"This catalogue . . . is an impressive demonstration of the part which Mr. Rogers has played in raising the standard of book production both in this country and in America. In fact, it would be accurate to say that by renewing the tradition of the sixteenth-century printers Mr. Rogers saved his contemporaries from further experiments with the book beautiful in the Kelmscott manner, and showed them what could be done by variations on a simpler model."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p496 Ag 19 '39 500w

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. College and university library service; trends, standards, appraisal, problems; ed. by A. F. Kuhlman. 159p pa $2.50 A.L.A.

027.7 Libraries, University. Library administration 38-27901

"Papers presented at the 1937 midwinter meeting of the American Library Association." (Subtitle) "Twelve papers on such topics as trends in the use of college libraries, college library standards, the reserve book system, cooperative regional bibliography, indexing and abstracting services, and the training of school librarians." (Booklist)

Booklist 35:91 N 15 '38
Reviewed by S. B. Mitchell
Library Q 9:216 Ap '39 1100w
Pratt p5 spring '39

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Replacement list of fiction. 2d ed 101p pa $1 A.L.A.

016.8 Fiction—Bibliography (W) 39-27623

"This is a report, from 12 libraries of varying size, of their policy in replacing fiction. About 4000 titles which are repurchased by these libraries are listed, with publisher, price, and edition or series. There are no annotations, and the list is offered neither as a guide to fiction nor as a recommendation of particular editions, but simply as a report of practice. In this it differs from the first edition [Book Review Digest, 1933.]" Booklist

Booklist 36:13 S '39

"The second edition lacks the 'Specifications for library reprints' given in the first and also the helpful note on 'Reprints and publishers' series,' while the practice of the reporting libraries shows about the same tendency to include domestic editions unsuited to library use (notably Triangle Books), and a proportion of British editions at 2/-3/6 if anything larger than before. Small libraries appear to use Grosset and Dunlap reprints very freely but to avoid smaller sizes and cheap imports. Large libraries stock the latter heavily, and it would be useful to know whether these books are not

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSN.—Continued
rebound in library binding before circulation, possibly in the library's own plant. Notation indicating such practice would discourage smaller libraries, which cannot afford initial rebinding, from stocking editions which will not survive." J. H. Foster
Library Q 10:124 Ja '40 550w

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Adult education board. Helping the reader toward self-education. See Chancellor, J. M. and others

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Committee on library architecture and building planning. Small public library buildings; prepared by John Adams Lowe. 47p il pa $1.50 A.L.A.

022.314 Library architecture 39-27143

"Mr. Lowe has tried to give the essential facts which any librarian, board member, building committee, or architect should take into consideration when planning to build a library. He discusses such things as the slope of the land on a contemplated site, the advantage of grade level entrance, the need to plan the inside before the outside of the building, the relation between construction and other costs, the formula for estimating how large the building will need to be to provide the necessary capacity for twenty years' growth." (Library J) The pamphlet contains plans or photographs or both of twenty-nine library buildings.

Booklist 35:225 Mr 15 '39
Reviewed by Katharine Shorey
Library J 64:460 Je 1 '39 850w
Pratt p5 autumn '39

AMERICAN painting today; with an essay by Forbes Watson; published for the American federation of arts. 179p il $4.50 for sale by Oxford

759.1 Paintings, American 40-209

Reproductions of 259 American paintings, most of them done within the last ten years, together with a discussion of American art and artists. List of artists and reproductions.

Booklist 36:210 F 1 '40
Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
New Repub 102:26 Ja 1 '40 600w

"Down-to-earth and authoritative, and free of the strident nationalism which mars so much writing on the subject."
+ New Yorker 15:55 D 30 '39 40w

"By his training as an art critic and editor of The Arts, and by first-hand acquaintance, as Adviser to the FWA Section of Fine Arts, with recent experiments in governmental patronage, Mr. Watson is prepared to speak with a genuine sense of the meaning of those experiments, and is refreshingly free from the extreme and unripe nationalism of many champions of 'Americanism' in art. The excellent reproductions neglect no important figure in their survey of 'ten good years of American painting.'" O. L.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 23 '39 200w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 470w

AMERICAN PUBLIC WELFARE ASSOCIATION, CHICAGO. Public welfare administration, by Marietta Stevenson, with the assistance of other members of the staff; introd. by Fred K. Hoehler. 352p maps $2.50 (10s 6d) Macmillan

361.8 Charities—U.S. Charity organization. Social work 38-38002

"Intended to supply the obvious need for a simple presentation of a rapidly developing field, this book was prepared for the American Public Welfare Association by the assistant director in co-operation with other staff members. It discusses the concept of public welfare changes; the present organization of public welfare in federal, state and local agencies; and the administrative principles and problems involved. Planned primarily for use in classrooms, staff conferences, and in-service training, it will also serve the general reader who wishes information on this important civic subject." (J Home Econ) Bibliography. Index.

"The discussion of personnel organization and management is particularly good. For purposes of comparing types of federal, state, and county organization the work should be a useful handbook for public welfare workers." R. C. White
+ Am J Soc 45:491 N '39 100w

"The author is a chronicler, not a protagonist, and although she is writing in a field in which there are differences of opinion and sometimes emotion, she sticks to telling what is; to giving the arguments on both sides of a debatable procedure; and rarely goes further than to offer tentative conclusions. It is a 'must' book for everyone in the field of the public social services, and an invaluable guide for the interested citizen who wants to know how our government could better care for its endangered citizens." F. J. Bruno
+ Ann Am Acad 204:210 Jl '39 420w
Booklist 35:199 F 15 '39
J Home Econ 31:403 Je '39 80w

AMERICAN women; the standard biographical dictionary of notable women, 1939-40; Durward Howes, editor; Mary L. Braun, Rose Garvey, associate editors. (v 3) 1083p $10; to libraries $7.50 Am. publications, inc, 527 W. 7th st, Los Angeles

920 Woman—Biography. U.S.—Biography (35-9037)

"Brings up to date the material recorded in v.II Included are 10,222 biographical sketches of living women; over 3000 of these entries are new. The occupational index has been rearranged and other sections enlarged." (Booklist) For volumes one and two see Book Review Digest 1935 and 1937.

Booklist 36:6 S '39

"There is no question that this publication is and has been the accepted reference book in its field but that, also, the selection of names is based on merit. . . The Editor and his associates are to be congratulated on their continued success and on the inclusion of such helpful data as are given in the geographical and occupational indexes, listing of hobbies, necrology of deaths since the publication of the first edition, complete list of organizations which will prove most useful, and the statistical summary. Of course, a few names are conspicuous by their absence, but the Preface gives a fully explained reason for this."
+ Library J 64:593 Ag '39 330w
Library Q 9:550 O '39 100w
Pratt p27 autumn '39
Wis Lib Bul 35:165 O '39

AMES, JENNIFER, pseud. See Greig, M.

AMOS, SIR MAURICE SHELDON. Lectures on the American Constitution. 187p $2.50 (7s 6d) Longmans

342.733 U.S. Constitution. U.S.—Constitutional law [39-526]

"This book is the result of six lectures delivered at the University of Cambridge in the Spring term of this year [1938]. Sir Maurice Amos, lawyer and professor of law, here contributes to an intelligent understanding of the American constitutional system by explaining the broad principles which underlie the decisions of the Supreme Court in important constitutional cases." N Y Times

"For the American reader who may not be well versed in his own constitutional régime, the simple approach, the careful analysis of the more significant Supreme Court decisions, and the examination of contemporary as well as historical problems, make this work extremely useful. On the other hand, the absence of the anticipated comparisons of the English and American constitutions, the paucity of evaluations, the omissions necessitated by the brevity of the work, and the apparent lack of familiarity with some of the important specialized studies on the topics treated impose limitations on the value of the book for the specialist." W. O. Farber

+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:127 F '39 300w

"For the output of a foreign pen, Professor Amos' treatment of some of the main topics of our constitutional law is remarkably accurate and well considered. . . To the American reader these lectures are a good deal of a disappointment, totally lacking, as they do, the sort of comparative criticism that Professor Amos could so well have supplied." E. S. Corwin

+ — Ann Am Acad 202:216 Mr '39 250w

Reviewed by Charles Bunn
Columbia Law R 39:1277 N '39 750w

"This exposition . . . is timely and, because of its detachment, a useful guide to the English reader in following American controversy, in which in the disputations of both politicians and jurists there is apt to be heat as well as light."

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 5 '38 70w

"Sir Maurice Amos has written a book with interesting things in it, but, on the whole, it is a disappointment. Partly, I think, that is the result of the scale upon which it is written; you cannot explain so complicated an instrument as the American Constitution, even from the legal angle, in 150 small octavo pages. Partly, also, Sir Maurice has sought too carefully to separate the legal aspect from the economic and political aspects of which it is the expression. . . The book suffers, too, from Sir Maurice's over-anxiety to escape from the difficulties of judging the process he describes. . . It will stimulate interest among those who already know all that is involved in those issues. It will hardly provoke in the stranger to them a sense of the vivid interest and excitement they possess." H. J. Laski

— + New Statesman & Nation 15:1090 Je 25 '38 240w

"While there is little discussion of doctrinal development or of the impact of forces making for institutional change, the clear and concise analysis of the cases in the light of their political and economic background, together with the author's detached and objective approach, make the book a satisfying answer to the many questions which English people seem to ask about the American Constitution today." J. P. Pollard

+ N Y Times p24 O 2 '38 900w

"Although mainly of interest to the lawyer and to the student of comparative institutions, this book is so clear and so well planned that it makes, if not easy, profitable reading for the complete amateur who here is introduced to one of the most remarkable political achievements in the world. . . And if Sir Maurice sometimes normally preserves a super-human impartiality, he is perhaps a little less than just to the ill-fated Judiciary Bill."

+ — Spec 160:1072 Je 10 '38 280w

"Admirable piece of 'high vulgarization.' . . As one expects from so eminent a lawyer, these lectures are marked by a load of learning, lightly borne, that illuminates many a dark corner of the American constitutional labyrinth. The feat of packing a complete, if not detailed, account of the law of the American Constitution into 150 pages is not one to be lightly attempted. But it has been successfully achieved here."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p483 Jl 16 '38 420w

AMSTUTZ, WALTER. Ski-ing from A-Z. [96p] il $1.35 (4s 6d) Oxford

796.93 Skis and ski running 39-9909

Instruction in skiing given chiefly thru the medium of 450 instantaneous movie photographs. "This book follows the principles laid down in Der Skilauf, the handbook for instructors of the Swiss Ski-Schools, prepared by the Interverband for ski-ing." (Note)

Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '39 80w
New Yorker 14:60 Ja 28 '39 10w

ANDERSON, CHARLES ROBERTS. Melville in the South seas. 522p map $4.50 Columbia univ. press; Modern lang. assn. [22s 6d Oxford]

B or 92 Melville, Herman 39-8153

"This study offers a detailed, factual record of the years of Melville's life that are significant as far as his literary career is concerned, together with an analytical criticism of all of his major works, which were drawn from the experience of those years. The book is based on hitherto unpublished sources or on material hitherto uncollected with respect to Melville." (Springf'd Republican) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. W. Wells
Books p41 D 3 '39 400w

Reviewed by C. J. Olsen
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 19 '39 230w

"Besides giving a corrected and factual life of Melville with exhaustive documentation, the author has thrown light upon many related matters having to do with the South Seas, the whalers, the missionaries and the navy in the second quarter of the nineteenth century."
Christian Century 56:418 Mr 29 '39 230w

"Professor Anderson's book is heavily documented, but it is extremely fascinating reading at the same time. He has quoted extensively from contemporary sources, but he has woven all this in with a dexterity that is a tribute to his powers as an expositor and a teacher. It is this commentator's conviction that no person interested in Herman Melville (and that means all readers interested in American letters) can ignore this book. And it is also this commentator's conviction that it must be extremely pleasant and profitable to sit in one of Professor Anderson's classes." Herbert Gorman

+ N Y Times p2 My 21 '39 1400w

No Am 247:399 summer '39 120w

"Other books may serve better than this one the needs of those who want a general introduction to Melville's mind and art, but no other book has added in a comparable degree to the little that we know about the man's life and the raw materials of his writing." Odell Shepard

+ Sat R of Lit 20:11 Jl 8 '39 800w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 200w
Time 33:76 Mr 20 '39 360w

"It is doubtful that Mr. Anderson has overlooked one extant relevant item bearing on Melville's life in the South Seas. His record runs to 500 pages. Yet somehow Melville still remains a ghost, fading when closely regarded. We should expect nothing more."
Times [London] Lit Sup p246 Ap 29 '39 1000w

ANDERSON, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Black, bay and chestnut; profiles of twenty favorite horses. [52p] il $2.50 Macmillan

636.1 Horses—Pictures, illustrations, etc. (W) 39-22216

Reproductions of twenty lithographs of famous horses with short sketches on the life and character of each. Some of the horses are: Man o' War, champion of champions; War Admiral, an old man's son; Troublemaker, the gallant; Heatherbloom, a modern Pegasus; Gallant Fox, the curious; Ugly, who did handsomely; Seabiscuit, handicapped champion.

ANDERSON, C. W.—Continued

Booklist 36:73 O 15 '39

"The short descriptions are of characters, the pictures of personalities, certain qualities in great horses fired their biographer-portraitist. From the alert head looking out of the jacket, to the colt tagging after its mother on the last page, these horses are alive." M. L. Becker

+ Books p12 N 12 '39 230w

Boston Transcript p1 S 2 '39 180w

"The artist-author, already well known for both his etchings and lithographs of horses, has created a book vibrant of the track and turf which will be appreciated by every horse lover." M. A. Whitney

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 28 '39 250w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 31:133 D 1 '39 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 15:382 N '39 100w

"Mr. Anderson's books about the pony 'Blaze' have won firm friends among younger readers, but this book will appeal to children of all ages, and his pictures show an increase of beauty and sensitivity." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 D 24 '39 200w

"This book should have special appeal for those who have had contact with horses and love them. The author has in a fascinating manner captured the separate 'personality' of each horse he discusses. He reveals his own love and understanding by his clear descriptions."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 17 '39 1000w

ANDERSON, EDWARD HUTCHINGS, and SCHWENNING, GUSTAV THEODOR. The science of production organization. 282p $3.50 Wiley [17s 6d Chapman]

658.01 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Efficiency, Industrial 38-30592

"Beginning with a particularly useful survey of business organization and economic contributions thereto, there follows a section devoted to the development of organization structure and consideration of forms of industrial work and their measurement and analysis. Then follows a description of the various types of organizations and characteristics, advantages, and disadvantages of the various organization types. . . The latter part of the book is given over to some factors in organization which, although considered in the past, will have to be much more carefully treated in the future. The sections on industrial democracy, integration, and rationalization are particularly good. There is an excellently selected and very complete working bibliography, a well chosen name index and an adequate subject index." Am Econ R

Reviewed by T. H. Ross

+ Am Econ R 29:153 Mr '39 270w

Reviewed by C. C. Balderston
Ann Am Acad 202:228 Mr '39 400w

"An important contribution to the field of scientific management." S. P. Farwell

+ Management R 28:140 Ap '39 650w

ANDERSON, MARY DESIREE. Animal carvings in British churches. 99p il $1.50 Macmillan [5s Cambridge]

736 Christian art and symbolism. Animals in art. Wood carving [39-27575]

Miss Anderson describes and illustrates the carvings of animals, natural and legendary, which decorate English medieval churches and relates the legends attaching to them. Lists of examples are given arranged under the names of the animals showing in what churches the carvings are to be found. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:373 Jl 15 '39

"The learned author of 'The Medieval Carver' packs into a hundred little pages so much about so many subjects that scarcely a paragraph could not serve as a starting point for further study, and provide the impetus for starting. . . The little book manages to get in forty-three fine photographs so clear and well chosen that they save much wordage, a classified list of English churches where animal carvings may be found, and a bibliography that includes magazine articles."

+ Books p11 My 14 '39 160w

"The collector of churches and carvings will appreciate Miss Anderson's book because it is scholarly. Paradoxically, ordinary folks will enjoy it because it is an enthralling picture book."

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '39 130w

Churchman 153:50 Ap 1 '39 100w

"The illustrations of medieval carvings are well selected and have a stimulating value as well as a marked appeal to the æsthetic sense." B. B.

+ Commonweal 30:243 Je 23 '39 240w

Spec 162:732 Ap 28 '39 260w

"This little book expands one chapter in Miss Anderson's 'Medieval Carver' [Book Review Digest, 1936]. It contains much new material, as anyone will see who compares the two pages on the elephant, now linked with chess, with dragons and with King Henry III; and the long list of examples in the appendix shows how the author has been pursuing her subject into new fields. . . Of the forty-three photographs only seven appeared in the earlier book; and one meets new friends such as the tigress of Wendens Ambo with its mirror, the crane of Denston with its stone, and the wondrous turtle of Queen Camel with a ship anchored on its back."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p30 Ja 14 '39 180w

ANDERSON, MAXWELL. The essence of tragedy, and other footnotes and papers. 53p $1.25 Anderson house

808.2 Drama 39-27576

"In articles, and in prefaces to his plays, the dramatist expresses something of his esthetic and literary creed and defends poetic drama." (Booklist) Contents: The essence of tragedy; Whatever hope we have; A prelude to poetry in the theatre; The politics of Knickerbocker Holiday; Yes, by the eternal.

Booklist 35:377 Jl 15 '39

Books p9 S 24 '39 350w

"What Mr. Anderson says in these four short papers is illuminating to those who are interested in his plays and must be useful to every young play craftsman who holds the tools of the trade in his hand and does not know quite how to use them." Frederick Morton

+ Theatre Arts Mo 23:612 Ag '39 750w

ANDERSON, MAXWELL. Key Largo; a play in a prologue and two acts. 125p $2.50 Anderson house

812 (W) 39-29431

Tragic play in blank verse, in which is told the story of an American volunteer for the Loyalist cause in Spain. When circumstances become too much for him he deserts his comrades, all of whom are later killed. He returns to America, struggles to expiate his crime, and finally succeeds.

Booklist 36:173 Ja 1 '40

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p8 Ja 21 '40 340w

"Although it is all rather negative, Mr. Anderson has the optimist's affection for lost causes. With sincere generosity he offers Mc-

Cloud one of his favorite lost causes—the Indian. We confess to a weakness for Indians, too. . . Mr. Anderson's rhythmic prose is resonant and forceful." E. V. Wyatt

+ Cath World 150:467 Ja '40 550w (Dramatic criticism)

"Inevitably judgments of its worth will vary as widely as they have in the case of Mr. Anderson's other more pretentious plays, and under the circumstances it does not become a critic to play too safe. Despite certain weaknesses which are clear enough, 'Key Largo' seems to me an impressive play which reestablishes its author's claim to be considered among the most arresting of contemporary writers." J. W. Krutch

+ Nation 149:656 D 9 '39 1050w (Dramatic criticism)

Pratt p18 winter '40

"With so much meaty and exciting argument in his play and so many moments of exaltation, it is surprising that Key Largo should be afflicted with dullness. Mr. Anderson can write amazingly lucid and exciting dialogue on occasion, but he can also become bogged down in weighty metaphors, he can be ponderous and repetitive, and he can, as in the present instance, fail to turn his arguments into characters. . . The whole play, prose scenes as well as poetic passages, is given a formal pace, accentuated by the direction, so that even the dread argument on Hill 4 with danger and death in the air is not allowed to flare into urgency. It is moon-struck, as though it took place in Mr. Anderson's mind and not in any flesh and blood reality of terror lurking in ambush and the tension of men on watch for their lives." Rosamond Gilder

Theatre Arts Mo 24:81 F '40 1400w (Dramatic criticism)

ANDERSON, MAXWELL. Knickerbocker holiday; a musical comedy in two acts; book and lyrics by Maxwell Anderson, as written to be set to music by Kurt Weill; il. by Robert H. Mutrux. 109p $2.50 Anderson house; Dodd

812 (W) 39-5896

Musical comedy based on Irving's Knickerbocker's History of New York. It tells the story of a girl who tho betrothed to Peter Stuyvesant, is unwilling to give up the boy she loves.

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '39

"Maxwell Anderson is at his best a dramatist of intellect and imagination, as he has shown in 'Mary of Scotland,' 'High Tor' and 'The Masque of Kings,' but at times he is pedestrian and heavy-footed. He is this latter in 'Knickerbocker Holiday.'" Grenville Vernon

— Commonweal 29:48 N 4 '38 270w (Dramatic criticism)

Wis Lib Bul 35:48 Mr '39

ANDERSON, PAUL LEWIS. Pugnax the gladiator; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 296p map $2 (7s 6d) Appleton-Century

39-9403

Pugnax, a young Gaul, taken prisoner in a battle with the Romans, is sold as a slave. In Rome he becomes a member of a gladiatorial school, where he achieves some distinction as a fighter. After several lucky escapades, Pugnax is emancipated and set up in business. For high school age.

"Those chords we read about, that 'vibrate in the memory' at a name remembered from childhood, set up a pleasant purring before this story gets fairly under way. . . Names familiar to a four-year classical course come naturally into the story; its purpose is to make these four years livelier and to put a little adrenalin into the dead languages for a boy who has to study them." M. L. Becker

Books p6 Ag 13 '39 280w

"A vigorous story of Roman life which will make bored young students of ancient history sit up and rub their eyes. . . Under Mr. Anderson's pen the gladiator loses the stiffness of a plaster cast and becomes a living figure, and high school boys may see in Pugnax and his friends among the bully boys the counterparts of modern sportsmen." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p12 O 15 '39 400w

"The action is episodic and, though the plot of some of the episodes is thin, the writing is vigorous and interest in the main well sustained. The whole gives a tolerably accurate picture of some of the seamier sides of life in Rome of the time of Julius Caesar, without including any elements which might make the book unsuitable for inclusion in a school library."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p359 Je 17 '39 120w

ANDERSON, PAUL LEWIS. The technique of pictorial photography. 403p il $3.50 Lippincott

778 Photography, Artistic 39-19321

"Based on the author's Pictorial Photography [Book Review Digest, 1917] but enlarged and rewritten so it is almost a new book, including such developments as color, motion picture, and miniature photography." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 36:70 O 15 '39

"The technical and scientific points are explained so that the most unscientific might readily grasp them. With this book as a guide, anyone interested in the subject will certainly obtain better results." W. W. W.

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 19 '39 90w

Reviewed by E. F. Hall

+ N Y Times p31 O 22 '39 500w

"Mr. Anderson's book is a firmly established classic among books on photography. We are glad to see that it has been reissued in a completely revised edition including many new facts that are pertinent for today. What we like about the book is the quiet and solid manner in which Mr. Anderson presents his material compared with the strident, flashy manner in which photographic instructions and advice are presented so often today."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 S 2 '39 140w

ANDERSON, PAUL RUSSELL, and FISCH, MAX HAROLD. Philosophy in America from the Puritans to James; with representative selections. 570p $4 Appleton-Century

191 Philosophy, American 39-13842

"[This is] primarily an anthology of American philosophy to 1900, designed to make available to students source materials which have been relatively inaccessible; but it is also, by means of four introductory essays and many biographical notes, a skilfully condensed account of the main currents of American thought. The authors have tried to meet the needs of two different sorts of courses in American philosophy: those which begin with philosophy and approach America; and those which begin with America and approach philosophy." (J Philos) General bibliography. Index.

Christian Century 56:1276 O 18 '39 110w

"Amongst the assembled authors we miss Mark Twain, a portion of whose pessimistic and powerful What is man? might well have been included. The specimen of William James's work is not adequately representative. There is much valuable guidance in the introductory sketches, for example on Roger Williams." D. S. Miller

+ — Churchman 153:16 S 1 '39 180w

"Promises to be a very useful book." H. A. L.

+ J Philos 36:414 Jl 20 '39 600w

ANDERSON, MRS PAULINE RELYEA. The background of anti-English feeling in Germany, 1890-1902. 382p $4 Am. univ. press

943.084 Public opinion—Germany. Propaganda, German. Germany—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Great Britain—Foreign relations—Germany 39-12322

"Acknowledging her methodological debt to Alfred Vagts in his Deutschland und die Vereinigten Staaten in der Weltpolitik and to William L. Langer, Mrs. Anderson has made a careful attempt to discover what persons, organizations, and interests were back of German Anglophobia of the 'nineties. After a survey of the views of personalities in the 'Government group,' the author studies the attitudes of the prominent parliamentary parties. This is followed by an interesting examination of the large propaganda organizations. . . In Part II, the author presents a more detailed treatment of the Krüger telegram and the Boer War in relation to anti-English opinion." Am Pol Sci R

"A book which will be valuable to students of German history, to writers of diplomatic history, and to students of public opinion and propaganda. . . Mrs. Anderson has tapped sources scarcely, if ever, used in this country. Her method appears calculated to achieve its purposes admirably, and the result is a sincere and excellent piece of research." H. W. Briggs

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:722 Ag '39 280w

Reviewed by C. V. Easum
Am Soc R 4:420 Je '39 430w

ANDERSON, WILLIAM, ed. Local government in Europe. 453p $4 (16s) Appleton-Century

352.04 Local government 39-10622

Studies of the local governments, and abbreviated copies of the principal local government law or laws, of five European nations. Contents: England, by R. K. Gooch; France, by W. R. Sharp; Germany, by F. M. Marx; Italy, by H. A. Steiner; The Soviet union, by B. W. Maxwell. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"With few exceptions, this volume does not go beyond a general description of local government. Highly desirable would have been a more extensive treatment of the structure and the functions of local government in two of the dictatorships about which comparatively little is written in English. However, these shortcomings are not serious, for the volume answers a need in a field where a book of this kind has been needed." H. J. Heneman

+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:707 Ag '39 600w

"This is a timely volume. A comprehensive text on European local government, embodying the striking changes which recent years have brought to its theory and practice, has long been needed. This volume also contains generous excerpts, in excellent translation, from the statutes relating to the organization and procedures of local government for each of the countries considered." T. H. Reed

+ Ann Am Acad 205:163 S '39 450w
Booklist 35:342 Je 15 '39
Boston Transcript p3 Je 3 '39 90w
Foreign Affairs 18:159 O '39 10w

ANDERSON, WILLIAM HART. The Philippine problem. 338p map $3 Putnam

991.4 Philippine Islands 39-4823

The author's thesis is that the United States has bungled badly in its attempts to improve conditions in the Philippines and in the political relationships existing between the Islands and the ruling country. Major Anderson is an American business man who has spent forty years in the Islands.

Reviewed by G. L. Kirk
Am Pol Sci R 33:925 O '39 150w

"Whoever wants to form a judgment as to what we should do about the Philippines cannot do better than to read Major Anderson's book. It is full of useful material and interesting sidelights on personalities. As the latest word about the Philippines—by a man who knows them from one end to the other—it is a book of real importance and genuine value." Nicholas Roosevelt

+ Books p17 Mr 26 '39 800w

"Confused and disorganized. . . Special pleading for [the author's] own interests and those of his class."

— New Repub 98:111 Mr 1 '39 40w

"Major Anderson has written a valuable and timely book. He has realized the hope, expressed in the first page of the volume, of bringing out what constitute, in his opinion, some of the bold realities of the Philippines problem. . . The comments and views of the author as a business man are features which render this book unusual. Most of the books about the Philippines have been written by persons who themselves have been in the government service in the islands, or by students of affairs who went to Manila to secure information." W. C. Rivers

+ N Y Times p9 F 26 '39 1300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p498 Ag 26 '39 290w

ANDREWS, CHARLES MCLEAN. Colonial period of American history [v 4] England's commercial and colonial policy. 477p $4 Yale univ. press [18s Oxford]

973.2 U.S.—History—Colonial period. Great Britain—Colonies—North America (34-18339)

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by V. W. Crane
Am Hist R 44:920 Jl '39 850w

Reviewed by Curtis Nettels
Ann Am Acad 202:263 Mr '39 650w

Reviewed by G. W. Brown
Canadian Hist R 20:430 D '39 120w
Cath World 148:762 Mr '39 100w

Discussion by the author & L. M. Hacker
New Repub 99:365 Ag 2 '39 1550w

Reviewed by D. S. Muzzey
Pol Sci Q 54:259 Je '39 1600w

"Professor Andrews is familiar with almost every phase of colonial history, and in this field of commercial regulation he has had no equal since the death of George Louis Beer. The whole vast knowledge accumulated in forty years of research has been poured into this volume, and gladly too, for ships, commerce and the sea have always had a strong hold on historians New England born. . . What is found in these pages exists in no other work. It is difficult to select for primacy from among all the significant contributions Professor Andrews has made, but I think this fourth volume deserves the chief place in his writing on American history." Michael Kraus

+ Social Educ 3:219 Mr '39 800w

"Editing and writing have been carefully done and this volume will be a source of authority for many years to come. It is interesting in style, and concrete enough to be readily understood by the non-specialist. Scholars will find the citations to the literature of the field an invaluable guide to further detailed research. It should be in every school or college library." O. M. Dickerson

+ Social Studies 30:280 O '39 300w

"[A] volume as excellent as its predecessors."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p124 F 25 '39 650w

"The volume under review is of outstanding importance and excellence within the limits set. It is unnecessary to enlarge upon its scholarly and comprehensive character, so conspicuous also in previous volumes. Even if no other volumes should be published (and this would be a great loss), these four volumes will ever remain as a monument to the greatest of our historians of the colonial period in American history." M. W. Jernegan

+ Yale R n s 28:643 spring '39 750w

ANDREWS, CLARENCE LEROY. The Eskimo and his reindeer in Alaska. 253p il map $3.50 Caxton printers

917.98 Eskimos. Reindeer 39-23556

The author of this book served among the Eskimos of Alaska for a number of years as a teacher and government employee. His book is in general an account of the economic and social conditions of the Eskimos, particularly since the importation of reindeer from Siberia. Brief bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:108 N 15 '39
Canadian Forum 19:302 D '39 100w
Wis Lib Bul 35:213 D '39

ANDREWS, CYRIL BRUYN. The railway age. 145p il map $3 Macmillan [12s 6d Country life]

385.0942 Railroads—Great Britain 38-38774

This study of early British railways, and the feelings and reactions of the public toward them, is based on extensive research in contemporary literature and art. The book contains quotations from early railway guides, from periodicals and books, and more than one hundred illustrations, chiefly reproductions of engravings and drawings, chosen from private and public collections. Index.

"The attraction of the book is not to specialists alone. Social history as steam transportation transformed it unrolls in chapters on the effect of railways on upper and lower classes; the interest taken by royalty, government and stock-speculators. . . . This makes a highly readable report on the Victorian Age, but the pictures remain the great feature of the work. No other such varied and comprehensive survey of the subject can be obtained from a single book as this handsome volume affords the general reader."
+ Books p10 O 9 '38 300w
Eng N 122:75 Ja 19 '39 60w
Manchester Guardian p7 N 12 '37 110w

"Mr. Bruyn Andrews, who writes the text to the delightful picture-book, confines himself to treating in an untechnical way the principal consequences of the railway revolution upon the social life and landscape of England. He rightly emphasizes the abruptness and completeness of this revolution. The change within a few years from horse to steam locomotion was one of the shocks that transform the whole face of a civilization; and it is not surprising that so many people lost their heads over it, by way either of alarm or madly confident speculation."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p828 N 6 '37 950w

ANDREWS, ELIAS. Modern humanism and Christian theism. 232p $1.50 Zondervan

144 Humanism. Theism 39-4158

"The work is arranged in four sections. A review of humanism past and present is followed by a discussion of the modern types of humanism. . . The author deals with the movement under the following headings: philosophical, religious, scientific, psychological and literary humanism. Modern humanism is then appraised in the light of Christian theism. The volume closes with a plea for a Christian, theistic humanism." Christian Century

"Here is a steady flow of reasons obviously advanced to discredit modern humanism and to vindicate Christian theism. Few weaknesses of the opponent's position have escaped the author's penetration. Unfortunately, the range of approach is so extended as to leave the author, in turn, an easy mark for attack." W. E. Hammond
— Christian Century 56:386 Mr 22 '39 400w

"This book is by a new author, the lecturer in philosophy of religion at Pine Hill divinity hall in Halifax. We shall hope to hear more from him, because he is quite evidently a discriminating reader, a clear writer, and a sensible thinker with something to say." W. N. Pittenger
+ Living Church 101:11 Jl 19 '39 260w

ANDREWS, GEORGE GORDON. Napoleon in review; with an introd. by Carl L. Becker. 350p $3 Knopf

B or 92 Napoléon I, emperor of the French 39-12321

Ten chapters in which are reviewed different aspects of Napoleon's career and character. The author, who died in 1938, was formerly professor of history in the University of Iowa. Index.

Reviewed by Geoffrey Bruun
Am Hist R 45:465 Ja '40 220w

"Ludwig, Kircheisen, Octave Aubry, among many others, have published good, readable one-volume presentations of Napoleon's career. With Professor Andrews's the general reader's knowledge of the field would be not only very superficial, but extremely spotty." Albert Guerard
Books p13 Je 4 '39 350w

Reviewed by R. H. Phelps
Boston Transcript p2 Je 3 '39 330w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 50:64 Je '39 120w

"Professor Andrews's series of studies is really an excellent introduction to the life and times of the Emperor. It is far from exhaustive, to be sure, and there are lacunae that might have been filled, but the final result is a praiseworthy jumping-off place for the student who desires to dive into the deeper waters of Napoleon's amazing career. The notes to the book, listing a great number of important works on the subject, indicate where the student may jump." Herbert Gorman
+ N Y Times p16 My 21 '39 700w

"This book will be a godsend to students looking for 'viewpoints' on Napoleon. It has another attraction: practically all the neat phrases, the clichés, and the penetrating remarks that center about his career come in sooner or later, and with nice, accurate references. If you really want to find out just who said of the execution of the Duc d'Enghien 'It's worse than a crime, it's a blunder,' this is the book for you." Crane Brinton
Sat R of Lit 20:11 My 27 '39 240w

"The late George Gordon Andrews of Iowa university has not attempted to impart any new information, or even any basically new interpretations. But his book does give a fresh and salutary approach to a very complex subject."
Springf'd Republican p12 My 19 '39 600w

ANDREWS, JOHN NELSON, and MARSDEN, CARL ANDERTON, eds. Tomorrow in the making. (Whittlesey house publication) 471p $3 McGraw

304 Social problems. World politics. U.S.—Politics and government. U.S.—Economic conditions 39-5241

In this anthology twenty-six American writers discuss some of the vital problems in America today: education, propaganda, academic freedom, technology and planned economy, cooperation, municipal reform, taxation, social security, agriculture, international affairs, etc. Bibliography. Index.

Am Econ R 29:132 Mr '39 140w
Reviewed by E. L. Shoup
Am Pol Sci R 33:333 Ap '39 350w
Reviewed by J. A. Neprash
Am Soc R 4:866 D '39 100w

ANDREWS, J. N., and MARSDEN, C. A., eds.—Continued

"The book aims not so much to arrive at the solution of our problems as at a better understanding of them. From this point of view, this is a very good and interesting book for the layman. . . The teachers and students of the introductory classes in contemporary social problems or in contemporary civilization will find this publication one of the best usable works in the field. The same applies to the courses in political theory. . . It is also to the credit of the editors that we have here chapters on movements which may be anathema to the reader who sees red when reading or hearing about communism and fascism. But their inclusion testifies to the genuine democratic spirit permeating the work." J. S. Roucek

+ Ann Am Acad 204:213 Jl '39 950w

"This is an exceptionally substantial and illuminating book. The bibliography invites further reading and study and understanding. The book's academic-expert-protagonist nature makes it ideal for use in colleges as a tool in training young minds to learn by observing and thinking. But it will be vastly stimulating to mature minds also. In a day when even time is subject to man-made change, we need more such thought exchanges based on accurate knowledge as this book offers." B. E. Nelson

+ Christian Century 56:854 Jl 5 '39 550w

Commonweal 29:554 Mr 10 '39 270w

"Compact and well edited volume. . . In the preface to 'Tomorrow in the Making' the editors distinguish between popularizing (presentation of essentials in a relevant and interesting way) and vulgarizing a subject. No one can charge that their book errs in the latter way. If any criticism along this line be warranted it is that most of the contributors are a trifle too academic in their approach. Almost alone among them Warden Lawes of Sing Sing stands out because of the warm human sympathy displayed in his excellent chapter on 'Crime: a Social Cancer.'" R. C. B.

+ Sat R of Lit 19:21 F 4 '39 270w

"Tomorrow in the Making will prove to be a 'five foot shelf' to all teachers and a 'must' book to those specifically engaged in the social studies field. Although a little heavy for high school students, much of the material is within their comprehension. For all those who want to get behind the headlines of modern times, the volume is required reading." R. G. Wallick

+ Social Studies 30:327 N '39 300w

ANDRUS, VERA. Sea-bird island; il. by [the author]. 142p $1.75 Harcourt

Birds—Juvenile literature 39-21150

Sea-bird island is the Island of Bonaventure, off the Gaspé peninsula, famous for its cliffs where thousands of sea birds nest. Nick Dufour, a native of the island had a secret ambition to be a sea captain. As a result of a summer filled with exciting incidents, Nick was on the road to achieving his wish.

Booklist 36:73 O 15 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p6 Ja 21 '40 250w

Reviewed by E. P. Boyd

Boston Transcript p5 D 16 '39 130w

Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 20w

"This book may need to be introduced to boys and girls of nine to eleven, for its appearance is somewhat formal; but it is worth the introduction." Josephine Smith

+ Library J 64:870 N 1 '39 100w

"Well written."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:28 N 18 '39 20w

"The modernistic illustrations (wood cuts and linoleum block prints, apparently) should prove an inspiration to young artists."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 40w

Wis Lib Bul 35:189 N '39

ANGAS, WILLIAM MACK. Rivalry on the Atlantic. 234p il $3.50 Furman

387.5 Ships. Shipping—History 39-11275

The story of one hundred years in the development of transatlantic ships and crossings. The author is in the civil engineering corps of the United States navy.

"Commander Angas, now in charge of the Navy Yard at Charleston, S. C., is an authority on marine engines and naval construction. In this excellent study he has given us a timely supplement to Robert G. Albion's recently published 'History of New York Port: 1815-1860.' . . The particular value of the present work is that it is written primarily from the engine-room standpoint, yet in such a lucid and entertaining way that the reader who knows little about engines may follow it with keen pleasure and understanding." Lincoln Colcord

+ Books p21 My 7 '39 450w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 31 '39 650w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:30 Ap '39

"[The author's] research has been exceedingly comprehensive, and he writes with straightforwardness and ease. And his excellent book is profusely illustrated with pictures which are sometimes explanatory, sometimes dramatic, and always interesting. Statistical details of fast ships and their voyages are given in introductory tables."

+ N Y Times p14 Mr 26 '39 450w

New Yorker 15:87 Mr 25 '39 30w

Pratt p14 autumn '39

"Commander Angas knows his marine engines well. Between his simple, clear-cut descriptions and his illustrations, even the unmechanical layman gets a pretty clear idea of how things worked. . . The book definitely improves in quality in the later period; the engravings, too, are better than those in the earlier part. Three features open to criticism may not be primarily the fault of the author. Only in their more generous moods will publishers consent to much of a bibliography; here there is none at all. More unpardonable is the absence of an index." R. G. Albion

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:16 Mr 25 '39 380w

Springf'd Republican p8 My 17 '39 500w

ANGELI, MRS MARGUERITE DE. See De Angeli, M.

ANGELO, VALENTI. Golden gate; il. by [the author]. 273p $2 Viking

(W) 39-15271

This sequel to Nino (Book Review Digest, 1938) gives a picture of an immigrant boy's America thirty-odd years ago.

Booklist 36:16 S '39

"I could not have been the only one to find 'Nino,' for all its sensitiveness to beauty, curiously remote and muted, a landscape with figures seen in a dream. In 'Golden Gate' the figures come to life; a thrill is in their veins. . . I still am not sure that Mr. Angelo's autobiography is a child's book; this may safely be left to children to decide. Of its physical beauty there cannot be two minds; with a color scheme just richer enough than the idyllic 'Nino' to suit the deepened feeling its arrangement is just as harmonious." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 Jl 2 '39 490w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '39

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 31:132 D 1 '39 50w

"There is a lovely simplicity and genuineness to this book with a fine harmony of words, pictures and bookmaking."

+ Horn Bk M 15:227 Jl '39 90w

"A quiet but arresting story based on the author's own first year experience in America which will be of especial interest to thoughtful children of ten to twelve. Like its predecessor, Nino, this is a beautifully designed volume decorated and illustrated by the author." E. D. Briggs

+ Library J 64:662 S 1 '39 110w

Reviewed by Irene Smith
Library J 64:840 N 1 '39 100w

"The book, like its predecessor, is designed with beauty and distinction, and Mr. Angelo's drawings combine to a remarkable degree humor, action and interest with a fine decorative quality." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Jl 23 '39 340w

"Told in the third person, yet obviously autobiographical and written con amore by a first-rate writer, it is one of the books a child of eight will read and reread. The decorations and typography are also very fine."

+ New Yorker 15:89 N 25 '39 60w

"Outstanding."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:26 N 18 '39 30w

ANGUS, SAMUEL (COWAN HARPER, pseud). Essential Christianity. 226p $2 Macmillan [6s Murray, J]

230 Christianity (W) 39-3908

"[In this book the author] has tried to define for the thoughtful student what really matters and what does not matter in religion. From early Christians to the present day, religious understanding has been hindered by the common tendency to mistake form for content, symbol for reality, theology for religion, creed for character. In the face of the high 'creed tariffs' set up by group against group, barriers which exclude and divide, Mr Angus proposes that real unity can be found in the ethics of Jesus. With him, essential Christianity simply means Christlikeness, nothing more, nothing less—that is the burden of the whole book." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Booklist 35:244 Ap 1 '39

Reviewed by S. J. Case
Books p12 Je 11 '39 650w

Reviewed by W. A. Marzolf
Boston Transcript p7 My 27 '39 230w

"As it is written for laymen, there is little doubt about the book's making a strong impression. It is true that there is much repetition in it. It is also extremely liberal in its inclusion and recognition of all who with any kind of belief in Jesus would follow him. If it does not, therefore, satisfy all, it may none the less challenge all to re-examination of the Christian essentials and so accomplish great good." J. M. Dawson

Christian Century 56:739 Je 7 '39 420w

"The book sets forth courageously the author's concept of the needs of the Christian Church to examine itself and to adopt reforms in worship which he regards as essential to the success of Christianity. It is worthy of the careful attention of those who would understand the problems of the day in terms of humanity's needs. ' "Essential Christianity" is an experience of life, the life of God in the souls of men.' Here is a liberalism which neither goes over to the humanism of the day nor abandons strict adherence, but without dogma, to the teachings of the Founder of Christianity." A. F. Gilmore

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 5 '39 650w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton
Crozer Q 16:224 Jl '39 200w

Reviewed by S. J. Case
J Religion 19:279 Jl '39 490w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 7 '39 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p276 My 13 '39 390w

ANSELL, EDWARD CLARENCE TRELAWNEY-. See Trelawney-Ansell, E. C.

ANSON, LINDSAY. Even doctors die [Eng title: Such natural deaths]. 282p $2 Doubleday [7s 6d Collins]

39-4288

Detective story.

"We admire Lindsay Anson. . . His characters are terribly likeable—even the killer and his family—and his conversation is abundant and realistic." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 4 '39 50w

"There are some stirring adventures for all concerned before the story comes to a conclusion that many readers will find some difficulty in accepting. The author atones for this to some extent by the lively entertainment provided along the way." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p20 Ja 22 '39 130w

New Yorker 14:60 Ja 28 '39 30w

"Opening chapters and finish pack considerable punch but intervening matter is cloudy and often soggy with Grade Z British humor. Has its points."

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:20 Ja 21 '39 40w

Time 33:27 F 6 '39 30w

"The story is told with fine gusto, the dialogue is witty, and the characters are amusing without being wholly impossible. How far the author's light-hearted manner is best suited to tales of sudden death is perhaps open to question."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p616 S 24 '38 140w

ANTONIORROBLES, pseud. See Robles, A.

ANTONIUS, GEORGE. The Arab awakening; the story of the Arab national movement. 471p maps $3 Lippincott [15s Hamilton, H.]

950 Arabs. European war, 1914-1918—Arabia

(W) 39-2445

"The object of this book is primarily to tell a story and mark its significance. It aims at giving, not the final or even a detailed history of the Arab Movement, but an account in outline of its origins, its development and the main problems it has had to face, in the form of a continuous narrative interspersed with such analysis as seemed necessary to elucidate the problems. The story has never been told in full before. Accounts have appeared of this or that phase of the Movement; but there appears to be no work, in any of the languages with which I am acquainted, in which the story is told from the beginning, that is to say from the earliest stirrings of the Arab awakening one hundred years ago, down to the present day." (Foreword) Index.

"This is a timely book which may have considerable influence on the course of historical developments in the Arab world. . . Even opponents must admire the generous and understanding way in which Mr. Antonius deals with the Arab-Zionist controversy at a time when passions on both sides are running full tide. Arabs and Zionists would do well to study critically and with an open mind this illuminating volume." William Yale

+ — Am Hist R 44:908 Jl '39 900w

"Issue can be taken on many points treated in the book. Nowhere does Mr. Antonius deal adequately with the internal weaknesses of Arab nationalism: individualism, sectionalism, religious division, lack of political education and training. Nevertheless, he has produced a book of primary importance, enriched by new and valuable material." P. W. Ireland

+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:709 Ag '39 750w

"His book tells something new and contains a message. Moreover it is a book of dramatic interest, dealing with a past still poignantly present in living memories and with current questions affecting the destiny of nations." V. S. Clark

ANTONIUS, GEORGE—Continued
+ Atlantic Mr '39 650w

Booklist 35:220 Mr 1 '39

"This is a book to be read by every one desiring to be informed on one of the most difficult problems confronting a bewildered world and especially by those whom sympathy with the Jews has blinded to the strength of the Arab case." S. C. Chew
+ Books p6 F 12 '39 1800w

Reviewed by William Thomson
Boston Transcript p1 F 18 '39 1300w

Reviewed by E. P. MacCallum
Canadian Forum 19:93 Je '39 900w

Christian Century 56:270 Mr 1 '39 3350w

"Mr Antonius has raised so many hornet's nests that a few words as to his personal qualifications are desirable. He comes of Syrian Christian parentage, was educated at Victoria College, Alexandria, from which he went on to Cambridge. Afterwards he joined the Educational Service in Palestine, from which he was seconded in order to accompany Sir Percy Cox on several diplomatic missions to various Arab potentates. He speaks and writes English, French and Arabic with equal facility. He is therefore equipped as few others can be for the task of writing about Arabia in its relation to the western world." A. G. L.
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 23 '39 850w

Reviewed by C. O. Cleveland
Commonweal 29:473 F 17 '39 370w

Foreign Affairs 17:642 Ap '39 140w

"Antonius writes with a brilliant mastery of English. He is not only a thorough and fair-minded scholar in his use of documents but a keen analyst of character and motives."
+ Geog R 29:514 Jl '39 360w

"A thoroughly important book. . . The book is only indirectly a 'statement of the Arab case.' Primarily it is history, and deals with a subject which is intrinsically interesting as well as of immediate importance." E. C. H.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 27 '39 280w

"In many ways this is a remarkable book. Never has the story of the origin and growth of the Arab national movement been told with such brilliance or with such a wealth of detail." Albert Viton
+ Nation 148:239 F 25 '39 950w

"To the future historian of the Near East this book may prove invaluable. Nowhere else will he find a complete account in English of Arab nationalism from the middle of the last century to the present day. Nowhere else will he find an orderly and thorough presentation of the intrigues and events of the Arab revolt, much of which has been obscured by Lawrence's personalized story. No source—except the unpublished archives of the British government—is richer in the documents of Arab-British wartime negotiations." J. Z. Lurie
+ New Repub 98:227 Mr 29 '39 700w

"There is no doubt that this book appears at an opportune moment in the vexed tangle of Palestine affairs. . . The information here provided is not only in great part new, but it has been collected with most conscientious accuracy, and is presented in an interesting manner; the book fills a gap which has long been felt by all students of Near Eastern affairs." Freya Stark
+ New Statesman & Nation 16:1130 D 31 '38 1050w

"An Arab by birth and a Palestinian by citizenship, Mr. Antonius . . . has had a right to release this book. It embodies the results of seven years of well occupied leisure from official duties. In its field, the book stands alone, and amid much writing of a different tendency, such a work has been needed. . . The book presents much, if not all, of the material on which public opinion must pass judgment, and in handling inside material Mr. Antonius displays mental integrity of a high order. Out of his survey there emerges one broad conclusion which clears the air." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p9 F 5 '39 1600w

"It will not please Zionists and especially the British governing class, at whose door Antonius lays many of the present troubles in Palestine."
New Yorker 14:59 Ja 28 '39 50w

No Am 247:189 spring '39 190w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Pol Sci Q 54:463 S '39 180w

Pratt p26 summer '39

"It is sincerely to be hoped that the timely appearance of this book will open British eyes to the true inwardness of the situation in the Near East." H. A. R. Gibb
Spec 161:912 N 25 '38 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p750 N 26 '38 1050w

Reviewed by H. E. Allen
Yale R n s 29:405 winter '40 900w

APPEL, BENJAMIN. The power-house. 494p $2.75 Dutton

39-6261

Story of petty crime growing into murder, of youngsters from "dead end" streets becoming the tools of older and smarter criminals, of police-and politician-protected rackets, and of labor spies and riots.

"A labor novel, and a good one for all the imperfections. It holds the interest all the way through, for it is not fashioned out of tags of propaganda, neither out of abstractions or ideologies. As a social novel it is fashioned out of flesh and blood, out of the men and women who are its people." F. T. Marsh
+ — Books p10 Mr 19 '39 600w

"A vigorous, almost violent, intensity surcharges the pages of this story. It is an intensity generated out of the inevitable clash and conflict, base, noble, petty, heroic and human, of men and women struggling to exist." Frank O'Flaherty
+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 18 '39 750w

"There is an almost unbearable tension in the book and a compassion that carries it far beyond the reach of merely hard-boiled writing." M. L. Elting
Forum 102:v Jl '39 130w

"Appel has a lively command of habits and jargons and the types of people you meet. He also has a humdrum prose quality that bogs him down whenever action stops. . . Appel is at his best in rough action, in telling every detail of how the deal was put over, in making understandable the various kinds of men and women hidden in our national woodwork. His best is valuable enough to us so that there would be profit all around if he'd be content to leave it at that." Otis Ferguson
+ — New Repub 99:78 My 24 '39 360w

" 'The Power House' will hold the reader's attention with interest compounded of distaste, fear, anger and indignation. Appel's language is that of the people whose lives he describes —gun-men, gangsters, procurers, racketeers— but because it is so deeply rooted in his scene it is not offensive. He is not the small boy self-consciously seeking to shock; he is a mature artist probing into the human mire which produces this language as the expression of the ugly ferment of its life. . . A brilliant book written with the cold, corroding passion of one who has been through the heat of human poverty and degradation and had all softness and sham burned away." R. C. Feld
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 19 '39 900w

New Yorker 15:86 Mr 18 '39 30w

"Within the covers of this book you will meet the meanest, the cheapest, the lousiest set of people in the world, and you ought to meet them here in this book—and not in person. They are the people who make crime headlines every day, and Appel rates three cheers for presenting them honestly." J. F. Dinneen

+ Sat R of Lit 19:7 Mr 18 '39 330w

ARKELL, REGINALD. More Green fingers; another present for a good gardener; pictured by Eugène Hastain. 96p $1.75 Dodd [3s 6d Jenkins]

827 Gardens—Poetry 39-1298

Collection of light verse about the ups and downs of gardening. By the author of Green Fingers (Book Review Digest, 1936).

Reviewed by Fredoon Kabraji
New Statesman & Nation 18:289 Ag 19 '39 30w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét
Sat R of Lit 20:16 My 6 '39 30w

"Whether or not one is a gardener, it is easy to like this bouquet of verse. The author's earlier book, 'Green Fingers' was a delight, and 'More Green Fingers' is more of the same stimulant, with the same good-natured sarcasm taking off the foibles of people so amusingly." + Springf'd Republican p7e My 21 '39 90w

ARKELL, MRS RUBY LILLIAN (PERCIVAL). Caroline of Ansbach. 352p il $4.25 (12s 6d) Oxford

B or 92 Caroline, consort of George II, king of Great Britain 39-23671

Biography of the queen consort of George II of England. "Although not so famous as Queen Elizabeth or Queen Victoria . . . she was in many respects a greater person and certainly a more admirable and a more lovable character." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by C. G. Stillman
Books p2 S 3 '39 1000w

"[Mrs] Arkell has done a faithful job, but why anybody should envy a queen is one of the mysteries of human nature. As drama, the only moving chapter in the book is that descriptive of Queen Caroline's death. For the rest, the nature of the material has limited the author to pedestrian writing." H. M. Jones

— + Boston Transcript p3 Ag 12 '39 400w

"To tell the truth, [Queen Caroline] was not a very important person, and this is not a very important book. But, like Caroline, it is honest and unpretentious, no nonsense about it anywhere; and the reader, wearied of the romantic trash which so often does duty for eighteenth-century biography, will find here the welcome prosaic truth." A. J. P. Taylor

+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 11 '39 160w

Reviewed by Louis Kronenberger
Nation 149:390 O 7 '39 800w

"It is a thoughtful, well-constructed book, and serves well its unduly neglected heroine." Raymond Alderson

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:320 Ag 26 '39 450w

"The most discriminating of readers should be delighted with both the content and the appearance of this magnificent book. There can be slight doubt that it is one of the truly important and stimulating biographies of the decade, and to the best of the reviewer's knowledge it is the most distinguished, the most original and the most scholarly biography of a woman that has ever been written by a woman." L. W. Eshleman

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 6 '39 1100w

"Mrs. Arkell has prudently avoided both romance and satire. Writing primarily for the general public, she has told the Queen's story accurately and simply, without hair-splitting or excessive argument; and at the same time she has supplied the scholar with a valuable and (in notes modestly relegated to the final pages) fully documented treatise upon a figure whose importance has long demanded such an investigation. . . Mrs. Arkell has understood Caroline as one woman understands another and has admired her not only for what she achieved but also for the character which made such achievements possible. That quiet and just admiration has given strength and beauty to her portrait." C. D. Abbott

+ Sat R of Lit 20:16 Ag 12 '39 450w

Reviewed by Christopher Hobhouse
Spec 163:265 Ag 18 '39 850w
Time 34:61 Ag 7 '39 260w

"While there are certain excellent points about Mrs. Arkell's book—notably the scholarly restraint with which it is written—it is not wholly satisfying. The Queen herself is constantly lost in the detail with which the background is filled in, so that the book becomes more a chronicle of events than the development of personality. A little more gossip and chatter would have enlivened it for the general reader."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p369 Je 24 '39 550w

ARLEN, MICHAEL. The flying Dutchman. 302p $2 Doubleday [7s 6d Heinemann]

39-20966

A tale of international intrigue mixed with satire and psychology. Chance Winter, the protagonist, is a "man of ill-will," a wealthy Englishman who owns newspapers and airplane factories, and secretly plots the assassinations, the labor troubles, and the wars that have disturbed Europe for years. He is finally convicted, and, liquidating some of his followers as well as his plans, he commits suicide.

"Of Arlen it can still be said 'the man can write.' . . He has chosen to write a thrilling double-barreled mystery yarn with playful interludes of seduction and adultery—exciting, absorbing, amusing; a book to sit up with all night, shivering but chuckling. Arlen's wit is the most malicious since Oscar Wilde. His style has the smooth grace of Eleanor Holm's backstroke. In sophistication he is without peer. That combination of qualities should make for mighty interesting reading. And it does." Shaemas O'Sheel

+ — Books p3 Jl 16 '39 700w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 29 '39 270w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 17 '39 460w
New Repub 99:372 Ag 2 '39 50w

"Mr. Arlen cannot manage melodrama, far less melodrama of ideas, and his book as a result is pretentious, sloppy and dull. By deserting his post-war flippancies and becoming serious, he has lost all that excellent social criticism which he displayed—unintentionally perhaps—in his frivolous books. It is to be hoped that next time he will put off adult things and talk about the people he understands in the brittle style which he can do so well."

— New Statesman & Nation 17:226 F 11 '39 110w

"Aside from a slight love interest, the story is all Chance and Cherry. Its style is very knowing and satirical with an air of deep significance and dark portent which is not as impressive as it is meant to be. Its humor is of the hard-boiled school with a frankly Wodehousian figure dragged in for good measure. It is an interesting attempt at explaining why men's minds turn to devious designs, but it doesn't come off with a bang." Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p7 Jl 16 '39 440w

"In his new novel, Michael Arlen sounds terribly, terribly serious, even portentous, and I'm not sure that the change is for the better. 'The Flying Dutchman' is an odd mixture of the old Mayfair Arlen, Dostoevski, and E. Phillips Oppenheim, with Oppenheim winning in the end. . . Nevertheless, the story has its moments and is not without some amusing flashes of the old Arlen top hat manner." Clifton Fadiman

ARLEN, MICHAEL—Continued
— + New Yorker 15:63 Jl 15 '39 230w
Time 34:52 Jl 31 '39 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p39 Ja 21 '39 270w

ARMER, MRS LAURA (ADAMS). Farthest west; il. by Sidney Armer. 190p $2.50 Longmans 39-22047

Story of a group of California school children, bent on saving the giant redwoods from destruction.

"The atmosphere, which should have been kept clear for so straightforward a story, is clouded by emotional uncertainty. The children tell dreams, compose mediocre verse, write compositions on How To Be Happy; their elders moralize with unabashed directness. The story scarcely knows what to do with so much meaning. When the part-Indian boy turns out to be 'Lord Sheridan' and goes to his mansion in England, one of the children gives him 'a painting of fog drifting in the tree-tops.' It is only too appropriate." M. L. Becker
+ — Books p10 D 10 '39 270w
Cath World 150:378 D '39 40w

"A children's book fully up to the very high standard that Mrs. Armer has set by her earlier juveniles. They are really good."
+ Christian Century 56:1078 S 6 '39 30w
Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 30w

"Admirable as its objective is, the story falters both because of the introduction of an Indian boy whose noble English relatives do not carry conviction and because of its tedious, didactic style. Coming after Mrs. Armer's Forest Pool, the book is a distinct disappointment." A. M. Jordan
— + Horn Bk M 15:299 S '39 80w

"Admirable moral, but story lacks conviction. Skip this one."
Sat R of Lit 21:26 N 18 '39 40w

"This absorbing story skilfully combines the adventurous with the educational."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 140w

ARMSTRONG, MRS BARBARA (NACHTRIEB). The health insurance doctor. 265p $3 Princeton univ. press 331.25442 Insurance, Health. Physicians
39-27959

Study of public health insurance as it operates in Great Britain, Denmark and France. "The study of which this book is the product rests on a foundation of twenty years of research and university teaching in the social insurance field. The study itself embodied a first-hand investigation made between May and November 1936 in Great Britain, Denmark, and France. The facts were gathered with the aid and cooperation of both the government and the organized medical profession in each of the three countries. Representative non-organization physicians were also interviewed." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 36:125 D 1 '39
Boston Transcript p2 N 18 '39 30w

"Mrs. Armstrong has been thoroughly grounded in economics and law, and she approaches her subject with the dispassionate and detached mind of a jurist taking evidence. For her study she interviewed government officials, lay workers, organized and unorganized doctors, and indeed every type of person related to the health bureaucracy, as well as many who merely observed its workings. Official reports and tables add substantially to the value of the analysis." M. S. U., M.D.
+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 O 21 '39 300w

ARMSTRONG, HAMILTON FISH. When there is no peace. 236p $1.75 (6s) Macmillan 940.5 Czechoslovakia—Territorial questions. Great Britain—Foreign relations—Germany. Europe—Politics—Crisis, 1938 (W) 39-27016

Part of this account of the Czech-German crisis of 1938 has been published in Foreign Affairs, of which Mr Armstrong is the editor. In the book more details are added as well as some general observations and conclusions. A complete chronology following the development of the crisis is provided and an appendix gives the text of the reply of the Czechoslovak government to the Anglo-French plan of September 19th.

Reviewed by I. M. Stone
Am Pol Sci R 33:721 Ag '39 300w
Reviewed by W. E. Lingelbach
Ann Am Acad 204:190 Jl '39 550w

"As editor of Foreign Affairs, and a constant contributor to it, Armstrong stands halfway between historian and journalist. He has the expertise of the journalist combined with a historical sense. Moreover, no American journalist has a wider acquaintance with the men who make the news. His 'contacts' have stood him in good stead in writing this survey." H. B. Elliston
+ Atlantic Mr '39 550w
Booklist 35:203 F 15 '39

"The little book makes a complete 'Origins' of that second world war which has not come—yet. Written with an entire sobriety of style and in a strict historical discipline, it has the same pace, the same dramatic intensity and sense of human tragedy that one finds in the best studies of the outbreak of the last great catastrophe. . . Mr. Armstrong publishes for the first time the text of two important documents (significantly suppressed in the British 'White Papers') and gives an account—nowhere contradicted as yet—of what he is informed took place at the Hradcany interview. . . It is surprising how fresh an illumination he is still able to throw over the whole affair simply by intelligent collation of the known facts and by drawing them all, with his own suggestive comment, into a single connected account." Walter Millis
+ Books p1 Ja 29 '39 2000w

"For students of the crisis, there is a complete chronology of the successful Nazi putsch. The book includes two hitherto unpublished documents, one of them the Czech reply to the Anglo-French plan for partition, moving in its dignity and pathetic in its expressed desire for peace. While primarily of value for clarifying a complicated situation, the book also catches, brilliantly, the drama and the not yet forgotten tension of last autumn's troubled times." E. B. Schriftgiesser
+ Boston Transcript p1 F 4 '39 750w

"For a rational man this is a notable book. For a cave-man it would be a feeble substitute for a club. On whether we are going the way of the rational man or the cave-man will depend the ultimate value of this and many similar studies now pouring from the presses." J. D. Squires
Christian Century 56:353 Mr 15 '39 650w
Christian Science Monitor p16 F 4 '39 480w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '39
Current Hist 50:2 Mr '39 700w
Economist 135:88 Ap 8 '39 90w
Foreign Affairs 17:628 Ap '39 60w

"Here in one evening's reading time is presented the curious and terrifying spectacle of the way little wars are weeded out so that the big one can grow unhampered." M. L. Elting
Forum 101:iv Mr '39 200w
Reviewed by Lamar Middleton
Living Age 356:196 Ap '39 230w
Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 148:268 Mr 4 '39 450w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 17:500 Ap 1 '39 450w

"The editor of Foreign Affairs, who followed the developments closely and has since pondered them deeply, has performed a service in gathering together what could be learned of this momentous display of power politics. Mr. Armstrong does not pretend he knows all, or can explain all, but he does give to groping minds an opportunity to study the continuity of the drama and from his sources of information he is able to throw much light even on the backstage proceedings." E. J. Young
+ N Y Times p1 Ja 29 '39 1450w
New Yorker 14:67 F 4 '39 50w
Pratt p26 spring '39

"When the list is finally closed and the authors are rapt in contemplation of yet another crisis, 'When There Is No Peace' will be remembered as one of the most important contributions to general understanding of the contemporary diplomatic scene. Clear, balanced, restrained, but powerful in its cumulative effect, it reviews the events of the Fascist annus mirabilis, the year which has just ended." D. H. Popper
+ Sat R of Lit 19:6 F 4 '39 750w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 5 '39 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p158 Mr 18 '39 500w
Wis Lib Bul 35:48 Mr '39

"Again, the value of such a book must be questioned. In a sense it is but a perpetuation of that combination of rumor, guess, and fact that go to make up the modern newspaper story. No new facts are available and time has yet to give a true perspective of the period's real importance. No doubt is cast on Mr. Armstrong's extensive knowledge of contemporary leaders and events, but so many of the details in his picture must still rest on surmise rather than fact, that the whole story is still a long way from being complete." T. C. Mendenhall Yale Law J 48:1463 Je '39 650w
Reviewed by A. W. Griswold
Yale R n s 28:823 summer '39 600w

ARMSTRONG, MARGARET NEILSON. Murder in stained glass. 265p $2 Random house 39-27421

Detective story.

Booklist 35:308 My 15 '39

"A fine job of juggling, and practically unguessable." Will Cuppy
+ Books p13 Ap 23 '39 300w

"It is always a pleasure to read a who-done-it by a competent writer. . . We guessed part of the conclusion, but we missed the murderer entirely, in spite of the clues pointing to him. The writing is smooth, interspersed with excellent descriptions. The characters, even the most exotic, are completely believable. The whole case sounds as if it might well be the fictionalization of an actual case." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 22 '39 130w
New Repub 99:28 My 10 '39 40w

"Don't miss it if you like a logical, well-told story with a surprise ending which you will think you should have foreseen." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '39 160w

"Intelligent story, but oh, so slow!"
+ New Yorker 15:80 Ap 22 '39 50w

"Another variation of gambit quite popular this year. Ending has novel twist and stained-glass attitudes are attractive. Able."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ap 22 '39 40w

"The plot is well contrived and the atmosphere of stained glass manufacture lends an air of novelty."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p704 D 2 '39 130w

ARMSTRONG, MARTIN DONISTHORPE, and others. What is happiness? See What is happiness?

ARNESON, BEN ALBERT. The democratic monarchies of Scandinavia. (Governments of modern Europe) 244p map $1.60 Van Nostrand

342.48 Denmark—Politics and government. Norway—Politics and government. Sweden—Politics and government 39-4445

"In this book are presented the salient features of the three governmental systems of Scandinavia. . . Under each topic there is, in general, a separate treatment of each of the Scandinavian countries, with frequent comparison throughout. The various backgrounds—ethnological, historical, and social—are broadly indicated." (Publisher's note) Bibliographical note. Index.

"This monograph marks the initial attempt in English to describe at all comprehensively the governmental systems of the Scandinavian countries. . . Inasmuch as the material available in French and German is also quite limited and the native tongues of the three countries unfamiliar to most political scientists, the appearance of this volume should receive a hearty welcome. While it does not represent any original research on the part of the author, the contents indicate a rather thorough familiarity with the more general native sources and, as it is the only treatment so far published, may be considered a definite contribution to the literature of European government." E. C. Bellquist
+ Am Pol Sci R 33:319 Ap '39 500w

"Considering the dimensions of the volume, Professor Arneson has covered the subject with amazing completeness. Such a happy apportionment of descriptive detail, generalization, and judicious deduction is very rare. In spite of its brevity, the volume is much more than a mere manual or handbook." A. J. Lien
+ Ann Am Acad 204:178 Jl '39 410w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 8 '39 140w
Foreign Affairs 17:813 Jl '39 20w

ARNOLD, ELLIOTT. Only the young. 329p $2.50 Holt 39-24730

Robert Martin grew up in Inwood, one of Manhattan's little neighborhoods, when boys could still spend a free and happy childhood there. Later Robert became a newspaper man, saw the seamy side of life in New York, traveled abroad to Russia and Germany. Finally he returned to his own land, wiser for his experiences, sadder for the loss of his best friend.

" 'Only the Young' may be no great shakes, but it can be enjoyed. Mr. Arnold, I must confess, has a positive talent for the stereotyped; but slipped between the cliches are gusty and even moving evocations of a way of life that was somehow more tender and rich than one can easily describe. Mr. Arnold's genuine affection for la vie chez Inwood gives the book a glowing, modest radiance. He is obviously superior to his book, and he will write better ones." Alfred Kazin
— + Books p14 O 15 '39 500w
Reviewed by Sarah Chokla
Boston Transcript p2 N 25 '39 250w

"Arnold's style is racy and simple and vivid. He deals essentially with dramatic situations, and it is only by the juxtaposition of the scenes that one perceives his intellectual purpose. That is a tribute to a novelist who has done his work well." Harold Strauss
+ N Y Times p7 O 15 '39 800w
New Yorker 15:101 O 14 '39 80w

" 'Only the Young' is an interesting novel. It is spiced, too, with good reporting. Elliot Arnold is still at his best in his description of incidents, in scenic evocation. . . These are most memorable. With character the author is less sure." B. R. Redman

ARNOLD, ELLIOTT—Continued
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:10 O 21 '39 650w

"Some of the reflective passages have interest, but the characters lack essential dimensions and the story lacks integration."
— + Springf'd Republican p7e O 8 '39 110w

ARNOLD, JOHN HENRY, ed. Anglican liturgies. 205p $3.50 (8s 6d) Oxford

264.03 Church of England—Liturgy and ritual

"This book gathers into one volume the Eucharistic liturgies of every branch of the Anglican communion." Living Church

"This book should be in the hands of all who are interested in the new movement for a revision of the Holy Communion." W. L. Caswell
Churchman 154:20 Ja 1 '40 250w

"Liturgical scholars will certainly provide themselves with this book, but Church people in general should also possess it and give it attentive study." Elizabeth McCracken
+ Living Church 101:6 D 6 '39 50w

ARONOVICI, CAROL. Housing the masses. 291p il $3.50 Wiley [17s 6d Chapman]

331.833 Housing—U.S. (W) 39-17336

Discussion of some aspects of housing for the poorer classes, especially applicable to America. The author, who is lecturer on housing and community planning at New York University and Columbia University, regards the subject as "an important civic imperative which affects or should affect all of us." Partial contents: Home ownership; The law and housing; Urbanism and housing; Architecture and housing; Housing education; The housing survey and housing research. Contains a chapter on housing literature. Index.

"Dr. Aronovici has written, taught, and practiced city planning and housing for over a quarter-century, and everyone in the movement knows and respects him for his rich human sense of social values and for his wide-ranging scholarship. Both these qualities are evident in his latest, handsomely got-up book." C. S. Ascher
+ Ann Am Acad 207:252 Ja '40 600w
Booklist 36:35 O 1 '39

"Of all the studies on housing which have appeared in this country during the last twenty years, this is perhaps the most comprehensive in scope." W. R. Agard
+ Books p10 Ag 13 '39 700w
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 2 '39 650w
J Home Econ 32:113 F '40 100w

"The clarity of statement and excellent organization of material should carry the message of 'Housing the Masses' to a wide public. To them it will point the direction in which solutions are to be found. However, in many cases, though Aronovici indicates the direction, he seems unwilling to follow to a logical conclusion his own clear analysis." C. S. Stein
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:32 O 14 '39 900w

"Logical in treatment; written well except for misspellings of names in the references; deserving a fuller index; provocative of dissent at some points especially in his chapter on surveys and research,—the book is perhaps the most penetrating one to appear on the subject in recent years." L. M. Brooks
+ — Social Forces 18:294 D '39 600w

"One of the book's most important contributions which cannot be overlooked is its constant emphasis on the housing problem as a factor in America's basic economic difficulties which will only be solved when America's standards of income and employment are raised." Carl Feiss
+ Survey 76:27 Ja '40 450w

ART of the Far East; landscapes, flowers, animals; introd. by René Grousset. (Iris bks) 10p il $2.75 Oxford

759 Paintings, Chinese. Paintings, Japanese

Fifteen plates in color selected from the works of old Chinese and Japanese artists, with a short introductory chapter.

Booklist 36:152 D 15 '39

Reviewed by F. W. Coburn
Boston Transcript p6 D 9 '39 230w
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 20 '40 20w

"These new color albums of Swiss manufacture fairly deserve their ambitious title, the Iris Books, for at a moment when the market is flooded with crude or merely plausible color reproductions we find here, instead, color plates of most refined execution and as near facsimiles as our present resources permit." F. J. Mather, Jr.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:12 D 9 '39 130w

"Delicate shades of brown predominate in the pictures, which are reproduced in plates of notable beauty. The volumes of this series are of value for study and have special merit as gifts."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 26 '39 120w

ARTHUR, SIR GEORGE COMPTON ARCHIBALD, 3d bart. Not worth reading; foreword by Lord Birdwood. 310p il $3.50 (12s 6d) Longmans

B or 92 39-20616

Memoirs of an English soldier. "Sir George Arthur can remember Garibaldi's visit to London, and when a boy he stayed in Paris at the house of Captain Gronow's widow. On leaving Oxford he joined the 2nd Life Guards and served with Kitchener (whose private secretary and biographer he subsequently became) in Egypt, retiring from the Army in 1886, but serving again in South Africa and the last War." (Spec)

Reviewed by Ivor Brown
Manchester Guardian p7 N 18 '38 490w

"The book's most pungent interest is in its social scenes and the commentary which is often unspoken but nevertheless plainly suggested. Sir George Arthur writes of social changes with perspective of thought as well as of time."
+ N Y Times p18 Mr 19 '39 460w

"On the whole, the earlier half of Not Worth Reading is more enjoyable than the latter, perhaps because it deals with an epoch more suitable to the author's genial style. For he makes the world he has known sound amusing and attractive." Anthony Powell
+ Spec 161:1056 D 16 '38 250w

"This light and readable record of his life is not devoid of interest."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p774 D 3 '38 220w

ASCH, SHALOM. The Nazarene; tr. by Maurice Samuel. 698p $2.75 Putnam [8s 6d Routledge]

Jesus Christ—Fiction (W) 39-27842

A novel based on the life of Christ. The story, set in a framework of modern Poland, is retold from three different points of view. First there is the narrative as a modern Polish Jewish scholar hears it from lips of one who claims to be the reincarnation of the Roman military governor of Jerusalem. Then there is the "fifth gospel" written by Judas Iscariot, and finally there is the story as the young Jew remembers it when he realizes that he himself is the reincarnation of a disciple of the Pharisee, Rabbi Nicodemon.

"The defects are the more deplorable because the novel is so beautifully written. The Palestine of Christ lives again vividly. The thoughts and actions of the men of that day, the religious and political currents that swayed them, are again and again recaptured from the past in a vast and alluring panorama. Few anachronisms or false touches of topography occur. Briefly, Sholem Asch's The Nazarene evidences rare literary excellence, strives for a high purpose, but serves it only too tendentiously and impressionistically." W. J. McGarry

+ — America 62:105 N 4 '39 500w

"Judged purely as a novel, The Nazarene is a superb achievement. Even on the factual side, a work such as Papini's Life is thin beside it. This is because Mr. Asch has taken an infinite amount of trouble to build up an historical background against which the figure of Jesus may move authentically, with that sense of reality which we should expect of fiction as of life." John Cournos

+ Atlantic N '39 550w

Booklist 36:88 N 1 '39

"The method is a masterful piece of scholarship in its fusion of pagan, Hebrew and Christian sources and a narrative tour de force in its many-sided view of each event; but it is more than these a creative triumph in its blending of all these into dynamic narrative, in its continual illumination not only of dim scenes, but even those shrouded in darkness, in its sustained spiritual intensity, and finally in its full realization of the drama inherent in the story of Him who changed the world at Nazareth." Milton Rugoff

+ Books p3 O 22 '39 1400w

Reviewed by E. B. Garside

Boston Transcript p2 O 21 '39 700w

Cath World 150:362 D '39 1100w

"Sholem Asch's book has already become a 'sign that is spoken against.' It has been denounced as a poorly disguised attempt to exonerate the Jews of the guilt for the crucifixion; it has been scorned as too orthodox for the liberals and too liberal for the orthodox. But it will make a place for itself among the immortal stories of mankind, for it is a great novel by a great author on a great theme." K. M. Chworowsky

+ Christian Century 57:179 F 7 '40 1200w

"It is a book which every Christian will wish to read. The critics will cavil at this or that, for they usually resent any popularizer of the truths they keep embalmed in their theses. But there are no biographies of Christ which bring so vividly to life the figure of Jesus, his friends, and his enemies, and which more completely and in such wealth of detail picture the life, the customs and the religious ideas of the time." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 153:19 D 1 '39 1500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '39

Reviewed by M. M. Colum

Forum 102:261 D '39 700w

Reviewed by B. S. Easton

Living Church 101:12 D 20 '39 500w

Reviewed by Philip Rahv

Nation 149:470 O 28 '39 800w

"Asch's novel is not a Jewish interpretation of Jesus: it is the biography of a Rabbi whose fervor, like his education, was drawn from the profound intellectual democracy of Jerusalem. . . It is this sense of rediscovery, of an emotion frankly and almost exaltedly patriotic, that gives the novel its intensity. But it is an intensity without gush; if Asch claims Yeshua for the Jews, it is in a spirit totally without recrimination or frenzied affection. Something of the domestic sadness of the Christ epic is in it, the sense of the immemorial Jewish loneliness throughout history. Yeshua here takes his place in the Hebraic martyrology, a Jew betrayed by Judah Ish-Koriot, and not the first Jew to perish on the cross." Alfred Kazin

+ New Repub 100:375 N 1 '39 500w

"In subject, length and amplitude, it is a great novel. Certainly it does not have the profundities, both below and above, of a Dostoievsky novel, with which we are not comparing it. But in its large and noble conception and in its exact and amazingly interesting detail it is a superb achievement in the modern novel." P. M. Jack

+ N Y Times p3 O 29 '39 1200w

"I judge 'The Nazarene' to be a universal work of art. It would be absurd to say that a Chinese would see in it what the Western world does, yet even for the Chinese, I think, certain high values would remain, enough to stamp this book as extraordinary. It is marred, though not fatally, by the narrative frame in which Asch, for some occult reason, thinks he must encase his story." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 15:92 O 21 '39 550w

Pratt p22 winter '40

"'The Nazarene' is a great book, full of great moments. But beyond its separate merits, its interlocking narratives, its complex psychologies, has it a still further purpose? The ending makes clear that it has. In direct contradiction of all four of the Gospels, Sholem Asch attributes the arrest and execution of Jesus to the Romans, with the priest and Sadducees acting simply as their agents. Pilate, shown in the Gospels as wishing to save the life of Jesus, is represented as seeking his death. . . In other words, the author goes to extreme limits in claiming Jesus of Nazareth for the Jews. Considering what Christians have made of their Christ, and are still making of him in the year 1939, no one of them is entitled to resent that claim. But it would have been better, I think, to rest it on the record instead of departing from the record." E. S. Bates

+ Sat R of Lit 20:5 O 21 '39 650w

"Sholem Asch is not only a scholar and an artist, but he is deeply versed in Jewish ritual and in the law of the Torah which Jesus taught. His humanity and tolerance are manifest throughout the book. No orthodox Christian need fear offense to his personal faith if he reads 'The Nazarene' with a calm and open mind. On the contrary, his knowledge will be enriched and his thought stimulated by the beauty and truths in the book. 'The Nazarene' is a novel which will do much to further tolerance and understanding among men." L. C. Rich

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 5 '39 1250w

"On almost every page of the book Mr. Asch has some flashing illumination to enlighten the sayings and deeds of Jesus, and so carefully has he held the balance between the various narrators of his stories that it is difficult to discover the writer's own views as he shows the mysterious power of the Teacher who seemed, at first, to be just one more of the prophets who were always rising in a nation that loved prophets, and a nation groaning under a foreign tyranny."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p643 N 4 '39 500w

Reviewed by Robert Littell

Yale R n s 29:viii winter '40 250w

ASCH, SHALOM. Song of the valley; tr. by Elsa Krauch. 245p $2 Putnam

39-27222

A tale of modern Palestine, particularly of a small band of city-bred Jews who are trying to make a living and a home for themselves in a desolate, swampy valley in the ancient home land. Opposed by forces of nature and hostile neighbors, they manage to live thru the first six months of hardship and face the future hopefully.

Booklist 35:270 Ap 15 '39

"The book is charming, pastoral. But there is a discrepancy between the mood the author creates and the material with which he deals. Not a glint of humor lightens the story and this is a curious thing in Sholem Asch, who has always seen the humor of his own people and their struggles." E. L. Walton

+ — Books p10 Mr 26 '39 650w

"All the more attractive qualities of the Jewish race come out in this warmly coloured novel." Charles Marriott

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 18 '39 330w

ASCH, SHALOM—Continued

"Mr. Asch is deeply sincere about his theme, but puts less weight behind it than you would expect from the author of 'Three Cities.'"
New Repub 99:28 My 10 '39 50w

"Superficially, a proper and inspiring story, but, unhappily, written in terms that I seem to remember in quite another connection. . . It is unpleasantly simple to visualize the group and its exploits in the garish colours of a propaganda poster. Mr. Asch wears his new cloak with graceful zest, and though I miss the humorous subtleties of his urban novels he is too good a writer to miss his dramatic opportunities. Sometimes, though, he seems to say a little too much." John Mair
+ — New Statesman & Nation 17:707 My 6 '39 280w

"This is in many respects an exhilarating book, though by no means a great one. It should win much sympathy for the Zionists and their aspirations." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p26 Ap 2 '39 500w
New Yorker 15:79 Ap 1 '39 30w
Pratt p27 autumn '39

"To find a parallel for these calm, strong-minded, full-spirited Jewish pioneers we will have to go back to the chronicles of the Bible, telling of the first days, when Jews tilled their own land and were a whole people. The pages of 'Song of the Valley' ring with shouts of that old joy, as they dredge the swamp and hew the wood, and with the pounding of feet as they dance with linked arms and sing of Israel, not the lament but the pæan. The parable is clear and needs no further elaboration. . . I do not think it can be doubted that 'Song of the Valley' will stand very high among Asch's works, a pure, lyric song as perfect in its way as the symphonic 'Three Cities.'" N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 19:13 Mr 25 '39 550w

"It is with obvious pride and passion and sometimes in the mood of a minor prophet that Mr. Sholem Asch records this experiment in making the wilderness blossom with the rose. As a study of Zionist pioneering in Palestine the book is full of interest, though perhaps a little repetitive. The translation reads well."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p231 Ap 22 '39 400w

ASCOLI, MAX, and FEILER, ARTHUR. Fascism for whom? [Eng title: Fascism: who benefits]. 341p $3 Norton [12s 6d Allen, G.]

321 Fascism. Italy—Fascist movement. Germany—Nazi movement (W) 38-27878

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by J. S. Robinson
Am Econ R 29:129 Mr '39 900w

"This book will be welcomed as refreshing reading by both teachers and students interested in Fascism. . . No adequate study of Fascism as a world phenomenon has been written as yet. . . Within their chosen framework, both authors have contributed by means of a lucid analysis of Italian and German Fascism toward a future, more universal, study of Fascism in its totality, psychologically, culturally, and socially." William Ebenstein
+ Am Pol Sci R 33:316 Ap '39 1250w

Reviewed by N. L. Sims
Am Soc R 4:412 Je '39 200w

"As may be expected, this is an indictment of fascism. . . But, strange to say, the book is also one of the best studies justifying fascism. It analyzes, step by step, the inexorable social forces back of the fascist movements in such an able and logical way that it is impossible to conceive anything in the place of fascism. . . Those looking for a very good presentation of the fascist case will read this account—and enjoy it. Those who oppose fascism may read the book and if amenable to good logic, may be prone to crawl across the fascist fence. But whatever may be the case, Fascism for Whom? is a clever, scholarly tale which does not let you down." J. S. Roucek
Ann Am Acad 203:216 My '39 370w

"To the scholar acquainted with Fascism, its history and theories, the book offers little new. But for the general reader this book may be regarded as by far the best source of information about a movement which today undoubtedly dominates the world horizon. For that purpose the book should be very highly recommended." Hans Kohn
+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 25 '39 550w

"There have been a great many books on Fascism, good, bad and indifferent. The present work, by two professors at the 'University in Exile' in New York City, is distinctly among the better ones and will repay careful reading."
+ Foreign Affairs 17:634 Ap '39 40w

Reviewed by C. T. Schmidt
New Repub 99:370 Ag 2 '39 650w

Reviewed by I. L. Kandel
Social Educ 3:358 My '39 650w

Reviewed by H. D. Lasswell
Survey G 28:245 Mr '39 450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p449 Jl 29 '39 700w

ASHCROFT, R. L. Divine scheme. 131p $1.40 (3s 6d) Longmans

241 Christian life. Theology

"A lay English schoolmaster writes this little book for his sixth form boys, hoping thereby to continue Confirmation instructions. He follows the articles of the Creed, giving a brief chapter to each. The author emphasizes the fact of sin and the need of repentance for rebelling against a loving God." Churchman

Christian Century 56:1410 N 15 '39 30w

"To a trained theologian some of the interpretations may seem a little amateurish, but they serve their purpose admirably well. Other devout laymen might well follow the good example set by this book." C. H. B.
+ — Churchman 153:35 N 1 '39 80w

ASHTON, E. B. Strangers in the land. 312p $2.50 Scribner

A novel of southern Germany in 1932. The chief character is Pont, a young Jewish lawyer, a sportman and member of a gay, sophisticated, cosmopolitan set. The course of the story follows his love affair with an American debutante and his gradual realization that the times are making him a stranger in his own land.

"E. B. Ashton's novel of Bavaria on the eve of Hitlerism marks a new development in the literature provoked by the Brown convulsion. We have had angry novels, united-front novels, nostalgic novels, symbolist novels, lyrical novels; but Mr. Ashton is the first to write of the German experience as an exercise in Hemingway. He has brought the tart, choked throbs of the lost generation to Munich, doused the sporting crowd in liquor, dulled the fine edge of the Hemingway style to the international patois of the international horse-show crowd, given them all a new world to bewail; and the result is good." Alfred Kazin
+ Books p6 O 22 '39 950w

Reviewed by O. E. Schoen-Rene
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 13 '40 130w

"A moving story, but too sketchy and high-pitched to be really effective."
+ — New Repub 101:27 N 8 '39 50w

"This novel is keenly intelligent in its interpretations, and remarkably dramatic in its narration. And yet it lacks an almost indefinable something. Perhaps it is insufficiently reflective; perhaps a theme such as this must ultimately be dealt with upon a metaphysical plane. Certainly the style is a little thin, relying upon the most commonplace diction." Harold Strauss

+ — N Y Times p27 O 22 '39 800w
New Yorker 15:81 O 28 '39 50w

"This is not quite a finished novel, nor a satisfying one, but it is unusually interesting for the number and kinds of things Mr. Ashton attempts to do." N. L. R.

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:20 O 21 '39 250w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 28 '40 250w
Time 34:86 D 11 '39 20w

ASHTON, WINIFRED. See Dane, C., pseud.

ASKING them questions; second series; ed. by Ronald Selby Wright. 242p $1.25 (3s 6d) Oxford

230 Christianity. Youth—Religious life
39-339

The first volume of Asking Them Questions (Book Review Digest, 1936) brought the compiler a flood of inquiries from all over the world. From these questions he has chosen forty and submitted them to experts. "This Second Series of short clear statements of the Christian answers to fundamental Christian questions is written by a galaxy of stars in the firmament of Christian faith and scholarship—Dean Inge, Lord Cecil, Kagawa, Ernest Findlay Scott, Dr. Raven and John Baillie are a few of them." (Churchman)

"No better short essays on the position of the church can be found. The book is invaluable in the sphere of theory, practical Christian living and religious practice and scholarship. It is condensed but clear and accurate. In this day of revived interest in Christian dogma this book is attractive. It presents these truths of the Christian religion winningly and these dogmas 'undogmatically.' " G. F. T.

+ Churchman 153:34 F 15 '39 110w

"Mr. Wright has assembled an—if possible—even more distinguished group of writers than in the original volume. In any event both volumes are quite indispensable." B. S. E.

+ Living Church 100:479 My 3 '39 290w

ASPDEN, DON. Mike of Company D; with drawings by Paul Brown. 261p $2 Scribner
(W) 39-5407

Story of a terrier of mixed lineage who followed a soldier to camp and became the mascot of Company D. Against all orders Mike went overseas with his company, and there repaid his debt to his god, Shorty, the soldier who had been his friend.

Booklist 35:292 My 1 '39

"It is a war story to be recommended for realistic and entertaining presentation of the features of war service men longest remember: friendships and loyalties, practical jokes, personal feuds, roughing it, emotions just before going into action. If its realism is on the rosy side, it should not be forgotten that a young man's memory is more likely to hold the happier moments of such experiences as these, and this is a book evidently based on actual memories of youth in the A.E.F." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Jl 30 '39 400w

"A story, unforced as to plot and interesting and sincere in its record of army life and its character delineations, with the dog always in his true perspective. The book is well printed and Paul Brown's drawings are in fine accord with the text."

+ Horn Bk M 15:170 My '39 100w

"The author's truthful and unidealized picture of fighting and life in the trenches is lighted by the high spots of friendship and loyalty as shown by this group of men and their dog. Mike and his friends are well characterized in Paul Brown's drawings." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p11 Jl 9 '39 310w

"Light summer reading for men, as well as for the younger fellows. Good story of its kind."

Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 15 '39 30w
Times [London] Lit Sup sup xiv N 18 '39 60w

ASSOCIATION FOR CHILDHOOD EDUCATION. Literature committee. Told under the magic umbrella; il. by Elizabeth Orton Jones [foreword by Margery Bianco]. 248p $2 Macmillan
(W) 39-8355

Collection of modern imaginative tales, all of which have been told to children. This is the fourth in the series selected by the literature committee of the Association for childhood education. Partial contents: Ask Mr. Bear, by Marjorie Flack; Gooseberry garden, by Lois Lenski; The musical box, by Clare Leighton; Living in W'ales, by Richard Hughes; The lost merbaby, by Margaret Baker; Rocking-horse land, by Laurence Housman; Elsie Piddock skips in her sleep, by Eleanor Farjeon.

Booklist 35:312 My 15 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p10 My 7 '39 180w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '39 130w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '39
Horn Bk M 15:166 My '39 70w

"This is an excellent home book, as well as a useful one to libraries. The volume is well gotten up, with small appropriate sketches and good print. Margery Bianco's introduction shows her understanding of the magic of make-believe, as well as its necessity to childhood." Irene Smith

+ Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 150w
New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 20w

"The Association for Childhood Education has performed a real service to teachers and others dealing with children from 6 to 10 by preparing their well selected anthologies. . . The test of a good story is reading aloud or telling, as Margery Bianco reminds us in her thoughtful and suggestive foreword, in which she discusses the make-believe of childhood, and these thirty-two stories have all stood the test not once but many times." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 30 '39 220w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 11 '39 260w
Wis Lib Bul 35:118 Je '39

ASSOCIATION FOR EDUCATION IN CITIZENSHIP. Education for citizenship in elementary schools; with forewords by Earl Baldwin of Bewdley and Kenneth W. M. Lindsay. 316p $1.75 (4s 6d) Oxford

372 Citizenship, Education for. Education of children
[39-31294]

"A contribution to the principles and methodology of citizenship education for the elementary school pupil of England. . . Some twenty-three leading elementary school teachers, heads and administrators, keenly aware of the work being undertaken in this field, have contributed to the special departments of the curriculum wherein the purpose is to demonstrate the more specific aims and processes peculiar to each subject of the elementary pupil between the ages of 11 and 15. . . The appendix includes complete and typical lesson plans for each subject of the curriculum." N Y Times

---

"The educational farsightedness of the contributors to this volume would go a long way toward the fostering of citizenship if the theories propounded herein were translated into actuality from the very beginning as advocated. . . The book as a whole is readily applicable to modern American education and, as such, teachers here can acquire a clear insight into many British problems which are quite similar to ours." E. R. Barra

ASSOCIATION FOR EDUCATION, Etc.—Continued
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 16 '39 650w

Reviewed by T. K. Derry
Spec 162:186 F 3 '39 350w

ATHERTON, LEWIS ELDON. The pioneer merchant in mid-America. 135p il pa $1.25 Univ. of Mo.

658.87 Retail trade. Merchants. Frontier and pioneer life—U.S. 39-28297

Short sketch of the part played by the pioneer merchants of the St Louis district in our pioneer history. Contents: The pioneer merchant; The western store; Wholesale markets; Business organization and methods. Bibliography.

"The book contains little that is new to those who have plowed the field even superficially. There is little analysis of individual firms, though the Aulls are studied partly for themselves. The opportunity is missed of comparing conditions in the mid-West during the period 1820-60 with those in New England in the late seventeenth century and with those in Europe in the eleventh and twelfth centuries. This little book comes near to laying the foundation for the business history of the area covered, though of course studies in the history of the fur trade of the area have already been made." N. S. B. Gras
+ — Am Econ R 29:829 D '39 210w

"All of this is welcome grist for the social historian who wants more body to his product. It seems odd to the reviewer, however, that there is not a word about the place of the merchant in the intricate pattern of the buying and selling of land." R. C. Downes
+ — Am Hist R 45:490 Ja '40 280w

ATKEY, BERTRAM. Arsenic and gold. 321p $2 Penn [7s 6d Jenkins]

39-25885

Mystery-adventure story featuring Smiler Bunn and Henry Black (formerly known as Lord Fortworth).

"A peculiar offering, confusing as to mood and probably intended for old friends of Bunn and Black." Will Cuppy
— Books p22 O 29 '39 100w

"For some readers it may require a little time to get acquainted, and understand clearly just what they have done, are doing, and propose to do. The author gives full play to his imagination in telling of the experiences of the character at the base of a towering volcano, in the tropical wilds, and in combat with natural and seemingly supernatural obstacles."
Springf'd Republican p7e D 24 '39 120w

ATKINS, ELIZABETH HOWARD (MRS MONT BERG). Little Wolf's brother; with a foreword by Laura Adams Armer; il. by Sidney Armer. 195p $1.75 Stokes

39-23644

Story of early California in the days of the Spaniards. A little golden-haired Spanish boy found by the Indians is the hero. Thru the agency of a kind mission priest, the boy is finally returned to his family. Glossary.

"Well told story of Spaniards and Indians, which is just the thing for Catholic libraries."
+ Cath World 150:378 D '39 100w

"This is a gentle, sincere story for readers from ten to twelve of a period not as yet overdone in children's literature. . . It provides an excellent picture of the period and has some pleasing characterization, but it is lacking in robustness, and even the mystery of little Yellow Crest's parentage is devoid of any great suspense. Recommended for large collections." J. L. Sauer
+ Library J 64:904 N 15 '39 110w

ATKINS, GAIUS GLENN. Christianity and the creative quests. 232p $2 Cokesbury press

201 Religious thought. Christianity—Philosophy 39-27017

Lectures delivered at Vanderbilt University in 1938. Each deals with some phase of the great spiritual quests thruout the centuries. The author is professor of homiletics and sociology at Auburn Theological Seminary.

Booklist 35:199 F 15 '39

Reviewed by A. C. Dieffenbach
Books p32 D 10 '39 50w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '39
Wis Lib Bul 35:45 Mr '39

ATKINSON, RAYMOND CUMINGS; DEMING, BEN, and ODENCRANTZ, LOUISE CHRISTINE. Public employment service in the United States. (Social science research council. Com. on public administration. Studies in administration) 482p $3.75 Public administration

331.115 Employment agencies—U.S. 38-29041

"Considers what is necessary for a strong and stable public employment office system, and the fundamentals of sound organization and administration. It deals in part with the technical aspects of employment office operation and is intended primarily for the administrators and staff members of such an organization. It may also interest students of labor problems and unemployment, however. Based on an extensive survey in 1936 and on observations of unemployment compensation activity in 1938. Nearly 200 offices were examined." Booklist

Reviewed by Nels Anderson
Am J Soc 45:484 N '39 600w

"Mr. Atkinson is a recognized student of government, and Mr. Deming and Miss Odencrantz hold responsible positions in the administration of public employment work in Indiana and New York, respectively. Together, they combine the vision of the detached scholar with the practical knowledge of the administrator. The result is a balance and a comprehensiveness unusual, if not unequalled, among the many recent studies in the field of public administration." P. T. Stafford
+ Am Pol Sci R 33:309 Ap '39 650w

"This is the most important and comprehensive study on public employment offices since the invaluable report by Shelby M. Harrison and Associates in 1924." J. J. Joseph
+ Ann Am Acad 202:207 Mr '39 550w
Booklist 35:168 Ja 15 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '39

Reviewed by R. P. Kellogg
Survey 75:159 My '39 350w

ATKINSON, ROBERT K. Boys' club; foreword by George E. Vincent. 186p $1.75 Assn. press

369.42 Boys—Societies and clubs

(W) 39-27577

This book contains an account of the work and the objectives of a specific type of adult-guided clubs, known as Boys' Clubs. "Two hundred and eleven Boys' Clubs in more than one hundred American cities are associated as Boys' Clubs of America, Inc., and are using the name Boys' Club to distinguish them as a definite type of social service institution. They enrol about two hundred thousand dues-paying boy members and have assets in excess of twenty million dollars, and endowment funds of four and one-half million. We purposely confine our discussion to them because they furnish data that are pertinent and valuable for an understanding of boys in their group relations." (Introd)

Booklist 35:374 Jl 15 '39

"A thoroughly expert study. . . The contents of the book consist of facts, suggestions and evaluations, all resting on the solid ground of experience, with no padding at all and no vague generalities."

+ Christian Century 56:743 Je 7 '39 60w

"Boys' Club workers will find this book a rich and reliable source of information regarding the best practices in dealing with membership, leadership, staff, discipline, group clubs, program procedure, and so forth. Moreover, in his writing, Mr. Atkinson has hit upon a happy style of dealing with theory and practice in terms of what is actually being done by Boys' Clubs, so that the book will be enjoyed alike by layman and professional worker." P. A. Samson

+ Survey 75:358 N '39 430w

ATLEE, HAROLD BENGE. Black feather. 345p $2.50 Scribner

39-27915

Tale of international intrigue. The central figure is an Englishman, Gerald Burke, commissioned by the British foreign office to go to the Near East to investigate the smuggling of arms. The black feather, an Eastern symbol of danger, appears on Gerald's door, but does not keep him from his mission.

Booklist 36:111 N 15 '39

"An outstanding item full of agreeable writing and thrills. Don't go elsewhere for a once-over of world affairs, if you like them in fictional form. Dr. Atlee was at Gallipoli in the old days and knows the Near East at first hand." Will Cuppy

+ Books p8 S 3 '39 280w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 S 23 '39 80w

"A series of thrilling adventures and hairbreadth escapes such as no one outside a book or a motion picture could possibly survive. . . The Ancient Order of Armchair Adventurers should lose no time in adding this book to its library." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p14 S 3 '39 210w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 10 '39 280w

Wis Lib Bul 35:186 N '39

ATTAWAY, WILLIAM. Let me breathe thunder. 267p $2 Doubleday

39-17641

Brief, hard-boiled tale about two young hoboes whose roaming about the country is somewhat impeded by the adoption of a charming little Mexican boy. The child weaves himself into their lives and affections and cramps their style considerably by bringing something gentle to their attention. The dénouement is tragic.

"There's not much to it beyond the flat naturalism in language and descriptions of physical details, a good deal of sentimentality about the Kid, and sentiments involving the rancher's daughter, the freedom of the road and palship. It's a melancholy little number for all its scatological, combative, alcoholic and bawdy passages. Attaway knows the places and people he's writing about, and he can write when he lets go, but he has not done so here." F. T. Marsh

— + Books p10 Je 25 '39 330w

"It is its youthful exuberance that gives the novel an unusual and stimulating lift. The inarticulate group of youngsters who were 'jolted out of their patterns by the big depression . . . and became wanderers who cannot get back again in the pattern' have an understanding spokesman in Mr. Attaway. Novels of the caliber of 'Let Me Breathe Thunder' deserve to rate high on any best seller list." Margaret Clark

+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 1 '39 700w

New Repub 100:112 Ag 30 '39 50w

"All the emotions of the book are direct and primitive, and the bareness of the speech cuts the action to lean and powerful lines. . . Less ably written the book would only be melodrama and sentimentality, but the characterizations are sure and the dialogue distilled to the point that a poet writing a cablegram could not better. . . It is no particular discredit to William Attaway to say that in his first work he has paralleled the style of his more eminent contemporaries. He has, in many moments of this book, equaled them, and, in the poetic overtones of the writing, occasionally surpassed them. He is an authentic young artist not to be watched tomorrow but now." Stanley Young

+ — N Y Times p7 Je 25 '39 600w

"All the words are short and meant to be powerful. Doesn't quite come off."

New Yorker 15:86 Je 24 '39 30w

"Too many of his scenes are plainly stagy, seen as tableaus in terms of groups and gestures, or heard as dramatic speeches, with an eye towards effective curtains and blackouts. . . One end-product of this staginess is the cutting of the story into scenes that ought naturally to have flowed together. Mr. Attaway will write a better novel when he puts the stage entirely behind him." N. L. R.

Sat R of Lit 20:20 Jl 1 '39 270w

ATTWATER, DONALD. St John Chrysostom; the voice of gold. (Science and culture ser) 202p il map $2 Bruce pub.

B or 92 Chrysostom, John, Saint, patriarch of Constantinople. 39-17002

"Saint John Chrysostom lived and flourished at the end of the fourth century during a time of troubles which could match in sharpness even those of today. He died an exile, a refugee from an autocratic government, forced from one outpost of civilization to a still more removed and dangerous one. . . Chrysostom was a preacher and bishop, a man of intense activity and feeling, and it is not simple to present him to a contemporary reader. . . Mr. Attwater, one of the real historians of the period and place, does extremely well in giving the whole picture in a short volume." Commonweal

"Mr. Attwater has given us a scholarly and most readable life of the Saint." D. M. O'Connell

+ America 61:502 S 2 '39 350w

"Donald Attwater writes with sympathy and comprehension. . . It is not 'pious' hagiography, but vigorous, realistic biography which shows that triumphs are triumphs because they overcome real difficulties and inclinations. Humanity, the human members and governors of the Church, and the human person of a great saint are not deprived of their humanness to display their supernatural. The book by no means reads like a scholarly treatise either, although it embodies the careful learning accumulated by the author over many years of study of the Church in the East. It is an excellent addition to Bruce's 'Science and Culture Series'." Philip Burnham

+ Commonweal 30:566 O 13 '39 700w

AUBERT, MARCEL. French cathedral windows of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries [Eng title: Stained glass of the XIIth and XIIIth centuries from French cathedrals]. (Iris bks) 14p $2.50 Oxford [11s; pa 10s 6d Batsford]

748 Glass painting and staining [39-2920]

Nineteen plates in twelve colors, taken directly from the original twelfth and thirteenth century windows, in Chartres, Bourges, Le Mans, Poitiers, Sens, and Amiens. Includes short introductory chapter on the history of the windows.

Booklist 36:152 D 15 '39

Reviewed by Royal Cortissoz

Books p3 D 17 '39 40w

AUBERT, MARCEL—Continued
Reviewed by F. W. Coburn
Boston Transcript p6 D 9 '39 230w

"This magnificent book presents nineteen plates in twelve colors of some of the most glorious windows of the French cathedrals of the Gothic period. These plates are the first really faithful reproductions of Gothic windows and they were made, with aid of perfected photographic processes, directly from the originals." W. P. Sears, Jr.

+ Churchman 154:19 Ja 1 '40 110w

"These new color albums of Swiss manufacture fairly deserve their ambitious title, the Iris Books, for at a moment when the market is flooded with crude or merely plausible color reproductions we find here, instead, color plates of most refined execution and as near facsimiles as our present resources permit." F. J. Mather, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:12 D 9 '39 130w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 26 '39 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p216 Mr 26 '38 30w

AUBREY, EDWIN EWART. Living the Christian faith. 118p $1.50 Macmillan

230 Christianity. Theology 39-10090

Four chapters, originally given as lectures at Eden Theological seminary, in which the author considers: The renaissance of theology; Creative leadership in Christian faith; Dilemmas of faith today; Christian faith in the American scene. The author is professor of Christian theology and ethics at the University of Chicago.

Reviewed by A. C. Dieffenbach
Books p32 D 10 '39 160w

Reviewed by N. F. S. Ferre
Boston Transcript p3 Jl 15 '39 320w

"The earnestness and sincerity of the book are apparent on every page. But it is so obviously a torso, and what the result would be if the missing parts were added one can only surmise. To much of it any man who understands the Christian faith could but say, 'Of course.' But is this faith really something which men have forged out of their own experience? Dr. Aubrey does not flatly say that it is, but everywhere he seems to imply that the faith is a product of 'social experience.' If this means that it is a discovery rather than a datum, there will be those who take serious issue with it. If 'the new American theology' is to forget that God has spoken and that we know what he said, it might still be entitled to be called 'American,' but will it then still be Christian?" Edwin Lewis

+ — Christian Century 56:740 Je 7 '39 500w

"This little book is no more than a Preface to an American theology, but it is a profound warning to those academic die-hards who still look to a Swiss and a few Scotchmen and Englishmen for the basis of a theology which should strike its roots deep in the American community." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 153:18 My 1 '39 270w

Reviewed by R. V. Wells
Crozer Q 17:84 Ja '40 150w

"The book is valuable in stating problems clearly but tantalizing in refusing to give the author's answers. As a diagnostician, Professor Aubrey is penetrating, but his therapeutic he withholds." H. S. Coffin

+ — J Religion 19:379 O '39 500w

"The professor of theology at Chicago divinity school has written a very good book. As one of America's Protestant theologians who has kept his head in recent movements of thought, he writes sensibly on liberalism versus continental theology; and he defends, in a genial but penetrating manner, the place of doctrine in religion while insisting on the importance of putting it in its proper place in Christian faith." W. N. Pittenger

+ Living Church 101:12 O 11 '39 240w

AUDEN, WYSTAN HUGH, and ISHERWOOD, CHRISTOPHER. Journey to a war. 301p il map $3 Random house [12s 6d Faber]

915.1 China—Description and travel. Chinese-Japanese war, 1931- (W) 39-20272

These two young English writers visited China last year (1938) with a general commission from their publishers to write a book. The result is a composite work—in prose, a travel diary with pen-sketches of celebrities they interviewed, obviously written by Isherwood, and in verse, a long poem and a sonnet sequence by Auden.

"The book is a readable and in spots exceedingly interesting one. The accounts of the people Auden and Isherwood met are sharp and precocious, and some of their stories are fascinating. Air raids they describe dramatically, but never melodramatically. Their analyses of China's problems are unpretentious and neat but not original or profound summaries of what they were told and observed in so short a visit. . . Observations and style mutually reveal their intelligence and likableness." Mildred Boie

+ Atlantic N '39 900w

Booklist 36:4 S '39

"No one who has read the Auden-Isherwood plays, or the 'Journey to Iceland' by Auden and MacNeice, will expect in 'Journey to a War' the conventional travel book. It isn't. But it is a serious book—for war, the war in China—is a serious business. There is little here of that brilliant clowning so characteristic of Auden and his group; there is little of the literary tour-de-force-ism that motivated the 'Letters from Iceland.' This is the work of mature, very much in earnest writers." Ruth Lechlitner

+ Books p3 Ag 6 '39 1250w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 5 '39 1050w

"Mr. Isherwood does the prose. He has the detached, bird-like eye, a way of writing which suggests that he heard and saw everything and was so unobtrusive that nobody knew he was there. The war often eluded the travelers; it had moments of naïve charm and incredible politeness, broken by the thud of the air raids. After the narrative comes Mr. Auden's sonnet sequence, a fine statement of faith." V. S. Pritchett

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 29 '39 250w

"The prose account is light, amusing, flippant, and almost, one may say, under-graduate. . . Mr. Isherwood cannot write badly. His light and simple style and observant imagination make him, so to speak, the ideal literary reporter. Some of his descriptions are not only brilliant reading but revealing comments. Yet one is left dissatisfied. The authors lacked, and knew they lacked, a serious purpose. . . They were, frankly, tourists—and tourists in war are always slightly indecent. It would, of course, be grossly unfair to suggest that Auden and Isherwood were callous; on the contrary, they were too sensitive for their surroundings. But for that one must read Auden's poems—the deeply thoughtful sonnet sequence and the freer, more passionate poetic commentary." J. M. D. P.

+ — Manchester Guardian p7 My 19 '39 360w

"Primarily it is a book about the conscience of a Western ruling class faced with the agony of an Oriental people to whom they feel responsibility. It is funny, brilliant, fierce, tragic, and technically superb. It is entirely in another class of usefulness from Agnes Smedley's, Edgar Snow's, or John Gunther's books. Reading these other remarkable records does not obviate the necessity of owning 'Journey to a War.' Less encyclopedic, less factually inclusive than any of the others, it is nevertheless perhaps the most intense record of China at war yet written in English." Lincoln Kirstein

+ Nation 149:151 Ag 5 '39 950w

"Good observation, good documentary material, good war reporting and good fun to read. Only the snobbish will find it trivial.

Auden and Isherwood know how to be serious without being earnest, a valuable if not indispensable qualification for writing travel books, perhaps any other kind of book." Nathaniel Peffer

+ New Repub 100:221 S 27 '39 650w

"The sonnets, entitled 'In Time of War,' seem to me a remarkable achievement, a statement of faith comparable in dignity (such statements are rare to-day) with In Memoriam. It is odd to reflect that the previous phase of Auden's talent was in the direction of caustic popular humour. Between them Auden and Isherwood have written a book which one reads greedily and will keep to reread." G. W. Stonier

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:428 Mr 18 '39 600w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p1 Ag 6 '39 1050w

"'Journey to a War' is, in a sense, trivial. (Its most intense and angry passages are to be found among Auden's poems.) But, as a whole, it is by no means unobservant or even unreflective. The point is, here is war as experienced by civilians, and China as observed by tourists; under such circumstances, war is bound to seem a little too decorous and China a little too picturesque. But if Mr. Isherwood is no Edgar Snow or Agnes Smedley, at least he had sense enough not to pretend to be." Louis Kronenberger

New Yorker 15:53 Ag 12 '39 650w

No Am 248:203 autumn '39 210w

Pratt p20 winter '40

"Given a roving assignment to China, the famous English team of Auden and Isherwood has written a brilliant commentary on the Sino-Japanese war. Isherwood's narrative of their travels . . . sparkles with a gaiety seemingly unforced, yet playing continually against a somber undertone. . . Auden's sonnet sequence, as well as his long poem entitled 'Commentary,' sets the same problem in larger perspective." T. A. Bisson

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 Ag 5 '39 320w

Reviewed by Evelyn Waugh

Spec 162:496 Mr 24 '39 850w

Time 34:59 Ag 7 '39 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p158 Mr 18 '39 650w

AUDEN, WYSTAN HUGH, and ISHERWOOD, CHRISTOPHER. On the frontier; a melodrama in three acts. 121p $1.75 Random house [6s Faber]

822 39-7727

A play in verse and prose which tells a story of strife and conflict between two imaginary European countries, and between two economic systems, capitalism and socialism.

Booklist 35:287 My 1 '39

"The 'happy ending' is not as convincing as the blood-and-thunder that fills the body of the piece. The problem of revolutionary action in a society where hypocrisy and the deadly will-to-power infect the very forces struggling toward a decent life is left untouched. Further, the prose which plainly sets forth contemporary reality is more effective than the verse which is the vehicle of the poet's and the revolutionary's dream. But that dream is the only one by which we can live." Babette Deutsch

+ — Books p19 Mr 26 '39 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '39

"This play shows no advance on their past experiments and its 'Left-wingishness' seems to offer no ideas which are not familiar to a schoolboy Socialist. But it is done with the customary drive and mastery of an effective phrase. It will be interesting to see how it comes to life upon the stage, where its core of strong feeling should be more noteworthy than it is in print." Ivor Brown

Manchester Guardian p7 D 2 '38 330w

Reviewed by P. M. Jack

N Y Times p16 Ap 16 '39 1050w

"A sad performance when one remembers the subtlety and sharpness formerly usual in these authors."

— New Yorker 15:88 Mr 18 '39 90w

"Auden and Isherwood have discarded theatrical effects which, though amusing, were clearly the marks of clever tyros, not of experienced dramatists, and which, as a result, marred the basic unity of conception. Through greater concentration on the immediate problem they not only have heightened the dramatic suspense, but have given greater depth to their treatment of the subject." J. G. S.

+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 Mr 18 '39 220w

"Compared with The Ascent of F. 6, [Book Review Digest. 1937] there is less sparkle, less poetry, less thought and even more embarrassment. . . It would be foolish, however, to regard On the Frontier as a step downhill. Its theme—the horrible complex of international rivalries, crooked big business, Fascism, self-deceiving heroics and hysterical publicity—is a theme which cries to be dramatised; the problem is merely how to do it. Mr. Auden and Mr. Isherwood have tried to do it by a series of melodramatic cartoons. Anyone can see the point of these; the sentiments are admirable; occasionally we are excited or amused or moved but the play as a whole lacks cohesion; it does not hit us like a wedge but like a number of escaped posters and photographs blown by the wind in one's face." Louis MacNeice

+ — Spec 161:858 N 18 '38 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p689 O 29 '38 440w

AUGUR, pseud. See Poliakoff, V.

AUGUR, HELEN. The book of fairs; with an introd. by Hendrik Willem Van Loon; il. by James MacDonald. 308p maps $2.50 Harcourt

606 Fairs (W) 39-14682

General history of fairs. After a short chapter on "fairs before history" the book begins with the Biblical city of Tyre in 593 B.C. and describes the development of trade and commodities, of customs and social life, in connection with the great fairs of history, down to the New York World's Fair and the Golden Gate International Exposition of 1939. For young readers. Index.

Booklist 36:73 O 15 '39

"This has seldom been done for young folks, never better done for them than here. . . Mr. MacDonald's drawings are sober decorations suited to the age of the reader; the book is not for young children, though this year almost any age will at least look it over." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 Jl 2 '39 600w

Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 10w

"Both young people and adults will enjoy this timely book which is not only a history of fairs but a story of the development of trade. It is pleasantly illustrated." R. W. Stewart

+ Library J 64:762 O 1 '39 140w

"Idea seems quite dead."

Sat R of Lit 21:28 N 18 '39 10w

"This is a year of fairs, and it was a pertinent idea that prompted Helen Augur to write 'The Book of Fairs' which, though a young people's book, affords a survey that is of interest to adults. With a certain measure of documentation and a less decorative treatment of historical facts, it would be a more valuable book. But it achieves its purpose of giving young people colorful glimpses of the past." E. N. Jenckes

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 S 2 '39 1400w

AUGUST, JOHN. Troubled star. 310p $2 Little 39-10522

The background of this murder-mystery is a Midwestern university.

"If the mysterious element of this one doesn't jolt you much, you may fall back on the college color." Will Cuppy
Books p12 F 5 '39 190w

"We read John August's campus 'thriller,' a long time ago in Colliers'. At the time we thought it was pretty bad. Rereading doesn't help much, although the plot is worked out in much greater detail than the exigencies of serialization allowed. . . The whole plot has about it a wild unreality." Marian Wiggin
— Boston Transcript p2 F 4 '39 80w
New Repub 98:112 Mr 1 '39 60w

"This is both a murder mystery and a love story and it rates high on both counts." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 F 12 '39 250w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 180w

AULAIRE, MRS INGRI (MORTENSON) D', and AULAIRE, EDGAR PARIN D'. Abraham Lincoln. [55p] $2 Doubleday

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham—Juvenile literature (W) 39-27298

Brief story of the life of Abraham Lincoln, written for grades three to four. Illustrated with colored lithographs.

Booklist 35:292 My 1 '39

"I think Lincoln himself might have enjoyed the humor of these designs; he had a liking for the grotesque, and the humor here is without malice and marked by evident affection. Time will tell whether our little children will enjoy them in this way; they will not, I think, find them ridiculous and un-American, as some of their elders will. The story devotes itself more to pioneer phases than to darker scenes of Lincoln's later life, and it closes before he has started for Ford's Theater." M. L. Becker
Books p10 Ap 30 '39 350w
Cath World 150:374 D '39 70w

"There is much to praise and admire about the book but we do not think it as satisfying as its companion volume, 'George Washington.' " F. B. Sloan
+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 28 '39 110w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '39
Horn Bk M 15:164 My '39 150w

"There is nothing tentative about one's response to this book. It is love at first sight. Perhaps one's adult feeling is in part the remembrance of Robert Sherwoods' play, mixed with a conviction that now if ever American history needs to be cherished by American children. But apart from every other consideration the book has a thrilling quality. As for children's appreciation, we believe that they too will be stirred by the sincerity of these pictures and text." Irene Smith
+ Library J 64:381 My 1 '39 280w

"This book will probably be considered primarily in connection with its illustrations, but its true distinction, it seems to me, lies in the high standard it sets in the field of biography for children under 10. It is a rounded and well-proportioned outline of Lincoln's life which the d'Aulaires have given us, in an easy-running text unclouded by sentimentality." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Je 18 '39 240w
New Yorker 15:104 My 13 '39 90w
Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 8 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 35:192 N '39

AUSTIN, ANNE. Murdered but not dead. 348p $2 Macmillan 39-16110

Detective story.

"In our opinion, it is well worth the attention of all and sundry. Miss Austin's material is frankly lurid, to the point of parody at times, yet it is handled so skilfully that you simply have to stick with it to find out who Yola is, who Madge Smith is, and so on; we'd call that proof of a mystery author's success." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Jl 9 '39 300w
Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 8 '39 120w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Jl 9 '39 160w

"An absorbing, gossipy story, so just ignore Miss Austin's fondness for clichés."
+ — New Yorker 15:88 Jl 8 '39 40w
Sat R of Lit 20:21 Jl 8 '39 30w

AVERY, MADALYN. Household physics; a textbook for college students in home economics. 439p il maps $3.50 Macmillan

640 Physics. Electric apparatus and appliances, Domestic 38-35751

"This book is intended for college students in Home Economics. It is a text in applied physics in which the applications have been chosen from the daily household life and from the various commercial fields which Home Economics students enter. . . The aim has been to present the fundamentals of Physics in a manner which will show their close relationship to the problems of the home, and also to treat the subject in such a way as to form a background for those students who intend to enter the commercial field. . . The mathematics has been kept as simple as possible." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 35:169 Ja 15 '39
J Home Econ 31:185 Mr '39 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:59 O '38

AXELSON, MRS MARY MCDOUGAL. A child is born. 298p $2.50 Caxton printers 39-21675

The scene of the story is the obstetrical ward of a large hospital. The reactions of several women are traced before and after their trips to the delivery room. A play and a motion picture of the same name are based on the book.

Books p18 S 17 '39 90w

"Warner Brothers thought well of the book, for they have already made it into a movie. Its obvious dedication to the travail of motherhood seems to have a particularly morbid inspiration. Its moral lesson is slightly mixed, for in a couple of cases the wages of sin is death and in a couple more an exuberant delight in motherhood." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p16 S 3 '39 270w

AYDELOTTE, DORA. Full harvest. 333p $2 Appleton-Century
(W) 39-27174

The Middle West at the turn of the century is the scene. Lyddy Miller, the energetic wife of a good but plodding farmer, insisted that a move to town would be a good thing for the children. The move was accomplished and the vicissitudes of the next few years ending in bankruptcy and a return to the home farm, make up the story.

Booklist 35:252 Ap 1 '39

" 'Full Harvest' could quite justly be accused of one-sided emphasis but this has not led to sentimentality. It is written with more perspective, and has greater scope and variety than the earlier novel about the Millers, 'Long Furrows.' The adult characters are drawn with vigor and clarity of perception. They emerge with an individuality, integrity and dignity that make them their own best advocates of their way of living." Kathleen Satterthwaite

+ Books p12 Mr 19 '39 550w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting
Forum 102:v Jl '39 100w

"Even life on a farm has changed in nearly forty years, and there is a pleasantly nostalgic quality to the book which makes us glad that in the end the Millers give up their town style and go back to the country." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p25 Mr 26 '39 240w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '39 420w

Wis Lib Bul 35:103 My '39

AYRES, LEONARD PORTER. Turning points in business cycles. 214p il $2.75 Macmillan

380.124 Business cycles. Economics. U.S.—Economic conditions 40-148

"A technical study in economics designed to prove that alternations between prosperity and depression are due to (1) changes in the short-term rate, and (2) consequent increase or decrease in investment in the production of durable goods. In the coming of a depression, the order of events is: (1) higher interest rates; (2) falling bond prices; (3) falling stock prices; (4) decreased volume of new issues; (5) diminished investment in durable goods; (6) less spending for consumers' goods. Recovery is accomplished by a reverse movement in each of these items in the same order. The moral is that recovery cannot be brought about by pump-priming in the form of stimulated spending for consumers' goods. The data and graphs cover the period since the Civil War." Christian Century

Booklist 36:207 F 1 '40

Reviewed by Russ Nixon
Boston Transcript p3 Ja 20 '40 150w

"Only trained economists can meet the author on his own ground, and not all of them will agree with him."
Christian Century 56:1580 D 20 '39 140w

Reviewed by F. D. Newbury
Management R 29:33 Ja '40 850w

Reviewed by Henry Hazlitt
N Y Times p19 Ja 21 '40 1050w

"Col Ayres's book is a lucid statement of a hypothesis based on study of American business behavior in the past."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 14 '40 600w

B

B. B., pseud. See Watkins-Pitchford, D. J.

BABBITT, HAROLD EATON, and DOLAND, JAMES JOSEPH. Water supply engineering. 3d ed 690p il maps $6 (36s) McGraw

628.1 Water supply engineering (W) 39-2873

Third edition of a textbook first published ten years ago (Book Review Digest, 1930). "Many changes have occurred in design, purification, and operation methods for waterworks since the appearance of the second edition of this book in 1931... In this edition an attempt has been made to present a résumé of up-to-date practice together with references to research findings that give promise of practical applicability." (Pref. to the 3d ed) Index.

Reviewed by A. P. Miller
Am J Pub Health 29:1163 O '39 150w

Booklist 35:234 Mr 15 '39

"Specialists in the many divisions of the broad field covered by the book could readily point out scanty treatment and statements misleading by their brevity. For them, a score of special treatises are available; but even they will find this concise review of their fields highly useful, especially in view of the fact that by no means all of the special treatises are up-to-date." M. N. Baker
+ — Eng N 122:72 Ap 27 '39 150w

BABER, RAY ERWIN. Marriage and the family. 656p $4 (24s) McGraw

173 Marriage. Family 39-17788

Study of the problems of mating, marriage, and parenthood, by a professor of sociology at New York University. Selected readings at ends of chapters. Index.

Booklist 36:193 Ja 15 '40

"A well-organized, clearly written, frank discussion."
+ J Home Econ 31:644 N '39 70w

"There is no better evidence of the growth and maturing of college instruction in the family than the several excellent texts that have recently appeared. To these must now be added Professor Baber's volume, the latest and one of the best." E. R. Groves
+ Survey 75:356 N '39 470w

BABEY, ANNA MARY. Americans in Russia, 1776-1917; a study of the American travelers in Russia from the American revolution to the Russian revolution. 176p $3.50 The author, 156 Dupont st, Brooklyn, N.Y; for sale by Comet press, 1 Junius st, Brooklyn, N.Y.

914.7 Russia—Description and travel. Americans in Russia 38-24166

"As the author points out, this is the first attempt at a systematic investigation of American travel literature on Russia up to the Revolution of 1917. The thirty-eight page bibliography of primary sources covers books and magazine articles (no newspapers have been used), in most cases with brief information about the writer's background, purpose in going to Russia, and dates of visit. In the study that precedes the bibliography the author has tried to summarize the findings of American travelers (including resident diplomats and businessmen) with regard to such topics as the political situation, religion, peasantry, women, education, and the country's future. The material is discussed with reference to three separate periods, 1776-1861, 1861-1904, and 1904-1917." Am Hist R

"Students of both Russian and American history should feel indebted to Miss Babey for her valuable pioneer work." Michael Karpovich
+ — Am Hist R 45:190 O '39 210w

"A very interesting commentary which makes one suggest that books like these should be used more frequently in secondary schools to give students insight into both American and foreign history. Such experimental projects might well begin with this book which offers stimulating contrasts."
+ Social Studies 30:334 N '39 40w

BABSON, NAOMI LANE. All the tomorrows. 390p $2.50 Reynal

(W) 39-27624

A story contrasting the old China with the new. Beginning in the 1860s, it is a long chronicle of the Lo family, in each generation of which there is one rebellious woman who refuses to conform to the traditions of upper class life. The first rebel is pretty Fragrant Incense, who stood at the door of her father's house to buy from a passing pedlar; the last is Jade, daughter of Fragrant Incense's grandson, who left her wealthy father's home to join the Communists.

Booklist 36:8 S '39

BABSON, N. L.—Continued

" 'All the Tomorrows' has many vivid scenes and characters that illumine the news from China, sometimes more realistically than is comfortable for one's peace of mind. More especially, however, it is likely to stay in one's remembrance as the story of persons one has known well, rather than of a people half a world away. Miss Babson makes very real the Chinese of both the older traditions and the newer, and the Westerners with whom their lives were tangled, sometimes in a way that leaves little room for Western complacency." Mary Ross

+ Books p4 Ag 20 '39 900w
Cath World 150:124 O '39 180w
Christian Century 56:1306 O 25 '39 130w

"The book, if more than a trifle long-winded, is worth reading for the profit it brings in increased appreciation of the great struggle in the East. And yet it lacks that distinction which attaches itself to everything Pearl Buck writes; and therefore, one fears, it will be too readily forgotten." M. W.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 S 30 '39 320w

"A well written, consistently characterized, action-filled novel that repays reading." E. C. Thompson

+ Churchman 153:39 D 1 '39 110w
Living Age 357:497 Ja '40 80w

"Miss Babson does not inspire quite the same confidence in a complete, first-hand knowledge of Chinese life as Mrs Buck, but only an expert could question her detail." J. D. Beresford

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 24 '39 300w

Reviewed by R. M. Lovett
New Repub 100:195 S 20 '39 280w

"Miss Babson never convinces one that there is any real depth to her story, engrossing as it unquestionably is. It remains a little shallow, a little romanticized. Like Felix Lo's family, it seems to lack roots in ordinary Chinese earth." E. H. Walton

N Y Times p7 Ag 20 '39 900w

"Miss Babson evidently knows her China, but in trying to get everything in, from the old priests in their noisy, crowded temples to the young revolutionaries, she perhaps inevitably has spread her material a little thin. Interesting, but it doesn't strike as deep as it might have."

+ — New Yorker 15:65 Ag 19 '39 80w

"The story is very pertinent to what is happening in China today. Mrs. Babson's women give us a key to the understanding of such a figure as Madame Chiang Kai-Shek." A. T. Hobart

Sat R of Lit 20:5 Ag 19 '39 700w

"An enthraling and notable work of fiction." R. J. Conklin

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 3 '39 1100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p715 D 9 '39 450w
Wis Lib Bul 35:166 O '39

BACH, MARCUS L. Vesper dramas; with worship programs by William H. Leach. 197p $2.50 Willett

812 Religious dramas 39-32014

Ten short plays, on religious and ethical themes, intended for use in religious services. Each drama is accompanied by suggestions for a program of worship to go with the presentation. Contents: Craftsman of Galilee; Above these voices; Resurrection; The window; The coming of light; The widow's mite; Thin ice; The curse o' God; Mother Owen keeps Christmas; Days to come.

"Plays and programs alike are conceived in a reverent spirit, and no church need fear a compromise of its dignity or a violation of the proprieties of the place by using them. Mr. Bach's plays seem to follow, consciously or unconsciously, the tradition of Charles Rann Kennedy."

+ Christian Century 55:1577 D 21 '38 120w

Reviewed by W. R. McNutt
Crozer Q 16:157 Ap '39 100w
Wis Lib Bul 35:110 Je '39

BACKMAN, JULES. Government price-fixing. 304p $3 Pitman

338.5 Prices. Industry and state 38-31206

A study of the theory and history of price fixing both abroad and in the United States during these days of economic unrest. While not an advocate of laissez faire, the author is highly critical both of policies and achievements of governments attempting this type of intervention in business. The author is instructor in economics at New York university. Selected bibliography. Index.

"The book is timely and may be read with profit by those legislators and administrators who think that economic equilibrium may be established and industrial ills may be cured by tinkering with prices." Simon Litman

+ Am Econ R 29:177 Mr '39 450w

Reviewed by G. H. E. Smith
Am Pol Sci R 33:331 Ap '39 350w

"This is an excellent book, well and clearly written, with concise summaries at the end of every chapter. It can be easily understood by anyone and should be studied by those who believe in government price fixing as a useful or indispensable device of economic policy." Paul Haensel

+ Ann Am Acad 203:252 My '39 270w
Foreign Affairs 18:163 O '39
Management R 28:33 Ja '39 200w

"A study such as Dr. Backman has made is very valuable. If it cannot keep us from attempting the impossible, it can at least help us to understand what we are doing and to make our mistakes as economically as possible." E. V. Bell

+ N Y Times p27 D 11 '38 300w

BACON, FRANCIS LEONARD, and KRUG, EDWARD A. Our life today; an introduction to current problems; il. by C. E. B. Bernard. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 657p maps $1.76 Little

300 Citizenship. U.S.—Politics and government. Social problems 39-3265

Textbook for the "student in the early years of the high school." Includes statements of the pros and cons for the New Deal, government regulation, court reform, cooperatives, etc. The book consists of seven units; chapter bibliographies; index.

"This volume . . . should prove interesting and stimulating to the pupils." J. C. Aldrich

+ School R 47:715 N '39 550w

"Subjects are presented in a short, simple, concise manner. Illustrations and examples depicting the most common experiences are well chosen for that reason. The diagrams, charts, graphs, and caricatures are well distributed throughout the book. Difficult terms are explained quite simply at the close of each chapter. This device saves the reader much time while supplying the necessary information. Worthwhile suggestions for problems, topics, and reports are given. An adequate bibliography is included." C. T. Malan

+ Social Educ 3:588 N '39 450w
Social Studies 30:240 My '39

BACON, MRS JOSEPHINE DODGE (DASKAM). The root and the flower. 375p $2.50 Appleton-Century

39-20170

In this novel three generations of women are selected to demonstrate the ideas of their several generations. They are Felicia, who in the years following the Civil war, struggled for the right to get an education; Phyllis, her daughter, whose battle was for the right to use her leisure time as she chose; and Fidelity, Phyllis' daughter, a modern of the moderns.

Booklist 36:45 O 1 '39

"The story lacks fulfillment in the sense that Mrs. Bacon's title suggests. Here are the symptoms of emancipation—the absence of petticoats and the presence of slang—but hardly a chart of its significance." Lisle Bell

Books p8 S 10 '39 480w

Boston Transcript p1 O 21 '39 80w

"The theme of the book . . . is an interesting and important one, and the three stories have been well woven together. Unfortunately, no one of the novel's three heroines is very real or very interesting. . . There are fine possibilities in the book and some neatly done sketches of wartime activities, but the intention is far beyond the accomplishment." L. M. Field

+ — N Y Times p6 S 3 '39 550w

"Mrs. Bacon's picture of the generations is more interesting than any of the figures she has chosen as symbols." K. S.

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:20 S 16 '39 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p627 O 28 '39 250w

Wis Lib Bul 35:215 D '39

BACON, LEONARD. Semi-centennial. 273p $3.50 Harper

B or 92 (W) 39-27299

Witty reminiscences of the first fifty years of his life by an American author, who has recently celebrated his own semi-centennial. "He introduces briskly his family and his ancestors and draws sketch upon sketch of his boyhood, youth, and middle-age. He takes you with him through his wretched gangling school days at St. George's and through his eager, callow years at Yale. . . The shuttle of his life moves with bewildering speed out to California, across the water, to Italy and France, back to the beech woods and the balmy air of Rhode Island." (Sat R of Lit)

Booklist 35:288 My 1 '39

"Half the charm of the book lies in its quotability and its anecdotableness. But there is a central design and a figure in the carpet. It is the story, first and last, of a man who has passionately desired, more than anything else, to write poetry, and has known the labor, the discipline and the exultation of that art. I don't agree with half Mr. Bacon's opinions about modern poetry. I don't even agree with his own judgments about his own work, for there are certain poems of his that I would rank higher than he does. But any one who has practiced or wishes to practice the writing of poetry will find something to his profit here. The sight of the god is unusual but its effects unmistakable. And it is a poet who has written this book." S. V. Benét

+ Books p14 My 14 '39 550w

Reviewed by David McCord

Boston Transcript p1 Je 10 '39 450w

"By all proper standards it is a good book; yet so inferior to Bacon the poet and Bacon the man that I think it should have been put on ice for another quarter-century." S. E. Morison

New Eng Q 12:595 S '39 600w

Reviewed by P. M. Jack

N Y Times p4 Ap 2 '39 1900w

New Yorker 15:87 Mr 25 '39 60w

Pratt p25 autumn '39

"Leonard Bacon has achieved a frank and an individualistic picture of changing America and Europe, seen through the eyes of a cultivated, enthusiastic scholar born to the best New England academic tradition. . . As might be expected from a narrator of Mr. Bacon's positive personality, some readers will find annoying elements in his style. . . Anyone can tell that 'Semi-Centennial' is a book which he enjoyed writing. This reader, for one, though he started it doubting the usefulness of such an effort, enjoyed the experiences and opinions of a thoughtful and humorous American." J. P. Marquand

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:7 Mr 25 '39 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 35:144 Jl '39

BACON, PEGGY. The mystery at East Hatchett; or, Eric the pink; il. by [the author]. 170p $2 Viking

(W) 39-25328

Mystery story for young readers.

"If all mystery stories for children were as lifelike and lively as this, reviewers could take them more seriously. Its plot stands up like a detective story's; it does not even let you down at the end, as that does. It will shock people who think children are angels, or believe that in books for them bad actions should meet with appropriate punishment. . . A story as brisk as 'Emil and the Detectives,' in case you remember that juvenile classic." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 O 15 '39 370w

"The humor in this tale is rather obvious, and the plot doesn't pull its punches. Child readers will probably love it all." Vivian Lundberg

+ Boston Transcript p2 D 2 '39 120w

"The mystery which casts its shadow over them is a wholly plausible one and it is Eric who has the wit to unravel it in the end. The book is warmly recommended for its fun and clever character work as well as for its good plot." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 15:393 N '39 100w

"The mystery is one that could arise in any well-regulated family, and Eric, earnest detective, defends the honesty of his friend Dilemma. This deserves to be appreciated for its gay spontaneous writing and brief but telling sketches." Irene Smith

+ Library J 64:842 N 1 '39 80w

"Miss Bacon's writing is not quite so inspired as her pictures, but that would perhaps, be asking for perfection. The children, even the obnoxious but credible Bantam, and bewildered Dilemma, seem to have been characterized largely from adult observation rather than from an inner comprehension of childhood, and the Negro speech smacks strongly of a minstrel show. This is, however, an intelligent, humorous mystery, worked out with an honest measure of suspense in terms which 8-to-12 year olds will find entirely plausible." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p12 O 29 '39 320w

"Don't be misled into thinking this is one of those disagreeable concoctions called 'juvenile mysteries.' There is a mildly mystifying series of small happenings, but the real point is that for once the story is about some very human American kids at the seashore in the year 1939."

+ New Yorker 15:90 N 25 '39 50w

Sat R of Lit 21:22 N 18 '39 30w

BAER, MARIAN E. Pandora's box: the story of conservation; il. in black and white by Allen Pope, jr. 292p $2 Farrar

333 Conservation of resources—Juvenile literature (W) 39-27960

"The author tells what is happening in our country to wildlife and forests and the soil; she writes of pests in the plant and animal world and what is being done to control them; of water pollution, of forest fires and precautions taken by the government against them." N Y Times

Booklist 36:136 D 1 '39

"You may expect any intelligent boy or girl on the edge of the teens or well into them to go straight through this book, factual as it is. It has a direct thrust of ideas, a rushing style of presentation, and a knack of bringing home important facts and convincing a beginner that they are of poignant interest in his own daily life." M. L. Becker

BAER, M. E.—Continued
+ Books p8 O 29 '39 300w

"You may not agree with her implicit faith in the various lettered functions of our Government, working on the various phases of how to repair the devastation we have worked on our natural resources, but I think you will agree that this book would make good prescribed reading for our high schools and colleges, rather than some of the novels now required, and that it would be quite as entertaining." E. C. Hultman
+ Boston Transcript p7 D 16 '39 170w

"This is an excellent, readable book on a vital subject. . . Miss Baer shows a knowledge of young people in her selection of material. Her style is lively and informal, she respects the intelligence of boys and girls, and assumes on their part a genuine interest in matters which concern them as Americans." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 N 5 '39 200w
Wis Lib Bul 35:217 D '39

BAGBY, GEORGE A., pseud. Bird walking weather. 273p $2 Doubleday
Detective story.

" 'Bird Walking Weather' is the most amusing crime tale in a long time—none of your effete and subtle epigram, perhaps, but lots of hearty fun in incident and dialogue, all genuine and lots of it inspired." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Jl 30 '39 250w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 5 '39 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 Ag 6 '39 120w

"Quick, easy to follow, and Mr. Bagby's best."
+ New Yorker 15:68 Ag 5 '39 40w

"Alcoholic frenzies of rich, callous, and completely wacky family supply considerable comedy. Method of main murder is novel. Uproarious."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:18 Jl 29 '39 40w

BAGBY, GEORGE A., pseud. The corpse with the purple thighs. 278p $2 Doubleday 39-23524
Detective story.

"This genial offering is by the same George Bagby who hit a new high in grotesque mystery, or detective slapstick, or whatever it was, last season with 'Bird Walking Weather.' . . Mr. Bagby hasn't hit upon a similarly cock-eyed group of characters this time and his story suffers a trifle. . . Still and all, this story could have happened, and that should please a large group of bookworms." Will Cuppy
Books p26 D 10 '39 250w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p5 D 23 '39 20w

"The cockeyed background of the alumni reunion lends both puzzlement and merriment to the proceedings, but Schmidt remains unaffected by the carnival spirit and does his work like the real detective that he is." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p7 D 10 '39 160w

"Exuberant graduate antics make lively background for tale that moves rapidly through one fracas after another. Colorful."
Sat R of Lit 21:18 D 9 '39 40w

BAGNOLD, ENID (LADY JONES). The door of life [Eng title: The squire]. 282p $2.50 Morrow [7s 6d Heinemann]
38-29634
For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"The theme which Miss Bagnold has elected to elaborate, that of motherhood in excelsis, has in itself its obvious pitfalls—or rather should I say morasses?—and I feel that, for all her delicate art, although Miss Bagnold has never become wholly bogged in sentimentality, the ground at times quivers disconcertingly beneath her fastidious footing. Yet Miss Bagnold writes so well, and at her best so happily, that her work cannot but give considerable pleasure." Wilfrid Gibson
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 O 21 '38 340w

"Throughout the whole book Miss Bagnold employs words with fastidious care, and she has achieved something unique, a picture of domestic life which, much as it would have disgusted the elder Shandy, is more deeply touched with poetry than anything since Patmore." Desmond Shawe-Taylor
+ New Statesman & Nation 16:660 O 22 '38 600w

"In its delicacy and precision it is poetry. . . This is the kind of writing that really is writing, that lifts fiction on to a plane where it need not fear comparison with any other art. All the portraits in the book are good; those of the children delightful." Forrest Reid
+ Spec 161:742 O 28 '38 360w

" 'The Squire' is not faultless. There is repetition, almost tedious, after the child has been born. But there is so much in it to give delight, to provoke thought and to satisfy vague questionings, that even to draw attention to imperfections in it suggests an ingratitude that we are far from feeling."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p659 O 15 '38 380w

BAHR, JEROME. The platinum tower. 254p $2 Scribner
39-5476
Character sketches of four members of an American middle-class family. They are Tom Baldwin, too lazy to work, who gains a certain satisfaction out of stirring up the family to argument; Esther, his wife, whose platinum tower of blond hair is her sole joy; their niece Susan, and her husband Anton.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p12 Mr 5 '39 480w

"Good spiteful fun."
New Repub 98:148 Mr 8 '39 50w

"Nothing happens. None of their get-rich-quick schemes come to anything. Perhaps it is intended to be funny, and it may amuse the people who like the many bad-mannered, quarrelsome skits on the radio." Charlotte Dean
— N Y Times p20 F 19 '39 230w

"A small thing well done, even if a trifle on the horrible side. I can't understand how the jacket description, probably by the Cheeryble Brothers, can speak of this story as deriving 'a succession of smiles, chuckles, and hearty laughs from a portrait of an American family carrying on in hilarious fashion.' If the petty bickerings, the non-stop whinings, the emetic sentimentalities of the Baldwins constitute 'carrying on in hilarious fashion,' I say give me good old melancholia and no chaser." Clifton Fadiman
— New Yorker 15:65 F 25 '39 310w

" 'The Platinum Tower' as a whole is an unsatisfactory job by a strong, vigorous writer." K. S.
— Sat R of Lit 19:21 F 25 '39 280w
Time 33:70 F 20 '39 270w

BAILEY, CAROLYN SHERWIN. From moccasins to wings; stories of our travel ways; il. by Margaret Ayer. 164p $2 Bradley
Transportation—Juvenile literature 38-29082

"The romance of American transportation is told in a series of short stories for juvenile readers. . . This collection begins with the footpaths of Indian travel, which were found of immense value to our pioneers. Water travel comes next." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 35:192 F 1 '39
Springf'd Republican p7e D 11 '38 220w

BAILEY, HENRY CHRISTOPHER. The great game. 309p $2 Doubleday 39-4661

Detective story.

"Here we have H. C. Bailey's finest Reggie Fortune mystery in a long time—a regular knockout in advanced detection." Will Cuppy
+ Books p12 F 5 '39 400w

"Probably Reggie Fortune fans will find [the book] eminently satisfying. We found it deathly slow." Marian Wiggin
— Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '39 30w

"Were it not for the sheer joy of associating, vicariously, with Reggie Fortune and the other characters so ably depicted by Mr. Bailey we should have to dismiss this book as a rather unsatisfactory effort." Isaac Anderson
— + N Y Times p20 F 5 '39 220w

"Enthralling."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:18 F 4 '39 40w

"The plot is extremely complex, but scrupulously fair; there is a generous allowance of corpses and a gripping climax; and our old friend Clunk makes some outrageous charges against the police." Nicholas Blake
+ — Spec 162:558 Mr 31 '39 190w

Times [London] Lit Sup p108 F 18 '39 160w

BAILEY, HENRY CHRISTOPHER. Mr Clunk's text. 303p $2 Doubleday

Detective story.

Booklist 36:178 Ja 1 '40

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p32 D 3 '39 320w

"Good characters, excellent description and some delightful English humor." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p5 D 23 '39 50w

"It would be difficult to become really fond of Joshua Clunk. He has all the appearance of an unctuous old hypocrite, but he is a shrewd lawyer, and he is usually on the right side, even though his methods are not above reproach." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p22 D 3 '39 200w

"Nicely built-up story marred by a weak solution."
+ — New Yorker 15:123 D 16 '39 40w

"Top grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:43 D 2 '39 30w

BAILEY, HILEA, pseud. What night will bring. 277p $2 Doubleday

Detective story.

Booklist 36:215 F 1 '40

" 'What Night Will Bring' is one of the agreeable events of the season, ingeniously plotted, executed with a lot of aplomb and highly entertaining most of the time." Will Cuppy
+ Books p26 D 10 '39 300w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p7 D 16 '39 40w

"The advertising business, as described in this book, is an excellent background for a mystery story. In such an environment and with such a cast of characters, nothing is impossible or incredible. Whether the author's description bears any resemblance to the real thing is a question upon which we do not feel qualified to pass judgment. The important point is that Hilea Bailey has written a story that is both amusing and exciting. This is a first novel and a promise, we hope, of many more to come." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p7 D 10 '39 200w

"First full-length book by this author, and very nice, too."
+ New Yorker 15:124 D 16 '39 60w

"Development of air-tight plot suffers slightly from abundance of technical stuff about ads and admen—which some may enjoy. O.K."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 D 9 '39 40w

Time 35:60 Ja 8 '40 50w

BAILEY, KENNETH P. The Ohio company of Virginia and the westward movement. ltd ed 374p maps $6 Clark, A.H.

977 Ohio company (of Virginia). Ohio valley—History 39-11764

"Mr. Bailey undertakes to tell the story of the Ohio Company from its inception in 1747 to its last futile attempts to secure recognition for its claims from the new United States. He has analyzed the making of the grant, has worked out biographies of the company's members, has told the story of its first explorations and trade, of its rivalries with Pennsylvania traders, and of Dinwiddie's eager if fruitless efforts as its partisan to enlist a Virginia assembly dominated by tidewater burgesses in the Dominion's boundary interests and Indian trade." Am Hist R

"In general his materials are adequate, and his story if not always new is always well told. His bibliography is good, except that his accounts of manuscript collections and repositories are sometimes a little misleading. . . Fully recognizing every scholar's right to his own generalizations, the present reviewer has to differ with some of Mr. Bailey's. . . The publishers could have done a better job of checking and proofreading for Mr. Bailey." T. C. Pease
+ — Am Hist R 45:410 Ja '40 420w

"Dr. Bailey has, it appears, consulted all the known sources. His work is meticulous and authoritative, well buttressed with citations and other editorial apparatus. A valuable contribution to colonial history." K. C. K.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 30 '39 500w

BAILEY, LIBERTY HYDE. The garden of larkspurs. 116p il $3 Macmillan

635.933111 Larkspur 39-27175

Volume on larkspurs for American gardens. More than a hundred varieties of larkspurs and delphiniums are discussed, the problems of their culture, their diseases and pests, and breeding. Contains an annotated list of the species cultivated in North America. Index.

Booklist 35:246 Ap 1 '39

"Once again Dr. L. H. Bailey comes through with a first-class book. . . As a quick but adequate resume of larkspur character, breeding and culture the book is a worthy member of the series to which it belongs." R. S. Lemmon
+ Books p13 My 14 '39 100w

"While there is an abundance of material published on the species, there is no single book which is so authoritative and so complete as this one. Of the book's authority, there can be no doubt, for Dr. Bailey, who is the author of the 'Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture,' stands near the top of his profession." W. H. Clark
+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 18 '39 250w

"This is a highly specialized book that will be prized by the garden-lover who is interested in botany as well as in flowers. Professor Bailey is deeply appreciative of both."
Christian Century 56:323 Mr 8 '39 60w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '39

BAILEY, MARGARET EMERSON. Rain before seven. 346p $2.50 Dodd 39-25963

Cynthia Arnold was a New Englander born and bred, a New Yorker only by adoption,

BAILEY, M. E.—Continued
but when she tried to acquire a home in a Connecticut village her path was cluttered with difficulties. The villagers objected to an outsider in their sacred precincts. However, Cynthia was canny. She too loved New England, and eventually she found herself accepted and respected.

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

" 'Rain Before Seven' is warm, blithe, refreshing and slightly acidulous. . . The story is crisp and tangy as the meat of what we used to call an eating apple, right out of the orchard." Lisle Bell
+ Books p10 O 22 '39 350w

"The best parts of the book are the numerous sketches of village characters. Miss Bailey's method of telling her story is to reveal the mental processes of one character after another, an indirect method that dulls the sharp edge of the drama but still gives the reader a rewarding acquaintance with some interesting persons."
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 D 2 '39 350w

"Miss Bailey knows her New England and its variety of character. She knows its loyalties and its prejudices, its traditions and its shrewdness. Within the pages of 'Rain Before Seven' the pattern of a New England community comes to life. . . The story is told with warmth and understanding, with a feeling for the hills and meadows of the land as well as for those who have lived close to it for generations." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p6 O 29 '39 650w

"Margaret Bailey's slow-paced novel is sympathetically steeped in the feeling of the 'unimproved' New Englanders, as tart as late apples and as sound." O. J.
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 N 25 '39 400w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 12 '39 360w

BAILEY, TRUMAN. Polynesian venture. 233p il $3 Doubleday

915 East (Far East)—Description and travel. Samoan islands (W) 39-27479

The author, an artist, designer and photographer, went to the Far East as a scout for a group of large department stores, on the lookout for new designs for pottery, silver, textiles, etc. The first part of his book covers an early trip to Japan, Korea, and China in search of actual merchandise; the last part, his sojourn in the South Sea islands where he was particularly interested in the designs. The book contains a large number of photographs taken by the author.

Booklist 35:346 Je 15 '39

"This is travel-and-adventure with a difference, and it is delightfully readable."
+ Books p14 Jl 2 '39 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '39

"As the story behind the creation of successful new style motifs from the South Sea Islands, this is a strikingly unusual book; but it is very interesting in every aspect of its many-sided personal record. And its large collection of photographs is fascinating: dancers in Cambodia and carvings of Angkor; Polynesian children at play inside the coral reefs; a fisherman with the legerdemain of his throw net: the flowers which offer their own design; all the detail of this photographer's sightseeing, in short, is full of charm and interest."
+ N Y Times p6 My 28 '39 650w

"The reader feels that Mr. Bailey must have had a wonderful time and been duly impressed, but will search his pages in vain for anything but the most commonplace and uninspiring rhetoric. Apparently he is a traveler but not an author. The illustrations are another matter. They are so good that they make the text seem even poorer than it is." R. H.
— + Sat R of Lit 20:21 Jl 8 '39 260w
Wis Lib Bul 35:163 O '39

BAILLIE, JOHN. Our knowledge of God. 272p $2.50 Scribner [8s 6d Oxford]

231 God 39-33158

"This book, by an eminent theologian, considers the nature and extent of man's knowledge of God. While the great contributions to that knowledge made by the profound scholars of every era are duly studied, Dr. Baillie's basic conviction is that man knows God only by direct personal experience." Living Church

"The book is not easy reading for the laity, but it will repay their study and reflection." Elizabeth McCracken
Living Church 101:5 D 6 '39 60w

"It would be ungracious to leave the work without a final tribute not merely to the rich burgeoning of the fruits of the spirit which almost every page reveals in unstudied profusion, but also to the dialectical skill with which the more philosophical discriminations of the book are enforced."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p696 D 2 '39 800w

BAIRD, IRENE. Waste heritage. 329p $2.50 Random house

A novel which under light disguise tells the story of the sit-in strike of the unemployed in British Columbia a few years ago. The two chief characters are Matt, a young man of twenty-three who has sought for work in many places, and his protégé, Eddy, a giant who has been knocked silly by policemen's clubs.

Booklist 36:177 Ja 1 '40

" 'Waste Heritage' is a novel, hewn out of bitterness against human waste and out of sympathy for the wasted." Rose Feld
+ Books p3 D 10 '39 800w

"I know of no woman writer who can write of men alone and in a man's world with any sustained credibility. Miss Baird has tried harder than most but with very little more success. . . But the material transcends, even in story-telling value, the personalities of the men who create it. 'Waste Heritage' is a social indictment in a literary form only too rarely found in this under-written country. Even more than that, however, it is a lesson and an example to Canadian writers in the energetic and searching study that must be done before a truly vigorous, indigenous literature can be established." Eleanor Godfrey
+ — Canadian Forum 19:364 F '40 550w

"Repetitious and awkward in spots, but a forceful document."
+ — New Repub 101:270 D 20 '39 40w

"Like most disciples, Miss Baird has borrowed and magnified all the faults and mistakes of her master [Steinbeck]—his tendency toward melodrama and his straining for realism —while largely failing to reflect his virtues. . . But within this limitation 'Waste Heritage' is extremely well done. It is a document rather than a novel, but as a document it is so accurate and vivid that one exclaims inwardly, 'Yes, that is how it must have been.' " Harold Strauss
+ — N Y Times p7 D 10 '39 900w
New Yorker 15:121 D 16 '39 60w

" 'Waste Heritage' is a tough story, but almost malodorously human. It is biased, if you like, but never lopsided. Irene Baird writes with both fists and an angry will to be heard. She is a vital and interesting novelist." Margaret Wallace
+ Sat R of Lit 21:7 D 16 '39 440w

BAITSELL, GEORGE ALFRED, ed. Science in progress, by Ernest O. Lawrence [and others] foreword by Harlow Shapley. 322p il $4 Yale univ. press

504 Science—Addresses, essays, lectures (39-14778)

Ten Sigma Xi lectures delivered by leading scientists during 1937-1938. Contents: Atoms, new and old, by E. O. Lawrence; The separation of isotopes and their use in chemistry and biology, by H. C. Urey; Recent advances in the study of viruses, by W. M. Stanley; New views in virus disease research, by L. O. Kunkel; Vitamins and hormones, by K. E. Mason; The general role of thiamin in living things, by R. R. Williams; Internal secretions in reproduction, by Edgar Allen; Recent developments in our knowledge of chromosome structure and their application to genetics, by T. S. Painter; Electrical potentials of the human brain, by E. N. Harvey; Animal metabolism: from mouse to elephant, by F. G. Benedict. Index.

Reviewed by Robert Stauffer
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 5 '39 300w

"Even the non-technical reader will feel in [these chapters] the surge of discovery and will sense a new realization of the interrelation of the sciences and the meaning of scientific method, but their full value will be realized only by serious students in these several fields."
+ Christian Century 56:547 Ap 26 '39 80w

"Being based upon lectures recently given, the material is up to date. The make-up and typography of the book are excellent. This work will find a useful place on the book shelf of anyone actively interested in science, and it is to be hoped that similar volumes may follow from time to time." E. H. Volwiler
+ Ind & Eng Chem 17:425 Je 20 '39 330w
New Repub 99:287 Jl 12 '39 70w

"In the rapid advance of science it is difficult for one writer, however good his intentions, to keep so well informed that he can discuss several fields authoritatively. It is gratifying, therefore, to obtain a volume such as this, in which the men who are actually doing the work and making new discoveries tell how these discoveries are made and wherein they are significant. . . It is to be hoped that this venture on the part of Sigma Xi of presenting authoritative reports of scientific progress written by those responsible for this progress, will meet with success and will be repeated." H. W. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 My 6 '39 200w

"Each of the authors is a recognized leader in his respective field and writes scholarly and clear prose. Rare indeed is the volume which contains such important and otherwise inaccessible material presented on so high a literary plane." A. H. Compton & others
+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:1 Ap '39 1350w
Times [London] Lit Sup p483 Ag 12 '39 70w

BAKELESS, JOHN EDWIN. Master of the wilderness, Daniel Boone. 480p il maps $3.50 Morrow

B or 92 Boone, Daniel (W) 39-27625

A long, fully documented life of the most famous of American frontiersmen, written in entertaining style and replete with good stories, some of them frankly marked as legendary. Bibliography. Index.

"Too much credit can hardly be given the author for the careful, painstaking, and scholarly way in which he has sought out, checked, and rechecked all the material available, some of it hitherto unpublished, dealing with the life and times of the old frontiersman. His narrative is reënforced with a thorough bibliography, notes, and a valuable index." R. E. Danielson
+ Atlantic N '39 750w
Booklist 36:6 S '39

"Mr. Bakeless has given us a capital biography of Boone, but his book is more than a biography. The canvas is a broad one, and the central figure by no means obscures others who explored and hunted and fought and speculated with him. Some of the chapters are as thrilling as a Beadle Dime Novel, some of the anecdotes as improbable as Mike Fink stories; all are vouched for by sober documents." H. S. Commager
+ Books p3 S 10 '39 1150w

"Freshness of data and of interpretation is one of the great merits of the book. Mr. Bakeless, in fact, writes less as the biographer than as the social historian; and if, as a result, the character of Boone is not realized as vividly as the character of Houston in the James biography, the quality of a culture, the characteristics of the land, of social intercourse, of custom, of day-to-day life are richly and interestingly portrayed." H. M. Jones
+ Boston Transcript p1 S 9 '39 900w

"There are matters which are neglected for no apparent reason; what of the previous explorers of Kentucky. . . What was the date of Boone's passing? Just who were his children, what were their birth dates and what became of them? . . But these are minor matters, which do not at all affect the essential validity of a grand and readable tale, the most complete and reliable so far of the beau ideal of the older America, the model of buckskin knight-erranty." K. C. K.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 S 13 '39 650w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:6 D '39

"It is a dramatic narrative. This reviewer read it the first time at one sitting for the pleasure of seeing what happened next. At a second reading one is impressed by Mr. Bakeless' grasp of the period, by his scholarship and by the amount of information he has managed to convey in four hundred pages." Caroline Gordon
+ New Repub 101:25 N 8 '39 600w

"The Kentucky years are the most dramatic and eventful of Boone's life. In them he made more history and made it faster than in any other period of his life. In them he most fully realized himself. I have nothing but praise for Mr. Bakeless's reconstruction of that period. He gives you the feel of the man, the time and the place. My principal adverse criticism of his book is its disparity of scale, the narrative fullness of a dozen years, the almost annals-like quality of some of the rest." Horace Reynolds
+ — N Y Times p1 S 10 '39 1600w
New Yorker 15:79 S 9 '39 20w
Pratt p21 winter '40

"This book accomplishes a much-needed task; exhausting the sources on Boone's career, it corrects and amplifies all previous records, and offers as nearly definitive a life of the wilderness hero as can be produced in 1939. It is remarkable how much Mr. Bakeless's story freshens and amplifies even Reuben Gold Thwaites's book on Boone. It is unlikely that future writers will find much to add to the record here given." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 S 9 '39 750w
Time 34:89 S 11 '39 370w
Wis Lib Bul 35:165 O '39

BAKER, ASA. The kissed corpse. 252p $2 Carlyle 39-33018

Detective story.

"The book is right up with its predecessor, 'Mum's the Word for Murder.'"
+ Boston Transcript p2 O 28 '39 100w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 O 29 '39 200w

"Lurid."
Sat R of Lit 20:36 O 14 '39 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 24 '39 120w

BAKER, BERNARD F. Effective retail selling. 287p il $2.25 Am. tech. soc.

658.87 Salesmen and salesmanship. Retail trade 39-16193

Textbook for vocational courses in retail selling. The book treats not only the technical aspects but also questions of personality, training, and background. Index.

BAKER, B. F.—Continued

Booklist 36:37 O 1 '39
N Y New Tech Bks 23:42 Jl '39
Pratt p11 winter '40

BAKER, CHARLES HENRY COLLINS. Catalogue of William Blake's drawings and paintings in the Library. See Henry E. Huntington library and art gallery

BAKER, GLADYS. The county agent. 226p $2 Univ. of Chicago press [12s Cambridge]
630.61 Agricultural administration—U.S.
39-21222

Studies the rise of the county agent in America from a local vocational teacher to his present position as the administrator of a federal adjustment program. The first three chapters outline the development of the work of county agent from the beginning up to the time of the New Deal. Chapter four describes the role of county agent under the present administration. Subsequent chapters explain the service and personnel. Select bibliography. Index.

"A remarkable development [is] interestingly traced in this timely book." P. W. Wager
+ Am Pol Sci R 33:1117 D '39 420w

"The influence of the agent's work may have been overstated in some cases. For example, the 200 per cent increase in wheat acreage in one Iowa county during the World War was credited to the intense county campaigns, with no credit given to the influence exerted by 100 per cent increase in price. . . The book is well written and should be of interest to agricultural workers, for it presents helpful historical data and many references." A. F. Vass
+ — Ann Am Acad 207:254 Ja '40 500w

BAKER, HELEN. Determination and administration of industrial relations policies. See Princeton university. Department of economics and social institutions

BAKER, HOWARD. Induction to tragedy; a study in a development of form in Gorboduc, The Spanish tragedy, and Titus Andronicus. 247p $2.75 La. state univ. press
822.09 English drama. Tragedy 39-10662

"The dissertation of John W. Cunliffe, for years the classic statement of the influence of Seneca on the form and substance of Elizabethan tragedy, has been meeting rough treatment in recent years. Here it is finally liquidated. . . . Mr. Baker now offers cogent evidence that the real influence on 'Gorboduc,' on 'The Spanish Tragedy,' and on 'Titus Andronicus' was not Senecan, but medieval. His study shows that Cunliffe's parallels are fortuitous resemblances, not proof of a causal relation." Sat R of Lit

"A valuable scholarly book."
+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 3 '39 60w
Reviewed by John Wilcox
Sat R of Lit 20:18 Jl 8 '39 430w

BAKER, MARGARET. Fifteen tales for lively children; pictures by Mary Baker. 144p $1.75 Dodd [2s 9d Univ. of London press]
(W) 39-6105

Fifteen fanciful short stories for young readers, illustrated with silhouettes and line drawings.

Booklist 35:292 My 1 '39

"It is all gay and easy reading. The familiar Baker silhouettes come in now and again, but these illustrations are chiefly in line, clear, brisk and decided." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 Mr 26 '39 240w

"This collection of new stories shows the same appreciation of fun, and imagination. The tales, just the right length, are told in a conversational style, that always makes their books pleasant reading." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '39 250w

"Old familiar plots are retold in spritely new dress and given an original touch. All can be easily retold at story hour and will be appreciated by younger children. The expressive, simple line drawings by the author's sister Mary Baker give, as always, added significance and spice to Margaret Baker's work." Sonja Wennerblad (corr. reviewer)
+ Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 80w

"The stories are an excellent length for the not-too-practiced reader; they read aloud well and story tellers will be grateful for them. Mary Baker's drawings and silhouettes are, as always, lively and charming and perfectly in key with the tales. Both text and illustrations, however, deserve a more distinguished format than the publisher has given them." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p8 My 14 '39 280w

"The stories are full of variety and freshness and that pleasant atmosphere of country life which appears in our oldest English tales."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p789 D 10 '38 90w

BAKER, MARGARET. The puppy called Spinach; pictures by Mary Baker. [96p] $1.75 Dodd 39-22449

Lively story for young readers, all about a puppy with an investigating nature. Illustrated with silhouettes.

"The story is one which may be read to young children, and by second or third graders. Silhouette illustrations are plentiful and entertaining." Vivian Lundberg
+ Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 40w
Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 25 '39 170w

"This latest book by the Bakers is more spontaneous and amusing than some of their other recent books. Children from six to nine will thoroughly enjoy it." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 64:999 D 15 '39 100w
Manchester Guardian sup xi D 1 '39 50w
Reviewed by Frances Baird
New Statesman & Nation 18:854 D 9 '39 20w
Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p10 D 3 '39 120w

BAKER, OLIVER EDWIN; BORSODI, RALPH, and WILSON, MILBURN LINCOLN. Agriculture in modern life [Baker Brownell, supervising editor]. 303p il maps $3.50 Harper
630.1 Agriculture—Economic aspects. Sociology, Rural. U.S.—Economic conditions
(W) 39-27962

Three agricultural economists discuss different aspects of agriculture. The first section, the longest, is Our rural people, by Mr Baker; A plan for rural life is discussed by Ralph Borsodi; Science and folklore in rural life, by M. L. Wilson. At the close is a round table discussion by the three authors. "This book originated in the spring of 1938 at Northwestern University. Here, at the second conference held by the Department of Contemporary Thought on distributive society and the possibilities of decentralization, most of the material by the three authors of this book was presented." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 36:127 D 1 '39

Reviewed by R. L. Buell

Books p24 D 10 '39 850w

"In general this book is hard reading, although there are pages which get up and walk. It is, however, an adequate and thorough statement of the more important problems confronting agriculture today."

+ — Boston Transcript p2 F 3 '40 360w

"Looks somewhat heavy but is extremely readable, with factual material presented in maps and charts."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:212 D '39

BAKER, RAY STANNARD (DAVID GRAYSON, pseud). Woodrow Wilson: life and letters; v 7. 604p il $5 Doubleday

B or 92 Wilson, Woodrow. European war, 1914-1918—U.S. (27-25411)

The seventh volume in the definitive biography of Woodrow Wilson, covers the months from April 6, 1917 to February 28, 1918. The author has abandoned the analytical treatment of the former volumes and has adopted a strict chronological development, consisting of a series of diary entries, one for each day. The subtitle of this volume is War Leader. For volume six see Book Review Digest, 1937. Index.

Booklist 35:188 F 1 '39

"This, which might be called the straight-line method of biographical manufacture, has its obvious convenience for the historian, but makes pretty tough going for the lay reader. Everything is tumbled in together—the war effort, peace terms, the intimate personal notes. . . In the jumble I did not detect anything of very startling novelty." Walter Millis

Books p6 Ja 22 '39 1400w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones

Boston Transcript p1 F 4 '39 1150w

Christian Science Monitor p18 F 7 '39 550w

Reviewed by J. J. O'Connor

Commonweal 29:500 F 24 '39 420w

Foreign Affairs 17:631 Ap '39 110w

Reviewed by J. A. Hobson

Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 14 '39 750w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

Nation 148:405 Ap 8 '39 230w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

New Repub 98:24 F 8 '39 700w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman

New Statesman & Nation 17:624 Ap 22 '39 1050w

"A somewhat haphazard sourcebook, too formal for purposes of biography, too fragmentary for purposes of history." H. S. Commager

N Y Times p1 Ja 22 '39 1700w

New Yorker 14:72 Ja 21 '39 30w

"Unless the appetite of our generation has been hopelessly corrupted by biographers who serve their evidence to the reader not only premasticated, but predigested, this opportunity to form a relatively independent judgment on Wilson's war record should be welcomed. Of course, the qualifying word, relatively independent, should be emphasized. Out of a mass of evidence, Mr. Baker has chosen those fragments which he thinks of importance. We cannot pass final judgment on his selection until the Wilson papers are made available to qualified students. To a vastly greater extent than in the earlier volumes, however, the reader is left to his own resources." R. J. Sontag

+ Sat R of Lit 19:7 Ja 28 '39 1250w

"Any biographer with Mr Baker's breadth of perspective and literary skill must be under a strong impulse to tell the story, at least largely, in his own words and to interpret it in his own terms. But the result of the method which Mr Baker has chosen, and to which he has sternly adhered, will provide the key to vaults of hoarded gold for the historical student and must simplify the task of all future biographers, whatever may be the view which they take of President Wilson."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 22 '39 1500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p199 Ap 8 '39 650w

Reviewed by S. F. Bemis

Yale R n s 28:637 spring '39 600w

BAKER, RAY STANNARD (DAVID GRAYSON, pseud). Woodrow Wilson: life and letters; v 8. 626p il $5 Doubleday

B or 92 Wilson, Woodrow. European war, 1914-1918—U.S. (27-25411)

The eighth and final volume of this biography covers the war period from March 1, 1918 to the signing of the Armistice. Index.

Booklist 35:379 Jl 15 '39

"Mr. Baker's achievement is, with all its limitations, a noteworthy one. If he has not interpreted Wilson he has portrayed him and he has furnished the material for interpretation. He has told, with clarity and not without charm, the story of the most interesting career of modern times and he has laid the foundations for the more elaborate biographical structure which the historian of some later generation may build." H. S. Commager

+ — Books p3 Jl 2 '39 2600w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 8 '39 1050w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 23 '39 550w

Foreign Affairs 18:372 Ja '40 100w

"A most important piece of biography. It is not all easy reading for Englishmen, for it is chiefly concerned in its earlier chapters with the internal politics of America." J. A. Hobson

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ag 25 '39 800w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

Nation 149:105 Jl 22 '39 600w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

New Repub 100:219 S 27 '39 1500w

"This volume concludes Mr. Baker's Life of Woodrow Wilson. Once again as in volume seven he has chosen the detailed diary form; and although this method gives us a valuable insight into the President's daily life, it makes the task of the reader who wishes to disentangle the essential material unnecessarily difficult. Nor does it have the advantage of completeness, since far too many of the documents are printed in a highly abbreviated form. All the same the industrious student can form a fairly complete picture of Wilson at the height of his career." R. H. S. Crossman

+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:283 Ag 19 '39 1400w

"With all its limitations the book is full of interest and value. Part of its importance derives from its new light on many public questions. . . Mr. Baker chooses with expert hand from a wide array of papers. On many points he offers data which will compel a revision of judgments. But just as much of the book's interest is derived from the innumerable and often surprising sidelights upon Wilson the man. He appears here a stronger, shrewder, more practical leader and a more lovable personality than most Americans have supposed." Allan Nevins

+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 2 '39 2100w.

New Yorker 15:68 Jl 1 '39 20w

No Am 248:204 autumn '39 170w

Reviewed by R. J. Sontag

Sat R of Lit 20:6 Jl 1 '39 1600w

Reviewed by Wilson Harris

Spec 163:264 Ag 18 '39 1200w

"It can hardly be denied that . . . the average reader will also find this eighth and concluding volume somewhat formidable because of the method which Mr Baker has followed. There are no such free and sweeping passages as those which make the war volumes of Winston Churchill so easily read and at times so seduc-tive to one's historical judgment. But it is to be repeated that Mr Baker has performed an immense service to the future historian and to the more serious historical student before whom he has laid the first-hand evidence upon which, after all, historical judgment must ultimately rest. That, one may imagine, was the service which Wilson most wanted him to perform."

BAKER, R. S.—Continued
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 2 '39 1400w
Times [London] Lit Sup p486 Ag 19 '39 850w

Reviewed by S. F. Bemis
Yale R n s 29:193 autumn '39 750w

BAKER, SARA JOSEPHINE. Fighting for life. 264p il $2.75 Macmillan

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Children—Care and hygiene
(W) 39-27425

"Recollections of the first director of the New York City Bureau of Child Hygiene, who was also first to act on the idea that preventive medicine in child care is a governmental function. Not an American woman doctor's Odyssey, but full of stories that are always shrewd and often salty." (New Repub) Index.

Reviewed by G. A. Soper
Am J Pub Health 29:1168 O '39 600w
Booklist 35:329 Je 1 '39

"This autobiography is a breezy and personal narrative, none the less personal in that after the first chapters it is concerned almost wholly with pioneering in public health; for some twenty years there could have been little distinction in Dr. Baker's days between her profession and what is termed the private life. Her account of those years has vigor and humor and drama. Her book leaves a comforting conviction that there has been solid progress toward getting a chance for children and admiration for one 'stubborn' woman who has played so active a part in it." Mary Ross
+ Books p3 My 28 '39 1250w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting
Forum 101:v Je '39 300w
J Home Econ 32:43 Ja '40 50w
New Repub 99:27 My 10 '39 50w

"Dr. Baker writes of her forty years of work with professional understanding and with human warmth and sympathy. A deep-grained sense of humor adds zest to her pages but does not succeed in concealing the tenderness of her feeling for the anonymous hundreds of thousands of children who literally owe their lives to her." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p5 My 14 '39 1150w
New Yorker 15:92 My 6 '39 30w

" 'Fighting for Life' is crowded with incidents, tragic and funny, wise comments, medical information, names and pen pictures of many notables; it takes in the suffrage campaign and includes a lively account of a trip to Russia. It has all the breeziness of a pioneer tale, but its chief value lies in the fact that it is the undecorated, straightforward account of how a tremendous job was done by a woman who saw it in these terms: 'Here was a great waste: my problem was how to prevent it.' " M. S. Ulrich, M.D.
+ Sat R of Lit 20:13 My 13 '39 600w
Springf'd Republican p12 My 25 '39 700w

"This autobiography creates from the vivid, frequently humorous, and sometimes harrowing memories of Dr. Baker's full life a picture of changing conditions which has varied social and professional interest. . . A final section summarizes her philosophy as to the value of the 'fight for life' which is now being waged so effectively on a broad front and points out the danger spots against which she thinks that special effort should be directed." E. A. Winslow
+ Survey G 28:342 My '39 190w
Wis Lib Bul 35:144 Jl '39

BALDWIN, ARTHUR CHARLES. Inevitable dawn. 308p $2 Harper
39-9062

Story of a young preacher whose zeal brought him many problems in the conservative little town where he went for his first pastorate. In the end the town took him to their several bosoms, even attempting to help pick out his wife, and furnish his house.

"'Inevitable Dawn' is sincere and human, with small-town touches any reader will recognize and relish." Lisle Bell
+ Books p12 Ap 23 '39 110w

Reviewed by M. P. Johnson
Boston Transcript p1 S 2 '39 100w
Christian Century 56:580 My 3 '39 60w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton
Crozer Q 16:228 Jl '39 300w

"It's an old, old story which has many, many versions in English and American literature. It is served up here with all the simple plotting, the naive accents, the conventional moralizing and the homely sentimentality of its time." F T. Marsh
N Y Times p19 Ap 23 '39 340w
Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 27 '39 130w

"The story is interesting for its characters and action, and also for realistic glimpses into rural life of the present time, and its understanding portrayal of experiences typical in the life of a young minister." R. K. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 28 '39 300w
Wis Lib Bul 35:112 Je '39

BALDWIN, ARTHUR H. Sou'wester victorious; with 11 il. by Gordon Grant. 276p maps $2 Random house
(W) 39-18508

Jim and Corry Laight and their friend Durk Romby sail the Sou'wester 1500 miles to search for Mr Laight, missing after a tropical storm. Contains a glossary of sailing terms. For older boys.

Booklist 36:16 S '39

"Another fine sea story. . . The adventures are all described with a directness that boys will appreciate. The excellent sketches are by Gordon Grant." E. M. Mack
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 9 '39 110w

"In spite of a plot which threatens to become incoherent and the very slight characterization, its action makes an absorbing yarn for boys of high school age or younger. It abounds in nautical terms unfamiliar to the landlubber, but they are all simply and neatly explained in a glossary at the back." Maude Adams
+ Library J 64:870 N 1 '39 150w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). Career by proxy. 304p $2 Farrar 39-11752

Has the daughter of wealthy parents the right to go out into the world of business and take a job which might be necessary to the very existence of some other girl? This is the modern problem Joan's parents put up to her but when Joan found the girl whom she could help by taking her job, two problems were solved.

Booklist 35:365 Jl 1 '39

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p18 My 7 '39 170w

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 600w

"In its competent telling, this latest of Faith Baldwin's stories is not different from the rest of her long list. It differs rather in plot, being less preoccupied with young love and more concerned with other aspects of the heroine's life. . . Genuine white-collar gals will find the story interesting." Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p17 My 7 '39 170w
Sat R of Lit 20:30 Ap 29 '39 130w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). The high road. 274p $2 Farrar
(W) 38-29091

Story of Jill, who at twenty-five had held a multitude of jobs, ranging from that of cruise hostess to ticket seller at Coney Island. Her last job as companion to the spoiled granddaughter of a wealthy New Yorker proved both exciting and disillusioning, so Jill went to South America to find her engineer admirer.

Booklist 35:190 F 1 '39

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p9 Ja 8 '39 130w
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '39 220w

"There ought to be some sort of literary or at least book prize for Faith Baldwin. She can turn them out a mile a minute, all readable, all different, all tops in her field. This latest one will be as popular as her others." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 15 '39 200w

"Faith Baldwin writes with an ease which is not mechanical because it suggests the pleasure of using well-trained muscles. Her stories flow behind her, a smooth even ribbon, woven of charming people and charming things, with just enough of the dark side of life to give character to the pattern." K. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 Ja 14 '39 170w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). Station wagon set. 378p il $2.50 Farrar 39-33520

A volume of connected stories dealing with the inhabitants of Little Oxford, a community beyond the reaches of Suburbia but still close enough to the metropolis to number commuters and country week-enders among it inhabitants. The group here exploited are primarily the country and hunt club set and the stories concern chiefly their love affairs and marital entanglements.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p22 D 3 '39 350w

"This panoramic view of a gay crowd of sophisticates of all ages is, we think, one of this prolific and popular author's best books, even if we did get rather tired of all the females being 'delightfully or seductively curved.' " M. J. Johnson
+ — Boston Transcript p6 Ja 6 '40 240w

"As always Miss Baldwin writes with sympathy and understanding of the problems of her characters, using her bright and skillful style to make even a thin character or an empty existence provide entertaining reading. Most of this party-loving crew are pretty shallow, weak and small-minded—aside from a very few who seem to know what they are after in life. The author presents them as a convincingly real picture of average social life in semi-rural America." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p33 D 10 '39 600w

"The characters seem to be taken from the smart, long-limbed illustrations for magazine fiction rather than from the less sartorial realms of real life, but they go through their marionette antics with the same vivacity that has endeared their fellows to so many lending-library readers." G. G.
Sat R of Lit 21:21 D 30 '39 300w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). White magic. 305p $2 Farrar 39-27768

Several groups of people come together in Sun Valley during the skiing season. Among them are an heiress, a self-made man and his young secretary, a German nobleman, a ski instructor, and more than one trouble-maker. The climax comes when seven of the crowd are stranded in a cabin during a blizzard.

Booklist 36:45 O 1 '39

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p11 Ag 27 '39 240w

Reviewed by Hans Wallenberg
N Y Times p7 Ag 27 '39 460w

" 'White Magic' is one of Miss Baldwin's most successful books, for it demonstrates not only her smoothness and intelligence, as do all the others, but also her ambition and her capacity to outgrow her formula." K. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 S 2 '39 200w

BALDWIN, HANSON WEIGHTMAN. Admiral Death; twelve adventures of men against the sea. 277p il $2.50 Simon & Schuster
910.4 Shipwrecks (W) 39-27066

Among these twelve true stories of men's adventures with the sea are the Titanic disaster, the torpedoing of the Lusitania, the sinking of the Jeannette in the Arctic, the wreck of the frigate Medusa, and the mutiny on the brig Somers.

Booklist 35:221 Mr 1 '39

"This book is the kind of a book which a father will like to give to his sons after reading it; the kind of book which a normal boy will devour in a night." Allen Raymond
+ Books p14 F 19 '39 700w

"Baldwin has a staccato way of writing which resembles the drumfire of a machine gun. Merely to call his brief pieces dramatic would be understatement—they are so stirringly told. . . Hanson Baldwin is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy. He knows men and ships, and every tale he tells he checks with authoritative sources." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p13 F 12 '39 1150w

"Some familiar material—Titanic, Lusitania, the Jeannette expedition—but many of these tales of heroism (and cowardice) will be new to most people."
+ New Yorker 14:83 F 11 '39 40w

"Baldwin's narrative is as cold as ice, an unvarnished report by a man who knows what he is talking about well enough to give accounts of twelve disasters that might be by eye-witnesses. . . The book is such a model of clear objective reporting that it is almost impossible to offer any other comment than that there are here twelve stories well told and united by a central theme." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 19:10 F 11 '39 380w

"Mr. Baldwin has gone back to primary sources whenever possible. His accounts smell of salt and tar, and are not so detailed in their technical aspects as to become confusing to the average reader. All in all, 'Admiral Death' is a rounded popular collection of sea stories."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 F 16 '39 500w

BALDWIN, LELAND DEWITT. The delectable country. 715p $2.75 Furman 39-24453

A novel of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys during the early years of the Republic. The hero is young David Braddee, who begins his career as a riverman but, coming under the influence of Lawyer Brackenridge of Pittsburgh, he begins his search for a more "delectable country"—of the mind or of the soul. For a time he is a Methodist preacher but when he is cast out for marrying an "unawakened" woman he turns to other paths of service.

BALDWIN, L. D.—Continued

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

" 'The Delectable Country' is a hogshead of action, a torrent of adventures. What it lacks in narrative discipline it attains in panoramic scope." George Conrad

+ Books p10 O 22 '39 400w

Nation 149:586 N 25 '39 120w

"In his foreword Mr. Baldwin admits that this novel is the sequel to three historical monographs. It has both the virtues and faults of its kind. If it fails to create individuals in whom we can believe it vivifies mass feelings and mass movements, recreates history. If Captain Thorne is a story-book villain, Brackenridge a dummy mentor and David himself a peg on which to hang the American dream, Pittsburgh and the Ohio Valley and the Whiskey Insurrection are real enough." Horace Reynolds

+ — N Y Times p22 O 22 '39 800w

"Mr. Baldwin's learning does not hamper him as a novelist. He knows how to tell a racy and absorbing tale, with well-imagined characters; and his familiarity with the keelboat age and the manners of the period when Pittsburgh was a raw frontier town merely enriches his story. In the long list of recent historical novels published in this country, 'The Delectable Country' takes very high rank." H. P. Ross

+ Sat R of Lit 21:13 D 23 '39 400w

"As an authentic picture of how frontier Americans lived when the nation was young and freedom was jealously guarded, 'The Delectable Country' performs a worth-while mission. To have a young man turn from keelboating to the law and then to the ministry might seem to strain a point to make a good story, yet Braddee's career is in tune with his times. It was a fresh, raw country with a bewildering and intoxicating freedom, and Mr Baldwin has caught its swaggering spirit in his excellent story."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 29 '39 650w

BALDWIN, LELAND DEWITT. Whiskey rebels; the story of a frontier uprising; decorations by Ward Hunter. 326p map $3 Univ. of Pittsburgh

973.43 Whiskey insurrection, 1794 39-11763

"The superficial story of the Whiskey Insurrection is not unfamiliar—how Hamilton, partly to raise revenue and partly to promote his policy of centralization, obtained an excise tax upon distilled spirits and stills, how the frontiersmen of western Pennsylvania rose against a tax which they considered grossly unfair and burdensome, and how 13,000 militiamen marched upon the 'Whiskey Rebels,' put down the embryo insurrection and chalked up a famous victory for law and order, nationalism and the Federal party. But aside from the brief account in Henry Adams's 'Gallatin,' this is the first attempt to penetrate beneath the superficialities of the story to the underlying economic and political realities." (Books) Bibliography.

"Mr. Baldwin's monograph is comprehensive, scholarly and spirited. It is based upon a study of all available source material, informed with an understanding of the social psychology of the people and the region described, illuminated by a broad presentation of the whole historical background and presented with vigor and not without humor. One of the series of studies in the history of western Pennsylvania, sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, the Buhl Foundation and the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, it promises an exploitation of local history that breaks with antiquarianism and accommodates itself to the requirements of scholarship." H. S. Commager

+ Books p19 My 7 '39 1000w

"Mr. Baldwin has recounted the incidents of the rebellion with spirit and color, and has painted an especially good portrait of that extraordinary figure Hugh Henry Brackenridge." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 20:16 Ag 5 '39 700w

BALL, ALICE MORTON. Compounding in the English language. 226p $2.50 Wilson, H.W.

425.1 English language—Compound words (W) 39-11805

"A comparative review of variant authorities with a rational system for general use and a comprehensive alphabetic list of compound words." (Subtitle) "Miss Ball drew up her first system of compounding when she was in charge of general publications for the Division of International Law of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. She became a member of the Departmental Advisory Board for the revision of the United States Government Printing Office style manual for 1933 and later a co-author of the Style manual of the Department of State for 1937. The present volume is the outcome of the work on these two manuals." (Library Q)

Booklist 35:359 Jl 1 '39

J Home Econ 31:646 N '39 70w

"If Miss Ball's book be accepted as an authority on compounding—and it might well be—she has performed a distinct service to writers, editors, typesetters, proofreaders, and everyone else having to do with the written or printed word."

+ Library Q 9:384 Jl '39 180w

Wis Lib Bul 35:140 Jl '39

BALL, CARLETON ROY. Federal, state, and local administrative relationships in agriculture. 2v 461;463-1139p set $10 Univ. of Calif. Bur. of public administration [set 50s Cambridge]

630.6173 Agricultural administration—U.S. 39-28005

"The emphasis in Dr. Ball's study lies in the accumulation of factual detail illustrative of the operation of our federal system in the field of agriculture. In fact, the two volumes are chiefly given to illustrative reference to, and documentation of, coöperative regulatory and research activities, grouped under the topics of climate, soils, agricultural chemistry, agricultural industry, plant industries, and agricultural education, engineering, and economics. Dr. Ball has left himself only a single chapter in which to define and comment. Although Dr. May points out in his foreword that these studies 'are descriptive rather than critical,' the political scientist would have profited, for example, from more guidance concerning the evolution of functions and their allocation to the different levels of government, with some indication of why some activities are apportioned to the national level, others to the states, and how the coöperation—or lack of it—in the twilight zone or no-man's land works out." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by O. B. Jesness

Am Econ R 29:840 D '39 230w

Reviewed by J. M. Gaus

Am Pol Sci R 33:701 Ag '39 700w

"One is at a loss how to divide encomiums between Carleton R. Ball for his painstaking research, and the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of California for making this exceedingly important publication possible. It is a work that will be found valuable to economists, sociologists, administration officials—public and private, students of public affairs, editors, and all interested in administrative problems. Not only is the work of value to scientists interested in the problem, but indirectly it is one of the best defenses of government activity that has come to the attention of the reviewer." Bernhard Ostrolenk

+ Ann Am Acad 205:214 S '39 500w

Reviewed by C. J. Bradley

Social Forces 18:312 D '39 550w

BALL, ROBERT HAMILTON. The amazing career of Sir Giles Overreach. 467p il $5 Princeton univ. press

822 Massinger, Philip—New way to pay old debts. Theater—Great Britain. Theater—U.S. 39-8159

A study of the stage history of Massinger's A New Way to Pay Old Debts, presented in the form of a "fantastical biography" of its principal character, Sir Giles Overreach. The book is illustrated with reproductions of portraits of many actors who have played the role, Edmund Kean, Junius Brutus Booth, Edwin Booth, Walter Hampden, and others less well known. Bibliography. Index.

Books p13 Je 11 '39 500w

Reviewed by Dougald MacMillan

Boston Transcript p1 My 13 '39 180w

"The history of Sir Giles and his impersonators seems to be a good matter for a fair-sized essay, but only American patience and industry would handle it on so vast a scale." I. B.

Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 14 '39 220w

"In his 'Sir Giles Overreach' Robert Hamilton Ball has done something more than merely to write the history of a play. In his record of the reaction of succeeding generations to this masterpiece of Jacobean tragicomedy we find reflected emotional, moral and esthetic changes that interpret in a new and startling fashion the lives of our forebears. The book is an exceedingly interesting and valuable exploration in a field the importance of which for social research has been too little appreciated." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p27 Ap 9 '39 950w

"Prof Ball's 'The Amazing Career of Sir Giles Overreach' is a book that assembles much material through which anyone who feels a romantic interest in the theater will be glad to ramble. For others, too, the work will have informative value, especially in the quoted criticisms which convey an idea of acting styles and individual histrionic achievements in the past. The author's commentary has the meticulous manner of a doctor's thesis, enlivened, in this case, by a somewhat personal and whimsical style. The effect is not so stimulating as could be hoped." E. N. Jenckes

+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 1 '39 1200w

Theatre Arts Mo 23:681 S '39 410w

Times [London] Lit Sup p427 Jl 15 '39 210w

BALL, MRS VICTORIA (KLOSS). Child nutrition in camp and institution. 301p il spiral binding pa $1.50 Welfare federation of Cleveland, 1001 Huron rd, Cleveland

613.2 Children—Nutrition. Cookery for institutions, etc. 38-19726

"A study of food with respect to costs, nutritional value, educational value and administration in Cleveland camps and institutions." (Subtitle) "Based on the author's earlier Camp Nutrition, the material in this volume has been enlarged to include institutional feeding and has been brought up to date, with prices as of February 1938. Like its predecessor, it gives practical information, tables, and recipes helpful in providing adequate and attractive meals at low cost." (J Home Econ)

Booklist 35:325 Je 1 '39

J Home Econ 30:653 N '38 60w

BALLOU, ROBERT OLESON, ed. See Bible of the world

BANGS, NICKERSON. The Ormsteads. 298p $2.50 Kinsey 39-9402

Three generations of the Ormsteads, presided over by Old William, founder of the family fortunes, figure in the story. Old William typifies the dignified head of the conservative family. It was his earnest desire to have all his children around him, and to achieve that end he bought estates for the married ones near the family home. Thacher, the youngest son, went West and took up ranching, but when he married he came back to New York state, bringing his Western wife with him. The new wife, with her Western ways, plus the revolt of the third generation, provided Old William with plenty of problems to enliven his declining years.

"It is an interesting narrative, which manages to present three generations adequately and intelligently without running into an encyclopedia of text." George Conrad

+ Books p12 Ap 16 '39 350w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 22 '39 130w

"The novel is uneven, much of it very well done, but with occasional incidents that seem out of key. . . But the best thing in the book is the way Mr. Bangs has presented these people as a closely knit group, sharing certain characteristics and certain instincts, yet each different, each individual, a person and at the same time a typical Ormstead, while the family as a whole is no less typical of a particular kind of New Yorker." L. M. Field

+ — N Y Times p17 Ap 23 '39 420w

" 'The Ormsteads' is a dignified and well-written family chronicle, with excellent studies of contemporary American types, but none more convincingly drawn—nor more admirable—than Old William, himself. He belongs to the race of empire builders, a race characterized by that rugged individualism often decried today, yet without which some splendid achievements of our history would never have been written."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 16 '39 550w

BANKS, JOHN. The unhappy favourite; or, The Earl of Essex [a tragedy] ed. with an introduction and notes by Thomas Marshall Howe Blair. 143p $2.75 Columbia univ. press [14s Oxford]

822 Essex, Robert Devereux, 2d earl of—Drama 39-30410

Text of a play written by a minor Restoration dramatist, and first produced at Drury Lane in the 1681-82 season. This edition gives the text in a slightly reduced facsimile. The introduction and notes give material on sources, style, imitators, and the place of the play in dramatic history. Bibliography. Index.

Christian Century 56:1210 O 4 '39 280w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 1 '39 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p691 N 25 '39 150w

BANNON, LAURA. Manuela's birthday in old Mexico [pictures by the author]. 47p $2 Whitman, A.

Children in Mexico 39-23303

Manuela, a little Mexican girl, had plenty of dark-complexioned dolls, but she wished for a blue-eyed doll with flaxen hair. The story is of her fifth birthday, when her wish came true.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p7 D 24 '39 270w

"Told in clear, simple prose that little girls of five to eight will enjoy reading and having read."

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '39

"This story . . . is rather trivial in itself, but the pictures are worth mentioning for their bright, gay colors. Libraries needing material on Mexico may want to add this picture book, which is easy enough for third grade children to read. It is not recommended for first purchase, however." Josephine Smith

BANNON, LAURA—Continued
Library J 64:903 N 15 '39 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 3 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 35:187 N '39

BARBER, SARA M. Speech education. 485p il map $1.60 Little

808.5 Speech. Voice. English language—Phonetics 39-12460

"This high-school textbook in speech . . . offers seventy very short chapters or 'units of study.' . . The aspects of speech discussed in the main body of the text may be grouped roughly as follows: Units I-V, social; Units VI-X, physical; Units XI-LII, phonetic; Units LIII-LIV, philological; Units LV-LVIII, the art of speaking. Each unit consists of a brief exposition accompanied by numerous examples or exercises, or both. The concluding twelve study units present as many special speech activities, such as public speaking, debating, panel discussions, parliamentary procedure, choral speaking, and radio speaking." (School R) Index.

Booklist 36:86 N 1 '39

"This textbook is mature and ought to be considered only for use with high-school Juniors or Seniors in an elected course. The only criticism that this reviewer has to make is the author's failure to indicate in the Table of Contents the broad aspects of speech under which the various study units are grouped. Such an omission of technical terms, however, might well be a subtle attraction to high-school pupils which was planned by the author." Louis Travers
+ School R 47:795 D '39 360w

BARBOUR, RALPH HENRY. Fighting guard; il. by Robert A. Graef. 304p $2 (6s) Appleton-Century

38-21550

Thrilling story of life in a boys' school, with special emphasis on football.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 O 2 '38 40w
Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 30 '39 50w

BARBOUR, RALPH HENRY. The last quarter; il. by Edwin Earle. 276p $2 (6s) Appleton-Century

(W) 39-20783

High school football story. The hero is Jimmy Amber, who did not make first place in the beginning, but who proved amply successful at the game when he did.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 O 8 '39 70w

"It should be good food for football-loving souls."
Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 80w
Churchman 153:39 D 15 '39 10w

BARBOUR, RALPH HENRY. The three-cornered dog; il. by R. M. Brinkerhoff. 273p $2 Appleton-Century

39-4499

Tim, a fourteen-year-old boy in search of health, and his older brother, try to operate a filling station in Maine. It seemed like "a heck of a dump" to Tim until the three-cornered dog arrived; then life became more livable—and exciting.

"There is lively, lifelike talk, honest adventure not beyond the bounds of credulity, and a chance for development of character by roughing it, all in a mountain atmosphere of canoeing and fishing, with the first guns of the season going off on the last pages. This is a story for young boys that an older person can read without coming off his standards of good entertainment in outdoor fiction." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 Mr 19 '39 200w
Reviewed by Elsie Mack
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 1 '39 110w

BARBOUR, RALPH HENRY, and SARRA, LA MAR. How to play six-man football. 113p $1.50 (6s) Appleton-Century

796.33 Football (W) 39-27710

Rules and diagrams of plays of this form of football, which is useful where small groups of players are all that are available.

Booklist 36:39 O 1 '39

"It is a concise account, profusely illustrated with diagrams and descriptions. Such a handbook should prove immensely helpful." M. C. Mahoney
+ Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 120w
Reviewed by Miriam Snow
Library J 64:1002 D 15 '39 110w
"Good and unique handbook."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:27 N 18 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 35:212 D '39

BARKER, CLARE WRIGHT, and ANSHEN, MELVIN. Modern marketing. 326p $2.75 (15s) McGraw

658.83 Marketing 39-20234

College textbook, in which the emphasis is on the theory of marketing. "The first section deals with the importance of marketing and the position of the consumer. The second division describes the movement of agricultural and raw products to their markets, wholesaling, the co-operative movement, direct marketing, and the various important types of retailing. The third portion deals with the activities of selling, buying, transportation, storage, finance and risk. The final section covers prices and price problems, competition, costs of marketing and the efficiency of the marketing process, and the human control of distribution." (Management R) Index.

Booklist 36:62 O 15 '39

"Marketing today is a jigsaw puzzle of conflicting tendencies and trends. In fitting the pieces together, the authors have achieved a realistic picture. The volume is readable and presents a good over-all view of distribution and its problems. The terseness of the treatment occasionally requires background in distribution or reading of other books to understand why certain changes in marketing have occurred." Albert Haring
+ Management R 28:408 N '39 360w

BARKER, RICHARD HINDRY. Mr Cibber of Drury lane. 278p $3 Columbia univ. press [15s Oxford]

B or 92 Cibber, Colley

Colley Cibber, actor, actor-manager, dramatist, and poet laureate, who began his career on the London stage in the 1690s, is the subject of this biography. The book considers the whole of his life, and gives a critical estimate of his writings. Bibliography of Cibber's works. Index.

"Mr. Barker has drawn upon some hitherto unused sources, especially newspapers of the period and unpublished manuscripts. Students will find his work definitive within its limits, and readers will find it an enlightening and entertaining treatment of important phases of eighteenth century culture."

+ Christian Century 56:1579 D 20 '39 420w

"Mr. Barker's biography is written in the usual juiceless dissertation style, but it has much useful information."
New Repub 100:321 O 18 '39 60w

"An extraordinary family, the Cibbers, whose lives and period Mr. Barker has made into a book that will appeal to the scholar for its quiet dignity and scrupulous documentation and to the layman for much rewarding and entertaining matter." Frances Winwar
+ N Y Times p7 D 24 '39 750w
Theatre Arts Mo 24:151 F '40 650w

BARKER, ROLAND, and DOERFLINGER, WILLIAM. The middle passage. 410p $2.50 Macmillan

(W) 39-5779

Story of the slave trade during the last days of the Napoleonic era. The hero is a Cornishman, Stephen Bishop, who entered the trade owing to a fluke but stayed to make a fortune, before he returned to Cornwall.

Booklist 35:270 Ap 15 '39

"All told, 'The Middle Passage' is a disappointing book. The authors do not seem to have a proper sense of dramatic values; time and again they fail to bring off the action of their own plot. A good deal of the time it is hard to tell what is going on. As for the sea parts, the less said the better. Bishop's command to his mate, as they are entering the crowded harbor of Charleston, is: 'Call all hands and furl everything—we'll come to anchor now.'" Lincoln Colcord
— Books p8 Ap 9 '39 1000w

Discussion by J. P. Barker & Lincoln Colcord
Books p26 Ap 30 '39 600w
Boston Transcript p3 Ap 1 '39 120w
Cath World 149:253 My '39 210w
Christian Century 56:387 Mr 22 '39 60w

Reviewed by J. A. Breig
Commonweal 29:724 Ap 21 '39 290w

Reviewed by J. D. Beresford
Manchester Guardian p5 S 1 '39 120w

"This is a light historical tale dealing with a dark subject. It's a sound tale of its kind and convincing enough and entertainingly written after you once get into it." F. T. Marsh
+ — N Y Times p26 Mr 26 '39 700w

"Unfortunately, the authors have had trouble with the serious mechanical problem that confronted them in the beginning—how to get a hero into the slave trade and still make him a sympathetic character. They solved it by a wooden little tale of love, rivalry, and misunderstanding which, coming as it does at the beginning of the book, helps very little in establishing the credibility of what follows. Still, a book to be highly recommended to those readers who can take their Howden-Smith or Sabatini on the gulp." F. P.
Sat R of Lit 19:21 Ap 1 '39 180w

Reviewed by Forrest Reid
Spec 163:355 S 8 '39 350w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 14 '39 360w
Times [London] Lit Sup p505 Ag 26 '39 300w
Wis Lib Bul 35:103 My '39

BARNARD, CHESTER IRVING. Functions of the executive. 334p $3.50 Harvard univ. press [15s Oxford]

658 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Executives 39-849

"In terms of his own wide experience, Mr. Barnard is primarily thinking of big, relatively stable, industrial organizations, although he has much to say which is equally applicable both to the more fiercely competitive types of business and also to the management of institutions so far removed from these as, for instance, the Catholic Church or a large university. The book consists of a systematic treatise in four parts: Part 1, Preliminary Considerations Concerning Co-operative Systems, reviews the more obvious conditions to which any system of co-operation must adjust itself. . . In Part II the author presents, The Theory and Structure of Formal Organizations, at a somewhat general level. Parts III and IV, to quote the text, '. . . are concerned with the behavior of organizations and of people in them, especially of executives.'" Boston Transcript

Reviewed by B. E. Gardner
Am J Soc 45:624 Ja '40 300w

"The book should become a worthy contribution to a better understanding of the executive function; and after further verification and refinement of the major hypotheses (which task the author hopes others will assume), the contribution may serve to promote improved methods of training for administrative work and of selecting and advancing executive personnel." E. O. Stene
+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:348 Ap '39 310w

"This is not the place to enlarge on the inevitable shortcomings of a pioneer work of such undoubted merit. Rather, Mr. Barnard is to be congratulated on a book that no senior executive, who is willing to follow closely reasoned exposition of a vital and difficult subject, can afford to ignore." T. N. Whitehead
+ Boston Transcript p1 My 6 '39 650w
Pratt p14 autumn '39

BARNE, KITTY (MRS ERIC STREATFEILD). Family footlights; il. by Ruth Gervis. 244p $2 Dodd [6s Dent]

The four young Farrars were to spend the Christmas holidays in a small English town and in charge of an aunt they had never seen. It did not seem promising. But the Farrars were not easily daunted. They put on a play, helped a shy little stranger to further his musical education, and made a tidy sum to be turned over for the church organ fund.

"This is an excellent story. . . Apart from a well-turned plot and some admirably unconventional characters, there is a great store of the detail that children enjoy about stage and backstage and some quite riotous fun—notably at the dress rehearsal." C. R.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 27 '39 90w

"Kitty Barne, author of . . . 'She Shall Have Music,' has written another lively story of brisk, likable young people. She has the faculty of writing about large families so that every member has a distinct and interesting personality, and she writes as a nice grown-up talks to children, as an equal, assuming intelligence and humor on the part of the reader." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p11 Ja 21 '40 400w

"Both author and illustrator have a lightness of touch which they manage to keep without becoming tiresomely whimsical, and they also have a genuine knowledge of children's theatricals which keeps them always on a realistic plane."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p578 O 7 '39 180w

BARNE, KITTY (MRS ERIC STREATFEILD). She shall have music; il. by Ruth Gervis. 261p $2 Dodd [6s Dent]

(W) 39-27176

A little Irish girl with a love for music, but born into a most unmusical family is the heroine of this story for young readers. Her struggle to find a piano and then to find money for lessons is delightfully told.

Booklist 35:254 Ap 1 '39

BARNE, KITTY—Continued

"A special audience awaits this story, one for whom stories are seldom written: girls who play the piano and mean to make a career of doing so. They can tell, if they use Karen's experience as a touchstone, whether they really have vocations this way, and they will have had meanwhile something as nearly a vicarious experience as a story is likely to give them. . . The conversation is gay and the many drawings are lively. The festivals and competitions are, of course, on the English model, but the principles involved are the same anywhere that the piano is played as a solo instrument." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 Mr 19 '39 600w

"Even those little girls who struggle against authority in the matter of piano lessons will enjoy 'She Shall Have Music.' Karen is a real girl with an intense love for music. Karen's family, too, is a particularly nice one." Elsie Mack

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 1 '39 190w

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 31 '39 200w

"An interesting and amusing story of an unspoiled little girl's eager, ardent effort to play out the music in her on the piano, and how she was helped and hindered. Well-drawn people."

+ Horn Bk M 15:166 My '39 130w

"The story . . . will be of particular interest to like-minded girls and may have some use as vocational fiction. The setting is England. The character drawings in pencil by Ruth Gervis are pleasing and often amusing." E. D. Briggs

+ Library J 64:332 Ap 15 '39 80w

"From the moment when the Forrest family lands in England to be tormented by the disgustingly familiar cheerfulness of the two members who were not seasick the book is enthralling. It is primarily the story of the youngest Miss Forrest's climb to eminence as a budding pianist. But not the least memorable of its characters is the well-meaning but deplorably bogus amateur who so nearly pollutes her genius." L. A. G.

+ Manchester Guardian p6 S 30 '38 110w

"The story develops in easy, humorous fashion, with nowhere an overemphasis upon Karen's precociousness, but rather upon her love of music and her real joy in it as she grew in skill and appreciation, until the very feel of music and what underlies its interpretation is communicated to the reader so that the young listener grows, too, in appreciation. Add to this a portrait of an amusing and likable family . . . and here is an outstanding addition to career books for girls from 8 to 12." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Je 4 '39 440w

Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 8 '39 30w

BARNES, ALBERT COOMBS, and DE MAZIA, VIOLETTE. The art of Cézanne. 456p il $5 Harcourt [21s Cape, J]

759.4 Cézanne, Paul (W) 39-27067

Account of the origins of Cézanne's technique, his characteristic uses of color and technique, and a sketch of his life and personality, with one chapter on the influence of Cézanne on contemporary painting. Included are reproductions of 171 of the artist's paintings, with an analysis of each, and catalog data. Index.

Booklist 35:219 Mr 1 '39

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist

Commonweal 30:80 My 12 '39 360w

"The penetrating volume provides . . . a fine appreciation of Cézanne's art, and while defining its great limitations, plainly suggests the prime source of our fascination—its overwhelming symbolism of the stability of things." Paul Rosenfeld

+ Nation 148:240 F 25 '39 650w

"Interpretive criticism such as this may well prove of service to a wide, interested public. In the main, however, the Barnes-de Mazia book seems likely to make its principal appeal to students. The analyses of pictures reflect the opinion, naturally, of the authors themselves; opinion with which one may or may not find one's self in agreement." E. A. Jewell

N Y Times p10 Ap 9 '39 550w

New Yorker 15:80 Mr 4 '39 40w

"This mechanical transference of the laboratory technique to art, in spite of its undeniable value, may lead to regrettable distortions and misconceptions, for not only is the work of art an extremely complex object, but the routine and the apparatus of analysis are variable. . . The book makes no new contributions to the interpretation of Cézanne's art. . . The authors have after exhaustive study recorded and codified all the technical means by which Cézanne achieved his goal, and for this the Cézanne scholars must be thankful. It should be stated, however, that Dr. Barnes and Miss de Mazia have made no concessions to the general public, either in readability or arrangement." M. W. Brown

— + Sat R of Lit 19:11 Mr 25 '39 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p298 My 20 '39 280w

BARNES, HARRY ELMER. Society in transition; problems of a changing age. 1016p $5 Prentice-Hall

309.173 Social problems. U.S.—Social conditions (W) 39-16093

A comprehensive, factual survey of the social problems of our day, their historical background, and the possibilities of their alleviation. The book is in five parts: The historical background of our transitional age; The physical and economic basis of our social problems; Leading socio-biological problems in modern society; The institutional impact of urban industrial society; Social wreckage. Selected references. Index.

"The style is direct, vigorous, and forthright. Its very comprehensiveness appears to lead at times to a tendency towards diffuseness, although the author seeks to bind his materials together with the familiar Ogburnian thesis that the source of all our social ills is the lag of adaptive institutions behind technological development—a thesis which is not always apparent in his discussion of certain of the problems. A careful re-editing of the material would have eliminated many of the repetitions and some amazing contradictions." J. A. Neprash

+ — Am Soc R 4:865 D '39 250w

Reviewed by B. B. Wessel

Ann Am Acad 206:211 N '39 500w

Booklist 36:35 O 1 '39

"Dr. Barnes is not a thoughtless Jeremiah; he has only too much reason for the fears that are in him. His book is better as a collection of facts than as theory, but even the theory, though it may be criticized as incomplete and inadequate, cannot be dismissed as baseless or unimportant in the modern world." E. S. Bates

+ — Books p5 Ag 6 '39 1400w

"If one does not make ultimate demands on the author, he can be read as a trenchant essayist and an indefatigable compiler of precis of current writing on social topics. He presents in convenient form facts and statistics related to an amazing variety of matters that are continually bobbing up on page one of the newspapers; and on this factual basis he editorializes in the best tradition of personal journalism." H. N. Smith

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 22 '39 410w

Foreign Affairs 18:372 Ja '40 40w

"Few historians today share Dr. Barnes's sweep of mind and his literary facility. None has his particular knack of making his prose delineate with topographical accuracy the outlines of our far from changeless human relationships. The waste and ugliness and inadequacy in the present scene are scrupulously listed, but we're Pollyanna enough to wonder if there is not more vitality in the American people and in democracy than Dr. Barnes, after his long researches into the evils about us, has remembered. Whatever you think on this point, you will find Society in Transition impressive and provocative." M. L. Elting + Forum 102:iv Ag '39 500w

"What Dr. Barnes possesses are tireless energy, an ability to see the relationships of subjects, each to the other, an earnest awareness of the great crisis of our time, a good sense of historical perspective, a generous sympathy for people who are having a hard time, and a kind of rationalism which reminds one occasionally of the late eighteenth century. . . His defects come partly from the nature of the tasks he sets himself. He tries to cover too much ground, sometimes repeats himself, is occasionally inconsistent, is sometimes so dogmatic that one who really agrees with him feels nevertheless the temptation to ask, 'How do you know?' His chapters are of uneven interest." R. L. Duffus
+ — N Y Times p1 Jl 16 '39 1400w
Pratt p6 autumn '39

"Our chief criticism is that the author too frequently oversimplifies or allows his vigorous style to sacrifice necessary 'probablies' to the cause of social action. . . These dissents are, however, of more academic than practical moment. In any case, the book deserves more widespread reading than it will probably get." R. V. Bowers
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:10 Jl 29 '39 700w

"A veritable encyclopedia of social pathology. Fortunately, Barnes has succeeded in injecting his own peculiar vigor and freshness in the tedious compilation of innumerable facts. Consequently it would be difficult to over-praise this book, for it represents not only tireless research in a complex field but intelligent, careful and brilliant reporting, which takes its place as one of the leading introductions to our current social headaches." J. S. Roucek
+ Survey G 28:698 N '39 150w

BARNES, IRSTON ROBERT, ed. Cases on public utility regulation. 984p $7; text ed $5 Crofts

380.16 Public utilities—U.S. 38-31414

"One hundred and sixty-two cases bearing on public utility regulation are herein presented in all their essential parts, together with many dissenting opinions. An introductory note in each chapter outlines the nature of the regulatory problems and their relation to other phases of utility regulation. To facilitate a study of related cases, cross references are inserted in the various chapters; every chapter also contains references to parallel readings in commonly available texts and treatises." (Management R) Bibliography. Index.

Am Econ R 28:811 D '38 170w

"In spite of the limitations imposed by the nature of the materials themselves for the forging of an adequate instrument for guidance in the solution of the complex problems which must be faced in a course in public utility economics, this splendidly arranged volume of up-to-date cases serves a most useful purpose in making readily available the important legal material in the field." J. L. Tierney
+ J Pol Econ 47:599 Ag '39 600w
Management R 27:394 N '38 70w

BARNETT, GRACE TRELEVEN, and BARNETT, OLIVE ELIZABETH. Grasshopper gold; il. by the authors. 89p map $1.50 Oxford

39-27711

The twins Jon and Emma and their father and mother journey to Fort Benton, Montana, from St Louis. The time is 1866 and the trip is two months long on the river boat. Good background of pioneer life for children in grades four to five.

Booklist 36:46 O 1 '39

"It makes an excellent semi-mystery, semi-historical story for children under ten or so." M. L. Becker
+ Books p32 N 12 '39 220w

BARNETT, GRACE TRELEVEN, and BARNETT, OLIVE ELIZABETH. Silver in the teapot. [45p] il $1.50 Lothrop

38-17280

"Attractive drawings and story for little children of how the little old lady found she could see the bottom of the teapot through the silver pieces, went from neighbor to neighbor for advice and what happened then." Horn Bk M

Horn Bk M 14:296 S '38 40w
Wis Lib Bul 34:204 D '38

BARNETT, STELLA ODELL. Illustrated hymn talks; how to sing and talk with chalk; devotionals by Susan Adams. 90p il $1.25 Revell

245.2 Hymns. Chalk talks 38-30644

An explanation of the method of illustrating hymns with colored chalk pictures. The book is illustrated with the author's own drawings and suggestions for hymn talks, based upon eighteen hymns, and a few secular songs. For Sunday school and church workers.

"This volume is limited in scope and considers only the specific matter of illustrating hymns by pictures. There could be a wider use of this method." R. K. Mott
Boston Transcript p5 Ap 22 '39 40w
Christian Century 55:1162 S 28 '38 10w

BARNWELL, MRS MILDRED GWIN. Faces we see [phot. by Bill Baker]. 112p map $3 Southern combed yarn spinners assn, 601 Bank of commerce bldg, Gastonia, N.C.

331.76772 Cotton mills. Labor and laboring classes—North Carolina 39-30523

Presents in text and photograph the life of self-respecting workers in some of the Southern textile mills. The pictures show the workers as well-fed and well-clothed.

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 20 '40 40w

"Mrs. Barnwell has written in liveliness and conviction a picture of Southern workers who, as a group, are as intelligent and as pleasant to behold as any similar workers anywhere, who are, indeed, of the same stock as the mill owners. And I doubt if her propaganda on the Right is any more distorted than the propaganda on the Left which is called realism. This romance of the yarn spinners is not the whole truth, but it is as much truth as is usually presented by any on the Right or Left who tell only one side of a tale." Jonathan Daniels
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 13 '40 250w

BARRETT, ALFRED. Mint by night. 66p $1.50 America press

811 38-34359

"We have here the first collection of the poems of a recently ordained Jesuit. But as no member of his society is ordained while still very young (Father Barrett is thirty-two), the work offered us is all fully mature. This poet clearly knows how to use his tools." Commonweal

Cath World 148:758 Mr '39 210w

"Though all the poems may be read with pleasure, the one that is in a class by itself is that which gives its title to this collection. Here is something worthy a place in almost any anthology." J. K. Merton
+ Commonweal 29:54 N 4 '38 270w

BARRETT, CHARLES LESLIE. Koonwarra; a naturalist's adventures in Australia. 315p il $3 (8s 6d) Oxford

919.4 Australia—Description and travel. Zoology—Australia

A rambling, informal account of the author's experiences during forty years when his avoca-

BARRETT, C. L.—Continued
tion was the study of Australia's fauna. The title of the book is an aboriginal name for the black swan. Index.

"Mr. Barrett's observation is as keen as his range is wide. Though he speaks with authority, he can spin a cheery yarn. His unassuming half-colloquial style is well suited to revealing the secrets of bush, desert, and beach." G. I.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 24 '39 270w

"A fascinating record." C. H. Grattan
+ N Y Times p32 D 10 '39 500w

"Nothing escapes the notice of this trained naturalist, who writes without sentimentality in spite of being such an ardent lover of wild life that he has always used a camera instead of a gun. Some two-score excellent pictures testify to his skill with the former. Nearly a dozen additional photographs by H. T. Reeves and others are included. Among these are striking portraits of the spotted cuscus, the spiny anteater, a baby wombat, the tree-kangaroo, mother and son koalas, and the bearded dragon." C. H. Pope
+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 N 4 '39 340w

"Australia is a country of emphasis and contrasts, and though Mr. Barrett paints in these high lights with a generous brush he remembers also the lesser creatures that are with him daily—mouse and beetle and ant and such small deer. It is a wonderful miscellany, told with a vivid pen and illustrated by most beautiful photographs."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p756 D 30 '39 600w

BARRETT, WILLIAM E. Flight from youth. 215p $1.75 Lippincott
39-23870

On a sudden impulse, an American youth who has never to his knowledge piloted an airplane, takes a ship up and while in the air remembers his former life. In the World war he had been an aviator. When he was killed in action his last thought was that he must return to the girl he loved. The reincarnated British aviator is at last reunited with his lost Barbara.

"If the plot seems crazily bizarre, I can only say that Mr. Barrett lends to it a very moving power of feeling and a good semblance of plausibility. That he is a trifle sentimental is both true and regrettable, but that hardly weighs importantly against the fact that he has told an original and engrossing story. His re-creation of wartime London is superb. So is his subtle analysis of the difficulties which confront the reunited Barbara and Terence. . . 'Flight From Youth' has something new to offer. It touches one emotionally, if a little spuriously. It very nearly compels one to believe the incredible." E. H. Walton
+ N Y Times p7 O 29 '39 700w

"This sort of melodrama has to be awfully good to be any good at all; the characters must be completely credible to make interesting so incredible a situation. But Mr. Barrett's Terence and Barbara come out of the novelist's stock-room with a serial number, docile puppets restricted to a few large conventional gestures and speeches, and the spectators are not taken in by their mimic joys or agonies." K. S.
— Sat R of Lit 20:39 O 14 '39 160w

BARRIE, SIR JAMES MATTHEW, bart. M'Connachie and J. M. B.; speeches; with a pref. by Hugh Walpole. 254p $2.50 Scribner [7s 6d Davies]
825 39-8512

A collection of all the speeches of J. M. Barrie which the publishers have been able to gather, with the exception of Courage and The Entrancing Life, which have already been brought out separately. The speeches cover the period from 1893 to 1935.

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 25 '39 130w

"Those who love Barrie are grateful that every scrap of his writing is in a fair way to be preserved. These speeches of his are worthy of his repute, however large may have been the element of extempore in their preparation. The flavor is there." E. C. S.
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 My 6 '39 550w
N Y Times p2 Mr 26 '39 550w
New Yorker 15:87 Mr 25 '39 20w
Pratt p20 autumn '39

"There is an inevitable sparkle in all these speeches. One may not be interested in each separate occasion, yet one can hardly fail to be charmed with the always appropriate remarks, short or lengthy, that Barrie contributed to the occasion."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 My 16 '39 330w

"Barrie is not seen here, as in 'The Greenwood Hat,' bound to escape into fantasy because all real life was so empty or so painful. There is sorrow and even bitterness in this book; but there is less of the unexpressed, fundamental, pervading disappointment."
Times [London] Lit Sup p743 N 19 '38 800w
Wis Lib Bul 35:142 Jl '39

BARRY, PHILIP. Here come the clowns; a play in three acts. 192p $2 Coward-McCann 812

Drama based upon the author's novel War in Heaven (Book Review Digest, 1938). It is a tragic story of the contending forces of good and evil, played out in the back room of a cafe popular with vaudeville actors.

Booklist 36:129 D 1 '39
Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p8 Ja 21 '40 180w

"Both the dialogue and the situations are highly effective in a rather lurid and theatrical way. . . But it is unfortunate that a playwright, of all people, should not understand that human life and suffering as an artist can picture them are far more interesting mysteries than any likely to be revealed by the speculations of an amateur theologian." J. W. Krutch
+ — Nation 147:700 D 24 '38 750w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by Stark Young
New Repub 97:230 D 28 '38 1100w

BARTH, KARL. The church and the political problem of our day. 87p $1 Scribner [pa 2s Hodder]
261.7 Church and state in Germany. Germany—Nazi movement [39-24678]

"No book more entirely the outcome of the political situation in Europe today could be imagined than Professor Karl Barth's latest volume. It boldly faces the question Has the Christian Church any duty in face of National Socialism? And the answer that it gives is that the message which the Church is bound to deliver and the fundamental doctrines of National Socialism are wholly irreconcilable and that therefore the Church not merely may but must pray and work for 'the suppression and casting out of National Socialism.'" Manchester Guardian

Boston Transcript p5 O 7 '39 220w
Christian Century 56:1211 O 4 '39 60w
Reviewed by B. S. Easton
Churchman 153:18 N 15 '39 100w
Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold
Commonweal 31:271 Ja 12 '40 200w
Reviewed by Peter Green
Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 15 '39 600w

"The Christian Church is not rich in prophets today. But there is one man on whom the mantle of prophecy has descended; one man who, striving to see the world's problems as it may be supposed God sees them, is compelled by a Divine urgency to utter words of warning and of judgment, whether the people will hear or whether they will forbear. That man is Karl Barth. The directness of his vision and the courage of his utterance have by themselves lifted him out of the grey ranks of theological professors and compromising ecclesiastics to a position of unique authority." A. S. Duncan-Jones

+ Spec 163:297 Ag 25 '39 600w

"The outstanding figure in the German theological world, himself a sufferer for righteousness' sake, throws down the gauntlet boldly. Professor Barth's theological writing is usually involved. This lecture is crystal clear. The conflict, for him, is between God and Satan, and the Church may not be neutral."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p448 Jl 29 '39 400w

BARTH, KARL. The knowledge of God and the service of God; according to the teaching of the reformation; tr. by J. L. M. Haire and Ian Henderson. 255p $5 Scribner [12s 6d Hodder]

238.5 Scottish confession of faith, 1560. Theology, Doctrinal [39-13498]

"When Karl Barth was invited to deliver the Gifford Lectures on natural theology at the University of Aberdeen he was confronted by a dilemma. Personally he holds that there is no such thing as natural theology. . . Evidently two procedures were open to him. Either he might portray the vanities of the so-called natural theology, or he might content himself with an exposition of his own revealed theology as a foil against which any one who chose to do so might compare the contrary type of thinking. He selected the latter course, and by a clever move took the text for each of his lectures from successive articles of the Scottish Confession of the year 1560." Books

"Readers who may have found some of Barth's previous works difficult to comprehend will be surprised and gratified to find here a thoroughly readable and understandable presentation. The sobering effect of duty to a historical document has left its mark upon his language, which is strikingly free from those obscure, extravagant and paradoxical phrases that grace so many pages of his earlier works. Here everything is said in straightforward and intelligible fashion." S. J. Case

+ Books p10 Je 4 '39 400w

Boston Transcript p5 F 3 '40 500w

"The volume is heartily recommended as a summary of much which Barth has already written. It should tend to clarify his basic theology." G. W. Davis

+ Crozer Q 17:75 Ja '40 750w

"It is Christians who will feel most intensely the challenge of this book. And those who, here and there, will be in sharpest opposition, will hold, and not unreasonably, that Barth reads into their positions implications which they would refuse. But it is Christians, all Christians, who will feel at times that Barth speaks for them as an interpreter of their profoundest convictions." J. K. Mozley

+ Spec 162:25 Ja 6 '39 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p752 N 26 '38 1050w

BARTLETT, FREDERIC CHARLES, and others, eds. Study of society; methods and problems. 498p $3.50 Macmillan [10s 6d Routledge]

301.8 Social psychology. Sociology—Methodology. Anthropology 40-2185

"Since the autumn of 1935, a competent group of British psychologists, anthropologists and sociologists, ultimately twenty-three in number, has been meeting twice yearly in discussion. . . This book comprising nineteen chapters written by seventeen members of the group, is the outcome of their deliberations. Each chapter, we are told in the preface, 'was first written by the group member whose name appears at its head. It was then duplicated and sent to all the other group members, so that it could be criticized and discussed at the next meeting of the group. . . The purpose of the book, the preface explains, is to offer guidance to would-be investigators of social problems who 'ask "What shall we do?" and "How shall we do it?" ' " (Nature) Index.

"This [is a] unique, invaluable book."

+ Nature 144:685 O 21 '39 1300w

"There is no need to stress the enormous importance of a handy volume of this sort. For the breadth of topics covered, that is to say really covered, not just mentioned, it has in the literature of the social sciences no equal. . . In a generally excellent book the last section appears to be the weakest, but, be it remarked, the present reviewer is a sociologist." E. Y. Hartshorne

+ — Social Studies 31:91 F '40 250w

BARTLETT, HENRIETTA COLLINS, and POLLARD, ALFRED WILLIAM, eds. Census of Shakespeare's plays in quarto, 1594-1709; revised and extended by Henrietta C. Bartlett. 165p $10 Yale univ. press

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Bibliography 39-24284

"Professor Alfred W. Pollard's 'Census of Shakespeare's Plays in Quarto, 1594-1709,' [was] the first census to list any of the separate editions after 1640. It appeared in 1916, but since then many volumes have changed hands, others have been found, and scholars have come to new decisions, so now Miss Bartlett has brought the work up to date. Every known copy of each edition and issue of Shakespeare's plays within the dates mentioned is minutely described in the new revised edition, its provenance traced and its present location noted. The index and the list of Quartos now unfindable contains a useful mass of collateral information, including a list with explanatory notes of the names of every owner, bookseller, auctioneer or binder mentioned in the census." (N Y Times) Index.

"Here is the last word in bibliographical information, and scholars, collectors, and reference libraries will find the revised census indispensable."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 13 '40 80w

"The amount of labor involved is enormous and the book will be of incalculable value to librarians, Shakespeare collectors and students of this period." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p33 N 19 '39 230w

BARTON, FREDERICK BUSHNELL. Photography as a hobby; with ll. by Don Wootton. 144p $2 Harper

770 Photography (W) 39-13618

Advice for the amateur photographer, with two special chapters on Photography for women, and Making money with your camera. Partial contents: Photography can be a thrifty hobby; What kind of camera should you buy? The candid camera; and Making enlargements; Color photography; Making better home movies; Holding down the cost. Index.

Booklist 35:360 Jl 1 '39

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '39

"Hitherto amateur photography has been pretty generally coeducational. But Mr. Barton accords the ladies the questionable honor of a chapter all their own. . . This chapter for women only is a masterpiece of inspirational

BARTON, F. B.—Continued
crescendo. The world has long awaited a distaff counterpart for the ringing assurance that 'You are a man, my son.' " E. F. Hall
+ N Y Times p31 O 22 '39 160w

"An excellent book to get a beginner started or to stimulate new interest in one who has grown sluggish."
+ Wis Lib Bul 35:109 Je '39

BARZUN, JACQUES. Of human freedom. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 334p $2.50 Little 321 Democracy. Liberty (W) 39-27843

"A pointed and eminently reasonable defence of democracy, which the author thinks of as an atmosphere or temper rather than a political doctrine. Mr. Barzun makes shrewd attacks on all forms of absolutism—political, scientific, and educational." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 36:81 N 1 '39

Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Books p2 O 15 '39 1550w

Reviewed by Daniel Aaron
Boston Transcript p1 S 30 '39 700w

"Barzun has written as spirited a depiction of the human meaning of pragmatism as ever came from the pen of William James. It is interesting and provocative from beginning to end." Harold Bosley
+ Christian Century 56:1339 N 1 '39 850w

Reviewed by J. G. Kerwin
Commonweal 31:171 D 8 '39 300w
J Philos 37:22 Ja 4 '40 250w

"Mr. Barzun has all the reasonableness, at once gay and tough which we have learned to associate with the French tradition. He is well informed; he is interested in everything—art, education, psychology; he never says anything silly. Is it then only the weather that, in the face of so much sweetness and light, still makes me feel a hungry sheep who has not been fed? . . The truth is that Mr. Barzun makes democracy sound respectable and easy; a little more intelligence and good-will all around, a little less laziness, and we shall be all right. I am sure that Mr. Barzun personally knows as well as I do that faith in democracy is an enthusiastic, disreputable, and ascetic faith. Its ton, as Madame du Deffand would say, is affreux." W. H. Auden
+ — Nation 149:386 O 7 '39 850w

"This is a provocative and often baffling book. The tough-minded will get much mental exercise out of it. It will probably have its effects on other writers and thinkers and it may be one of the symptoms of the turning of the intellectual tide away from pure emotionalism and action for action's sake into more rational channels. At least this is a possibility if we are not drowned in the backwash of Europe's passions." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p1 S 17 '39 1350w

"Tonic reading these days."
+ New Yorker 15:83 S 16 '39 40w

"The book exhibits a competence seldom associated with its subject and sparkles with eminently quotable apothegms. Though its excessive stimulation comes from the pointedness of many thumbtacks rather than the profundity of a single hatpin, no person can better nurture his intellectual life than by reading it immediately. A reviewer wedded to the relativism which the author insists upon can offer no higher praise." Robert Bierstedt
+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 S 16 '39 650w

Reviewed by E. N. Anderson
Social Educ 4:68 Ja '40 600w

BASSETT, JOHN SPENCER. A short history of the United States, 1492-1938; 3d ed. rev. and enl. by Richard H. Bassett. 1039p maps $4 Macmillan
973 U.S.—History (W) 39-12565

The first edition of this book was published more than twenty-five years ago (Book Review Digest, 1913). "The present revised edition has been prepared with two main purposes in mind: first to provide it with as complete an account of recent American history as space will allow and, second, to correct the original narrative as written by Professor Bassett, wherever new evidence suggests a different emphasis. . . In the current revision a chapter has been added on the social history of the United States from 1865 to 1914, and a portion of a chapter on social life in the period since the World War. And in the revised discussion of events since 1918 economic forces have come up for examination more frequently than in earlier periods." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 35:348 Je 15 '39

" 'A Short History of the United States, 1492-1938,' while not without limitations, affords further proof that students today are being provided with a meaty and impartial type of textbook on the history of their country." E. N. Jenckes
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 5 '39 950w

BASSETT, SAMUEL ELIOT. The poetry of Homer. 273p $2.50 Univ. of Calif. [12s 6d Cambridge]
883.1 Homer 39-28064

This book contains the substance of lectures prepared for delivery at the University of California, but because of Professor Bassett's death in December, 1936, never given. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 2 '39 400w
New Repub 100:321 O 18 '39 30w

BASSETT, SARA WARE. A son of the sea. 270p $2 Doubleday
39-27552

A gentle story of present-day Cape Cod, in which a New York magazine publisher, worn out with the hurry and flurry of the city, returns to the little Cape Cod town from which his people came, there to rest and recuperate.

Booklist 35:365 Jl 1 '39

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p11 Je 25 '39 100w

"The vagaries of romance and of publishing make an amusing tale. But while the magazine episode comes to a definitely satisfactory conclusion, the romantic interest is so resolved that the door is left wide open for a welcome sequel." B. S.
+ N Y Times p7 Je 11 '39 220w

"Miss Bassett's newest novel, in its genteel English slang and its absence of contemporary insecurity, tenseness, and quickness, belongs in those great days of the Atlantic Monthly which preceded the Civil War. It was designed for that saintly white-haired grandmother who in advertisements is all day sitting and knitting and dreaming; it is tender, conventional and unreal as she." K. S.
Sat R of Lit 20:20 Jl 1 '39 280w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 30 '39 220w

BASSO, HAMILTON. Days before Lent. 371p $2.50 Scribner
(W) 39-27772

The scene is New Orleans, the time the last few days before Lent. Young Dr Jason Kent, a bacteriologist, is faced with a problem, to choose a research career in far-off India under his beloved master, or to accept a high-salaried position in a commercial laboratory and marry the girl he loves. In the few days covered by the story, other lives close to his own also reach decisive points, and Jason finds a third alternative offered.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson Library Bulletin 14:186 O '39

Booklist 36:68 O 15 '39

"In spite of the platform manners and soapbox orations that dominate its pages, 'Days Before Lent' breathes a fiery and vitalizing spirit. And when Mr. Basso gets round to writing in terms of action—about plagues and newspaper stories and carnivals and murders—he is somebody to reckon with." William Soskin

+ — Books p4 Ag 6 '39 850w

Reviewed by Regina Madden

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 5 '39 500w

"Like Aldous Huxley, Mr. Basso has mixed a good deal of essay material into his novel, so that the book, as a novel is not very successful. It is my private opinion that the novel's main justification resides in its peculiar suitability to the delineation of character. A novel, as such, should not particularly concern itself with ideas." Harry Sylvester

Commonweal 30:501 S 22 '39 500w

Reviewed by Helen Neville

Nation 149:273 S 9 '39 330w

"Mr. Basso writes with both wit and elo quence; and 'Days Before Lent' is the best novel of a man who has already written a good novel in 'Cinnamon Seed' and fair-to-middling ones in 'In Their Own Image' and 'Courthouse Square.'" John Chamberlain

+ New Repub 100:25 Ag 9 '39 1250w

"It is a curiously healthy novel, and the secret of its health is Jason Kent, who is one of the most charming characters in American fiction since Leora Arrowsmith." Alfred Kazin

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 6 '39 1000w

New Yorker 15:55 Ag 12 '39 60w

Pratt p22 winter '40

"The book begins crudely, but, as it progresses, gains in narrative power. And at the end we are aware of a writer who may lack such poetic insights as a Thomas Wolfe or a William Faulkner, but has a resource never theirs in a quality of genuine intellect, rooted in actuality." Evelyn Scott

+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 Ag 5 '39 270w

"Part of the story has the Mardi gras for a background. Mr Basso supplies all the color of a wonderful, ridiculous and somewhat sordid pageant. . . Despite imperfections, the book is arresting in its colorful background, its convincing characters, its tense problems, its appealing Dr Jason Kent." M. D.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 13 '39 650w

BATEMAN, JOHN HENRY. Introduction to highway engineering; a textbook for students of civil engineering. 3d ed 442p il $4 Wiley [20s Chapman]

625.7 Roads. Pavements 39-3061

Third edition of a textbook which first appeared some years ago (Book Review Digest, 1928; second edition in 1934). "Many changes have been made in the original material, and a large amount of new material has been added. The order of presentation has also been changed. Detailed descriptions of laboratory procedure, test methods, the proportioning of concrete mixtures, surveying operations, and the design of bridges have been avoided." (Pref. to 3d ed) Index.

Booklist 35:234 Mr 15 '39

"One of the best textbooks on highway engineering that has been written. . . The references for supplementary reading on these subjects [soils mechanics and bituminous materials] are particularly valuable."

+ Eng N 122:72 Mr 30 '39 80w

BATEN, WILLIAM DOWELL. Elementary mathematical statistics. 338p $3 Wiley [15s Chapman]

311.2 Mathematical statistics 38-32385

"This book was written primarily for students interested in statistics who have not studied differential and integral calculus. It attempts to develop formulas and fundamental relations by the use of very simple algebra, trigonometry, and analytical geometry. Each bit of theory is illustrated by an example. The book contains many problems for students to solve. . . Where theory requires advanced mathematics, examples are given to point out the plausibleness of the theory and to furnish information which should make the theory more acceptable. These examples should help students bridge difficult gaps between theory and application." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by Oskar Lange

Am J Soc 44:766 Mr '39 300w

"Dr. Baten's work will undoubtedly be criticized as too narrow by those who desire a compilation of methods, and such criticism would not be entirely unjust. . . The discussion of correlation is very full, but leaves one wondering whether a discussion of regressions would not have been of more value. To the research worker and the student, therefore, the book is not to be recommended for uncritical use. To the teacher, however, it should prove of value, as the approach to many of the questions raised is of attractive simplicity." K. M.

Nature 143:960 Je 10 '39 150w

BATES, MRS DAISY. The passing of the aborigines; a lifetime spent among the natives of Australia; with a foreword by Sir George Murray; and an introd. by Arthur Mee. 258p il map $3 Putnam [10s 6d Murray, J]

572.994 Australia—Native races [39-3376]

The author is an Irishwoman who, nearly forty years ago, was sent out to Australia by the editor of the London Times. For many years she lived with the aborigines, studying their ways, helping them in sickness, feeding them and clothing them, always honoring their ancient traditions. Now, long past seventy, she has recorded the experiences and observations of those years in this book. Index.

"Mrs. Bates is probably a great figure in Australia, bound to become a national legend. Voluntarily she has shouldered a fantastic amount of physical labor and hardship. She has undergone deprivations as grandiose and sometimes as needless as hair shirts and saintly sacrifices. She is worthy of becoming a legend, and it is regrettable that half her book fails to give the raw materials of glory a more digestible form." George Herzog

Boston Transcript p1 S 2 '39 320w

"Her book is engrossing to read, it is written unpretentiously, and is delightful." V. S. Pritchett

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 14 '38 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '39

"Her story is closely packed with sketches of aboriginal life in its dying stages; but its epic quality, which gives it a claim to be considered great literature, lies in the revelation of a character in which devotion to a high ideal is joined to the practical wisdom and the undaunted courage, physical and moral, needed to attain it." E. N. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p5 D 23 '38 200w

New Repub 100:167 S 13 '39 60w

"Unfortunately some cause, perhaps her modesty, has prevented the book from being the fascinating record for which one would look. Through a glass darkly we perceive that she is one of the most remarkable and noble women known to history. Her sympathy and understanding reveal very rare virtues of heart and head. (She has been able to love women who made a habit of eating their own children.) Although her book gives so dim a picture of her fabulous career, it can honestly be recommended to all whose faith in human nature is being disintegrated by modern Europe."

+ — New Statesman & Nation 17:28 Ja 7 '39 180w

"It is a book packed with vivid interest in surprising variety."

+ N Y Times p20 O 1 '39 480w

BATES, DAISY—Continued
Reviewed by A. B. V. Drew
Spec 162:29 Ja 6 '39 490w
Times [London] Lit Sup p76 F 4 '39 350w

BATES, FRANK GREENE, and FIELD, OLIVER PETER. State government. rev ed 561p $3.50 Harper
353.9 State governments 39-27773

"Recent developments in national-state and interstate relations, and in administrative services, are covered in this revision, and there is a new chapter on city government. The earlier edition was entered in Booklist 25:105, D 28." Booklist

"The book is a balanced piece of craftsmanship produced by two well-known and respected scholars and teachers. The style is clear and understandable, thus making for that quality which teachers sometimes refer to as 'teachability.' At the same time, the book satisfies the dictates of polished and scholarly style. The subject matter, both as to content and as to arrangement, conforms to accepted practice." J. M. Pfiffner
+ Ann Am Acad 207:220 Ja '40 300w
Booklist 36:71 O 15 '39

BATES, LESLIE FLEETWOOD. Modern magnetism. 340p $4.50 Macmillan [16s Cambridge]
538 Magnetism [39-29938]

"'A strong endeavor has been made to present an account of modern magnetic theory which, it is hoped, will be readily understood by students of physics and also followed without undue difficulty by more general readers. The opportunity has been taken of including a large body of experimental work, much of foreign origin, which is of importance to all interested in industrial applications of magnetic materials. . . I have been compelled to make an arbitrary selection of material to some extent, but care has been taken to include accounts of all essential matter which a student cannot readily find elsewhere. It has been thought best, however, to exclude galvano-magnetic and most magneto-optic phenomena.'" N Y New Tech Bks

"Though the book, if considered alone, might seem to give a rather ill-balanced survey of the field of magnetism, when considered in relation to other books, it is just this lack of balance which makes it a most useful addition to the literature of the subject. The author's own work has been very varied, and in writing of experimental technique, he includes information of a kind which could only have been gained from practical experience. The book will be particularly valuable to those carrying out experimental work on magnetism." E. C. S.
+ Nature 144:399 S 2 '39 450w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:40 Jl '39

BATES, RALPH. Sirocco, and other stories [Eng title: Miraculous horde]. 388p $2.50 Random house [7s 6d Cape, J]
(W) 39-27018

Short stories of Spain varying in length and intensity, and ranging in time from the last years of the Monarchy, thru the Republic to the Civil war in 1937. The title-story is long enough to count as a short novel. Contents: The launch; Sing, comrade; Bread; The unreaped field; The quince; The birth of a man; Comrade Vila; Sirocco; Jarama ballad; Brunete ballad; Guadarrama ballad; The yoke; 43rd division.

Booklist 35:205 F 15 '39

"Few non-Spanish writers in our day know Spain as Ralph Bates knows it. He has worked in it as a laborer, roamed up and down its roads, fought in its civil war. . . But beyond that knowledge he brings to his work one of the most exciting talents in world fiction today. . . Bates is that anomaly—a social-minded novelist with a genuine creative imagination. He brings to the epic of our day's disillusion the finest resources of contemporary fiction." Alfred Kazin
+ Books p3 F 12 '39 1250w
Reviewed by Thomas Moult
Manchester Guardian p3 O 24 '39 230w

"Mr. Bates is so uneven a writer that it is impossible to pass a comprehensive critical judgment on his book as a whole. . . His best stories seem lighted up from within; his worst are dull, circuitous, coreless." Louis Kronenberger
+ — Nation 148:235 F 25 '39 550w
Reviewed by James Benét
New Repub 98:53 F 15 '39 360w

"Mr. Bates' mind is insistently on the side of order, moderation and the civil service, but his feelings are not so well controlled, and it is the bomb-throwing, blood-lusting men of action who attract his most passionate writing. But whatever your opinion of the feelings behind it, The Miraculous Horde contains a subtlety, a vigour and a recurrent brilliance that will still further enhance its author's already considerable reputation. It may serve a useful purpose, too, in reminding us that even the most blatant propaganda can nevertheless be literature." John Mair
+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:377 S 9 '39 600w

"All his work, to the least of these stories, bears the imprint of his peculiar and original quality. It is motivated by a fine passionate and compassionate love of humanity, in frailty and in aspiration; and it is dominated by the stern demand for resolution and action. The important elements in all his work are people—people of all kinds, not tempered thought, not abstractions, not even a cause." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p7 F 12 '39 900w

"Nothing the author of 'Lean Men' and 'The Olive Field' does, whether he writes about Spain or fights for it, should be ignored. Ralph Bates is one of the few Englishmen the decade has thrown up who impress the reader as having a strong, almost rocklike literary personality. Everything is in favor of his writing a great book, perhaps the classic novel of the Spanish civil war. . . Mr Bates suffers perhaps from an exuberance of talent, but he moves always in the direction of concision, clarity, and a noble plainness. One fears to make such judgments, but he appears to me to sound a major note." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 14:80 F 11 '39 500w
Pratt p30 spring '39

"When Ralph Bates gave himself to Spain he made a free and loving gift of an English pen that has few peers today. He belongs to that small company of authors who, while responding passionately and with tender understanding to the life of their own times, are writing unforgettably." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 19:5 F 11 '39 600w

"Ten years ago Ralph Bates was just another energetic, down-and-out, class-conscious workingman, while Ernest Hemingway was an energetic, up-and-coming, self-conscious writing man. Today, Bates's Spanish civil war stories are better than Hemingway's. Bates lived revolution; when it came, he could almost write it with his eyes shut. . . The 13 stories in Sirocco follow the pattern of [his] experiences. With superb characterizations, plenty of dash, touches of sympathy, they add up to something more than Hemingway's bloodlettings."
+ Time 33:70 F 13 '39 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p525 S 9 '39 400w

"Mr. Bates knows the people and the country (notably the area within the Pyrenees) as probably no other Englishman now alive; and certainly no other Englishman has written of them with at once more understanding and honest skill. This book . . may seem to ask a good deal of the reader, but it is substantially and superbly wrought." Ralph Thompson
+ Yale R n s 28:xii spring '39 160w

BATES, ROBERT H., ed. Five miles high; [by Robert H. Bates and others]. 381p il maps $4 Dodd

915.42 Karakoram range. Mountaineering. K2 (mountain) (W) 39-27963

An account of the attack on K2, second highest peak in the world, by the members of the First American Karakoram expedition. Four of the six climbers contribute chapters to this book, Charles S. Houston, doctor and leader, Richard L. Burdsall, Robert H. Bates, and William P. House. Tho the summit was not reached, two climbers reached 26,000 feet, and the expedition attained its main objective, determination of a possible and probably the best route to the top.

Booklist 36:131 D 1 '39

"These Americans and their British companion have succeeded in translating into words the lasting exaltation awakened in men as they labor to get nearer to the sky. And they have given its latter chapters some heart-stopping moments, which place it among books for those who are proof against high altitudes even when experienced vicariously." R. G. Doyle

+ Books p5 D 24 '39 1150w

Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 180w

"Nearly all books of real mountaineering are worth reading, if one is interested in adventure, both for their spirit and for their achievements. This American chronicle takes its place beside the best."

+ N Y Times p30 D 3 '39 550w

BATSFORD, HARRY, and FRY, CHARLES. The English cottage. (English countryside ser) 125p il $3 Scribner [7s 6d Batsford]

728.6 Cottages. Architecture, Domestic—England 39-7534

"For the purposes of this useful book . . . 'cottage' is understood to mean the home of the rural labourer, craftsman and smallholder, excluding the yeoman and the farmer, whose dwellings form a subject in themselves. Describing cottages justly as 'common-sense buildings,' the authors follow the subject from the later Middle Ages to the nineteenth century, the different structural methods being treated in separate chapters, each devoted to the technique derived from a material. There are chapters on the cottage interior and its garden, with remarks on cottage life and folk through the centuries." Times [London] Lit Sup

"As usual with the series to which this belongs, beautiful and well reproduced photographs are the prime attraction."

+ Books p18 Ap 2 '39 120w

"The purpose of the book is to draw attention to fast lessening numbers of these examples of native craftsmanship, always interesting and nearly always beautiful, which still belong to us and to make us sensible of their value. This worthy object both the letterpress and the photographs amply achieve." C. H. R.

+ Manchester Guardian p5 D 23 '38 220w

"The most comprehensive [book] on the subject yet issued. . . . The photographic illustrations are a joy in themselves, and the line drawings explaining construction are models of clearness."

Times [London] Lit Sup p830 D 31 '38 170w

BAUER, JOHN, and GOLD, NATHANIEL. The electric power industry; development, organization, and public policies; with the technical cooperation of Alfred E. Shaw. 347p $3.50 Harper

380.166 Electric power. Electric utilities 39-13823

"This book is an attempt to present the electric power industry in its basic public setting; to outline the underlying factors of its development and technical progress; to describe its corporate, financial, and managerial organization; to suggest guiding principles and public policies necessary to correct existing abuses and to promote full and healthy growth of this paramount public service for the future. These matters have been presented in nontechnical language; the more technical points are confined largely to footnotes. The book may serve as a text or as special reading in courses for engineers and students of economics." (Pref) Index.

"There will be disagreement with some of the authors' conclusions, which might well be supported by more rigid analysis; and the study is marred in places by unnecessary repetition; but all who are concerned with the public-utility problem should read the book. Though hardly suitable as a text for courses in public utilities, the study should find a place on reading lists for any course in economics especially concerned with the working of private enterprise in industries affected with a public interest." T. C. Bigham

+ — Am Econ R 29:861 D '39 650w

"This critic has rarely met such a convincing discussion of any subject. This book is highly recommended to all those who are interested in the progressive development of the United States. It is more than a clear and definitive textbook, it is an answer to a basic problem." Michael Mayer

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 24 '39 360w

Wis Lib Bul 35:182 N '39

BAUER, WILLIAM WALDO, and EDGLEY, LESLIE. Your health dramatized; selected radio scripts. 528p $2.25 Dutton

613.07 Hygiene—Drama. Radio plays (W) 39-5714

"The material in this book is adapted from the scripts of the Radio Health Dramatizations broadcast during 1937-1938 by the American Medical Association and the National Broadcasting Company especially for senior high and junior high schools." (Publisher's note) Partial contents: Growing for strength and beauty; Seeing and hearing well; Striving for better bodies; Tuberculosis—foe of youth; Vitamins, minerals and common sense; Milk; Sneezes and sniffles; Living with people. Bibliography.

"For the health officer who has neither the staff nor skill for radio production of professional quality, this volume is a gold mine of accurate and effective programs." P. S. Broughton

+ Am J Pub Health 30:95 Ja '40 300w

Pratt p19 autumn '39

Wis Lib Bul 35:140 Jl '39

BAUM, VICKI. Shanghai '37; tr. by Basil Creighton [Eng title: Nanking road]. 619p $2.75 Doubleday [8s 6d Bles]

(W) 39-27627

A composite or group novel in which the author of Grand Hotel tells the life stories of nine people who were killed when a bomb hit a hotel in Shanghai during an air raid.

Booklist 36:8 S '39

"For a fraction above what you usually pay for one novel, Vicki Baum gives you the substance and excitement of several. 'Shanghai '37' is prodigal in plot and lavish in invention, bringing its characters from the ends of the earth to play their interlocking roles in a melodrama of gore and destruction in China. Miss Baum is never a parsimonious spinner of story, but this narrative walks off with top honors, in geographic as well as emotional scope." Lisle Bell

Books p8 Jl 30 '39 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '39

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson

Manchester Guardian p3 N 17 '39 300w

New Repub 100:196 S 20 '39 60w

BAUM (boum)

BAUM, VICKI—Continued

"The book as a whole is bright and readable. Miss Baum's greatest fault is her obsession with the artificial unities. If she wishes to write about grand hotels, why bother to link the guests together; while if she wishes to describe relationships, why employ such clumsy machinery to bring her characters on the scene?" John Mair

+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:794 D 2 '39 230w

" 'Shanghai '37' strikes me, as the best of Miss Baum's books—better, even, than 'Grand Hotel' and certainly more significant. While there is much that is garish and meretricious about the latter half of the book—for Miss Baum is a flamboyant writer, always has been and always will be—there is also much that is rich, solid and acute in the novel as a whole." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p7 Ag 6 '39 800w

"A grand, rousing melodrama. . . Read it now; don't wait for the movie."

New Yorker 15:55 Ag 12 '39 90w

" 'Shanghai '37' must be taken on its own terms and judged for what it is—a melodramatic adventure story peopled by opportunists, neurotics, adventurers, spies, victims of race prejudice, all thrown together intimately in the world's most cosmopolitan city during the most crucial weeks of its history. It is safe to predict that few who start the novel will fail to finish it." R. A. Cordell

Sat R of Lit 20:11 Ag 5 '39 550w

Time 34:52 Jl 31 '39 130w

"Not to waste words on the solemnities of reviewing, [the book] is a triumph of novelist's skill and sympathy."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p653 N 11 '39 900w

BAUMGARTNER, LEONA. John Howard (1726-1790), hospital and prison reformer; a bibliography; with introd. by Arnold M. Muirhead. 79p il $1 Johns Hopkins

012 Howard, John—Bibliography

Comprehensive, annotated bibliography of the life and works of John Howard, English reformer, who was born in London in 1726, and died in Russia while studying conditions in the military hospitals in 1790.

"There were so many editions of Howard's books and so many articles written about him that many difficulties must have presented themselves to Dr. Baumgartner, but she has successfully overcome them and her 'John Howard, a Bibliography' is an excellent example of sound modern scholarship." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p26 O 29 '39 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p508 Ag 26 '39 370w

BAX, EMILY. Miss Bax of the embassy. 311p il $3 Houghton

B or 92 Diplomatic memoirs. U.S.—Foreign relations—Great Britain 39-27300

Reminiscences of an English woman, who from 1902 to 1914 did secretarial work in the American embassy in London. Among the many Americans with whom she came in contact and who figure in the book were Joseph Choate, the Whitelaw Reids, and Walter Page. Index.

Booklist 35:289 My 1 '39

"A high content of sugar and spice enlivens these pages. The demure appearing little shorthand typist kept her sense of humor well sharpened, and her awe of the great men who dominated the Embassy did not blind her to their delightful foibles. . . Miss Bax has told the story so engagingly that one clings to it, chuckling, and comes to its end with a renewed respect for those innocent and hard-working diplomats of yesterday who thought the world could be saved by good manners and peace pacts." Emma Bugbee

+ Books p14 Ap 16 '39 850w

"This volume of reminiscences deals almost entirely with people, which makes it informal, anecdotal and entertaining. . . Because Miss Bax really has a sense of humor, her anecdotes have a point and do not depend for their effectiveness on a liberal sprinkling of prominent names." Charlotte Bassett

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 22 '39 650w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 22 '39 500w

Foreign Affairs 18:171 O '39 20w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 19 '40 200w

"In her dozen years of efficient toil as the first Englishwoman to be employed by the American Embassy [the author] never lost her shrewd, quick wit, her untrammeled appraisal, her humor and warmth. She hasn't lost them now. They flash and glow through her gossipy reminiscences of the desk-tops of diplomatic history, in a rarely delightful book. . . Miss Bax's own criticisms are never even slightly acid. There is no unkindliness in her comment, or ill-nature in her joke. She is even-tempered as she is amusing; and she is always a little detached."

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 9 '39 700w

"It's unimportant, a little indiscreet, amusing."

New Yorker 15:87 Ap 8 '39 40w

Pratt p25 autumn '39

"To write an autobiography pleasantly requires tolerance, humor, and a gift for tenderness. Miss Bax is richly possessed of these three qualities. She loves the past which she describes. Because of this she makes it live again with almost a nostalgic yearning, so that scenes which were once real to her become real to us. . . Miss Bax, without meaning to achieve anything historic, has done a very fine job. She talks too long about things of merely passing interest, but there are moments in her book which should make it a part of the permanent records." Coningsby Dawson

+ Sat R of Lit 19:12 Ap 22 '39 500w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 13 '39 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 13 '40 800w

Wis Lib Bul 35:112 Je '39

BAXTER, ARTHUR BEVERLEY. Destiny called to them. 59p il $1 Oxford

B or 92 George VI, king of Great Britain. Elizabeth, consort of George VI, king of Great Britain 39-14082

Series of photographs of the present King and Queen of England, with brief prose comments.

Boston Transcript p3 Je 10 '39 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 28 '39 350w

BAXTER, EDNA MAY. How our religion began; drawings by Edward F. Dugmore. 197p maps $2.50 Harper

221 Bible. Old Testament. Jews—Religion. Christianity and other religions—Judaism [39-23627]

Background material for the teaching of Bible history. "This book has been written for youth above the age of eleven. It may serve as a book for the home or as a course for juniors, intermediates, or seniors in the church school. For teachers, using this book as a course of study for pupils between the ages of 11 and 16, an edition is available with a final chapter giving teaching suggestions and bibliographies." (Foreword)

"The author skillfully introduces her young readers to the important aspects of the development of civilization as well as of religion,

Some children of eleven may find parts of it a little difficult, but even they will find much to interest them, and for those a little older it should be a source of delight as well as instruction."

+ Christian Century 56:927 Jl 26 '39 140w

Reviewed by E. J. Chave
J Religion 20:95 Ja '40 150w
Living Church 101:9 D 6 '39 60w
Wis Lib Bul 35:161 O '39

BAXTER, WILLIAM JOSEPH. America faces a complete breakdown of government and business. 67p $1.50 Int. economic research bur, 76 William st, N.Y.

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Politics and government 39-781

"The argument and the conclusions may be briefly sketched as follows: The United States, as well as the rest of the world, became 'bankrupt' as a result of the World War. 'Receiverships,' in several instances dictatorships, have been formed. Some form of receivership is in prospect for the United States. State socialism or 'mass production collectivism' lies ahead." Harvard Business R

Foreign Affairs 17:440 Ja '39

"Exception may be taken to some of Mr. Baxter's reasoning and at points he may be rightly accused of exaggeration, but, with all reasonable discount, we have here material which too often is overlooked by economists and business men." J. L. Snider

+ — Harvard Business R 17:374 spring '39 170w

BAYER, HERBERT, and others, eds. See New York. Museum of modern art. Bauhaus, 1919-1928

BAYLOR, MRS EDITH MIRIAM HEDGES, and MONACHESI, ELIO DAVID. The rehabilitation of children. 560p $3.75 Harper

362.73 Children—Charities, protection, etc. Children—Placing out. Child study 39-4444

Textbook on the theory and practice of child placement. It furnishes an analysis of the treatment of problem children, a study of their response to care, and of the child at time of discharge. Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by A. F. Bronner
Am J Soc 45:493 N '39 230w

Reviewed by K. W. Taylor
Am Soc R 4:585 Ag '39 220w

"An interesting, readable, and suggestive volume of twelve chapters and three appendices, dealing with almost as many specific phases of a well-known social work policy in the field of children's work." J. H. S. Bossard

+ Ann Am Acad 205:206 S '39 380w
Booklist 35:245 Ap 1 '39

"This book will prove to be a valuable guide to social agencies and workers, an important textbook of the theory and practice of child placement for schools of social work, and it should serve as a warning to physicians that the status of the social worker is far different from the lowly thing it used to be." Robert Fleming, M.D.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 8 '39 380w

Reviewed by Jacob Kepecs
Survey 75:292 S '39 1200w
Wis Lib Bul 35:98 My '39

BAYNE, SPENCER, pseud. Murder recalls Van Kill. 336p $2 Harper 39-14951

Detective story.

"Unless this department has become confused in the excitement, here is a volume of real weight in its field, and probably just what the public wants at the moment." Will Cuppy

+ Books p9 Je 11 '39 470w

"All the facts and clues are there, but they are so lost in the masses of scholarship that it is almost impossible to locate them. In spite of its numerous brutal killings and near-killings, 'Murder Recalls Van Kill' moves very slowly to its conclusion. It's a fine yarn if you have the time to mull over it." Marian Wiggin

+ — Boston Transcript p3 Je 17 '39 130w

"There may be a good story concealed somewhere in this mess of words, but you can't prove it by us. Why not leave this sort of writing to James Joyce, who really knows how to do it?" Isaac Anderson

— N Y Times p7 Je 18 '39 80w

"There's nothing like a dash of educated hair-raising to get in shape for the approaching dog days. Not for the squeamish."

New Yorker 15:96 Je 10 '39 50w

"Designed for those who can take their erudition neat, language neater, and realism neatest. And the Wunderkind is priceless. High voltage."

Sat R of Lit 20:20 Je 17 '39 40w

BAYNE-POWELL, MRS ROSAMOND. The English child in the eighteenth century. 322p $3.75 Dutton [15s Murray, J]

914.2 Children in England. England—Social life and customs 39-32219

A detailed account of child life in the eighteenth century, based on novels, biographies and diaries of the period. Partial contents: The children of the well-to-do; The children of the poor; Boys' schools; Girls' schools; The law and the child; The child in illness; Amusements, sports and games; Children's books. Index.

"Mrs. Bayne-Powell's volume makes absorbing reading. Its occasional simplicity of mind is part of its charm." Alfred Kazin

+ — Books p2 Jl 30 '39 1450w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 17 '39 100w
Manchester Guardian p6 Jl 21 '39 270w
N Y Times p11 S 17 '39 320w

"Mrs. Bayne-Powell's earlier books, on country life and London life in the eighteenth century, were well received because they garnered so much that was humanly interesting from the major and minor records of the period. This new study is equally successful; like them it is full of interesting revelations, of anecdotes and facts gleaned often from obscure and inaccessible sources; like them it suffers from one shortcoming—its lack of clear ordering."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p374 Je 24 '39 600w

BEACH, REX ELLINGWOOD. Valley of thunder. 326p $2 Farrar 39-25044

A tale of love and adventure laid in modern Alaska.

"It's a lively narrative involving two of man's perennial quests—for gold and a girl. The fist fights are frequent and fully described." Lisle Bell

+ Books p17 O 1 '39 160w
Boston Transcript p2 O 21 '39 140w

"Altogether the best novel that Rex Beach has turned out in recent years." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p29 O 22 '39 280w

BEACH, WALTER GREENWOOD. The growth of social thought. 250p $2 Scribner

301 Sociology—History 39-7921

Twenty-one brief chapters giving an interpretation of social thought from Socrates to John Dewey. The book has two unifying principles: to show how social thought has been related to social control and to education; and to show how historical factors have influenced social thought. Selected bibliography. Index.

BEACH, W. G.—Continued

"An excellent little book. . . In fact, The Growth of Social Thought is so brief and so simply written that it could be used as outline or supplementary text for a part of a fairly elaborate course in introductory sociology—which might not be a bad idea." F. N. House
+ Am J Soc 45:288 S '39 140w

Reviewed by Read Bain
Am Soc R 4:409 Je '39 320w

BEADNELL, CHARLES MARSH. Dictionary of scientific terms, as used in the various sciences. 235p $3 Chemical pub. co. [5s; 1s Watts]

503 Science—Dictionaries [38-33196]

"The first American edition of an English book which deals with terms used in the various sciences and is based on notations from recent books and articles by recognized authorities. It makes no claim to comprehensiveness or originality, but its succinct definitions and many cross references should enable the user to hunt up quickly the significance and interrelations of the terms included." J Home Econ

"The selection is good, although undoubtedly favoring the biological sciences. Newer words are not neglected. The volume is all it claims to be, namely, a good book for the desk of the general reader, especially one with scientific training whose reading ventures into other fields than his own." W. A. Boughton
+ Am Chem Soc J 61:1933 Jl '39 120w
+ J Home Econ 31:482 S '39 60w

"Many readers will regret the complete absence of etymologies, but it is doubtful whether the man in the street—for whose assistance, it must be remembered, the book was written—will share this view. The standard of accuracy is usually high, and though there are occasional slips, they are much less frequent than one might have expected in such an arduous single-handed effort. The author is to be congratulated upon having accomplished a very useful service to the scientific education of the layman, and his book deserves to have a wide sale."
+ Nature 142:416 S 3 '38 230w

BEALS, CARLETON. American earth; the biography of a nation. 500p $3 Lippincott

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—History (W) 39-27228

"Carleton Beals has read much and traveled widely through the United States. Before describing present conditions, he devotes several chapters to the past of our country; to the treatment of the Indians in which can be observed 'the whole American psychology of getting something for nothing, or at most for a little trickery.' He gives instances of colonial settlement where land was held by the few, taxation was discriminatory and political rights disregarded. He gives a graphic picture of western pioneering, of the vast land steals—'barefaced thefts of a nation's resources'—of the Populist movement of the nineteenth century, of cattle kings and miners in Wyoming. From the violent activities of the lumber industry has come drouth, floods and fire and some of today's major farm problems." (Scientific Bk Club R) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:263 Ap 15 '39

"Mr. Beals's headlong, eloquent book is not a scientific treatise, but a long crusading pamphlet. It has high merits united with grave defects, but the defects are not so damaging as they would be in a book of less elevated intention and more sober temper. . . The second half of Mr. Beals's book, that part in which he gives his personal impressions of the poverty and maladjustment visible in many parts of America today, is the important half. We may well put aside his historical prologue; he is very far indeed from a trustworthy historian. But he is a first-rate reporter. Here his warm, unchecked emotions are often an asset." Allan Nevins
+ — Books p1 Ap 2 '39 1750w

"The author has read a vast deal about the history and sociology of the United States and about the relation of the people of the land, but he has tumbled his reading higgledy-piggledy into his undigested pages, and I have simply not been able to force myself to finish the book. Such parts of it as I have read raise important questions about accuracy." H. M. Jones
— Boston Transcript p1 Ap 1 '39 360w

"The merit of his book is that he states his case with vividness and sincerity. Its chief defect is that it is too clearly a case for the prosecution. A more detached and more balanced study would leave him less open to the charge of deliberate unfairness in the selection of his facts. But a work of such scholarly quality might appeal to only a limited group of readers." Edgar McInnis
+ — Canadian Forum 19:130 Jl '39 490w
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 20 '39 600w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '39

Reviewed by W. J. Leen
Commonweal 30:50 My 5 '39 300w

"Carleton Beals has always been keenly conscious of the social struggle. Though his books on Latin-American countries have earned him the reputation as our outstanding authority on our Southern neighbors, his observations in those works could not possibly be as sensitive, as alive as when he is writing about his native country. His new book does for the whole of America what Pare Lorentz' 'The River' did for the Mississippi. Greater praise hath no book." Norman Cousins
+ Current Hist 50:5 My '39 600w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting
Forum 101:v My '39 270w
Nation 149:52 Jl 8 '39 190w
New Repub 99:55 My 17 '39 60w

"Mr. Beals does not approach his subject with scientific objectivity nor analyze it with dispassionate statistics. The treatment is, on the contrary, intensely personal, inspired by indignation and by fear, suffused with feeling. . . What is particularly distressing about this lengthy historical review is the peephole attitude and the gross carelessness with facts. . . It is difficult to avoid the suspicion that Mr. Beals's emotions get the better of him, too, in his concluding animadversions on Mr. Wallace and the agricultural policy of the New Deal." H. S. Commager
— N Y Times p14 Ap 2 '39 1900w

"Sprawling, poorly organized, full of original historical insights, and held together, if at all, by the author's pervasive indignation at the way in which we have wasted the heritage of our land and created a pauper peasantry. . . Could have been a first-rate book if Mr. Beals had thought more rigorously before writing it."
— + New Yorker 15:79 Ap 1 '39 50w

"In many ways this is one of the blackest books I ever read. It is a social chronicle, with no varnish, which parallels and explains the somber tragedy so depressing to those of us whose profession it is to examine and diagnose the landscape. . . Following the historical section of the book is a lot of ugly but veracious reading. In fact, it is ugly because veracious—Beals's own field studies among migrant workers and share-croppers. . . There is no flattery in this book for any section of us. But perhaps the conservatives will find balm for their bruises in seeing how the New Deal gets kicked around. The religious in their turn may have some reward for the way they are kicked about by the author's indictment of those who decline moral responsibility and see nothing of meaning or continuity in the life of a nation on its land." P. B. Sears
Sat R of Lit 19:11 Ap 22 '39 600w
Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 Ap '39 450w
Wis Lib Bul 35:139 Jl '39

BEALS, CARLETON. The coming struggle for Latin America. 401p maps $3 Lippincott [10s 6d Cape, J.]

327.8 Fascism—Latin America. U.S.—Foreign relations—Latin America. Latin America—Foreign relations (W) 38-27709

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"Some of what [the author] says is true, and unpleasantly true. Much more, however, is at least open to question, and a not inconsiderable part is palpably incorrect. A suspicion that the author made little effort to check up on the accuracy of his material is borne out by numerous minor inaccuracies like misspellings and historical errors. The general impression which the book gives is unquestionably an inaccurate one and is, in fact, completely at variance with some of the statements which the author himself makes in his concluding chapter." D. G. Munro

— + Am Pol Sci R 33:342 Ap '39 230w

"A timely, informative, and important addition to the publications of its brilliant author." S. G. Hanson

+ Ann Am Acad 202:253 Mr '39 650w

Cath World 149:118 Ap '39 500w

Geog R 29:341 Ap '39 130w

"For anything more than quick reading this book is of little value. It likes the 'scaring' fact for its own sake and deduces far too much from it when found. Mr. Beals is one of those impractical 'ideologists' who succeed in showing us the world as a very bad place indeed but have few suggestions for making it better." A. W. J.

— + Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 4 '39 280w

"Latin America seems a dark unknown continent to most North Americans. Mr. Beals has made it come alive and has made its events alarmingly near at hand." Josephine Herbst

+ New Repub 98:108 Mr 1 '39 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p350 Je 17 '39 1200w

BEAM, MAURICE, and BRITTON, SUMNER. Murder in a shell. 242p $2 Messner

39-7264

Detective story.

"Killing a coxswain in the midst of a race is kind of silly in the first place. When he is a nasty little squirt with an inflated ego it becomes even more ludicrous." Marian Wiggin

— Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '39 60w

"A crude and amateurish story which is still mildly entertaining." Kay Irvin

— + N Y Times p28 Mr 5 '39 130w

Sat R of Lit 19:16 Mr 11 '39 40w

BEAN, ROBERT BENNETT. The peopling of Virginia. 302p il $3 Chapman & Grimes

975.5 Virginia—History. Virginia—Population. Anthropometry 38-37631

"A first part of this book records the waves of immigration to Virginia from 1607 to the present, and the general distribution of new arrivals. Old Virginians came, predominantly, from the British Islands, France and Germany. A second portion gives detailed short-short histories of the population of each county. A third section gives detailed measurements of stature, sitting height, leg length and cephalic indices of present derivatives of the original groups." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Alexander Goldenweiser

Am Hist R 45:242 O '39 200w

"The plan of the volume is unique in conception and will likely stimulate with advantage similar studies in other states." Wilson Gee

Am J Soc 45:141 Jl '39 220w

BEARD, ANNIE E. S. Our foreign-born citizens; what they have done for America; rev. and enl. by Frederica Beard. 3d ed 448p il $2.50 Crowell

920 U.S.—Biography 39-27229

New and revised edition including short sketches of forty-seven American celebrities of foreign birth. Contents: Felix Adler; Louis Agassiz; Michael Anagnos; Mary Antin; John James Audubon; Alexander Graham Bell; James Gordon Bennett; Emile Berliner; Karl Bitter; Edward Bok; Andrew Carnegie; Alexis Carrel; James John Davis; John Ericsson; Stephen Girard; George Washington Goethals; Samuel Gompers; Percy Aldridge Grainger; Niels Ebbesen Hansen; Michael Heilprin; James Jerome Hill; John Philip Holland; Gustav Lindenthal; Samuel Sidney McClure; Ottmar Mergenthaler; Albert Abraham Michelson; Henry Morgenthau; John Muir; Angelo Patri; Joseph Pulitzer; Michael Pupin; Abraham Mitrie Rihbany; Jacob A. Riis; Knute Kenneth Rockne; Augustus St Gaudens; Carl Schurz; Anna Howard Shaw; Edward A. Steiner; Charles Proteus Steinmetz; Alexander Turney Stewart; Nathan Straus; Nikola Tesla; Theodore Thomas; Albert Einstein; Ernestine Schumann-Heink; Walter Johannes Damrosch; Hendrik Willem van Loon. For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1922.

Booklist 35:275 Ap 15 '39

Cath World 149:635 Ag '39 70w

"These are not biographical sketches after the manner of Who's Who in America. They are factual, but also interpretative. They abound in thrilling stories of struggle, suffering, achievement. If the minister or speaker is looking for illustrations, here is the place to find them. They also afford insight into this country of ours, its social ideals and much else."

+ Christian Century 56:743 Je 7 '39 120w

Wis Lib Bul 35:144 Jl '39

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN. Giddy minds and foreign quarrels; an estimate of American foreign policy. 87p 50c Macmillan

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy

"Dr. Beard thinks that American responsibility for the world at large is a dangerous notion which will lead the American people to disaster. He thinks we lack the knowledge and insight required to set the whole world straight. He denies that we have the power to enforce what decisions we may make, whether right or wrong. He asserts that an imperial destiny—moral or material—is not in the cards for America. He says it is a matter of choice, not a decision compelled by factors beyond our control. And he asks—he most emphatically asks—that the American people reject any course which points in that direction." N Y Times

Booklist 36:82 N 1 '39

Christian Century 56:1410 N 15 '39 20w

"One must question whether such a highly selective presentation of facts coupled with prejudicial phrases—the very title is prejudicial—is helpful. Even in such a small book there is room for more facts and a more adequate appreciation of men of equal learning and sincerity who believe with Washington that 'the period is not very remote when the benefits of a liberal and free commerce will pretty generally succeed to the devastation of war,' and that America has inevitably a large part to play in promoting that period." D. M. R.

— + Christian Science Monitor p18 D 18 '39 400w

Foreign Affairs 18:374 Ja '40 50w

"Giddy Minds and Foreign Quarrels comes to a nation very ready to receive its doctrine. It is possible that Mr. Beard will send some people off into arguments not so much for peace as against President Roosevelt. Nevertheless the affirmative voice of the millions who want to keep out of a trouble which is none of our business will give a generous 'Yea' to his pamphlet, in spite of its criticism of the chief executive in whom they still believe." M. L. Elting

BEARD, C. A.—Continued

Forum 102:iv N '39 150w

Living Age 357:393 D '39 50w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

N Y Times p3 O 15 '39 300w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 8 '39 200w

Wis Lib Bul 35:182 N '39

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN, and BEARD, MRS MARY (RITTER). America in midpassage; drawings by Wilfred Jones. (Rise of American civilization) 977p $3.50 Macmillan [18s Cape, J.]

973 U.S.—History. U.S.—Civilization (W) 39-11429

Volume three in this history of American life, known as The Rise of American Civilization, covers the years from the time of the Coolidge regime in the middle 1920s, to the present. For volumes one and two of the series, first and second editions, see Book Review Digest, 1927 and 1933. Index.

"If the book is provocative, perhaps needlessly so in spots, it is well-informed and enlightening also. If its wealth of detail is sometimes bewildering, how could anyone portray the years through which we have just passed and leave them shorn of bewilderment? Better books of contemporary history than this may yet be written, but not many of them." W. B. Munro

+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:694 Ag '39 750w

Reviewed by J. A. Neprash

Am Soc R 4:864 D '39 200w

Reviewed by J. W. Pratt

Ann Am Acad 205:178 S '39 700w

"Nobody but the Beards could have even commenced to write the contemporary history of the United States, 1924-1938, in a volume of less than a thousand pages so as to produce an account having the scope, fullness, accuracy of detail, unity of plan, and dramatic literary presentation found in America in Midpassage." John Dewey

+ Atlantic Jl '39 850w

Booklist 35:304 My 15 '39

"The Beards have always been interested in social and intellectual history, and the presentation of sources of entertainment, literature, the arts and sciences, social and philosophical thought, is the most ambitious that has yet been attempted for this last decade. Nowhere in our literature can be found a more intelligent analysis of the role of the motion picture, the radio, the popular magazines in our social dynamics, but the interpretation of literature and the arts is less successful. . . . The literature of social revolt receives elaborate attention, but fiction and poetry which does not fit into this pattern is neglected. . . . The interpretation of history, economics and sociology is better integrated and sounder." H. S. Commager

+ — Books p1 My 21 '39 1700w

"Intended as a third volume for 'The Rise of American Civilization' series, it lacks the objectivity of the first two volumes; and though it has moments of clarity and order, in other moments it sinks to jog-trot journalism and the tiresome recitation of details." H. M. Jones

— + Boston Transcript p1 My 13 '39 1450w

Cath World 149:506 Jl '39 490w

Christian Century 56:857 Jl 5 '39 220w

"The Beards have jolted traditional textbook enthronement of national fetishes. They have brought American history to an honest level of self-examination, devoid of sham and shibboleths, upon which the future, if it is to hold genuine promise of progress, must be based. And this, it appears, is the social and spiritual contribution of the Beards. Their other great achievement is that they have written the story of America in terms that can be read." R. M. B.

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 My 26 '39 550w

"The chapter on science seems marvelously comprehensive. And no more coruscating, incisive or profound review of democracy can be found than that contained in the concluding chapter. It is easy to criticize this book, but this remains true. It is a brilliant, comprehensive and masterly analysis of the America it considers. And until the Beards write such another book, we are not likely to see its peer again." Francis Downing

+ Commonweal 30:259 Je 30 '39 650w

"America in Midpassage is a remarkable accomplishment—probably the most remarkable accomplishment in history-writing in many months—for the picture Charles and Mary Beard have drawn suffers not in the slightest from lack of what is amorphously known as the 'historical perspective.' Indeed, the immediacy of their story has its advantages: all the strong colors of current history which usually fade into uninteresting greys when viewed from a distance of years are kept alive." Norman Cousins

+ Current Hist 50:1 Je '39 1400w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith

Ethics 50:111 O '39 1800w

Foreign Affairs 18:374 Ja '40 70w

"Altogether the book is like a reunion. The America that has swirled around us for ten years comes vividly forward in our memories. It is like seeing old friends again, and seeing how great a difference in our attitudes a few years can make. Taking sides as it does in situations which are not yet resolved, this essay in understanding our times will inevitably command attention—and not simply because of the Beards's canny choice of exciting data and animated points of view. Their book has a literary quality rare in these days when events make the chronicle of events seem pale by comparison." M. L. Elting

+ Forum 101:iv Je '39 450w

Reviewed by Charles Angoff

Living Age 356:497 Jl '39 700w

Manchester Guardian p3 N 17 '39 300w

"Altogether 'America in Midpassage' takes a high place in the writing of contemporary history. Professor Beard . . . accepts the view of Croce that our view of the past must necessarily be conditioned by the psychology of the present. If this attitude be sound, it follows that valid history must be written in the present, its correctness depending not on the long perspective of time but upon the intellectual perspective in which the writer sees his facts. In its possession of this quality the present volume will be held a masterpiece." R. M. Lovett

+ Nation 148:674 Je 10 '39 2100w

"The very qualities which give the book its distinction—a prevailing judiciousness of tone, a tentativeness of judgment, a fine balancing of opposed forces—are the qualities that make it unlikely that the authors will uncover in the last decade those energies of idea, of economic thrust, of class, of social movement, out of which the American future must be forged. I say 'must' and should add—if it is to be tough enough to survive and humanist enough to be worth survival. Lacking this firmness of analysis, there is a danger that the 'midpassage' concept will be for the American historian what the 'social process' concept has been for the American sociologist—a way of indicating motion and change without indicating its quality or direction. Lacking it, this brilliant book remains, for all its talent, truncated." Max Lerner

+ — New Repub 99:164 Je 14 '39 1650w

Reviewed by H. J. Laski

New Statesman & Nation 18:560 O 21 '39 1000w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p1 My 21 '39 1300w

"One is bound to state that though the Beards are obviously authoritative in the field of political and economic history, their judgments on aesthetic matters tend to be a trifle amateur and occasionally oversolemn. On the whole, however, 'America in Midpassage' will stand as a noble performance of a seemingly impossible task. It lacks the finish of [the earlier volumes of] 'The Rise of American Civilization' and there are more pedestrian passages in it, but for the general reader it is a work of magnificent utility." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 15:90 My 20 '39 700w

Pratt p26 summer '39

Reviewed by Elmer Davis

Sat R of Lit 20:3 My 20 '39 2500w

"It is in their aesthetic and moral judgments that the weakness of the pragmatic approach of the authors is shown. In reply to an argument which tried to show the doubtfulness of the connexion between juvenile turpitude and the movies, the Beards descend to a trick worthy of Father Coughlin, they abuse Professor Mortimer Adler as 'a professor in Chicago University, passionately engaged in teaching the doctrines of Thomas Aquinas to midwestern Protestants.' The Beards, faced with analysing not only the films but popular songs, popular magazines, and the other moulders of the folkways that are breaking down the old standards of midwestern Protestantism, fall back on a dogmatism as obstinate as that they attribute to Professor Adler. Yet for all its faults, despite those pages which are a curious mixture of Irving and George F. Babbitt, this is a fascinating book, full of life, learning and moral energy." D. W. Brogan

+ — Spec 163:590 O 27 '39 1050w

Reviewed by Phillips Bradley

Springf'd Republican p7e My 28 '39 1050w

"Nowhere is Dr. Beard more masterly than in his tracing of American foreign policy in the last decade. . . More attention is given to social and cultural history than in the preceding volumes. Indeed, over a third of the book is devoted to such subjects as leisure-time entertainment, art and letters, natural science and the social sciences. By and large, these materials are treated competently and in entertaining fashion. The author falls down only in the last chapter on 'Frames of Social Thought.' Here we would expect Dr. Beard to be at his best, but in places this chapter passes from the curious to the incredible." H. E. Barnes

+ — Survey G 28:453 Jl '39 430w

Time 33:91 My 22 '39 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p621 O 28 '39 650w

Wis Lib Bul 35:111 Je '39

"The book affords stimulating and highly useful reading for the scholar and the general reader." F. W. Coker

+ Yale R n s 28:843 summer '39 1450w

BEARD, DANIEL CARTER. Hardly a man is now alive; autobiography. 362p il $3 Doubleday

B or 92 (W) 39-27774

Autobiography of the founder of the Boy Scouts. Beard was born in Cincinnati in 1850, and these memoirs of his long life include stories of many famous people, among them Mark Twain. Very little space is given to the history of the Boy Scout movement; the stress being on the less well-known aspects of Beard's life—as surveyor and illustrator.

Booklist 36:66 O 15 '39

"Crammed with incident as this volume is, there are many good stories of persons long dead, and some living, all told with kindness, some even with too much reticence. . . One could wish, though, that the modest author had told more about the noble battles for conservation of timber, of water, of wild life, in which he played such a staunch part but they are scarcely mentioned. The volume is illustrated with line drawings, done with a firm hand by the author, and with several photographs." S. H. Holbrook

+ Books p7 S 17 '39 1350w

Reviewed by N. W. Mattis

Boston Transcript p1 O 21 '39 500w

"This book is at once a first-rate contribution to the intimate history of America and a valuable self-portrait of a man who in his own character embodies much of what has been best in America." Robert Van Gelder

+ N Y Times p7 S 17 '39 1000w

New Yorker 15:79 S 23 '39 30w

"The peculiar value and memorable character of the book will be found in the childhood reminiscences of a typical American boyhood. It recalls Charles Dudley Warner's 'A Boy's Town' and Thomas Bailey Aldrich's 'Story of a Bad Boy.' It would be too much to say that it ranks with the immortal 'Tom Sawyer.' It should, however, make an admirable Christmas present for your hobbledehoy, and you will treasure it for the skill, humor, and undeniable charm of the author-artist's own illustrations." D. C. Peattie

+ Sat R of Lit 20:12 O 7 '39 390w

Time 34:68 S 25 '39 550w

BEATTY, EDWARD CORBYN OBERT. William Penn as social philosopher; with a foreword by Marcus W. Jernegan. 338p $3.50 Columbia univ. press [17s 6d Oxford]

B or 92 Penn, William

"This book is a study of the ideas of William Penn. It is not a biography, though biographical details are frequently given to explain or illustrate the man's philosophy. It is not a history of the period, though discussions of political and social phenomena are occasionally included to illuminate the motives and attitudes of one who was in his generation so prominent a public figure. Research for this study has been limited to Penn's theories concerning the multiple relationships of individuals in society. His religious beliefs have been given no place except as they throw light upon his ideas of man in purely mundane concerns. No attempt has been made here to offer a psychological analysis of his mental and emotional reactions. This investigation is purely an excursion into the history of social philosophy." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"The book is neither very stimulating nor very exciting. This is due partly to the uninteresting style and partly to the fact that too many of those things that might have made the book most significant are left to the imagination of the reader. . . But the 'Epilogue,' as well as a few passages in earlier chapters, makes it evident that Professor Beatty has something more to contribute. One can only hope that he will do a sequel to his descriptive study." E. M. Kirkpatrick

Am Pol Sci R 33:1135 D '39 290w

"A scholarly and interesting contribution. . . If there is little that is brand new about Penn, yet the author has achieved his purpose of collating and interpreting the source material germane to his subject, and he has refrained from generalizations which are not labeled as such. The book is excellently made and printed with a bibliography of the primary and secondary sources which, so far as this reviewer knows, is complete." A. C. Purdy

+ Christian Century 56:1338 N 1 '39 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p759 D 30 '39 80w

BEATTY, FREDERIKA. William Wordsworth of Rydal Mount. 307p il $3.75 Dutton [15s Dent]

B or 92 Wordsworth, William 40-1037

Biographical study of the last ten years of the poet, based upon many diaries, letters, and other writings of his friends and neighbors. "Miss Beatty has succeeded in humanizing the

BEATTY, FREDERIKA—Continued
portrait of the old man by revealing his many affectionate relationships with his kindred and a host of friends." (Books)

"Her work belongs in the general class of books made from books and must find its justification largely in bringing together between two covers material that otherwise would be difficult of access. Little of this material is new, though Miss Beatty has gone directly to the manuscript diaries of Henry Crabb Robinson and has quoted many passages not previously found in print. With this exception, her sources are well known to the close student of Wordsworth's period. The best informed Wordsworthian, however, must welcome her detailed and very scholarly demonstration of a greater likeness between the young and the old poet than has usually been admitted." G. F. Whicher

+ — Books p10 Ag 13 '39 500w

"Miss Beatty's industry is worthy of the highest praise, and her treatment of the material is commendable. But the volume is essentially scholarly and suffers from innate tedium. The author's purpose was best served by piling numberless pieces of documentary evidence upon one another, but this has precluded the effective arrangement of emphatic detail that normally makes for a readable book."

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ag 19 '39 230w

Reviewed by H. B. Charlton
Manchester Guardian p3 N 3 '39 300w

"Miss Beatty is for the poet and sometimes suppresses slight details of unfavorable evidence, but by and large her book is an ingenious as well as industrious composite portrait of Wordsworth. . . It is a pleasure to see Wordsworth in so many circumstances and through so many different inquisitive eyes, emerging as a thoroughly honest and consistent man; and his later years, so far from being a denial of his earlier, appear as their quiet and proper conclusion." P. M. Jack

+ N Y Times p17 S 10 '39 1100w

"The book as a whole is substantial, well documented, and unpretentious." Alexander Cowie

+ Sat R of Lit 20:16 Ag 12 '39 320w

"A good case is made by Miss Beatty, even if the balance is, perhaps, tipped rather on the side of the archangel than the mortal man. . . To read the collected statements of his close friends and casual acquaintances is to flood the mind with a radiant benevolence."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Je 24 '39 900w

BEATTY, RICHMOND CROOM. Lord Macaulay, Victorian liberal. 387p $3 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Macaulay, Thomas Babington Macaulay, 1st baron 38-29083

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by Godfrey Davies
Am Hist R 45:386 Ja '40 350w

"Macaulay's latest biographer is unsympathetic, though not unfair. His aim, and a noble one, is to supply an integrated and convincing background for his hero; but the complex England of Victoria is not easy to portray. Macaulay's Liberal creed is shown up for what it was. . . So too Macaulay's own shortcomings receive their full share of blame. . . Macaulay gets perhaps too little credit for his real merits as statesman and author. After all, the superb narrative and powerful imagination that still win readers for his History were not Macaulay's only gifts to posterity, which still couples his name with the Indian Civil Service and educational reform." Robert Walcott, Jr.

+ — Atlantic Ap '39 120w

"The present book is in every respect an able and clearly written piece of work, and it should be recommended very warmly, both on its own merits and for the interest which Lord Macaulay's life and thought holds for our generation." Hans Kohn

Boston Transcript p1 Ap 22 '39 650w

Reviewed by E. K. Brown
Canadian Forum 19:363 F '40 500w

"Mr. Beatty has based his study chiefly on sources which have been utilized by previous biographers; but if his material contains little that is novel, his presentation offers a lively and readable portrait of Macaulay's personality. In the end Macaulay does not emerge as a wholly likeable figure, but he does appear as a wholly human one." Edgar McInnis

+ Canadian Hist R 20:50 Mr '39 250w

Reviewed by S. C. Chew
Christian Science Monitor p12 F 8 '39 1200w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 50:4 Ap '39 450w

"Mr. Beatty has rehearsed his subject with skill and care, and been at the greatest pains to preserve balance. He has lacked the background to make Macaulay, as he intended, a pivot for an inquiry into early nineteenth-century liberalism. But this is surely the best modern life of its subject. It does not of course, supplant Trevelyan, who on his own terms produced a masterpiece. But it comes as a corrective after him, and it is possible to hope that it comes as a stimulus besides." Louis Kronenberger

+ Nation 148:180 F 11 '39 950w

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin
New Repub 98:286 Ap 12 '39 480w

"It is perhaps unfortunate that the author of this very readable volume arouses expectations that are scarcely fulfilled. From a Preliminary Note of Acknowledgment one gets the impression that much new, and presumably important, material is to be given from Macaulay's manuscript Journal, now in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge. The passages reproduced from the Journal, however, apart from those that Sir George Otto Trevelyan incorporated in his 'Life and Letters of Lord Macaulay,' add little of importance to what was already known." R. L. Schuyler

+ — Yale R n s 28:631 spring '39 750w

BEAUJON, PAUL, pseud. See Warde, B. L.

BEAUMONT, CYRIL WILLIAM. Five centuries of ballet design. 136p il $4.50 (10s 6d); pa $3.50 (7s 6d) Studio

792.8 Ballet

"The present work is intended to form a companion to Design for the Ballet [Book Review Digest, 1937]. In that volume [the author] discussed the chief productions during the last fifteen years; here [he has sought] to trace the evolution of design for Ballet from the Italian Renaissance to 1922. Since the process of development is to be seen most clearly in France, the successive innovations effected at the Paris Opera provide the main theme for this study, with occasional consideration of activities in other countries." (Introd) The volume is made up of plates with descriptive letter press and a 20-page introduction.

"Mr. Beaumont, the distinguished keeper of a tiny bookstore on the Charing Cross road, which has become world famous from his 30 years in the service of theater dancing, adds still another delightful record to his monumental list. This present book, beautifully printed in England, and in spite of present conditions, at a low price, supplements his already well-known 'Design for Ballet.'" Lincoln Kirstein

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 20 '40 290w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer
New Statesman & Nation 18:836 D 9 '39 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p705 D 2 '39 480w

BEAUMONT, CYRIL WILLIAM. Puppets and the puppet stage. 144p il $4.50 (10s 6d); pa $3.50 (7s 6d) Studio

791.5 Marionettes (W) 38-36969

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Pratt p21 spring '39

"This book will interest those who delight in all forms of artistic craftsmanship as well as those specially interested in the matters of the stage."

+ School Arts 38:11a My '39 150w

Special Libraries 30:65 F '39

"Mr. Beaumont's best pages are given to correlating Pulcinella, Gianduja, Guignol, Punch, Hanswurst and Kasperl into branches of one family tree. Most of the pictures are excellent, although the great space given to those from America and England seems out of proportion when Czechoslovakia is dismissed with one page and Russia with two. . . . The captions generally are interesting, although material has sometimes been cramped or spun out to fit neatly into a convenient space. The final pages devoted to puppets as a factor in education, the cinema, television and advertising apparently have interested Mr. Beaumont less than the artistic sections." Walt Crane

+ — Theatre Arts Mo 23:231 Mr '39 320w

BECHDOLT, JOHN ERNEST. Roscoe; pictures by Decie Merwin. 55p $1 Oxford

39-5856

The adventures of a small boy named Roscoe who took his baby sister to the zoo in her pram and inadvertently kept two ruffians from stealing the baby giant panda.

"A most pleasant story about a boy who wore specs and still was popular." H. L. Binsse

+ Commonweal 31:133 D 1 '39 20w

"The author had here a clever and original idea for a modern story for little children, but he has failed to handle it with the charm and freshness that made Bandmaster's Holiday so delightful. Decie Merwin has done an excellent job with the illustrations. Her ink washes exude character and personality from every line." E. G. Mullan

+ — Library J 64:244 Mr 15 '39 160w

"The author of 'Bandmaster's Holiday' has a genuine understanding of the intense enthusiasms of small boys, and if this story is slighter than the former the mix-up is related briefly with an effective sense of comedy. If he is commendably impartial as regards the respective charms of Prudence and the panda it must be admitted that in Decie Merwin's lively pictures the odds are with the latter." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p10 Mr 26 '39 220w

BECK, HENRY CHARLTON. Fare to midlands; forgotten towns of central New Jersey. 456p il map $5 Dutton

974.9 New Jersey—History. Cities and towns —New Jersey 39-29584

The author of Forgotten Towns of Southern New Jersey (Book Review Digest, 1936) writes a similar book on the old landmarks and forgotten towns of central New Jersey, which he says is "far different in its topography but equally as fascinating in its forgotten towns and unremembered folklore." Bibliography. Index.

"This book is quite as good as its predecessors; perhaps even a bit better. . . . In its material, its photographs, and its easy narrative style, this book is a welcome addition to our American family libraries."

+ Books p35 D 10 '39 240w

"The region teems with stories of the great and the humble, the forgotten and sometimes the infamous. Mr. Beck has collected rare and delightful Americana in a well-illustrated and pleasantly written book."

+ N Y Times p33 O 29 '39 320w

"Mr Beck has rendered a valuable service in rescuing from oblivion the historical background and legends of New Jersey's midlands, and has succeeded in giving his readers some of the enthusiasm that sustained him in digging up the past."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 31 '39 1100w

BECKER, MRS MAY (LAMBERTON), ed. Golden tales of the Southwest; selected with an introd; decorations by Lois Lenski. 265p $2.50 Dodd

(W) 39-30337

Collection of short stories about the American Southwest. Contents: Jimville, by Mary Austin; Speakin' of cowpunchers, by C. M. Russell; The rummy kid, by Ross Santee; The caballero's way, by O. Henry; A pigeon hunt, by Andy Adams; The mystery of the Palo Duro, by J. F. Dobie; The wooing of Riley, by A. H. Lewis; Dancing east of the sunset, by L. W. Wetherill and Frances Gillmor; The sheep-shearing, The stroke of genius, by H. H. Jackson; The enchanted mesa, by C. F. Lummis; With Uncle Sam's camels, by E. F. Beale; Gonzaleze again or, The bravo's stratagem, by C. W. Webber; The two-gun man, by S. E. White; Old Juan Mora's burro, by F. G. Applegate; Ole Mistis, by Barry Benefield; The golf course at Salome, by D. W. Hall; The pastures of heaven, by John Steinbeck; The year of heaven, by William Saroyan.

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

"We might argue that it is stretching a point to include Steinbeck and Saroyan among the representatives of the Southwest, but Mrs. Becker's selection is admirable, and it was worth giving a point in order to get Steinbeck and Saroyan in. Like its companion members of the 'Golden Tales' series, this should be for many readers a valuable introduction to regional literature—in this case to a region often too narrowly interpreted in terms of only one of its characteristics." J. H. Jackson

+ Books p8 D 10 '39 450w

"There are at least three striking omissions. Could we not have substituted for one of the two selections from 'Ramona' something from Ambrose Bierce? Could we not have done without Barry Benefield and had, perhaps, Bret Harte? And would not the literary quality of the whole have been improved by a passage from D. H. Lawrence, who often wrote brilliantly of the Southwest, instead of the slick Post story by Dick Wick Hall? And why choose a passage from Steinbeck's poor, early novel, 'The Pastures of Heaven,' when the splendid, later work is available. This is merely perverse." Ruth Page

Boston Transcript p6 Ja 6 '40 230w

BEEBE, CATHERINE (MRS ROBB BEEBE). Happily ever after; pictures by Robb Beebe. [93p] $1.50 Nelson

38-17085

"The Martin children, three of them, decided that living happily ever after did not belong to fairy tales alone. The family called themselves the merry Martins, and the everyday things children experience—winter fun, going to the library, gardening, circus day, a drive in the country, rainy day indoors, Christmas, and other important days of the year—made for them exciting and happy events." Wis Lib Bul

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p8 F 19 '39 330w

"Very simple and real. Jolly pictures. Good for nursery age."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:38 D 3 '38 20w

Wis Lib Bul 34:205 D '38

BEEBE, CATHERINE (MRS ROBB BEEBE). Just around the corner; pictures by Robb Beebe. 79p $1.25 Oxford

(W) 39-27107

When spring was "just around the corner" the Rutland family went out to look for signs of it. Among other things they visited a sugar grove and learned how maple sugar is made.

Booklist 35:237 Mr 15 '39

"The little book touches the everyday details of life at two poles of experience, turning them into something significant for readers from 4 to 7, and while it is as unassuming as the pussy willows sprayed across the end papers, it is just as full of a quickening sense of promise." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 26 '39 200w

Wis Lib Bul 35:114 Je '39

BEEBE, ELSWYTH THANE (RICKER) (MRS WILLIAM BEEBE) (ELSWYTH THANE, pseud). Tryst. 256p $2.50 Harcourt

(W) 39-27213

In an English country house a young girl enters a room, supposedly not to be used by the tenants. Little by little she learns what she can of the young man whose room it had been. In India, a British secret service officer, dying in the desert, prays for England rather than Heaven. A ghost haunts the house in England, and girl and ghost fall in love and eventually are united.

Booklist 35:253 Ap 1 '39

Reviewed by George Conrad

Books p12 Mr 26 '39 330w

"The author tells this love story with delicacy and humor. No feeling of horror or the macabre creep in; and the solution is exactly what you might expect in an affair between a girl who reads too much and has to learn about her lover through his books and collection of butterflies, and a ghost-lover who is having trouble with the 'indefinable between-worlds etiquette.' Miss Thane, attempting nothing new in this type of novel, offers a couple of hours of light, pleasant excursion in up-to-date fantasy." P. T. Hartung

Commonweal 29:669 Ap 7 '39 320w

"Miss Thane has such a flexible command of her theme that she can show humour as well as charm in the telling, particularly in her treatment of the more material characters. There is, in fact, not a false note in this delicate romance of two worlds." Charles Marriott

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Je 27 '39 330w

"Elswyth Thane's new novel, 'Tryst,' is exquisitely done, sensitive yet sure, idealistic and romantic, yet not lacking in humor, perceptive and sympathetic." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 19 '39 550w

"A narrative filled with humor and bitterness, and its unpretentious character puts no strain on the reader's credulity." R. S.

+ Sat R of Lit 19:19 Mr 18 '39 200w

"A story as delightful as it is fantastic."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 19 '39 420w

"For readers who do not scoff at spirits with certain material cravings this is an unusual, gentle romance, a timeless dream with nothing of to-day in it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p408 Jl 8 '39 360w

Wis Lib Bul 35:104 My '39

BEEDING, FRANCIS, pseud. of JOHN LESLIE PALMER and HILARY AIDAN ST GEORGE SAUNDERS. He could not have slipped! 280p $2 Harper [7s 6d Hodder]

39-27265

Detective story.

Booklist 35:272 Ap 15 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p13 Ap 9 '39 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 1 '39 100w

"A new motive for murder is introduced by Francis Beeding, or rather a new motive for a crime which degenerates into triple murder. The reader's fancy is often tickled by such novelties, but it is rare that they carry much conviction to his mind; and the criminal in He Could Not Have Slipped is handicapped like a villain in melodrama. The story, however, is exciting and the characters lively." Ralph Partridge

+ — New Statesman & Nation 17:142 Ja 28 '39 90w

"The story, after the author has abandoned the hop, skip and jump method of narration used in the early chapters, is well integrated and completely absorbing." Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p26 Ap 2 '39 140w

"Quite up-to-date in plot; League of Nations background is interesting, and story moves relentlessly, if slowly, to tragic end. Adequate."

Sat R of Lit 19:20 Ap 1 '39 40w

"Like all Mr. Beeding's adventure tales, the story is well written and will cause the reader no serious mental strain."

Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ja 7 '39 60w

BEEDING, FRANCIS, pseud. of JOHN LESLIE PALMER and HILARY AIDAN ST GEORGE SAUNDERS. The ten holy horrors. 334p $2 Harper [7s 6d Hodder]

39-23987

A mystery tale of international intrigue starring Colonel Granby of the British Secret service involved with Nazi spies and eastern European refugees.

Booklist 36:111 N 15 '39

"It is not Mr. Beeding's fault if the time spirit makes international intrigue in fiction form look a trifle footless at present." Will Cuppy

Books p16 O 15 '39 100w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 60w

" 'The Ten Holy Horrors' amply fulfills its promise of suspense and excitement on every page." K. I.

+ N Y Times p35 O 15 '39 150w

New Yorker 15:80 O 7 '39 30w

Sat R of Lit 20:19 O 7 '39 40w

"It is unfortunate for Mr. Beeding that the particular plot his hero sets out to foil now seems rather improbable, but, granted that this is a misfortune that might have befallen anyone, his tale is exciting and amusing."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p611 O 21 '39 80w

BEERS, HENRY PUTNEY. Bibliographies in American history; guide to materials for research. 339p $3.50 Wilson, H. W.

016.973 U.S.—History—Bibliography 38-27119

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"It is difficult to appraise a work of this character. No two individuals would agree as to the inclusion of a particular title. It is debatable whether a compiler is justified in the duplication of effort involved in enumerating general bibliographical tools. . . The chapter on local history (approximately one fourth of the work), devoted to lists relating to the states and territories, is especially valuable, since literature on localities is voluminous but often fugitive and inaccessible. Heretofore no up-to-date guide has been available. The main question that presents itself to the reviewer is whether so general a work serves its purpose. Would not a selection of the more valuable bibliographies have rendered a greater service; or, if the inclusive list is desirable, could not a symbol have been used to indicate the titles of first importance?" E. M. Coulter

+ — Am Hist R 44:731 Ap '39 250w
Am J Soc 45:502 N '39 30w

"A remarkably complete and, for the student experienced in the first steps of historical research, a thoroughly useful guide. Cross-reference by numbers from the index and clear, brief but complete citations, far outweigh the relatively minor obstacles. For sociologists working in the field of American (chiefly United States) history, this volume should prove to be an indispensable aid."

+ Am Soc R 4:155 F '39 140w

"Rich in bibliographical materials, conveniently organized for handy reference fortified by an adequate subject-author index, the book is an indispensable tool that must find its way into every library in the country. It must also take a prominent place on the shelf of the serious student or researcher in American history." W. J. Petersen

+ Social Studies 30:232 My '39 350w

BEHLING, BURTON NEUBERT. Competition and monopoly in public utility industries. 187p $2.50; pa $2 Univ. of Ill.

380.1682 Public utilities—U.S. Competition. Monopolies 38-28574

"The purpose of this study is to show the basis for and the extent of monopoly in the operation of local utilities, to judge the effectiveness of competition by substitution of alternative services in controlling rates, and to ascertain how rates are determined for the several classes of customers under state regulation." (Ann Am Acad) Bibliography.

"Judged on the basis of its content of facts and ideas dealing with the subject of direct and indirect competition, this is a thoughtful work. The style is difficult, but the book will repay careful study." Eliot Jones

+ Am Econ R 29:159 Mr '39 700w

"Competition in the utility industries is a timely subject of study, and the conclusions of the author are sound. The conclusions are not strikingly new, being those generally accepted by most students in the field for some time. The contribution of this study lies in the fact that it presents a more comprehensive treatment than previously available." W. F. Kennedy

+ Ann Am Acad 203:248 My '39 550w

Reviewed by H. F. Havlik
J Pol Econ 47:744 O '39 350w

BEHRMAN, SAMUEL NATHANIEL. No time for comedy. 216p $2 Random house

812 (W) 39-14726

The play is about a popular author of light comedies who attempts, with the help of a serious woman adviser, to write of death, immortality and the war in Spain. He is saved from making a fool of himself by the intervention of his actress wife, a brilliant, wise woman who knows the value of comedy.

"'No Time for Comedy,' is direct and well shaped, permitting Mr. Behrman's shrewd, polished and witty dialogue to function always to a point." W. P. Eaton

+ Books p11 Jl 23 '39 110w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '39

"Probably Mr. Behrman was not very happy in writing this play, and he does not make the spectator very happy either." J. W. Krutch

— Nation 148:509 Ap 29 '39 750w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by Otis Ferguson
New Repub 98:378 My 3 '39 550w

"Since S. N. Behrman wrote it, it is smooth and amusing, and if it carries no weighty message—well, that is just what Mr. B. was getting at all the time. Though there have been a few carping doubts about 'No Time for Comedy' as a theatrical business, there can be none about it as a book: Mr. Behrman sets forward a very fine literary foot, indeed." Lewis Nichols

+ N Y Times p17 Jl 30 '39 130w
Pratt p21 autumn '39

BEIGHEY, D. CLYDE, and SPANABEL, ELMER E. Economic and business opportunities. 602p il maps $1.92 Winston

330.1 Economics. Business 38-25646

Textbook for high schools, intended to help students to understand the "economic conditions which affect their daily lives, and to encourage them to develop a socially desirable point of view." The book is divided into eight units: Social and economic problems; Financial aspects of business; Economic and social aspects of production; Distribution of economic goods; Consumption goods and the consumer; Economic and social phases of risk bearing; Control in industry; Occupations. Index.

"At last a readable book dealing with actual economic problems that young people meet every day is available for use in high-school classes of economics. . . For many years high-school books in economics have been college textbooks with a simplified vocabulary but with the same theoretical, abstract approach. It is, therefore, refreshing to find a book that is intended to be of practical and immediate value to a person as he takes up his responsibilities as a wage-earner and a wage-spender." B. H. Wright

+ School R 47:156 F '39 440w

"The organization of the book into eight units is excellent and elastic. It is not necessary to teach the units in order of their book sequence. Graphs, charts, pictures, cartoons are found in sufficient number to break the monotony of the printed page. They become a valuable asset in awakening the pupil's realization of the fact that economics is not just a theoretical subject, but a vital part of everyday living. Study devices are found at the end of every chapter to assist the teacher in making class plans. I should like to suggest that every teacher of economics give this textbook careful consideration, for it is truly 'up to date' in every way." H. B. Pink

+ Social Educ 3:290 Ap '39 350w

BEIM, LORRAINE, and BEIM, JERROLD. The burro that had a name; pictures by Howard Simon. [63p] $1.25 Harcourt

39-27628

Altho everybody told Chucho that "burros do not have names in Mexico" he named his burro Nacas, meaning long ears. When Nacas was lost Chucho was glad he had named him, for the name was a great help in locating him.

Booklist 36:16 S '39

"This is told in very large clear type for very small readers, with full-page drawings in Mexican brown, amusing and true to life." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 N 5 '39 150w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 18 '39 150w
Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 10w

"Small children will feel themselves akin to Chucho. They will like the soft, brown tones of the drawings, and also the large print, even though they may not yet be of an age for reading." Josephine Smith

+ Library J 64:805 O 15 '39 90w

"An appealing little book that boys and girls from 5 to 7 are sure to take to their hearts. . . The print is large and clear and the simple sentences and short lines make this an admirable book for beginners in reading." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p12 O 22 '39 130w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 60w

BEISTLE, MRS ALDARILLA S. Mr Heine and Scroot; pictures by Mary Alice Beistle. [36p] $1 McKay

39-7588

Story-picture book for young readers, in which Mr Heinie, the dachshund, has a few hours of jealousy over a stray pup, but forgets his animosity when the pup needs a friend.

"The little story is told in simple words and many lovable and genuinely funny scenes in color." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ap 23 '39 220w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack

Boston Transcript p13 Je 29 '39 60w

"A pleasing story with delightful pictures for children from five to seven." E. G. Mullan

+ Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 100w

"The young artist whose first pictures of Mr. Heinie were published a year ago [Mr Heinie, Book Review Digest, 1938] has advanced considerably in technique without having lost any of the fresh gayety which characterized that book." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 26 '39 220w

BEKEN, FRANK. Beauty of sail; photographs by Bëken of Cowes. 279p $10 Scribner [25s Davies]

797.12 Sailing—Pictorial works

"Volume of photographs by Beken, with illustrative letter-press by Uffa Fox [which] covers mainly (though not entirely), the aristocratic end of the sport, and its history in the last fifty years." New Statesman & Nation

"Most of the hundred pictures (taken by one of the greatest of all marine photographers) are well-posed portraits of famous racers and cruising yachts. To the eye this is the Audubon of stylish seafaring. The text is occasionally becalmed."

+ — Boston Transcript p2 N 26 '38 60w

"Even if you have neither the income nor the wish to take part in J-class racing and the rest of it, no one with an eye for a ship could fail to get intense pleasure from these beautiful and historic photographs, or to draw instruction from Uffa Fox's shrewd comments. Uffa Fox is, of course, in a class by himself among writers for yachtsmen; for not only is he one of the most brilliant designers and helmsmen of the day, but he has the rare natural gift of talking sense in the exact words which suit what he has to say." Richard Hughes

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:26 Ja 7 '39 240w

"The change in yachting fashions within half a century is strikingly displayed in these pictures, and a few of the more recent emphasize the lack of variety in a modern yacht anchorage by comparison with a similar scene fifty years ago."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p42 Ja 21 '39 110w

BELDEN, CLARK. Common stocks and uncommon sense. 322p $3 Coward-McCann

332.67 Stocks. Investments 39-14074

A layman's study of the present-day stock market, written for the small stock holder. Partial contents: Dow theory possibilities; The anticipatory approach at turning points; Shorter-term considerations; Short selling has two sides! Trading is tricky; Margin—a two-way street; Fixed ideas can ruin us! How seriously should we take our investments? Using what we learn; Investment advisory services as guides; Brokers as advisers. Index.

"The book is intended for the use of the individual whose bread-and-butter occupation is more important to him than the stock market. Mr. Belden has done an admirable job in filling a need that has long existed."

+ Management R 28:283 Ag '39 700w

"The enthusiasm with which the author, writing in the first person singular, reveals the path to wealth makes his book interesting reading. His insistence on research in order to avoid the pitfalls of ignorance would lead one to expect the most optimistic results from one's investments. But Belden is unwilling to guarantee the outcome of such research; perhaps he is aware of the role of the business cycle." J. C.

+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 Jl 8 '39 280w

BELL, ADRIAN. Men and the fields with drawings and lithographs by John Nash. 155p $3.50 Scribner [8s 6d Batsford]

914.2 England—Social life and customs. Country life—England. Agriculture—Great Britain

"Mr Bell's account of men and their fields, the 'old England' with which he is most at home, is developed chronologically from one New Year's to another, through the slow march of the seasons across the remote hills and dales hidden from all but the true farmer. He writes sparely of a lean, industrious folk, men who are the unseen backbone of an oblivious society, and of the bare land which provides their life. . . The text is liberally sprinkled with drawings and lithographs by John Nash that serve to accentuate in another medium the particular appeal, the little homely touches, evoked by the words of the author." Boston Transcript

Books p17 N 19 '39 200w

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 26 '39 240w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 29 '39 700w

"Though very much himself, Mr. Bell is in the direct line of those relatively few writers, such as Richard Jefferies and W. H. Hudson, who have combined literary style with an intimate knowledge of the country as seen through the countryman's own eyes." G. T.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 21 '39 220w

"The book is delightfully illustrated with John Nash's lithographs in charming tones of blue and green and yellow and with lively drawings of men and fields and beasts."

+ N Y Times p8 Ag 13 '39 340w

Reviewed by Honor Croome

Spec 163:382 S 15 '39 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p376 Je 24 '39 200w

BELL, ARCHIBALD COLQUHOUN. Sea power and the next war. 179p $2 (6s) Longmans

359 Sea power. Great Britain—Navy. Great Britain—Defenses 39-6659

"This is a curious, iconoclastic, and at times bitter and cynical, discussion of sea power in the modern world. It is curious because in its brief, and readable—but not always too accurate—pages, a retired British naval officer disregards the theories of Mahan and the Nelsonian tradition (neither one is mentioned in the book or its bibliography) and coldly analyzes fighting fleets, unfettered by the incubus of the distant past. Commander Bell goes back only to the World War for his examples, and he thinks forward not backward—a rare thing in any period of history. His book is iconoclastic because it assails some of the cherished beliefs of British sea dogs." N Y Times

Foreign Affairs 17:629 Ap '39 30w

"Commander Bell's provoking little study of sea power in a future conflict—as stimulating and as interesting as it may prove to the expert—is, unfortunately, more likely to bewilder and perplex than to enlighten the general reader. An iconoclastic delight in 'debunking' all the cherished tenets of orthodox naval strategy, from Mahan to Castex, induces him to overstate an arguable, if one-sided, case and thus to convey a wholly erroneous conception both of the situation in the World War, upon which he bases himself to the exclusion of all previous experience, and of the general character of sea power and naval strategy."

— + New Statesman & Nation 17:258 F 18 '39 500w

"'Sea Power and the Next War' in places seems bitter and cynical, because the author is a man who faces facts frankly, who does not cloak the terrible deeds we do in war under the hypocrisy of patriotism, who brushes aside the legal technicalities and superficial niceties with which so many writers mask the leering face of war. . . But the author's personal rancors sometimes seem to seep through his argument to the detriment of the whole. . . Nevertheless, there is much that is admirable in this book—a book at once so right and so wrong." H. W. Baldwin
+ — N Y Times p16 F 12 '39 1100w

"Mr. Bell brushes aside as unimportant all such elementary detail as the technical development of the instruments of sea power and the influence of their development on the composition of the fleets of the future. In the didactic and somewhat contemptuous tone which marks the whole book he explains that all war, by land or sea, is merely a means of controlling communications."
Times [London] Lit Sup p655 O 15 '38 350w

BELL, J. MUNRO, ed. The furniture designs of Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton; with an introd. and critical estimate by Arthur Hayden, and an essay by Charles Messer Stow. [312p] 460 il $4.50 McBride [25s Cresset]

749 Furniture (W) 38-29012

"Reprints of four old books, containing the original, detailed designs of household furniture, drawn by the three master English cabinet-makers. The book by Chippendale was published in 1754, the one by Hepplewhite in 1794, and the two by Sheraton in 1802 and 1812. Valuable mainly for historical interest." Booklist

---

Booklist 35:154 Ja 1 '39

"In quality the reproductions are conspicuously inferior to the original engravings, but the book may be useful to antique-dealers and students who are far from good libraries. The superiority of Chippendale to his successors jumps immediately to the eye. . . All three designers produced lovely work, but comparison seems only to emphasise the supremacy of Chippendale."
New Statesman & Nation 18:802 D 2 '39 230w

BELLMAN, CARL MICHAEL. The last of the troubadours, Carl Michael Bellman, 1740-1795: his life and his music, by Hendrik Willem Van Loon and Grace Castagnetta. 96p il $2.50 Simon & Schuster

784.8 Bellman, Carl Michael. Songs, Swedish (W) 39-21977

Brief biography of the eighteenth-century Swedish poet, musician and ballad writer, who was a companion of Gustav II. Twenty of his songs are given with piano accompaniments.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p5 D 17 '39 500w

"Mr. Van Loon's introduction helps us to picture the many characters with which the songs deal, but even this aid cannot reduce the stiffness of the words to many of the songs. Somehow, the easy rhythm and simplicity of Bellman's lines are obscured in translation, skillful as it is. Perhaps no English translation can do Bellman justice. Much of Stephen Foster would hobble pretty badly in Swedish. But there are a few songs, such as Fredman's Farewell to Ulla, and Joachim of Babylon whose diction does not jar. The illustrations by Mr. Van Loon are not of his best, though they contribute to the charm of the book. The authors have performed a musical service in introducing Bellman to America." Roy Lamson, Jr.
+ — Boston Transcript p3 Ag 19 '39 550w

"The translations are often not very graceful. Nevertheless, the book is pleasantly manufactured, pleasantly illustrated, and the tuneful songs are set to a pleasant accompaniment by Grace Castagnetta, easy to play and satisfactory with or without the voice."
+ — New Repub 100:320 O 18 '39 60w

"Like 'The Songs We Sing' and 'Christmas Carols' this is a song book for the library of those households fortunate enough to make family singing one of the home pleasures." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p10 D 31 '39 200w

BELLOC, HILAIRE. Charles II, the last rally. 280p il $3.50 Harper

B or 92 Charles II, king of England (W) 39-31525

A character study of Charles II and a new interpretation of his place in history. As in his earlier work on Louis XIV, the author takes as his theme "the eternal conflict between One Man Government [Monarchy] and the Rich"—the battle in which he finds Louis won and Charles ultimately lost. Index.

"Brilliant and provocative as one might expect from the author's previous work, it is a contentious interpretation of Charles's character and policies rather than a detailed account of his life. Moreover, there is more repetition than seems necessary for the purpose, even of emphasis, and at least a few evidences of discursiveness and hasty writing." A. L. Cross
+ — Boston Transcript p5 D 23 '39 360w

"A d'Artagnan of dialectic hurls defiance at presuppositions that have been taken for granted, and he scores his fair share of hits. The Belloc saga—an immense achievement—now covers much of British history. We have here the latest installment. By Mr. Belloc's disciples it will be read as a matter of course. A wider public can hardly fail to find it—to use an abused word—intriguing. It provokes—that is the right way of putting it—it provokes thought." P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p9 N 12 '39 1200w

"An able American historian wrote recently: 'The biographer who could portray Charles as a great and good king must have consummate literary skill and a generous blindness to facts.' That sentence nominates Mr. Hilaire Belloc, whose ultra-Catholic ultra-royalism makes him Charles's natural champion anyway, and who has already written a whole string of popular biographies combining undeniable literary skill with the ability to deny the plainest historical facts." G. M.
— + Sat R of Lit 21:42 D 2 '39 350w

BELLOC, HILAIRE. Sonnets and verse. new ed 203p $2.50 Sheed [7s 6d; ltd autog ed 12s 6d Duckworth]

821 39-11813

A volume of Mr Belloc's collected verse was first published some fifteen years ago (Book Review Digest, 1924). This new edition adds several unpublished sonnets, many new epigrams and the long Heroic poem in praise of wine.

Cath World 149:632 Ag '39 310w

Reviewed by J. G. E. Hopkins
Commonweal 30:223 Je 16 '39 180w

Reviewed by H. G. Leach
Forum 102:48 Jl '39 10w

Reviewed by Charles Powell
Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 1 '38 390w

BELLOC, HILAIRE (hĭl'ary bĕl'ŭk)

BELLOC, HILAIRE—Continued

"I am far too grateful to Mr. Hilaire Belloc to attempt to criticise him. His poems were amongst the first I enjoyed, and, reading them through now, I still get a great deal of enjoyment out of them. Hearty, self-dramatising, shallow, they still have a very rich contact with life, and they have all the enthusiasm of a very exuberant personality." Stephen Spender

New Statesman & Nation 16:256 Ag 13 '38 120w

"It is true that Mr. Belloc in his 'memorable' verse has sacrificed everything to lilt and the sounding phrase. But how good he is at them; and surely even the new severe young men have occasional use for poetry that can be shouted into the wind. Or has the world said good-bye to all that?"

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p375 My 28 '38 100w

BELOFF, MAX. Public order and popular disturbances, 1660-1714. 168p map $3.50 (10s) Oxford

942.06 Great Britain—History—Stuarts, 1603-1714. Great Britain—Social conditions. Riots

[39-19329]

"Study of popular discontent during the reigns of Charles II, James II, William and Mary, and Anne. Mr. Beloff shows that though there was no revolutionary movement based on class consciousness, there was more social agitation and disorder than has generally been supposed. This discontent was essentially conservative—the discontent of people whose life and livelihood were affected by economic changes." Times [London] Lit Sup

---

"This work has been well planned and well executed. The author . . . has cast his net widely and has carefully sifted a mass of information. . . It may seem ungrateful in view of the valuable information actually supplied to ask for more, but the Sacheverell riots, familiar though they are, require more detailed treatment than they receive." G. Davies

+ — Am Hist R 44:966 Jl '39 290w

Reviewed by R. K. Merton

Am Soc R 4:434 Je '39 140w

Eng Hist R 54:179 Ja '39 320w

"This is a scholarly and careful study."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p550 Ag 27 '38 280w

BEMELMANS, LUDWIG. Madeline; pictures by [the author]. [48p] $2 Simon & Schuster

(W) 39-21791

Picture book, telling in rhyme and large colored pictures about Madeline, who was the smallest girl in a Paris school, where all the ten little inmates did their work and play in unison. When Madeline had to have her appendix out, all her little schoolmates wept. They wanted their appendixes out too.

Booklist 36:116 N 15 '39

"A funnier book in its own demure and different way I have not seen this year, nor one more likely to please both little people and their elders without appealing to precocity in one or sophistication in the other. . . I suppose there's a moral; I didn't look for it. I was too busy laughing. This is fun that won't go out of style." M. L. Becker

+ Books p14 N 12 '39 200w

Cath World 150:375 D '39 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '39

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk M 15:294 S '39 80w

"In this amusing picture book Bemelmans' brilliant gift for creating a genuine sense of place makes Paris and one of its schools for girls as real as Bruges, in The Golden Basket, or the Tyrol, in Hansi. He arouses, too, an ardent wish to know Madeline, a child who did not take kindly to regimentation." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 15:378 N '39 70w

"Madeline is certainly one of the people you will want to meet, not only for her sake, but because the pictures in the book include some beautiful reproductions of real scenes in Paris. The fact that the story is told in couplets will make it doubly popular, I believe. If children have a chance to see it, they will like it." Josephine Smith

+ Library J 64:848 N 1 '39 100w

"Will appeal to children of any age as well as to adults." E. G. Mullan

+ Library J 65:78 Ja 15 '40 100w

"Gayety is the keynote of the book in text and pictures, nevertheless Mr. Bemelmans's drawings of the opera, of Notre Dame in the rain, of the sun shining on birds and children in the Luxembourg and Tuileries Gardens have put an authentic Paris within the covers of this book. The rhyme and strongly marked rhythm with which the tale is told make it one that children of pre-school age will enjoy repeating with the aid of the pictures, as they turn the pages. For children 6 to 8, and for readers of any age who love Paris." A. T Eaton

+ N Y Times p12 S 24 '39 240w

"Humorous and delightful, but perhaps more so to parents than to children."

+ New Yorker 15:87 N 25 '39 30w

"Very satisfactory." Marion Strobel

+ Poetry 55:222 Ja '40 100w

BEMELMANS, LUDWIG. Small beer. 186p il $2.50; ltd autog ed $5 Viking

(W) 39-24342

Ten flavorsome short stories and sketches by the author of Life Class (Book Review Digest, 1938). Some have been previously published in periodicals. All are illustrated by the author.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson Bulletin 13:522 Ap '39

"Bemelmans can tell stories about himself as well as about others, as you will find out in his tales, 'My English Suit in Paris,' and 'Dear General, What a Surprise!' Altogether there are ten little Bemelmans items in this volume some of them good and some of them excellent. And, as always, his drawings make up at least half the enjoyment of his contributions." Rose Feld

+ Books p6 Ag 27 '39 650w

"Irony and urbanity, humor tinged with an authentic cosmopolitan flavor, and subtly conveyed sense of the tragic element inseparable from some of the most trivial events in the lives of quite commonplace people, which one naturally expects to find in Mr. Bemelmans' books, are all to be enjoyed in full measure in this little volume of short stories." Ashton Sanborn

+ Boston Transcript p1 O 7 '39 240w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '39

"Bemelmans' writing style is so wry, clear and perfect that his scenes have the cozy illusion of depth and life you get from stereopticons; I think no one in the informal-essay field today can equal it." Otis Ferguson

+ New Repub 100:137 S 6 '39 700w

"It is all done in the best Bemelmans style—a style so lucid, economical, graceful, intelligent, that it is truly amazing that English was acquired by the writer as either his second or his third language. And it is seasoned with the gamey Bemelmans humor. This seasoning is a bit high at times, it should be noted." Robert Van Gelder

+ N Y Times p5 S 3 '39 700w

"Delightful from first page to last, and so are the haphazard Bemelmans drawings."

+ New Yorker 15:62 S 2 '39 40w

"Mr. Bemelmans has an agreeable way of dispensing continental humor. His style has both crispness and facility. Yet many of the sketches need more substance to justify the elaboration which the author gives them."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 15 '39 180w

Time 34:54 S 4 '39 400w

BENEFIELD, BARRY. April was when it began. 310p $2.50 Reynal

(W) 39-19013

Martin Wivert was twenty-three, medium in stature and achievements, the fourth editorial assistant in a New York publishing house. Lula Horgos (alias Dik-Dik) was the lonely, socially ostracized twelve-year-old daughter of a professor (retired) of physics, who pursued psychical researches in an old West Side brownstone front. Partly chance, partly the prophesying of a deflated medium, brought them together, and this story tells how and why they remained together ever after.

Booklist 36:8 S '39

"As the story proceeds it is quite possible that some readers may find this to be a 'tender and lovely fantasy,' like Miss Upjohn's; and it is highly probable that the word 'whimsical' will be cast at it, for good or ill. But the true beauty of the novel is in its keenness and naturalness as its incidents and its characters go along their extraordinary way. If it has a touch of 'lovely fantasy,' it is blest with a lovely literalness as well, and its tenderness is not of emotion merely but of human understanding." John Patton

+ Books p4 Jl 23 '39 750w

Christian Century 56:1025 Ag 23 '39 100w

"There is here some of the same pixillated geniality which reached its high-water mark in the Kaufman-Hart Pulitzer prize-winner, 'You Can't Take It With You'; it is the same quality which also pervades the work of Robert Nathan. Barry Benefield is a promising member of this fraternity. He may strike a wrong note occasionally, letting a dissonant crotchet or semiquaver intrude, but the pitch is just right, and the melody the same as that sounded by his confrères." M. W. S.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 29 '39 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '39

New Repub 100:112 Ag 30 '39 40w

" 'April Was When It Began' is—if one may borrow a phrase from Alexander Woollcott—a novel to warm the cockles of the sentimental heart... It is all fairly good fun, not too heavily weighted with Mr. Benefield's philosophic conviction that illusions are precious and ought to be cherished. The chances are, even if you think you don't like whimsy, that you will keep right on reading to the end." Margaret Wallace

N Y Times p7 Jl 23 '39 600w

New Yorker 15:75 Jl 22 '39 40w

Pratt p27 autumn '39

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 30 '39 500w

Time 34:72 Jl 17 '39 240w

Wis Lib Bul 35:166 O '39

BENES, EDVARD. Democracy today and tomorrow. 244p $3 (8s 6d) Macmillan

321.8 Democracy. Europe—Politics

(W) 39-27712

"No one has a better right to speak of the struggle of democracy in Europe than has the former president of Czechoslovakia. In this volume, containing the substance of his lectures at the University of Chicago, he surveys the growth of the democratic spirit, the effects of the World War upon it, reasons for the failure of the League of Nations, the rise of totalitarian states and the development of the present tensions. He believes that a war is probable but that democracy will not perish from the earth—if those who believe in democracy are vigilant and determined." (Christian Century) Index.

Reviewed by H. N. Howard

Ann Am Acad 207:226 Ja '40 700w

"In the course of his discussion, Dr. Beneš says many excellent things which American readers will do well to ponder. Unfortunately he also falls into repeated and serious contradictions, both historical and philosophical. . . The criticism of a major split in Dr. Beneš's presentation of this great issue should not, however, obscure the interest of the book. Its sincerity and thoughtfulness carry a conviction of their own, different in kind from historical and philosophic consistency, but not less valuable—and this too in spite of numerous slips, verbal and factual, which have crept into the text and which one would like to see corrected in future editions." Jacques Barzun

+ — Atlantic O '39 700w

Booklist 36:36 O 1 '39

"The sense of balanced perspective is the great attraction of this book. No doubt it will surprise many people to find the most famous individual victim of the Munich conference writing so dispassionately about the conflict between democracy and the totalitarian states. To understand how it is possible, one has only to turn back to Thomas G. Masaryk's 'The Making of a State.' This book by Masaryk's successor as President of Czechoslovakia is in the same tradition." J. B. Phillips

+ Books p6 S 17 '39 1250w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

Boston Transcript p1 S 23 '39 800w

Christian Century 56:1078 S 6 '39 100w

Christian Science Monitor p18 S 27 '39 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '39

Reviewed by J. G. Kerwin

Commonweal 31:191 D 15 '39 130w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins

Current Hist 51:1 O '39 600w

Foreign Affairs 18:368 Ja '40 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting

Forum 102:v O '39 50w

"In spite of his having been a potent factor in European politics for twenty-five years and in spite of his having written a political book, Dr. Benes is still a professor. However, he is not a weathercock professor like many of his Nazi and fascist colleagues, who change their opinions with the wind of power, but a dauntless student of truth. By this professorial yet readable book he has again augmented the high esteem he enjoys as a philosopher, a statesman, and a typical representative of his homogeneous, democratic nation." Rustem Vambery

+ Nation 149:295 S 16 '39 1150w

"An exceptionally clear and vigorous restatement of the democratic credo."

+ New Repub 100:167 S 13 '39 40w

"No one could be better qualified by experience to discuss the great issue of our day than the former President of Czecho-Slovakia. Naturally, Dr. Benes is not a cold-blooded historian, yet he has more balance in his judgments than many who have written their lives away in peaceful libraries. He has the confident and judicial quality that goes with the higher type of courage." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p3 S 3 '39 1550w

"Not the usual banalities, but the reflections of a distinguished statesman and scholar."

+ New Yorker 15:62 S 2 '39 40w

"Although somewhat heavy in style, this apologia for a life and a cause is both informing and inspiring. Dr. Beneš might have devoted more pages to the economic problems confronting every democracy, and to the difficulties involved in the federation of Europe which he advocates." J. F. Green

+ Sat R of Lit 20:13 S 2 '39 360w

BENES, EDVARD—Continued
Reviewed by J. A. Spender
Spec 163:550 O 20 '39 850w
Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 S 9 '39 1350w
Reviewed by E. O. Hauser
Survey G 28:633 O '39 90w
Times [London] Lit Sup p603 O 21 '39 850w
Wis Lib Bul 35:182 N '39

BENES, EDVARD. International security. See Laves, W. H. C.

BENET, LAURA. Enchanting Jenny Lind. 452p il $2.50 Dodd
B or 92 Lind, Jenny (Mrs Otto Goldschmidt)
(W) 39-28963

Slightly fictionized by the introduction of conversations and private musings, this is an otherwise authentic biography of Jenny Lind from the age of four—when she first consciously heard a bird sing—to the conclusion of her contract with Barnum and her marriage to Otto Goldschmidt.

Booklist 36:155 D 15 '39

"The jacket offers it to 'any one from fifteen up'; even fifteen-year-olds read popular biographies for adults. There is no other life of Jenny Lind available to adults in America that has so much material new and old, and this material has a blend of romance and respectability that commends it especially to those who buy books for young girls." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 N 26 '39 550w
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 20 '40 200w
Cath World 150:382 D '39 120w
Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 21 '39 140w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 15:387 N '39 110w
Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk M 16:29 Ja '40 20w

"The accounts of her American tour and the conflicts between Jenny Lind and Barnum are delightful. The style is simple and it is an extremely well-written book which will appeal to the intermediate girls. The type is clear and the illustrations and portraits of Jenny Lind, Mendelssohn and other musicians of that time are also." J. F. Carter
+ Library J 65:125 F 1 '40 150w

"The story of the 'Swedish Nightingale' is romantic and human, and while the author shows clearly, as a background, the very different period in which the singer lived, she makes her a real person with whom the girl of today will feel at home. The many small drawings catch the spirit of the time and the photographs are interesting. A book for older girls and adults." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 D 31 '39 250w

BENET, STEPHEN VINCENT. The devil and Daniel Webster; an opera in one act; for the opera by Douglas Moore. 78p $1.50 Farrar
782 Operas—Librettos. Webster, Daniel—Drama (W) 39-19018

Libretto of an opera made from the story of the New Hampshire farmer who sold his soul to the devil, and who was so ably defended by Daniel Webster that for once the devil was the loser.

Reviewed by John Holmes
Boston Transcript p1 Je 17 '39 410w
Dramatic criticism by Grenville Vernon
Commonweal 30:160 Je 2 '39 550w
Reviewed by Lewis Nichols
N Y Times p17 Jl 30 '39 120w

BENET (bĕn'ā')

BENET, STEPHEN VINCENT. Tales before midnight. 274p $2.50 Farrar
(W) 39-27965

Collection of the author's short stories, most of them of recent date. Contents: Into Egypt; Johnny Pye and the fool-killer; O'Halloran's luck; Jacob and the Indians; The die-hard; Doc Mellhorn and the pearly gates; The story about the anteater; A life at Angelo's; Too early spring; Schooner Fairchild's class; Among those present; The last of the legions.

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

"Mr. Benet has told these stories in strong, rhythmic American idiom and with a grace that gives them dignity. Readers who are accustomed to giving scant courtesy to those phonographic recordings of living that pass hereabouts for literary short stories are informed that this is an important book filled with the poetic imaginative qualities that make the well rounded tale a distinctive contribution to a nation's literature." Carl Carmer
+ Books p3 N 19 '39 850w
Reviewed by John Holmes
Boston Transcript p6 D 9 '39 700w

"A volume of Stephen Vincent Benét's short stories is something to be welcomed by all who admire intelligence and superior craftsmanship, plus a venturesomeness that strikes out into unworked fields for material."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 23 '39 500w
Reviewed by Robert Van Gelder
N Y Times p6 N 5 '39 650w
New Yorker 15:89 N 11 '39 70w

"Mr. Benét's . . . style is always polished and always readable, but it doesn't strike me as ever being much more. One might be satisfied, one might not be justified in asking for more except that, from the beginning of this book to the end, Mr. Benét's ideas and his material both cry for writing that is distinguished and genuine." William Maxwell
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:14 N 11 '39 450w

"You will never find Mr. Benét in the gutter, or eavesdropping on tired drinkers, or running over his ideological aversions with a ten-ton truck. The poet in him has higher goals and subtler means to reach them. And you won't find many stories in these days to match Into Egypt or Johnny Pye and the Fool Killer." Robert Littell
+ Yale R ns 29:xii winter '40 60w

BENET, WILLIAM ROSE, and PEARSON, NORMAN HOLMES, eds. The Oxford anthology of American literature. 1705p $6; college ed $4.50 Oxford 810.8 American literature—Collections
(W) 38-34361

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"In the main, the selections seem judicious. It is, of course, almost proverbially easy to quarrel with anthologists, for 'tis with our judgements as with our watches, none goes just alike but each believes his own. . . . At the back, somewhat more than 100 pages are devoted to what the editors call 'Biographical Commentaries'—barest summaries of the career and achievement of each writer with some brief, but often excellently incisive, critical observations." S.C.C.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 4 '39 700w

"Arguing with a pair of anthologists who admit everything beforehand makes little sense. Fortunately, their volume represents so catholic a taste that probably few specialists will find much to carp at, and most general readers will find much to delight them." Charles Angoff
+ Living Age 356:94 Mr '39 650w

"The book provides ample evidence of the usefulness of intelligence and sound scholarship in making an anthology. Principles guided the construction of this book, though the statement of these principles in the preface is much fuzzier than that made by the selections themselves and in the commentaries." W. M. Sale, Jr.

+ Yale R ns 28:639 spring '39 800w

BENEY, MARGARETE ADA. Differentials in industrial wages and hours in the United States. See National industrial conference board

BENHAM, FREDERIC CHARLES. Economics; a general textbook for students. 488p $3 (7s 6d) Pitman

330.1 Economics [39-14076]

"The author of this textbook offers a treatment of almost all the principal theoretical issues arising in economics, starting from the basic individual behavior and finishing with the complexities of international trade and finance. Mr. Benham is a reader in the University of London and has made a name for himself by a series of publications, notably in the field of money and international trade. . . His work is divided into five books dealing successively with demand, production, the working of the price system under capitalism, money and banking, and, finally, international trade." J Pol Econ

---

"The development of the concepts and tools of analysis and the use of diagrams is particularly careful and straightforward and is quite similar in viewpoint and method to the recent texts published in both England and the United States. The text would be more useful for the classroom in this country if the many examples and descriptions included more from American experience; but this handicap is not severe, and the general excellence of the presentation more than overcomes it." F. M. Boddy

+ — Am Econ R 29:357 Je '39 650w

Economist 132:325 Ag 13 '38 800w

"Although some topics such as risk and profit do not seem to be covered as extensively as might be desirable, the book undoubtedly ranks among the very best available today. It is written in a lucid manner, its style is lively, and it recommends itself to earnest consideration either by those who want to teach or by those who desire to instruct themselves in a difficult but important field without further aid." Oskar Morgenstern

+ J Pol Econ 47:595 Ag '39 650w

"For first year students Dr. Benham's book is certainly much the best we have. There is nothing in it which they need afterwards unlearn, and it may be that only those with unusual talent for systematic and abstract thought would profit from a more rigorous exposition. The chief thing they have to learn is, after all, the art of making simplifying assumptions and applying them with care to a wide range of problems. In reading Dr. Benham they will have plenty of practice in this art. The same applies also to the general reader." A. W. Stonier

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:510 Ap 1 '39 470w

Reviewed by Honor Croome

Spec 161:114 Jl 15 '38 450w

"Both the descriptive and the theoretical parts of the book are thoroughly up to date, and account is taken of the most modern developments in practice and in doctrine. The book should prove useful to university students and to those preparing for Civil Service and professional examinations, and can be recommended to the general reader who wishes to become acquainted with 'the dismal science.' "

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p497 Jl 23 '38 80w

BENJAMIN, EDLA. A well-born corpse. 280p $2 Random house

39-18659

Mystery story.

"Perhaps because this is billed as a first novel by a young writer, or for some other reason, we couldn't take quite seriously Miss Benjamin's heroic coping with the grimmer facts of life. Still, we were constantly entertained, and that's the main thing." Will Cuppy

Books p10 Ag 6 '39 200w

"I read the whole story in something over an hour and closed feeling that I had finished a good book." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 12 '39 90w

"The truth about the family and those closely associated with it comes to light gradually, so that the end of the story is within reach before the reader has enough information to enable him to form an opinion as to the identity of the murderer and the motive which impelled the murder. This book offers an interesting variation upon the murder-mystery theme." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 6 '39 150w

"Quick, easy reading if you can take a family who call a trained nurse Nursie."

New Yorker 15:68 Ag 19 '39 50w

"Identity of killer early evident. Murder method neat but not new. Tale distinguished by excellent writing and gold-plated background. Enjoyable."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 Ag 5 '39 40w

BENJAMIN, HAROLD RAYMOND WAYNE. Saber-tooth curriculum; including other lectures in the history of paleolithic education, by J. Abner Peddiwell [pseud] and several tequila daisies, as told to Raymond Wayne [pseud] with foreword. 139p il $1 (6s) McGraw

39-4058

"A facetious and satirical take-off on our educational practices and economic order." Social Studies

---

Social Studies 30:240 My '39 10w

"The author might have done better to leave out the more facetious passages relating to the delivery of these lectures in a bar-room at Tijuana; but he has been fortunate in realizing how much ridicule could be heaped on current educational catchwords simply by translating them boldly into the less familiar terms of the life of prehistoric man."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p318 My 27 '39 180w

BENJAMIN, MRS NORA. Fathom five; a story of Bermuda; with il. by the author. 241p maps $2 Random house

39-16519

Episodes in the lives of several generations of the Carroll family, from 1609 when the first Carroll was shipwrecked on the island of Bermuda, to the present-day Kit Carroll, who dreams of piloting an airship. For young readers.

"The chronicle form breaks continuity and thus weakens interest in the story, but the Bermuda atmosphere, faithfully represented at successive periods, will make the book one of those recommended to Bermuda visitors for the younger members of the party and read also by the older. The pictures are decorative designs of unusual character, with the characteristic clean-cut sky-lines and brilliant blues, reds and greens that so charm the stranger at first sight of Hamilton or St. Georges. This is a beautifully made book." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Jl 23 '39 350w

"The author conveys the vivid beauty and enchantment of the islands and the sea without long descriptions. It is part and parcel of her stories. The attractive and bright make-up of the book heightens this feeling. It is for this sense of the place that the book is best valued. Children prefer a continuous story to the episodic form covering a long period of time. It is difficult to develop character in this method of narration. Probably for large collections only." Eleanor Kidder

BENJAMIN, NORA—Continued
+ Library J 64:613 Ag '39 150w

"The episodic plan of the book does not, naturally, afford the undivided interest with which one follows a straight narrative, but it will repay 12 to 16 year old readers with a sense of the continuity of tradition, and it is good to be reminded by the loving care with which the islands are pictured in their younger days of a life and history antedating the Tourist Age by three centuries." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Ag 20 '39 350w

BENNETT, HARRY. Standard chemical and technical dictionary. 638p $10 Chemical pub. co.

660.3 Chemistry, Technical—Dictionaries
39-22556

"Over 25,000 definitions and pronunciations are included in this work. The technical works included cover and bring up to date the definitions and pronunciations of terms in the fields of chemistry, engineering, mathematics and physics. Trade names, contractions and symbols are also included as well as commonly used synonyms. The definitions include physical properties of the elements and compounds defined. The most commonly used abbreviations are appended to the end of the work. The author, a fellow of the American Institute of Chemists and the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is editor-in-chief of the Chemical Formulary, the Standard Book of Formulas and other handbooks in the general range of practical everyday chemistry." Chem & Met Eng

---

Chem & Met Eng 46:725 N '39 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:36 Jl '39

BENNETT, MARY ANGELA. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. 172p $2 Univ. of Pa. press [9s Oxford]

B or 92 Ward, Mrs Elizabeth Stuart (Phelps)
39-16781

Biographical study of the author of The Gates Ajar. "Tremendously popular at one time, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps is scarcely known to the present-day reader even by name. So great has been the neglect into which she has fallen that no extended study of her life and work has ever been published. There has been no previous biography except her own Chapters From a Life, if that can be called a biography which is entirely innocent of dates and almost so of all specific information." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. M. Jones
— Boston Transcript p1 Jl 15 '39 370w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 19 '39 220w

"Factually, the biography is adequate. Critically, it is not." F. I. C.
— + New Eng Q 12:816 D '39 150w
Springf'd Republican p6 N 27 '39 360w

"Miss Bennett has collected a large amount of material from many sources, but has not allowed herself or the reader to be overwhelmed by it. She tells us just what is worth knowing about Miss Phelps and her books, and in her appreciation of their merits and demerits she exercises a critical judgment that is wholly admirable."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p598 O 14 '39 200w

BENNETT, RICHARD. Hannah Marie [il. by the author]. 70p map $1.50 Doubleday
(W) 39-27629

Hannah Marie wanted to give great-grandmother Bessie a present on her hundredth birthday, but there was no money. So Hannah Marie set out to fill a flower box, and by mistake dug up a flower from beside a fairy path. According to Irish superstition that should have been unlucky, but in the end all turned out happily.

Booklist 36:16 S '39

"Full of humor and gentle feeling for homely family relations." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 15:299 S '39 80w

"Mr. Bennett's other books have had individuality and a keen sense of story. This new book, too, has flavor but structurally it is poor. The threads of the story dangle. However, if variety is wanted in picture-book stories with an Irish background, this can be recommended." M. F. Potter
+ — Library J 64:805 O 15 '39 100w

"This is a poker-faced fairy tale which even the skeptical child can enjoy for its setting as well as its plot. The author's illustrations are uneven in quality, being heavier in line and more static than usual, but noses and cheeks are unmistakably Irish in line, and the best pictures are appealing and decorative." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p12 S 17 '39 320w
Wis Lib Bul 35:187 N '39

BENNS, FRANK LEE. Europe since 1914. 4th ed 933p il maps $5 Crofts [16s Bell, G]

940.5 Europe—History—1914- (W) 39-27019

"Events in Europe up to the fall of 1938, and the progress of the Chinese-Japanese war are summarized in the pages added to this history." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index. For earlier editions see Book Review Digest, 1930, 1934, and 1936.

Booklist 35:207 F 15 '39

"This book is not only a superior textbook for the use of the college student and general reader, but it should be wisely used by teachers of modern history in secondary schools on their student's reference shelf." H. E. Wagner
+ Social Studies 30:141 Mr '39 330w
Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 23 '39 150w

BENSON, ADOLPH BURNETT, and HEDIN, NABOTH, eds. Swedes in America, 1638-1938; pub. for the Swedish Am. tercentenary association. 614p il map $3 Yale univ. press [14s Oxford]

325.2485 Swedes in the U.S. 38-27493

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"The dimensions of the story here told are truly challenging. The editors deserve commendation for their skill in welding together material that must have offered robust resistance to the effort to turn it into a meaningful book. Yet the scene portrayed seems too crowded, and in part with actors who do not belong in the play." J. H. Wuorinen
Am Hist R 44:649 Ap '39 350w

"The authors have selected for special mention about fourteen hundred persons. They are found in every kind of activity, in science and in art, in business and in the professions, in public life, in war, in peace. Everywhere they have acquitted themselves well. For its accounts of these men and women the book becomes invaluable as a work of reference; it is almost a 'Who's Who' of American Swedes." C. M. Rosenquist
+ Am Soc R 4:133 F '39 420w

Reviewed by B. P. Adams
Survey 75:61 F '39 130w

BENSON, EDWARD FREDERIC. Trouble for Lucia. 309p $2.50 Doubleday [7s 6d Hodder] 39-27775

Lucia's latest exploits are recounted in this amusing story. As mayor of Tilling, Lucia has lost none of her well-known verve, or her agility for getting out of scrapes. Her battles with Elizabeth Mapp-Flint, whom she appointed Mayoress in order to keep her out of worse trouble, go on with as much gusto as in her former chronicles.

Booklist 36:68 O 15 '39

"You get what you have learned to expect from these carefree, war-defying entertainments. Wodehouse and Benson are doing their respective bits to keep us smiling for the duration." M. L. Becker

Books p4 S 24 '39 550w

"So much has already been written about [the Lucia] books that almost the only thing left to say of this one is that it is as good as its predecessors." J. D. Beresford

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 7 '39 180w

"The novel belongs to that type of farce-comedy, deft, gayly satirical, always bordering on the ridiculous and sometimes crossing the border, yet never wandering beyond the absurdities of everyday life Mr. Benson handles with such evident pleasure and extreme lightness of touch. . . 'Trouble for Lucia' is gay, good-humored and very entertaining." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p7 S 24 '39 500w

"Mr. Benson lays on his satire with a heavy hand and spares nobody, but it's all excellent fun."

New Yorker 15:70 S 30 '39 40w

Sat R of Lit 21:20 F 10 '40 250w

"[In] Trouble for Lucia . . . the humour [is] unforced, and the satire shrewd. The characters, moreover, do not strike us as really unpleasant, though they possess most of the weaknesses of humanity, are snobs, gossips, liars, humbugs, while their wits are employed almost solely either to gain their own ends, or to score off their neighbours. What they say and do is, in fact, extremely lifelike." Forrest Reid

+ Spec 163:68 Jl 14 '39 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p403 Jl 8 '39 330w

BENSON, OLIVER EARL. Through the diplomatic looking-glass; immediate origins of the war in Europe. 239p maps $2 Univ. of Okla. press

940.5311 European war, 1939—Causes. Europe—Politics

Survey of European diplomatic history from the Munich treaty to the German invasion of Poland. The author spent nearly three years in Geneva. He now teaches at the University of Oklahoma. Index.

Booklist 36:211 F 1 '40

"The book is eminently fair, particularly in showing the weak moral position and faulty diplomacy of Poland. On the whole, however, the book has little more style and color than a series of official communiques, and is about as revealing." R. H. Phelps

+ — Boston Transcript p5 Ja 6 '40 100w

Christian Century 56:1512 D 6 '39 30w

New Repub 102:29 Ja 1 '40 30w

BENT, SILAS. Newspaper crusaders; a neglected story. (Whittlesey house publication) 313p $3 McGraw

071 Newspapers—U.S. Journalists
(W) 39-30295

"A chronicle of the publishers, editors, and reporters who have acted as advocates of just causes, defenders of the underdog, and champions of civic and social betterment." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:143 D 15 '39

"Mr. Bent's best in this volume is, on the whole, able and fair. It was not an easy task, confronted as he was by a problem of selection, for there were crusades in amazing quantity and diversity during a century and a half; a problem of narrative within the space limitations of a single book, and a problem of arrangement. The author's treatment of these problems is somewhat haphazard in a historical sense, but is interesting and effective as a one-book bird's-eye view." H. L. Cross

+ Books p14 N 19 '39 1050w

"Mr. Bent, who has established himself as the historian of newspapers by 'Ballyhoo' and 'Strange Bedfellows' has made a pretty complete and very entertaining study of the techniques, ends and moralities of newspaper crusades, but at the same time he has contributed an important study to one aspect of American life that is too important to be neglected." Alden Hoag

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 28 '39 220w

Christian Century 56:1474 N 29 '39 140w

"When Mr. Bent wrote in criticism of American journalism, he yelled too much and did not always stick to the facts, but he was then closer to the side of the angels than he is now, when he ranks its exploits above those of Hercules. That legendary hero, after all, did slay the hydra. American newspapers have merely taken pot shots at it." Charles Angoff

Living Age 357:390 D '39 550w

Reviewed by James Rorty

Nation 149:654 D 9 '39 180w

New Repub 101:178 N 29 '39 40w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson

N Y Times p11 D 24 '39 500w

New Yorker 15:83 O 28 '39 40w

"The author had the choice of mentioning many incidents, or of telling more adequately the story of a smaller number of outstanding ones. He took the first course, which probably was the better choice, but the choppy effect is sometimes disappointing. The student of the subject, if interested in a particular crusade, doubtless always finds it necessary to go to original sources. . . His comment upon the reported financial returns of certain newspapers in New York is singularly uninformed. He is on sounder ground in his criticisms of newspaper organizations for the character of their opposition to such measures as the child labor amendment and an effective pure food and drugs act." C. McD. Puckette

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:13 N 4 '39 700w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey G 29:34 Ja '40 300w

BENZ, FRANCIS E. On to Suez! the story of de Lesseps and the canal; il. by Victor J. Dowling. 238p map $2 Dodd

B or 92 Lesseps, Ferdinand Marie, vicomte de. Suez canal (W) 39-32242

Biography of Ferdinand de Lesseps, who successfully completed the Suez canal in 1866, a project which had been started as far back as 610 B.C. The book is intended for older boys.

Booklist 36:240 F 15 '40

"This is a fascinating story."

+ Cath World 150:381 D '39 120w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p9 D 21 '39 160w

"This biography with its clear-cut descriptions should be of intense interest to teen age boys and girls as well as many adults, because of its historical background and because it is a book chuck full of adventure vividly related." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 65:78 Ja 15 '40 100w

BERDIAEV, NIKOLAI ALEKSANDROVICH. Spirit and reality. 204p $3 Scribner [8s 6d Bles]

248 Spirituality. Civilization—Philosophy. Metaphysics [39-25278]

"In this book Professor Berdyaev develops in a more concentrated form the theme which underlay his 'Solitude and Society.' Spirit, for him, 'should be interpreted above all in a personalistic way.' To rationalise it is to kill it. Yet while it defies conceptional interpretation its attributes can be apprehended. Among them are 'freedom, meaning, creativity, integrity, love, value, an orientation towards the highest Divine world and union with it.'" Manchester Guardian

"A stimulating book." G. A. Cunningham
+ Churchman 153:18 N 15 '39 200w

"The book is difficult to read, but it will be eagerly taken in hand by those many Churchpeople, lay as well as clerical, to whom a new book by Berdyaev is a notable event." Elizabeth McCracken
+ Living Church 101:5 D 6 '39 50w

"There are occasional extravagances in his thought and complexities in his idiom. But his is a creative mind, and his vision revolutionary in the highest and deepest sense." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 18 '39 330w
Times [London] Lit Sup p160 Mr 18 '39 480w

BERGER, JOSEF (JEREMIAH DIGGES, pseud). Swordfisherman Jim. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 296p il $2 Little 39-31053

Story of fishing off the Grand Banks, for older boys.

Booklist 36:216 F 1 '40
Cath World 150:380 D '39 80w

"A good story not very well written. Exciting for boys."
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:28 N 18 '39 20w

BERGMAN, RAY. Trout; fly plates in full color painted by Edgar Burke; photographs of fly tying by Charles S. Krug; also many diagrams in line by Ivin Sickles. 451p $5 Penn

799.1755 Trout fishing (W) 38-39422

"'Trout' is the first comprehensive volume to cover many methods, many sections of the country, and which fairly faces most of the problems of trout fishing as they are met on American streams. The author has devoted a lifetime to angling without, apparently, ever having been in danger of becoming a professional fisherman. . . Ray Bergman has made a capable survey of many sections of the country for his material. In this book his stories about trout include personal experiences in New York, Ontario, Wyoming, Colorado, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Vermont, New Brunswick, Michigan, Maine and some other sections." Books

Booklist 35:186 F 1 '39

"In this single volume Ray Bergman has more nearly succeeded in covering the entire subject of trout fishing in America than any other writer I know. And he has done it better than any other American writer I know. . . Sixteen plates, in full color, by Dr. Edgar Burke, are alone well worth the price of the book. They include over 600 patterns of wet and dry flies, streamer flies and hackle specimens. Nothing approaching their perfection has ever been printed before." Cy Coggins
+ Books p10 Ja 8 '39 600w

"It contains more practical information and fascinating experiences to illustrate a point than any other book we have seen."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 28 '39 400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '39
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 22 '39 210w

BERGSTRAND-POULSEN, FRU ELISABETH. See Poulsen, E.

BERKELEY, ANTHONY, pseud. See Cox, A. B.

BERMANN, RICHARD ARNOLD. Home from the sea; Robert Louis Stevenson in Samoa; tr. by Elizabeth Reynolds Hapgood. 280p $2.75 Bobbs

Stevenson, Robert Louis—Fiction

This book, "not a biography, but an exotic tale," retells the story of Stevenson's last two years in Samoa, stressing particularly his interest in the natives and his contacts with them. The author, an Austrian man of letters, visited Samoa in the 1920s, where he followed the trails Stevenson traveled and talked with natives who still remembered the teller of tales.

"It's a good book, a book all lovers of Stevenson will have to see . . . and one many others will thoroughly enjoy. There are certain lovely and true sketches here of which few writers would be capable. There are a couple of others, also, of which no artist should be culpable." F. T. Marsh
+ — Books p7 O 8 '39 1300w

"The book is not strictly biography; but in the unfolding of sensitively evoked episodes drawn from the sick Stevenson's South Seas exile, the reader feels he comes to know more of the man than can be found in any of his books." Mario Collaci
+ Living Age 357:292 N '39 350w

"Before everything else this book is a portrait with a Samoan background—a background not merely of a transplanted family circle, moving around a famous European author, but of Samoa itself. The most interesting, most suggestive, most amusing and most tender of these pictures are those which show the Samoan people and Stevenson's relations with them, and some of the most searching examinations of his mind and temperament are made in connection with his exile and his reactions to it." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p4 O 8 '39 1150w

"Though marred by sentimentality and hero-worship, the book is a valuable contribution to Stevensoniana."
+ — New Yorker 15:79 O 7 '39 50w

"Old Stevenson lovers will find nothing to irritate them here, no distortion, no cloying eulogy. Probably they will read on in gratified delight forgetting, as I did, that the text is a translation. And if it sends them, as it sent me, back to the 'Letters,' they will take back with them a fresh realization of the man who sat at the head of all his princely magnificence." T. M. Longstreth
+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 O 21 '39 500w

BERNAL, JOHN DESMOND. The social function of science. 482p $3.50 Macmillan [12s 6d Routledge]

500 Science. Research. Sociology (W) 39-15403

A comprehensive survey of the place science holds in human life—covering the history of its development, present chaotic conditions, and the future possibilities which might result from the reorganization of science teaching and research in universities, government services, industry, etc. Index.

"It is difficult for anybody but a living encyclopedia to check the general accuracy of the data presented. The presentation is excellent, however, and the bibliographical notes at the end of each chapter, as well as several appendices at the end of the book, give generally clear information with respect to the sources. Some of the data in Chapter XIV are open to doubt. . . Such errors do not, however, fundamentally impair the value of the book. It inspires a faith in the value to humanity of unselfish search for truth in the solution of its problems, which today more than ever is sorely needed." C. R. Soderberg

+ Ann Am Acad 206:193 N '39 600w

Booklist 36:3 S '39

Reviewed by W. M. Malisoff

Books p14 O 1 '39 1250w

"The volume breathes a delicious flavor of highly informed frankness. It is a positively wide-reaching critical as well as constructive analysis of the institutional aspects of science. It is essentially a clearing of the atmosphere of the social frustrations and obstructions to the unimpeded progress of scientific advance." Herman Hausheer

+ Christian Century 56:1208 O 4 '39 650w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 7 '39 370w

"A notable, if rather confused, book."

+ — Economist 134:287 F 11 '39 1650w

J Home Econ 31:644 N '39 70w

"The task Prof. Bernal has set himself is encyclopædic; but he is to be congratulated alike on the width and balance of his survey. Important as detail may be, he has not allowed it to obscure his main theme, which is to give a comprehensive picture of the whole situation." R. Brightman

+ Nature 143:262 F 18 '39 1350w

Reviewed by Harold Ward

New Repub 101:148 N 22 '39 450w

Reviewed by S. Zuckerman

New Statesman & Nation 17:296 F 25 '39 1700w

"Whatever one may think of Professor Bernal's solution of our social problems with the aid of science he has written a provocative and valuable book which is badly needed at this time. . . To understand the social function of science is the plain duty of every statesman, legislator and voter. Because he makes that function so clear, Professor Bernal's book is bound to have its effect in crystallizing popular thought. It is not the first study of its kind, and it is certainly one of the most far-reaching and penetrating." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ — N Y Times p4 Je 18 '39 2400w

"The Social Function of Science ought to be required reading for students and faculties of schools of public affairs. With its extensive, although in part cumbersome, bibliography it offers in itself a partial outline for a university course about the potentialities of science to transform society. The book does not devote detailed attention to concrete cases. An examination of the scientific, technological, commercial, and spontaneous factors involved in the development of radio broadcasting, for example, would have been a valuable addition." J. Q. Stewart

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 10:294 O '39 1600w

" 'The Social Function of Science' contains many practical suggestions which could be and should be adopted by the democracies. Indeed, the book should be read by every student and professor of science in such countries, to say nothing of the lay citizens who support the scientists and who reap evil as well as good from their work." J. H. Bradley

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 Ag 5 '39 550w

"It is highly appropriate that this truly stimulating book by one of England's ablest young physicists, fellow of the Royal Society and member of the faculty of the University of London, should be widely read in America, during the summer months." A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:1 Jl '39 1050w

"Four-fifths of Bernal's criticisms are just and informed, and the frustrations of science which he analyses could be removed by conscious organisation. But one-fifth of those frustrations do not result from faulty organisation, or the lack of any; he blames a little too much on the system and has a little too much faith in organisation. . . There are times in the book when he appears to enjoy organisation for its own sake; and, entangled in his own web of organisation, he loses his instinct for reality. Thus he is probably unduly fascinated by the administrative machinery of Russian science. . . But no other book of this range and vision is going to appear for many years. It is the testament of one of the few minds of genius in our time." C. P. Snow

+ — Spec 162:136 Ja 27 '39 1000w

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 17 '39 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p228 Ap 22 '39 390w

BERNANOS, GEORGES. A diary of my times; tr. from the French by Pamela Morris. 270p $2.50 Macmillan [10s 6d Boriswood]

946.08 Spain—History—Civil war, 1936-1939 39-1656

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"It is in the rôle of a prophet [of wrath] that Mr. Bernanos appears before us. An exceptionally harassing emotional experience, as he tells us himself, has produced in his mind a violent revulsion of sentiment: 'The spectacle of injustice shatters me'. This frank statement at once explains the temper of the book and indicates where we must look for its possible shortcomings. We are reading an indictment written under great emotional stress and such a presentation will naturally have, as the Frenchman so well says, the defects of its qualities. Emotion renders vision keen and myopic but it distorts the perspective that gives to the objects their proper place and setting." C. P. Bruehl

Commonweal 29:515 Mr 3 '39 3350w

"This book could be read with profit by all to whom Franco is the paladin of 'civilization.' "

+ Foreign Affairs 17:637 Ap '39 70w

Reviewed by W. N. Pittenger

Living Church 101:12 S 20 '39 200w

"One of the most curious and stirring books produced to date by the present international situation. . . Since the days of Léon Bloy, in the Nineties, no book by a Catholic against certain of his co-religionists has been so dynamic or so devastating. It contains passages, the reader may be assured, that suggest a prose Dante, another Catholic anti-clerical who put not a few clergymen and prelates into the hottest nooks of his Inferno, and reserved the ultimate circle, or Satan-at-Home, of that region for the crowning sin of Treachery. With a kind of savage beauty Bernanos states that it was the spirit of fear, coupled with that of vengeance, that produced the counter revolution in Spain. The terror, moreover, would long since have burned itself out had not the open endorsement of priests and churchgoers endowed it with a religious aureole." Cuthbert Wright

+ N Y Times p21 F 5 '39 1500w

BERNARD, LUTHER LEE. Social control in its sociological aspects. 711p $4 Macmillan

301 Sociology 39-21702

Textbook on social control which in reality is a combined case book, source book, and a standard text. It is composed of three main sections: the fields and methods of social control; the exploitive social controls; and the constructive social controls. The author is a professor at Washington university. Indexes of names and of subjects.

Reviewed by C. W. Smith, Jr.

Am Pol Sci R 33:1134 D '39 400w

"The work is not an easy reading but is worth its weight in gold. . . The sociological generalizations presented here are constantly made concrete and vital by means of innumerable citations and quotations illustrating various methods and techniques of social control. Some of them are so realistic that they might appear brutal and gory. But their selection certifies to the author's objectivity, combined quite ably with his faith in the value that social science and education can render to society." J. S. Roucek + Social Educ 3:509 O '39 800w

BERNARD, L. L.—Continued

Reviewed by W. R. Crawford
Social Studies 31:89 F '40 350w

"In view of the average American student's aversion to abstractions, it may be said that the author's experiment of combining discussion, cases, and sources in one volume is a promising one. His case illustrations are, in fact, of striking interest." Bruno Lasker
+ Survey 76:27 Ja '40 250w

BERNARD, THEOS. Penthouse of the gods; a pilgrimage into the heart of Tibet and the sacred city of Lhasa. 344p il $3.50 Scribner

915.15 Tibet—Description and travel. Lamaism. Lhasa, Tibet 39-27301

The author is a young American scholar, a graduate of Columbia, and a student of Buddhism. While continuing his studies in India, he was invited to join the Lamas of Tibet. He spent six months in that strange land, was initiated into the priesthood and visited the forbidden city of Lhasa. His book is a record of both his spiritual and physical adventures and observations. Index.

Booklist 35:288 My 1 '39

"It is a regrettable duty to report that Mr. Bernard fell down on the job. He failed rather miserably, in fact, and for reasons which it is difficult to understand, in view of the wisdom which the author must, as a lama, possess. . . Like George Moore, he seems to have been robbed of familiarity with his own language by immersion in another. He seemingly has not the slightest inkling of the functional purpose of a paragraph; he forgets what he has explained and explains it again and again; he forgets what he hasn't explained and doesn't explain it again and again; he coins such mysterious phrases as 'molten ice'; he changes the subject under discussion with no more notification than the switch from plural to singular pronouns. Moreover, the most important episode in his tale . . . is not told in the book at all. Yet these faults, however grievous, cannot destroy the fundamental importance of the book." Thomas Sugrue
— + Books p4 Ap 2 '39 1500w

Reviewed by Daniel Rochford
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 12 '39 230w
Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 19 '39 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '39
New Repub 98:260 Ap 5 '39 40w

"The book is not mystical, or sensational, or sophisticated. It might more nearly be described as naive. It discloses nothing whatever of the 'magic' which has made some other writing on Tibet so alluring, nor does it pique and disappoint the reader with references to secrets that cannot be told." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p9 Ap 2 '39 1150w
New Yorker 15:80 Ap 1 '39 60w

"Bernard writes soberly and repetitiously of the Tibetan terrain, of the endless meals he was required to eat, of the harmony of gold and filth in the city, of every monastery and shrine that he encountered. He has catalogued Lhasa more thoroughly than anyone else, but it is as though he were talking through a spiritual mattress; he has muffled his wonders in naive prose. These strictures must not be thought to deny the considerable interest which the book possesses by way of spiritual and physical adventure." H. D.
+ — Sat R of Lit 19:22 Ap 1 '39 220w
Springf'd Republican p10 My 4 '39 480w

"For readers who picture Tibet from James Hilton's Lost Horizon, Lama Bernard's account should be an eye-opener. His book will not make many Western converts, but the Yoga fortitude he showed is unquestionable."
Time 33:63 Ap 3 '39 400w
Wis Lib Bul 35:101 My '39

BERNE, VICTORIA, pseud. of DILLWYN PARRISH and MRS MARY FRANCES (KENNEDY) PARRISH. Touch and go. 273p $2 Harper

39-13756

A young widow, Anne Wilcox, goes on a visit to a Swiss pension and soon finds herself the object of the match-making proclivities of the happy-hearted group who reside there.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p18 My 7 '39 80w
Boston Transcript p3 My 20 '39 60w

"Miss Berne has an amusing little tale to tell, and she does it nicely. It is rather a pity that she expects you to be shocked at a few unconventional items—not too shocked, just surprised into a laugh once in a while. Aside from these Victorian notions of comic lack of restraint, which no one has been amused at for years now, the novel is light and gay." Charlotte Dean
+ — N Y Times p17 My 7 '39 160w

"There is very little touch and still less go about this self-consciously airy novel which at its best suggests G. B. Stern in one of her less matriarchal moods." K. S.
Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 13 '39 90w

BERNHART, JOSEF. The Vatican as a world power; tr. by George N. Shuster. 456p $4 (15s) Longmans

262.13 Papacy. Roman Catholic church 39-27170

A history of the papacy from St Peter to Pius XI, by a German historian. Index.

"For a rapid survey of this enormous field this sketch is admirable; but, naturally, no such picture could be free from scores and scores of blemishes. It is impossible not to criticize the selection of facts, the tone of many of its judgments, the authority of many of its statements, and above all a multitude of ineptitudes in what must have been a recklessly rapid translation. . . On the other hand, these trivial if annoying defects are balanced by a wealth of information lit up by thought-provoking (and, at times, merely provoking) comment, brilliant phrases, magnificent metaphors and many longer passages of moving eloquence or, at least, of arresting rhetoric." G. G. Walsh
+ — America 60:525 Mr 4 '39 550w
Booklist 35:225 Mr 15 '39

"Throughout the early chapters occur expressions and explanations that are alien to Catholic teaching on the primacy of doctrine and jurisdiction of the popes. Only if this defect is kept in mind could one recommend a work whose historical narrative, synthesis, tone and judgment are otherwise so satisfying." J. L. Burke
+ — Boston Transcript p1 F 18 '39 310w

Reviewed by B. Wilkinson
Canadian Forum 19:62 My '39 420w

"Although the style is sometimes obscure, and although the value of the book is restricted to a public already familiar with the main features of Church history, no careful reader can be unaware that enormous learning lies behind the solid front of this story of the papacy, probably as satisfying as any single account could well be." J. McS.
+ Cath World 149:245 My '39 480w

"Already widely known in its German original, this important interpretative history of the papacy will gain a vastly extended audience through Mr. Shuster's faithful and brilliant translation." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 56:385 Mr 22 '39 1150w

"There is no effort to sentimentalize or warp the facts. When once the vagueness of the first several centuries is put behind . . . the story is told with the greatest vividness, information, and art. The author's intuition is particularly good in the personality sketches.

The one of Loyola one might call definitive. Chapters on contemporary and near contemporary popes present material not easily accessible, and a concluding discussion of odds and ends of the papacy, audiences, costumes, ceremonies, election, etc., makes most interesting reading." S. L. Riddle

+ — Churchman 153:18 Ap 15 '39 280w

"Conciseness in volume and style characterizes this penetrating study of the Papacy. . . In the course of his narrative the author affirms or denies on the strength of this vast reserve of historical information. He does not argue. His judgments are absolute rather than qualified. They are incisive and telling in the fullest sense. No idle words retard our progress with this expert guide. . . The translator has done his part well. He has given a pleasing, natural translation and found many happy expressions to convey the German thought in English dress." P. J. Barry

+ Commonweal 29:583 Mr 17 '39 650w

Foreign Affairs 17:816 Jl '39 10w

New Repub 98:259 Ap 5 '39 70w

"A volume logical in sequence, philosophical in thought, historical in form (up to a certain point)—and all imparted in a captivating rhetoric marvelously sustained by the translator. Mr. Bernhart is no apologist. He writes with the subjectivity of a learned theologian, the objectivity of a cautious historian—with a keen appreciation of the relative values of faith and science." Walter Littlefield

+ N Y Times p14 F 19 '39 1050w

Pratt p7 spring '39

"Dr. Bernhart is a man of finished and profound scholarship; he is also quite clearly a man with a deep and lively religious faith. He is able to distinguish the sphere proper to scholarship from the sphere proper to belief, and he is sufficiently self-analytical to understand when he himself is actuated by the faith of a Catholic and when he is expressing the judgment of a historian. . . It is not necessary to endorse all of Dr. Bernhart's conclusions to welcome the book as a fine history of the Papacy. But its abiding value probably does not lie in its merits as a history. It is rather that it translates all that is best in Catholic thought on the Papacy into terms that a non-Catholic can understand without sacrificing in any respect its Catholic character. It makes it possible not only to venerate where one cannot presently comprehend, but also to understand what one cannot altogether accept." W. T. Wells

+ Spec 162:494 Mr 24 '39 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p115 F 25 '39 600w

Wis Lib Bul 35:60 Ap '39

BERNHEIM, BERTRAM MOSES. Medicine at the crossroads; with a foreword by J. M. T. Finney. 256p $2.50 Morrow

614.2 Medicine. Medical economics

(W) 39-27426

Analysis of the situation in the medical profession in the United States at the present time. The author, who is a member of the staff at Johns Hopkins, states the pros and cons of the problem of socialized medicine, points out the deficiencies of the American Medical Association, and warns that government intervention will be inevitable unless the profession takes more responsibility.

Booklist 35:325 Je 1 '39

"An uncompromising, candid, and constructive book on the timely and perhaps acute problem of socialized medicine." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 20 '39 430w

"Dr. Bernheim's book is as welcome as it is timely." Abraham Epstein

+ New Repub 99:369 Ag 2 '39 440w

"Dr. Bernheim discusses the issue with the simplicity of a school primer and without heat or rancor. He sets an example of coolness which might well be emulated by some of his medical colleagues who believe that Aesculapius is in his heaven and that all's well with the medical world. . . Though addressed to the public, his good-natured, sensible book ought to do much to direct the thinking of physicians to the social problems of medicine." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p5 My 21 '39 1100w

" 'Medicine at the Crossroads' contains so much concentrated good sense and provocative discussion of hospitals, 'fee-splitting,' health insurance, etc., that it would require several columns of space to give it adequate attention. One thing is sure, and that is that it will cause considerable rise of blood pressure among its medical readers. . . All in all this is the most interesting and suggestive of the books born of the recent controversy between the government and the doctors. An exciting book, that no one interested in individual or public health can afford to ignore." M. S. Ulrich, M.D.

+ Sat R of Lit 20:10 My 27 '39 800w

BERRY, ARTHUR JOHN. Qualitative inorganic analysis. 147p $2 Macmillan [6s Cambridge]

544 Chemistry, Analytic—Qualitative. Chemistry, Inorganic [39-1401]

"After a short but commendably clear and instructive theoretical introduction, the book deals fully with the reactions of the metals in the order of the usual groups, with the reactions of acid radicals, with the systematic analysis of the metals, and with the examination for acid radicals. The author does not approve of the use of analytical tables, so he omits them." Nature

"The utility of the book for the serious student is lessened by its brief treatment of the whole subject and the lack of information and emphasis on the incompleteness of many of the separations and the precision of tests." A. D. Bliss

Am Chem Soc J 61:218 Ja '39 180w

Nature 142:96 Jl 16 '38 150w

BERRY, ERICK, pseud. See Best, A.

BERTAIL, INEZ. Time for bed; il. by Ninon MacKnight. [32p] 50c Doubleday

39-30382

Story-picture book for three-year-olds describing a little boy's afternoon and bedtime hours.

"A book mothers will appreciate for use at bedtime."

+ New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 30w

Wis Lib Bul 35:188 N '39

BERTOCCI, PETER ANTHONY. Empirical argument for God in late British thought. 311p $3.50 Harvard univ. press [15s Oxford]

231 God. Theism. Theology, Doctrinal

38-31976

"This is a well-executed study of an interesting phase of British philosophical speculations during the last two generations. A chapter apiece is devoted to James Martineau, Pringle-Pattison, James Ward, W. R. Sorley, and Professor Tennant, and a closing chapter on the problem of evil discusses the ideas of Professor Brightman to some extent." J Philos

"The careful, critical nature of its contents is thoroughly commendable. It is no superficial survey, nor a facile summary of conclusions congenial to the author's own position. It is good hard spade-work in that always difficult task of understanding and revealing the psychological, logical, epistemological and metaphysical substructure which supports theological conclusions. . . The book will be useful to the

BERTOCCI, P. A.—Continued
scholar who wants a carefully selected bibliography, a thorough index, and apt summaries of difficult points. The layman in philosophy will encounter stormy weather on almost every page, but even he will be given a respite by the excellent summaries which conclude not only each chapter but also the book." Harold Bosley

+ Christian Century 55:1504 D 7 '38 700w

Reviewed by Vergilius Ferm
Ethics 49:390 Ap '39 190w

"The author, it ought to be said, does not stand far enough off from his two favored personal friends or teachers, namely, Professors Tennant and Brightman. Though he criticizes both of them on points, he is quite evidently hoping to be able to conclude favorably on the type of theism to which these two men have devoted much argument. He gives evidence, however, of ability to maintain the philosophical defence of theism in a day when such defence is not currently popular among most philosophers." S. P. L.

+ — J Philos 36:73 F 2 '39 1500w

Discussion by the author & Professors Pratt & Lamprecht
J Philos 36:263 My 11 '39 4150w

BERTRAM, JAMES M. Unconquered; journal of a year's adventures among the fighting peasants of North China [Eng title: North China front]. 340p il map $3 Day [15s Macmillan]

951 Chinese-Japanese war, 1931—Personal narratives (W) 39-27108

Journal of a year's adventures among the fighting peasants of North China, by a young New Zealander who was in Tokyo in 1937 when hostilities broke out. He left immediately for China and after witnessing the fall of Peiping traveled northward to Yenan and then into Shansi province where he spent several months with communist units that were campaigning against the Japanese invaders. The most important factor in the struggle, this writer says, is the stubborn resistance of the Chinese. "Japan can succeed only when China abandons the struggle. And the Chinese people will fight on."

Booklist 35:228 Mr 15 '39

Reviewed by Rodney Gilbert
Books p2 F 19 '39 750w

Reviewed by Hannibal Towle
Boston Transcript p1 F 18 '39 650w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 11 '39 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '39

Foreign Affairs 17:821 Jl '39 10w

"On the whole this is the best and the most complete account of the war in North China that has yet been written. . . 'North China Front' is rather too long and would have been improved by trimming, but with few exceptions Mr. Bertram's style is not unworthy of his subject matter—and that is praise indeed." J. M. D. P.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Mr 7 '39 460w

"The easy narrative style, consistently fascinating and informative, places 'Unconquered' at the top of the list of books on China for sheer delight in reading." T. A. Bisson

+ Nation 148:237 F 25 '39 300w

Reviewed by V. A. Yakhontoff
New Repub 98:172 Mr 15 '39 330w

Reviewed by A. M. Young
New Statesman & Nation 17:334 Mr 4 '39 1050w

" 'Unconquered' is not a book of argument, but of personal experience and observation. . . Strong as his personal sympathies are, and much as he hates Japanese policy, he has no hatred for the Japanese people, but rather commiseration and much admiration. He writes vividly, with a terse turn of phrase, and his book, for all its inevitable sadness, is inspiriting as it is interesting."

+ N Y Times p12 F 5 '39 550w

"Good reporting."

+ New Yorker 14:82 F 11 '39 40w

"Like a few other top-flight newspaper men whose technique has been seasoned with a great deal of experience, he has the knack of dealing with problems which he does not altogether understand in such a way that his errors largely cancel out against each other, instead of being cumulative. He is also an honest man. . . With reporting like this—and more of it is being done by other correspondents—how long, I wonder, will the editors in the 'neutral' countries continue to underestimate China and overrate Japan?" O. L.

+ Pacific Affairs 12:209 Je '39 250w

"There is a panoramic quality about this study of the first year of the war in China as well as the convincing touch which comes from things seen at first hand. . . His narrative, marked by an easy style, imaginative insight, and a wealth of concrete detail, is consistently fascinating and informative. He has the rare gift of presenting his experiences so realistically that the reader lives through them as a participant. . . The inside view of guerrilla operations in northern Shansi, as carried on during the first winter of the war, is the highlight of the book." T. A. Bisson

+ Sat R of Lit 19:12 F 4 '39 550w

"Mr. Bertram is an authority [on things European] whom only two or three Europeans have the right to challenge on his own subject. On some other subjects—notably the activities of the Chinese and Japanese air forces—he is unexpectedly inaccurate; and his comparisons of Spain with China will recommend themselves only to the woolliest ideologists." Peter Fleming

+ — Spec 162:644 Ap 14 '39 700w

Time 33:70 F 20 '39 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p66 F 4 '39 700w

Wis Lib Bul 35:63 Ap '39

BESSIE, ALVAH CECIL. Men in battle. 354p $2.50 Scribner

946.08 Spain—History—Civil war, 1936-1939—Personal narratives 39-29429

Personal narrative of the Spanish civil war by an American writer who fought with the Internationals in 1938.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson Library Bulletin 14:360 Ja '40

"There are some pages in Bessie's book which tell us more about the war in Spain, and in fact more about war in general, than whole volumes of parliamentary records. And this in spite of the fact that the author hardly ever generalizes, seldom mentions anything he did not see, and appears to write in almost unsullied political innocence. I think this is one of the best war books I ever read. Its effects come directly from the material in an extraordinary way; it does not seem to be opaque, like most books, hiding from the reader just what the author most wishes to reveal." Vincent Sheean

+ Books p2 O 8 '39 1200w

Boston Transcript p1 O 21 '39 140w

Reviewed by E. L. Van Alen
Forum 102:v D '39 300w

"It is not a pleasant book to read because there is little pleasant in war; but it is an honest picture of men in battle, of heroism and cheap cowardice, of sacrifice and demoralization of soldiers and of phonies dressed in uniform. Bessie has tried hard to tell his story plainly, and his success is shown by the characters who live on every page of the book." Samuel Romer

+ Nation 149:557 N 18 '39 420w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 100:345 O 25 '39 2200w

"The best American book so far to come out of the Spanish war. . . I commend 'Men in Battle' to those who realize that the Spanish war is no closed chapter in contemporary history. Mr. Bessie, by the way, uses plenty of male language. He is on the tough side in general: hard, unsentimental, grim, and humorous, too. Very American." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 15:100 O 14 '39 180w

"In his determination not to exaggerate or distort, Bessie has discarded most of the literary conventions that give a narrative pace and climax. The book, as one reads it at first, seems flat, as if he should have developed and explained the incidents that he clearly and briefly describes, perhaps built a little more of a 'story' out of the characters there. But the final result of his method is to let the ugly broken bones of history stick up in all their horror through the level surface of his description." James Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 20:12 O 21 '39 320w

"This book is a fine piece of descriptive writing by a man who believed deeply in his cause. His style has a fine precision and an admirable economy of words that make his portrayal of the fighting perhaps the best thing of its kind that has come out of the late conflict. It should be added, however, that his constant use of certain obscene words becomes a little painful. No doubt the soldiers used them often, but it doesn't seem necessary that the author should."
+ — Springf'd Republican p8 N 28 '39 650w
Time 34:106 O 16 '39 600w

BEST, MRS ALLENA (CHAMPLIN) (ERICK BERRY, ANNE MAXON, pseuds). Go and find wind; il. by the author. 251p $2 Oxford 39-23418

Story for young readers. The scene is Mystic, Connecticut, in 1849, and deals with the building of clipper ships to make the passage around Cape Horn and up to California. The building of the clipper, David Crockett, is described from the laying of the keelson to the launching.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 N 19 '39 200w

"A chronicle that is full of zest and rich flavor." M. A. Whitney
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 31 '39 380w

"It is a readable story in which the time and place seem more real than the people." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 15:300 S '39 110w

"Not the least of the book's success is due not so much to the characters as to the atmosphere. New ideas, new inventions, change and unrest were in the air of the period. The author has caught this feeling and also the conflict of generations and ideas and ideals. Recommended." M. R. Lucas
+ Library J 64:870 N 1 '39 90w
New Repub 101:238 D 13 '39 30w

"Good story"
+ Sat R of Lit 21:28 N 18 '39 30w

BEST, MRS ALLENA (CHAMPLIN) (ERICK BERRY, ANNE MAXON, pseuds). One-string fiddle; music by Lillian Webster [il. by the author]. unp $1.50 Winston (W) 39-27630

Story of a little Tennessee mountain boy who entered a fiddling contest with his homemade cigar-box fiddle, played the tune he had concocted out of a dozen different elements, and won first prize. The tune is included in the book in a simple arrangement for piano.

Booklist 36:16 S '39

"As I have been interested for a long while in this matter of the genesis of tunes, I found it just the thing to recommend to children who should be made free of music by being shown how much more fun it is to play some one else's tunes after you have made some of your own." M. L. Becker
+ Books p5 Jl 16 '39 390w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 28 '39 160w

"Because Erick Berry knows the Southern mountaineers and their love of fiddling matches and song, she has given us a convincing and amusing story on a fresh note and carried it along with the tickling humor of her pictures." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 16:41 Ja '40 100w

Reviewed by Miriam Snow
Library J 64:662 S 1 '39 100w

"The story shapes itself with a deceptive effect of casualness into something which has the spontaneous zest, the earthy feel of mountain music." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 2 '39 390w

BESTON, HENRY, pseud. See Sheahan, H. B.

BEUTNER, REINHARD. Life's beginning on the earth. 222p il $3 Wood 576 Life (biology). Biological chemistry 39-2433

"This book is devoted to a description of laboratory studies of development of non-living matter which indicate a faint resemblance to certain features of life. . . Dr. Beutner, of Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia has gathered his material from near and far, all dealing with fascinating discoveries of distinguished scientists." Scientific Bk Club R

"His presentation is simple and devoid of mathematics and technical terms, and will appeal to those who have contemplative, philosophical, or inquisitive minds." H. W. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 19:22 F 4 '39 350w
Scientific Bk Club R 9:4 N '38 450w

BEVAN, BERNARD. History of Spanish architecture. 199p il maps $7.50 Scribner [21s Batsford]
720.946 Architecture, Spanish. Architecture—Spain (W) [39-10655]

Beginning with Roman architecture in Spain in the third century B.C. this history of Spanish architecture covers all phases to the neoclassic in the eighteenth century. "Spanish architecture is by no means an unexplored field. There are innumerable monographs and specialized studies, yet the fact remains that, except for an occasional chapter in histories of Spanish or European art as a whole, no general account of Spanish architecture has appeared for nearly ninety years. . . The time is not yet ripe for an exhaustive treatise, so, rather than venture upon unsure ground, I have tried to bring up to date and condense in one volume our present knowledge of the subject." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Bevan displays a thorough familiarity with all remaining examples of the various peoples and periods that have left structural monuments in Spain. . . Through all this confusion Mr. Bevan seems to have been able to pick his paths. Although it requires considerable concentration upon the part of the reader to follow him through their many and devious windings, there does not exist any other publication in which, in the course of 200 pages, and with the aid of 240 illustrations, so much detailed information about this region is to be found." F. C. Brown
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 17 '39 700w

"This substantial book is by no means a mere compilation. Mr. Bevan has personally visited nearly every monument discussed, both in Spain and in Mexico, and shows the route by which he reached the more remote places."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p46 Ja 21 '39 100w

BEVANS, TOM TORRE. Where, oh where? pictures by [the author]. [48p] $1 Viking 39-23531

Humorous tale for young readers about a little boy and his dog, and the pony for which the boy hankered.

"More an anecdote than a story, it carries an idea and the idea carries a laugh." M. L. Becker
+ Books p10 D 10 '39 200w

Reviewed by Vivian Lundberg
Boston Transcript p2 D 2 '39 30w

BEVERIDGE, SIR WILLIAM HENRY, and others. Prices and wages in England, from the twelfth to the nineteenth century; 4v; v 1, Price tables: mercantile era. (International scientific committee on price history. Publications) 816p il $12 (31s 6d) Longmans
338.5 Prices—Great Britain (39-16200)

"This series is published under the auspices of the International Scientific Committee on Price History. It is one of a series which includes, as most illustrative, Hamilton's study of Spanish prices and similar works for France, Germany, Austria, Holland, and the United States. Volume I of the series for Great Britain covers the period from 1550 to 1830. . . The primary material for the present volume consists of 'institutional' records—Eton College, Greenwich Hospital, and Navy Victualling are three of the twelve sources used—and the secondary material consists of annual price relatives. Source lists and transcriptions are provided, as well as an index of commodities." Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by A. R. Upgren
Ann Am Acad 206:202 N '39 600w

"It is a great undertaking, a monument of historical scholarship. Not the least of its merits is its ingenuity of presentation. May it be speedily completed." A. P. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Je 13 '39 450w

"The book is not designed for the ordinary reader; but it will be invaluable to historians, and should be in every scholarly library. Moreover, even the lay historian will find it well worth his while to read Sir William Beveridge's General Introduction, and to sample the tables for a few items in order to get a notion of the immense relative changes, over long periods, in the cost of different sorts of ordinary consumable goods." G. D. H. Cole
+ New Statesman & Nation 18:24 Jl 1 '39 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p358 Je 17 '39 950w

BIANCO, MRS MARGERY (WILLIAMS). Other people's houses. 201p $2 Viking
(W) 39-27844

Story of a courageous seventeen-year-old girl left on her own resources in New York City, and of her brave struggle to make a living by working in "other people's houses." For older girls.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39

"This book is so sensible girls will need it and so sympathetic they will want it. . . Mrs. Bianco's story is good entertainment: it is about lively people, whether idle or working, and is all the better for its sympathy with the urge of young folks for a place of their own. But because it faces the fact that people with different incomes may live in different worlds and come no nearer because they are temporarily under the same roof, a girl just growing up may find in it light on the path of her career, wherever that may lead." M. L. Becker
+ Books p16 N 12 '39 400w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 15:384 N '39 110w

"A well-told story which will be thoroughly enjoyed by teen age girls." E. D. Briggs
+ Library J 65:124 F 1 '40 80w

"Mrs. Bianco explains that she herself has always been interested in everyday stories so long as they were real. It is this real quality in her own books which girls from 12 to 16 detect, a quality which pleases and satisfies them, and one which makes those interested in providing good reading for young people very grateful to Mrs. Bianco." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 14 '40 200w

"A good modern novel."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:28 N 18 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 35:220 D '39

BIBESCO, MARTHE LUCIE (LAHOVARY) (PRINCESSE G. V. BIBESCO). Katia [tr. by Priscilla Bibesco]. 256p il $2.50 Doubleday [7s 6d Heinemann]
B or 92 fŭr'evskaĭa, Ekaterina Mikhallovna (Dolgorukova) knĭaginĭa 39-13363

Fictionized biography of the Princess Catherine Dolgoruki, the morganatic wife of Alexander II, Emperor of Russia. Beginning at the time of their first meeting, when Katia was but a child, the story of this idyllic love affair is traced up to the time of Alexander's violent death.

"This book was first written under a pseudonym and published as a serial in a popular Paris newspaper. Princess Bibesco's desire to write it, she declares, was aroused by a phrase of Flaubert's to the effect that the great novelist is one who can prove himself capable of writing a book which is read and understood by the greatest possible number of readers. The result is a romance in which one hardly knows how much is the product of the stories told a child and of documented history and how much the novelist's creation. It is a romance which gives with much charm the story of two who had most of the things courted as riches and power, yet could have had little happiness in life except through each other." Mary Ross
+ Books p8 My 14 '39 800w
Manchester Guardian p5 Ap 6 '39 270w

"We are presented with a singularly unformed patchwork of ill-imagined lush passages and of ill-digested history. If the usual fault with such 'fictionized biography' is that it is difficult to determine where the biography ends and the fiction begins, in this instance fiction and fact are so little integrated that it needs no discerning reader to separate the two." John Cournos
— + N Y Times p6 My 7 '39 750w

"Princess Bibesco has apparently departed little from the truth in writing her romance. Her book has been widely popular in France where it was published serially in a newspaper and where it has since been transferred to the screen. In the English version it is a mild affair, owing, perhaps, to the fact that the English language does not lend itself as readily to this particular kind of simple tale as the French." A. L.
Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 6 '39 330w
Times [London] Lit Sup p29 Ja 14 '39 500w

BIBLE. WHOLE. Complete Bible; an American translation; the Old Testament, tr. by J. M. Powis Smith and a group of scholars; the Apocrypha and the New Testament, tr. by Edgar J. Goodspeed. 883,202.247p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [18s Cambridge]
220 (W)

"This book is not much larger than the copy of the Bible in most general use. It is the first one-volume edition of this celebrated translation. The Old Testament, translated by J. M. Powis Smith and a group of other scholars, and the New Testament, translated by Edgar J. Goodspeed, were published in 1931. Last year, Dr. Goodspeed's translation of the Old Testament Apocrypha was published. All three are included in this present volume." Living Church

Booklist 36:153 D 15 '39

Christian Century 56:1344 N 1 '39 230w

"Older translations may have more liturgical and literary merit; but the American Translation is religious literature at its best, and we are interested in the Bible for its religious values. Furthermore, this translation is more accurate and more free from prejudice than most. It is to be hoped that the publishers will bring out a lectern Bible in this translation, so that the message of Christianity can be made real to this generation." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 153:17 N 1 '39 220w

"The book is invaluable to scholars and ordinary Bible readers alike." Elizabeth McCracken

+ Living Church 101:5 D 6 '39 70w

BIBLE. WHOLE. SELECTIONS. Anthology of the Bible, by Eric Parker; with a foreword by C. A. Alington. 512p $3 Lippincott [7s 6d Seeley]

220

"A lectionary for use on special occasions when the appointed Lessons for the day do not quite fit in. The compiler says in his preface that the book grew out of his own need. In his parish church, as in so many in England, a layman reads the Lessons at all services, and is often told by the rector or vicar that he may choose such passages of Scripture as he desires. These are those that Mr. Parker selected from time to time, arranged under headings of interest, among them: Angels, Children, Weather, Fisherman, Visions, Reward, Friends, Mercy, Jerusalem, Nazareth, The Messiah." (Living Church) Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes
Books p13 F 4 '40 70w

"Churches, schools, and families will find this book a constant help."

+ Living Church 101:5 D 6 '39 90w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p23 Ja 21 '40 40w

"Mr. Parker recognizes that his work invites criticism and comparisons, and is aware that not every section is complete; but fault finders are likely to be few; favourite passages may be missing, but this after all does not pretend to be more than fragments of a great library, and it is almost certain that there are some passages which are not generally familiar. It should perhaps be added that the paragraphing is modern; no division into verses checks the flow of the thought or hinders the eye."

Times [London] Lit Sup p615 O 21 '39 320w

BIBLE. OLD TESTAMENT. NUMBERS. The Holy Scriptures; Numbers, with commentary by Julius H. Greenstone. golden jubilee ed 373p maps $2.50 Jewish pub.

222.14 39-6503

"This is the third volume which has appeared in this series of commentaries. Micah by Margolis was published in 1908, and Deuteronomy by Reider in 1937. The author is conservative, maintaining the position that 'in the main the authorship of the Torah is to be traced to the dominant personality of Moses' and that whatever changes or emendations have been made in later ages were in the spirit of, and in harmony with, the original documents. The conclusions of modern criticism are sometimes given in brief form, with reference to the works of Gray, McNeile, Ehrlich, Frazer, W. R. Smith, and others. Statements are made in a calm, nonargumentative spirit." J Religion

Reviewed by W. P. Lemon
Christian Century 56:643 My 17 '39 600w

"The book contains a great amount of useful information, especially with regard to the traditional interpretations found in classical Jewish literature. It is well written and well organised, with the translation appearing on the same page with the verse-by-verse commentary. The approach of the author prevents him from using to advantage any of the more recent discussions of the evolution of the priesthood, the law, or the customs of the Hebrews." H. G. May

+ — J Religion 20:100 Ja '40 300w

BIBLE. OLD TESTAMENT. APOCRYPHA. Apocrypha; an American translation by Edgar J. Goodspeed. 493p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [13s 6d Cambridge]

229 Bible. Old Testament—Apocrypha (W) 38-27907

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"The apocryphal Scriptures are worth an up-to-date translation, and we are glad that it is Doctor Goodspeed who has done it, since he has proved himself to be a master in this field." George MacDonald

+ Crozer Q 16:150 Ap '39 180w

"This translation is faithful without being stilted, racy without being vulgar." M. S. Enslin

+ — J Religion 19:74 Ja '39 750w

"One might criticize here and there, no doubt; might, for instance, it not have been better to use the Syriac of Ecclesiasticus where available? Yet those who concern themselves with such matters have abundant critical material to study; Dr. Goodspeed is not writing for them, even though they will find him often an enormous help. The old 'Apocrypha controversy' is now completely dead and everyone is agreed that knowledge of the 'apocryphal' books is indispensable for New Testament study. This knowledge Dr. Goodspeed has made easy and attractive." B. S. Easton

+ Living Church 100:432 Ap 19 '39 360w
Pratt p7 spring '39
Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 31 '39 700w

BIBLE. NEW TESTAMENT. GOSPELS. Meet the Man you were born to love, by James Henry Larson. 196p $2 Fortuny's

232.9 Jesus Christ 39-17582

"This is a literary arrangement of the Four Gospels printed most attractively without chapters and verses. Many of the old familiar words are translated into contemporary English." Crozer Q

"The book lacks purpose and performs no real service." R. K. Mott

— Boston Transcript p5 Ap 22 '39 30w
Christian Century 55:1548 D 14 '38 40w

Reviewed by E. W. Powell
Crozer Q 16:158 Ap '39 30w

BIBLE of the world; ed. by Robert O. Ballou in collaboration with Friedrich Spiegelberg, and with the assistance and advice of Horace L. Friess. 1415p il $5; special holiday ed $10 Viking

290 Sacred books. Religions (W) 39-27953

Selection from the translations of the sacred writings of eight of the world's great religions: the Hindu, Buddhist, Confucianist, Taoist, Zoroastrian, Jewish, Christian, and Mohammedan. Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by W. J. McGarry
America 62:249 D 9 '39 80w
Booklist 36:103 N 15 '39
+ Books p29 O 29 '39 130w

"There is a magnificence about this book which is exciting. Editors and publishers have spared nothing to make it splendid. The very range and richness of its contents have a regal opulence. Superbly conceived, the conception has been amply fulfilled, and the 'Bible of the World' is worthy of its well nigh overwhelming title." J. H. Holmes

+ Books p1 N 26 '39 1450w

Reviewed by W. A. Marzolf
Boston Transcript p5 Ja 27 '40 550w

BIBLE of the world—Continued
Reviewed by J. C. Swaim
Christian Century 56:1507 D 6 '39 650w

"Rarely, if ever, has a single book contained so comprehensive a review of the world's great religions presented in so attractive a form. It is a work that both layman and scholar may possess and peruse with profit." A. F. Gilmore

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 23 '39 600w

"This volume will be welcomed by layman and scholar alike as a valuable means for comparing the eight major religions of the world. . . The presence of the Apocryphal New Testament is a real service, and it is Montague James' translation. It is a fascinating, invaluable volume, providing sure insights into the nature of religion." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 153:21 D 1 '39 190w

"The motive behind the compilation, or what the editor calls his 'stimulants,' deserves careful attention. It renders the book entirely useless for anyone who still enjoys a degree of religious conviction." W. L. Newton

— + Commonweal 31:188 D 15 '39 1200w

"Excellent as a work of reference, it should be in every library. One wonders only at the omission of Egypt's monotheist, Aton's magnificent Hymn to the Sun." E. L. Van Alen

+ Forum 102:vi D '39 50w

"The book is valuable from several points of view, not least because it presents in one volume ancient texts not easily obtained by many readers." Elizabeth McCracken

+ Living Church 101:7 D 6 '39 80w

New Repub 102:125 Ja 22 '40 100w

"There can be no doubt that such a book as this is invaluable for the opportunity it offers to layman and scholar alike to become acquainted with the best religious thought and to decide for himself which, of the several roads to heaven, is the best. I know no other book which serves this function so well, no other that contains such a variety of texts, selected from a host of volumes (many of them inaccessible to the average man), in their originals enough to fill several shelves. Here is a volume which, in its own way, offers a liberal education to any one who wishes to learn why religion in the past has been a force, and why, in spite of contemporary apostles of irreligion, it is a force far from spent, with elements of self-renewal greater than they suppose." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p8 N 26 '39 700w

New Yorker 15:83 O 28 '39 50w

"This is a work which tempts one to extravagant praise. What can be said with sober truth is that never before has so much of the world's greatest religious literature, so well selected and so admirably translated, been made so easily available to the general reader. . . The work is justly open to criticism for giving a disproportionate amount of space to the most familiar material. But aside from questions of relative value, it may be said that there is almost nothing in the book that does not well deserve inclusion on the score of intrinsic interest." E. S. Bates

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:11 O 28 '39 600w

BIBLIOGRAPHIC index, 1938; a cumulative bibliography of bibliographies. (v 1) 344p price on application Wilson, H.W.

016.01 Bibliography—Bibliography

"This first cumulative annual volume contains references to about 14,000 bibliographies, ranging from very brief to comprehensive lists, published during 1937 and 1938. Arrangement is by subject, with separate bibliographies and those of greater importance starred and placed first under the subject." Booklist

---

Booklist 35:243 Ap 1 '39
Pratt p3 winter '40
Wis Lib Bul 35:138 Jl '39

BIDDLE, GEORGE. An American artist's story. 326p il $4 Little

B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W) 39-27776

Autobiography of an American painter, scion of an old Philadelphia family, who feels himself "a rebel to his class" but glories in it. Index.

"The book is pervaded with a breathless quality which makes for exciting reading and is colored with the bitterness peculiar to the escaped Philadelphian. Its faults are more the faults of a sometimes naïf and erratic personality than those of literary craftsmanship. . . Yet on the whole one finds in these memoirs a record of years of intense emotional activity in conflict with an hereditary fascination for public service. To those who wish to understand the background for the confusion in contemporary painting in this country, this book is, with these minor irritations, absorbing and indispensable." F. H. Taylor

+ — Atlantic N '39 700w

Booklist 36:66 O 15 '39

"Talk about art in the book is unpretentious, individual, and unstressed. The emphasis of 'An American Artist's Story' is on the matter and process of living. While it will be read for its critical and even for its historical values it remains what it is called, a story—richly spread, lively, substantial." Constance Rourke

+ Books p7 O 8 '39 950w

Reviewed by A. E. Newton
Boston Transcript p1 O 7 '39 500w

Reviewed by Constance Rourke
Nation 149:527 N 11 '39 280w

"His autobiography has zest and sharpness and humor and sincerity, and an interest that ranges far yet is always clear and keen. It is illustrated with a number of excellent black-and-white reproductions of his paintings. And it is 'an American artist's story' in a full and vital sense of that phrase." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p6 D 3 '39 1200w

New Yorker 15:70 S 30 '39 70w

"Highly variegated and very interesting autobiography. . . One can heartily recommend this book for present reading and for keeping. In its way it is a history of the generation that straddled the World War, and as time goes on, its documentary value should increase." F. J. Mather

+ Sat R of Lit 20:12 O 7 '39 450w

BIDWELL, PERCY WELLS. Invisible tariff; a study of the control of imports into the United States; prepared under the auspices of the Am. coördinating com. for int. studies. 286p $2.50 Council on foreign relations

382 Tariff—U.S. U.S.—Commerce 39-27777

"A detailed study on how our import trade is impeded by the maze of legislative and administrative restrictions that have grown up alongside the tariff duties, by the Director of Studies at the Council on Foreign Relations." (Foreign Affairs) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:61 O 15 '39
Boston Transcript p3 Ja 20 '40 220w
Foreign Affairs 18:163 O '39 30w

BIEBER, MARGARETE. The history of the Greek and Roman theater. 467p il $7.50 Princeton univ. press [34s Oxford]

792 Theater—Greece. Theater—Rome 39-15491

"[The] book is a fascinating array of facts and pictures covering not only the beginning but the development and the decadence of the ancient theatre. Miss Bieber, now associate professor of Fine Arts and Archaeology at Columbia University is one of the outstanding authorities on Greek and Roman theatres. Her Denkmäler zum Theaterwesen im Altertum has been a treasury for everyone interested in the subject, but it is in German, and out of print, and therefore difficult to consult. Her new book does more than replace the old, it adds much to it, bringing together a vast amount of factual and pictorial matter scattered through many learned volumes but never before so exhaustively presented. Miss Bieber . . . not only discusses the remains of the buildings themselves with all the details of dancing floor and altar, scenic house and platform, but she peoples these theatres with actors. She shows us types, costumes, gestures and groupings in a vivid series of statuettes, vase paintings, murals and mosaics." (Theatre Arts Mo) Index.

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 29 '39 750w

"Though Professor Bieber's Denkmäler was monumental and invaluable to workers in the field of scenic antiquities, the present volume, in spite of any possible criticism that can be leveled against it, marks a big improvement over the earlier one. I can think of no higher praise." R. C. Flickinger

+ — Class Philol 35:69 Ja '40 1900w

"Even without words the book with its 566 pictures would be indispensable. With Miss Bieber's sage, illuminating and learned text it becomes an adventure for every theatre-lover." Rosamond Gilder

+ Theatre Arts Mo 23:681 S '39 430w

BIEGELEISEN, JACOB ISRAEL. Silk screen stencil craft as a hobby; with a foreword by Ernest W. Watson. 139p il $2 Harper

747 Stencil work 39-27480

Describes a new craft which may be used for printing on paper, textiles, wood, or glass. Index.

Booklist 35:343 Je 15 '39

J Home Econ 32:43 Ja '40 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:46 Jl '39

Wis Lib Bul 35:109 Je '39

BIGGER, JOSEPH WARWICK. Man against microbe. 304p il $2.50 Macmillan [7s 6d English universities]

616.01 Micro-organisms. Bacteria, Pathogenic 39-27713

In a prolog Dr Bigger, professor of bacteriology and preventive medicine in Trinity College, Dublin, introduces Antony van Leeuwenhoek, the first microbiologist. Part one of the book considers the meaning of microbiology, explains the differences between bacteria, viruses and protozoa, and tells how microbes are identified, etc. Part two traces the history of knowledge in the field of microbiology as related to medicinal science. Part three considers human affairs from the point of view of the microbiologist. Glossary. Index.

"The book is written in simple language and good English which holds the attention of the reader. It is a fascinating story which can be recommended to all laymen whatever their calling." M. P. Ravenel

+ Am J Pub Health 29:1354 D '39 300w

Booklist 36:37 O 1 '39

Books p16 N 26 '39 300w

Christian Century 56:1025 Ag 23 '39 80w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins

Current Hist 51:5 N '39 140w

"Dr. Bigger's book is at once solid and simple and blessed with his flair for imaginative expression." M. L. Elting

+ Forum 102:iv S '39 230w

"The work is written in an easy and familiar style, admirably suited for the class of readers for whom it is intended."

+ Nature 144:371 Ag 26 '39 130w

New Repub 100:321 O 18 '39 60w

" 'Man Against Microbe' makes science popular without making it melodramatic. Its author . . . deserves special commendation for having supplied a reliable handbook to satisfy the curiosity of the layman, to dispel the confusion of the student, to inspire the amateurs in their varied pursuits of scientific knowledge." L. C. Jones

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 20 '39 1250w

"The scientifically inclined reader will assuredly find here all he needs to know about microbes. Moreover he can read with the assurance that even if they demand effort and concentration for their understanding, the facts have not been watered to meet popular taste." M. S. U., M.D.

+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 S 16 '39 320w

Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 S '39 450w

"A solid, meaty and thoroughly fascinating volume for the general reader. . . This volume . . . is crammed with vitally important facts which are made available to a reader not scientifically trained, and is throughout an exceptional and useful piece of work."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 22 '39 800w

Wis Lib Bul 35:183 N '39

BIGLAND, MRS EILEEN. The lake of the Royal Crocodiles. 300p il maps $2.50 Macmillan [12s 6d Hodder]

916.89 Africa—Description and travel. Rhodesia. Bemba (African tribe) (W) 39-27230

Description of the author's trip to northern Rhodesia where a friend had established an estate in the midst of the beautiful region inhabited by the Bemba people. Her experiences in learning to know the natives are humorously told. It is Mrs Bigland's conviction that "the Bemba and kindred Central African tribes should be left in their natural state, ruled by their own chiefs."

Booklist 35:267 Ap 15 '39

"Skip the giggles and jokes of the air journey to Africa and back, plunge into Shiwa Ngandu and you'll enjoy seeing Northern Rhodesia through Mrs. Bigland's sympathetic, humorous eyes." M. C. Hubbard

+ Books p4 My 7 '39 480w

Christian Century 56:354 Mr 15 '39 40w

"Confessing our weakness for any African travel book that comes along, we still believe an impartial observer would give a high mark to The Lake of the Royal Crocodiles. . . . The whole story runs along in holiday writing of the pleasantest kind—brisk and merry and sometimes rather wickedly clever." M. L. Elting

+ Forum 101:vii Ap '39 160w

"Her affectionate yet humorous account of the Bemba people is an attractive bit of amateur anthropology. But in a book whose charm lies in its wealth of vivid sketches of human nature, white and black, confronting its daily tasks in Africa, and in its swift and penetrating impressions of people met and problems hastily talked of in the course of travel there is a full consciousness of grave issues that remain to be settled." A. S. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 24 '39 450w

New Repub 98:360 Ap 26 '39 40w

"This is a record of personal experience and observation decidedly superior to most narratives of 'my trip to Africa.' It is more original, more objective, more searching and much wittier than most other books of its kind; to have gathered so much knowledge on a fairly short visit was in itself a remarkable achievement; yet Mrs. Bigland never tries to step outside the role of the mere visitor."

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 2 '39 500w

Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 4 '39 700w

"Mrs. Bigland brings the zest and alertness of a broadcaster describing a football match to what she presents as 'a record of surface impressions gained during a too brief visit to tropical Africa.' There is the same modesty

BIGLAND, EILEEN—Continued
in her qualifying as 'abominable' her habit of 'going native in whatever country she is in.' Abominable or not, it contributes a pattern of black and white to her sketch of the competing forces in Africa."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p58 Ja 28 '39 650w

Wis Lib Bul 35:101 My '39

BILLINGER, KARL, pseud. Hitler is no fool. (Starling press bk) 198p $2.75; pa 50c Modern age
943.085 Germany—Nazi movement. Hitler, Adolf (W) 39-27814

An analysis of Hitler's Mein Kampf, and his deeds and policies since coming to power, written by a German now living in exile. The book, published in September, was completed before the outbreak of war.

Booklist 36:70 O 15 '39

Boston Transcript p5 N 11 '39 50w

Reviewed by Norbert Guterman
New Repub 100:313 O 18 '39 650w

"Reading in this volume of about 200 pages up to page 87, this reviewer felt inclined to state that the task had been fairly well accomplished. . . Unfortunately Mr. Billinger did not stop here, but succumbed to the temptation of presenting the public with his own views on Hitler, National Socialism, and the world at large." Toni Stolper
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:19 O 7 '39 800w

BILLINGTON, RAY ALLEN. The Protestant crusade, 1800-1860; a study of the origins of American nativism. 514p il maps $5 Macmillan 282.73 Roman Catholics in the U.S. American party. U.S.—Politics and government —1815-1861 38-38025

"Here for the first time an historian, who is not a Catholic defender but a non-Catholic, has described the development of the anti-Catholic, anti-foreign feeling in the United States from the beginning of settlement to the first important outburst of political nativism in the 1850's. He tells in detail the story from the 1820's, when the persecuting spirit revived, to the 1850's, when the Know-Nothing party threatened to sweep a No-Popery president into the White House." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"The Protestant Crusade should be in every library of the country. It is our first complete study of the period treated. There must be, I suppose, numerous references to press and pamphlet literature in a pioneering book, yet one can become bored by the surfeit. There is a distinct relief in appending the copious notes to the chapter endings. Professor Billington deserves credit for the labor expended and an evident effort after impartiality. A Catholic, however, might take exception to the fact that it is not always possible to tell whether he is stating the adversaries' side or his own. But he is clear enough in two specific instances where he undertakes to censure Archbishop (then Bishop) Hughes unjustly for his actions." W. J. Benn
+ — America 61:93 My 6 '39 700w

"In the interest of the general reader and the student who lacks the necessary background it might have been well to emphasize the fact that while the nativistic gales howled and the less level-headed members of society had their day, America was the haven of thousands of immigrants—Catholics, Protestants, and Jews—who found a 'promised land' where men were free to work out their own religious, social, economic, and political salvation, without interference from prelates clothed with power to prescribe what men must believe in order to obtain salvation. Although nativism was much ado about little, Mr. Billington's excellent book fills a 'long felt need.' " G. M. Stephenson
+ Am Hist R 44:930 Jl '39 450w

"Professor Billington's work is well documented, has an excellent bibliography, and is to be commended to students of social psychology as a case study, by a non-Catholic, in mass reactions." R. W. McCulloch
+ Am Pol Sci R 33:336 Ap '39 170w

Reviewed by R. K. Merton
Am Soc R 4:437 Je '39 300w

"What was the explanation of the Protestant Crusade? Mr. Billington is concerned with description rather than analysis and has little to offer in the way of interpretation. He emphasizes the religious aspect more, the economic aspect less, than the facts would seem to warrant. . . Perhaps any conclusions drawn from this fragment of our history would be necessarily tentative. What is needed is a continuation to the present day of the story which Mr. Billington tells. Perhaps if Mr. Billington can bring himself to forego some of the impressive trappings of scholarship—1,548 notes to 316 pages of text—he can embrace the whole story within the limits of another volume." H. S. Commager
+ — Books p11 Ja 22 '39 1250w

"Professor Billington has written a carefully documented book, he has presented a moving picture of the growth of anti-Catholic hysteria vividly, he has told the story of overt persecution dramatically, he has been careful with his emphasis and when he metes out praise or blame, fair. . . [He], like a good historian, has been tolerant in his treatment of an emotional subject. If his readers can read his book with something of his temper, they will be richly rewarded. If they cannot, the book will not have accomplished its better goal, tolerance. Let us hope he reaches the large audience he rightly deserves." Donald Born
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 7 '39 410w

Cath World 148:629 F '39 150w

"The story is not wholly told by telling merely what violent deeds were done in America by those who feared the political domination of the Catholic Church. . . If vulgar and vituperative anti-Catholic literature and fervent preaching against the pope are to be taken into account, then some attention should be given to the equally scandalous and libelous anti-Protestant literature then (and now) circulated for propaganda purposes. The author grudgingly admits that occasionally Catholic prelates 'spoke unwisely.' It would be interesting to know what they said."
Christian Century 56:516 Ap 19 '39 390w

"A thesis of scholarly research, well documented, with a full bibliography." L. L. Riley
+ Churchman 153:17 F 15 '39 220w

"For scholars in the field of American history, it is a definitive treatment for which they will be deeply indebted to the author, but the book should also be read by all honest Americans who wish to understand and eradicate unfounded prejudice and intolerance from their own land. . . Mr. Billington's chapter on 'The Catholic Church Blunders' might well have been expanded, in the opinion of the reviewer, for the provocative militancy and bigotry of the Catholic leadership in the 1840's and 1850's needs to be emphasized." Carl Wittke
+ — New Eng Q 12:136 Mr '39 900w

"Scholarly, objective, a little dull, but required reading for the serious student of the 'American Mind.' "
New Repub 98:56 F 15 '39 50w

Reviewed by Rebecca Pitts
New Repub 99:315 Jl 19 '39 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 1 '39 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 35:60 Ap '39

BINDRUM, ELSIE. Needles; story and pictures by [the author]. [47p] $1 Lothrop 39-20967

"Needles is a baby porcupine who plays no favorites. He ambles amiably across the pages of this delightful picture-story book for four to six-year-olds, doing what he likes to do, eating what he likes to eat, be it apples or chair and table legs, and following his instincts in general." Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 50w

"The story of Needles, which grew out of the antics of a porcupine which the author knew one Summer, is a refreshing though slight addition to the picture books about pets. Mrs. Bindrum has drawn him and the other creatures of the barnyard and the forest with a nice feeling of comedy and of their decorative qualities, but her human beings are too stylized to inspire much personal interest." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p12 O 15 '39 240w

BINGER, WALTER DAVID. What engineers do; engineering for everyman. rev ed 304p il $2.75 Norton

620 Civil engineering (W) 38-29042

"This is an enlarged and revised edition of a popularly written book on civil engineering [Book Review Digest, 1929]. Two new chapters on municipal sanitation are added, as well as additional illustrations. Many of the chapters have been rewritten." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 35:209 F 15 '39

"Engineering is an understanding and intelligent application of natural laws, and for the layman to become even cursorily acquainted with this broad scientific field is to enlarge his vision and interest in daily life. Such is the value of the book to the ordinary reader, while the professional engineer will find it good reading."

+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 18 '39 180w

BINGHAM, ALFRED MITCHELL. Man's estate; adventures in economic discovery. 480p $3 Norton

330.1 Economics 39-27351

In semi-autobiographical form the author, founder and editor of the magazine Common Sense, writes on the political and economic problems of today, asserting that the first cannot be solved until the latter have been attended to. "Autobiographical excursions to one side, 'Man's Estate' consists of four parts. The first is a study of comparative economic anatomy in which Mr. Bingham investigates the Fascist dictatorships, the Soviet Union, the democratic economies, the 'authoritarian' states of Japan, Turkey, Mexico, Brazil, Portugal and so on. The second part is a . . . critique of Marxist economics. Part three is a 'theory to explain the facts,' and part four, the conclusion, consists of recommendations, both broad-scale and minute." (New Repub) Bibliographical notes. Index.

"As a literary achievement, this book is highly to be commended. From the first page on, its brilliant presentation fascinates the reader. . . The book suffers from rationalization, over-simplification and utopianism. For the same reasons, it may give comfort to many people, disturbed by the gloomy prospect of the political and economic scene." F. K. Mann

+ — Am Econ R 29:632 S '39 550w

"This book does not try to be deceptively easy. It deals faithfully with complicated matters. But it has all the simplicity which honesty, competent writing, and a generous mind can impart. It is more likely to be read in ten sittings than in two, but it will not be soon forgotten." Broadus Mitchell

+ Ann Am Acad 206:185 N '39 650w

Booklist 35:299 My 15 '39

"The last section of the book is the least satisfactory. The intensely realistic attitude which is found in the earlier pages gives place to a romantic hopefulness. . . Perhaps the unsatisfactory impression made by the last part of the book is merely due to hasty writing, of which there seem to be some traces toward the end. At any rate, one may be sure that so energetic a thinker as Mr. Bingham will not stop at the point which he has reached in this volume." E. S. Bates

+ — Books p12 Jl 23 '39 1150w

Reviewed by P. M. Sweezy
Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 850w

Reviewed by B. E. Nelson
Christian Century 56:1207 O 4 '39 700w

Reviewed by W. F. Thompson
Churchman 153:17 S 1 '39 250w

"In many ways this is, really, an extraordinary book. It is an intelligent and searching book. It is an honest book. . . I recommend this book, also, because it contains the most devastating critical analysis of Marxian economics that I have seen since Bertrand Russell's Proposed Roads to Freedom." Francis Downing

+ Commonweal 30:460 S 8 '39 700w

Reviewed by Eliot Janeway
Nation 149:46 Jl 8 '39 1150w

Reviewed by John Chamberlain
+ New Repub 98:383 My 3 '39 1500w

"The adoption of his program will not only eliminate unemployment and bring prosperity and happiness to every American home but it will also prevent European war, defeat Mussolini and Hitler and establish the millennium in this sadly tried world. Such is the adventure of the editor of Common Sense in the realm of economic discovery. It would seem that 'common sense,' like capitalism, fascism and planning, is a term that is open to more than one interpretation." M. T. Florinsky

— N Y Times p12 My 14 '39 1300w

New Yorker 15:123 Ap 29 '39 80w

— No Am 247:400 summer '39 90w

Reviewed by Honor Croome
Spec 163:596 O 27 '39 700w

"Even if Mr Bingham has not the answers to all the questions or if some that he offers do not convince utterly, he gives his readers an honest and provocative discussion."

+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Je 14 '39 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p462 Ag 5 '39 700w

BINGHAM, HIRAM. Elihu Yale; the American nabob of Queen square. 362p il map $3.50 Dodd

B or 92 Yale, Elihu 39-31291

Elihu Yale, American born, English bred, made a fortune in India, returned to England a millionaire famous for his art collections, married his daughters into the nobility, and would be unknown today except for the small gift he made, perhaps reluctantly, to an obscure college, situated in a colony he had never visited. This long scholarly biography telling the full story of Yale's career, is the work of a Yale graduate and a former senator from Connecticut. Index.

"What must have begun as a labor of love on ex-Senator Bingham's part has become a genuine contribution to history. He is, of course, distinctly on Yale's side where the various accusations are concerned, but I doubt if even Harvard men will blame him for that. He has painted an astonishing, yet typical career, at full-length, with care and skill, and made a man come alive again." S. V. Benét

+ Books p6 N 5 '39 550w

"Mr. Bingham is a distinguished alumnus of the university that bears the name of this early benefactor, and if he had chosen to use whitewash here and to overpraise there we should have forgiven him. But actually no allowance for anything resembling piety is necessary in this case: the author studies Governor Yale with sympathy, as a biographer should, but he conceals nothing, extenuates little, and never magnifies the man's virtues." L. S. Mayo

+ Boston Transcript p5 D 30 '39 850w

"The great merit of Mr. Bingham's book, even outweighing the gorgeousness of the romance, is the author's unsparing effort, cover-

BINGHAM, HIRAM—Continued
ing a number of years, so to check up, through the study of original documents, records of the great company, law reports and the like, until a fully authentic narrative should emerge." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p4 D 10 '39 1250w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 1150w

BINNS, ARCHIE. The land is bright. 345p $2.50 Scribner
(W) 39-27109

Historical novel of the migration to Oregon in the early 1850s. The story revolves around a family of Illinois farmers, altho the young leader of the band, Gideon Black, and a tragic middle-aged schoolmaster, take important parts. The chronicle begins with the wagon train encamped at Kanesville, and closes in Oregon.

Booklist 35:230 Mr 15 '39
Reviewed by Isabel Paterson
Books p4 F 26 '39 1500w
Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 1 '39 270w
Cath World 149:252 My '39 150w

"Mr. Binns depicts [the journey] with a realism indicating much research and much sympathy for the epic vastness of his theme. Yet the book remains a chronicle rather than a novel; of fine parts imperfectly articulated. The snapshots—of Dollar-a-Pound, of Nancy Ann's bird-like, indomitable grandmother, of flute-playing, tree-loving Mr. Thomas, of many a scene and incident—are the best parts of the book; they are lovely and unforgettable." K. C. K.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 11 '39 600w

"A colorful and dramatic account of the familiar search for a newer and better land, this country's favorite dream translated again into terms of a particular time and place by the skill of an accomplished novelist. There are technical flaws in the present work, as there were in its two predecessors, 'Lightship' and 'The Laurels Are Cut Down,' but Mr. Binns has many virtues to make up for his weakness in structural sense, and it is easy to find reasons why his new book will be liked and enjoyed." Herschel Brickell
+ — Commonweal 29:642 Mr 31 '39 420w

"With a superb background like this, Mr. Binns could hardly have failed to write an interesting story. But it would take a master of fiction to invent individual characters who would do justice to such a scene. Mr. Binns is merely a good, lively story-teller who has chosen great drama for his subject and treats it adequately."
Nation 148:409 Ap 8 '39 190w

"As a study of people exposed to hardship and danger the book is more than historical, and of more value than a simple historical novel. . . Mr. Binns might have done a good deal more with his theme than he has done. He has told a good story, effectively, courageously, not shrinking from facts. He hasn't used any hokum—unless the Indian attack and the trick by which it was warded off are hokum; and Mr. Binns can probably prove by the record that this incident actually occurred. But he suggests not so much a better story than he has told as a vaster and more significant one." R. L. Duffus
+ — N Y Times p2 F 26 '39 900w

"Mr. Binns' story of a particular wagon train is well handled; the background of the great Western migration is tremendously moving."
+ New Yorker 15:79 Mr 4 '39 80w
Pratt p30 spring '39

"Archie Binns possesses to a striking degree the dramatist's gift of persuading his readers to identify themselves closely with the characters. He writes always of simple people in the grip of fundamental emotion, and he makes it seem enormously important that they should not fail of their desires. . . But what is chiefly admirable in this story is the honest intensity with which it dramatizes every emotion—small and large—of an experiment in living, often catastrophic, sometimes amusing, and always deeply touching." James Gray
+ Sat R of Lit 19:10 Mr 4 '39 600w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 19 '39 490w
Time 33:79 F 27 '39 200w
Wis Lib Bul 35:64 Ap '39

BIOGRAPHICAL dictionary of contemporary poets; the who's who of American poets. 536p $10; 25 per cent discount to schools and libraries c1938 Avon
928.1 Poets, American. American poetry
38-23392

"This volume has the appearance of an anthology, due to the inclusion of a short poem illustrating each author's work, except in the case of such well-known poets as Robert Frost and Edna St. Vincent Millay—the poem being printed in a larger type than the biographical sketch which it accompanies. . . The names of the poets are arranged in alphabetical order. According to the preface they number more than 2,000, their selection having been based mainly upon the 'publication record' of the poet. A publisher's circular states that many are not professional writers but are primarily doctors, lawyers, scientists, clubwomen, etc., to whom the writing of poetry is incidental." Subscription Bks Bul

Reviewed by A. L. Byron-Curtiss
Churchman 153:17 F 1 '39 240w

"A title or first line index to the many poems included would have increased the usefulness of the volume, particularly in identifying a poem heard over a radio program. For the more outstanding poets, the Biographical Dictionary of Contemporary Poets adds little if anything to information in the biographical directories and the anthologies commonly found in most libraries. For the little-known writers who make up a large proportion of the names included in the volume, it seems unlikely there will be more than occasional demand. With the probability of such limited use, the Biographical Dictionary of Contemporary Poets is not recommended."
— Subscription Bks Bul 10:1 Ja '39 440w

BIRKELAND, JORAN. Birchland; a journey home to Norway. 247p $2.50 Dutton 914.81 Norway—Social life and customs
39-20462

Account of a young American woman's visit to the land of her fathers. Much of the story is concerned with the author's discovery of hitherto unknown uncles, aunts, and cousins, but some observations on economic and social conditions are included, and some comments on differences between American and Norwegian ways of life.

Booklist 36:42 O 1 '39

"Mrs. Birkeland, who is known to whoever follows current Norwegian literature as the translator of Gosta af Geijerstam's lyric books, has in 'Birchland' produced a book of her own which has a quiet quality of feeling and an unexaggerated truthfulness of fact." Agnes Rothery
+ Books p2 Jl 23 '39 1100w
Reviewed by Sarah Chokla
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 29 '39 460w

"On the literary side the book commands emphatic notice for its poetic quality and as a storehouse of national portraiture. Its medium is clean-cut, stripped English, with nothing to suggest the invertebrate amorphousness of what is sometimes called poetic prose; but it has the sharp, stabbing insight, the welling joy and the delight in loveliness inseparable from the poetic temperament." J. S. Southern

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 6 '39 700w
New Yorker 15:76 Jl 22 '39 30w

"It was an unpretentious journey back to Norway and it is described with a fidelity that gives it a quiet value, not only for the stay-at-home reader who can take time to travel by imaginary 'stolkjaerre' but for the bona fide traveler who will this coming summer whiz through all Scandinavia on the stream-lined bus. . . That she has been able to convey to her readers the reticences and genuine goodness of middle-class Norwegian folk, the effect upon them of their stern and majestic natural environment, their simple ways of living, and their habits of thought, is a tribute to her ability as a writer." Agnes Rothery

+ Sat R of Lit 20:13 Ag 12 '39 370w

"Miss Birkeland's narrative is leisurely, intimate and sympathetic. . . [She] has the ability to make the things of which she writes unforgetable."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 S 13 '39 700w
Wis Lib Bul 35:164 O '39

BIRNEY, JAMES GILLESPIE. Letters, 1831-1857; ed. by Dwight L. Dumond. (Am. hist. assn. Albert J. Beveridge memorial fund. Publication) 2v 582;583-1189p il $10 Appleton-Century

B or 92 Slavery in the U.S. 38-24538

Letters to and from one of the leaders of the American anti-slavery movement. Born in Kentucky of wealthy parents, he was educated at Princeton, served in the Kentucky legislature, was a prominent lawyer, held slaves, and was regarded as the typical Southern gentleman. In 1832 he left his practice, freed his slaves, and after that devoted his energies to the anti-slavery movement. "These letters together with the Weld materials now make possible the drawing of a full length picture of a hitherto neglected phase of the antislavery movement which eventually proved to be the most powerful influence in bringing it to its final culmination." (Christian Century) Index at end of volume two.

Reviewed by Fred Landon
Am Hist R 44:934 Jl '39 450w

"In its historical aspect, this correspondence illuminates strikingly a crucial period of American life. Sociologically interpreted its significance is twofold. . . The generously footnoted volumes are a rich mine of source material." E. I. Webster

+ Am J Soc 44:1010 My '39 240w

"The letters are full and revealing. They tell 'the story behind the movement.' No scholar in the future who would understand this tangled period of American history can neglect this source. The editing is of a high order. The introduction is all that a general reader or a specialist might desire." Avery Craven

+ Books p38 D 4 '38 400w

Reviewed by W. W. Sweet
Christian Century 56:155 F 1 '39 750w

BIRREN, FABER. Monument to color. 96p il col pl $15 McFarlane

535.6 Color 39-231

"The book is divided into three main parts: The New Color, Abstract Color, Pictorial Color. The many chapters under these headings are completely and carefully illustrated, making all points clearly understood by the student." School Arts

Pratt p11 autumn '39

"Faber Birren, best known of American colorists, presenting his greatest book, 'Monument to Color,' pioneers in new fields. Within its pages you will see the old art of color changed from a formal system of arranging hues to a vital art in which there is a keener understanding of vision and emotion."

+ School Arts 38:6a My '39 180w

BISSLAND, JAMES H. The rock garden, and what to grow in it. (Mass. horticultural soc. Gardener's lib) 128p il $1 Hale

635.9672 Rock gardens 39-27369

Manual of rock garden culture, containing instruction on rock garden construction, and cultivation of rock plants; a section on special plants for rock gardens; and suggestions on color combinations in the rock garden, and rock plants for southern gardens. Bibliography arranged according to subject. Index.

Booklist 35:309 My 15 '39

"A good bibliography supplements the text and will be of service to those who want to go more thoroughly into the subject. One could wish, though, that better examples of rock-garden design and planting had been selected for the photographic illustrations; too many of those which have been used are of the hit-or-miss type, which, probably as much as any other factor, has operated to prevent American rock gardening from attaining the full success and popularity of which it is capable." R. S. Lemmon

+ — Books p11 Je 18 '39 120w

"This volume is intended to offer a short cut to more artistic and better balanced rock gardens."

Springf'd Republican p8 My 11 '39 130w

BITTING, MRS KATHERINE (GOLDEN). Gastronomic bibliography. 718p il $8 priv ptd A. W. Bitting, 1030 Green st, San Francisco

016.641 Cookery—Bibliography. Gastronomy—Bibliography 39-15674

"A carefully selected but fairly representative list of publications by authors from Apicius to our own contemporaries. The items are arranged according to authors in alphabetical order, with enough description to give a complete record and establish identification. There is also a helpful short-title index, with some subclassifications. The introduction and the quaint illustrations add to the reader's enjoyment of the book and its general subject." J Home Econ

"A useful reference volume for students of food preparation and customs and a godsend to collectors of books in that field."

+ J Home Econ 32:41 Ja '40 80w

"A most magistral and complete compilation of cookery book titles." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p26 O 29 '39 650w
Pratt p3 winter '40

BLACK, HAROLD GARNET, ed. The way out. 170p $1.50 Willett

204 Christianity 39-31307

"Twelve Christian leaders of southern California speak to a world in chaos." (Subtitle) Contents: The world in chaos, by H. G. Black; We face a change, by R. L. Smith; A religion for today, by J. H. Lash; Three modern bidders for human allegiance, by Arthur Braden; The eternal church, by H. K. Booth; For such a time as this, by F. B. Fagerburg; The Bible way out, by H. B. Smith; Democracy and discipline, by W. O. Mendenhall; Some reasonable ideas about prayer, by C. S. Knopf; The turn to religion, by R. H. Campbell; God's challenge to the modern church, by Cleveland Kleihauer; The Christian solution for world problems, by Earl Cranston; The heart of God, by A. E. Day.

Christian Century 56:1345 N 1 '39 30w

"Each man was free to express himself in his own way and though they naturally do not all rise to the same level, the book as a whole is remarkably challenging." H. J. Simpson

+ Churchman 153:22 D 15 '39 160w

BLACK, JOHN. Yachting with models; how to build a champion M class model yacht. (Whittlesey house publication) 293p il $3.50 McGraw

797.14 Ship models. Yachts and yachting, Sailing 39-20427

"This book is written so that the builder, whether he lives in a metropolitan district near the waterfront or in a town far removed from water, can construct a model yacht complete, with as few tools as possible. Each operation is complete in detail, and sketches show clearly the methods used in the several types of hull construction and in the manufacture of fittings. Only a few model-yacht supply houses manufacture fittings and supplies that are adaptable to model yachts. To the person who wishes to make his own fittings, the instructions contained in this book will be complete and inexpensive. By following these directions, the builder will have a model that has been tried and tested against the best boats in this country and abroad and has proved a real champion. A chapter is included for those who wish to learn how to sail a model yacht." (Pref) Appendixes give rating rules, sailing rules, addresses of clubs and supply houses. Index.

Booklist 36:64 O 15 '39
N Y New Tech Bks 23:46 Jl '39

BLACK, WILLIAM HARMAN. If I were a Jew. 294p map $2.50 Real bk.

296 Jewish question. Jews—Persecutions. Jews in Germany 39-2228

"William Harman Black is a justice of the New York Supreme Court. . . Judge Black traces the rise of anti-Jewish prejudice from Biblical times, as well as the rise of anti-Jewish prejudice in modern Germany. . . Judge Black denies that there is any reason for intolerance toward the Jew, and he pleads with his readers to be intelligent and tolerant and to judge a man as a man and not as a member of a minority race." Boston Transcript

Reviewed by Carroll Kilpatrick
Boston Transcript p1 My 20 '39 270w

"Acknowledging some of the vagaries and shortcomings of this book does not discredit its presentation of many true and timely facts which bear upon the current scene."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 13 '39 370w

BLACKBURN, BEN. Your garden this week. 245p il $1 Rutgers univ.

635.9 Gardening 39-6797

"[The author is] a conductor of radio talks on gardening over WOR, Newark, for the Rutgers university extension service. . . Much of the material that he has broadcast is contained in this new book, which presents a week-by-week program for gardeners in that diagonal strip of land (to quote the author) 'extending approximately through Hagerstown, Md., northeastward to Providence and on to Cape Cod, but with a tongue reaching northward up the Hudson as far as Poughkeepsie.' " Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by W. H. Clark
Boston Transcript p1 Mr 18 '39 110w
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '39

"The book contains authoritative information on all garden subjects, whether about insect and blight control, transplanting methods, garden design, care of house plants, pruning, etc., and is well illustrated. For a compact, low-cost garden guide, the suburban resident will find this book excellent."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 23 '39 190w

BLACKWOOD, ALGERNON. Tales. 684p $2.50 Dutton [8s 6d Secker, Martin]

(W) 39-27302

The ghost stories and stories of the supernatural here assembled from early volumes published by the author, were written between 1906 and 1910. Contents: The empty house; A case of eavesdropping; Strange adventures of a private secretary; With intent to steal; Keeping his promise; The wood of the dead; A suspicious gift; The listener; Max Hensig; The willows; The insanity of Jones; The dance of death; May Day eve; The woman's ghost story; A psychical invasion; Ancient sorceries; The nemesis of fire; Secret worship; The camp of the dog; The man from the "gods"; The Wendigo.

Booklist 35:290 My 1 '39
Pratt p27 autumn '39

"No doubt much depends on the susceptibility of the individual reader. Mr. Blackwood himself alludes to the horror of The Willows, whereas The Willows, for me, had no horror; its invention was too apparent. Very likely it was a mistake to read straight through the entire volume. I became conscious of prolixities and repetitions, of a marked unevenness of inspiration. Mr. Blackwood holds the view that 'to cut, to alter is inadmissible,' yet to my mind these 684 closely-printed pages would have gained, not suffered, by a rigorous pruning." Forrest Reid
Spec 161:824 N 11 '38 420w

"There is certainly a fine diversity in the twenty-one items that compose the present volume. Here will be found stories of hauntings, of subtle spiritual influences, of the elemental powers that preceded man's coming to the earth, of possession, of evil let loose in the form of a were-wolf, and one, the longest in the collection, of sheer human malignancy—enough, surely, to arouse in any reader the conviction of mystery and horror, moving in a world only just beyond the apprehension of the physical senses."
Times [London] Lit Sup p713 N 5 '38 800w

BLAIR, SIR DAVID HUNTER. See Hunter-Blair, D. O.

BLAIR, GEORGE WILLIAM SCOTT. See Scott-Blair, G. W.

BLAISDELL, ELINORE (MRS MELRICH VONELM ROSENBERG). Falcon, fly back; il. by [the author]. 178p $2.50 Messner

(W) 39-29486

Medieval France is the scene of this story for readers of ten to twelve. It concerns a young girl, Anne, who has a taste for falconry, and the adventures which befell her and her brother and cousin when Anne's falcon was lost.

Booklist 36:201 Ja 15 '40
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 N 19 '39 500w

"Interesting details of daily life of that period, vividly told and cleverly woven into a quick moving story. . . A fine book, attractive make-up and striking illustrations by the author." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 65:124 F 1 '40 100w

"Miss Blaisdell does not attempt to put the speech of the period into the mouths of her characters, but she has kept to a pure and simple English which never offends by introducing modern and inappropriate colloquialisms. She writes with sincerity and good taste and it is possible that her next story may have the vigor and color which 'Falcon Fly Back' lacks. The rather harsh grays and reds used for the pictures are unsuited to the gentle, graceful quality of Miss Blaisdell's drawings. For children 10 to 12." A. T. Eaton

+ — N Y Times p10 N 19 '39 470w
Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 16 '39 20w

BLAKE, NICHOLAS, pseud. See Day-Lewis, C.

BLAKE, WILLIAM J., pseud. See Blech, W.

BLAKELY, PAUL LENDRUM. Looking on Jesus; simple reflections on the Sunday Gospels. 116p $1 America press

242 Church year—Meditations. Spiritual life 39-14091

"Comments on the portions of the Gospels designated to be read at the mass for the Sundays of a year." Christian Century

"Preachers, teachers and meditators everywhere could not find a better book for expounding the wealth of thought and comfort and joy and guidance contained in the familiar Gospels read to us throughout the year." Thomas Butler
+ America 61:237 Je 17 '39 250w

"We recommend highly these simple, practical five minute sermons on the Sunday Gospels. They treat of prayer, faith, temptation, thanksgiving, repentance, the pardon of sin, the providence and mercy of God, peace, love, the Holy Eucharist."
+ Cath World 150:250 N '39 150w

"Very simple, sometimes strongly moving, often quite naive, comments."
Christian Century 56:645 My 17 '39 40w

BLANTON, MARGARET (GRAY) (MRS SMILEY BLANTON). Bernadette of Lourdes. 265p il $2.50 Longmans

B or 92 Bernadette Soubirous, Saint 40-27025

Life of Bernadette of Lourdes, by a Protestant psychologist. Born in 1844 Bernadette had the visions in 1858, entered a convent in 1866, died in 1879, and was canonized in 1933. More than a million pilgrims visit her grotto at Lourdes yearly. Index.

"There must be whole libraries of books about Lourdes. The little French town, the apparitions to Bernadette, and the cures have fascinated many. But a book by a Protestant, so well written and, in consequence, with such genuine popular appeal, the product of careful research and quite lacking in prejudice, is unusual." Paula Kurth + America 62:441 Ja 27 '40 360w

"Extraordinarily clear, simple, sympathetic, but very objective account (the first by a non-Catholic) of the life of a girl whose experiences formed the basis for the foundation of a shrine which now attracts millions to it in the hope of cure." Karl Menninger, M.D.
+ Atlantic F '40 800w
Booklist 36:213 F 1 '40
Reviewed by Theodore English
Books p10 F 4 '40 900w

"The book is infectious with Mrs. Blanton's spirit of disinterestedness, tranquility, and candour." J. L. Burke, S.J.
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 27 '40 200w

"Mrs. Blanton does not take any position in regard to the genuineness of the apparitions or the miraculous nature of the cures. She tells the story from the records, sympathetically and in detail, without questioning the accuracy or veracity of the testimony. . . Lourdes is a religious phenomenon of importance and Bernadette is worth knowing. Mrs. Blanton's book is, for most readers, the best introduction to her."
+ Christian Century 56:1579 D 20 '39 350w

"Two facts, apart from its merits as a piece of writing, make this book remarkable. The first is that Mrs. Blanton is a Protestant, and yet treats Saint Bernadette with complete sympathy. The other, perhaps even more striking, fact is that Mrs. Blanton is the wife of a distinguished psychiatrist, and yet avoids all the hocus-pocus of that profession. . . And all Catholics are indebted to Mrs. Blanton who, relying for her documentation on Père Cros's three volumes, and upon her own investigations on the spot, has produced what is by far the best popular account of Saint Bernadette." Theodore Maynard
+ Commonweal 31:208 D 22 '39 370w
N Y Times p9 Ja 28 '40 800w

BLECH, WILLIAM (WILLIAM J. BLAKE, pseud). The painter and the lady. 484p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

39-20236

The scene of this story is southern France, the time the early 1930s. The two chief characters are brothers, Stéphane and Onésime Sabatier, who, during the course of the novel, change roles. Stéphane, at first the sober business man, becomes an artist, a lover of the lower classes, Popular Front advocate, and finally is falsely convicted of murder. His younger brother has had early ambitions for a Bohemian life, but thru his elopement with a wealthy cousin he becomes a settled man-of-affairs.

"If the characters are not really credible as human men and women, they are almost titanically interesting. This book may not always please you. But you cannot lay it down." John Patton
+ Books p3 Ag 6 '39 850w

"I found the book dull and quit reading it about three-fourths of the way through for the reason that, though there is good material in it . . . the pasteboard characters are without interest, the psychology is plastered on from the outside, and the whole pretence of being sophisticated became unendurably monotonous. Truth to tell, the day of 'smart' fiction of this sort is long, long over." H. M. J.
— Boston Transcript p1 Ag 12 '39 150w

"Excitement is present everywhere in 'The Painter and the Lady,' as in all great art, and, as you read, you think of Galsworthy, of Anatole France, of Balzac, of Rabelais, of Cervantes, mostly of Cervantes. This is great company. Like each of that company Mr. Blake is first and foremost Wm. J. Blake, afterwards he is a competent artist. He knows his own times. . . The technique he employs is intriguing and effective for the communication of values as well as for the support of a complicated plot. Intensely colourful characters, presented with Balzacian definiteness, frequently fill the scene with melodrama although the novel itself is in no sense melodramatic." J. S. Will
+ Canadian Forum 19:260 N '39 550w

"Mr. Blake is a novelist in the grand style, rich in invention, astonishingly knowledgeable, and possessed of an unusually full vocabulary that he uses with the freedom and aptness of a master." J. D. Beresford
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 5 '40 360w

"Mr. Blake will admit nothing to his canvas but strong shades of black and white. His Communists and Socialists are all pleasant fellows with clean necks; his bankers and landowners are all exceedingly slippery characters liable to skin diseases. The very enthusiasm and conviction which lend animation to his novel are also likely to lead it off into irrelevancies, and too often for comfort into flat absurdities. 'The Painter and the Lady' is—to borrow for the moment Mr. Blake's own style of metaphor—an impressive explosion of talent which spatters the landscape with intellectual birdshot." Margaret Wallace

BLECH, WILLIAM—Continued

N Y Times p7 Ag 6 '39 750w

"Written with admirable intelligence and with great richness of incident. . . First-rate reading."
+ New Yorker 15:67 Ag 5 '39 50w

"A repellent novel which reads like a bad imitation of a third-rate French realist, ineptly translated." George Stevens
— Sat R of Lit 20:12 Ag 5 '39 420w

"William Blake has written a strong, if somewhat erotic story of two brothers. . . No fragile beauty lies in these pages. The beauty there is full and lusty, richly colored and lasting."
Springf'd Republican p7e S 3 '39 380w
Time 34:62 Ag 7 '39 290w
Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ja 6 '40 900w

BLEGEN, THEODORE CHRISTIAN. Building Minnesota. 466p il maps $1.48 Heath

977.6 Minnesota—History

An elementary history of the state of Minnesota from the time of the French explorers to the present. Index.

Booklist 35:171 Ja 15 '39

"That state history can be presented effectively to secondary school students is convincingly demonstrated in Building Minnesota. . . Skilful interweaving of national history into that of the state and region rounds out a simplified but astonishingly comprehensive state history." C. C. Qualey
+ Social Educ 3:216 Mr '39 440w
Social Studies 30:191 Ap '39 110w

BLISS, CHARLES ANDRESSEN. The structure of manufacturing production; a cross-section view. 231p $2.50; to subs gratis Nat. bur. of economic research [12s Macmillan]

338.4 Manufactures 39-18691

"This monograph analyzes two phases of the structure of American manufacturing industry in 1929: allocation of economic resources to industries grouped according to type of main product, and interrelationships among the different factors of production. It indicates the actual proportions in which resources were allocated in 1929 among manufacturing industries, and not how resources should be allocated, or indeed the efficiency with which they were allocated." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

"The report is not presented as a complete cross-section view of manufacturing industries. Attention to such factors as corporate ownership, plant localization, size of establishments, and labor relations has not been attempted. The absence of such considerations, which are not adapted to ready objective measurement, in no way detracts from the basic value of the report. It represents a significant contribution to the existing information about the use of productive resources in manufacturing and the interrelation of productive factors in manufacturing activity." G. W. Taylor
+ Am Econ R 29:843 D '39 490w

"The author has shown ingenuity in analyzing the census data and in arriving at significant cost and production relationships. . . The book will be indispensable reference material for students of manufacturing operations." G. E. McLaughlin
+ Ann Am Acad 206:187 N '39 400w

BLOCHMAN, LAWRENCE GOLDTREE. Blowdown. 313p $2 Harcourt

39-8242

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p23 Ap 2 '39 250w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p3 Ap 1 '39 100w

"Excitement, mystery and well-drawn characters are the ingredients, and they are skillfully blended." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p26 Ap 2 '39 180w
New Yorker 15:80 Ap 1 '39 50w

"Tropical background, pleasantly torrid romance; some first-class villainy; valiant and perceptive sleuth—and hurricanes to boot. Eminently satisfactory."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 Ap 1 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 9 '39 170w

"First-rate plot, pace and background."
+ Time 33:64 Ap 3 '39 20w

BLOCK, MRS ANITA (CAHN). Changing world in plays and theatre. 449p $2.75 Little

808.2 Drama—History and criticism. Theater (W) 39-27231

Critical study of serious drama—as opposed to entertainment drama—considering in more or less detail the significant works of playwrights from Ibsen to Odets. Contents: Introductory; Modern foundations of contemporary drama; Contemporary drama: the individual in conflict with changing sexual standards; Contemporary drama: the conflict within the individual; Contemporary drama: the social conflict; The social conflict in American drama of the "Left"; Contemporary drama: plays against war; Contemporary drama of a new social order: plays of Soviet Russia; Conclusions in a changing world. Index.

Booklist 35:266 Ap 15 '39

Reviewed by Earle Birney
Canadian Forum 19:162 Ag '39 600w

"The discussion of the play and theater as mirrors of the profound and rapid changes that have come over our modern world is delightfully readable as well as stirringly provocative. Here is no easygoing conventional Broadway critic presuming upon the shallow prejudices of the 'average theatergoer,' but a thoroughly informed and discriminating student of the drama telling us what vital drama is and how such drama has found its way not only upon the contemporary stage but, what is infinitely more significant, into the very pattern of current cultural life." K. M. Chworowsky
+ — Christian Century 56:580 My 3 '39 600w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 50:64 Je '39 100w

"The trouble with [Mrs] Block is that she does not like the theater. She applies to it words like 'spurious,' 'ephemeral,' 'paltry,' and 'futile'; even the ominous 'theater-of-the-arm-chair' puts in an appearance. Her book is written with zeal, but it is the zeal of every house except the playhouse." Robert Vambery
— Nation 148:590 My 20 '39 900w

"Mrs. Block is sex-conscious, social-conscious, women's-rights-conscious, individual-conflict-conscious—conscious of everything, in fact, but that her opinions are sententious, and expressed in a style full of clichés, and based on an almost hysterical disregard for facts." Richard O'Connell
— New Repub 100:82 Ag 23 '39 650w

"A provocative and rewarding work." Benson Inge
+ N Y Times p9 Ap 30 '39 650w

"Thoughtful discussion. . . Pretty much for serious students of the drama, but reading it wouldn't do the rest of us playgoers much harm either."
+ New Yorker 15:87 Mr 18 '39 30w

"When the attitude of mind toward the theatre is as essentially different from Mrs. Block's as that of the editors of Theatre Arts, it seems almost impossible to do justice to her painstaking, informing and always vigorous chapters. Certainly she knows her play material better than most of us, even among the plays we know, and over a wider range. She has the great advantage among theatre writers of caring more than most of them about the plays she approves, of knowing why she cares and of being able to explain it. Perhaps the best thing to say about The Changing World in Plays and Theatre is that if the author is able to convince her readers of the truth of her conclusions and the value of her judgments, she is entitled to her victory." Frederick Morton

Theatre Arts Mo 23:458 Je '39 700w

BLOCK, MARTIN. Gypsies: their life and their customs; tr. by Barbara Kuczynski and Duncan Taylor. 248p il $3.50 Appleton-Century [12s 6d Methuen]

397 Gipsies [39-15980]

The author has for many years studied gipsies, especially in southeastern Europe—their origin, life, customs, means of livelihood, tribal organization, language, music and religion. The book is illustrated with 79 photographs reproduced mostly from his own snapshots.

Reviewed by E. R. Whitridge

Am J Soc 45:636 Ja '40 150w

"[This] book should not be judged as a sober social history. Rather, it breathes the thrill and infectious naivete of the amateur, who sets down his personal experiences as the follower of an unusual hobby. [The author's] bent was to follow gypsies, to pry into their secrets. In his record of that admirable quest his pictures atone for any literary shortcomings. Gypsy experts will welcome it as an informal addition to their shelves. General readers will find it a pleasant account of a race that, whatever its tragedy, is currently blessed by being a people without a country except the domain of the spirit and the wayward mind." Victor Weybright

+ Books p15 F 5 '39 800w

Commonweal 29:502 F 24 '39 120w

"Dr. Block has ranged over Europe for his material, though much of it is drawn from the southeast and Germany. His book is illustrated with seventy-nine photographs, which are vivid, informative, and in some cases surprising, and which offer a wide diversity of interest in themselves. This is a lavish and colorful survey of a people whose very existence is a riddle, and who are fascinating to look at and read about, whether as picture or as paradox."

+ N Y Times p8 F 5 '39 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p93 F 11 '39 450w

BLODGETT, HAROLD WILLIAM, ed. The story survey. 797p $2.90 Lippincott

Short story 39-15270

Collection of short stories, to which is added an interpretative introduction and a discussion of short story technique. The stories are grouped according to country of derivation: American, English, and Continental. Selected bibliography.

"Good book for the young writer, and for all those who enjoy a swift yarn."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 40w

"A particularly helpful and interesting anthology . . . for its varied assortments permit one to compare some of the best American tales, from Washington Irving to William Saroyan, with masterpieces from the literatures of England, Ireland, France, Germany, Russia and Italy. It serves a dual purpose, for it may be read for pleasure alone or it may be used as a home course in short-story writing and appreciation." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p21 Ja 21 '40 230w

BLODGETT, RUTH ROBINSON. Down-east duchess. 378p $2.50 Harcourt

(W) 39-27355

The conflict of a blonde beauty from somewhere in Maine, with the faded aristocracy of a Massachusetts mill town. Adele married the bachelor member of the firm of Beggs Brothers, and burst into Peaceport society, apparently unaware of the raised eyebrows of some of her neighbors. After her husband's death she married a French duke, and lived for years in Europe. When next she appeared in Peaceport, the town and the times had changed; Adele was welcomed home.

Booklist 35:307 My 15 '39

"Ruth Blodgett's novel, 'Down-East Duchess,' is, fortunately, a good bit better than its title. . . [She] presents a New England rebel through the eyes of a New England town, but resists the current temptation to draw great morals about America and democracy, and in offering this picture of familiar and not particularly symbolical people, perhaps gives us the American town more truly than many a self-consciously historical 'epic.'" J. G. Linn

+ Books p10 Ap 9 '39 550w

"An entertaining novel, well put together."

+ Christian Century 56:709 My 31 '39 60w

New Repub 98:388 My 3 '39 30w

"Miss Blodgett's achievement lies in just this fact, that she places her reader in a sympathetic relation to her characters; interested in persons rather than in events, she can make very real those people whom we meet every day, people with nothing spectacular about them, but whom we prize for their very genuine selves. . . The story has deep American roots. Many will like Ruth Blodgett's novel chiefly for its fundamental Americanism." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 9 '39 700w

"Lively and entertaining."

+ New Yorker 15:86 Ap 8 '39 60w

"Ruth Blodgett has written a story of contemporary New England which is distinctly refreshing, because she has not delved too studiously into ancient traditions and neuroses. . . It seems somewhat of a pity that this foreign and not entirely convincing history of a parvenu duchess should have been injected into the story of Peaceport, because there was enough of a story without it. The characters, however, are well, if superficially, drawn and the novel moves in a series of quick scenes, sometimes a trifle hard to connect with each other because of the rapid shifts. The characters are pleasant and the book is good reading for anyone who knows New England and who appreciates the difficulties of its industrial life." J. P. Marquand

+ Sat R of Lit 19:13 Ap 8 '39 460w

"It is a good New England story, located in a well-to-do community, but by no means a photograph of any one town. The people are real New Englanders, with here and there somebody different introduced as a foil. And when Adele, duchess of Pontignac, came back to Peaceport to die, the story has a very appropriate finale."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 23 '39 390w

Wis Lib Bul 35:112 Je '39

BLOM, ERIC. Beethoven's pianoforte sonatas discussed. 251p $3 Dutton [10s 6d Dent]

786.4 Beethoven, Ludwig van [39-9034]

Analyses and historical studies of the piano sonatas of Beethoven. The chapters were originally issued in brochures with the separate volumes of gramophone records of the Beethoven Sonata society. Index.

"Mr. Blom, in spite of his modesty, has given to the world one of the important books on the Beethoven sonatas, which author and publishers have wisely seen fit to enrich with a fine selection of musical illustrations." Peter Bowdoin

+ Books p23 Mr 5 '39 600w

"It might be thought that Beethoven's pianoforte sonatas have already yielded such rich harvests for musical historians and analysts that not much would be left for any gleaners of to-day. Yet Mr. Eric Blom has gone over the familiar ground with so much care and skill that he has been able not only to gather a fresh store of material but also to deepen our understanding of what was previously collected." G. A. H.

BLOM, ERIC—Continued

+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 26 '38 320w
New Statesman & Nation 17:144 Ja 28 '39 260w

"This is an excellent book; Mr. Blom's pages contain a great deal that is of high interest and value, and he can combine sound musicianship with an agreeably easy style."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p663 O 15 '38 600w

BLOOMFIELD, DANIEL, ed. Chain stores and legislation. (Reference shelf) 466p $1.25 Wilson, H.W.

658.873 Chain stores (W) 39-13722

Quotations from articles and speeches representing both sides of the question. The book is intended for general reader, debater, and business man. The compiler is manager of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Contains brief for debate, bibliography, and index.

Booklist 36:13 S '39

Reviewed by S. F. Teele
Harvard Business R 18:129 autumn '39 230w
Pratt p14 autumn '39
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 30 '39 190w
Wis Lib Bul 35:140 Jl '39

BLOSS, ESTHER. Labor legislation in Czechoslovakia; with special reference to the standards of the Int. labor organization. 210p $3 Columbia univ. press [12s King]

331.09437 Labor laws and legislation—Czechoslovakia. International labor organization 39-11415

This book is an outgrowth of the author's work with the International Labor Office at Geneva, and was undertaken with the object of discovering how far Czechoslovakia had attempted and succeeded in shaping legislation in accordance with the I.L.O.'s ideals. Index.

"A detailed and informative book, but one which attempts practically no interpretation or analysis. The book would undoubtedly have gained had the author focused her interest on the effects of the Czech labor legislation on the workers' standard of living." S. C. Sufrin

+ — Am Econ R 29:612 S '39 240w

"This book . . . is not a dry account of facts, but has a great deal of the circumstantial color that makes it interesting to all social scientists." Jacob Horak

+ Ann Am Acad 204:212 Jl '39 360w
Foreign Affairs 17:639 Ap '39 20w

BLOY, LEON. The woman who was poor; a contemporary novel of the French 'eighties; tr. from the French by I. J. Collins. 356p $2.50 (8s 6d) Sheed

(W) 39-18660

" 'La Femme Pauvre,' of which this is a translation, appeared in 1897. . . In 'La Femme Pauvre' descriptions of squalor and cruelty rivalling Eugène Sue, reminiscences of apocalyptic visions and evocations of the sufferings of the martyrs are mingled with a disquisition on the nature of the lower animals, thinly disguised sketches of French literary figures of the nineties, a denunciation of the standard of acting at the Comédie Française, a criticism of Raphael and a defence of Wagner. . . Thus although Bloy was not a novelist—the characters are dummies, the story is left inchoate, and its significance is unimpressive—his novel retains after the lapse of years and even in English an odd fascination." Times [London] Lit Sup

"The truly human thread of the story is hampered by a profuse rhetoric which draws on allegory and personification for its effects, and leaves the reader drowned in a mystical plethora of words. Thus, in spite of some good scenes, the characters themselves are rather more stated than depicted, and the book should appeal primarily to that special group interested in the mystical regeneration of the spirit in the best Catholic tradition." Frank Wood

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Je 10 '39 290w
Cath World 149:751 S '39 330w

"Bloy's characters, artists and a woman, are saints in a world of baboons and prowling hyenas. His vision of human squalor and malevolence, of reeking Paris tenements and gossip-ridden suburbs, is terrifying. . . Bloy loathed humanity; and was himself a saint of the most disagreeable kind. But the startling thing about this book, his only real novel, is its nobility. . . Une Femme Pauvre is unlike any other novel in the world: how much, in the drama of spiritual conflict, Catholic novelists have drawn from it since! There, for good and all, the spiritual and the aesthetic meet on level terms. The task of translating it must have been deterrent; but Mr. Collins has succeeded admirably." G. W. Stonier

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:744 My 13 '39 380w

" 'The Woman Who Was Poor,' which is Bloy's masterpiece, cannot but have an invigorating effect upon its readers. Regardless of its qualities as a novel, its value as a spiritual essay, formed of numerous digressions, is very great." Justin O'Brien

+ N Y Times p7 Je 4 '39 800w

"There was nothing subtle and nothing first-class about Léon Bloy, and his detestation of the respectable Catholic literati, Bourget, Brunetière, and so forth was heartily reciprocated. But, for better or for worse, he belongs to that curious group of belated romanticists: Ernest Hello, Barbey d'Aurevilly, Villiers de l'Isle-Adam, and Huysmans. He deserves as much attention, at least, as they do." Ernest Boyd

Sat R of Lit 20:17 Je 10 '39 1100w

Reviewed by Graham Greene
Spec 162:1060 Je 16 '39 440w
Times [London] Lit Sup p295 My 20 '39 170w

BLUEMEL, CHARLES SIDNEY. The troubled mind; a study of nervous and mental illnesses. 520p il $3.50 Wood [16s Bailliere]

616.8 Nervous system—Diseases. Neuroses. Insanity. Psychology, Pathological 38-19723

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"The book would seem to be oversimple for the professional worker in the human field. The medical student might find it of interest as giving an indication of the vast variety of psychiatric problems he will meet in medical practice." David Slight

Am J Soc 44:768 Mr '39 120w

"The Troubled Mind is a compendium of symptoms (not causes or interpretations) of various forms of psychoneuroses and psychoses illustrated with hundreds of case history summaries. As such it has a limited range of interest. Beyond that, however, it is more damaging than helpful." Neal Drought

— + Am Soc R 4:140 F '39 230w

"A useful reference book on nervous and mental illnesses." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 153:16 Mr 1 '39 80w

"The book is well written, and there is no attempt to dramatize in the newspaper style which is often observed in popular books. Although it is doubtful whether any student will be able to systematize his knowledge in the field by reading this publication, the book will give him a great deal of information and, in this respect, is highly recommended." Mandel Sherman

El School J 39:472 F '39 750w

"This book is recommended to those who want general information. The material is well presented but is not sufficiently systematized to give the serious student the kind of information that he would ordinarily seek in such a book." Mandel Sherman

+ — J Religion 19:291 Jl '39 350w

BLUNT, ALFRED WALTER FRANK, bp. Teaching of the New Testament. 88p 60c Macmillan [1s 9d; pa 1s S.P.C.K.]

225 Bible. New Testament

"The Bishop of Bradford, who is editing the S.P.C.K. series of biblical handbooks, expresses his scholarly mind in untechnical language as he answers the questions, What is the dominant purpose of the New Testament? and What fundamental view does it set forth of God and his relation to man? As an Apostolic church must hold and teach New Testament Christianity, Bishop Blunt reviews the formation of the N.T. and the life of Jesus Christ, particularly in regard to his person, teaching and work on earth, and then traces the story of this great revelation and expounds it as centering in redemption and atonement." Churchman

Christian Century 56:975 Ag 9 '39 70w

"Clergy and teachers, who really want to understand the major themes of Christianity as found in the N.T., will find this clearly written book very valuable especially in showing the relation between the O.T. and N.T. and in its discussion of Christ's concept of the Kingdom of God." A. L. Murray

+ Churchman 153:18 O 15 '39 170w

BODFISH, HENRY MORTON, and THEOBALD, ADRIAN DANIEL. Savings and loan principles. 715p il map $4 Prentice-Hall

332.32 Building and loan associations 39-3427

"Historical development of the business in this country and the functions of associations as corporations are described and interpreted. Predominating policies, principles and practices are outlined." (Special Libraries) Index.

Reviewed by R. C. Beach

Am Econ R 29:400 Je '39 550w

Reviewed by Adeline Macrum

Special Libraries 30:315 N '39

BODRERO, JAMES. Bomba; il. by [the author]. 31p $1.25 Random house

39-16520

Story for young readers, all about a mischievous little Mexican burro. Captured by first one and then another, Bomba was compelled to do a great deal of hard work before he escaped to the United States and became the pet of two small children.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

+ Books p5 Jl 9 '39 250w

"In make-up the book is artistic. The line drawings are done in a light brown ink and the hand-lettered text in dark brown. The hand-lettering makes the book very difficult reading for the age child to whom the story would appeal and the appeal of the drawings, too, is more adult than juvenile. Recommended only for large libraries." E. G. Mullan

Library J 64:662 S 1 '39 140w

"It is an amusing story with a rapid-fire action which will appeal to children yet the story as a whole seems a little forced and Bomba is nowhere nearly so convincing a burro as was the Carlos whose progress was described by Dorothy Hogner in 'The Education of a Burro.' The high points of the tale are pleasantly and unexpectedly emphasized in Arnold Bank's handsome sepia lettering and in the crisp line drawings by the author, which combine to make this an eye-filling picture book." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p10 Ag 27 '39 290w

BOGARDUS, EMORY STEPHEN, and LEWIS, ROBERT HAMILTON. Social life and personality. 581p il maps $1.80 Silver

301.15 Social psychology. Sociology. Personality 38-11971

Textbook in sociology and social problems for high school students. "The central theme is the effect of social life upon personality. . . The nature of social life is made clear through a significant study of its major institutions: the family, the community, play, education, work, art, and religion. The final units deal with the means by which social control and social adjustment operate in our society." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. T. Krueger

Am Soc R 4:453 Je '39 150w

"This volume is organized around problems which are practical for youth to-day. Included are excellent materials based on the latest available statistics pertinent to the topics discussed. The range of these topics, however, is so wide that an adequate treatment in a single volume is exceedingly difficult. Largely because of the great range of topics, the book suffers a serious lack of a situational approach and a lack of sufficient developmental material to make clear a number of generalizations presented. This same range of topics necessitated omission of certain items which one would normally expect to find. . . The teaching aids included are excellent." R. A. Price

+ — School R 47:316 Ap '39 500w

"This book, no doubt, would be best in a one semester course; however with an extended use of the collateral work it could be satisfactorily used for a year's course. The authors have used excellent terms and illustrations to explain each topic. It is very readable for the average student. Its practical and thorough treatment of 'current' problems of sociology should appeal to teachers of the subject." H. H. Lawrence

+ Social Studies 29:377 D '38 450w

Wis Lib Bul 35:69 Ap '39

BOLITHO, HECTOR. Haywire; an American travel diary [il. by John Groth]. 179p $2 Longmans

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel 39-24719

Notes taken during a three months' lecture tour thru the United States form the basis of the book. The author is British, and his account of his reception in this country, and of the people he met en route, is more tolerant than is usual from overseas visitors.

Booklist 36:131 D 1 '39

Reviewed by Sarah Chokla

Boston Transcript p2 S 30 '39 450w

New Repub 100:278 O 11 '39 30w

"A book of individual comment, lively friendliness, and occasional sharp criticism which is never patronizing and is usually amusing."

+ N Y Times p18 O 1 '39 600w

"It would be very difficult to find a more naively uninforming account of travel in any country. Mr. Bolitho seems not only not to have seen very much of anything which Americans would recognize as native but he seems to have misunderstood most of what he did see." R. H.

— Sat R of Lit 20:22 S 30 '39 140w

"A good-humored narrative, briskly written, and unpretentiously fashioned out of sundry incidents and observations. But it is a bit romantic." E. N. Jenckes

+ Springf'd Republican p6 S 30 '39 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 35:213 D '39

BOLTON, HERBERT EUGENE. Wider horizons of American history. 191p $1.50 Appleton-Century

970 America—History. Spain—Colonies. Southwest—History. Jesuits—Missions 39-13861

Four essays by an American college professor, who in his forty years as college professor has taught at the University of Texas, Stanford, and the University of California. The essays were written at various times between 1917 and 1934, the first of them being the author's presidential address for the American Historical association in 1932. Contents: The epic of greater America; Defensive Spanish expansion and the significance of the borderlands; The mission as a frontier institution in the Spanish-American colonies; The Black Robes of new Spain.

Reviewed by J. G. Leyburn
Am Soc R 4:870 D '39 100w

"To students acquainted casually or not at all with Hispanic-American history, this is an instructive and informing little volume." J. W. Pratt
+ Ann Am Acad 207:242 Ja '40 600w
Booklist 35:377 Jl 15 '39
Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 60w
Christian Century 56:773 Je 14 '39 60w

"Obviously the fruit of deep scholarship and long thought, these brilliant little syntheses of their respective subjects have a clarity and sparkle about them that argue well for the publisher who has rescued them from the relative obscurity of learned journals." J. G. E. Hopkins
+ Commonweal 30:281 Jl 7 '39 330w
New Repub 101:121 N 15 '39 20w
No Am 248:202 autumn '39 150w
Social Studies 30:335 N '39 20w

"Excellent little volume."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p543 S 16 '39 320w

BOLTON, IVY MAY. Tennessee outpost; il. by Louise Mansfield. 244p $2 Longmans 39-22046

Historical tale for boys and girls about Tennessee when it was claimed by the Spanish. The hero is a sixteen-year-old boy, but a brave girl also has an important part.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p7 Ja 28 '40 400w
Christian Century 56:999 Ag 16 '39 20w

"Boys will like its swift action."
+ Churchman 153:39 D 15 '39 20w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 120w

BOND, ELIZABETH ANNE, and RABIN, JOAN ELAINE. Crunch: the squirrel; pictures by Kurt Wiese. unp $1.50 Dodd
Children as authors 39-21184

Two young authors, aged twelve and thirteen, wrote this story of a squirrel who discovered a novel way to rid his home nest of a family of quarrelsome invaders.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p5 S 3 '39 300w

"A sprightly and really clever story. . . Kurt Wiese has caught the spirit of fun and mischief that is the charm of this short but merry tale, and has added equally jolly pictures." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 27 '39 30w

"The authors have coupled an active imagination with a fine sense of action, and if they have been more generous with their words than a more skilled writer might have been they have instilled a fine sense of gusto into the tale, and Kurt Wiese's pictures lift the book into real comedy." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 S 3 '39 220w

"Crunch the Squirrel is just such a happy-go-lucky little animal as children would delight in and his young biographers have told his story with charming simplicity. Their direct narrative and economical detail might well be the envy of more mature writers. Kurt Wiese has decorated the book with illustrations in his usual happy manner." P. E. G. Quercus
+ Sat R of Lit 20:24 S 2 '39 100w

BOND, FRANK FRASER. How to write and sell nonfiction. (Whittlesey house publication) 262p $2.50 (10s 6d) McGraw

029.6 Authorship. Authors and publishers (W) 38-38656

A handbook on how to write and market nonfiction, intended as a guide for the student of writing. Articles are considered from the writer's, editor's and reader's points of view. Partial contents: The feature article: securing reader interest; The feature article: the Sunday paper variety; The article of opinion; Writing as a columnist; The serious business of writing humor; The interview and the personal sketch; Writing the nonfiction book; Marketing the manuscript. Index.

"Bond's book has the commercial angle and is one of the most useful texts for the writer's desk. It is a particularly handy volume to fall into the hands of the beginner who has thus far not been able to master fiction, but who is entitled to the encouragement and income from an output of salable articles." W. A. Freehoff
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 28 '39 360w

"For those who have a quick eye and a moderate gift of language, How to Write and Sell Nonfiction will be a useful and stimulating guide." M. L. Elting
+ Forum 101:vii Ap '39 150w
J Home Econ 31:482 S '39 50w

BOND, HORACE MANN. Negro education in Alabama; a study in cotton and steel. 358p il maps $3 Associated pubs.

371.974 Negroes—Education. Negroes—Alabama. Education—Alabama. Alabama—Economic conditions 39-18307

"Because he recognizes that 'no survey of factors influencing public provisions for Negro children could at all be adequate without understanding the conditions surrounding the demands of white children upon the State for tax-supported schools,' the main thesis of Bond's book extends beyond its main title into a consideration of the influence of cotton and steel interests upon public and private education for whites as well as Negroes. Chief emphasis, however, is laid upon the influence of these factors upon public education for Negroes." (Am Soc R) Issued also as thesis (Ph. D) University of Chicago, under title: Social and economic influences on the public education of Negroes in Alabama, 1865-1930.

"The book is characterized by careful research, excellent documentation, and cautious generalizations. Its defects are primarily mechanical, some paragraphs being repeated almost verbatim without cross-reference. There are fifty-two pages of footnotes at the back of the book. The book is a distinct contribution which will interest social scientists no less than students of education." C. S. Johnson
+ Am Soc R 4:907 D '39 220w

"Dr. Bond's treatise is valuable to the historian and the social scientist as well as to persons interested in the field of education. To residents of the South, especially Alabamians, the book should have a direct and special appeal. The study was made possible by a grant from the Rosenwald Fund." R. N. Davis
+ Social Forces 18:134 O '39 500w

BONE, GERTRUDE HELENA (DODD) lady. Days in old Spain; il. by Muirhead Bone. 261p map $4 (12s 6d) Macmillan

914.6 Spain—Description and travel (W) [39-19834]

In the author's introduction she says: "From the actual content of the book it will be evident that these impressions of Spain were gathered during leisurely visits extending over the last years of the old régime. . . The journeys in Spain taken by my husband and myself occupied months at various seasons of the year and in different districts of Spain over a number of years. They resulted in two folio volumes of important drawings by my husband, of which this small work is the text. The descriptions were written to accompany the drawings in the first place, and therefore only such subjects were chosen as could be presented pictorially. For permission to reprint two chapters in the book my thanks are due to the Editor of the Manchester Guardian." Map on endpapers. Index.

"One may read this book, of course, as a memorial. But it is best, perhaps, to read it for its own beauty and timeless interest. Lady Bone has written a travel book to accompany her husband's drawings; and the text makes a travel book that is fine and beautiful in itself. In combination with Muirhead Bone's beautiful work, Gertrude Bone's writing goes to make up a rare treasure of a book."
+ Books p18 Mr 26 '39 200w

"Lady Bone's is a sensitive, admirably informed and dignified evocation of what is the most diverse country in the world, both for scene and people." V. S. Pritchett
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 25 '39 150w

"The book is of great importance because it will be always the record absorbed and illuminated at the last possible moment of a Spain lost now for ever. During those last years before the insane, fratricidal, destructive war, Lady Bone watched, listened, heard voices from the old tapestried past, and, loving the soil, the people, the dark-coloured beauty, set it all down with quiet and caring reticence. . . This is a book to read very slowly, for its sentences are rich with beauty and wisdom. It is to be hoped that now, after this fine book, some attempt will be made to bring together and republish others of Lady Bone's writings." Hugh Walpole
+ Manchester Guardian p7 N 29 '38 550w

"This book is evocative and lovely writing, and it is informed by happy scholarship and touched by warm sympathy, as it is illustrated by genuine art." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p9 Ja 29 '39 550w

Reviewed by John Marks
Spec 162:98 Ja 20 '39 180w

"Lady Bone's sympathetic understanding of Spain and the Spaniards is evident on every page, as much in the selection of incidents as in conscious appreciation. . . At times her writing is a little too much aware of itself, but it is with the awareness of picking steps rather than of performing, and every now and then she says something final in its truth and felicity."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p781 D 10 '38 270w

BONNELL, JOHN SUTHERLAND. Pastoral psychiatry; with a foreword by Thaddeus Hoyt Ames. 237p $2.50 Harper

258 Psychology, Physiological. Psychology, Religious 38-38024

Dr Bonnell, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, gained his first knowledge of mental disease as he accompanied his father on his rounds thru the wards of a mental hospital. He served an apprenticeship in the same hospital before entering the ministry and as a pastor he has applied his training to the cure of the mentally ill who have brought him their personality problems. The book is largely made up of case histories of the people he has helped. Index.

Booklist 35:283 My 1 '39

"Dr. Bonnell's volume is largely a recital of the author's experience as a pastoral counselor, and indicates how a minister whose mind is furnished with the insights which psychological and psychiatric study provide may aid distraught individuals to achieve a religious adjustment to life. There is a wealth of helpful discussion of actual cases." C. T. Holman
+ Christian Century 56:154 F 1 '39 350w

"The book is valuable not only to those who deal professionally with the welfare of human beings, but it will definitely add to the equipment of the informed laymen." A. A. Gross
+ Churchman 153:16 F 1 '39 130w

"A trail-blazing book in the field of personal counseling for the minister." L. R. Robison, Jr.
+ Crozer Q 16:154 Ap '39 380w

Reviewed by C. T. Holman
J Religion 19:291 Jl '39 180w

"Here is encouraging evidence that there is growing up in Protestantism a recognition that the best values of the confessional can be preserved and should be used wisely to bring 'the healing and transforming power of God' into the lives of individuals. And only so can the great sickness of the world be healed." J. W. Ingles
+ N Y Times p16 My 14 '39 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Lathrop
Survey 75:195 Je '39 300w
Wis Lib Bul 35:60 Ap '39

BONNEY, THERESE. The Vatican. 131p il $3 Houghton

914.56 Vatican (W) 39-29434

Series of eighty photographs showing the Vatican City and Castel Gandolfo, with descriptive comment on each picture. The author-photographer is "the first American photographer to receive authorization for such a pictorial record."

Booklist 36:236 F 15 '40

Reviewed by Rev. J. L. Burke, S.J.
Boston Transcript p6 Ja 6 '40 120w

"The photographs which M. Thérèse Bonney has taken of the Vatican have a particular interest because she is the first American photographer to receive authorization for such a pictorial record; and the beauty and living quality of her book should make that interest general."
+ N Y Times p2 D 31 '39 200w
New Yorker 15:123 D 16 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 36:12 Ja '40

BONTEMPS, ARNA. Drums at dusk. 226p $2.50 Macmillan

Toussaint Louverture, Pierre Dominique—Fiction (W) 39-10640

A story of the Negro rising in Haiti which occurred during the course of the French revolution. The hero is a young Frenchman who is in sympathy with the blacks. He numbers among his black friends the man Toussaint and with his aid he is able to flee from the terror across to the West Country and to take with him the girl he loves.

"It is not strange that the romantic figure of Toussaint L'Ouverture should tempt a writer of his own race. In 'Drums at Dusk' Arna Bontemps, negro poet and writer, fictionizes the introductory chapters of the revolution in Haiti. . . While the intent of Bontemps's plan is excellent, its development is less happy. From the material offered in his novel, it is difficult to see Toussaint in the capacity of a great historical figure. . . The book as a whole suffers from a style that is too lush and romantic and from writing that is often careless." R. C. Feld
+ — Books p16 My 7 '39 600w

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p1 My 6 '39 700w

BONTEMPS, ARNA—Continued

"It's an exciting, stormy era that deserves skillful handling, and Mr. Bontemps never lets it down. He also adds a couple of full-dress French villains, and makes a little love affair act as if it really belonged there."

+ New Repub 99:84 My 24 '39 50w

"Undoubtedly it is a tribute to 'Drums at Dusk' that one wishes there were more of it. With so fine a grasp of his theme, Arna Bontemps might have planned something altogether larger in scale. His picture is so rich in suggestion that the reader is hardly content to leave it at that." Margaret Wallace

N Y Times p7 My 7 '39 750w

New Yorker 15:91 My 6 '39 50w

Pratt p27 autumn '39

"It is a gripping story from start to finish because its matter is vital and important. Even its many faults, of which a spasmodically fumbling style and a stern insistence upon visceral shudders are the worst, cannot obscure its passionate honesty." C. D. Abbott

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:12 My 13 '39 320w

"Mr Bontemps, himself a Negro, obviously knows the country and its history well. With more space he might have developed his background and his characters more fully. As it is, most of the characters remain rather vague, and unless the reader already knows something of the slave uprising, some of the events may be somewhat puzzling. For instance, it is not until near the end of the story that the reader realizes that Toussaint, the faithful black coachman at Breda is the same Toussaint L'Ouverture who later ruled the country. More about him would be welcome. For all that 'Drums at Dusk' remains a welcome addition to the field of historical fiction."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e My 21 '39 340w

BOO, SIGRID (HOLMESLAND). The long dream; tr. from the Norwegian by Edith M. Nielsen. 287p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Joseph, M.]

39-17411

Psychological study of a woman, young, lovely, the wife of a successful concert pianist, who is nevertheless victim of an inferiority complex which dates back partly to half remembered incidents of childhood, and specifically to the scandal which made her marriage necessary.

"A rarely effective study of a charming woman and her neuroses, this novel has an additional appeal for the American reader in that it presents through and around the story of Dagrun Eid the fully realized picture of family and school life in a modern Norwegian small city." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p4 Jl 9 '39 700w

Reviewed by Regina Madden

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 22 '39 210w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott

Manchester Guardian p7 O 4 '38 410w

"Actually the best writing in this ostensibly psychological novel is outside the analytical scrutiny of the nervous system. It comes in the simple descriptions of adolescent everyday life at school, on the playground, at home." Stanley Young

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 9 '39 650w

" 'The Long Dream' is not a polished, clear-cut novel; but it is a thoughtful book with the light of truth upon it, and with a character who is recognizable as a living being, with a living being's rich and indefinable complexity." Harriet Colby

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 Jl 15 '39 320w

Time 34:66 Jl 10 '39 190w

"Dagrun would be more interesting treated as a medical case than as a tragic-comic heroine. The best part of her story is the recollections of her childhood, but even here there is too much matter for unintended laughter."

Times [London] Lit Sup p599 S 17 '38 320w

BOOK of popular science; the wonders of modern discovery, the triumphs of inventive genius, the story of all created things and the world they live in; ed. by Dexter S. Kimball, aided by a group of distinguished contributors. 12v il maps $59.50; liberal discounts to libraries and schools c1939 Grolier soc.

503 Science. Technology. Natural history 39-2210

"This is a revision of the Book of Popular Science, first published in 1924 in 15 volumes and reissued under copyright dates of 1926, 1928, 1929, 1930, and 1931. The original publication was reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin, January 1930 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. . . The 1939 issue of the Book of Popular Science is similar to the earlier ones in content, style and arrangement. Information is divided into the following groups: I, The universe; II, The earth; III, Life; IV, Plant life; V, Animal life; VI, Man; VII, Health; VIII, Power; IX, Commerce; X, Industry; XI, Society; XII, Biography; XIII, Household science." Subscription Bks Bul

"The information appears to be reliable, and few inaccuracies were noted, but most of the topics are treated in a superficial way. In none of the numerous articles concerning chemistry, for instance, are there periodic tables or the grouping of elements; the term, hydroponics, is not explained in the discussion of that subject. . . The Book of Popular Science has little value as reference material because of the superficiality of its contents, its unsystematic arrangement, and inadequate indexing. It has been popular in many libraries, especially school collections, with men and boys who enjoy the magazines Popular Mechanics and Popular Science, and may stimulate in such casual readers a more serious interest in some phase of scientific or technical knowledge. It is recommended for this purpose, however, only where cost is not a major consideration."

— + Subscription Bks Bul 10:49 O '39 650w

BOOKSTABER, PHILIP DAVID. Judaism and the American mind in theory and practice; with a foreword by David Philipson. 248p $2.50 Bloch

296 Jews—Religion 39-7285

"Rabbi Bookstaber, who entered the rabbinate after training and experience in social service, writes for Jews and especially for youth groups and adult classes. . . He wishes to promote the adaptation of the Jewish mind to American conditions and to strengthen the devotion of Jews to America, and he expresses his enthusiasm for 'a corporate Jewish life in America.' . . On every page is evident the intense devotion of the reform rabbi to the ideals of democracy and his sense of the close kinship between the spiritual principle of Judaism and the democratic principle at its best. Nevertheless he considers assimilation a 'plague' to be avoided." Christian Century

Christian Century 56:742 Je 7 '39 220w

Reviewed by John Cournos

N Y Times p14 S 17 '39 440w

BOONE, JACK HAPPEL. Dossie Bell is dead. 291p il $2.50 Stokes

39-5855

A story of the West Tennessee hill people which begins with the death of Luster Holder's woman, Dossie Bell, and ends with her funeral when the minister confesses the part he had played in the drama.

"A story which, though somewhat thin, is full of freshly noted jest and folk-speech, well garnished with excitement. Unfortunately for Mr. Boone, Erskine Caldwell has worked before him in the same material; the primitive passions, quaint folk-ways, earthy humors, and idiomatic solecisms of the southern hills have become pretty familiar to us through 'Tobacco Road' and 'God's Little Acre.' . . It is to be hoped that Mr. Boone will go on recording the talk of the people he knows, and learn to develop a richer, deeper story out of less abundantly violent material, with the organic unity a novel ought to have." David Tilden

+ — Books p14 Mr 26 '39 400w

"The tight pattern of this novel, the restricted time . . . lend it an unusually dramatic quality. Indeed it would take less tinkering than 'Tobacco Road' required to make an effective play out of 'Dossie Bell Is Dead.' . . The language too, is memorable. It is Elizabethan, if you like, though some of it makes the Elizabethans who have come down to us in literature seem mincing and delicate. But it has an authentic ring, as does the novel itself." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 19 '39 800w

"To stir his West Tennessee hillmen out of their 'utter leisureliness,' Mr. Boone has provided situations as strong as raw corn liquor. He has over-done it, by any standard which holds in the flat lands. But if he has written a rampageous, double-barrel melodrama, he has also admirably recorded an authentic pattern of backwoods folkways." Leighton Barret

+ Sat R of Lit 19:14 Ap 8 '39 270w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 4 '39 420w

BOONE, JOHN ALLEN. Letters to Strongheart. 241p $2.50 Prentice-Hall

814 39-17395

A series of informal essays on dogs, human beings, life, politics, God and creation, set forth in a series of letters to the dead Strongheart, the German police dog who achieved movie stardom a few years ago. There are frequent allusions to the years the author and Strongheart "kept house together in the hills of Hollywood."

Boston Transcript p3 Je 17 '39 110w

"The book is as unique in its purpose as it is in its choice of vehicle. It is so interesting that once opened it is laid down with regret." A. F. Gilmore

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 27 '39 650w

"Mr. Boone's book is at once irritating and satisfying. . . [The author] weakens his case by overstatement, and not a few of his readers will be rubbed the wrong way, one imagines, by a somewhat ostentatious assumption that heaven, wherever it may be, will not be much of a place unless dogs are among its angels." R. M. Cleveland

+ — N Y Times p12 S 10 '39 350w

BOOS, WILLIAM FREDERICK. The poison trail. 380p il $3 Hale

615.9 Poisons 39-16652

This book for the lay reader, in addition to description of poisons and their effects on the human body, also gives a bit of autobiographical information and many stories of actual experiences in the author's career as a toxicologist and "expert" witness. Index.

Boston Transcript p2 F 3 '40 180w

"There is a conflict in 'The Poison Trail' between autobiography bearing an awkward, self-conscious stamp and sharp-eyed reporting assuredly taking notes in a complicated and fascinating field of science. Fortunately, the reporting dominates." L. C. Jones

+ — N Y Times p18 O 8 '39 1050w

New Yorker 15:66 Ag 19 '39 30w

"Legal and medical students will find 'The Poison Trail' an absorbing shortcut to required information, but its field of interest is by no means restricted to professional groups. If you are contemplating writing a detective story, or committing a murder, you will find it invaluable; if you have wondered how the men behind the scenes detect poison traces months after death, your curiosity can now be easily satisfied; if you are merely an intelligent and curious reader, you will still learn from it much that is news to you and gain a lively respect for the world's toxicologists." M. S. Ulrich, M.D.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:7 D 23 '39 400w

"Here is a unique mixture of autobiography, murder mystery, medical science, chemistry and legal anecdote, which has all the earmarks of a best-seller in the non-fiction class. From his deep knowledge of medical chemistry and his wide experience as expert witness in upwards of two hundred murder trials and innumerable legal battles stemming from state and federal pure food and drug legislation, Dr. Boos has distilled an astonishing product—a treatise on toxicology that will hold the reader enthralled from cover to cover."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 O '39 550w

BOOTH, EDWIN THOMAS. The last tragedian; Booth tells his own story, by Otis Skinner. 213p il $3 Dodd

B or 92 (W) 39-23205

Six groups of letters from Edwin Booth and his first wife, Mary Devlin, with running comment by Otis Skinner. "The book is not so much a study of an actor as a glimpse behind the scenes into the mind, heart and the complex psychological structure that went to the making of a great artist." (Theatre Arts Mo)

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Books p12 Ja 7 '40 320w

"Taken as a supplement to other biographies, the book is valuable, and one can only wish that Mr. Skinner had printed even more of the correspondence. To the reader unacquainted with the facts of Booth's career, however, the volume is bound to be confusing because of the oddities of its arrangement. . . In commenting upon and explaining the correspondence, Mr. Skinner moves backward and forward in time, so that it is frequently impossible to guess the sequence of events." H. M. J.

+ — Boston Transcript p1 S 23 '39 360w

"This is one of the most satisfying of books on Edwin Booth because it tells his story largely through letters written by Booth himself. Mr. Skinner has chosen them with great skill, and with his own connecting comment they paint a portrait of the great tragedian 'in his habit as he lived.'" Grenville Vernon

+ Commonweal 30:541 O 6 '39 300w

"Otis Skinner has done a real service to a public that honors the fame of Edwin Booth the actor, but has had only a limited knowledge of the man." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p4 S 10 '39 1150w

Theatre Arts Mo 23:760 O '39 450w

BOOTHE, CLARE (MRS HENRY ROBINSON LUCE). Kiss the boys good-bye; a comedy; with a foreword by Heywood Broun. 249p $2 Random house

812 (W) 39-27068

While hunting a heroine for the movie, Kiss the Boys Good-Bye, a naive Southern belle is discovered and taken North to a Connecticut house party where the contract is supposed to be signed. The week-end is a surprise to all concerned. The play has had a successful New York run.

Booklist 35:220 Mr 1 '39

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Books p20 Ap 16 '39 90w

"It is witty, sophisticated, thumping good theater, and the epigrammatic content is among the highest of recent seasons. Hollywood's portentous search for Scarlet O'Hara gave Miss Boothe a starting point, and her own shrewd wits have done the rest." T. H. B. R.

+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 4 '39 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '39

"A sprightly enough little comedy tenanted by the nasty people you will find on a Connecticut week-end party." Lewis Nichols

N Y Times p18 F 26 '39 180w

BOOTHE, CLARE—Continued

Pratt p23 spring '39

Reviewed by John Anderson
Sat R of Lit 20:14 Ap 29 '39 170w

Reviewed by Rosamond Gilder
Theatre Arts Mo 23:309 Ap '39 40w

BOPP, KARL RICHARD. Hjalmar Schacht: central banker. 91p pa $1.25 Univ. of Mo.

332.0943 Schacht, Hjalmar. Finance—Germany 39-28220

"This analysis of the financial career of Dr. Schacht is the result of a study of the post-stabilization policy of the Reichsbank which Dr. Bopp carried on in Germany in 1932-1933 as holder of a Social Science Research Council fellowship. Although the publication date is 1939, the work was apparently completed before Dr. Schacht's removal from the Ministry of Economic Affairs and the Reichsbank. The design of the study is ingenious. After a too brief biographical note . . . the various facets of the subject's public personality as the author sees them are used as labels for chapters: stabilizer, defender of the currency, philosopher, delegate, politician, psychologist, financier and dictator, each does his turn upon the stage." Am Econ R

"In execution the plan has its handicaps, for 'philosopher' Schacht is an opportunist politician and 'financier' Schacht outmaneuvers the French with a bit of practical psychology. This method also means cutting across the chronological current, with the result that a reader who is not fully familiar with German finance since 1923—and who is?—faces rather heavy going. In spite of the background and mental agility necessary for a comprehension of these pages, the story of Schacht's career from his stabilization of the currency in 1923 to his financial dictatorship in 1937 is an engrossing one." Alzada Comstock

+ — Am Econ R 29:878 D '39 280w

"A fine piece of expository writing." E. C. Helmreich

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:538 Je '39 110w

BORDEN, MARY (MRS E. L. SPEARS). Passport for a girl. 280p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Heinemann]

(W) 39-12439

The time is the period between the seizure of Austria and the Munich crisis. An English girl, stepdaughter of a member of the British Foreign office, escapes from Munich with her Austrian-Jewish lover. The story is partly of dinner parties and society life in London; partly of torture and terror in Vienna, where the boy's mother and grandmother are killed by the Nazis.

"I do not know if Mary Borden's new novel is very good or not. I only know I read it at a gulp, and could not put it down. . . 'Passport for a Girl' should set some believable human beings right in the midst of the newspaper headlines. It is seldom sentimental, but usually crisp and caustic, and its sketches of the English and their changing reactions should be particularly interesting to us." Lorine Pruette

+ Books p3 My 21 '39 850w

Reviewed by Irene Weise
Boston Transcript p3 Je 10 '39 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '39

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p7 My 16 '39 550w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 17:748 My 13 '39 200w

Reviewed by E. H. Walton
N Y Times p6 My 21 '39 900w

"Lots of entertaining political chitchat, but novels on current affairs are likely to be less interesting than the daily newspapers."
New Yorker 15:94 My 20 '39 90w

"'Passport for a Girl' would have been more pointed if it had omitted unnecessary recapitulations of history, and reduced the Austrian material to a few essential episodes. Also, it suffers a little from a technical slickness which occasionally obscures the human values. But the book is very much worth reading from any point of view. Nothing else has so savagely stripped the padding from those in England who thought—until recently—that Hitler was protecting them from the Bolsheviks." George Stevens

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:11 My 20 '39 330w

"Passport for a Girl comes salutarily upon our brutal, stupid times, and, written by a novelist whose life is probably lived among Government circles in this country [England], it is a brave book to have written. For Miss Borden does not mince her words over the events of the last two years in Central Europe, or, more importantly, over the bungling and inactivity of Great Britain in reaction, or non-reaction to them. . . That she manages to find a hopeful ending for the boy and girl is a mercy which we do not quarrel with. . . All this side of the story is a good, hard-hitting record, with knowledge behind it, and no quarter given. The other side of the book, dealing with April's family—Foreign Office and Diplomatic Corps class—is not so good, being a little too exclusively upper-class in its approach to the immediate situation of our society." Kate O'Brien

+ — Spec 162:822 My 12 '39 240w

"A bitter, searching, heart-rending story. . . The happy ending does not seem quite in tune. Maybe Hans and April will find the contentment they expect in the country home, but with the background of tragedy behind them, it seems unlikely. The book holds one's interest to the end, and the author's bitterness may become the reader's own."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e My 28 '39 600w

"Miss Borden's motives compel understanding and respect, but this sort of novel is the hardest of all to write well. What it requires is either much more imagination or much less."
Times [London] Lit Sup p247 Ap 29 '39 500w

Wis Lib Bul 35:166 O '39

BORDEN, SIR ROBERT LAIRD. Robert Laird Borden: his memoirs; ed. by Henry Borden. 2v 542;543-1061p il $12.50 (42s) Macmillan

B or 92 Canada—Politics and government. European war, 1914-1918—Canada [39-4233]

Autobiography of this Canadian politician and statesman, the prime minister of Canada during the war years. The volumes were the work of his years of retirement from 1920 to his death in 1937. Index at end of volume two.

"Borden's memoirs are a solid achievement, a painstaking and essentially accurate and well-weighed record of important events." A. B. Keith

+ Am Hist R 44:905 Jl '39 850w

"The bulky volumes by Sir Robert, more than one thousand pages in all, are outstanding as an addition to Canada's all too meagre store of political biography. His memoirs deal particularly with the quarter century after 1896, by far the most important period of Canadian history. To have been without these memoirs would have been an irreparable loss for the future and it is to be hoped that there may yet appear further records of those who moved amid the same events." Fred Landon

+ Canadian Hist R 20:56 Mr '39 3200w

Foreign Affairs 17:641 Ap '39 20w

"Sir Robert's interests were not diverse and his memoirs are strictly political, with only stray glances at other sides of life. Ruthless editing could have improved the work by making it more compact. As it stands it is a substantial contribution to Canadian and Empire history." J. B. M.

+ — Manchester Guardian p7 F 21 '39 650w

New Statesman & Nation 17:514 Ap 1 '39 220w

"Sir Robert Borden's memoirs will be eagerly read by persons who are interested in the politics of the Dominion of Canada, the relations of the British Commonwealth of Nations, the management of the World War and the Versailles Peace Conference. In no instance will they fail to obtain satisfaction. These are meaty books. I suspect, however, that all will wish that Sir Robert had been a bit more fluent than he managed to be in the 1,044 pages he left for publication." Hartley Grattan

+ — N Y Times p9 F 19 '39 1950w

Spec 162:458 Mr 17 '39 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p82 F 11 '39 900w

BOREHAM, FRANK WILLIAM. I forgot to say; a gust of afterthought. 284p $1.75 Abingdon [5s Epworth]

824 39-12690

" 'Haunted by the things he should have said, but didn't,' Doctor Boreham yielded to the importunities of his publishers and produced this, his thirty-second volume. . . The author's 'wayward fancies' take him from 'Wet Paint' to 'Letters from the Dead,' from 'The Sow's Ear' to 'The Majesty of God.' " Crozer Q

"Those who are familiar with his writings do not need to have this new one recommended; those who are not acquainted with them should make a beginning here. . . The chapters of the book are marked by the simplicity, charm, and understanding for which he is so well known." Rittenhouse Neisser

+ Crozer Q 17:77 Ja '40 120w

"Few religious writers today make a stronger impression on the public than the Australian preacher, Dr F. W. Boreham. His books are full of sympathy, understanding and incidents from ordinary but interesting life. In his latest book, short discourses on a refreshing variety of themes include many unusual illustrations. Dr Boreham is both a keen student of human life and a brilliant and persuasive preacher." R. K. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 2 '39 390w

BORKENAU, FRANZ. The new German empire. 167p map $2 Viking

327.43 Germany—Nazi movement. Germany—Foreign policy (W) 39-27631

An account of German economic and political penetration into various sections of Europe, Africa, and South America, written by a former member of the German labor party, who is now in exile. No index.

Booklist 36:4 S '39

"A useful survey. . . Perhaps the most interesting part of the book is that dealing with Africa."

+ Books p32 D 10 '39 230w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

Boston Transcript p13 S 22 '39 220w

"Compact, interestingly written." Norman Cousins

+ Current Hist 51:5 O '39 110w

Foreign Affairs 18:376 Ja '40 50w

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman

Nation 149:446 O 21 '39 450w

New Repub 100:167 S 13 '39 40w

Reviewed by T. R. Ybarra

N Y Times p1 S 1 '39 950w

Sat R of Lit 20:22 S 2 '39 320w

BORKENAU, FRANZ. World communism [Eng title: Communist International]. 442p $3.75 Norton [12s 6d Faber]

335.4 Communism. International, Third. Europe—Politics. World politics 39-27178

"In this analysis of the history of the Communist International, Dr. Borkenau remains objective, although he was formerly a member of the German Communist Party. He presents with great clarity the alternating vicissitudes and successes of the Leftist movements, tracing these from the origin of the party which lies in the ideas of Marx and the strange mixture of East and West that produced the Russian Revolution. Included in this extraordinary history are the disastrous 'Soviet' dictatorship established by Bela Kun in Hungary, the Chinese Revolution of 1927, the British general strike, the coming to power of Hitler, the civil war in Spain." (No Am) Bibliographical notes. Index.

Reviewed by L. L. Snyder

Ann Am Acad 204:180 Jl '39 550w

Booklist 35:245 Ap 1 '39

"In the light of the difficulties Mr. Borkenau would seem to have done a capital job in treating adequately the important phase of Communism revealed in the career of the Communist International. Although he was a member of the German Communist party from 1921 to 1929, his temperament is clearly that of the student rather than revolutionist; obviously disillusioned, he writes without the bitterness that usually attends disillusionment. His cool, intelligent analysis always makes sense, he threads his way through the intricate thickets of Communist international policy without losing his bearings, and he succeeds remarkably well in bringing everything into a comprehensible pattern." E. S. Bates

+ Books p12 O 1 '39 500w

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 29 '39 90w

"An important book which will cause controversy and have considerable influence. The history of the past 20 years has been written again and again with sentiment and passion. It has in various forms been rammed down our throats; very rarely has it been coolly examined by a detached intelligence with a marked moral integrity. This is Dr. Borkenau's particular distinction." V. S. Pritchett

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 19 '38 700w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 8 '39 500w

"This is a brilliant and amazing study. . . The author develops the criss-cross of the Comintern policy with admirable clarity and an amazing knowledge of detail. No wonder; he was an active Communist himself. . . Borkenau's conclusions should be read not only by all our progressives and liberals, but also by Catholics." H. A. Reinhold

+ Commonweal 29:640 Mr 31 '39 470w

Reviewed by Gordon Poteat

Crozer Q 16:303 O '39 160w

Foreign Affairs 17:806 Jl '39 80w

"Dr. Borkenau concludes that the Comintern has failed in all its undertakings from China to Spain. But, whether this conclusion pleases or displeases, readers cannot help but be absorbed by the book. It is one of the best pieces of contemporary history that has been put before the public—well-organized, dramatic, vivid, philosophical." M. M. Colum

+ Forum 101:269 My '39 900w

Reviewed by Arthur Rosenberg

Nation 149:557 N 18 '39 1050w

"There is urgent need for an accurate, documented, critical history of the Comintern. The political prejudices of its author might make little difference so long as he possessed an intelligent grasp of political strategy and of the changing contexts within which strategists must operate. Mr. Borkenau unfortunately lacks this qualification." F. L. Schuman

— New Repub 99:55 My 17 '39 170w

"Everything Dr. Borkenau writes is first-class, but [this] is the best book which he has given us." R. H. S. Crossman

+ New Statesman & Nation 16:694 O 29 '38 950w

No Am 247:187 spring '39 240w

Reviewed by Corliss Lamont

Survey G 28:697 N '39 250w

BORKENAU, FRANZ—Continued

"Dr. Borkenau has put all students of the revolutionary movement in post-War Europe under a deep debt. His book is, first and foremost, a mine of information accurately compiled and lucidly presented. Further, he has realized that history must interpret facts as well as record them, and his own interpretation rests on the thoroughly solid ground that the Comintern has failed. His book is, therefore, an account of the causes of its failure, and it is here that Dr. Borkenau reveals the defects of his qualities. . . He has lived too long under the influence of the Marxian dialectic to be immune from the temptation of pointing verbal contrasts; as, for example, that between Marx's theory of a revolutionary proletariat and the contemporary rise of a moderate, reformist trade-unionism. By placing his facts in this setting of ideological opposites, he does less than justice to the influence of personality which his own book proves to have been decisive."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p562 S 3 '38 700w

BORNE, ETIENNE, and HENRY, FRANCOIS. A philosophy of work; tr. by Francis Jackson. 221p $2.50 (6s) Sheed

331.01 Work. Church and labor. Sociology, Christian 39-3582

A philosophical treatise written from the Roman Catholic point of view and extolling the virtues of labor. Contents: A conflict of humanisms; History of the idea of work; The idea of work; A concrete example: Stakhanovism; The last why, the religious problem of work; A declaration of hope.

Reviewed by A. J. Miller
America 60:574 Mr 18 '39 200w

Reviewed by Joseph McDonald
Commonweal 29:276 D 30 '38 550w

BORSODI, RALPH. Prosperity and security; a study in realistic economics. 319p $3 Harper

330.1 Economics 39-312

This study in "realistic economics" is an anti-collectivist, anti-capitalist approach to the problem of improving the conditions of life for people generally. The author's thesis is that the only security available to all is "the security which comes from the possession of both the means and the ability to produce food and clothing and shelter enough for our own needs with our own hands and on our own land." Index.

Booklist 35:184 F 1 '39

Reviewed by A. B. Lewis
Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '39 1050w

"As one who has much sympathy with the desire for decentralization, I have found this book a bit disappointing. Perhaps I expected too much. . . Having heard something of Mr. Borsodi's practical work in home building and in household production, I was prepared to be heartened and nourished by this volume. Frankly, I did not get much help from it." D. A. McCabe
Commonweal 30:77 My 12 '39 1800w

"Despite the complexity of the theories presented, the reader leaves the book with the strong impression that its conclusions rest more on Mr. Borsodi's belief in the desirability of small-scale and especially family production than on the data that he presents. . . One is tempted to ask how large numbers of American families could accumulate funds to pay for the land and equipment necessary for production according to the Borsodi plan." Gertrude Weiss
J Home Econ 31:331 My '39 260w
New Repub 98:28 F 8 '39 80w
New Yorker 14:60 D 24 '38 20w

"Mr. Borsodi has written a stimulating book which is free from most of the overstatement which characterized some of his earlier writings." P. H. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 F 18 '39 650w
Wis Lib Bul 35:23 F '39

BORTH, CHRISTY. Pioneers of plenty; the story of chemurgy. 303p il $3 Bobbs

660 Chemurgy (W) 39-27845

Chemurgy, meaning chemistry at work, is the science of converting waste materials into valuable new materials. This is a popular account of some of the recent discoveries of American and European scientists, producing new industrial products from surplus soy beans, milk, cotton, etc. Index.

Booklist 36:84 N 1 '39

Reviewed by R. B. Byrnes
Books p28 N 26 '39 800w

"Mr. Borth's imagination has been so completely captured by the promises for the New Day that he has permitted his reportorial enthusiasms to run away with him a bit. He has not been as critical of some of his statements of facts as he should have been. Time will make the true appraisal of the works of his pioneers. Some of them will rank high. The book was written for the man and woman in the street. They will like it."
+ — Chem & Met Eng 47:49 Ja '40 900w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting
Forum 102:iii N '39 350w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:52 O '39

"Mr. Borth's story would be better reading if it were told less stridently, but his book is nevertheless fascinating. One may open it anywhere at random and find a practical modern marvel on almost every page."
+ — N Y Times p34 N 5 '39 400w

" 'Pioneers of Plenty' is an important contribution to that borderland between science and economics which is now in such an unsettled and controversial state. No one who is concerned with the plight of the farmer in an era of overproduction can fail to find this an important book." G. R. Harrison
+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 30 '39 500w

BOSA, STERA, pseud. See Walton, B. E.

BOSLEY, HAROLD AUGUSTUS. The quest for religious certainty. 235p $2.50 Willett

201 Religion—Philosophy 39-31306

Study of religious certainty. "Dr. Bosley believes that we must not expect to find that certainty which was once thought—in various periods—to have been attained by philosophy, theology, and then science. There is a 'polarity' of certainty and contingency. But the only pathway to certainty is through observation and reason, and the only certainty we may expect to attain is that in which science prides itself—tentative hypotheses always ready to adapt themselves to new discoveries. The latter half of the book synthesizes tentativeness and certainty in theology, in worship, and in conduct." (Churchman) Index.

Reviewed by A. C. Dieffenbach
Books p32 D 10 '39 80w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 56:515 Ap 19 '39 900w

"This is a profound and stimulating study . . . not easy reading for the mind unaccustomed to metaphysical speculation. . . [It] is an excellent book for those who do not mind a little heavy thinking, and is a helpful antidote against the modern revival of supernaturalism among those who lightly throw aside the ladder of liberalism upon which they have climbed to their present position." W. L. Caswell
+ Churchman 153:15 My 15 '39 330w

Reviewed by G. W. Davis
Crozer Q 16:227 Jl '39 500w

"This review has indicated certain questions raised by the book and has left no space for a discussion of its merits, which are many. Not the least is the evidence it offers of Professor Wieman's power as a teacher. The author has taken Wieman's ideas, not slavishly, but with independent critical judgment, and has helped to bring out their real suggestiveness for the contemporary attack upon these problems. The result is a book which is decidedly worth reading." J. S. Bixler

+ — J Religion 19:386 O '39 1400w

Reviewed by W. N. Pittenger
Living Church 100:582 My 31 '39 260w

BOSTWICK, ARTHUR ELMORE. A life with men and books. 358p il $3.25 Wilson, H.W.

B or 92 (W) 39-17432

Reminiscences of the librarian-emeritus of the St Louis Public library. Mr Bostwick, who has been at various times in his career a teacher, editor and author, as well as a librarian, describes his childhood, his activities in each of his fields of work, and spices his recollections with interesting and witty stories of the men and women he has met thru the years. Index.

Booklist 36:6 S '39

"These fluent and entertaining memoirs of a distinguished American librarian come opportunely in view of the seismic disturbances caused by the appointment of Archibald MacLeish as librarian of Congress. Dr. Bostwick's narrative makes excellent reading for the citizen whose curiosity (or alarm) may have been aroused by the Washington incident." W. N. C. Carlton

+ Books p16 Ag 13 '39 600w

Reviewed by T. W. Koch
Library J 64:984 D 15 '39 1600w

"His is a striking record, and all who know him will rejoice that he has here set it forth as he recalls it. The book is an amazing and instructive record of things remembered. The Foreword gives fair warning that the author is writing entirely from memory, with no formal verification of dates and documents. This reviewer is glad to say, however, that, when he doubted one or two dates and checked them, he found that the author was correct." H. M. Lydenberg

+ Library Q 10:114 Ja '40 600w

"A readable and informing book." C. R. Woodruff

+ Living Church 101:12 D 27 '39 300w

"When a man has reached his eightieth year and retained sufficient physical vigor and intellectual verve to write a fat book of charming reminiscence, we may as well admit that life begins well under 40 and that it does not necessarily end at 80. Mr. Bostwick has apparently been too busy a man to keep a diary or notes, and he records all the events, from earliest childhood, entirely from memory." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 27 '39 800w

"This autobiography will in all probability find its way to the essential, required, and recommended lists of professional reading, along with Dr. Bostwick's 'The American Public Library,' now in its fourth revised edition. . . 'A Life with Men and Books' has an additional claim to distinction. It seems safe to claim that this is the first autobiography by a member of the American library profession. Librarians, a long-suffering and much put-upon race, seldom get around to writing their memoirs." E. F. Walbridge

+ Sat R of Lit 20:18 Ag 12 '39 450w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 6 '39 400w
Wis Lib Bul 35:165 O '39

BOSWELL, PEYTON. Modern American painting. 207p il $5 Dodd

759.1 Painting, American (W) 39-27892

Reproductions in color of 86 paintings by American artists, selected "from the series on contemporary American artists published in Life." The text consists of a historical sketch of American painting, brief biographical notes about the artists, and a catalog of the paintings. The biographical sketches are arranged in alphabetical order.

"This book . . . is fresh, turbulent, and has the fault of all polemic writing in that it overstates its case. But it is not merely a handsome book; it is the most useful and competent résumé of what has happened in American art in recent years that has yet appeared. The reader is left, however, with a jumbled and disorganized body of extremely valuable reference material—reported facts which should have been the basis of a more thoughtful and better-written chapter on contemporary history." F. H. Taylor

+ — Atlantic D '39 200w
Booklist 36:106 N 15 '39

"It is difficult to review this book without some mention of the far more elaborate book by Thomas Craven. In fact, each becomes a referent for an intelligent appreciation of the other. Definitely I should like to own—and I wish every American could own—both these books. In a sense they are a symbol of, and a response to, the quickening art interest all over America. In format, presentation and color reproductions, Craven's book takes all the honors. . . 'Modern American Painting' has a rather clumsy format, bad color registry and all the obvious defects of a book which is 'gotten together' from the colored reproductions in 'Life.' Yet I think it is a 'must' book and a glowing tribute to the presentation by 'Life' magazine of American painting." George Biddle

+ — Books p4 N 5 '39 900w

"This is a picture book which will yield enjoyment to all and instruction to many. It is an admirable presentation of a stimulating subject." A. M. Maginnis

+ Boston Transcript p1 D 2 '39 270w
Christian Science Monitor p20 D 2 '39 380w

Reviewed by Constance Rourke
Nation 149:528 N 11 '39 420w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
New Repub 102:26 Ja 1 '40 200w

"One is loath to have to report that although the publishers call the volume at hand 'primarily a picture book,' the color reproductions . . . are for the most part of poor quality, and that in frequent instances they are—from the point of view of faithfulness to the original—atrocious. The scope of the American art reproduced is, however, broad, bringing into play characteristic work of the various periods outlined in the text. And since emphasis is distinctly placed on contemporary phases of American painting, the lack of an earlier pictorial thoroughness becomes less pointed than would otherwise be the case." E. A. Jewell

+ — N Y Times p14 N 5 '39 1000w
Pratt p16 winter '40

"Although charges can be made against the author of inconsistencies in his critical generalizations, it should be remembered that he has embarked upon a new, uncharted critical field. This is an enthusiastic, exploratory voyage. I enjoyed the trip quite as much as the exhilaration of disagreeing with passages in it." Agnes Rindge

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:12 O 14 '39 800w

"Another welcome addition to the growing list of sumptuously illustrated art books. . . The selection has been made with expert judgment and discrimination with a view to presenting a cross section of American art that is illustrative of established standards and present trends. It might reasonably be argued that a fully representative showing would include more of the work of well-known academicians, even at the expense of excluding some piquant examples of the work of the 'antis.' The academy representation, however, is not negligible."

BOSWELL, PEYTON—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 8 '39 900w

Reviewed by George Beiswanger
Theatre Arts Mo 23:916 D '39 420w

BOTSFORD, GEORGE WILLIS. Hellenic history; revised and rewritten by Charles Alexander Robinson, jr. 2d ed 398p il maps $4.50 Macmillan

938 Greece—History 39-10400

Revised and rewritten edition of a book first published in 1922 (Book Review Digest, 1922). "Several chapters are entirely new; in each of the remaining chapters some passages are new while many other passages are the same as in the first edition, except for such revision or rearrangement as seemed necessary." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:382 Jl 15 '39

"It would be a task almost as great as the analysis of the primitive lays in the Homeric poems to determine what part in the present volume each author has had. The product of the efforts of these two scholars is a notable contribution to historical literature." Herbert Wing, Jr.
+ Social Studies 30:329 N '39 700w

BOTTOME, PHYLLIS (MRS ERNAN FORBES-DENNIS). Alfred Adler; a biography. 324p il $3.50 Putnam

B or 92 Adler, Alfred (W) 39-27893

The author of this biography of the noted Viennese psychiatrist, was an intimate friend of Adler's and with her husband a visitor in his home. This biography was undertaken at Adler's request and after his death the author spent several months in Vienna where she had the help of his family and colleagues in gathering materials. Index.

Booklist 36:108 N 15 '39

"His biographer presents him as a genius and as a saint, as a good and great man who lived to help others, through understanding and through love. If she makes him seem larger than life and questionably lacking in human weaknesses, this is understandable in the circumstances in which she was writing. She has given a precise history of his achievements and a survey of his contributions." Lorine Pruette
+ Books p7 O 15 '39 1000w

Reviewed by Leonard Carmichael
Boston Transcript p13 D 7 '39 900w

"Miss Bottome is often inaccurate in her exposition of the Freudian theories and their relation to the Adlerian. On the other hand, the psychological characterizations of Adler, his friends, his opponents and his family are lively and good." J. F. Brown
+ — New Repub 101:239 D 13 '39 850w

Reviewed by Livingston Welch
N Y Times p5 F 4 '40 600w

"A pious, official, but extremely interesting and human biography."
+ New Yorker 15:103 O 14 '39 60w

"In its good craftsmanship, and apart from any interest in the subject, the book is very satisfying. But the artist worked too near to her subject for the reader to see around him adequately and to get a perspective of his true place in his profession or in his larger milieu. Similarly the view does not permit of a genetic understanding of the man; it is in no sense whatever a 'psychograph,' and the vividness of our perception of the picture is not complemented by an equal penetration." B. D. Lewin, M.D.
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:16 D 30 '39 600w

"Out of her ability as a writer, her understanding of human nature, and her love for Alfred Adler, Phyllis Bottome, well-known English novelist, has produced an important biography."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 S '39 450w

"Passages in Miss Bottome's fine human book read almost like notes of some pleasant walking trip with Adler. One hears his genial flow of talk and reminiscence. Only at the end one realizes poignantly that the trip is finished forever: that there will be no meeting him at the coffee house tomorrow." Grete Simpson
+ Survey G 28:766 D '39 250w

"The gift of the novelist has enabled the author to convey many of Adler's charming and lovable qualities, and one can glimpse something of the intuitive genius that made him a great psychotherapist."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p720 D 9 '39 850w

BOTTOME, PHYLLIS (MRS ERNAN FORBES-DENNIS). Danger signal [Eng title: Murder in the bud]. 312p $2.50 Little [7s 6d Faber]

(W) 39-1748

Psychological study of an English typist, Hilda Fenchurch, tormented by the memory of her love affair with a medical student, who proved to be a rotter. When she learned that the man had transferred his attentions to her beloved younger sister, Hilda's hatred mounted to such a pitch that she contemplated his murder. From this course she was deflected by the understanding and humanity of an eminent psychiatrist.

Booklist 35:230 Mr 15 '39

"Miss Bottome has succeeded in catching some of the elusive processes of the emotions concretely in the actions and words of her characters. . . 'Danger Signal' will hold the attention of some readers by its drama; of others, by its skillful depiction of the unreasoning power and blind course of human emotions, and still others, by its slightly didactic and doubtless somewhat idealized picture of the psychiatrist. It is both an unusual and an interesting novel." Mary Ross
+ Books p3 Ja 22 '39 650w

"This exciting story unfolds with all the absorbing tension of a detective yarn. Above all else, Miss Bottome is a masterly storyteller, a thing which saves her from the charge of propaganda. With a technical equipment at the high level of the best women novelists of the present day, she brings to this book the best combination of working qualities concentrated in any recent novel." Olga Owens
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 21 '39 1000w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '39

Reviewed by E. R. Punshon
Manchester Guardian p7 F 7 '39 300w

New Repub 98:84 F 22 '39 40w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 17:374 Mr 11 '39 80w

"While the novel is at times perhaps a trifle too reminiscent of a psychologist's case book, Miss Bottome has wisely refrained from making her Dr. Silla invariably successful, but instead allows her to fail with the most difficult of the people with whom she tries to deal. Interesting as a story, the book has clarity of perception, an understanding of human beings, their motives and self-deceptions which is far more than academic and does much toward making it a truly worthwhile piece of work." L. M. Field
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 22 '39 650w

"Read it if you enjoy fictionalized psychoanalysis."
New Yorker 14:71 Ja 21 '39 40w

"Hilda herself is neither individual nor touching enough to seem important. . . The Czech psychologist, does indeed capture the stage, being both sympathetic and surprising; while Aunt Edith, whose mind is open in theory and shut in practice, and whose solution for every crisis is conversation, is excellent. For the rest, however, 'Danger Signal' is unsatisfying. The characters and situations are seldom banal, but in her enthusiasm for the effect of ideas upon people, the author often oversimplifies the people." Katharine Simonds

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:6 Ja 28 '39 280w

"The Czech is, perhaps, a little too good to be true, and a whiff of the text-book creeps in at times; but the duel of personality between the two women possesses a deep excitement." Nicholas Blake

+ — Spec 162:318 F 24 '39 210w

Time 33:26 F 6 '39 160w

"Although there seem to be some inconsistencies in the portrait of the heroine—for a passionate creature on the verge of murder she seems to respond surprisingly easily to rational persuasion—this is an intelligent novel with realistic characters and not impossible situations. The ending, however, is a concession to romance, and the story would have had a deeper integrity if it had ended on the same realistic note which it strikes in the opening chapters."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p59 Ja 28 '39 160w

BOUCHER, ANTHONY. The case of the crumpled knave. 237p $2 Simon & Schuster 39-10129

Detective story.

"Don't worry if the characters seem unreal at first, or if you happen to be allergic to cards and the players thereof. The story gains in every department as it goes along, ending in a burst of cleverness. It adds up to required reading." Will Cuppy

+ Books p17 Ap 16 '39 210w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 15 '39 70w

"The puzzle is an intricate one, cleverly constructed and neatly solved." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p23 Ap 16 '39 170w

"Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ap 15 '39 40w

"The solution grows more and more difficult. The final chapter in which the problem is convincingly worked out is well worth waiting for."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 9 '39 210w

Time 33:88 Je 5 '39 20w

Times [London] Lit Sup p733 D 16 '39 60w

BOUQUET, ALAN COATES, ed. Lectionary of Christian prose, from the 2d to the 20th century, for public and private use. 416p $3 (10s 6d) Longmans

264.032 Religious literature—Collections

"This splendidly rich and varied body of Christian literature is designed primarily for use as supplementary to the scriptural portions in Anglican services. The selections are arranged under the Sundays of the church year, three to a Sunday. Most of them are equally adapted to use in other churches or to private reading. The publisher describes the volume as representing a 'comprehensive orthodoxy,' but the emphasis should be upon the adjective. Among the authors from whom selections are taken are Augustine, Bernard of Clairvaux, Chaucer, Bacon, Loyola, John Donne, Pascal, Newman, Temple, Chesterton, Emerson, Schweitzer, Laura E. Richards and Bernard Shaw. A company as varied as the Canterbury pilgrims." Christian Century

+ Christian Century 56:1140 S 20 '39 100w

"Such a venture as this is certain of a good church response and worthy of welcome and encouragement in liturgical enrichment." L. L. R.

+ Churchman 153:35 N 1 '39 80w

"The most pleasing feature of the book is its catholic spirit. Dr. Bouquet is eminently liberal-minded. His selections are from the writings of men of every age and of every form of Christian belief." E. E. Kellett

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:382 S 9 '39 850w

"It is a book which should prove welcome to many readers at this time; but it is also for permanent reading wherever the Christian verities are inculcated."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p630 O 28 '39 180w

BOURNE, RUTH MAY. Queen Anne's navy in the West Indies. 334p map $3 Yale univ. press [14s Oxford]

942.069 Great Britain—History, Naval. West Indies—History 39-6344

Scholarly chronicle of the English naval operations in the West Indies during the War of the Spanish succession, when Great Britain was attempting to annex more of the resources of Spanish America. The study ends with an appraisal of the results of the war as they affected the West Indies. Index.

"Miss Bourne's monograph, though not exhaustive, is a careful and judicious appraisal of the navy during Queen Anne's War." F. W. Pitman

+ Am Hist R 45:460 Ja '40 270w

"Professor Bourne is content to recite her facts with professional detachment and reserve, making no attempt to achieve a colorful or popular narrative style. . . England achieved and maintained her supremacy, Miss Bourne insists, not by military victories or naval superiority but by the advancement of industry and the increase of commerce. It is a provocative thesis and may gratify those who are disposed to view offensive armaments as the great illusion, but it should be pressed with the same caution Miss Bourne shows in formulating it." Geoffrey Bruun

+ Books p11 Ap 23 '39 500w

BOUTELL, MRS ANITA. Death has a past. 245p $2 Putnam [7s 6d Joseph, M] 39-20730

Psychological mystery story.

Booklist 36:45 O 1 '39

"This is a highly unusual psychological thriller, notable for its individual narrative method and among the leaders on any count." Will Cuppy

+ Books p12 Ag 13 '39 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 19 '39 100w

"Death Has a Past is the story of a crime provoked by an intolerable psychological strain. . . The idea is original and quite successful up to a point. The failure is in the psychology, which is too crude to be convincing, and too tainted with sympathy to be baffling. The surprise, therefore, at the dénouement is only partial and not nearly as dramatic as the authoress would have one expect." Ralph Partridge

— + New Statesman & Nation 17:910 Je 10 '39 150w

"Except that the early chapters of the book drag a very little, Anita Boutell's experiment is a complete success." Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p16 S 3 '39 300w

"This is a book for women readers who prefer grand writing and sharply etched characters to a row of dead bodies."

+ New Yorker 15:56 Ag 12 '39 70w

"Tragedy off-stage; confession reveals how—but not who. Events preceding 'acts of violence' compose tale of surpassing suspense. Absorbing."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 Ag 12 '39 40w

Reviewed by Nicholas Blake

Spec 162:1102 Je 23 '39 130w

"The denouement is surprising, though not startling. The tale proves to be more a psychological study than a story of action, although by clever arrangement an atmosphere of tension and danger is built up. There is much minor detail in the story which will prove interesting to those who like studies of character."

BOUTELL, ANITA—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 13 '39 280w

"The book has only one major fault; it is difficult to begin. The reader has to wade through several pages and to keep glancing back at the genealogical table which is provided in order to understand the relationships. Once the characters are sorted out in the reader's mind all is plain and pleasant sailing, and at the end one admires the ingenious construction of the story."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p301 My 20 '39 180w

BOUTELL, MRS ANITA. Tell death to wait. 224p $2 Putnam [7s 6d Joseph, M] 39-2600

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Ja 22 '39 160w

"Three cheers! At last a mystery which is also an excellent book. . . The use of the first person, although it involves several changes in point-of-view, is particularly revealing. It undoubtedly accounts for the fact that the characters are alive rather than puppet-like. Whether you like killings or not, we advise you to read 'Tell Death to Wait.' It will be well worth the brief time it will take." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 28 '39 140w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 16:994 D 10 '38 110w

"The first shift from one narrator to another is momentarily confusing but after that one rather expects that there will be at least one more shift. 'Tell Death to Wait' is a fine novel and a baffling mystery as well." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 22 '39 200w

"Not as plain as day, but the ending has a new twist."
New Yorker 14:60 Ja 28 '39 40w

"Fever-heated emotions, tangled lives of various characters, and tragedy-laden atmosphere beautifully handled—but fog gets into plot. Tense."
+ — Sat R of Lit 19:20 Ja 21 '39 40w

"Miss Boutell's victim, an egocentric authoress, is almost too much of a cad to be convincing, while her chief narrator wavers between girlishness and hysteria: her tale has a good slant, though, and moves confidently." Nicholas Blake
+ — Spec 161:740 O 28 '38 30w

"The story is written with beautiful lucidity and a convincing air of plausibility. The author tries the experiment of telling the story through the eyes of three or four narrators, beginning with the dead woman, thus easily establishing her character. Nan's determination to have the murder investigated in spite of the pleading of the others is excellently described. The novel contains writing of real quality, which is too often missing from crime stories."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p745 N 19 '38 220w

BOUZY, MICHEL. Madame Prunier's fish cookery book; sel, tr. and ed, with an introd. and notes, from Les poissons, coquillages, crustacés et leur preparation culinaire par Michel Bouzy by Ambrose Heath; adapted for America by Crosby Gaige; with a special foreword by Mme S. B. Prunier; decorations by Mathurin Meheut. 292p $2.50 Messner [6s Nicholson]

641.692 Cookery (fish) 39-13620

Recipes for cooking fish and making sauces to go with fish. Contents: Advice on buying fish—elementary rules for cooking fish; Auxiliary preparations for fish dishes; Savoury butters and sauces; Hors-d'œuvre—cold, hot; Soups; Fresh-water fish; Salt-water fish; Shellfish; Turtle—frogs—snails; Some Prunier specialties; A note on wine and fish. Glossary, classified index (French and English), index to American fish substitutions.

"'Madame Prunier's Fish Cookery Book,' combines a feeling for food with the sound and easy erudition in gastronomic matters which might be expected from a family of distinguished restaurateurs." Sheila Hibben
+ Books p8 Jl 16 '39 550w
Pratt p16 summer '39
Times [London] Lit Sup p573 S 3 '38 130w

BOWDEN, SYDNEY THOMAS. Phase rule and phase reactions; theoretical and practical. 303p il $3.60 (10s) Macmillan

541.39 Phase rule and equilibrium [39-25678]

"Dr. Bowden's book is an elementary introduction to the subject and is suitable for general B.Sc. students, many parts being adapted to teaching of intermediate standard. It contains numerous good laboratory experiments and there are collections of questions and examples, many taken from examination papers." (Nature) Index.

"Intended evidently for very elementary instruction in the principles and applications of the phase rule, this book carries out its aims in its brevity, in the clarity of most of its expositions, and in its well-balanced choice of material, both in theoretical principles and in practical examples. It recommends itself furthermore for undergraduate use through its very satisfactory format, helpful outlines and summaries for the student, description of many simple experiments, selection of questions from the examinations of a number of English schools, and in general what we may call an avoidance of complication." J. E. Ricci
+ Am Chem Soc J 61:758 Mr '39 550w

"Although the book is intended to be elementary, the clearness of treatment will make it useful to more advanced students. The close relation to practical work tends to remove the rather abstract impression which most students get from a study of the phase rule. The book may be warmly recommended, and it is certain to be very popular both with teachers and students." J. R. P.
+ Nature 143:835 My 20 '39 220w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:20 Ap '39

BOWEN, MRS CATHERINE SHOBER (DRINKER). Free artist; the story of Anton and Nicholas Rubinstein. 412p il map $3 Random house

B or 92 Rubinstein, Anton Gregorovitch. Rubinstein, Nicholas (W)

Biography of the Rubinstein brothers, Anton and Nicholas, who were Tchaikovsky's teachers. Beginning with a day in 1831, when Anton, the older brother was a baby, the author describes the wholesale conversion of sixty Rubinsteins to Christianity. From that point she proceeds with an account of the friends, activities, and services to music of the brothers. The book closes with the death of Anton in 1894.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson Library Bulletin 14:408 Ja '40

"Except for certain readers, who frankly cannot endure this kind of biography, I feel sure that anyone, whether musical or not, will find Mrs. Bowen's Free Artist fascinating. Her technique is better than in Beloved Friend, her ability to evoke the atmosphere of the times more convincing. She has also the advantage of covering a subject that is very much less familiar to the public. . . The most remarkable success of this book has been the manner by which Mrs. Bowen has conveyed to the reader Anton's genius as a pianist." Alexander Williams

+ Atlantic D '39 700w

Booklist 36:148 D 15 '39

Reviewed by John Erskine

Books p3 N 26 '39 1000w

"By some peculiar magic of her own, Catherine Drinker Bowen has managed in 'Free Artist' not only to convince a generation that knows him only as a mediocre composer of Anton Rubinstein's greatness as a pianist, but also to convey a distinct impression of how he played. The singing quality of Rubinstein's tones will be as audible to many readers as it was to his audiences. . . This book is not only superior to the usual run of musical chronicles: it is worthy to rank with the better biographies of any year." Charlotte Bassett

+ Boston Transcript p13 D 1 '39 450w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 20 '40 650w

New Repub 101:296 D 27 '39 30w

"Mrs. Bowen writes of [the Rubensteins] with a living freshness. She brings them and their families and their associates to life, recreating as she goes along a picture of Russian dilettantism that was the true adversary of the fighting Rubinsteins." Howard Taubman

+ N Y Times p5 N 26 '39 900w

New Yorker 15:119 D 2 '39 20w

"This is a most admirable book, possibly the best biographical work on Rubenstein in the English language. That the composer has long been a dead issue does not make it the less welcome. It is a worthy successor to its author's life of Tschaikowsky, 'Beloved Friend,' in some respects perhaps even superior. Catherine Drinker Bowen has written here with the same unflagging brightness and buoyancy, the same exuberance, the same vivacity. To begin the volume is to finish it. Not a page ever falters or lets down." H. F. Peyser

+ Sat R of Lit 21:6 N 18 '39 700w

BOWEN, ELIZABETH (MRS ALAN CAMERON). The death of the heart. 418p $2.50 Knopf [8s Gollancz]

(W) 38-29084

Psychological study of a young girl, whose innocence and honesty are brought into conflict with the sophisticated futility of life in her half-brother's home in Regency Park, London.

Booklist 35:190 F 1 '39

"If there is any special meaning for the modern, it might be that contemporary education does fail in precisely the one thing that might serve; it does not inculcate courage or personal generosity. But Miss Bowen is an artist; she was not proving a point, she was primarily writing a novel, and has done so with brilliant success. She has the rare ability to make one realize that people are alive all the time, not only in high moments or melodramatic situations, with a set stage back of them. The sustained intensity of the book, from beginning to end, is extraordinary." Isabel Paterson

+ Books p4 Ja 22 '39 1600w

"It is impossible to cover all the elements that make Miss Bowen's book nearly a classic. It has a scrupulous sincerity that insures fidelity in portraying every nuance of polite intercourse. . . Certainly Miss Bowen is a disciple of Proust and Henry James, reflecting them both in her strong appeal to the senses and to the intellect: but certainly, too, she possesses lovely attributes peculiarly her own. This tragedy of betrayed fidelities is unforgettable." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ja 28 '39 700w

"An earlier novel of Miss Elizabeth Bowen called 'The House in Paris,' was acclaimed by the critics as a book proving the arrival of a new novelist of top rank. Her latest book leaves no doubt that such claims were merited. . . The author's strength is in her characterization, and she is equally successful with the adolescent and with the elder generation." C. W. M. Hart

+ Canadian Forum 19:28 Ap '39 350w

"Aware that her publishers have pronounced this third novel by Miss Bowen to be her best, the reader willingly comes to agree. It is her subtlest, smoothest, expertest in every way—and, if the truth be told, most difficult to bear. For it is cold and brittle, like a diamond, and it cuts as mercilessly." Margaret Williamson

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 F 25 '39 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '39

"Obviously, her work may be recommended without reservation only to the limited number of readers able to appreciate its special value, since it makes no concession to the popular taste. But all her books, and none has been more beautifully planned and executed than 'The Death of the Heart,' are of the kind that some will read and reread with keen enjoyment, not wholly based upon their fine artistry. There is, too, the pleasure of contact with so cool, sharp and unusual an intelligence as lies behind them." Herschel Brickell

Commonweal 29:499 F 24 '39 300w

Reviewed by M. M. Colum

Forum 101:77 F '39 550w

"Of the power of this book, of its intense, and impartial, ability to wring out the last drop of innocent pain, there can be no question. Many, who can address themselves to its perusal without spiritual repugnance, will properly regard it as a work of high literary importance. Others, like the present reviewer, while fully conceding its strength and unfailing grip in the writing will think that it contravenes Aristotle's canon, which laid it down that there are certain things too painful to be the subject of fiction." Humbert Wolfe

Living Age 355:282 N '38 750w (Reprinted from Observer, London)

"The death of spiritual innocence, which is the poignant theme of this moving but never morbidly sentimental novel, is bound to be tragic in its implications, yet Miss Bowen's wit, her humour, her æsthetic sensibility, and, underlying all, her severe intellectual control of her art serve to prevent any least lapse into mawkishness." Wilfrid Gibson

+ Manchester Guardian p7 O 7 '38 390w

"Miss Bowen's talent is so rich and so searching, and this novel stands so far outside the class of novels which resemble packaged goods put up for the trade, that one is tempted to give her nothing but praise. She sees deeply but not widely enough. Corruption has not lately entered the class of which she writes; the heart is not dying in these people; it never lived in them. And her tone, too keyed up, never lets down for a moment; the longueurs are deleted to such an extent that they are missed. Beautifully done descriptions of times of day and the weather edge the action—to a tiresome degree. . . Miss Bowen can cook the vulgar English to the same crispness to which she treats their betters. But 'The Death of the Heart' is too packed, too brilliant, for its own good. What Miss Bowen lacks is a kind of humility." Louise Bogan

+ — Nation 148:123 Ja 28 '39 900w

"In humanizing her story Miss Bowen has made two glaring concessions to 'literature': the Greek-chorus character of Matchett, the lady's maid, is much overdone, and innocent Major Brutt is on one occasion made to speak completely out of turn and out of character. In spite of these bobbles, 'The Death of the Heart,' is a good book. If her heroine is not always and everywhere completely credible as an English girl, she is quite recognizable as an angel." T. S. Matthews

+ — New Repub 97:376 F 1 '39 600w

"In the first place this is a delightfully absorbing, moving and entertaining novel. The dialogue is sharp and swift, the descriptions finely selective, the characters interest as fully as they convince. . . The one weakness in the novel, I think, is that the final section is too short. The victims lie strewn around, but I want to watch them as they get up, lick their wounds, and resume the tenor of day-to-day existence. Henry James, the novelist that Miss Bowen occasionally resembles, would not, I think, have abandoned them so soon. The Death of the Heart is a fascinating and singular book, the best that Miss Bowen has given us." Raymond Mortimer

BOWEN, ELIZABETH—Continued

+ New Statesman & Nation 16:534 O 8 '38 1400w

"Miss Bowen writes with both art and skillful artifice: the passages from Portia's diary, in which she recaptures the ingenuousness, the clarity of insight and emotion of a child: her ability to animate a house, a landscape and make them illustrative of her characters. But, foremost, Miss Bowen has a sharp sense of the urbanities and subtleties of present-day society, of the interplay of almost imperceptible shades of feeling. This quality of restraint, of the unsaid, gives her novel its curious tautness and intensity." A. H. Eckstein

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 22 '39 850w

"A witty, lucid, and beautiful psychological novel. Using only overtones and undertones, it nonetheless manages to make a major statement about human character. . . . I do not believe there is an error in feeling, in style, or in construction throughout 'The Death of the Heart.' . . On the whole, this is by far her best book and as satisfying a novel as has come out of England for some time." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 14:56 Ja 28 '39 850w

"A sad, complex but honest book. Miss Bowen's style is of a jewel-like precision, strangely combined with an unexpected strength." Lucy Cores

+ No Am 247:186 spring '39 500w

Pratt p29 summer '39

"Elizabeth Bowen does not celebrate dying individuals, but a dying era; and her discrimination in this respect is so nice that 'The Death of the Heart' must be called, not merely the finest of her novels, but one of the finest, one of the deepest, (and, to be honest, one of the most depressing) of contemporary English novels." George Dangerfield

+ Sat R of Lit 19:6 Ja 21 '39 550w

Reviewed by Graham Greene

+ Spec 161:578 O 7 '38 650w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 5 '39 550w

Time 33:65 Ja 30 '39 650w

" 'The Death of the Heart' is a book to value and to respect. It is not, perhaps, a book to move the reader deeply—that is not Miss Bowen's way. It jogs rather than stirs the heart, it has luminosity rather than warmth, penetration and not passion."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p625 O 1 '38 650w

"The book as a whole is delightful, for Miss Bowen is a fine and genial craftsman, and poor little Portia, buffeted by Fate, her half-brother's wife, and an astonishing young cad named Eddie, is one of the most appealing characters she has ever drawn." Ralph Thompson

+ Yale R ns 28:xii spring '39 180w

BOWEN, FRANK CHARLES. America sails the seas; the history and romance of America on the high seas from the 15th to the 19th century. 411p il maps $3.75 McBride

973 U.S.—Navy—History. Merchant marine —U.S. 39-3152

"Frank C. Bowen, British nautical authority, a decade ago published one of the standard works on the subject in his four-volume 'The Sea—Its History and Romance' [Book Review Digest, 1927]. From that lavish work have now been gleaned the American sections, combined into one volume at a moderate price. Its scope ranges from the earliest explorers to the closing days of sail and the coming of the iron steamship. A study of men more than of ships, it dwells at length upon the exploits of naval heroes, pirates and captains, touches only casually upon the vessels in which they sailed." (Boston Transcript) Bibliography. Index.

Boston Transcript p3 O 22 '38 240w

"This volume shares the merits and defects of most of Mr. Bowen's earlier volumes, which total at least fourteen. Its chief value lies in enabling the reader to acquire some 170 full-page marine prints at a cost of little more than two cents apiece. These are for the most part selected from the extensive and magnificent collection of A. C. H. Macpherson, which is without a rival in the marine field. The pictures, chosen with discrimination, give an admirable visual idea of the development of shipping from Viking boats to the crack vessels of the later nineteenth century. As for the text, a boy of fifteen, or an adult reader uninitiated in sea lore, will doubtless find it a pleasant and comprehensive introduction to the subject." R. G. A.

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:20 Ja 21 '39 280w

Wis Lib Bul 35:24 F '39

BOWEN, OLWEN, pseud. See Davies, O. B.

BOWER, B. M., pseud. (MRS BERTHA [MUZZY] SINCLAIR-COWAN). The singing hill. 300p $2 Little 39-14803

Western story.

Booklist 36:69 O 15 '39

"The volume may be used as a Western in B. M. Bower's gentler manner, or as a nice light love story, Cinderella subdivision. Entertaining either way." Will Cuppy

+ Books p10 Je 18 '39 160w

"It's as pretty a romance as B. M. Bower has ever published, and this versatile veteran of many Westerns has never written better." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p7 Je 18 '39 180w

BOWER, B. M., pseud. (MRS BERTHA [MUZZY] SINCLAIR-COWAN). Starry night. 313p $2 Little 39-254

Western story.

Booklist 35:206 F 15 '39

"Believe it or not, here is a Western without a wicked foreman or a single rustler; that alone would be worth the price of admission." Will Cuppy

+ Books p10 Ja 1 '39 170w

Boston Transcript p1 Ja 21 '39 70w

"A whimsical and often a farcical tale, but so entertainingly told and so cleverly and well written that once you begin it you will not put it down till you have read to the end." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p24 F 26 '39 260w

BOWERS, EDISON LOUIS, and ROWNTREE, RICHARDSON HENRY. Economics for engineers. 2d ed 591p map $4 (24s) McGraw

330 Economics 38-27909

"This is a fairly complete revision of the edition of 1931 [Book Review Digest, 1932]. Among the significant changes are a new introductory chapter dealing with economics and technological progress, a greater emphasis upon methodology, a discussion of the legal background of capitalism, and new or extended treatment of money and banking, labor relations, social security, and collectivism. The book contains much factual information and illustrative material; and, as might be expected, extensive use is made of diagrams and mathematical formulas. Each chapter is followed by a list of questions and reference readings." (Am Econ R) Index.

"The instructor's reaction to this book will depend largely upon his own views on methods of presentation. If he holds to the traditional approach to the subject, the work will appear to be weak in theoretical content. On the other hand, those who favor adapting the material to the particular student group or interest will find here a book that will appeal to students familiar with engineering methods and techniques." J. E. Moffat

Am Econ R 29:563 S '39 160w
Booklist 35:101 N 15 '38

BOWIE, WALTER RUSSELL. Lift up your hearts. 118p $1.25 Macmillan

264.1 Prayers 39-34143

A small book of prayers, meditations and litanies intended for both public and private use.

Reviewed by W. A. Marzolf
Boston Transcript p5 D 9 '39 80w

"A beautiful little book."
+ Christian Century 56:1547 D 13 '39 30w

Reviewed by James van Zant
Churchman 153:22 D 15 '39 100w

BOWLEY, MARIAN. Nassau Senior and classical economics. 358p $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Allen, G]

330.1 Economics. Senior, Nassau William [38-6489]

"Dr. Bowley's book is concerned with Nassau Senior's economics rather than with the man himself. It is an essay on the history of economic thought rather than a biography. . . . The first part of the book is devoted to a discussion of the significance of Senior's work in itself and in relation to the development of economic theory as a whole, and the second to an examination of his opinions on government intervention and his work as a social reformer." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Dr Bowley has dissected texts—printed and manuscript—with care and understanding; a vivid background has been supplied; and skill has been shown in appraisals. The student interested in the development of economic doctrines will read the book carefully and then, in peace of mind, place it on his shelves after his Senior items." J. H. Hollander
+ Am Econ R 29:125 Mr '39 180w

"Mere statement of the argument of this book will indicate its importance to all students of historical economics. . . Part II of Miss Bowley's book should be required reading for students of economic history, even as Part I should be for students of the history of economic thought." E. A. J. Johnson
+ Ann Am Acad 203:233 My '39 750w

"It is a profound, original, scholarly, and informative interpretation of Senior's work and place in the development of economics which Miss Bowley has produced. Although here and there the style limps, and the schematic structure of the book jolts the mind of the reader, the author has succeeded in her ambitious task: to lay bare the nature of Senior's contribution to economic theory, to applied economics, and to the principles of government."
+ Economist 128:184 Jl 24 '37 800w

"In this remarkable Doctor's thesis—University of London ('London School'), 1936—Miss Marian Bowley at once sets a new standard in the writing of the history of economic theory, and raises in the most acute form the question as to the general mode or pattern which such endeavors should take to make the result most useful to students and the serious reader at large. On the one hand, the reviewer knows of no work in the field which in his opinion is the equal or near equal of this volume in the combination of scholarship with analytical power and theoretical insight. On the other hand, the book embodies a general conception of its task and a mode of execution which is virtually antithetical to his own." F. H. Knight
+ — J Pol Econ 47:131 F '39 1750w

"Miss Bowley makes out a good case for a new division of the succession of the 'classical' economists, and gives Senior a substantial place in the second generation. The second half of the book, on Senior's opinions on Government intervention, and his work as a social reformer, is particularly important."
+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 17 '37 60w

"Miss Bowley has written a really interesting contribution to the history of economic theory. It has been known for nearly a generation that a great mass of Senior's unpublished papers were in the possession of Mrs. St. Loe Strachey. Working on these, and on his printed writings, Miss Bowley has done more to explain the place of Senior in the tradition of English economic thought than any previous writer. While a good deal of her analysis will mainly be of interest to specialists, her second part, in which she discusses Senior's views on social and political theory, will attract a much wider audience. . . In a way, indeed, it is a pity that Miss Bowley has deliberately divorced the study of doctrines from the picture of the man and the events with which he was connected. I think the effect of this is to paint a somewhat more favourable picture of Senior than is warranted by the evidence." H. J. Laski
+ — New Statesman & Nation 14:116 Jl 17 '37 600w

"Dr. Bowley has put all students of economics heavily in her debt."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p520 Jl 17 '37 950w

BOWLIN, WILLIAM RAY, ed. A book of historical poems. 158p il 75c-$1.50; pa 35c; lea $2.50 Whitman, A.

821.08 American poetry—Collections. English poetry—Collections. History—Poetry 39-16353

Anthology of poems, each dealing with some incident of history, mainly American. Each is accompanied with a few words of introduction, and is illustrated. Index.

Christian Century 56:548 Ap 26 '39 20w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 29 '39 220w
Wis Lib Bul 35:111 Je '39

BOWMAN, ARCHIBALD ALLAN. A sacramental universe; ed. by J. W. Scott. 428p $5 Princeton univ. press [22s 6d Oxford]

110 Metaphysics 39-17996

Study of the metaphysics of experience, by a Scotch philosopher who died in 1936. The book is based upon the Vanuxem lectures delivered at Princeton in 1934. Only about one third of the book was ready for publication at the time of the author's death. The remainder of the book, based upon extensive notes, was completed by Professor J. W. Scott, professor of logic and philosophy at University college, Cardiff, Wales. Index.

"The book is a rich mine of scholarship and analysis; and even though much of the book might have been reconstructed by its author, it is an ample treatment of its theme." S. P. L.
+ J Philos 37:19 Ja 4 '40 1200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p752 D 30 '39 850w

BOWMAN, ARCHIBALD ALLAN. Studies in the philosophy of religion; ed. with a memorial introduction by Norman Kemp Smith. 2v 470;450p $10.50 (30s) Macmillan

201 Religion—Philosophy [39-1564]

"The untimely death of Prof. Bowman at the age of fifty-three made it necessary for Prof. Kemp Smith to edit this work . . . a careful and scholarly presentation of the problems of philosophy of religion." (Churchman) "In form the work is divided into four parts. Bowman explains with some care the method of his approach in a preliminary part and then surveys the elaborate material bearing on the nature of religion which has been collected by anthropologists. The remainder of the book is devoted to an examination of questions bearing respectively on the concept and on the validity of religion." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

BOWMAN, A. A.—Continued

"The greatness of Prof. Bowman as teacher, scholar, and religious thinker is abundantly evident throughout the whole work, and Prof. Kemp Smith is to be commended for an excellent job of editing and for his sympathetic memorial introduction." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 153:16 F 1 '39 240w

"Whatever questionable passages may be found in the main argument, the more permanent value of the Studies will, we suggest, still remain in some of the incidental discussions; and in its expression not only of a mind rich in wide culture and philosophical thinking, but also of a peculiarly noble character." D. M. Emmet
+ Ethics 50:120 O '39 1000w

"Bowman's view of religion doubtless suffers from over-intellectualization. But he has written a book which must be read and inwardly digested by all serious students of the philosophy of religion."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p516 Ag 6 '38 750w

BOWMAN, MRS ELIZABETH SKAGGS. Land of high horizons. 212p il maps $2.50 Southern pubs.

917.68 Great Smoky mountains. Tennessee—Description and travel (W) 38-29052

Description of the Great Smokies of North Carolina and Tennessee, giving information on the flora, fauna, and scenery, the mountaineers, the motor roads, foot trails, the Indians, and the struggle now in progress to preserve the land as a park. Maps on endpapers.

Booklist 35:229 Mr 15 '39

"[The author] writes impressionistically, with great enthusiasm. . . Facts are sparse and difficult to run down in her treatment, but the photographs are adequate, and the final impression made by the book is the accurate one that the Smokies leave little to be desired as a vacation land."
+ — N Y Times p4 Mr 12 '39 300w

"Miss Bowman's book is chatty, with a great deal about the mountaineers and the Indians of the Cherokee reservation, but sound in its information, and instructive. It can be recommended for tourists intending to take the Great Smoky trip, whether in June when the woods are extraordinarily rich in bloom, or in the autumn when summer lingers far longer than in the North."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:11 Mr 18 '39 180w

BOWMAN, FRANK. Introduction to Bessel functions. 135p $3.60 (10s 6d) Longmans

517.35 Bessel's functions 39-18138

The purpose of this book is to serve "as an introduction to the larger treatises on Bessel functions and their applications." (Pref) The author is head of the mathematics department in the College of Technology, Manchester, England; the book is an outgrowth of lectures delivered at the college.

"The book is excellently printed with some clear diagrams, and should certainly prove very useful not only to students of physics and engineering, but also to mathematical students in general." F. G. W. B.
+ Nature 143:356 Mr 4 '39 250w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:25 Ap '39

BOWMAN, HEATH. All your born days. 348p $2.50 Bobbs

39-22585

Because of the break between his father and mother Alan Reed had to deal with conflicting desires: a longing for travel, and a desire for security and a specified locality. After years of wandering over the earth he settled in Chicago, married, and prospered in business. But the old longing for a place where he could strike roots again assailed him, and the story is of his final reconciliation of his warring ideals.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p8 Ag 27 '39 380w

"'All Your Born Days' is, I am afraid, a rather pedestrian little novel none too well written, and with an uncomfortably hackneyed quality. Especially where his travels are concerned, Mr. Bowman's own experiences seem to parallel those of his hero. Perhaps this is one of those autobiographical novels which most writers, at some time, feel obliged to get out of their systems." E. H. Walton
N Y Times p16 Ag 27 '39 650w

"The stuff and passion of earth are not here. Alan himself has all the vigor in the book. He blunders, learns, elbows his way about, asking the right questions, but never formulating any of the right conjectures. It is an interesting story, if not as big as it was planned." N. L. R.
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:18 Ag 26 '39 190w

BOWMAN, HEATH, and BOWMAN, JEFFERSON (MRS HEATH BOWMAN). Crusoe's island in the Caribbean. 339p il maps $3.50 Bobbs

917.298 Trinidad and Tobago (W) 39-27069

The tropical paradise here described is the small island of Tobago at the southern end of the Caribbean West Indies. From a furnished country house on a hilltop where the Bowmans lived for a season in comparative magnificence, they looked out on coral sands, explored the jungle, watched the birds of paradise dance—a rare sight, enjoyed a native wedding and a carnival, and made acquaintances among the English planters. A sketch of the island's history is included and an account of its general economic and social situation.

Booklist 35:221 Mr 1 '39

"A book which is very pleasant, generally informative, and not too sentimentally seductive. In its unpretentious personal quality, 'Crusoe's Island' may take its place among the better travel books from the Caribbees." John Patton
+ Books p14 F 5 '39 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '39

Reviewed by E. F. Allen
N Y Times p5 F 12 '39 650w

"Heath Bowman and Jefferson Bowman are unusual among those who escape to the tropics and write about them. This book was written on the spot, without the perspective that time and distance give. . . In contrast to Heath Bowman's previous travel books, which all seem spontaneous, this gives the impression of an inveterate author determined to wring the last salable adjective from his holiday notes. The book is padded and forced." Hassoldt Davis
Sat R of Lit 19:7 F 11 '39 400w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 2 '39 150w

BOWMAN, WARREN DANIEL. Home builders of tomorrow [introd. by Garry Cleveland Myers]. 123p $1 Elgin

173.1 Marriage. Courtship 39-31311

Study of the question of the relationship of the sexes during courtship and marriage. The author, who is pastor of the Church of the Brethren, Washington, D.C., has drawn upon his experience in conducting courses on preparation for marriage in churches, youth conferences, and summer camps for young people. Bibliography.

"This is a book which leaders of discussion groups among young people and young people themselves will read with profit. . . The reviewer has already used the book in discussion groups, and has had the satisfaction of knowing that its practical wisdom is appreciated." P. M. Humphreys

+ Crozer Q 16:303 O '39 90w
J Home Econ 31:584 O '39 50w

BOWRA, CECIL MAURICE. Early Greek elegists. 208p $2.50 Harvard univ. press [10s 6d Oxford]

884.09 Elegiac poetry. Greek poetry
38-12437

Lectures giving "brief sketches of the works and personalities of the early Greek elegists." The author, a fellow of Wadham college, Oxford, first presented these lectures at Oberlin college, under the Martin Foundation. Contents: Origins and beginnings; Tyrtaeus; Solon; Xenophanes; Theognis; Simonides and the sepulchral epigram.

Reviewed by L. A. Post
Class Philol 34:275 Jl '39 490w

Reviewed by E. P. Richardson
Commonweal 28:246 Je 24 '38 550w

"To make these literary names live as human beings is Dr. Bowra's achievement; not all historians of literature exhibit anything like the same powers of penetration and appreciation. Dr. Bowra also offers a new equivalent in English for the Elegiac couplet."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p40 Ja 21 '39 160w

BOX, HUBERT STANLEY, ed. The priest as student, by various writers. 380p $2.40 Macmillan [8s 6d S.P.C.K.]

207 Bible. Whole—Study and teaching. Church of England—Clergy. Theology—Study and teaching

Essays by Anglican priests on a variety of subjects relative to their calling. Contents: The importance of study, by Thomas Hannay; The study of the Old Testament, by S. L. Brown; The study of the New Testament, by L. J. Collins; The study of the Fathers, by W. J. S. Simpson; The study of dogmatic theology, by Trevor Jalland; The study of moral theology, by H. S. Box; The study of spiritual theology, by Patrick Thompson; The study of canon law, by G. W. O. Addleshaw; The study of church history, by Charles Smyth; The study of liturgiology, by Henry de Candole; The study of philosophy, by F. L. Cross; The study of sociology, by V. A. Demant; The study of literature, by Marcus Donovan.

"Dr. Box and his twelve collaborators, all expert in their respective fields, discuss thirteen branches of study, each of them indispensable to the well-trained priest. Intended primarily for the newly ordained this book is well calculated to remind their seniors in the ministry that the shepherd cannot feed his sheep from an empty manger." E. A. Powell

+ Churchman 154:21 Ja 1 '40 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth McCracken
Living Church 101:6 D 6 '39 120w

"The temptation of the scholar is to set too high a standard in his examination papers, and as he contemplates the poor results to comment rather harshly upon the candidates. That is a pertinent criticism of this book, for though the essays are sincerely designed to encourage the average parish priest to become in even a modest way a student, their general effect is that of one scholar writing for another to tell him what work is like in a sphere of which he may be ignorant, and where bibliographies are provided they are sometimes so formidable that all but the boldest would close the book and silently steal away. That is the worst of it, for most of the essays are admirable introductions to their subjects."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p759 D 30 '39 360w

BOYCE, JOHN SHAW. Forest pathology. 600p il $5 (30s) McGraw

634.96 Trees—Diseases and pests 38-9708

"Dr. Boyce, who is Professor of Forest Pathology in Yale University, bases the general outline of this sizable text and reference book on a course given by him in that institution. He treats of the various diseases of trees and the means for their prevention and abatement, supplementing the text with numerous references at the chapter endings. There are chapters on the deterioration of dead timber and of forest products. Included are a long list of common names of plants with their scientific equivalents, over 200 illustrations, and a comprehensive index." N Y New Tech Bks

"The quality of the book is seen in the well-informed and carefully balanced discussions, in the well-produced and adequate illustrations, and in the carefully related references to literature. . . The European reader will find that many pathogens occur which are unknown in Europe, that diseases which are of considerable importance to him are but shortly mentioned, and that no mention is made of many purely European parasites. In spite of this, the book is of considerable value to British foresters; indeed, there is no other written in English which, for them, so adequately deals with forest pathology." W. R. Day

+ Nature 143:413 Mr 11 '39 600w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:38 Jl '38

BOYD, JAMES. Bitter creek. 422p map $2.50 Scribner

(W) 39-27232

This story of the American West in the '70s begins in Illinois with the revolt of a thirteen-year-old boy against a tyrannical father. The boy runs away; joins a medicine show for a time; hides in a cave to avoid a crafty pursuer; and encounters divers strange characters as he steadily works his way westward. In the West, as he grows to manhood, he becomes a cowboy; spends a winter with the Indians; and finally becomes ranch foreman.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic My '39 240w
Booklist 35:270 Ap 15 '39

"To say that Mr. Boyd has kept within an accepted convention is nothing against a good romantic tale. He handles it with skill and genuine humor." Isabel Paterson

+ Books p4 Mr 19 '39 1300w
Cath World 149:381 Je '39 60w

"It is the setting which gives the story its greatest strength. Mr. Boyd is at his best in giving a sympathetic portrayal of the Indians, or in showing a keen ear for the astringent humor of the cowhands; furthermore, he has few peers in his ability to evoke a nostalgia for the vanishing frontier."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 My 13 '39 340w

"Historians will read this fine, fluent book avidly, and the addicts of Western penny-dreadfuls, if it comes to their hands, will not be likely to put it down." Hassoldt Davis

+ Nation 148:650 Je 3 '39 550w
New Repub 98:288 Ap 12 '39 50w

"This is a good story with a lot of the old narrative ease about it. . . Here are romance and adventure; humor, wit, frontier chivalry and homely philosophy of life; strong relish for character and the action which makes it manifest, the pathos of good men dying well, the poetic justice of evil defeated, the last minute

BOYD, JAMES—Continued
revelation which clears up what has hitherto been hard to understand. But it is adventure and romance tempered by thought, formed and expressed with reserve and skill." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 19 '39 1000w

"The best novel of the West that has come along in a month of Sundays."
+ New Yorker 15:85 Mr 25 '39 90w

"Mr. Boyd cannot write a bad novel or a dull one, and you will get much pleasure from 'Bitter Creek' and you will glow with a familiar admiration of his skill, but the novel is essentially cliché, the least important one that he has written. . . This is not to say that 'Bitter Creek' is not good reading. It is. The brushwork is very fine, as in all Mr. Boyd's novels." Bernard DeVoto
— + Sat R of Lit 19:6 Mr 18 '39 800w

"Mr Boyd being a skilled narrator, there are no spots of dragging interest and plenty of spots of strong interest in 'Bitter Creek.' The volume throws sidelights on various aspects of the American 'scene' in its period, mainly in the Rocky mountain high plains country, but the picture is not so detailed, so complete, or so satisfying as that provided by 'Drums,' 'The Long Hunt,' or even 'Marching On.' If required to classify 'Bitter Creek' one would probably decide to catalog it as a superior specimen of 'western' rather than as primarily a novel of historical American backgrounds or panorama."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '39 430w
Time 33:74 Mr 20 '39 270w
Wis Lib Bul 35:103 My '39

BOYD, MRS MADELEINE ELISE (REYNIER). Life makes advances. 514p $2.75 Little 39-609

A long chronicle novel which tells the story of the first twenty-five years of the heroine's life. Nicole Desrieux was a French girl who revolted from the regular French ideas of marriage and fled to a teaching job in Dublin a few years before the War. There she fell in love with two men, married one and accompanied him to America, returned to Dublin and had an affair with the other. The book ends with the War years. Among the characters are several real-life figures in the literary circle of Dublin.

" 'Life Makes Advances has both the strength and the weakness of a story patterned closely on actual events. It is fun to meet informally, so to speak, the persons whom one has known only as authors and artists and reformers. A lapse of even twenty-five years does not give full freedom, however, to write of these and others who may be readily, if less widely, recognized. At points the book has something of the literalness of a record; it is not quite autobiography nor yet quite fiction; many of its almost countless characters are little more than a name and a date in a personal history. 'Life Makes Advances' is the story of unusually interesting years in the life of an unusual girl. It is, however, the chronicle of those years rather than a communication of the substance of them." Mary Ross
+ — Books p4 Ja 15 '39 800w

"I object to this sort of thing, not only because of the doubtful taste involved, but because I feel about the introduction of real people into a work of the imagination just as I feel about the eating of a real meal on the stage. So long as the actors go through a series of symbolic gestures indicating that they are pretending to eat, I am content. . . Miss Boyd has written a book which reads as though she had dumped her private diary into it— at least, if the scenes in Dublin and Baltimore and on board the S. S. St Paul. where Beerbohm Tree obligingly asks the heroine to read the script of 'Chu Chin Chow' aren't from a diary, I am at a loss to know how they got there. But the trouble is that I don't know where the diary ends." H. M. Jones
— Boston Transcript p1 Ja 14 '39 1200w
Reviewed by M. M. Colum
Forum 101:78 F '39 500w

"The writing is deadly. There are a few good details of Nicole's character, but her stature as a heroine is so small that it compels small interest, and even the distinguished names in the book, aside from the question of taste involved, mean no more than a ruse to carry the attention between one and another episode."
— Nation 148:276 Mr 4 '39 200w

"Although 'Life Makes Advances' is not for the tender-minded and even the tough-minded will find it in spots overripe, it has the merit of revealing frankness in dealing with emotional reactions. Readers who prefer realism will enjoy the story, readily excusing the trivialities that unduly lengthen the forepart of the narrative. Mrs. Boyd has created an interesting and original character in Nicole— a lovable, irritating and very human person. Though one cannot like Michael, one can easily understand how Nicole cannot help loving him." Drake De Kay
+ — N Y Times p7 Ja 8 '39 950w

"Longish novel, unemphatic and intelligent. . . Interesting glimpses of Æ., Mencken, Maud Gonne, etc., give the book a non-fictional character which is at times a little confusing."
New Yorker 14:54 Ja 7 '39 50w

"Properly, such human documents should be reviewed by a psychiatrist. No one else could satisfy the reader's main curiosity, namely, what motives of exhibitionism, just grievance or resentment against a male-dominated world prompt the writing of such a book. Madeleine Boyd does a thorough job in messing up the portrait of the elegant husband. But she herself does not come through looking as though she were dressed for church."
Time 33:59 Ja 16 '39 340w

BOYER, CARL BENJAMIN. Concepts of the calculus; a critical and historical discussion of the derivative and the integral. 346p $3.75 Columbia univ. press [18s 6d Oxford]
517 Calculus. Mathematics—Philosophy
39-15398

"Without professing to write the history of all the branches of the calculus, Dr. Boyer traces the development of the main concepts and of the scientific and mathematical problems which led to formulations by Newton and Leibnitz and the principal developments since their time. The 25 pages of bibliography will be of value to special students." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

Christian Century 56:1139 S 20 '39 170w

"A comprehensive bibliography is provided at the end and the complete volume is both an important and valuable addition to the literature of mathematics." F. G. W. B.
+ Nature 144:802 N 11 '39 800w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:41 Jl '39
Times [London] Lit Sup p494 Ag 19 '39 60w

BOYLE, KAY (MRS LAURENCE VAIL). The youngest camel; with il. by Fritz Kredel. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 96p $2 Little 39-20439

Story for young readers, in which are described the steps by which a young camel learned wisdom and discretion.

Reviewed by Margaret Fishback
Atlantic N '39 110w

"It will, of course, be said that this is not a child's book at all. I grow increasingly petulant when people talk as if exceptional children were exiles from the human race. Some of the greatest children's books from 'Alice' on were written for the exceptional child; other children get what they can from such books, reading over his shoulder. Considering that so much of our juvenile output is written expressly for the everyday child and indeed should be, is nothing at all to be written for the gifted, the prescient, the thoughtful child? If that should come to pass, children's literature would cease." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 O 8 '39 600w
Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk M 15:295 S '39 60w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 15:380 N '39 70w

"This is brilliant writing for children of eight and nine years but any adult who has the good fortune to read this book will enjoy the fine prose, the imagination, and the humor." R. W. Stewart
+ Library J 64:870 N 1 '39 160w
New Repub 101:122 N 15 '39 40w
Reviewed by H. E. Bates
New Statesman & Nation 18:844 D 9 '39 70w

"This is a wise and tender parable, which Miss Boyle has written for readers of any age who have the insight to recognize it, clothing it in a clear and lovely prose which carries the reader swiftly forward." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 S 10 '39 420w

"Kay Boyle undoubtedly wrote 'The Youngest Camel' first for her own children. Hers is a good book and a charming one. It has humor, also, and is far better written than most books for young people, yet I don't feel that children in general will take it to their hearts. It, too, is curiously sophisticated, and before the story ends it grows overpreachy, even for a fable." K. S. W.
+ — New Yorker 15:85 N 25 '39 120w
Reviewed by R. C. Benét
Sat R of Lit 21:22 N 18 '39 20w

"Miss Kay Boyle is a distinguished novelist, but her Youngest Camel does not seem to me satisfactory. She has a charming fantasy but, stern with herself in adult fiction, she has here let herself be sentimental." Amabel Williams-Ellis
— Spec 163:842 D 8 '39 30w

"Confusing moral which uplifted youngsters might deduct from this camel's tale was: Never be bumptious but never fail to be bumptious when you ought to be. Chances seemed even that many a young reader, stifling a yawn and an out-of-step feeling that Author Boyle's camel was not only a dromedary but an allegory, and too consciously cute, would leave the book where their less jaded elders would be sure to find and enjoy it."
Time 34:52 S 4 '39 350w

BRACE, TIMOTHY, pseud. See Pratt, T.

BRACKER, CHARLES E. Chester [il. by the author]. [48]p $2 Messner
39-12110

Picture-story book for the very young. Story and pictures are of a pet cat with a will of his own, who refused to share his place with just any dog, but who gladly accepted the friendship of a wise collie.

"These pictures would put a modern illustrator's teeth on edge. They cost so much to make, that they make the book cost too much for parents of young children to buy. But—as I turned from one to the other, something very pleasant stirred in my inner consciousness. It was the bliss these pictures would have given me when I was three years old. And as the human race goes back to the Year One every time a baby is born, I have an idea that just this chromo combination of realism and sentimentality, expressed in bright and blended colors, brings the same sort of bliss to a three-year old today. If this be treason, make the most of it." M. L. Becker
+ — Books p8 Je 4 '39 380w
Reviewed by E. M. Mack
Boston Transcript p13 Je 29 '39 30w

"It is told with real style and each small incident is described with a crispness and clarity which weave the whole into a firm fabric of prose. Charles Bracker's paintings, reproduced with a lavish use of color, are ingratiating with the most recognizable qualities of dog and cat but this very emphasis upon realism gives them an obvious prettiness rather than true distinction." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p10 Je 4 '39 270w

BRADEN, CHARLES SAMUEL. The world's religions; a short history. 256p maps $1.50 Cokesbury press
290 Religions (W) 39-27233

This book offers "a brief, reliable account of the development of the world's religions, past and present. . . It is not in any sense a book for technical scholars or advanced students. . . It does aim, however, to present the most important features of the great faiths of the world. At the end of each chapter suggestions for further study are given." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 35:263 Ap 15 '39
Reviewed by R. K. Morton
Boston Transcript p3 Jl 8 '39 80w

"We welcome this little book and commend its circulation on its merits, for what it may do as guide and stimulus toward further reading (and study) by Christians in the field of the world's religions. That field is too vast for merely casual inspection. . . While it professes to be for those 'wholly unacquainted with the field,' its references listed in an appendix include many which no novice could understand aright. And a book of this brief and simple sort invites, in any case, the comment of serious students of comparative religion. Such a student will notice references to sources less than trustworthy." J. C. Archer
+ — Christian Century 56:574 My 3 '39 450w

"There is much too much emphasis upon beliefs and upon the so-called 'founders,' and much too little upon what religions meant to the folk as a way of life, but the book tells a simple, straightforward story and will well serve the readers for whom it was written." A. E. Haydon
+ — J Religion 20:96 Ja '40 100w

BRADLEY, PRESTON. Life and you. 116p $1.50 Harper
248 Christian life 39-30171

A book by the pastor of the People's church, in Chicago. Contents: Life and you; The mystery of life; Bewildered humanity; Are you in trouble? What price hatred? Build your own future; Mental health; A religion for today; Can we still believe in God? What about the soul? Prayer and power.

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes
Books p11 D 24 '39 100w
Boston Transcript p1 Ja 13 '40 60w

"Life and You is the kind of book that almost everybody should read occasionally. It should serve effectively the ends for which it was written. It advances no new ideas, and does not seek to establish any particular theological views. But it throws fresh light upon old problems of living and tones up the spiritual system. Preston Bradley delivers a message that the individual and society at large would do well to take to heart." J. D. Martin
+ Christian Century 57:184 F 7 '40 420w
Wis Lib Bul 35:211 D '39

BRADSTREET, RAYMOND B. Standardization of volumetric solutions. 126p $3 Chemical pub. co.
545.5 Solution (chemistry) 38-31780

"This book is not for the beginner, since it presupposes a general knowledge and practice of analytical chemistry. It is a handy reference work for the man who must hurry to get his results. The discussions of the methods and their good and bad points are short and very useful, and the text is replete with helpful hints, equations, tables of important data, expressions for calculating normalities, etc." Foreword

BRADSTREET, R. B.—Continued

"The critical discussion is brief, well documented and in most cases reasonably complete and modern. Mechanically the little book is well made but is a good example of the evils of low-cost production (without the usual argument of low purchase price), being plate-printed from not too well arranged typewritten copy, which is liberally punctuated with errors (Faulk for Foulk, Yound for Young, Hammet for Hammett, as well as plain spelling and typing errors), and inconsistent and unorthodox abbreviations." A. D. Bliss
Am Chem Soc J 60:3091 D '38 180w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:5 Ja '39

BRAGDON, MRS LILLIAN J. The land of Joan of Arc. 112p il map $1.50 Stokes
914.4 France—Juvenile literature 39-27714

Combination of history and geography of France for grades five to seven. The first four chapters give an outline of French history; the remainder of the book is devoted to geographical information on Alsace-Lorraine, Normandy, Brittany, Touraine, Provence, the southern coast, and Paris.

Booklist 36:46 O 1 '39

"In the historical part, one might wish that the Versailles Treaty had not been excused with such facility; but on the whole, the author has done a good piece of work. Boys and girls of eight and nine will be able to read this, and older children studying France will use it, also." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 64:805 O 15 '39 120w
Wis Lib Bul 35:192 N '39

BRAND, MAX. Fightin' fool. 246p $2 Dodd
39-15604

Western story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p9 Jl 23 '39 80w

"An entertaining Western yarn that has its novel situations and its moments of surprise, and yet it is not so fast and, all in all, not as good as Max Brand at his best." G. W. Harris
+ — N Y Times p12 Jl 16 '39 190w

BRAND, MILLEN. The heroes. 336p $2 Simon & Schuster
(W) 39-27303

George Burley lost an arm in the World war, but in spite of his handicap he was able to earn his own living at cabinet work until the years of the great depression. Then George was forced to go into a Soldiers' Home. This story pictures the life in the Home, the strain of living lives isolated from the work of the world, the despair of realizing normal married life denied to men still young. George's own story ends happily—a new job and the right girl.

Booklist 35:290 My 1 '39

"It is out of the shadowy commonness of American life that Mr. Brand has written this novel, and it is common tribulation that gives it meaning. But what is original to it is its tone, a warm and humming prose at once deft and tender, glowing and bitter. It is not often that one is moved by a novel as a whole, in which one is excited by the very sense of life caught at sudden pitch, so that one knows that what has been said is good, and that what will be said, is true." Alfred Kazin
+ Books p2 Ap 16 '39 1050w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '39
Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 30:110 My 19 '39 360w

"With all the irony of its title, this is a story free of rancor. The dreams and the fortitude of plain people make up its substance and stay with you for a long time." M. L. Elting + Forum 102:iv Jl '39 100w
New Repub 99:140 Je 7 '39 80w

" 'The Heroes' is a superb picture, delicate, detailed, moving, of day-to-day life in a world which is presumably wholly unfamiliar. It is written with the same integrity and simplicity, the same quiet distinction of style which have already marked Mr. Brand as a novelist of stature. Best of all, its implications remain unstated. 'The Heroes' has things to say about war, poverty, social injustice which the thoughtful reader will decipher but which are not forced upon others." E. H. Walton
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 16 '39 850w

" 'The Heroes' is touching in its own way, a mature, deeply felt book."
+ New Yorker 15:77 Ap 22 '39 90w
No Am 248:204 autumn '39 50w

"Critics and readers who two years ago were excited by Millen Brand's first novel, 'The Outward Room,' [Book Review Digest, 1937] will not be disappointed in his second novel, 'The Heroes.' Although it may not reveal any marked growth of talent, there is no falling off in the simple power and beauty that made 'The Outward Room' so strangely appealing." R. A. Cordell
+ Sat R of Lit 19:13 Ap 15 '39 850w

"The tragedy is diluted here to pathos, even to a tremulous kind of sentimentality. The author's manner of level monotone, so vitally effective in The Outward Room, where we felt its necessity and its brake-power, here seems only to devitalise further a story that, however handled, might be in danger from an inherent lack of character. Despondency is not a theme, and though we can hardly accuse the men in this book of self-pity, their pity for each other is narcissistic and a little suspect. In any case, it is monotonous and lacks the pressure of passion." Kate O'Brien
— + Spec 162:920 My 26 '39 700w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 23 '39 370w
Time 33:92 Ap 17 '39 80w

"It is a quiet book, but it has the stuff of life in it."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p339 Je 10 '39 300w

BRANDENBURGER, KURT. Processes and machinery in the plastics industry; being a translation of Herstellung und verarbeitung von kunstharz-pressmassen (v. 1-2) tr. by H. I. Lewenz. 243p il $6 (25s) Pitman
668 Plastic materials. Resinous products

"This book does not claim to be a scientific treatise on the chemistry of the various resinoids and allied compositions. It is wholly concerned with the preparation of the plastics for the molds and presses, and with the details of manufacture. A chapter on factory organization is included. There is a short list of books on the subject." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Chem & Met Eng 46:491 Ag '39 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:11 Ja '39
Reviewed by Adeline Macrum
Special Libraries 30:317 N '39 40w

BRANDI, KARL. Emperor Charles V; the growth and destiny of a man and of a world-empire; tr. from the German by C. V. Wedgwood. 655p il $5 Knopf [21s Cape, J]
B or 92 Charles V, emperor of the Holy Roman empire

Biography of the Emperor Charles V, and an interpretation of his life and times, based upon years of research by the foremost living European authority on the period. Index.

"This is a very valuable work. . . It is safe to say that nothing like Professor Brandi's book has been written before. He has spent a lifetime over his task, and has left nothing unnoticed." E. E. Kellett

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:728 N 18 '39 650w

"The author is occasionally guilty of slips. . . But in all fairness it must be admitted that even without footnotes and the hundred-odd pages of bibliography which might have been helpful to eight or ten English readers, Dr. Brandi has nevertheless set a new and impressive standard for academic historians of the High Renaissance and for scholarly biographers of the most famous of the Habsburg Emperors." Lloyd Eshleman

+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 21 '40 1500w

"A panorama of Europe in turmoil: well organized and authoritative, but necessarily somewhat circumstantial."

+ New Yorker 15:63 Ja 27 '40 30w

"The American edition has the same excellent illustrations as the German. One could wish for a more perfect translation. Much of the readability of the original, much of its movement and clarity and impartial justice have been preserved. Some loss of terseness and vigor was to be expected. . . A map would have been helpful to most readers, and a volume which will be a standard work of reference should have a fuller and more accurate index. But these are minor flaws in a welcome edition of a great book." Garrett Mattingly

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:6 F 10 '40 1450w

"[This] is the best life of Charles V that has ever been written. It is a work of great learning and mastery of the sources. What is more, it gives us an understanding and a noble portrait of the great Emperor and great European." A. L. Rowse

+ Spec 163:752 N 24 '39 750w

"Professor Brandi, of Göttingen, the greatest living authority on Charles V, has epitomized in this book the results of a lifetime of research. Almost every chapter, indeed, shows what a wealth of new material has been gathered and put to use. Yet here the serious criticism must be offered that references to the sources are almost entirely wanting. The documents are quoted, but very rarely are the means of tracing them afforded. Nor has any bibliography been provided. Those defects allowed for, a full measure of praise must be accorded to a fine achievement."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p706 D 2 '39 500w

BRANDT, KARL. The German fat plan and its economic setting. 344p maps $3 Food research inst.

338.1 Oils and fats. Dairying—Germany. Germany—Economic policy 39-2804

In 1928, when German grain stabilization began, the author became interested in the causes of the plight of the dairy industry and its relations with German national economy. After leaving Germany in 1933, his interest in the subject continued, and this study, prepared under the auspices of the Food Research institute at Leland Stanford, considers the subject in its various aspects both before the Hitler régime and since. Bibliography. Index.

"The book is written chiefly for economists and is amply interspersed with tables and charts. Where political implications cannot be avoided, a tone of objective impartiality is maintained." V. A. O'Rourke

Am Pol Sci R 33:340 Ap '39 140w

Reviewed by Bernhard Ostrolenk

Ann Am Acad 204:198 Jl '39 500w

Foreign Affairs 17:636 Ap '39 20w

"The author's style is quite compact, and a large amount of information is incorporated within the book. It will interest especially those who are concerned with a planned economy and those connected with the production and the use of fats, particularly the dairy industry." R. C. Newton

+ Ind & Eng Chem 17:174 Mr 10 '39 420w

BRANSOM, PAUL, il. Animals of American history. See Fish H. D. Animals of American history

BREAD LOAF anthology; preface by Robert Frost. 194p il $1.50 Middlebury college press, Middlebury, Vt.

811.08 American poetry—Collections 39-19303

"Poems contributed by Bread Loaf English students and staff, Writers' conference members, and alumni and faculty of Middlebury college. Among the contributors are Hervey Allen, Robert Hillyer, Louis Untermeyer, Robert Gay, Burges Johnson, Jorge Guillén, Pedro Salinas, and Frances Frost. Some of the poems have appeared in magazines. The introduction gives a history of Bread Loaf; brief biographies are included." Booklist

---

Booklist 36:40 O 1 '39

"Distinguished anthology, beautifully printed and illustrated with several woodcuts by Edwards Sanborn."

Books p40 N 12 '39 300w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p33 O 22 '39 700w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 20:19 Ag 5 '39 70w

Wis Lib Bul 36:14 Ja '40

BREED, FREDERICK STEPHEN. Education and the new realism. 237p $2 (8s 6d) Macmillan

370.1 Education—Philosophy 39-5844

"In [this book] an attempt has been made to assess progressive education in terms of its underlying philosophy (pragmatism) and, on the other hand, to set forth, without apology, the opposing doctrine of realism, and to discuss fully the educational implications of each. . . The author of this . . . treatise is frank to admit that the answer to our educational problem is not to be found in either of the extreme forms of these philosophies, and he recognizes that the desirable course of action in most of the issues involved lies somewhere between the two extreme points of view." El School J

"This book is a welcome contribution to educational literature and is heartily recommended for serious study." H. P. Rainey

+ El School J 40:70 S '39 450w

"While the book lacks a closely knit organization and seems somewhat inconsistent at points (doubtless because it is, in reality, a collection of articles that have appeared in various places at various times), it nevertheless deals with significant and up-to-date problems and is held together by the thread of its basic philosophic position." M. M. Thompson

+ — School R 47:786 D '39 1150w

"Teachers and students should study this volume in order to understand and appreciate the present trends in education as well as to justify and defend their particular philosophy whether it be Progressive, Realistic or the New Realism." J. L. Stockton

Social Studies 30:377 D '39 330w

BREEN, MARY J. The party book; prepared for the Nat. recreation association; il. by Hamilton Greene. 354p $2.50 Barnes, A.S.

793 Amusements. Games. Entertaining (W) 39-27966

"This book contains party programs for young and old, for special occasions and holidays, for novelty dances with costumes and atmospheric decorations, for banquets, picnics and outdoor parties, and games and stunts for large or small informal gatherings. There are parties for men, parties for women, for boys and for girls, and for mixed groups." (Publisher's note) Index.

BREEN, M. J.—Continued

Booklist 36:129 D 1 '39
Christian Century 56:1307 O 25 '39 40w

"A volume which every parish guild, looking for 'new ideas', should have available."
+ Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 30w
J Home Econ 32:115 F '40 70w

BREMOND, ANDRE. Philosophy in the making; a study in wonder and order. 223p $1.75 Benziger

109 Philosophy—History 39-8499

Simply written study of the progress of philosophy, beginning with the meditations of the cave man, and closing with chapters on Descartes. The author is a Jesuit, professor of philosophy at Maison Saint Louis, Jersey, England.

"The style of writing is unusually light and cheerful for a book on philosophy. In fact, one could probably find enough material in it for a pedantic article on 'The Influence of P. G. Wodehouse on the Life and Writings of André Bremond, S.J.' . . Father Brémond's skill, however, does not stop at the whimsical or the mock-serious. The author's love and deep knowledge of the literary wealth of Athens, of England and of France enriches the work throughout. His prose is smooth and rhythmical. Nor is Father Brémond lacking that touch of the poet without which you cannot have the true philosopher." Daniel Sullivan
+ Commonweal 30:222 Je 16 '39 500w

"Those who want philosophy from agnostics, doubters, unbelievers in divine providence will disdain this book. They will be wrong. However, it has to be said that 'Philosophy in the Making' is an unequal book." Padraic Colum
N Y Times p29 N 19 '39 450w

BREMOND, ANDRE. Religions of unbelief. (Science and culture ser) 163p $1.75 Bruce pub.

211 Rationalism 39-14236

"A Catholic presents an analysis of the modern rationalist's substitute for religion." Cleveland Open Shelf

"The constructive part of the book sets forth 'the human reasons for seeking salvation in a revelation.' The general arguments, drawn almost entirely from Hocking and A. E. Taylor, are clear and convincing, but the kind of God they require is already accessible without a special revelation. In any case, before the relation of reason and revelation in religion can be profitably discussed, the function of reason and the content of revelation which is inaccessible to it ought to be carefully specified." N. F. S. Ferré
Christian Century 56:1344 N 1 '39 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '39

Reviewed by Mother Mary Maude
Living Church 101:12 D 20 '39 100w

BRENNECKE, ERNEST. John Milton the elder and his music. 224p il $3.50 Columbia univ. press [17s 6d Oxford]

B or 92 Milton, John, 1563?-1647 39-5895

"This essay sets out to show that the elder Milton [the poet's father] was a far more talented composer, a more daring and influential artist, and a far more interesting human being than most of us have fancied him to be. If we listen to his music today, it delivers to us across the centuries an impression of a great personality, at once genial, robust, and touchingly impassioned." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by Peter Bowdoin
Books p13 F 5 '39 440w

"There is little new material in the book, but it is valuable to have all that is known about the elder Milton gathered together in so well produced a volume as this."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p222 Ap 15 '39 180w

BRIDENBAUGH, CARL. Cities in the wilderness; the first century of urban life in America, 1625-1742. 500p il maps $5 Ronald

973.2 U.S.—History—Colonial period. U.S.—Social life and customs—Colonial period. Cities and towns—U.S. 39-714

"In [this volume the author has] undertaken to describe the life of colonial America from 1625 to 1742 as it developed under urban conditions. In an attempt to secure a fully rounded treatment, the examination of this emerging urban society is concerned with its physical, economic, social and cultural aspects. For the purposes of a complete picture five representative towns have been selected,—Boston, Newport, New York, Philadelphia, and Charles Town." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"It is rich material that Professor Bridenbaugh has mined, and out of it he has fashioned a work of art. No future history of the colonial period of our national life can fail to be profoundly affected by the picture of the important emerging urban culture herein presented. . . This reviewer finds very little to criticize. There is a certain lack of sureness of touch to be noted in references to the legal or governmental aspects of the town and an occasional inaccuracy." E. S. Griffith
+ Am Hist R 45:404 Ja '40 500w

Reviewed by C. F. Schmid
Am Soc R 4:869 D '39 300w
Booklist 35:203 F 15 '39

" 'Cities in the Wilderness' was awarded the Justin Winsor prize of the American Historical Association, and none can doubt the propriety of that award. It has every virtue but those of sprightliness and brevity, and even these inadequacies are mitigated by the meatiness of the material presented. The thesis is implicit rather than explicit, the substantiation is persuasive, the erudition impressive, the organization intelligent, the style straightforward and clear." H. S. Commager
+ Books p15 S 17 '39 1450w

"No one can read Professor Bridenbaugh's book without being impressed by the amount of research and compilation that must have gone into its preparation. Though years of wearisome labor preceded the production of this volume, the author wears his learning gracefully and is never pedantic or dull." L. S. Mayo
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 20 '39 700w

"Professor Bridenbaugh's . . . arrangement is orderly, almost to the verge of monotony, but the result is a notably convenient reference book. Offsetting the effect of sameness is the author's vigorous style and his pungent quotations from chronicles of the time." W. K. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 F 25 '39 650w

Reviewed by R. H. Brown
Geog R 29:697 O '39 500w

"Historical novelists will sleep with the book under their pillows, and even the lay reader may be induced to plunge into its detail, for it is written with distinction and with a kind of eagerness that makes even its more technical considerations absorbing." Constance Rourke
Nation 148:535 My 6 '39 600w

"The volume will not be popular reading or a successful college text; but no one interested in social science should miss the provocative and sometimes brilliant summaries which follow each chapter and section. Writers of historical fiction will find the book a gold mine of source material." C. K. Shipton

+ New Eng Q 12:377 Je '39 1600w

"One would say that Dr. Bridenbaugh has done something that will not have a flashy success but which will stand for a long time—a good, sound job, with much thought and wisdom in it, much passing entertainment and much solid fodder, and bound to have its influence on future studies in colonial history." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 8 '39 1550w

Pratt p26 summer '39

"The volume carries an abundance of detail, but not too much. These five cities had their differences which the author makes clear and they had fundamental similarities which lend unity. Students of the era are delighted to welcome this scholarly work." W. T. Root

+ Social Studies 30:326 N '39 450w

BRIDGE, ANN, pseud. Four-part setting. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 447p $2.50 Little [8s 6d Chatto]

(W) 39-29729

Three men and two women, all of them English, are the main characters in this story of modern China. The crucial point of the book, which consists mainly of conversation, is reached on a camping trip to the mountain Por Hua Shan.

Reviewed by E. W. Hawkins

Atlantic N '39 550w

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

"Miss Bridge has seen a lot of China. Her knowledge of the wild life, the flowers, and the topography of North China makes her narrative especially interesting. . . It is a bright, modern tale, woven in a cloth of many colors. One could wish that the last chapter hadn't been quite so forced and so obviously noble, and that Rose hadn't alternated so often between sobs and tears. But, in spite of its shortcomings, here is easily a relaxing evening of romantic and sometimes exciting reading." D. B. Shapiro

+ — Books p12 O 29 '39 550w

"Ann Bridge is one of the most graceful writers in existence. She represents true sophistication in its best sense. Her firm delicacy of touch, and her sensitiveness to the nuances of human relationships, make her more than a merely competent novelist. . . Miss Bridge cleverly parallels her story with a musical composition all along. But it sounds queer when a rather tremulous soprano bursts at the climax into a magnificent oratorio. We suggest also that there are too many descants upon the value of English aristocracy. Finally, we can't see why the Atlantic should dress such a novel in so cheap a looking jacket. Except for these several small discords, 'Four-Part Setting' is a lovely and distinguished bit of artistry." Olga Owens

+ — Boston Transcript p1 O 28 '39 950w

"This latest book contains all that Miss Bridge's writing usually contains—a good plot, interesting characterizations, pleasant reading, and in addition, some rare insights into little-known sections of Chinese life. Highly recommended." E. S. Hertell

+ Churchman 153:38 D 1 '39 70w

"A group of worth-while personalities shrewdly characterized, a theme of universal interest and the art of weaving a colorful story out of familiar materials combine to make this one of the outstanding novels of the season." Drake De Kay

+ N Y Times p7 O 29 '39 750w

New Yorker 15:81 O 28 '39 40w

Pratt p22 winter '40

"With the brilliant 'Peking Picnic' inevitably in mind, one looks eagerly for the same fluid, luminous images in these new observations of the Peking countryside. There are not so many, perhaps—since the author has been away from North China for at least a decade. She has been wise to confine her story to the pre-Japanese period which she herself knew. Her evocation of the smooth easy-going humorous tempo of life in the foreign colony is so skilled as to cause a pang of homesickness in us who live there." M. M. Mackay

+ Sat R of Lit 21:7 O 28 '39 500w

Reviewed by Graham Greene

Spec 163:482 O 6 '39 200w

"When Miss Bridge gives us the full flavor of China in this novel, we are enchanted. When she makes it plain how the English live in that land we are enlightened. As for the rest, the novel is a straight love story, a romance with Anastasia the character who holds the reader's close attention. The book is written with delicacy, humor, and beauty of style. But its chief interest will be for those who 'love a love story.'" M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 3 '39 600w

Time 34:86 D 11 '39 20w

"'Four-Part Setting' is by no means such a technical tour de force as Miss Bridge's first novel. In spite of its obvious merits, it lacks backbone and shapeliness, it needs a severe pruning, and it has no feeling of inevitability about it. All the characters, even Hargreaves, possess the perhaps unduly irritating habit of occasionally substituting a French word for a perfectly good English equivalent. Nevertheless the book contains in it much that is wise and beautiful; a mature thought and a lively intelligence, as well as a mere pen, have been employed in its creation."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p565 S 30 '39 480w

BRIDGMAN, GEORGE B. The human machine; the anatomical structure and mechanism of the human body. 143p il $3.50 Bridgman [12s 6d Lane]

743 Anatomy, Artistic 39-27304

"Numerous detailed sketches of many parts of the body are collected, with a technical description of each sketch, to show the structure of the bones and muscles and to explain the principles of their mechanical functioning. Intended for art teachers and students." Booklist

Booklist 35:285 My 1 '39

"While packed with academic knowledge, the book is modern in every sense of the word."

+ School Arts 39:4a N 4 '39 100w

BRIER, HOWARD M. Skycruiser; il. by Hans Kreis. 238p $2 Random house

(W) 39-27356

Story for junior and senior high school age, in which are told the adventures of a young test pilot for an airplane factory. Barry's discovery of the thieves stealing blueprints earns the respect of the older pilots.

Booklist 35:312 My 15 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p8 O 29 '39 280w

"There is a pleasing lack of the sensational which has barred so many aviation stories from juvenile collections. We can overlook the rather improbable manner by which Barry gained his job. In the main the story is plausible. Full of information about aviation which seems authentic and with emphasis on the peacetime use of aircraft and the further development of aviation, we can recommend this gladly." Eleanor Kidder

+ Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 110w

Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 15 '39 20w

BRINCHMANN, ALEXANDER. The rich man; a translation from the Norwegian by Joran Birkeland. 255p $2.50 Dutton

39-22586

Story of a rich man, a Norwegian industrialist, who finds life unreal and unhappy and

BRINCHMANN, ALEXANDER—Continued
seeks salvation for himself and his family in a return to poverty.

"An appealing novel filled with dramatic action and sincere thinking." Maxwell Geismar
+ Books p12 S 17 '39 700w
Reviewed by Ann Springer
Boston Transcript p2 S 16 '39 400w

"As an interchange of intimate family life, as a recognizable piece of breakfast-table portraiture, this novelist shows fine understanding and perception. The human qualities of the novel, the corner glances, are warm and affable. But when the author reaches the critical point of his theme, he seems to avert his eyes." Stanley Young
+ — N Y Times p14 S 3 '39 700w
New Yorker 15:82 S 16 '39 60w

"A parable rather than a novel, this story has so bare a skeleton and so patent a moral that characters and incidents never attain much life of their own. . . . Mr. Brinchmann writes simply and pleasantly, but he cannot make Palm real as a person or his quandary exciting." K. S.
— + Sat R of Lit 20:18 S 23 '39 150w

BRINDZE, RUTH. Seamanship below deck. 314p il $2.50 Harcourt 797.14 Yachts and yachting. Seafaring life
39-27967

Handy knowledge on many subjects for the owners of small boats. Partial contents: Air and heat; Good berths and bedding for the crew; Plumber's assistant; The insect menace; First aid; The care and cure of the seasick; Clothes for the off watch; Radio—an instrument for good or evil; Taking stock of—and stocking—the galley; Cooking directions; Grog and other sea-going liquids; The well-found cabin. Designs for a thirty-five-footer and a thirty-three are given on the end papers. Index.

Booklist 36:129 D 1 '39

"To those who know the joys of the sea, here is a book to be read with much pleasure. For the neophyte, it furnishes a large-scale chart of the numerous rocks and reefs that threaten the comfort, if not the safety, of life on the water." H. H. Darby
+ Nation 149:716 D 23 '39 280w
New Repub 102:94 Ja 15 '40 60w

BRINIG, MYRON. Anne Minton's life. 279p $2.50 Farrar
(W) 39-15269

A young girl, a psychopathic case, retires to the narrow ledge outside her fifteenth-story window in a Los Angeles hotel "to think things over." Her sister's pleas, her mother's message, threats and cajoling have no influence. After hours on the narrow ledge she jumps to her death. As he tells the story of her vigil, the author also recounts the stories of several other desperate people, all of whom are saved from extreme measures by the suicide's example.

"The new novel is of a quite different order from Brinig's recent books. It is shorter, without the circumstantial realism of the longer novels, an imaginative story without background. Its model would be the European novelette with its single strain, its suspense and its restraint. But that, after all, is to view it superficially. For underneath is the same Myron Brinig of all his books save that he has been growing more so with each novel. The meaning here does not come to us subtly, for Brinig has no subtlety in his nature. He is a profound sentimentalist, an honest sentimentalist, but a sentimentalist for all that who can scarcely find a trace of evil in any man." J. Renwick
Books p4 Jl 2 '39 600w
Reviewed by Jeanne Minhinnick
Canadian Forum 19:164 Ag '39 350w
New Repub 99:230 Je 28 '39 40w

"Myron Brinig is the most gently tolerant of our better popular novelists. . . . 'Anne Minton's Life,' for all its dramatic central situation and far-reaching symbolism, is really slighter in effect, as it is briefer than Brinig's two last successful novels. And it is cut to a different pattern. But any one would recognize it as fashioned by the same gentle but expert hand." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p6 Je 11 '39 750w

"A number of lives are affected, in the book, by the sight of the woman on the ledge. Even so, it doesn't make a very good novel. Makes a better news story, but it's still gruesome."
New Yorker 15:91 Je 17 '39 70w

"It is an interesting pattern and an interesting attempt. But the trouble is that Anne herself is not made at all interesting, and the other characters—with the exception of Mendelbaum, who might pass in a stock company version of one of Robert Nathan's novels—are flat, colorless, and contrived. Mr. Brinig's writing in this case may or may not have been hasty, but it is certainly undistinguished. And the author suffers from the fact that the incident upon which his story is based is still so fresh in our memories. The recollection of fact keeps interfering with what should be the illusion of fiction." B. R. Redman
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:15 Jl 1 '39 550w

"It must be admitted that Author Brinig's fictitious suicide is more cheerful than John Warde's. But his awkward, correspondence-school prose, his amateur philosophizing make his story less dramatic than mere reporters' accounts of the real thing."
Time 33:83 Je 19 '39 200w

BRINK, CAROL (RYRIE) (MRS R. W. BRINK). All over town; il. by Dorothy Bayley. 291p $2 Macmillan
(W) 39-22450

Three well-meaning young people, the minister's two sons, and Ardeth, their tomboy neighbor, are the perpetrators of much mischief "all over town" in this story for young readers.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39

"A story that keeps a ten-year-old amused, interested and sympathetic." M. L. Becker
+ Books p10 N 5 '39 350w
Boston Transcript p1 S 30 '39 90w
Christian Century 56:1169 S 27 '39 30w
Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 20w

"The book has good humor and action and will be very popular. It is, however, not up to Caddie Woodlawn." Marian Herr
+ — Library J 64:904 N 15 '39 120w

"The author knows children and the life of a small town and writes of both with humor and understanding. The book reads aloud well." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 D 17 '39 350w

"Lively and amusing."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:27 N 18 '39 20w

BRINSER, AYERS, and SHEPARD, WARD. Our use of the land. (American way ser) 303p il map $1.40 Harper 333.7 Reclamation of land. Land utilization
(W) 39-13085

Textbook for high school students, in which the authors show how American democracy has used land in the past, what steps must be taken to insure a better use of it in the future. Contents: The land; The farm land; Water; The grass lands; The forest; Land for wild life and recreation; Minerals; Planning. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:358 Jl 1 '39
Reviewed by K. B. Thurston
Social Educ 3:589 N '39 650w
Wis Lib Bul 35:139 Jl '39

BRINTON, CLARENCE CRANE. The anatomy of revolution. 326p $3 Norton [12s 6d Allen, G.]

323.2 Revolutions 38-27847

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by L. P. Edwards
Am Soc R 4:122 F '39 430w

"Mr. Brinton's literary style is that of the raconteur professor whose lectures are always well attended. He has an apt wit, an easy and familiar style. In fact, one is inclined to think that the author of The Anatomy of Revolution has attacked a problem of formidable magnitude with merely a scroll saw in hand. The result is without doubt interesting and stimulating, but hardly conclusive." L. P. Edwards
Ann Am Acad 202:236 Mr '39 400w

"Trotsky's History of the Russian Revolution may be unscientific, but at least it takes the reader inside a real live revolution and enables him to see and feel how it happened; Mr. Brinton's brittle analyses and analogies tell me a lot about the atmosphere of Harvard, very little about that of the revolutions he describes. There is nothing against his book except that it fails. . . Which does not mean that the Anatomy of Revolution is without merits. Mr. Brinton has summarised a great deal of useful information, useful not only to students seeking academic honours, but to those who are unorthodox enough to believe that the understanding of the past finds its justification in the control and direction of the present." R. H. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 17:214 F 11 '39 1250w

Reviewed by Samuel Bernstein
Pol Sci Q 54:456 S '39 700w

"This book is an unusual and much praised study of the phenomenon of revolution, attractively written and challenging to thoughtful high school students."
+ Social Studies 30:142 Mr '39 110w

BRINTON, WILLARD COPE. Graphic presentation. 512p il maps $5 Brinton associates, 599 11th av, N.Y.

311.26 Graphic methods 39-27968

"All kinds of graphic methods of presenting facts are illustrated and explained in this revision of a book published in 1914 under the title Graphic Methods for Presenting Facts [Book Review Digest, 1914]. It should be a valuable reference book for anyone trying to make figures talk. In addition, the first chapters give interesting facts about the development of such methods." (J Home Econ) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 36:126 D 1 '39
J Home Econ 32:43 Ja '40 90w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:56 O '39

"The design of the book is admittedly dramatic rather than logical. It is recommended as a stimulant and as a reference rather than as a teaching guide or text. Its only conspicuous omission, as a compendium of illustrative material, is the absence of any mention or illustration of the work of Rudolph Modley and Pictorial Statistics, Inc." M. J. Hagood
+ — Social Forces 18:289 D '39 130w

BRISTOL, MRS HELEN (OGRODOWSKA). After thirty years: Poland revisited. 224p il map $2.50 Tuttle

914.38 Poland—Description and travel 39-22130

"For 30 years Helen Ogrodowska longed to return to the country from which she had been forced to flee at the age of ten. Her father was unwilling to serve the Russians, who then controlled much of Poland. In this volume she recounts her impressions of a recent visit to Poland with her American husband." Boston Transcript

Reviewed by Pauline Ehrlich
Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 170w

"The writer's sincerity cannot be questioned. Even the inclusion of unnecessary personal anecdotes such as 'W's.' indignant display of wrath with the penny-pinching droszka driver may be excused as evidence of a desire to list events exactly as they occurred, although their presence does lead the reader to suspect that his informant has exhausted her supply of information." A. R. E.
Sat R of Lit 20:39 O 14 '39 300w
Springf'd Republican p8 N 21 '39 950w

BRITANNICA junior; an encyclopædia for boys and girls, prepared under the supervision of the editors of the Encyclopaedia britannica. 12v il maps red Britannotex $59.90, to libraries and schools $49.90; blue Craftex $49.90, to libraries and schools $39.90, multiple sales in excess of one copy, $36.15; 5 per cent additional discount on all accounts paid within 30 days after delivery, f.o.b. destination c1938 Encyclopædia britannica

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 39-104

"The original edition of Britannica Junior, published in 1934, was reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin, January 1935 [Book Review Digest, 1935]. This set, designed for children in the elementary schools, was based on Weedon's Modern Encyclopedia, reviewed in October 1932 and April 1934. It has been reprinted with revisions in 1937 and 1938. In the 1938 edition the basic plan remains the same, volume 1, Ready reference, serving as an index and epitome, and volume 12 containing the Study guide and a collection of tables and documents. To the latter volume has been added an atlas section of 73 map plates, with an index of cities and towns. The maps are clear and up to date. They now include sectional political maps of the United States and other new maps as well as the full-page maps formerly found in the body of the encyclopedia." Subscription Bks Bul

"As a whole the 1938 edition of Britannica Junior retains most of the satisfactory and unsatisfactory features of the 1934 edition. The material is generally authoritative though uneven in style. . . In spite of its deficiencies, the Britannica Junior offers considerable usefulness for the home libraries of individuals who find its reasonable price within their range, and as a supplementary reference work in the school or public library which cannot afford to duplicate the more expensive sets. It is recommended only under such conditions."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 10:35 Jl '39 1050w

BRITNELL, G. E. The wheat economy. 260p il maps $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [11s 6d Oxford]

330.97124 Saskatchewan—Economic conditions. Wheat [39-25982]

"The book begins with the geographical background of Saskatchewan and goes on to a very full account of all aspects of economic life in the province—population, land tenure, income and expenditure, debt, provincial and municipal public services, standards of living. It concludes with a discussion of projects for rehabilitation after the recent years of drought and low prices." (Canadian Forum) This study is part of an extended project of research conducted by the Canadian Institute of international affairs, in cooperation with the Institute of Pacific affairs on standards of living in Canada. Index.

"For readers who care naught about Saskatchewan as such, or about wheat and its producers wherever they are, this volume deserves high rank as an example of a type of regional study of which many more are needed. For those concerned with major farm problems in many types of areas for which no comparable integration of studies is available, the book should be of value, direct and indirect. To those concerned with the standard of living of large regional groups, especially rural, it is to be highly commended for its skillful blend of data, concrete information, and interpretation. Even the 'general' economist, to whom practically none of it is directly addressed, will profit from reading it." J. S. Davis

BRITNELL, G. E.—Continued
+ Am Econ R 29:837 D '39 850w

Reviewed by R. S. Vaile
Ann Am Acad 206:192 N '39 450w

"The best part of the book is the statistical analysis of what the standards of living of the wheat farmer really are. This can be highly recommended to all inhabitants of Ontario." F. H. Underhill
+ Canadian Forum 19:125 Jl '39 350w

Reviewed by F. W. Burton
Canadian Hist R 20:436 D '39 500w
Foreign Affairs 18:381 Ja '40 10w

"This is a welcome book—orderly, informative, compact, and well and heavily documented, partly from unpublished materials." M. K. Bennett
+ Pacific Affairs 12:453 D '39 650w

"Professor Britnell's treatment of the subject is well informed and impartial."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p494 Ag 19 '39 110w

BRITTON, KARL. Communication; a philosophical study of language. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 290p $3.75 Harcourt [12s 6d Routledge]
401 Language and languages. Logic. Meaning (psychology) [39-5500]

"This book is a useful companion volume to 'The Meaning of Meaning' by Ogden and Richards. It is a logical inquiry into language problems, offering an analysis of what we mean in describing the physical world and our experiences, and in conveying necessary propositions, moral laws, and poetic truths. It includes an account of the use of words in definitions and logical deductions, and of the so-called 'emotive' use of words." (Publisher's note) Index.

"An excellent introduction to the theory and practice of modern logical analysis." T. G.
+ Nature 143:959 Je 10 '39 250w

"That Mr. Britton's book is above comparison with recent pseudo-logical works by popular littérateurs, goes without saying. . . His book is notable both for its breadth of scope and the suggestive analyses it offers." Justus Buchler
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 30 '39 500w

"Mr. Britton gives us an original work of high quality written in a style whose conversational ease is delightful if deceptive; but he has, with Platonic inscrutability, left us in some doubt about his attitude towards many fundamental issues. Wise with all the wisdom of the Logical Positivists, he hardly remains one of their number; and, as for Behaviourism, while he affects to 'shock' us by proclaiming himself a Behaviourist in regard to the 'exact sciences,' the reservation implied leaves the utterance devoid of all power to scandalize."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p84 F 11 '39 900w

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. Heedless Susan, who sometimes forgot to remember; il. by the author. 170p $1.75 Knopf 39-30530

Susan, who had a bad habit of forgetting to remember, spent the summer with her grandmother in the country. There she found a friend of her own age who had a very dependable memory.

Booklist 36:136 D 1 '39

"You can laugh without effort over Susan's summer, whether you are eleven or old enough to remember the nineties." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 D 24 '39 290w

"Will be popular with fifth and sixth grade girls who like humorous stories of everyday life. Good print and format. Miss Brock is more successful in illustrating gay picture books; her black and white drawings seem stiff; her children appear too foreign to be the convincing typical American village children they are supposed to represent." Marian Herr
+ — Library J 64:1000 D 15 '39 110w

"Susan's adventures and escapades are fresh and interesting and childlike, and her conversations with Bessie, a friend of her own age, who was as good at remembering as Susan was at forgetting, have a pleasant and amusing naturalness." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p26 N 12 '39 280w
Wis Lib Bul 35:219 D '39

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. A present for auntie [il. by the author]. [96p] $1 Knopf
(W) 39-16411

A week before his auntie's birthday John, aged six, decided to buy a birthday present for her. As a matter of fact he bought several in succession, because somehow the presents all seemed to get used up. The final selection, a whistle, was more lasting, and on the great day Auntie decided to let John take care of it, which to John's mind was a perfect arrangement.

Booklist 36:17 S '39

"Slipping from one natural happening to the next, a child will not know that he is being exercised in a new skill—reading. Don't read this aloud, let the child do it; longer than most stories offered for the purpose, it repeats just enough to get easier all the time, the pictures attend to any new words, and interest makes it seem short. John is funny, but the author does not make fun of him; finance at his age is no laughing matter." M. L. Becker
+ Books p5 Je 18 '39 280w

"A pleasant tale, told in easy words that you can read even if you are a beginner." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 28 '39 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Briggs
Library J 64:613 Ag '39 60w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p12 S 10 '39 190w
Wis Lib Bul 35:188 N '39

BROCKWAY, WALLACE, and WEINSTOCK, HERBERT. Men of music; their lives, times, and achievements. 613p il $3.75 Simon & Schuster
927.8 Musicians (W) 39-27846

"The book offers an analysis, by no means patronizingly simple, of the lives, times, and achievements of the great composers from Bach to Stravinsky. The narrative sections are often remarkably fresh. . . The authors have their own opinions and prejudices; no attempt is made to attract a large audience merely by saying the proper and orthodox thing." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 36:108 N 15 '39

"These authors . . . have applied a healthy skepticism and a goodly amount of common sense to their job, and the result combines their thoroughly sympathetic understanding of the actual musical accomplishment of the masters with a refreshing lack of that overreligious, esthetically hysterical writing which makes so much music criticism seem to have been written in a trance." William Soskin
+ Books p24 O 29 '39 1150w

"Witty and stimulating are these short biographies. . . To a rapidly increasing audience for great music it will supply a handy book of compact information." Edwin Clark
+ Commonweal 31:98 N 17 '39 500w

"Mr. Brockway and Mr. Weinstock have written not merely biographical essays of each man. If that were all, there would be little place for this new book, for musical literature is crowded with volumes that tell the lives of the composers. The virtue of this handsomely made book is that the essays are critical as well as factual. For Mr. Brockway and Mr. Weinstock music is a throbbing, living art, and the music of the composers is as worthy of discussion as their private lives." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p14 N 19 '39 900w

"On the whole, 'Men of Music,' as Deems Taylor implies in his interesting introduction, may do for the subject what Thomas Craven's 'Men of Art' did for its. Good illustrations." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 15:85 N 4 '39 190w

"The layman who reads this book will become acquainted with many opinions that do not represent the consensus of the most revered authorities. But he will not be in doubt that they are really opinions, and that in many cases they are based on a genuine familiarity with the music itself, and so have an incisiveness which the most prudent rehash of accepted judgments would lack." Arthur Mendel
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:12 N 25 '39 550w

"No new information nor any very profound observations are to be found in the bulky volume. . . But readers who like alert musical comment presented in a breezy style will find this book an agreeable change from the 'program notes' sort of criticism or from more academic treatises on the subject."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 O 18 '39 550w

BRODE, WALLACE REED. Chemical spectroscopy. 494p il $6; college ed $5 Wiley [36s Chapman]

544.6 Spectrum analysis 39-21840

"The book begins with the theory of atomic and molecular spectra, a description of qualitative and quantitative analysis, the theory and application of absorption and infrared spectra, the structure of organic molecules in the interesting field of chelate rings, free radicals, etc., and continues with laboratory experiments which include many useful examples of the various quantitative methods. Special chapters on photography and the equipment of a spectrographic laboratory conclude the textual part of the book. . . Numerous photographs, drawings and graphs are used to illustrate the book. Special emphasis should be placed on the excellent and complete bibliography at the end of each chapter." Chem & Met Eng

"Dr. Brode's work certainly fills a gap in the tools of the analyst and scholar interested in spectrographic work. As one of the few books to cover the entire field of spectroscopy thoroughly it will be most welcome to the student and instructor, as well as the research man and industrial worker. It is an excellent treatise and highly recommended for institutions of learning and industrial laboratories." E. Henning
+ Chem & Met Eng 46:724 N '39 270w

"This book should serve a valuable purpose as a general introduction for those entering the field of chemical spectroscopy and as a survey of the types of information spectroscopy may give the chemist. The more experienced worker should find it a useful reference book, but will have to supplement it with other references for exact information on specific subjects. The bibliography of 136 books and 126 original articles will prove useful." J. S. Owen + Ind & Eng Chem 17:669 O 20 '39 470w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:63 O '39

BROGLIE, LOUIS, prince de. Matter and light; the new physics, tr. by W. H. Johnston. 300p $3.50 Norton

530 Physics (W)

"The reader will find in this volume 21 essays arranged in six groups: a survey of present day physics, a discussion of matter and electricity, a discussion of light and radiation, an explanation of wave mechanics, a set of philosophical studies on quantum physics and a miscellany of three general philosophical essays." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 36:127 D 1 '39
N Y New Tech Bks 24:61 O '39

Reviewed by W. M. Malisoff
N Y Times p14 O 1 '39 1100w

"Throughout, the typically French easy simplicity and lucidity are maintained, which should make the book available to a wide public. There is a little mathematics (poorly explained and proof-read) but it is inessential to the understanding of this source-book of modern physics. M. de Broglie's lucent intelligence would be a joy at any time and is now." John Riordan
+ Sat R of Lit 20:11 S 23 '39 200w

"In this critique of the new physics, Professor de Broglie presents in lucid style the results of recent investigations tending to demonstrate the affinity between light and matter. Other aspects of contemporary physics with which he deals include wave-mechanics and quantum theory. All who are more than casually interested in the fundamental concepts of modern physical research will welcome this contribution from the well-known French recipient of the Nobel Prize."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:4 O '39 70w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad
Spec 163:939 D 29 '39 380w

BROMFIELD, LOUIS. England, a dying oligarchy. 32p pa 50c Harper

942.084 Great Britain—Politics and government. Great Britain—Foreign relations 39-2089

Severe criticism of the Chamberlain government in England and Chamberlain's "appeasement" policy. By an American novelist, for many years a resident in France.

Reviewed by M. L. Elting
Forum 101:iv Mr '39 110w

"Vigorous and sincere as his pamphlet is, one hopes that Mr. Bromfield will continue to employ his superb talents in writing novels." J. F. G.
Sat R of Lit 19:21 F 25 '39 220w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 12 '39 250w

BROMFIELD, LOUIS. It takes all kinds. 690p $3 Harper

(W)

An omnibus volume consisting of three novels and six short stories. Contents: McLeod's folly; The hand of God; New York legend; The girl who knew everybody; Bitter lotus; Good time Bessie; That which never returns; Better than life; Aunt Flora.

Booklist 36:88 N 1 '39

"It seems safe to guess that Mr. Bromfield didn't set out to write a book about all kinds of people. The nine stories here now brought together in one fat volume were copyrighted through the past eight years, though none of them has previously appeared in this country in book form. . . Put together within one set of covers they are a bonanza for a reader in search of entertainment, both in amount and in the easily sustained interest that is a corollary of Mr. Bromfield's storytelling gift." Mary Ross
+ Books p3 O 8 '39 650w

"There is certainly a place for fiction with an international flavor. . . But somehow this does not seem exactly the time for them. They are outmoded, with that peculiar staleness of the recently dated. Mr. Bromfield is a magnificent writer, and now that he has assembled these period pieces and got them out of the way, I devoutly hope he will write a new novel, not laid in India or on the Lido, not resuscitating the antique." Ann Springer

BROMFIELD, LOUIS—Continued

— Boston Transcript p1 O 28 '39 500w

Cath World 150:370 D '39 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '39

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p3 D 8 '39 280w

Reviewed by Anthony West

New Statesman & Nation 18:898 D 16 '39 220w

"Startling and stimulating fiction for almost anybody's taste. . . In 'It Takes All Kinds,' it is Mr. Bromfield, the teller of tales, who dominates the picture—not the Mr. Bromfield who is recurrently taken seriously and who once, even, won a Pulitzer Prize. As a teller of tales, moreover, it would be foolish to underestimate him, for he has the golden, God-given facility which can hold a reader mesmerized even against his better judgment. Granted so much talent, however, there is nothing to excuse what he sometimes does with it—nothing to palliate the fact that his professedly 'sophisticated' stories are hollow and garish and thin." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p6 O 8 '39 1000w

"The best of the jobs is 'Bitter Lotus.' . . The rest of the tales are expert enough, except for a sentimental atrocity called 'McLeod's Folly,' which Mr. Bromfield must have written when he was fourteen, and even then with his tongue in his cheek. Perhaps if he wrote less easily, he might write better. Not, I should add, that 'It Takes All Kinds' isn't agreeable reading, provided your mood is sufficiently relaxed."

+ — New Yorker 15:76 O 7 '39 100w

Pratt p23 winter '40

"In spite of its formidable size and weight, the book is excellent reading, and instead of being hit or miss the tales fit together in a pattern. . . If Mr. Bromfield means by his title that it takes all kinds to make a world, the world he has given us in his pages is on the whole limited and superficial. It is limited by the present popular demands for background and plot. It is superficial, because few writers, no matter how great their sympathy and aptitude, can travel about the world, and write of more than its externals." J. P. Marquand

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:7 O 14 '39 850w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 22 '39 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p715 D 9 '39 900w

BRONOWSKI, JACOB. The poet's defence. 258p $2.50 Macmillan [7s 6d Cambridge]

808.1 Poetry. English poetry—History and criticism [39-23417]

Study of poetry, its essence and function, as evidenced from the study of such poets as Dryden, Sidney, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Shelley, Swinburne, Housman, and Yeats.

"Mr. Bronowski makes an excellent case for his belief that the poetry of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries has been written against the grain of theory. He does not deny that genuine poetry has been produced, but holds that it has been produced in spite of the beliefs held by the poets. His demonstration is clear and exciting in its implications. It might conceivably lead to a new effort of imaginative integrity and a fresh conception of the dignity of poetic truth." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p8 Jl 23 '39 400w

Reviewed by John Ritchey

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 15 '39 440w

"The author seems to lack the philosophical training to deal with this problem, and his book is only suggestive." Allen Tate

New Repub 100:53 Ag 16 '39 300w

"The author is sometimes minutely analytical, sometimes brilliantly illuminating, sometimes iconoclastic, but almost always challenging. The sections that will arouse the deepest interest and doubtless the widest disagreement are those that deal with the modern poets, and particularly with Yeats and A. E. Housman." S. A. Coblentz

+ N Y Times p2 Je 18 '39 600w

Reviewed by Philip Henderson

Spec 162:728 Ap 28 '39 550w

"In spite of the arbitrariness by which [the essay on Housman] is disfigured, Mr. Bronowski's is a valuable book. The critical comparison between the poetic faiths held by Wordsworth and Coleridge is penetrating; and he has the honour of being the first critic we have met who has clearly grasped the essential difference between the attitudes of the two poets towards Nature—using the word in the modern sense. These complementary essays are the work of a critic of real power, and, although they are not wholly free from the arbitrary violence of the essay on Housman, they are a positive elucidation of the true relation between the poets."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p315 My 27 '39 700w

BRONSON, BERTRAND HARRIS. Joseph Ritson, scholar-at-arms. 2v 376;377-819p il map set $7.50 Univ. of Calif. [set 34s Cambridge]

B or 92 Ritson, Joseph 39-3036

Joseph Ritson (1752-1803) was an antiquarian and scholar in the field of philological and literary research. This study—of "the man and his accomplishment against the background of a society and an age"—is in two parts. The first contains a more or less chronological account of his life and works, the second deals, in detail and individually, with the many controversies in which Ritson waged war against other literary men of his time. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Bronson tells his story and portrays his character in a lively and genial fashion; and if it be said that he tells it in too remorseless detail, the reply is that that kind of scholarship is the appropriate tribute to Joseph Ritson." David Tilden

+ Books p22 Ap 30 '39 1000w

Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson

Boston Transcript p2 My 6 '39 650w

"Mr. Bronson's work would have delighted Ritson. It has the accuracy, the devotion to antiquarian detail, and the love of old times and customs which are traits of Ritson himself."

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 1 '39 950w

BRONSON, WILFRID SWANCOURT. The chisel-tooth tribe; il. by the author. 200p map $2 Harcourt

599.32 Rodents—Juvenile literature

(W) 39-27715

Natural history for youthful readers, written in humorous style, and based on the author's own experiences. The habits and characteristics of squirrels, beavers, porcupines, rabbits, woodchucks, mice, and some less well-known small animals are considered.

Booklist 36:46 O 1 '39

"The best and most vivacious natural history [Mr Bronson] has yet given [boys and girls]. His earlier trick of humanizing his pictures out of all reason has been laid aside, and his squirrels [and other small creatures] . . . are just lively, furry, likable animals acting like themselves. Perhaps they are a trifle more winsome in these fat little pictures than they might be if met in the open, but no more so than children believe (and want) them to be. The information running alongside is elementary but presented without condescension." M. L. Becker

+ Books p5 S 3 '39 400w

Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39

"The sound information is humorously and clearly given, while Mr. Bronson's many pictures are designed to emphasize family likenesses and differences as well as individual methods of work and play." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:50 Ja '40 70w

"An authentic, readable book. . . The author has a fine sense of humor which adds greatly to the text and also to his sketches of the animals, at home, at work, and even at play. There are four excellent colored plates, numerous sketches and cartoons. It is a nature book with personality, that even people without a love of nature would enjoy. Recommended." M. R. Lucas

+ Library J 64:872 N 1 '39 90w

"A book that libraries and schools will want to have on their shelves and one that will be an excellent addition to a child's own library." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 D 17 '39 180w
Sat R of Lit 21:27 N 18 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 60w
Wis Lib Bul 35:192 N '39

BROOKE, IRIS. Western European costume, and its relation to the theatre; 2v; v 1, Thirteenth to seventeenth century. 151p il col pl $5 Macmillan [18s Harrap]

391 Costume (W) [39-27578]

The author, well known for her series of books on English costume, here combines a survey of western European costume in the middle ages, with a study of the influence of the theater and related arts on costume.

Booklist 35:374 Jl 15 '39

"In an admirable series of drawings, boldly conceived and clearly executed, Miss Brooke illustrates the main styles of costume in vogue in Italy, Spain, France, Germany and Flanders from 1260 to 1599. . . To the text, unfortunately, one cannot give the same unqualified recommendation. In matters of arrangement, grouping of related or contrasted facts, and methods of presentation, Miss Brooke has still a great deal to learn from our expert costume writers; and her refusal to provide a good glossarial index—a fault common to her other costume books—halves the usefulness of her work for reference purposes."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p346 Je 10 '39 240w

BROOKE, ZACHARY NUGENT. History of Europe from 911 to 1198. (Hist. of medieval and modern Europe) 553p map $5 Putnam [16s Methuen]

940.1 Middle ages—History. Europe—History [39-13718]

"This is the sixth volume to appear of the series on the history of Europe to which it belongs, but the second in order of precedence. Covering a period of three centuries, it describes some of the most important phases of European history. But here, as for other periods, there is the difficulty of treating as a whole what is actually a complex of many various elements. . . Here, however, the difficulty is lessened inasmuch as there is a central theme. . . That central theme is, of course, the Western, or Holy Roman, Empire, the history of which, under a series of vigorous rulers, is here followed through its many vicissitudes from its revival by Otto the Great to its culmination in Henry VI." Times [London] Lit Sup

"A lucid and well-written piece of work which is clearly the outcome of prolonged study. Its unpretentious quality, indeed, may easily deceive the reader, for its quiet pages have been written with the scholarly reflexion which finds its satisfaction in a simple and reliable narrative." F. M. P.

+ Eng Hist R 54:526 Jl '39 260w

Reviewed by Lloyd Eshleman
N Y Times p12 Je 18 '39 360w

"Dr. Brooke has written a sensible and well-balanced book, a book of cautious and temperate judgement, on a period which in certain respects is one of the most formative in European history." E. F. Jacob

+ Spec 161:1129 D 30 '38 800w

"The story of these centuries, so full of masterful characters and momentous events, is told for us by Dr. Brooke with admirable clearness and with the sober judgment of a trained historian. He is specially happy in his account of such a complex series of events as the Investiture Contest or that of the Crusades, and his characterization is both critical and sympathetic."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p184 Ap 1 '39 900w

BROOKS, CLEANTH. Modern poetry and the tradition. 253p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

808.1 Poetry—History and criticism [39-22007]

This book presents the "thesis that English poetry and poetic theory were deflected from their richest line of development by the scientific rationalism which came with Hobbes and has continued its restrictive influence to the present day, when such modern poets as Yeats and Eliot have begun the re-establishment of the earlier line of development. . . In an analysis of the structure of the works of such poets as Auden, Eliot, and MacLeish, Mr. Brooks lays particular stress on the ways in which departure from 'traditional' poetry seems greatest, on the apparent penchant for 'unpoetic' materials, and on the tendency toward obscurity." (Publisher's note) Selected bibliography of modern criticism. Index.

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
New Repub 102:187 F 5 '40 1100w

"Mr. Brooks offers this as the consolidation of a critical position that many writers in recent years have been building up, what I suppose would be called the intellectualist position, and it is a masterly piece of work. The modest claim does not mean any lack of originality in the detailed interpretations of poems." William Empson

+ Poetry 55:154 D '39 800w

"This is the work of a scholar who is sensitive to every nuance of feeling and every change of pitch. Mr. Brooks is a probing analyst, but he is not a pedant. His work, reflecting his subject, is allusive rather than simple and straightforward, complex but clear." Louis Untermeyer

+ Sat R of Lit 21:17 Ja 13 '40 400w

Reviewed by Maynard Mack
Yale R n s 29:398 winter '40 850w

BROOKS, LEE MARSHALL, and BROOKS, MRS EVELYN C. Adventuring in adoption [foreword by Ernest R. Groves]. 225p $2 Univ. of N.C. press [9s Oxford]

362.73 Adoption 39-20378

This book on adoption is in two parts: part one is written primarily for adoptive families and all others who, in prospect or in retrospect, are interested in a nontechnical discussion of adoption; part two is primarily for those who see the adopted child as a focus of parental and professional responsibility and who wish to explore the broader field of adoption. Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 36:61 O 15 '39
N Y Times p11 S 17 '39 390w

Reviewed by V. P. Wasson
Sat R of Lit 21:20 D 30 '39 500w

"There is no doubt, as Professor Groves indicates in the foreword, that this book is needed and it will be useful to people who are thinking of adopting children. While this reviewer

BROOKS, L. M. and E. C.—Continued
thinks that Professor Groves' foreword might be considered slightly over-commendatory, one must say that it is a good book and the reviewer agrees with a statement credited to the late Dr. Carl C. Carstens, that 'the things we would like to have said are in the book and all the safeguards that we stand for in adoption are included.' " C. C. Jones
+ — Social Forces 18:301 D '39 950w
Wis Lib Bul 36:12 Ja '40

BROOKS, ROBERT ROMANO RAVI. Unions of their own choosing. 296p il $3 Yale univ. press [14s Oxford]

331.88 U.S. National labor relations board. Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Trade unions—U.S. (W) 39-27020

Professor Brooks answers the charges persistently made against the National Labor Relations Board—that it is pro-labor, that it is un-American, that it is pro-C.I.O. The book is concerned with the historical background of the act; the way in which the Board has dealt with such problems as anti-unionism, collective bargaining, industrial disputes, inter-union conflict, and the unfair practices of labor; and the manner in which the Board is related to our system of courts, our civil liberties and democratic processes. Index.

"A thorough, temperate, and readable account of the NLRB. . . While a complete study of the work of the Board remains to be made, this book touches on all relevant matters. There are some uncertainties of organization, but in general the material is carefully ordered; sub-headings or an analytical table of contents would have made the order more useful." Carl Raushenbush
+ Am Econ R 29:388 Je '39 550w
Reviewed by Herman Feldman
Ann Am Acad 205:147 S '39 500w
Booklist 35:199 F 15 '39

"In spite of some defects the major thesis of the book is effectively presented. Supporters of real collective bargaining will support the NLRB and its record. To those who would neither uphold or denounce this point of view 'Unions of Their Own Choosing' is compulsory reading." Michael Mayer
Boston Transcript p2 My 27 '39 360w

"This is a short, clear, well-ordered exposition of the National Labor Relations Act. Mr. Brooks has written for the general reader, making his points simple and illustrating them with examples from actual cases or from what he calls 'fictionalized cases.' The book can be definitely recommended to all who desire to study the practical working of collective bargaining in the United States." John Risk
+ Canadian Forum 19:26 Ap '39 550w
Reviewed by M. C. Latta
Christian Century 56:609 My 10 '39 950w
Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 16 '39 600w

"Anyone wishing to criticize the N.L.R.B. should read this book first." G. E. Shipler, Jr.
+ Churchman 153:27 Ap 1 '39 140w
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '39
Reviewed by Joseph Calderon
Commonweal 30:362 Ag 4 '39 420w
Reviewed by B. M. Selekman
Harvard Business R 17:367 spring '39 210w

"By all odds this is the most sweeping and convincing study of the Board and its efficacy that has appeared. Mr. Brooks is an able investigator and a competent reporter."
+ Management R 28:67 F '39 550w

"Arriving just when forces are being marshaled for a drive to amend the National Labor Relations Act, it is a timely document. Whether the reasoned analysis contained in the book can dissipate the emotional reactions which so many otherwise intelligent people cherish about the board and its work is a matter concerning which there must be some doubt. But there can be no doubt that Mr. Brooks's attempt is of positive value. . . Its discussion of the background of events leading to the enactment of the National Labor Relations Act, its explanation of the essential principles established by the statute, and its description of the method by which the board operates, presented in an interesting and lively fashion, will foster a better understanding of a greatly maligned institution." Benedict Wolf
+ Nation 148:183 F 11 '39 850w

"Into a pool of passions Professor Brooks has dropped his timely and temperate study of the law and its administration. That he has looked upon them both and found them good does not make his book any the less required reading for partisans. . . All will have in this Brooks volume a model for temperateness and moderation. Professor Brooks looked at the record. This is what he found." Francis Brown
+ N Y Times p5 F 12 '39 1400w
Reviewed by Murray Ross
Pol Sci Q 54:278 Je '39 650w

"This is the most lucid account of the work of the National Labor Relations Board which has yet appeared. Written with the same wealth of incident which marked the author's earlier 'When Labor Organizes,' it should do much to lessen the prejudice of even the most bitter opponents of the Wagner Act and of its administration. . . Mr. Brooks has written an extremely timely book in a fair and informed manner, and his work should do much to reduce the amount of epithet-calling, and to substitute instead considered and temperate judgment on some of the most controversial issues of the day. He has performed a public service of the first magnitude." P. H. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 19:13 F 11 '39 1000w
Special Libraries 30:136 Ap '39
Reviewed by Adeline Macrum
Special Libraries 30:316 N '39

"The difficulties and problems are not ignored; no whitewashing is intended. But the total appraisal of motive and of accomplishment is sane, temperate and constructively in harmony with democratic preconceptions. The labors of the board and the public attitude toward the board could be immeasureably strengthened if all citizens concerned with labor relations could ponder this evidence. It is persuasive in a statesmanlike way just because the author understands and explains so fully that the influence and power of the board 'are wholly on the side of democracy.' " Ordway Tead
+ Survey 75:124 Ap '39 360w
Times [London] Lit Sup p239 Ap 22 '39 150w
Wis Lib Bul 35:46 Mr '39

"Notwithstanding its limitations, and they are serious ones, Unions of Their Own Choosing is a pioneer work in its field—simply written, expertly documented, without question valuable reading for students of industrial relations." Seymour Linfield
+ — Yale Law J 48:1304 My '39 1500w
Reviewed by Leo Wolman
Yale R n s 28:835 summer '39 480w

BROOKS, WALTER ROLLIN. Wiggins for president; il. by Kurt Wiese. 253p $2 Knopf

39-25882

"The remarkable animals on Mr. Bean's farm found a bank to prove that they are sufficiently responsible to be left in charge while Mr. and Mrs. Bean tour Europe. That accomplished, they found the First Animal Republic and after a spirited election install Mrs. Wiggins, the cow, as president. All the familiar characters from the earlier books appear including the well-preserved Charles and Henrietta, and there are some newcomers as well, unscrupulous woodpeckers whose experience in Washington has unfitted them for the high moral tone of New York State politics as practiced by the Bean animals." Library J

"While this is the sixth book in the series, the spontaneous gaiety of the style is unabated, and the author's sly satire never becomes objectionably unchildlike. These stories have not been so popular as the Dolittle books which they closely resemble, but libraries where they have a steady following will find this latest volume equal in quality to the others and definitely superior to The Clockwork Twin." J. L. Sauer

+ Library J 64:712 S 15 '39 120w

"The author has never succeeded in recapturing the spontaneous fun of his first story, 'To and Again.' . . Though stereotyped in situation and commonplace in style, 'Wiggins for President' tells a lively story and one which many young readers, though perhaps the less imaginative ones, will enjoy. Kurt Wiese's drawings are amusing and expressive." A. T. Eaton

+ — N Y Times p12 O 8 '39 230w
Sat R of Lit 21:26 N 18 '39 40w

BROWDER, EARL RUSSELL. Fighting for peace. 256p $1 Int. pubs.

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. U.S.—Politics and government. Europe—Politics. Communism—U.S. 39-21361

Collection of articles, speeches, and reports, by the Communist leader in America, which were published from February 2, 1938, to February 27, 1939. The publication date of the book was July 28, 1939. Index.

Reviewed by R. C. Brooks
— Am Pol Sci R 33:1097 D '39 300w
Reviewed by Quincy Howe
New Repub 100:138 S 6 '39 700w

BROWN, AUDREY ALEXANDRA. Log of a lame duck [autobiography] with a foreword by Lady Tweedsmuir. 292p $2 (8s 6d) Macmillan

818 (W) 39-4692

"[This book contains] the account of time spent in search of health at the 'House of Good Hope' on Vancouver Island, B. C. The author, unable to stand or walk, has been crippled with arthritis for eight years—she is only 30. Her account of the patients at a hospital famous for its therapy for cripples is a human interest document without any attempt to excite sympathy. The stories of the patients—all children except herself at that time—are not narratives of people sick in mind through bodily ills, but of brave, humorous youngsters." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 35:220 Mr 1 '39
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 18 '39 60w

"Hospitals are so seldom thought of as places where merriment abounds, that the story is remarkable. And it is good to see how a blithe spirit can triumph over the flesh."
Christian Century 56:187 F 8 '39 100w

"Free from the slightest taint of Pollyanna, the book is deeply sincere and strong. It is the reader's privilege to have met so vibrant a soul." M. L. E.
+ Churchman 153:50 Ap 1 '39 100w

"The author is a poet, and she writes with a poet's simplicity and restraint and from a poet's awareness: 'The Log of a Lame Duck' is a beautiful book."
+ N Y Times p12 F 19 '39 500w

"To some extent the reader will need to call upon his imagination. Miss Brown's first-person narrative is easy to read because it is gracefully written. Fundamentally it is a record of hope and courage which cannot help but compel admiration. Yet it tells us nearly always less than we should like to know. Each reader will put the book aside with some particular question still unanswered. What really was the matter with Clari, for instance? And how did the operation on Baby Jacqueline's hand turn out?" M. W.
+ — Sat R of Lit 19:18 F 18 '39 170w
Springf'd Republican p8 F 7 '39 330w
Wis Lib Bul 35:62 Ap '39

BROWN, CARLETON FAIRCHILD, ed. Religious lyrics of the XVth century. 426p $3.50 (10s 6d) Oxford

821.08 Lyric poetry. English poetry—Collections. Religious poetry

"In this volume Professor Carleton Brown, whose earlier volumes, 'English Lyrics of the XIIIth Century' and 'Religious Lyrics of the XIVth Century,' are treasured by all who know them, adds to his benefactions by printing, with introduction, notes and a glossary, 192 religious lyrics of the fifteenth century, of which seventy-four have never been printed before, and twenty-six are printed for the first time in versions obviously more authentic than those previously known." Times [London] Lit Sup

"A collection of great value for students of the century. All the poems have been translated directly from manuscripts (or photostats) with Mr. Brown's notable textual skill and precision."
+ Books p36 D 10 '39 240w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 26 '39 550w

"The compilation has involved an immense deal of research among the sources, and the verdict on the result will be that not one moment of it was waste. The editor writes that out of the material available he could have made a collection ten times as great. He has had to deny himself much. . . But it is rash to question any conclusion or even opinion of so fine a scholar as Mr. Carleton Brown; and the point is that, though leaving out a great quantity of more easily accessible matter, he has been able to offer us so rich, so manifold and so poetical an anthology as this."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p624 O 28 '39 1600w

BROWN, CHARLES REYNOLDS. Being made over. 159p $1.50 Harper

252 Sermons 39-9343

Volume of sermons by the dean emeritus of the Divinity school of Yale University. Contents: Being made over; Power to become; Growing up; Religious life under changed conditions; Mending our religion; Overcome evil; Facing trials; Spiritual crises; The positive life; Pure religion; Persistent faith; The sense of security; The song the shepherds heard.

"This great preacher is scholarly, profound, devout; but his supreme quality is simplicity, that simplicity which invariably accompanies a ripe and chastened wisdom." J. H. Holmes
+ Books p21 O 1 '39 140w
Churchman 153:35 S 1 '39 100w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '39

"These fourteen addresses will prove suggestive to anyone who tries to meet the demand for effective preaching. Dean Brown has been an inspiration to students at Yale and elsewhere." E. W. Powell
+ Crozer Q 16:238 Jl '39 70w

"These sermons are not ornate, but straightforward and forceful. Here we have biblical preaching that clings close to contemporary experience, spiritual fervor united with social concern. The richness of wisdom which years impart is found here without the doddering reiteration of a once relevant message." H. L. Bowman
+ J Religion 19:292 Jl '39 120w

BROWN, CORA; BROWN, ROSE, and BROWN, ROBERT CARLTON. Soups, sauces and gravies. 319p $1.75 Lippincott

641.5 Cookery. Soups. Sauces 39-4668

Recipes, simple and complicated, for making a vast variety of soups, sauces and gravies, of American and foreign origin. Index.

BROWN, C., R. and R. C.—Continued

Booklist 35:246 Ap 1 '39

Pratt p12 autumn '39

"The recipes are practical and interesting and many of the famous foreign dishes—Italian minestrone, French croûte-au-pot, Hungarian goulash soup and German beer soup are described in detail. The chapter devoted to garnishes is especially deserving of mention, comprising as it does recipes which unite succulency with charm of appearance."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p470 Ag 5 '39 80w

Wis Lib Bul 35:61 Ap '39

BROWN, CORA; BROWN, ROSE, and BROWN, ROBERT CARLTON. The vegetable cook book; from trowel to table. 279p $1.75 Lippincott

641.5 Cookery (vegetables) (W) 39-21593

Notes on vegetable gardening as well as many varied recipes for preparing both the old standbys and the many new kinds constantly appearing. The book is not exclusively for the out-and-out vegetarian, for many of the dishes are prepared with meat or meat juices. Index.

Booklist 36:38 O 1 '39

Wis Lib Bul 35:183 N '39

BROWN, MRS ESTELLE AUBREY. Around two worlds. 266p $2.50 Humphries

Story of a shipload of tourists on a round-the-world cruise.

"She gives you a glimpse of many ports and of many lives. The narrative is ingenious in its change of pace and change of scene; it's like a capon expertly carved—appetizingly disjointed." Lisle Bell

+ Books p11 Ja 15 '39 100w

"Most of the conversation sounds like a verbatim transcription from shorthand notes. Estelle Brown has a quick ear and an excellent memory. How do the ship's officers survive these voyages?"

+ Boston Transcript p1 F 4 '39 40w

BROWN, ESTHER LUCILE. Lawyers and the promotion of justice. 302p $1 Russell Sage

340 Lawyers. Justice, Administration of (W) 38-39583

Outlines the history and problems of legal education in America. A brief sketch of each of the principal national professional associations is given. The book ends with a short study of the chief weaknesses in administration of justice and the attempts now being made to overcome them. Indexes.

"Although Miss Brown's point of view is not new and her materials are readily available elsewhere, her book is the most convenient form in which these data have appeared. It might well be required reading for prospective law students." J. A. C. Grant

+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:151 F '39 250w

"All these things have been said many times before. Miss Brown has succeeded only in collecting statistics and opinions from a great variety of sources and in presenting them in one brief volume that should be of some service to students of professionalization, to reformers, and to a few lawyers." J. E. Hulett

Am Soc R 4:610 Ag '39 650w

Reviewed by A. H. Frey

Ann Am Acad 204:225 Jl '39 600w

"Conceding the validity and freshening quality of her social science approach, it might be observed that the layman author has placed too much reliance upon the peripatetic legal introversions contained in the bar association literature and has perhaps failed to emphasize the more salient writings about law and lawyers. . . Insofar as the author has failed to draw sharp distinctions she has reflected the confusion of her source material. She has classified, arranged, and commented on the material, but a critical analysis of lawyers and the promotion of justice remains to be written." Samuel Herman

+ — Columbia Law R 39:317 F '39 1450w

"While the author is restrained—certainly too much so to make her book exciting reading—in forming and presenting her own judgments, nevertheless the showing here made of what the lawyers are doing, and perhaps even more of what they are not doing, deserves serious thought, and perhaps some disturbing reflections, on the part of both those within and those without the profession." C. E. Clark

+ — Harvard Law R 53:152 N '39 1350w

Pratt p9 autumn '39

Reviewed by Hastings Lyon

Survey G 28:343 My '39 320w

BROWN, FRANCIS JAMES. The sociology of childhood. 498p il $2.25 Prentice-Hall

136.7 Child study. Sociology. Social psychology 39-4221

A textbook which correlates current literature and researches respecting the life of the normal child in its social aspects—in the family, in play groups, the school, the state, and the church. The author is associate professor of education at New York university. Index.

Reviewed by L. G. Brown

Am J Soc 45:134 Jl '39 230w

"The Sociology of Childhood fills the gaps left by previous textbooks in the field of educational sociology. Students of education in colleges and teachers' colleges will receive a more balanced training when child sociology, so well outlined in this book, is universally included in their pre-service and in-service training." L. D. Zeleny

+ Am Soc R 4:455 Je '39 160w

Reviewed by G. B. Mangold

Ann Am Acad 205:205 S '39 550w

Booklist 35:358 Jl 1 '39

"Here is a textbook as human and homely as a talk over the back fence." Marguerite Hurrey

+ Survey 75:156 My '39 360w

BROWN, FRANCIS JAMES; HODGES, CHARLES, and ROUCEK, JOSEPH SLABEY, eds. Contemporary world politics; an introduction to the problems of international relations; co-authors: Howard Becker [and others]. 718p maps $5; college ed $4 Wiley

341 World politics. International law and relations 39-27305

A series of articles written by authorities in their fields presenting a picture of post-War international politics. The book is divided into six major divisions: world conflict; major foreign policies; regional interests; world organization; making world opinion; roads to world peace. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman

Am J Soc 45:494 N '39 300w

Reviewed by G. B. Noble

Am Pol Sci R 33:1100 D '39 550w

"The manner in which the material has been organized for presentation makes the book clear, interesting, and most readable. The summaries at the end of each section are excellent contributions." W. G. Weaver

+ Am Soc R 4:738 O '39 350w

"As a symposium, the volume is one of the best I know. It is scrupulously planned, competently balanced, rich in themes, and comprehensive in coverage. On the whole, the selection of collaborators reflects the same good judgment. Most of the contributions are informative, incisive, and relevant." F. M. Marx

+ Ann Am Acad 204:188 Jl '39 550w

Booklist 35:287 My 1 '39

"Perhaps it is too late for a general understanding of the problems to have any effect in accomplishing a peaceful solution. Nevertheless this volume is of very great value to either the student or casual observer of today's events. By thus obtaining a well rounded historical background, the reader is able to understand and evaluate the present situation." Pauline Ehrlich

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 500w

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 9 '39 500w

"Since thirty-four apparently competent authors have made contributions to this excellent symposium, anyone who will read this book will gain something of an understanding of world affairs. It is the type of book which is better for having been written by many authors than it would have been if written by one writer." Paul Kiniery

+ Commonweal 30:135 My 26 '39 250w

Foreign Affairs 17:805 Jl '39 40w

New Repub 99:55 My 17 '39 40w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 24 '39 320w

BROWN, IVOR JOHN CARNEGIE, and FEARON, GEORGE. This Shakespeare industry; amazing monument [Eng title: Amazing monument]. 332p il $2.75 Harper [10s 6d Heinemann]

822.33 Shakespeare, William 40-2551

Survey of the process of commercializing Stratford-on-Avon, which began in a small way in the century after Shakespeare's death and has been growing steadily ever since. The authors write in entertaining fashion, demolishing legends with a light, but firm, touch. Index.

"As one puts down this book, one feels that antiquarianism and contemporaneity are here made delightfully at ease in one another's company. Three hundred years of history have been told so amusingly that one cannot help listening to it. The fashion of telling is clever but not boringly so; it is brilliantly pertinent like the good conversation of intelligent people who laugh at life's shams but love and respect its indestructible core." E. C. Dunn

+ Books p4 D 24 '39 850w

"An honest, informed, witty and readable book." F. W. MacVeagh

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 23 '39 240w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 20 '39 250w

"The whole volume makes excellent reading, though one feels that the authors have struggled with a double purpose." B. I. Evans

+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ap 11 '39 600w

"Their book is balanced and informative as well as vivacious and debonair." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 7 '40 700w

"This book could have said so much more. It is superficial, obvious, repetitive. It is a good bet missed. Its thesis is sound." J. T. W.

— + Sat R of Lit 20:20 S 9 '39 180w

Reviewed by C. P. Rollins

Sat R of Lit 20:34 O 14 '39 300w

"A witty and comprehensive attack upon the mixture of hypocrisy and confused reverence from which these things and circumstances derive. It could be read with profit by many, and with pleasure by everyone."

+ Spec 162:732 Ap 28 '39 170w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 23 '39 300w

Reviewed by Rosamond Gilder

Theatre Arts Mo 24:73 Ja '40 500w

"If 'Amazing Monument' has the success it richly deserves, the authors should be encouraged to increase their treatise to cyclopaedic length. This wholesome physic has the flavour of wine."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Ap 1 '39 700w

Wis Lib Bul 35:184 N '39

BROWN, MRS JEANETTE (PERKINS). Caterpillar, caterpillar; with pictures by Fritz Kredel. [25p] 75c Harper

39-10244

Simple verses and colored pictures describe the joy of a small child in watching the changing of a caterpillar into a butterfly.

"Kredel's pictures in color, one for each stanza, have the same heart-searching quality as the simple words. By utter simplicity, the book succeeds where far more elaborate ones fail." M. L. Becker

+ Books p15 My 7 '39 250w

"A dainty and delicate little book. . . The book is more suitable as a gift for pre-school children than as a book for library purposes." E. G. Mullan

+ Library J 64:563 Jl '39 60w

New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 10w

"The lines which sing themselves into the mind are so ample and rhythmical, so exact in their childlike expression, that they are reminiscent of Stevenson's and Blake's poems for children, and they are filled with that same joy and the same questioning of life. In appearance, too, the book is a delight, with its small proportions so comfortable for 4 to 6 year olds to hold, its type set cleanly in broad spaces." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 My 7 '39 130w

Wis Lib Bul 35:188 N '39

BROWN, LEAHMAE. Group purchase of medical care by industrial employees. See Princeton university. Department of economics and social institutions. Industrial relations section

BROWN, MARGARET H. Heaven knows. 168p il $1 Missionary educ. movement [2s 6d Edinburgh house]

A story of Shanghai during the Japanese invasion. The protagonist is Chang Yung-shan, a young country-man who comes to the city to escape parental tyranny. In spite of warnings, he and his little family stay on after the bombings begin until disaster overtakes them. Chang and his wife, tho separated, are rescued by missionaries, but the little son is lost. The author is a missionary of the Honan Mission of the United Church of Canada, who has served in China since 1913.

Christian Century 55:1578 D 21 '38 20w

"A book for pro-war people; for if, after reading this bit of Sino-Japanese war so vividly depicted, they can still say Amen to it all, then they are in the depths of depravity of soul." A. L. B-C.

Churchman 153:34 Ap 15 '39 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Baker

J Religion 19:406 O '39 40w

BROWN, MRS NELLIE I. Recipes from Old Hundred; 200 years of New England cooking. 255p $2 Barrows

641.5 Cookery 39-27716

Recipes for old New England dishes, many of them used by the author's grandmother. All have been tested and found to be popular at the Connecticut inn, Old Hundred. Index.

Booklist 36:38 O 1 '39

"The book unfortunately is smeared over with a lot of the more fancy tearoom foolishness. The chapter on salads reads like the description of a Dali still life and is enough to make an honest dresser of honest greens go into conniptions, but elsewhere in the volume there emerges enough good, sound directions to make an instructive and useful collection. The best recipes in the book are for old-fashioned New England dishes. . . When Old Hundred sticks to the familiar field of breads and chowders and robust New England desserts, the book is excellent, and is there a better field to stick to?" Sheila Hibben

BROWN, N. I.—Continued
+ — Books p12 D 17 '39 650w
J Home Econ 32:41 Ja '40 60w

BROWN, PAUL. Black and white; simplified drawing [il. by the author]. [62p] $1.50 (7s 6d) Scribner
741 Drawing 39-27894
Simple instructions on how to draw, by a well-known artist of sporting subjects.

Booklist 36:106 N 15 '39
" 'Black and White' is tremendously interesting to the beginning draughtsman, but really it is just another impossibly sugar-coated pill." E. B. Garside
+ — Boston Transcript p3 Ag 12 '39 410w
Pratt p14 winter '40
"All in all, 'Black and White' by Brown, though a slender volume, is crammed with first-rate tips on everything from perspective and composition to confident, effective finishing."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 S 11 '39 380w

BROWN, PAUL. Fire! the mascot [il. by the author]. [96p] $2 Scribner 39-30767
Dog story of an engine house coach dog in the days of horse-drawn fire engines.

Booklist 36:155 D 15 '39
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 F 4 '40 220w
Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 31:133 D 1 '39 20w
Reviewed by Florence O'Gara
Library J 65:122 F 1 '40 120w
"Good dog story . . . but not for the child who fears fire. Fine horse-and-dog drawings."
+ — New Yorker 15:88 N 25 '39 20w
"Irresistible."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:21 D 9 '39 20w

BROWN, RILEY. Men, wind and sea; the story of the Coast guard. 266p il $2.25 Carlyle
614.868 U.S. Coast guard (W) 39-28966
Descriptive history of the United States Coast guard. The book begins with a short sketch of the Coast guard, which was inaugurated in 1789. Some of the episodes described are the battle between the cutter Eagle and the British brig Dispatch in Long Island Sound in 1814, the sinking of the I'm Alone in 1929 in the Gulf of Mexico, and the story of the Morro Castle fire.

"There are better books on the coast guard; this one is listed as possible additional material for libraries needing more."
Booklist 36:144 D 15 '39
"The adventures of the Ice Patrol, the burning of the Morro Castle, the sinking of the I'm Alone, to mention but a few are all gripping stories but it is only because they are so heavily freighted with excitement that they survive the author's adolescent pen. The Coast Guard deserved a much better press. Nevertheless, the book would make an excellent gift for boys from twelve to sixteen."
+ — Nation 150:135 F 3 '40 120w
"The book is a tribute to the courage and seamanship of the thousands of men who form the coast guard forces."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 O 30 '39 250w

BROWN, ROBERT COLEMAN, ed. Cases and other materials on the law of taxation. 738p $6 Bobbs
336.2 Taxation—U.S. 38-18890
"Starting with a number of cases on the 'Nature and Purposes of Taxation,' the next third of the book is devoted to the general property tax. The rest of the material relates chiefly to death, gift, and income taxes. Both state and federal cases are intermingled throughout, and the treatment is of taxation in general rather than a comprehensive development of any one tax system. The footnotes are frequent, good, and fortunately not exhaustive. Problem cases and other apparatus of the sort often found in modern casebooks are omitted." Harvard Law R

Harvard Law R 52:350 D '38 100w
Reviewed by Bernhard Knollenberg
Yale Law J 48:1308 My '39 550w

BROWN, ROLLO WALTER. I travel by train; il. by Grant Reynard. 317p map $3 Appleton-Century
917.3 U.S.—Description and travel. U.S.—Social conditions (W) 39-27234
In his travels around the United States as lecturer, the author, one-time professor of English at Harvard, has observed the different sections of the country, and the people who inhabit them. His book is the result of his observations, his conversations with people he met, and his personal reactions to the discomforts and pleasures of his trips. "He is happier when he looks at rural areas than at cities, at farmers than at factory workers, at individuals than at masses. He has great faith in ordinary, overall-wearing people, 'whose essential gentility, humor, consideration for neighbors next door or on the other side of the earth . . . could be matched with the qualities of any group of business men, public officials or college teachers that might be assembled for the test.' " (N Y Times)

Booklist 35:267 Ap 15 '39
"With some of his conclusions one may disagree. . . Nevertheless, Mr. Brown, I recommend your book highly. Though maybe it is as 'Alfalfa Bill' Murray told you that 'most people read too damned much. If they'd go off to a mountain somewhere and think.' . . I recommend your book because it may move some of our self-sure Mahomets to go off to a mountain and do just that." Edward Angly
+ — Books p5 Ap 16 '39 1100w
Reviewed by H. M. Jones
Boston Transcript p1 Ap 1 '39 750w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 22 '39 700w
New Repub 98:288 Ap 12 '39 50w
"Rollo Walter Brown has produced, under a title that might mean almost anything but what it does mean, a notable book about the United States. He has done it without self-consciousness or pretense, setting down simply and sympathetically something about what he has seen and the people he has talked with. . . The present reviewer hopes that a multitude of readers will find the book. It is good tonic for our troubled generation." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 2 '39 1300w
Pratt p23 autumn '39
"Mr. Brown never fails to pay obeisance to the beauties of this pleasant land, but he is most interested in two classes of people—those aging under such a crust of hopelessness as to have lost their tactile sense toward beauty, and those young ones who are climbing out of poverty up the ladder of education. As long as Mr. Brown is observing them the book is splendid, but he insists on serving his observations with a sauce of comment, often so superficial as to suggest he holds the view that because a man has good eyesight he should become a banjo player." F. P.
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:31 Ap 29 '39 220w

"Mr. Brown expresses his opinions in a calm and forthright way, even if they tend to fall into stereotyped lines of argument. His writing is always excellent—clear, modulated and alive. If the satisfaction which the reader derives from his book will depend in some degree upon his agreement with Mr. Brown's social views, that is a risk incurred by any author who permits his writings to become the statement of a creed." E. N. Jenckes

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 18 '39 850w

Reviewed by W. F. Greenman

Survey 75:259 Ag '39 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p411 Jl 8 '39 210w

Wis Lib Bul 35:111 Je '39

BROWN, VICTOR JACOB, and RUNNER, DELMAR G. Engineering terminology; definitions of technical words and phrases. 310p il $3.50 Gillette pub. co.

620.3 Engineering—Terminology 39-20485

"The bulk of this volume consists of terse definitions of engineering and scientific terms. In the appendices are English-Spanish and Spanish-English highway nomenclatures; definitions of surveying terms; symbols for hydraulic terms; a table giving the effects of various liquids on pump materials; general abbreviations and symbols; conversion factors; and standard graphic symbols used in radio." N Y New Tech Bks

"This book lays the foundation for what ultimately should be a large and very useful dictionary, one in which the many terms used in engineering work are clearly defined. The need for such a special dictionary is urgent in the case of common words which have two or more meanings, one of which is applied only to engineering work. Ordinary dictionaries generally do not give the latter meaning."

Eng N 122:75 Ja 19 '39 140w

Reviewed by H. W. Straley, III

+ J Geol 47:672 Ag '39 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:21 Ap '38

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (LESLIE FORD, DAVID FROME, pseuds). False to any man. 254p $2 Scribner

(W) 39-27679

Detective story.

Booklist 36:10 S '39

"Get your copy of Leslie Ford's new thriller and revel in the best collaboration to date between Col. Primrose, 92d Engineers, U.S.A. (retired), and Mrs. Grace Latham." Will Cuppy

+ Books p10 Jl 9 '39 310w

"Thanks to Leslie Ford for another good mystery." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p10 Jl 9 '39 160w

New Yorker 15:76 Jl 22 '39 20w

Sat R of Lit 20:21 Jl 8 '39 40w

Wis Lib Bul 35:167 O '39

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (LESLIE FORD, DAVID FROME, pseuds). Mr Pinkerton at the Old Angel. 281p $2 Farrar

39-27746

Detective story.

Booklist 36:45 O 1 '39

"Enter Inspector J. Humphrey Bull, Mr. Pinkerton's friendly rival, and the two of them proceed with their liveliest adventure to date. This has all the virtues you could want in a baffler, including excitement, suspense, atmosphere, fun and what not. When in doubt, read a Mr. Pinkerton story." Will Cuppy

+ Books p13 Ag 27 '39 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 S 23 '39 140w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 18:936 D 23 '39 70w

"There is no need to tell you about Mr. Pinkerton. Either you have read other stories about him, in which case you will be eager for more, or you have never met him, in which case we can only say that there is no time like the present. No library of mystery fiction is complete without him." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p15 Ag 27 '39 140w

New Yorker 15:64 S 2 '39 40w

"Delightful."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:18 S 9 '39 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p627 O 28 '39 130w

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (LESLIE FORD, DAVID FROME, pseuds). Reno rendezvous. 281p $2 Farrar

39-10523

Detective story.

" 'Reno Rendezvous' is no exception to the rule that Leslie Ford's mysteries are always humdingers. It may or may not be her best; how would one tell among so many Grade A entries—this is the tenth and of course required reading." Will Cuppy

+ Books p13 Ap 23 '39 240w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 22 '39 90w

"Her previous achievements in this field make it quite unnecessary to state that Leslie Ford knows how to write mystery novels. This one is at least as good as any of her earlier efforts." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '39 140w

New Yorker 15:80 Ap 22 '39 40w

"Intricate plot clashes through startling situations to sizzling finish. Detecting a bit reminiscent but well handled."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:30 Ap 29 '39 40w

Time 33:88 Je 5 '39 30w

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (LESLIE FORD, DAVID FROME, pseuds). The town cried murder. 279p $2 Scribner

39-27874

Detective story.

Booklist 36:89 N 1 '39

"This Grade A item (make it A-plus) just goes to show, if proof were needed, that Leslie Ford is tops in her field." Will Cuppy

+ Books p19 O 8 '39 180w

"Leslie Ford's new detective yarn is a bit of an exaggeration. That does not, however, detract from the excellence of the story." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 21 '39 90w

"It would be rash to say that this is the best of the Leslie Ford stories, but it would be difficult to point to one that is better." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p26 O 22 '39 250w

"Reads at first like an inventory of the furniture in the Metropolitan's American Wing, but speeds up toward the end."

New Yorker 15:104 O 14 '39 30w

"Lucy Randolph doubles for Grace Latham in story highly reminiscent of author's recent mystery, 'False to Any Man.' Good, if slightly used, Ford."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 O 7 '39 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 29 '39 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p675 N 18 '39 70w

Wis Lib Bul 35:215 D '39

BROWNELL, BAKER. Art is action; a discussion of nine arts in a modern world. 231p $2 Harper

701 Art—Addresses, essays, lectures

39-24920

This study of the arts develops the theory that an art is valuable primarily as an activity.

BROWNELL, BAKER—Continued
The various arts considered are dancing, music, cooking, poetry, the drama, the novel, the movie, architecture, painting, sculpture, costume. There are added chapters on modern tendencies in the arts, arts and symbols, and art and religion. Index.

Booklist 36:106 N 15 '39

"The book's chief value lies, perhaps, in its contemporaneity. There is a discussion of the relationship between propaganda and art; an explanation of the growth of chamber music groups during recent years; a suggestion that sculpture and painting have reached their climax, are about to become supernumeraries, and will be replaced by other arts. All of these opinions and predictions, whether or not one entirely agrees with them, make good reading for anyone who is concerned with the world of today." Wilhelmina van Ingen

\+ Boston Transcript p3 O 21 '39 420w

"It is hard to follow this critic in all things. He appears to suffer from a confusion of thought. He would, on the one hand, narrow down the function of art, bring it down from the heights inaccessible, as he thinks, to the masses; on the other, he would widen it, while taking from its depth, so as to include the lowest intelligence. He also confuses the arts with the crafts. . . For all that, there are qualities in 'Art Is Action' which deserve commendation. The author believes that all work should be animated with joy, that there should be more play in life, and he earnestly desires that every man shall have some modest share in artistic creation. It is from these generous aspirations that all his critical faults proceed, and so much should be forgiven him." John Cournos

\+ — N Y Times p5 D 31 '39 550w

"We cannot think that anyone will find the Brownell Theory either novel or subversive. It is the exposition of the theory that is suspect. . . Its publishers confess that 'Art Is Action' stimulates and provokes them. One is happy for the publishers, and at the same time a bit envious: it must be fun to be stimulated so easily." D. F.

Sat R of Lit 21:19 N 4 '39 300w

Wis Lib Bul 35:184 N '39

BROWNING, MRS ELIZABETH (BARRETT). Letters to B. R. Haydon; ed. by Martha Hale Shackford. 78p $2; ltd de luxe ed $7.50 Oxford

B or 92 Haydon, Benjamin Robert 39-17301

"Eighteen autograph letters, and three fragments, sent by Elizabeth Barrett to B. R. Haydon are here printed for the first time. They form part of a large collection of letters by Miss Barrett given to Wellesley College in 1930 by George Herbert Palmer. . . In discussing Miss Barrett's relation to Haydon, a subject never hitherto treated in print, the editor has sought to show that the poet's vivid strength and energy of character were stimulated by the painter's vigorous ideas and also by his weakness and self pity. The Introduction presents a brief life of Haydon . . . from the point of view of the student of nineteenth-century English culture. The sketch of Miss Barrett dwells in special detail on the years 1842 to 1845." (Pref) Index.

"Throughout, the task of scholarship has been well accomplished, for it has subserved the major purpose of presenting the letters as human documents, as actual transcripts of thought and character." E. D.

\+ Cath World 150:629 F '40 400w

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 2 '39 700w

"There is nothing in the letters wholly new, yet the book and Miss Shackford's fine editing of it definitely expand the knowledge of E. B. B. and in particular on what might be called the 'moot point' of her friendship with Benjamin Haydon. The figure of the young Elizabeth has been so surrounded with romance, sentimentality, even worship, that a definitive interpretation has become almost impossible. But towards the accomplishment of the impossible Miss Shackford has added an important short book." Jeannette Marks

\+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 Jl 29 '39 310w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 15 '39 850w

BRUBACHER, JOHN SEILER. Modern philosophies of education. 370p $3 McGraw

370.1 Education—Philosophy 39-32252

"The principal aim of this treatise, according to its author, 'is to afford within the covers of a single book an introduction to the whole range of viewpoints on the main problems of educational philosophy' (p.viii). In pursuing this aim, the author has dealt studiously with the bulk of American literature in educational philosophy published since 1900. Professor Brubacher's is the first attempt to summarize and classify comprehensively these voluminous writings." (J Philos) Index.

Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
Ethics 50:238 Ja '40 170w

Reviewed by K. D. Benne
J Philos 37:54 Ja 18 '40 450w

BRUCE, DAVID KIRKPATRICK ESTE. Revolution to reconstruction. 486p il $3.50 Doubleday

923.173 Presidents (United States) 39-9236

Biographical sketches of the presidents of the United States from Washington to Lincoln.

"The book is free from footnotes and other scholastic paraphernalia, but the style lacks vivacity. Because of this defect and because of the author's courtesy toward his subjects, the figures conveyed to the reader seldom reach beyond two dimensions. Each sketch is accompanied by a convenient listing of important dates and by the reproduction of a well-chosen portrait."

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 80w

"The sketches, averaging 30 pages to a character, are hardly definitive, but they are descriptive. The material has been selected for the most part with balance and understanding. The style is clear and direct except in a few passages where it takes on some of the stiffness of the period about which Mr. Bruce is writing." T. N.

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 29 '39 370w

BRUCE, WILLIAM FRENCH. Principles of democratic education; a functional approach to fundamental problems of teaching. 382p $2.50 Prentice-Hall

370.1 Education. Teaching 39-3568

"Democracy as here considered is the 'modified government or social control' which has developed in the United States; and in his 'functional approach to fundamental problems of teaching,' the author discusses educational objectives, methods, and activities in relation to the origin and nature of conflicts, progress through conflicts of psychology to harmony in method, and social outlook. Among chapter headings are: 'The Informal School: Its Three Sources,' 'Confusion About Habit Formation,' 'Methods of Personality-Character Education,' 'Harmonizing Diverse Methods,' 'Democracy as a Central Aim,' 'Modern Curriculum Revision.' " (J Home Econ) Index.

"Though a little monotonous in style, it is never obscure, never pedantic, and rarely superficial or undiscriminating." Gerald Barnes

\+ — Am Soc R 4:905 D '39 100w

"Unlike some writers in the field, the author shows many relations between everyday school practice and the concepts and analyses of democracy which he sets forth. This illustration and concreteness make the book valuable for beginning students in education, for thoughtful parents, and for many teachers in service. Perhaps a major value of the book for mature students is its demonstration of how to deal in concrete terms with concepts of democracy and of how to 'step them down' for the understanding of youth and lay adults." H. H. Punke

+ El School J 40:313 D '39 700w
J Home Econ 31:332 My '39 90w

BRUEGHEL, PEETER, the elder. Pieter Brueghel, the elder, by Gustav Glück; tr. from the German by Eveline Byam Shaw [ed. by André Gloeckner]. 34p il 63pl $5 Art bk. [25s Imperia]

759.9 Paintings, Flemish

Collection of mounted color plates and many gravure reproductions of the work of the elder Brueghel. There is an introductory biographical chapter, and critical notes on the pictures included. Index.

Booklist 36:113 N 15 '39

"A truly superb memorial to the great Fleming of the sixteenth century. . . A better handbook on the subject could not be desired." Royal Cortissoz

+ Books p3 D 17 '39 40w
Pratt p16 winter '40

BRUEHL, CHARLES PAUL. The Pope's plan for social reconstruction; a commentary on the social encyclicals of Pius XI. 368p $3 Devin-Adair

261 Pius XI (Achille Ratti) pope. Sociology, Christian 39-27779

"Explains the teaching of the late Pope concerning necessary economic reforms. Existing social evils are noted and principles for change are emphasized rather than actual methods of accomplishment. The book favors a limited regulation of business and industry and apparently the status quo in private property, though concentration in a few hands is deplored. Most of this material was published in The Homiletic and Pastoral Review." Booklist

"Dr. Bruehl's exposition will help the 'layman' (clergy as well as lay) to be initiated agreeably and safely in basic ideas of social economics." John LaFarge

+ America 62:275 D 16 '39 200w

Reviewed by Brother Justin, F.S.C.
Ann Am Acad 207:253 Ja '40 300w
Booklist 36:61 O 15 '39

"While Dr. Bruehl says some fresh and even startling things for a Romanist, from a liberal Protestant angle his contentions and conclusions are conservative." A. L. Byron-Curtiss

Churchman 153:19 O 1 '39 330w

"This treatise on economics comes out of an informed and inspired mind. . . Students of guild socialism will find little in the book which is new; but even these will profit from the understanding spirit and the happy wording with which Professor Bruehl pleads his case." Henry Neumann

+ Survey 76:27 Ja '40 300w

BRUN, VINCENT. Masquerade [Eng title: Blond spider]. 318p $2.50 Carrick [7s 6d Cape, J] 39-12438

Martin Boldt, correspondent for a Vienna newspaper, is traveling in Italy with his newly wedded wife, when he gets word that his political writings are no longer wanted. He and his wife, however, continue their travels, but now in the company of a young German who guides them to Siena and the home of his friends, the Gattis. Beneath the light chatter and love making lies a hint of impending doom, a tragic fate which finally overtakes them.

"In the hands of an inferior artist, the story of 'Masquerade,' especially its end, might turn into hysterical melodrama or propaganda. It never does. Brun writes with the controlled heat which gives the effect of coldness. There is no doubt where he stands politically but that does not destroy the balance of his work. He is a newcomer to the American reading public but readers appreciating mature talent will not let him remain a stranger." R. C. Feld

+ Books p2 My 21 '39 950w

Reviewed by Jean Stafford
Boston Transcript p2 Je 3 '39 270w

"The story is all too convincingly told. We cannot doubt that the thing could have happened." J. D. Beresford

Manchester Guardian p5 S 1 '39 150w
New Repub 99:140 Je 7 '39 50w

"The handling of speech is brilliant and the neurotic relation between the Gestapo agent and the flirtatious woman is a very fine piece of writing; there is not a false note anywhere, the book is at the top of its class." Anthony West

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:348 S 2 '39 230w

Reviewed by John Cournos
N Y Times p17 My 21 '39 600w
New Yorker 15:94 My 20 '39 50w

"The intended effect, of powerful international undercurrents just beneath a façade of bright lights, cafés, fencing wits, and toujours l'amour, must depend entirely upon the quality of the characters who do the fencing, the wit, the loving. And they are so unfortunately trivial a lot that the effect falls through; it matters not at all what happens to them." N. L. R.

— Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 20 '39 160w
Times [London] Lit Sup p513 S 2 '39 350w

BRUNNER, EDMUND DE SCHWEINITZ. Rural Australia and New Zealand; some observations of current trends. 70p $1.50 Inst. of Pacific relations

630.994 New Zealand. Australia. Agriculture —Australia. Agriculture—New Zealand 38-28993

In 1937 the writer, a distinguished rural sociologist, went as a fellow of the Carnegie corporation to study rural trends in Australia and New Zealand. He reports on population problems, resettlement, land utilization and erosion, marketing and control, agricultural cooperation and guaranteed price for dairy products. Bibliography.

Reviewed by C. C. Zimmerman
Am J Soc 45:635 Ja '40 200w

"Coming from so competent an observer, this small volume is pointed, pithy, wise, and significant. No one could have packed more into seventy pages than he has." E. A. Ross

+ Am Soc R 4:132 F '39 100w
Booklist 35:135 D 15 '38
Foreign Affairs 17:820 Jl '39

Reviewed by J. G. Crawford
Pacific Affairs 12:103 Mr '39 850w

BRUNTZ, GEORGE G. Allied propaganda and the collapse of the German empire in 1918. (Hoover war lib. publications) 246p il map $3.50 Stanford univ. press [16s Oxford]

940.4886 European war, 1914-1918—Propaganda. European war, 1914-1918—Germany 39-52

Fully documented study of the use made by the allied powers of the instrument of propaganda in the World war and of its destructive effects upon German morale. Bibliography. Index.

BRUNTZ, G. G.—Continued
Reviewed by J. D. Squires
Am Hist R 45:364 Ja '40 180w

Reviewed by C. A. Timm
Am Pol Sci R 33:135 F '39 240w

Reviewed by R. O. Nafziger
+ Am Soc R 4:419 Je '39 600w

"[This] is not only good history, but a timely and illuminating work with a distinct and somewhat ominous baring of the aggressive and bellicose agitation in favor of new ideological crusades abroad. The volume is pervaded throughout by a spirit of scholarly objectivity, is equipped with a critically selected bibliography, and has a good index." W. E. Lingelbach
+ Ann Am Acad 204:196 Jl '39 450w
+ Foreign Affairs 17:439 Ja '39 10w

"Mr. Bruntz relies in part on recent German writers apt to exaggerate the effect of our propaganda. His arrangement of his material leads to some repetition. His translation of German is clumsy (Vorsicht! is by no means 'Foresight!'), and there are other irritating marks of haste, as when he calls M. Briand 'Prime Minister of Foreign Affairs.' Still, his book is a useful contribution to the history of an increasingly important subject." Basil Bunting
+ — Nation 149:51 Jl 8 '39 440w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 16:1012 D 10 '38 350w

BRYAN, DOROTHY. Friendly little Jonathan [pictures by] Marguerite Bryan. [32p] $1 Dodd 39-23642

Picture-story book about a little Sealyham named Jonathan, whose mission in life seemed to be making friends with everybody and all the animals besides.

Booklist 36:116 N 15 '39

"I like this best of the Bryan books and think it the best bargain." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 O 1 '39 200w

Reviewed by Vivian Lundberg
Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 90w
Cath World 150:375 D '39 40w

"This would be a nice book to give a small boy or girl for a birthday present or one to put on your Christmas list. Everybody is sure to love a friendly dog like Jonathan." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 25 '39 130w

"This is, perhaps, the best book the Bryans have done and is worthy of a place beside Michael and Tammie. It is one which in both text and pictures will delight the hearts of children from four to seven." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 64:870 N 1 '39 150w

"Dorothy Bryan has told the story in an amazingly small number of words, and Marguerite Bryan in drawings of her own Sealyham has caught in the set of an ear or the cock of an eye the very essence of canine enterprise and geniality." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 F 4 '40 200w

Reviewed by R. C. Benét
Sat R of Lit 21:22 N 18 '39 20w

BRYAN, LESLIE AULLS. Principles of water transportation. 434p il $4 Ronald 387.5 Merchant marine—U.S. Transportation
39-17452

" "The emphasis of the volume is upon the business aspects of ocean and inland waterway transportation. About one-third of the book is devoted to organization and administration. More than conventional emphasis is placed upon the water terminal. In addition to the commercial aspects of the subject, some of the problems of the merchant marine as an aid to national defense are discussed. Included also are numerous statistical tables, maps, and forms to aid in summarizing and to explain in graphic form the text material.' The volume is designed as a textbook, with bibliographies and questions for discussion." Am Econ R

Am Econ R 29:848 D '39 100w

"In some ways this book is admirable. The style is clear and sharp. Illustrations, charts, and tables are numerous and, in most cases, quite helpful in explaining the material in the text. These merits, however, are counter-balanced by serious omissions which greatly impair the usefulness of the work. The chapter on government aid to the merchant marine is completely inadequate. . . Although written for American students, the book contains no careful analysis of the competitive disadvantages which face American ship companies, particularly those arising out of the high cost of building ships in this country. Despite their increasing importance, there is no description of foreign subsidy programs. The problems created by militant unionism during the past few years receive no mention. A discussion of at least a few of these problems would have produced a more realistic and balanced text." P. M. Zeis
+ — Ann Am Acad 207:249 Ja '40 440w

BRYANT, ARTHUR. Samuel Pepys; v 3. The saviour of the navy. 452p il $3.75 Macmillan [12s 6d Cambridge]
B or 92 Pepys, Samuel (33-32747)

The third volume of Mr Bryant's biography covers the years 1683 to 1689 during which Pepys served his second period of rule at the Admiralty and brought the English navy back to order and efficiency after the decay into which it had fallen in his absence. The volume begins with the voyage to Tangier and Spain and closes with his defeat as candidate for election to Parliament. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1933, 1935. Bibliographical notes. Index.

"This is the best and most important book Mr. Bryant has ever written. . .Most of the volume rests on official correspondence and admiralty documents in the Bodleian and the Pepysian Library at Magdalene. Much is quoted, and all is told very interestingly. One wonders why so many dull people have been studied when this important period of Pepys's career lay unrevealed, though it too would have been dull in many hands." C. L. Grose
+ Am Hist R 45:208 O '39 350w
Booklist 35:203 F 15 '39

"Mr. Bryant has discovered and made use of such a store of fresh material that his third volume does not bring his fascinating story to a close. A fourth is yet to follow." S. C. Chew
+ Books p5 F 5 '39 1800w
Christian Century 56:418 Mr 29 '39 280w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 21 '38 180w
Eng Hist R 54:536 Jl '39 430w

"Pepys and Mr. Bryant between them are responsible for the most readable record of a term of conscientious civil service we have ever met or are likely to meet." H. B. C.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 31 '39 220w

Reviewed by D. A. Roberts
Nation 149:108 Jl 22 '39 390w

"Mr. Bryant tells the highly interesting story of the evacuation of Tangier, as also other events in these important years, with skill and sense of drama which, one is tempted to say, is second only to Pepys's own day-by-day accounts. The biographer lets Pepys speak for himself whenever it helps best to carry the continuity of the story, and often the author's own style blends with Pepys's to make the change from quotation to comment seem at times almost indiscernible. Mr. Bryant's biography is itself a work of art." Christopher Janus
+ N Y Times p4 F 12 '39 1250w

Discussion by E. J. Stumpf
N Y Times p28 Ap 16 '39 750w

New Yorker 14:68 F 4 '39 30w

"It is an entertaining volume which few, if any, who begin it will lay down until it is finished. But it is more than that. It throws new light upon the Revolution of 1688 which will be extremely grateful to all students of that great event in English history." W. C. Abbott

+ Sat R of Lit 19:12 F 18 '39 1250w

"Mr. Bryant has triumphantly succeeded in solving the very difficult technical problem of so weaving the man into the events of his time that the solid person who emerges is seen all the while to be as it were embedded in his age, a part of the events which he at moments rode and at other moments submitted to. . . Mr. Bryant never fails to keep us interested, and he often makes us amused; his biography is of the most entertaining and vivid, his naval history of first-class value." Bonamy Dobree

+ Spec 161:958 D 2 '38 1050w

Springf'd Republican p10 F 22 '39 1150w

"Those who have read the first two volumes of this biography will not need to be reminded of its excellence. This new volume is at least as good as the first two. In recounting the story from the Pepysian letters, memoranda, and journals, Mr. Bryant again reveals his mastery of that vast mass of mostly unpublished documents and his ease in quotation. The book is an exquisite mosaic." William Matthews

+ Yale R n s 28:831 summer '39 800w

BRYANT, RALPH CLEMENT. Lumber: its manufacture and distribution. 2d rev ed 535p il $5 Wiley

674 Lumber. Lumber trade 38-28938

The first edition of this work was published in 1922 (Book Review Digest, 1923). Additions include recent improvements in equipment and manufacture and a discussion of post-war adjustments in the field of lumber distribution. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:136 D 15 '38

N Y New Tech Bks 23:57 O '38

BRYSON, FREDERICK ROBERTSON. The sixteenth-century Italian duel; a study in renaissance social history. 248p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [13s 6d Cambridge]

394.8 Dueling 38-38685

"Dr. Bryson's principal concern in this monograph is in investigating the sixteenth century Italian 'theorists of the duel', of whom Levi and Gelli (Bibliografia del duello, 1903) and Kelso (The Doctrine of the English Gentleman in the Sixteenth Century, 1929) have published bibliographies. . . In the second part of his book Dr. Bryson studies the duel in relation to the logical and ethical problems to which it gave rise and its status under the law and in the eyes of the church. He has included his overflow material in twelve factual appendixes of which the one on war is of timely interest." (Am Hist R) Bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by F. P. Mascioli

Am Hist R 45:227 O '39 300w

"The constant and almost verbal dependence of the author on his authorities makes the book not easy to read; but the subject is interesting and of considerable importance." A. J. Grant

Eng Hist R 54:321 Ap '39 800w

BRYSON, LYMAN. Which way America? communism—fascism—democracy. (People's lib) 113p il 60c Macmillan

335 Communism. Fascism. Democracy (W) 39-27267

"Designed to contribute to the discussion of current problems. It offers a simple analysis and comparison of the Russian plan, the Italian plan, the German plan and the American plan as they appear to one man." Wis Lib Bul

"Seldom is so much clear thought on subjects of common parlance packed in so small a volume. Russian communism, Italian fascism, and German naziism are described as philosophies and as ways of life. The reasons why they developed in the three European countries are analyzed sympathetically. But the author's main concern is with the average American who must judge whether we should exchange democracy for the current political systems of these states of Europe." S. G. Lowrie

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:1122 D '39 150w

Booklist 35:274 Ap 15 '39

"Professor Bryson's contribution is very nearly all that such a book should be. I do not know of any abler discussion of Communism, Fascism and democracy in equally brief compass. Admirably clear and concise, it is also admirable in the coolness and fairness of its treatment of democracy's rivals. Almost any one, whether a habitual reader of books or not, is likely to have his own views clarified by a perusal of 'Which Way America?' " E. S. Bates

+ Books p8 Je 11 '39 600w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 24 '39 20w

Reviewed by Edgar Johnson

New Repub 100:276 O 11 '39 120w

Pratt p8 summer '39

Reviewed by R. G. Fuller

Sat R of Lit 20:18 My 27 '39 650w (Review of series)

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 7 '40 60w

"An admirable book for family, club and discussion-group use; also good for classes in history, economics and government."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:98 My '39

BUCHAN, JOHN, 1st baron TWEEDSMUIR. Adventures of Richard Hannay. 3v in 1 231, 345,374p $2.50 Houghton

39-27235

Contents: The Thirty-Nine Steps; Greenmantle; Mr. Standfast.

Booklist 35:275 Ap 15 '39

"The younger generation that has not known these spy stories of the Great War will enjoy them. The publishers have done well to bring out this book at the present time." C. D. B.

+ Churchman 153:35 Jl '39 60w

"Each of these has previously been issued as a separate book, and one of them, 'The Thirty-nine Steps,' has recently been ably presented over the radio. If any living author has ever written better stories of this type they have escaped our notice." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 2 '39 110w

"Adventure in Scotland, in Mespot., on the Western front—war-time spy stories still fresh as paint."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ap 8 '39 30w

Wis Lib Bul 35:104 My '39

BUCHANAN, GEORGE. Entanglement. 362p $2.50 Appleton-Century [8s 6d Constable]

39-10128

A novel of modern ways and customs picturing a somewhat miscellaneous group of Londoners against the background of international affairs in 1937 and early 1938.

Booklist 35:347 Je 15 '39

"The name of George Buchanan is scarcely known to American readers. 'Entanglement' should remedy this state of affairs: it is an extraordinarily good novel, distinguished by firmness of grasp, range of experience, honesty, keen insight and subtle penetration into the inner lives of more than a score of characters. More—Mr. Buchanan unites unremitting closeness of observation with untiring thoughtfulness, and shines on page after page with genuine brilliance." J. H. Friend

+ Books p6 My 21 '39 800w

BUCHANAN, GEORGE—Continued

"The author has successfully avoided a kaleidoscopic effect. He has woven the threads of half a dozen stories so skillfully together that one is hardly conscious anywhere of a break in the pattern. Altogether, this is a distinguished novel, far above the average in its workmanship, and in its understanding and insight into human problems." E. F. B.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 F 25 '39 260w

" 'Entanglement' is a notable novel, the work of a serious craftsman, written with a sense of style. . . Mr. Buchanan introduces us to an immense number of characters, and the circumstances of their entanglement with each other's destinies are contrived with much ingenuity, but the constant shifting from one plane to another, as we move from group to loosely related group, rather disturbs the continuity of the narrative and, though the style is refreshingly individual, the short staccato sentences soon become wearisome to the sensitive ear." Wilfrid Gibson

+ — Manchester Guardian p7 N 4 '38 330w

"In spite of a certain stiffness Entanglement ranks among the most stimulating of recent novels; it excites thought." Desmond Shawe-Taylor

+ — New Statesman & Nation 16:734 N 5 '38 650w

"It is a book of ideas, and of pictures. The ideas are provocative, thought-inducing and stimulating. The pictures, whose sequence is purposeful, are vivid, screen-like contrasts of modern life. The ideas run through and between and around the pictures, giving them added point and significance." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p6 My 7 '39 850w

"A sincere but rather depressing book."

New Yorker 15:122 Ap 29 '39 60w

Pratt p27 autumn '39

"Buchanan possesses a sharp intelligence and an intellectual honesty which give authority and significance, if not charm, to his pages. 'Entanglement' has a curious Russian flavor—in its Chekhovian irrelevancies, which are of course not irrelevancies at all but deliberate parts of a carefully worked out pattern; in the insulation of the characters from one another; in the guarded avoidance of climaxes and crises; in the calm surfaces that do not conceal the disquietude beneath. Although 'Entanglement' raises many questions, it answers none, and there is little attempt to synthesize the vast material of the novel, other than to catch the mood of a troubled year." R. A. Cordell

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:11 My 6 '39 500w

"Entanglement is not a satisfactory novel, but for its soundness and generosity of thought, for the wisdom of reflectiveness, and for the general picture it gives of our confusion, pitifulness and folly, it must win the sympathy of countless readers. I do not care for its shape—which is really shapelessness. And I accuse its author of having no ear for dialogue. . . I think that characterisation and the sense of individualised life are lacking—but what is present in abundance is the wisdom of a really shrewd and gentle observer of his own day."

+ — Spec 161:sup 42 N 18 '38 180w

" 'Entanglement' will hardly add to Mr. Buchanan's reputation as a writer of good English. For the rest, we greatly admire the cleverness of his manipulation and his wide knowledge of so many sides of modern life."

Times [London] Lit Sup p691 O 29 '38 440w

BUCHLER, JUSTUS. Charles Peirce's empiricism; with a foreword by Ernest Nagel. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 275p $3.50 Harcourt [12s 6d Routledge]

191 Peirce, Charles Santiago Sanders. Experience. Pragmatism

A study of the thought of a nineteenth-century American philosopher. In his preface the author says, "The purpose of the following pages is to clarify Peirce in some measure, partly by restatement, partly by filling the lacunae in his thought with what I take to be its implications. But it cannot be stressed sufficiently that this exposition is limited to the methodological side of his thought, his empiricism, which should emerge fairly well defined from the discussion of what may be regarded as its major constituents, critical commonsensism, pragmatism, and the theory of the formal sciences." Index.

"Within [its] limitation, inherent in its plan, the book is a careful, well-executed, and competent study; and the author shows a wise restraint in regard to the aspects of Peirce's philosophy which are foreign to the author's own ways of thinking." Charles Hartshorne

+ Ethics 50:248 Ja '40 50w

Reviewed by Paul Weiss

New Repub 101:207 D 6 '39 80w

"Writing in a technical fashion and distinguished by an exceptional competence, the author succeeds in clarifying the obscurities, inconsistencies, and very real difficulties in the philosophy of the man whom he regards as the 'profoundest analyst in American philosophy.' " R. B.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:21 F 3 '40 200w

BUCK, ALAN MICHAEL. Dermot of the bright weapons; il. by Richard Bennett. 199p $1.75 Oxford

398.2 Folklore—Ireland (W) 39-23643

Retelling of an old Irish tale for young readers. It is the story of Dermot O'Duibne, kin to the great Finn mac Cool, who had the misfortune to wrong Finn, and was hounded to his death.

Booklist 36:155 D 15 '39

"It is a fiery Irish romance; the style seems based on reading Irish literature rather than rising with native spontaneity such as Stephens's or Colum's, but the tone has been caught; it makes graceful reading." M. L. Becker

+ — Books p8 O 29 '39 250w

"Among the legendary heroes of the great flan of Erin, Dermot O'Duibne was held to be one of the noblest. . . Here in fine prose are the main episodes that illustrate Dermot's courage, loyalty and beauty, his triumph in love and the treachery that led to his death." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 15:303 S '39 100w

Reviewed by Florence O'Gara

Library J 64:870 N 1 '39 100w

"Dermot's adventures are told with vigor and directness and a fine feeling for the beauty of the Irish country which forms a background for the heroes and the splendor of their deeds. Richard Bennett's drawings have strength and romance and are the finest thing this artist has done. A book for the 10 to 14 year old." A. T. E.

+ N Y Times p22 N 12 '39 160w

BUCK, FRANK, and WELD, CAROL. Animals are like that! 240p il $2.50 McBride

591.5 Zoological specimens—Collection and preservation. Animals, Habits and behavior of (W) 39-29436

More animal stories by the author of Bring 'Em Back Alive (Book Review Digest, 1930). He describes the animals in their native haunts, the capture of some of them, their characteristics, and their reactions in captivity.

"Not well written, but filled with adventure and odd bits of animal lore."

Booklist 36:170 Ja 1 '40

"The vast legion of Frank Buck's followers will find 'Animals Are Like That' thoroughly enjoyable and instructive reading. When the author doesn't know the answer to some more intangible animal trait he frankly admits his deficiency; but this happens infrequently. Mr Buck has selected a large number of excellent illustrations for the book, but the method of reproducing them subtracts greatly from their value."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 29 '39 650w

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). The Chinese novel. 59p $1.50 Day

895.13 Chinese fiction 39-27632

Lecture given before the Swedish Academy at Stockholm when the author received the Nobel prize. It was repeated as the Phi Beta Kappa address before the author's own college, Randolph-Macon. In it she discusses the Chinese novel, which belongs to the people entirely, and has grown out of their life.

Booklist 36:4 S '39

"Not only because this lecture throws light on a lively and delightful literature, but because it also strengthens the reader's respect and liking for Pearl Buck and the tradition on which she has drawn for her several successful books, this brief essay is well worth reading." John Holmes

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 5 '39 550w

Reviewed by M. M. Colum
Forum 102:158 O '39 1200w
New Yorker 15:67 Ag 5 '39 50w
Pratt p17 winter '40
Times [London] Lit Sup p581 O 7 '39 800w

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). The patriot. 372p $2.50 Day

(W) 39-27111

Story of twelve years in the life of a young Chinese—his experiences with the Communists, his sojourn in Japan and his marriage with a Japanese girl, his eventual return to his own country to fight under Chiang Kai-shek.

Reviewed by Nora Waln
Atlantic My '39 600w
Booklist 35:230 Mr 15 '39

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Books p3 Mr 5 '39 1000w

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p1 Mr 4 '39 1050w

"There are several scenes, vivid and appealing, which make one regret that Miss Buck lingered over extraneous matters when the potential drama lay in the clash of ideologies that made the Japanese invasion inevitable. Miss Buck's appraisal of character is always sound and her presentation of the Chinese scene inimitable." D. G.

+ Cath World 149:375 Je '39 320w
Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 28 '39 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '39

Reviewed by M. M. Colum
Forum 101:213 Ap '39 850w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 4 '39 650w

"It would be unfortunate if Pearl Buck's new novel, coming in the wake of the Nobel Prize award to her, were no more successful than the novels of the American scene which she has written in the last several years. In 'The Patriot' she has returned to the Orient to present a fictional biography which not only is compelling by its timeliness but is probably the best of her books since 'The Good Earth.' It is none the less not comparable; though her craft is surer now, 'The Patriot' lacks the wide cultural dimensions of the earlier book." Hassoldt Davis

+ Nation 148:269 Mr 4 '39 550w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 99:24 My 10 '39 850w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Statesman & Nation 17:578 Ap 15 '39 460w

"It is not a novel of argument. It is a story of human beings—of human passions and frustrations and valor and patience and strength. It must have been written at white heat, under stress of intense feeling; yet its intensity is not of bitterness and hate, but of insight and compassion." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p2 Mr 5 '39 1250w

"One is glad to note that Mrs. Buck has abandoned entirely that pseudo-Biblical style which made some of her books rather difficult going. She possesses, as always, the unlearnable gift of the story-teller, a gift admirable and effective even in this novel, in which the story line and the character development are both so simple that the reader can almost prophesy them for himself." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:74 Mr 4 '39 650w
No Am 247:399 summer '39 80w
Pratt p30 spring '39

"Certainly a story of this kind should tell us whether or not that rich vein, first revealed in 'The Good Earth,' is really running thin. The answer is not a reassuring one. In the first place, the novel seems to be trying to do two things at once—to give us a picture of Japanese life, and to throw some light on the mind of the Chinese revolutionary. These are worthy objectives, but they are also unrelated objectives. . . But here a second fault in 'The Patriot' appears. It lacks—or at any rate seems to lack—the necessary passion. The characters are not substantial enough." George Dangerfield

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:5 Mr 4 '39 800w

"The Patriot . . . struck me as a sincere and honest piece of work, a little heavy now and then, but well written, and completely free from that blend of melodrama and sensationalism which colours most novels of the East." Forrest Reid

+ — Spec 162:684 Ap 21 '39 650w

"The book is not so much a story as the eloquent portrayal of an idea. Its slender plot tends to illustrate the devotion of the Japanese people to an ideal and shows why Japan has become a strong nation while China lacks the vital elements making for strength. The author's sympathies are strongly with the Chinese, but she reveals her belief that unless the people change—and the Chinese do not love change—nationalism is far in the future for them." M. D.

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '39 800w
Time 33:61 Mr 6 '39 420w

"Mrs. Buck is at her sympathetic best in this story of Chinese nationalism in the making. She writes out of the understanding that comes from long affection, and nobody could write more quietly from a full heart. For the first time, too, she gives us a picture of Japanese custom and sentiment to match the Chinese, and the comparison is a delicately revealing one."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p201 Ap 8 '39 900w

Reviewed by Ralph Thompson
Yale R n s 28:viii summer '39 180w

BUCK, PETER HENRY. Anthropology and religion. 96p map $1.50 Yale univ. press

299.99 Polynesia—Religion. Christianity and other religions. Religion, Primitive

"The theme of these three Yale lectures on the Terry Foundation is the religion of the Polynesians and the social effect of the displacement of the native religion by Christianity. In the study of the latter topic the data are drawn chiefly from the island of Mangaia." Christian Century

Christian Century 56:1511 D 6 '39 270w
New Repub 101:270 D 20 '39 50w

BUCKINGHAM, NASH. Blood lines. ltd ed 227p il $7.50 Derrydale

799 Hunting. Fishing 39-3413

Tales of shooting and fishing. "A volume of reminiscences [which] is a fascinating picture of southern planation life, of old friends gunning and fishing together." (Boston Transcript)

"Nash Buckingham draws real characters, so real that their photographs appear, and he gives them warmth, life, animation, piety and profanity. This book has enough human interest to be worth reading even by people who have never touched stock to shoulder nor sat shivering in a duck blind."

+ Books p9 D 25 '38 250w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '39 80w

BUCKLEY, WILFRED. The art of glass. (Phaidon art press book) 170p 181 il $3 Oxford [10s 6d Allen, G]

738 Glassware

"This is a book for people who are interested in beautiful glass as it has been made through the centuries. And although the quarto volume has a running text of eighty-six pages, it is first of all a picture book, reproducing the appearance of historic types of glass. Like all the Phaidon Press series, of which it is the latest to appear, 'The Art of Glass' is not only lavishly but very beautifully illustrated. In 181 black-and-white plates it shows fine examples of the glass of many countries and many centuries, from the collection in the Victoria and Albert Museum in London." N Y Times

"Each chapter is provided with an admirably lucid and very readable historical introduction and with a bibliography, and each piece is minutely described in the catalogue of the collection, which is a model of what such things should be. It is a tribute to modern book production that so important a monograph which every student and collector of glass should have on his shelves, can be sold at so reasonable a price." L. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p6 Mr 24 '39 380w

"The book should be of value to the connoisseur and of interest to the layman."

+ N Y Times p23 Ap 2 '39 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p252 Ap 29 '39 480w

BUDGE, JOHN DONALD. On tennis. 180p il $2 Prentice-Hall [6s Jarrolds]

796.34 Tennis (W) 39-12276

An American tennis champion writes about his game, giving points to the beginner as well as the tournament player. The book contains an introduction by Walter L. Pate, captain of the U.S. Davis cup team, and a biography of Budge by Allison Danzig, tennis editor of the New York Times.

Reviewed by J. M. Barnaby

Boston Transcript p1 My 27 '39 80w

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 9 '39 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '39

"The one important criticism to be made of the volume (and this is only from the standpoint of the average reader) is that Budge's elaborate discussion of strategy, particularly in doubles, assumes that both sides have an almost perfect command of strokes and placements that only top-flight players are able to bring off." Henry Hazlitt

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 13 '39 380w

BUELL, RAYMOND LESLIE. Poland: key to Europe. 379p map $3 Knopf [10s 6d Cape, J]

943.8 Poland (W) 39-27357

Study of the political background of Poland, together with an analysis of the political and economic problems confronting that nation today. Partial contents: Importance of Poland; Lessons from the past; The political system; The economic dilemma; The agricultural question; The minorities (Germans, Ukrainians and Jews); Foreign policy. The author is president of the Foreign Policy association. Index.

Reviewed by B. M. Schoenfeldt

Am Econ R 29:572 S '39 480w

Reviewed by E. C. Helmreich

Am Pol Sci R 33:1106 D '39 750w

Booklist 35:304 My 15 '39

Booklist 36:153 D 15 '39 (Review of 3d ed)

"Mr. Buell's measured and richly documented volume may well serve as a handbook to the coming crisis in eastern Europe. . . [His] chapter on the Jewish question is remarkably balanced and informative. . . This book must be of peculiar value to Americans who want to understand why Poland has suddenly become the key to peace in Europe." Leland Stowe

+ Books p7 Ap 30 '39 1200w

Reviewed by Pauline Ehrlich

Boston Transcript p1 My 27 '39 750w

"Mr. Buell writes with cool ink. The conflicts that range from the outrages of the Teutonic Knights to the minority persecutions of modern days find dispassionate treatment and painstaking documentation. Indeed, the accuracy of fact and interpretation which has come to be associated with the publications of the Foreign Policy Association characterizes the pages of the former president of the association. Only occasionally are there exceptions."

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 10 '39 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '39

Reviewed by A. P. Levack

Commonweal 30:134 My 26 '39 600w

"Poland: Key to Europe is a storehouse of valuable factual and interpretative data. Mr. Buell has succeeded not only in clarifying the external and internal policies of a nation which has heretofore received scant attention in the United States but has gone a long way toward unraveling the complicated knot that is Central Europe." Norman Cousins

+ Current Hist 50:2 Je '39 800w

+ Economist 136:168 Jl 22 '39 800w

Foreign Affairs 17:817 Jl '39 30w

Geog R 29:687 O '39 700w

Reviewed by Jonathan Griffin

Nation 148:731 Je 24 '39 800w

Reviewed by Norbert Guterman

New Repub 99:285 Jl 12 '39 850w

New Repub 101:269 D 20 '39 40w (Review of 3d ed)

Reviewed by Tom Paine

New Statesman & Nation 18:96 Jl 15 '39 420w

"A book of depth and substance and authority." T. R. Ybarra

+ N Y Times p3 My 7 '39 1300w

New Yorker 15:124 Ap 29 '39 10w

Pratt p25 summer '39

"A vast amount of work has gone into [the book's] preparation: consultation and study in Poland, laborious checking of statements, boiling down vast amounts of statistics, choosing the material to be used, and indexing it. The result is a volume that was sorely needed by all who want to get behind the European headlines and find out what the issues are in the German-Polish dispute. . . Here is a volume that is at once timely and authentic. It is a conscientious effort to appraise and interpret situations that are of the utmost importance to the world today." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 Ap 29 '39 550w

"Mr. Buell's book is . . . extremely readable. For anyone who is genuinely interested, and who wants to know about the country with whose destinies we have recently and so surprisingly become linked, this book is as good as any that has yet been written. It has, moreover, the advantage of being right up to date and contains chapters that consider the country in its new light as our ally." Michael Murray

+ Spec 162:1048 Je 16 '39 850w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 30 '39 130w

Reviewed by Moses Moskowitz

Survey G 28:454 Jl '39 260w

Time 34:76 S 18 '39 350w

"The best book available to the English reader on contemporary Poland."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p334 Je 10 '39 700w

Reviewed by George Vernadsky

Yale R n s 29:190 autumn '39 800w

BUENZLE, FRED J. Bluejacket; an autobiography; with A. Grove Day; pref. by Felix Riesenberg; drawings by Charles E. Pont. 363p $3 Norton

B or 92 U.S.—Navy 39-27895

This autobiography of an old Navy man covers only the years from his enlistment in 1889 at the age of sixteen to the battle of Santiago in the Spanish-American war. During these years he had been trained in sail, had spent an adventurous period ashore in China, done some newspaper work, and then when he returned to navy life, had been assigned to a post as secretary to Rear Admiral Sampson. Index.

Booklist 36:109 N 15 '39

"This is a book for those who love the sea; and not the least of its virtues is that it provides a fresh viewpoint upon an era in our naval history that has long deserved attention." R. F. Armknecht

+ — Books p17 O 15 '39 550w

"Seldom has an enlisted man spun such an entertaining yarn. Naval memoirs by officers have been published by the score, some good, some bad, but I doubt if since the time of Melville there has been presented a first-rate picture of American naval life from the forecastle point of view." P. J. Searles

+ Boston Transcript p13 N 9 '39 500w

"One gets the feeling that this book gives a more complete picture of conditions in the American Navy in those transitional years than the writings of a dozen admirals. It has nothing to justify, nothing to conceal. The author doesn't kowtow to anybody." H. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p22 Ja 9 '40 600w

" 'Bluejacket' is a book one will remember. It is pithy, racy, human and amusing. We should like to have something of Chief Gunner Buenzle's later naval experiences." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p10 O 22 '39 550w

"The detail is so rich and sounds so true that this autobiography may become a classic in its limited field."

+ New Yorker 15:102 O 14 '39 50w

Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 23 '39 200w

Springf'd Republican p10 N 8 '39 750w

BUFANO, REMO. Magic strings; marionette plays with production notes; decorations by Boris Artzybasheff. 182p $1.50 Macmillan

791.5 Puppet plays 39-27236

Eleven marionette plays based upon familiar characters in children's literature. They are embellished with modern conversation, and are presumably to be used by readers who can make their own puppets. For grades five to eight.

Booklist 35:277 Ap 15 '39

"The humor is honest slapstick, and there is so much of it that a sympathetic reader seems to hear a chorus of squeals rising from the printed page. Mr. Artzybasheff's outline drawings are in the same vein; both author and illustrator take it for granted that you can make puppets." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 Mr 19 '39 240w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 27 '39 150w

Horn Bk M 15:173 My '39 60w

"Lively and amusing, these plays may be used by children of nine years of age. . . Sophisticated line drawings by Boris Artzybasheff add their humor to these puppet plays." R. W. Stewart

+ Library J 64:332 Ap 15 '39 90w

"Good and varied collection."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 8 '39 20w

BUFF, MARY (MARSH) (MRS CONRAD BUFF), and BUFF, CONRAD. Kobi, a boy of Switzerland; lithographs by Conrad Buff. 128p $2 Viking

Children in Switzerland (W) 39-32826

Story of life on a Swiss farm, for boys and girls of eight to ten. It tells of Kobi's growing up to the dignity of the yellow pants and red vest of a cattle herder, and being allowed to go for the first time with the men who tend the animals in summer on the Alps. The author was brought up in Switzerland.

Booklist 36:201 Ja 15 '40

"The five-color lithographs of Conrad Buff make this one of the season's outstanding books for children. They have the solidity of mountains and firm characters, the grotesquerie of peasant life. . . An evidently authentic version of child life on an Alpine farm." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 D 17 '39 250w

"The Viking Press can turn out a child's book so beautifully put together, so exquisitely illustrated, and so nicely told, that it might be worth your while just to keep your eye open for this imprint." Ruth Page

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 9 '39 70w

"In Kobi . . . boys and girls eight to twelve will find beauty, imagination, new friends, new scenes." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 18 '39 110w

"The book is an important addition to the scanty collection of authentic stories of boyhood in Switzerland. The illustrations are superb." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:44 Ja '40 140w

Reviewed by Effie Power

Library J 65:122 F 1 '40 100w

BUGBEE, EMMA. Peggy covers London. 300p map $2 Dodd

(W) 39-29728

Third in the series about a young American reporter, Peggy Foster. In this story Peggy goes to England for a vacation, but instead she works temporarily on the London bureau of her paper, and makes a scoop. She sails for home shortly before the outbreak of the present war. For earlier books in the series see Peggy Covers the News, and Peggy Covers Washington (Book Review Digest, 1936 and 1937). For older girls.

"Miss Bugbee, a real newspaper woman herself, does not make Peggy into a foreign correspondent. This makes her book a healthful present for girls who think how nice and presumably how easy being a foreign correspondent must be just now." M. L. Becker

+ Books p24 N 12 '39 400w

"If it is not quite as good as the original volumes, that is very likely because Miss Bugbee wrote herself more thoroughly into the American adventures. Peggy, however, manages to sandwich some excitement and press work into her sightseeing and ends up with a scoop like a good journalist."

Cath World 150:382 D '39 50w

BULLENS, DENISON KINGSLEY. Steel and its heat treatment [rev] by the metallurgical staff of the Battelle memorial institute. 4th ed 2v 445;491p il v 1 $4.50; v 2 $5 Wiley [v 1 22s 6d; v 2 25s Chapman]

669.1 Steel 38-33938

An extensively revised and enlarged edition of a standard work on heat treatment, formerly issued in one volume. For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1916. Contents: v 1, Principles, processes, control; v 2, Engineering and special-purpose steels. Index.

Booklist 35:136 D 15 '38 (Review of v 1)
Booklist 35:235 Mr 15 '39 (Review of v 2)

Reviewed by E. S. Johnson
Chem & Met Eng 46:231 Ap '39 230w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by E. S. Johnson
Chem & Met Eng 46:375 Je '39 110w (Review of v 2)

"The reader is given a generous and well-chosen list of references at the end of each chapter should he be disposed to look into any subject in detail for himself. The practical aspect is never neglected and helpful suggestions are liberally sprinkled throughout the book. . . The book is copiously illustrated and the diagrams are well done and clearly captioned. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said of most of the photomicrographs; some of these, presumably the ones supplied by Battelle, are adequate for the purpose intended, but most of those taken from the older editions are antediluvian and might better have been omitted. No book of this type and scope is faultless, but the skillful blending of theory and practice, the up-to-dateness of the subject matter, and the general saneness of viewpoint throughout combine to make this a most valuable and useful addition to the library of any shop, plant, or laboratory dealing with ferrous materials." E. S. Davenport

+ — Ind & Eng Chem 17:67 Ja 20 '39 650w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by E. S. Davenport
Ind & Eng Chem 17:172 Mr 10 '39 490w (Review of v 2)

N Y New Tech Bks 24:30 Ap '39

BULLIVANT, MARY GARLAND. Fortune's foal; il. by Anne Bullen. 116p $2 Scribner [5s Country life]

39-15608

"A well-written English story of Anne Radcliffe and her pony Gypsy; how the new pony improved under the wise, firm care of her sixteen-year-old mistress; how Anne finally decided to enter her in the Irish Ladies' Race at the Cattistock Point to Point." Horn Bk M

" 'Fortune's Foal' will be an unquestionable success with the many girls who count good 'horse stories' among their favorite books." M. A. Whitney

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 My 25 '39 220w

"The book is filled with the atmosphere of the hills and dales of Dorset, England—and much riding. It is attractively made."

+ Horn Bk M 15:110 Mr '39 100w

"The book tells a great deal about riding; it is well written and ends with a fine dramatic description of the race. The author's genuine love of horses and knowledge of how to treat them will appeal to young readers and to all lovers of animals and animal stories." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 16 '39 350w
Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 8 '39 20w

BULLOCH, WILLIAM. History of bacteriology. 422p il $3.75 (10s 6d) Oxford

589.95 Bacteriology. Scientists 39-3784

"Professor Bulloch relates the story of the advance of microbiology from the Fracastorian era of theoretical speculation to the present time. In the unfolding of the tale he tells us of the days of Leeuwenhoek, when the invention of the microscope made objective research possible, of the many fruitless years that followed and of the period of intensive discovery that ended with the closing years of the last century—that golden age of bacteriology so intimately associated with the names of Pasteur, Koch and Lister." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Originally delivered as the Heath Clark lectures at the London school of hygiene and tropical medicine, 1936.

"The book is logically arranged in chronologic sequence and shows evidence of an enormous amount of research work. . . The book is well illustrated and especially valuable in giving excellent illustrations of some of the early apparatus used in the study of bacteriology." M. P. Ravenel

+ Am J Pub Health 29:282 Mr '39 650w

"The volume is written by the foremost living authority, who has lived through the heroic age and was personally acquainted with many of the heroes. . . No man, living or dead, has ever before attempted to cover all this ground with the same thoroughness. As the author says, in his short preface, if the task had been easy it would not have been left so long undone. Consequently, this book is incomparable in every sense." Clifford Dobell

+ Nature 142:771 O 29 '38 1300w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:4 Ja '39

"This historical review is of especial interest and value at the present time on account of the application in recent years of new methods of chemical and physical research to problems of outstanding difficulty. . . An adequate bibliography and an alphabetical list of biographical notes add much to the usefulness of this book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p630 O 1 '38 170w

BUNCE, ARTHUR CYRIL. Economic nationalism and the farmer. 242p $1.50 Collegiate

338.1 Agriculture—Economic aspects. Agricultural administration—U.S. 38-31203

"Both the immediate and long-run effects of economic nationalism, in its present form, upon the American farmer are reviewed in this interesting study. The author is anything but favorably impressed by the outlook." Social Forces

"This is a concise, understandable addition to the literature dealing with economic nationalism and the perennial problems associated with our tariff and foreign trade policies." R. R. Renne

+ Am Econ R 29:371 Je '39 470w

"This book presents . . . a job that needed doing and, in general, Dr. Bunce has done it well. . . On the whole, one might have wished for fewer quotations from the apostles of self-sufficiency and somewhat more critical analyses of the fundamental fallacies in their reasoning. To the present reviewer, moreover, the book would have been better constructed if the discussion of the actual meaning of economic nationalism, or of foreign trade in general, to the American farmer had been set forth somewhat more fully and at an earlier point in the volume." L. A. Wheeler

+ — J Pol Econ 47:728 O '39 550w
Social Forces 17:592 My '39 110w

BURBANK, ADDISON. Guatemala profile; il. by [the author]. 296p map $3.50 Coward-McCann

917.281 Guatemala (W) 39-27358

The author, an American artist, went to Guatemala intending to stay a few weeks and remained thirteen months, fascinated by the sights and colors of the land and particularly by the inhabitants, 85 per cent of whom belong to the ancient Indian race. His book recounts his experiences and his contacts with people of all sorts; it is illustrated with numerous small sketches by the author. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 35:304 My 15 '39

"This unaffected story of a painter's Guatemalan year, illustrated with his Guatemalan sketches, brings us beauty and rare individual quality from a fascinating country, and makes that country's invitation almost irresistible." John Patton

+ Books p4 My 7 '39 750w

Foreign Affairs 17:822 Jl '39 10w

"This artist-writer's pages are alive and gay and breezy. They are saturated with the color which, in Guatemala, drives impressionable foreign visitors particularly artists, into frenzies of enthusiasm. They are never pretentious or pontifical, and they are decorated with dozens of neat and facile sketches. In short, they are a treat from cover to cover." T. R. Ybarra

+ N Y Times p2 Ap 23 '39 950w

New Yorker 15:78 Ap 22 '39 40w

Pratt p24 summer '39

"His abundant information might have been better organized had he chosen to present it in some other form than a straight chronological narrative, for he returns over the same ground more than once. The main thing is, however, that tourists and students now have a readable volume, enlivened with the author-artist's innumerable pen-and-ink sketches, that finally portrays the Indians of Guatemala as they have long needed to be portrayed." L. J. Halle, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 20:14 My 6 '39 400w

BURBANK, LUTHER. Partner of nature; edited and transcribed by Wilbur Hall [foreword by Elizabeth Waters Burbank]. 315p il $3 (12s 6d) Appleton-Century

631.522 Plant breeding (W) 39-27848

Comprehensive survey of Luther Burbank's methods of plant-breeding, of his successes and failures. The work is based upon the experimenter's unpublished manuscripts and notes, and is edited by a colleague and friend of many years standing. Index.

Booklist 36:84 N 1 '39

Boston Transcript p2 F 3 '40 240w

Christian Century 56:1211 O 4 '39 90w

Reviewed by A. F. Gilmore

Christian Science Monitor p21 N 16 '39 500w

Reviewed by Anita Moffett

N Y Times p4 O 22 '39 850w

"Whoever reads this book will agree with Mrs. Burbank that Mr. Hall has a happy faculty for presenting the enthusiasms, adventures and work of Mr. Burbank in a most felicitous way. The editing has been done so subtly that there is no break in the narrative, which reads smoothly and simply, and provides the general reader with a complete story of a life fully expressed in his chosen field of work." A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:1 O '39 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 35:212 D '39

BURBANK, NELSON L., comp. House construction details. 317p il $3 Simmons-Boardman

692.2 Building. Architecture, Domestic (W) 39-5306

"This compilation of construction details, photographic views of finished work, short-cut tables and brief explanatory text, is based upon modern American practice in the construction of residences and small miscellaneous buildings. . . The various sections are presented in construction sequence so as to constitute a working guide in detailing every step in the construction of a dwelling, from foundation to finish." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 35:265 Ap 15 '39

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '39

N Y New Tech Bks 24:20 Ap '39

BURCH, GLADYS, and WOLCOTT, JOHN. A child's book of famous composers. 184p il $1.50 Barnes, A.S.

927.8 Musicians—Juvenile literature (W) 39-27526

Portraits and brief biographical sketches of twenty of the world's greatest musicians. The arrangement is chronological. For grades four to six. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:366 Jl 1 '39

"Such a record does not tell enough for a work of reference, and a child must be pretty strongly interested in music beforehand to find condensed composers interesting. If he is, he will soon outgrow this book, but meanwhile he will have arranged his musicians in chronological order, and given them faces as well as names." M. L. Becker

Books p7 Ag 27 '39 150w

Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 60w

J Home Econ 31:481 S '39 70w

"The biographies are necessarily brief, but the authors write sympathetically, in a pleasant, easy style, and in selecting their material they have considered children's interests." A. T. E.

+ N Y Times p10 N 19 '39 120w

Wis Lib Bul 35:193 N '39

BURCH, VACHER. Anthropology and the Apocalypse. 254p $4.50 (10s 6d) Macmillan

228 Bible. New Testament—Revelation 39-21194

"An interpretation of 'The Book of the Revelation' in relation to the archaeology, folklore, and religious literature and ritual of the Near East." Subtitle

"The book will repay the careful attention of serious students, but will scarcely yield its meaning to the casual reader. The author's new rendering of Revelation in dramatic form is however, exciting reading for anyone and will send many back to study the total argument on which it rests."

+ Christian Century 56:453 Ap 5 '39 70w

Reviewed by S. V. McCasland

J Religion 19:277 Jl '39 750w

"Dr. Burch is a prolific writer with a position peculiarly his own. Very patient and laborious students may gain profit from his novel proposals, but most readers will feel that the Book of Revelation is quite complicated enough already." B. S. E.

Living Church 101:12 Jl 19 '39 40w

"Dr. Burch is no doubt correct in maintaining that the contents of Revelation formed part of the Christian message of the first century. Not all the suggestions which he advances, however, with a view to solving the numerous problems which the Apocalypse raises will be regarded as equally acceptable."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p195 Ap 1 '39 120w

BURDEKIN, HAROLD. The secret. 87p $1.75 Dutton [7s 6d Dent]

225 Bible. New Testament—Pictorial works. Photographs 39-19320

More than thirty photographs illustrating texts from the New Testament. Harold Burdekin's photographs were also used to illustrate A Child's Grace (Book Review Digest, 1938).

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 22 '39 130w

BURDEKIN, HAROLD—Continued

"The pictures are photographs of high technical excellence representing scenes from common life. The words are appropriate texts of Scripture. It is, in a way, a book of parables in photography."

+ Christian Century 56:677 My 24 '39 40w
Churchman 153:39 D 15 '39 20w

BURGLON, NORA. Lost island; il. by James Reid. 261p $2 Winston

39-18507

Story of Alaska for older girls. Solvig Salstrom is left on her own when her father fails to return from the hunt for a lost Arctic flyer. Solvig manages a team of outlaw dogs, is shipwrecked on a lonely island, and finally succeeds in finding her father.

"Though the incidents are wilder than in Miss Burglon's other books—which were never tame—these incidents of life in Alaska are founded on fact. She was the guest of relatives of men in the Andrée Expedition when the remains of those heroic explorers were dramatically recovered in 1930." M. L. Becker

+ Books p7 D 31 '39 250w

"Miss Burglon is a master of story-telling. . . Credulity of older readers is often strained at the kindness of Fate to the author's characters in crucial moments. But the authenticity of her background one accepts as unquestionably as in her Scandinavian stories. She seems to know the snow and ice of the North, the way of an avalanche, the behavior of dogs, how a ship can fail, and how life can be maintained on a desert island. When Miss Burglon's plots are as true to life as her backgrounds, she will be more than a spinner of tall tales." Miriam Snow

+ — Library J 64:663 S 1 '39 170w
Wis Lib Bul 35:220 D '39

BURKHART, ROY A. Youth and the way of Jesus; building a philosophy of life. 212p $2 Round table

248 Youth—Religious life. Faith 39-24332

The purpose of this book is to aid young people in building a philosophy of life based on Christian teachings. It is presented under three headings: the faiths one must have; principles of living; and the causes which must concern youth.

Booklist 36:103 N 15 '39

"It may be that the sketchy character of the book comes from the author's desire to make it readable and to make each matter dealt with easily understandable. It is doubtful if Dr. Burkhart intended to write a logical treatise on the Christian philosophy of life. His intention was to write a book which would be helpful to young people and which they would read. This he has done. The book is readable and it will be helpful to young people." M. T. Hopper

+ — Christian Century 56:1343 N 1 '39 500w

Reviewed by Elizabeth McCracken
Living Church 101:7 D 6 '39 40w

BURLEY, ORIN E. The consumers' cooperative as a distributive agency. 338p $3 (18s) McGraw

334.5 Cooperation. Consumption (economics) 39-20377

"Study of consumers' cooperative distributive methods and policies, the performance of marketing functions, personnel and membership relations, etc. Detailed consideration is given the various types of retail cooperatives, wholesale cooperatives, and the 'super' cooperative wholesale societies that function on a national front. The legal bases of consumers' cooperatives, both from an institutional and a distributive standpoint, are fully discussed." (Management R) Index.

"The book is both inclusive and objective in its treatment of the consumer co-operative movement, and will be found suitable as a text as well as a good reference book by those offering courses in co-operative purchasing." H. H. Bakken

+ Ann Am Acad 207:253 Ja '40 450w
Booklist 36:82 N 1 '39

"A well-rounded, objective treatment."

+ Management R 28:287 Ag '39 60w

BURLINGAME, ROGER. March of the iron men; a social history of union through invention. 500p il maps $3.75 (15s) Scribner

973 U.S.—History. Inventions (W) 38-27712

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"The author . . . makes no claim that this is a complete history, but he may justly hold that it throws into better perspective some of the factors frequently minimized. The volume is well illustrated and contains a reference list of events and inventions." R. H. Anderson

+ Am Hist R 44:726 Ap '39 300w

"As a narrative of economic and social development the March of the Iron Men is vivid and interesting. . . The 'conclusions' are not really an indispensable part of the text. They appear in interspersed passages which might well be omitted altogether. They are obiter dicta which express motives and purposes that were clearly important to the author, but they distract the reader and raise questions which cannot be answered within the limits of such a volume." A. P. Usher

+ — J Pol Econ 47:288 Ap '39 550w

"Fascinating and valuable book." H. W. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Mr 17 '39 380w
New Eng Q 12:615 S '39 300w

Reviewed by Milton Waldman
New Statesman & Nation 17:752 My 13 '39 110w

Reviewed by J. G. Plank, Jr.
Social Studies 30:185 Ap '39 600w
Special Libraries 30:136 Ap '39
Times [London] Lit Sup p254 Ap 29 '39 70w

BURNE, ALFRED HIGGINS. Lee, Grant and Sherman; a study in leadership in the 1864-65 campaign. 216p il maps $3 Scribner [10s 6d Gale]

973.73 U.S.—History—Civil war—Campaigns and battles. Lee, Robert Edward. Grant, Ulysses Simpson. Sherman, William Tecumseh 39-6006

Study by a British army officer of the closing campaigns of the Civil war and the strategy of their leaders on both sides, not only the three generals named in the title, but also Johnston, Hood, Early, Sheridan and others. Index.

"This is a book deserving of careful reading by anyone interested in the military history of the Civil War. It is marred, unfortunately, by far too many typographical errors and errors in names and dates." T. R. Hay

+ — Am Hist R 45:177 O '39 550w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
Books p19 Mr 26 '39 700w
Boston Transcript p3 Je 3 '39 120w
Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 2 '39 650w
New Yorker 15:83 F 18 '39 30w

"The book, intended primarily for professional study, is emphatically sound in approach and execution. But Colonel Burne is also to be congratulated upon a vividness of style which results in an entertaining story for the layman." R. E. Dupuy

+ Sat R of Lit 19:18 F 25 '39 500w

"Colonel Burne's method is to sketch in outline the course of a campaign or battle and to discuss the merits of the generals, their errors, their achievements. Tactical detail is eschewed and the general political history of the war is almost entirely ignored. The weaknesses of an interesting and useful book arise from the limitations imposed on himself by Colonel Burne. As Colonel Burne seems to have hankerings after the offensive, to have more admiration for a bold attack that fails than for a completely pedestrian defensive that more or less succeeds, the omission of tactical discussion is a pity. . . More serious is the omission of political discussion. . . The weakness of Colonel Burne's book arises from the refusal to discuss such problems; that weakness does not destroy the book's merits but it often hides them." D. W. Brogan

— + Spec 161:622 O 14 '38 500w

"The details of military campaigns 75 years ago must surely be approached with circumspection. Col. Burne's book merits the study of thoughtful readers as well as of military students, for three great Americans are concerned. Of their greatness as men Col Burne has no doubt. But as generals they had failings. . . Unfortunately, the errors or failures described in this book have to be considered as largely unavoidable, since they arose in the judgments or temperaments of the best available men, who were doing their best." E. N. Jenckes

Springf'd Republican p6 F 11 '39 1500w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes

Springf'd Republican p6 F 18 '39 1150w

"An instructive study. . . Colonel Burne has visited the ground and consulted all the principal sources (to which he provides a useful critical guide)."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p714 N 5 '38 120w

BURNETT, WHIT. The literary life and the hell with it; with drawings by Bemelmans. (Story press bk) 276p $2.50 Harper

814 Authors. Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures (W) 39-2244

"The genial co-editor of Story gossips, and gossips well, about and around the literary life, which, as a matter of fact, he likes much better than his title indicates. Mr. Burnett's easy discourses cover the origin of Story, what writers like to read, literary chaps as nature-lovers, humorists he has met and some he hasn't, pre-Hitler Vienna, conversations with Gertrude Stein—and so it goes. Agreeably odd drawings by Bemelmans." New Yorker

---

"It is a discussion mercifully free of professional pomp and esthetic fuss-budgeting, the work of a critic and editor who can apparently take his profession healthily, with a proper amount of humor and skepticism." William Soskin

+ Books p2 Ja 22 '39 850w

"This volume will not be the best of the year but it may well be, as Frank Scully says, 'the bed book of the year.' " Earle Birney

+ Canadian Forum 19:27 Ap '39 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '39

Reviewed by Otis Ferguson

New Repub 97:376 F 1 '39 120w

"The humor of this humorist has a bite in it. It is non-totalitarian. It is on the side of the angels. One does not believe that any one who likes to be intelligently crazy in a world where non-intelligent insanity is butchering so many brave ideas and so many brave people will be disappointed in this book." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 22 '39 1450w

New Yorker 14:71 Ja 21 '39 70w

"If there exists in America any number of persons who are still pleased by rambling, diffuse, educated, informative gossip which combines odd sidelights on literary people with such topics as the sizes of French beer-glasses and the habits of New Jersey cops, this will be a treasured item to them." Fletcher Pratt

Sat R of Lit 19:11 Ja 28 '39 490w

"Mr Burnett has humor, a gift of spirited expression and an ability to interest the reader in chit-chat and triviality."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 22 '39 850w

Time 33:66 Ja 30 '39 290w

BURNS, CECIL DELISLE. Civilisation: the next step. 291p $2.75 Norton [8s 6d Nicholson]

901 Civilization 39-18879

"What can the ordinary man or woman do to help in the advance of civilisation? The author of this book . . . attempts to answer that question. It is not a problem of politics, nor even of public policy alone. For, the author believes, personal or private conduct and attitudes in everyday contacts are as important as any public policy." (Publisher's note) Index.

Boston Transcript p2 Je 10 '39 360w

Reviewed by G. L. LaFuze

Christian Century 56:737 Je 7 '39 550w

"A challenging book which deserves a wide reading and a wider heeding." A. L. Murray

+ Churchman 153:18 Jl '39 230w

"With all the author's skill, wisdom, and good will, the book is already entirely out of date as an immediate next-step facing of the cruel dilemmas that confront the liberal. When Dr. Burns speaks of long-run ideals: 'The next step must be such as to make more widespread and powerful the feeling for justice,' he commands applause. But when he outlines concrete civilized action in a world of power politics, he flounders in inconsistencies. Let us hope he is right in declaring that 'we are at the beginning and not at the end of the history of civilised life' on this as yet uncivilized planet." H. A. Larrabee

+ — Ethics 49:493 Jl '39 450w

Foreign Affairs 18:158 O '39 20w

"All who believe in reason and good feeling as mightier than the sword should read this book." J. A. Hobson

Manchester Guardian p7 N 8 '38 600w

"Dr. Burns's latest work is . . . free from the blight of excessive cleverness, which is the enemy both of humanity and good sense; does not flourish a water-tight theory as a key to the universe; and deals with men as responsible beings, who can do a good deal, if they please, to make a decent future, not as animals or puppets. It is, in short, modest, reasonable and wise. To these solid virtues it adds a happy pungency of expression which hits the bull's-eye in a sentence." R. H. Tawney

+ New Statesman & Nation 16:880 N 26 '38 1200w

"This is, in its way, a wise book—if the reader can overlook Mr. Burns's untenable attitude to international affairs." John Cournos

+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 9 '39 750w

"Dr. Burns belongs to the class of writers who have elaborate reasons for obvious facts and values, and expound them with immense verbiage. . . In other words, Dr. Burns has nothing to say."

— No Am 247:191 spring '39 100w

"[This] is a disappointing and indeed frequently irritating book. In its broad survey of social and political problems it is full of sweeping assertions in support of which are adduced neither evidence nor close reasoning. . . To parody this book would be all too easy. It is unfortunate, for the author has many shrewd and sensible things to say, but these things are too much involved with matter which is either banal or uncritical. The weeds in the book have choked the wheat." W. T. Wells

— + Spec 161:sup38 N 18 '38 250w

"Mr Burns is clearly convinced that there is no short cut to Utopia. Even those who cannot accept all his inferences will find in his book a good deal of insight and understanding. Accuracy is sadly absent, however." E. N. Jenckes

BURNS, C. D.—Continued
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 F 25 '39 1200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p775 D 3 '38 270w
Wis Lib Bul 35:161 O '39

BURNS, ESTHER. Mrs Peregrine at the Fair; pictures by Eloise Wilkin. unp $1 Messner 39-17235

Kind Mrs Peregrine who rescued the Yak in Mrs Peregrine and the Yak (Book Review Digest, 1938) took two little children to the World's Fair, and all three had such a good time that Mrs Peregrine decided to adopt a little girl to keep for her own.

"They say the book is officially adopted by the Fair, and I don't wonder; Mrs. Peregrine had such a good time at the Parachute Jump." M. L. Becker
+ Books p5 Jl 9 '39 270w
Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p12 Jl 2 '39 220w
Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 16 '39 30w

BURNS, ROBERT MARTIN, and SCHUH, ARTHUR EUGENE. Protective coatings for metals. (Am. chemical soc. Monographs ser) 412p il $6.50 Reinhold [32s 6d Chapman]
620.1122 Corrosion and anti-corrosives
39-9488

"This book is much more comprehensive in title and scope than the valuable monograph by H. S. Rawdon on 'Protective Metallic Coatings,' [Book Review Digest, 1928] of which it should be considered as a successor, rather than a revision. . . The major subjects are: mechanism of corrosion, surface preparation, types and methods of application; coatings of zinc, cadmium, tin, nickel, chromium, copper, lead, aluminum, silver, gold, and platinum metals; and methods of testing metallic coatings. In addition, three chapters are devoted to the composition, application, and evaluation of paint coatings on metals. A final chapter includes oxide and phosphate coatings and vitreous enamels." Ind & Eng Chem

"These chemists are unusually well equipped to undertake the preparation of a volume on protective coatings for they have long made investigations and contributed to our knowledge of the protection offered by the many various types. Also, since interest has been that of the user of large volumes of various kinds of protective coatings they are in a position to give an unbiased opinion of the comparative protection offered by the many materials." J. A. Lee
+ Chem & Met Eng 46:432 Jl '39 180w
Reviewed by William Blum
Ind & Eng Chem 17:254 Ap 10 '39 330w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:42 Jl '39

BURNS, THOMAS. Terrence O'Hara; il. by Reginald Birch. 155p $2 Harcourt
Fairy tales 39-27849

Modern Irish fairy tale. It describes the favor which Terrence O'Hara was able to do for the fairy-queen, and his reward.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39

"Here is that phenomenon, a new fairy-tale standing comparison with the old. Even the name of its author is new to me, but it is clear he comes from Ireland itself and learned his English there. There, too, he found the instinctive faith in his own creation that marks the true story-teller. . . The pictures are, in my considered opinion, in the best vein of Reginald Birch, not only in spirit but in execution." M. L. Becker
+ Books p10 N 12 '39 380w
Cath World 150:376 D '39 60w

"This is a tale that will endear itself to readers for it is perfect story-telling, written in musical prose that sings and dances as it follows Terrence O'Hara with his tin whistle when he makes the old cow dance and talks with the Fairy Queen. Reginald Birch's illustrations further the fun and fantasy to be found in this rare book." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 13 '39 130w
Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 10w

"Written in singing prose and with a refreshing sincerity." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 15:381 N '39 70w
Reviewed by Florence O'Gara
Library J 65:123 F 1 '40 80w

"The fairies are a bit on the gossamer side for Irish fairies and one misses the tang of humor so characteristic of the fairy tales that come out of Ireland. Thomas Burns has written a pleasant, graceful little story, however, that is proving particularly popular with little girls from 8 to 10. Reginald Birch's lively drawings of the cow and other farm animals footing it to the tunes played on the tin whistle have true gayety and charm." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p34 N 12 '39 150w

"Nice Irish fairy tale."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:26 N 18 '39 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 3 '39 80w

BUROS, OSCAR KRISEN, ed. Research and statistical methodology books and reviews, 1933-1938. 100p $1.25 Rutgers univ.
016.3 Research—Bibliography. Statistics—Bibliography

"This book is reprinted from The 1938 Mental Measurement Yearbook of the Rutgers University School of Education. It contains a very full bibliography of textbooks and monographs on statistical and research methods which have appeared since 1933, together with comments and evaluations extracted from the various reviews they have received. Dr. Buros plans to supply annually such a collation of critical reviews of work in this field, if the present venture meets with a favorable response." (J Philos) Indexes.

"Should serve as a helpful guide to students seeking to form a serviceable library in the field of statistics."
+ Am Econ R 29:207 Mr '39 50w
Reviewed by Louis Feldman
Am J Pub Health 29:681 Je '39 170w
Reviewed by G. A. Lundberg
Am Soc R 4:879 D '39 100w

"The project is very worth while, and Dr. Buros should be encouraged to continue the service he has rendered to students of the subject. The present volume will undoubtedly be of great value to all those desiring critical information about the latest developments in research methods." E. N.
+ J Philos 36:277 My 11 '39 120w

BURT, HENRY JACKSON. Steel construction; a text and reference book on the design of steel framework for buildings; 4th ed rev. by C. H. Sandberg. 438p il $3.50 Am. tech. soc.
691.7 Building, Iron and steel. Steel, Structural 38-30616

"New material in this book, last published in 1931, includes up-to-date specifications and data, new photographs and drawings, and chapters on welding and on the design of industrial buildings. There are complete structural plans for a four-story school building and for a power house. Mr. Sandberg, who revises the work, is an assistant engineer of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railway System." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 35:101 N 15 '38
N Y New Tech Bks 23:44 Jl '38
Pratt p16 spring '39

BURT, KATHARINE (NEWLIN) (MRS MAXWELL STRUTHERS BURT). If love I must. 279p $2 Macrae Smith co.

39-33000

Love story of Crystal Jayne, brilliant daughter of a beautiful divorcée mother. Determined that Crystal should make a good marriage her mother orders Crystal to give up her ideas of becoming an ichthyologist, and puts her into the hands of an expert in beauty culture. The result is so dazzling that Crystal walks off with the very man her mother had planned on for herself.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p19 N 5 '39 70w

Boston Transcript p1 N 18 '39 90w

"The dashing style, the professional beauty detail and the ugly duckling's lavish success will make this book enjoyable for many women —and for some who wouldn't admit it." Beatrice Sherman

\+ N Y Times p20 O 22 '39 240w

BURTON, ELI FRANKLIN. The physical properties of colloidal solutions. 3d ed 243p $5.75 (15s) Longmans

541.3452 Colloids Agr39-468

"Careful pruning of the second edition (1921) provides for the inclusion of much new text without materially increasing the size of the volume. The general aim is to link the subject with the kinetic theory of matter. Prominence is given to the Brownian movement and to the ultramicroscope. Dr. Burton is head of the Department of Physics, University of Toronto." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1916.

"While numerous points of criticism can be found, the fact remains that the book is stimulating and informative; it is a book to read." D. C. Henry

\+ — J Phys Chem 43:397 Mr '39 300w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:5 Ja '39

BURTON, MRS KATHERINE (KURZ). Paradise planters; the story of Brook Farm. 336p $2.50 (10s 6d) Longmans

335.97 Brook Farm 39-27179

Story of the New England social experiment which had its center at Brook Farm in the 1840s. Altho the book is in semi-fictional form, it is based upon contemporary sources and records conversations of the Transcendentalists in words drawn from actual statements. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:245 Ap 1 '39

"Katherine Burton has written a most entertaining account that is also sympathetic and wise. Her method, that of narrative interspersed with much conversation based on letters and journals is difficult to handle. It seems to me that she has adapted it extremely well to her purpose and could perhaps in no other way have produced a picture so realistic and intimate, so keenly characterized and firmly set in its social frame." C. G. Stillman

\+ Books p2 Je 18 '39 1000w

"In 'Paradise Planters' time sequences are occasionally askew, characters confusingly take part in events before they have arrived at the Farm, the founders often seem wooden and their quoted conversation impossibly artificial. But there are times when the illusion is complete and the reader joins the author in her deep sympathy and admiration for those brilliant failures." R. T. D.

\+ — Boston Transcript p1 Mr 18 '39 800w

"This book is well informed, intelligently arranged, and written—if one may use the word—in a sprightly style: and therefore it will entertain a multitude of readers to whom 'Transcendentalism' would be a prohibitive title; and it will give them considerable knowledge of a very significant chapter of American literature." J. McS.

\+ Cath World 149:120 Ap '39 350w

Christian Century 56:998 Ag 16 '39 100w

"This account of Brook Farm gains warmth and vitality from the dialogue style in which it is cast." W. K. R.

\+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 1 '39 650w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Commonweal 30:134 My 26 '39 360w

"Equally without fear or footnotes, defying the scholarly sanctities, refusing to persuade us that her material is 'always utterly correct in detail,' Katherine Burton has written a fine history of Brook Farm. That is not to say that Mrs. Burton makes great claims to profundity. . . As a study of communal settlements her 'Paradise Planters' lacks the intellectual breadth which marked Robert Parker's study of Oneida. Yet Mrs. Burton has accomplished—and I am almost tempted to add, in her unfathomable feminine way—what all the profundity and breadth in the scholarly world cannot by themselves do. Visibly and immediately she has created Brook Farm." Maxwell Geismar

\+ Nation 149:177 Ag 12 '39 450w

New Repub 98:259 Ap 5 '39 50w

"This is a wholly delightful and utterly honest book Katherine Burton has patched together. . . It is not a novel, neither a history; but it is a story taken from the recorded sayings and the many writings that have come down to us, a story that is witty, humorous, tender, thoughtful (by turns) and always true. And her own writing, binding the patches together, is quite of a piece with them. Those who know Brook Farm will have a holiday with it; for those who do not, here's the easiest and friendliest way to become acquainted." F. T. Marsh

\+ N Y Times p3 Mr 19 '39 900w

Pratt p8 autumn '39

"Much of what she reports as conversation she has drawn from written discourse, frequently . . . one hears in it the sententious ring of Transcendental rhetoric. A good many of her facts give the impression of falsity because they are misunderstood and misinterpreted. Taken as a whole, the book has only the most distant relationship to the truth of Brook Farm—and this precisely because there is no adequate and controlled work of the imagination in it." Odell Shepard

Sat R of Lit 19:7 Mr 11 '39 600w

Discussion by the author

Sat R of Lit 19:9 Ap 15 '39 220w

" 'Paradise Planters' will appeal to every historical-minded reader, both for its informative as well as for its stimulating qualities."

\+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 2 '39 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p443 Jl 22 '39 140w

Wis Lib Bul 35:60 Ap '39

BURTON, VIRGINIA LEE. Mike Mulligan and his steam shovel; pictures by [the author]. [48]p $1.50 Houghton

39-30335

Story of Mike Mulligan and Mary Anne, his steam shovel, which tells how Mary Anne dug a cellar in one day, and then couldn't get out of the hole.

Booklist 36:179 Ja 1 '40

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p15 N 12 '39 250w

"The book has originality and is funny." F. B. Sloan

\+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 13 '39 70w

"This is one of the jolliest books of the fall season. Every one who has stood and watched a steam shovel at work and fallen a victim to its fascination will enjoy it, but it belongs especially to the small boy who can most easily perceive the personality in Mary Anne. . . The pictures are as much fun as the text." A. M. Jordan

\+ Horn Bk M 16:42 Ja '40 100w

BURTON, V. L.—Continued

"Very good reading aloud and a child's interest in machinery will assure it of appreciation." Irene Smith

+ Library J 64:999 D 15 '39 100w

"The pictures are delightful, and the story of a steam-shovel operator who really loved his steam shovel is unusually fresh and original. Highly recommended."

+ New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 30w

New Yorker 15:86 N 25 '39 40w

"Modern and imaginative."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:34 D 2 '39 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 100w

BURTT, EDWIN ARTHUR. Types of religious philosophy. 512p $3 Harper

201 Religion—Philosophy 38-29086

An exposition of seven major types of contemporary religious philosophy. Contents: The early historical background; The Catholic philosophy of religion; Protestant fundamentalism; The religion of science; Agnosticism; Ethical idealism; Modernism; Humanism; Some individual philosophies and current trends. Selected bibliography at the end of each chapter. Index.

Booklist 35:183 F 1 '39

"This work is greatly to be praised for its comprehensiveness and high scholarship. One who may have doubted that there is serious thinking in the United States on religious issues will be gratified at the great productivity and variety of thought which is here passed in review by one of the best minds in this field." A. C. Dieffenbach

+ Books p25 Ap 2 '39 480w

"The presentation of rival religious philosophies in a manner that is unbiased and free of any prejudice is indeed a noble and worthy objective. But it is a very difficult one to achieve. This is especially true if the author has some deep convictions of his own. Professor Burtt does have convictions of this type concerning contemporary philosophies of religion and anyone who reads his book carefully will not be wholly in doubt as to what they are. Nevertheless, he does achieve his objective to a remarkable degree. He makes an honest effort to be fair. . . Of the seven chapters the best presentation, as it appears to this reviewer, is contained in the one on humanism. It is doubtful whether one could find in a single chapter in any book a clearer or more concise statement of the positions held by humanists. The poorest one in the list is the chapter on modernism." C. H. Patterson

+ — Christian Century 56:157 F 1 '39 850w

"It is a convenient volume to use, for there are valuable summaries of the disputed points of each system, helpful bibliographies, and a good index. It can be used as an introduction to the field, as a helpful review, or as a text in college or seminary." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 153:17 F 15 '39 170w

"He who reads and absorbs this able volume's discriminating discussion will certainly be enlightened. But I should like to call attention to one unusual and useful feature of this work so far as content is concerned. This resides in the outline, at the conclusion of each of the seven chapters dealing with the religious philosophies, of the major disputed assumptions of that particular school of thought. These outlines are very suggestive and offer an excellent medium for comparing the philosophies of religion which are separately and objectively considered. This book deserves wide use as an introductory text-book in the field of the philosophy of religion. It will also prove invaluable to men now in the ministry." G. W. Davis

+ Crozer Q 16:228 Jl '39 650w

Reviewed by W. Pauck

Ethics 50:115 O '39 420w

J Philos 36:418 Jl 20 '39 250w

Reviewed by H. W. Schneider

J Religion 19:378 O '39 550w

"While inevitably marked by the 'textbook-odor,' it is clear and precise, although sometimes a little less than accurate in references to Catholic theology, and to some types of liberalism. . . All in all, it is one of the most thorough books of its kind that we have come across." W. N. Pittenger

+ Living Church 100:432 Ap 19 '39 90w

Wis Lib Bul 35:45 Mr '39

BUSCHLEN, JOHN PRESTON (JACK PRESTON, pseud.) Hell! Hollywood. 344p $2.50 Reilly & Lee 39-7772

"Jack Preston's fantastic cinamystery deals with the animosities, the racial prejudices and what he calls the 'disturbing vibrations' of Hollywood." Books

"His scenario takes in all the industry's sins from murder to block booking, covering everything—including the reader—with confusion." Lisle Bell

— Books p12 Ap 23 '39 200w

"'Hell! Hollywood' is designed to be sensational. It succeeds admirably. . . Violently anti-Hitler, it becomes a cumulatively well-constructed plea for the continuation of American freedom of belief and action." Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 22 '39 130w

"Mr. Preston attempts to handle about six times as many people as he has room for. It is obvious that he is familiar with his scene and it may be that Hollywood could stand a house-cleaning. Certainly the book contains some mightily disgusting stories. But they are offered as fiction. And judged as fiction this novel is not a success." Robert Van Gelder

— N Y Times p17 Ap 23 '39 280w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 23 '39 280w

BUSH, CHRISTOPHER. The case of the green felt hat. 261p map $2 Holt [7s 6d Cassell]

39-4286

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p18 F 19 '39 170w

"Rogue's Gallery found it impossible to get worked up over the murder of a swindler, anyway. Our major emotion was annoyance at the rabbit-out-of-the-hat solution." Marian Wiggin

— Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '39 90w

"Belongs on the preferred list of all mystery fans." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p25 F 19 '39 160w

"Ludo suffers less than other fictional sleuths turned Benedick. Features of tale include likable characters and tantalizing finish. Entertaining."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 F 25 '39 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 150w

"Mr. Christopher Bush has been writing this sort of story for a long time and 'The Case of the Green Felt Hat' is one of his best. The number of characters is limited, the suspects clearly defined and the unity of the novel admirable. . . The novel is primarily for the reader who intends to try to work out the solution for himself."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p108 F 18 '39 280w

BUSH, IRA JEFFERSON. Gringo doctor; foreword by Eugene Cunningham; il. by James Wallis. 261p $3 Caxton printers

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Frontier and pioneer life—Texas. Mexico—History 39-12978

Autobiography of a southern doctor who chose to settle in West Texas in the 1890s when that country was still "frontier." The last part of his book deals with his adventures in Mexico during the Madero revolution.

Booklist 35:379 Jl 15 '39

"It reads rather like a travelogue than an autobiography, for the author is a stranger to introspection and character-analysis and without interest in general ideas. Ideas apart, he has lived a full life, and in spite of a naïveté which will at times startle both the sociologist and the literary critic has succeeded in telling his story fairly well." R. E. K. P.

+ — Canadian Forum 19:231 O '39 100w

"Even if Dr. Bush is not a professional writer, he is a man of parts, and his record, bearing the stamp of authenticity, is a contribution to the sources of history. . . There are some interesting personal highlights on Madero and Pancho Villa, the bandit, both of whom the author knew, as well as on lesser figures of the revolution." E. F. Allen

+ N Y Times p10 Je 11 '39 480w

Wis Lib Bul 35:145 Jl '39

BUSH-BROWN, MRS LOUISE (CARTER), and BUSH-BROWN, JAMES. America's garden book. 1222p il maps $3.50 Scribner

635.9 Gardening 39-28968

Reference book for gardeners covering practically every phase of flower and vegetable gardening. Partial contents: Soil and soil improvement; Design; Construction problems; Lawns; Vines; Trees; Shrubs; Herbaceous perennials; Rock and wall gardens; The woodland garden; Water and bog gardens; The herb garden; City gardens; Coldframes and hotbeds; The small greenhouse; The culture of plants in nutrient solutions; The home fruit garden; The home vegetable garden; Plant diseases and pests; Maps of growing conditions and frost dates. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 36:145 D 15 '39

"Being reduced in weight, this book cannot be so all-inclusive as its big brothers. Nevertheless, it does pack an amazing amount of information between its covers. In addition, the style is not so formal and concise as in the expensive books, while, on the other hand, it is not at all expansive and inspirational as is often the case with the smaller books." W. H. Clark

+ — Boston Transcript p7 D 16 '39 330w

Christian Science Monitor p9 D 1 '39 150w

"This plump and authoritative book on general gardening is comprehensive, practical and thorough-going." F. F. Rockwell

+ N Y Times p24 F 4 '40 200w

BUTLER, FRANK ARTHUR. The improvement of teaching in secondary schools. 389p il $3 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge]

371 Teaching. Education, Secondary 39-9919

"This book has for its purposes the development of an understanding of the principles of teaching and the utilization of means leading to the fulfilment of the principles. . . Part I gives the background of education in the United States with special emphasis upon secondary schools. Part II includes treatment of the first five principles of teaching. . . Part III shows how to use common classroom procedures which have significant possibilities for carrying into effect the principles, especially the first five. . . Part IV deals with the last three principles of teaching. . . Part V deals with those aspects of teaching which come as final applications of the principles." (Pref) The author is associate professor of education at the Pennsylvania State college. Index.

J Home Econ 31:332 My '39 80w

"A feature of the book which is unusual is the author's frequent use of the second person. It thus appears that he is speaking to the young teacher directly. Another characteristic which contributes to clarity of thought and directness of appeal is reference in subsequent pages to an illustration given earlier. By precept and example, the most is made of apt illustrations and concrete situations. In short, the book is such a superior treatise on the improvement of instruction in secondary schools that it merits wide adoption by colleges and universities, and it should find a place in the professional library of every high school." R. R. Ryder

+ School R 47:390 My '39 700w

"The author, an associate professor of education at Pennsylvania State College, wrote this book for prospective teachers, and it is a good book for persons about to enter the teaching profession. But it is just as good a book, perhaps better, for those teachers now in service who entered the profession fifteen or more years ago." K. E. Gell

+ Social Educ 3:516 O '39 850w

BUTLER, NICHOLAS MURRAY. Across the busy years; recollections and reflections. v 1 451p il $3.75 Scribner

B or 92 (W) (39-27850)

The first volume of President Butler's autobiography covers his childhood and youth, education, connection with Columbia University, and his participation in national politics. A second volume is projected to deal with his interests in international affairs. Index.

Booklist 36:87 N 1 '39

"Altogether, 'Across the Busy Years' presents the truly important contribution of an exceptionally retentive mind to the story of our times. It will give edge to the reader's appetite for a promised second volume dealing principally with Dr. Butler's participation in international affairs." W. M. Houghton

+ Books p4 O 15 '39 1150w

"The vicious habit of inserting in these memoirs long reports on educational matters (reports, to be sure, written by the author) is an unpardonable blunder. It is as if the author, on reading them over, thought they were very good and needed another chance, at long last, of being read by others. . . The light which his memoirs shed upon his own day is a valuable (if always political) light, but the book is even more interesting as a revelation of the personality of its author." J. E. Park

+ — Boston Transcript p13 O 13 '39 1200w

"That these pages abound in interest for any reader of ordinary intelligence there can be no question; although, for the most part, the author confines himself to episodes which give too little insight into the hidden origins and the official secrets of the movements with which he has been associated. Yet for all his characteristic reticence and his great discretion, he has given us a book entitled to a place in political Americana." J. McS.

+ Cath World 150:509 Ja '40 320w

Christian Science Monitor p18 O 20 '39 450w

Reviewed by D. S. Miller

New Repub 102:28 Ja 1 '40 700w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson

N Y Times p1 S 24 '39 1450w

New Yorker 15:70 S 30 '39 60w

Pratt p21 winter '40

"Butler's book should have been a model of autobiography, because Butler is a man of great intelligence and broad experience, with little if anything needing to be covered up. It is not a model. It is badly constructed, and, what surprises a reader of Butler's terse and effective official documents, it is often prolix and spotted with horrendous infelicities of style. Nevertheless, it is a book worth reading. When one picks it up again, one does so, not perhaps with affection, but certainly with respect." Alvin Johnson

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:7 S 30 '39 1150w

"Dr Butler's book reflects his vigorous personality and the downrightness of his judgments. It is not full of self-revelation, but it pictures his interests and activities in a manner to interest the general reader. The political chapters have considerable spirit and present some new information. There is a specially pleasing account of student days in Germany and his association with Prof Burgess at Columbia."

BUTLER, N. M.—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 1 '39 1150w
Reviewed by W. A. White
Survey G 28:764 D '39 1000w
Times [London] Lit Sup p2 Ja 6 '40 320w
Wis Lib Bul 36:16 Ja '40

BUTLER, NINA. Billy in search of a tail; il. by Roberta Asseln. [32p] $1 McKay 38-37922

The story of Billy, a Manx cat, whose feelings were hurt when the other cats teased him because he had no tail. Billy set out in search of a tail, but returned wearing a blue ribbon instead.

"It is not only a good cat story, it is a good story. The pictures, in shades of fur picked out with blossoms in brighter colors, are a fitting obbligato, but the story is the thing, and I am glad its type is so easy on young readers. There are implications in Billy's experience that may carry over to a later age than that of the seven-year-olds to whom the book is addressed." M. L. Becker
+ Books p5 Ja 29 '39 290w
Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 24 '39 90w
"Simply told, with delightful illustrations." A. L. Shea
+ Library J 64:79 Ja 15 '39 90w

BUTTENSHAW, DIANA M. Patrick; il. by Raymond Sheppard. 278p $2 (6s) Macmillan

Tells the story of a little Irish boy, shipwrecked in babyhood on a lonely island, where he was brought up by a fox, a goat, and an eagle. When he was eleven Patrick was rescued and taken to England, but the results were most unhappy.

"Miss Buttenshaw succeeds beyond one's expectation with this story; her writing is straightforward, and keeps a smooth, unpretentious course, and the story never lapses from its first fresh interest. The illustrations, by Raymond Sheppard, are in black and white, and give solidity and strength to the book." M. C.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 27 '39 250w
"I don't think children's books should ever be sad and I don't think anything sad should happen to any hero of any kind until the end. I think the main hero ought to die of old age unless it's the sort of story that ends up 'they lived happily ever after.' This book is jolly good excepting for the sad parts." Gilbert Baker
+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:528 O 14 '39 220w

BUTTS, ROBERT FREEMAN. The college charts its course; historical conceptions and current proposals. 464p $3 McGraw 378 Colleges and universities—U.S. Education, Higher 39-24297

History of the development of the American college curriculum. In part one the author traces the linguistic dominance in liberal education from Greek and Roman times; in parts two and three he shows how the upheavals of the nineteenth century weakened the prescribed curriculum conception in America, and gave rise to the elective system. Part four surveys the twentieth century and its curriculum problems. Bibliography. Index.

"This reviewer agrees with the blurb on the jacket of The College Charts Its Course which says that Dr. Butts 'presents not only a scholarly interpretation of the historical conceptions which have guided American college education in the past, but also a manual for educational policy-making in the college field.' Every issue discussed was or is controversial but, through declaring his point of view and following the rules of sound historical scholarship, the author marshals the evidence on which his readers may form a sound judgment on many of the current issues in American higher education." E. V. Hollis
+ Christian Century 56:1342 N 1 '39 550w
Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
Ethics 50:238 Ja '40 170w

BUXTON, MRS BESSIE (RAYMOND). Begonias and how to grow them.(Mass. horticultural soc. Gardener's lib) 128p il $1 Hale
635.933468 Begonias 39-17179

"In 125 readable pages the author, an authority and enthusiast, reviews the history of begonia growing in America, describes species and varieties (with a valiant attempt to clarify confusion in names), and then discusses soils and fertilizers, seed-sowing methods, propagation from cuttings, and pests and diseases." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Booklist 36:11 S '39
"Mrs. Buxton is herself a prominent authority on these plants, and she has achieved the difficult task of compressing her knowledge of them into a book which is neither too large nor too high in price. The numerous excellent photographs and occasional drawings effectively visualize her words and help the beginner, especially, to a quick familiarity with the great variety of types and effects which the begonia tribe presents."
+ Books p8 Jl 30 '39 170w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 15 '39 310w
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 1 '39 200w
Reviewed by F. F. Rockwell
N Y Times p13 Ag 13 '39 220w
Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 3 '39 80w

BYRD, SIGMAN. The Redlander. 335p $2.50 Dutton
(W) 39-16518

"A sort of two-fisted Horatio Alger story, tracing the rise of an East Texas orphan boy to the point where he is the political idol of the people of the state." New Yorker

" 'The Redlander' is an interesting narrative in itself, and at the same time a keen commentary on the forces which shape political destinies in Texas." Lisle Bell
+ Books p6 Jl 9 '39 500w
New Repub 99:344 Jl 26 '39 50w
"This reviewer feels that Sigman Byrd may some day write an authentic novel about Texas, but the marrow of everyday experience has this time been consumed by the externalization of the story-telling." Stanley Young
N Y Times p7 Jl 2 '39 600w
"Highly simplified stuff, with a well-done background."
New Yorker 15:67 Jl 1 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 16 '39 190w

C

CADELL, SIR PATRICK ROBERT. History of the Bombay army. 377p il maps $7 (18s) Longmans
354.42066 Great Britain. Army. Indian army. India—History

"The Bombay Army began its career as an English regiment sent to garrison the colony that came to Charles II as part of Katherine of Braganza's dowry. It soon became necessary to recruit the regiment locally, and some of the most interesting sections of this book describe the native races who enlisted. . . The army's operations expanded with the growth of the British Empire in India but were not confined to India. Bombay troops were sent against the French in Egypt in 1801; they provided most of the forces employed in the Persian War of 1856 and the Abyssinian War of 1867; they were brought to Malta to impress Russia in the war scare of 1878; and in the World War Bombay troops did well on the western front as well as in Mesopotamia and East Africa." Am Hist R

"The author has used Indian sources as well as English, and his narrative is clear and readable; but the general reader may wish that he had given more of the political background of the wars he describes." Richard Glover

+ — Am Hist R 44:695 Ap '39 210w

"Sir Patrick takes his readers into many little-known corners of Indian history and deals with many obscure campaigns in which Bombay troops had much hard fighting and did great things. But he makes them interesting: his account of them is no mere catalogue, and if occasionally one would have liked more detail, he has given an adequate bibliography." C. T. Atkinson

+ Eng Hist R 53:722 O '38 750w

"It is fortunate that Sir Patrick Cadell has not only been long interested in the exploits of the Bombay Army but knows the peoples of Western India very well. Those qualifications strongly mark the book. It is not only well and carefully written but well balanced. The narrative, which covers a large number of campaigns and expeditions, is framed on broad lines and deals as much with the human aspect of the Bombay Army as with its achievements as a fighting machine. The result of that treatment is admirable, and even those who start to read the book with prejudices in favour of the Bengal or Madras Armies are likely soon to find themselves sharing Sir Patrick's enthusiasm for the men about whom he writes."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p117 F 19 '38 650w

CADOUX, CECIL JOHN. The case for evangelical modernism; a study of the relation between Christian faith and traditional theology. 191p $2 Willett [7s 6d Hodder]

230 Theology, Doctrinal. Christianity 39-31181

This book contains the substance of four lectures delivered at the University college of North Wales, by the Mackennal professor of church history at Mansfield college, Oxford. Contents: The way to orthodoxy; Three blind alleys; Traditional Christology; The way to the real Jesus. Index.

Reviewed by S. J. Case

Books p12 Je 11 '39 650w

"Certainly one of the most valuable and practical aspects of this book is the way he keeps the meaning of Jesus Christ central. It is the basis of his criticism of other positions; he uses it to illustrate the development of doctrine; he devotes the closing section to a lucid discussion of what the liberal modernist is led to reject in traditional Christology and what he can accept. The entire book is encouraging evidence that the wells of liberalism are deep and usable—if one has a sound bucket and a long rope. It ought to put courage into a confused and retreating group." Harold Bosley

+ Christian Century 56:853 Jl 5 '39 700w

"This book will be read with interest and stimulation by all who find the search for truth an exciting adventure." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 153:17 Jl '39 200w

Reviewed by E. W. Powell

Crozer Q 16:235 Jl '39 200w

Reviewed by W. N. Pittenger

Living Church 101:12 S 27 '39 360w

"It is to be hoped that this book will be widely read. The values for which it stands are real values, of which the Church must take account in any present-day restatement of Christianity. The crucial point is that the Church's faith in the Divinity of Christ must not be stated at the expense of the destruction of His human personality."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p764 D 3 '38 650w

CAHEN, FRITZ MAX. Men against Hitler; adapted, with an introd. by Wythe Williams. 258p $2 Bobbs [8s 6d Jarrolds]

943.085 Germany—Politics and government. Hitler, Adolf. Propaganda, German (W) 39-18876

Experiences of a German journalist and former diplomat who has been in opposition to Hitler since 1932. He describes his work in organizing Hitler opponents both inside and outside Germany. It is his belief that fifty per cent of the German people are now against Nazism.

Booklist 36:5 S '39

"Mr. Cahen's book is interesting for the light it casts upon the political differences and problems of the Hitler opposition groups outside Germany. It offers no convincing gauge of the true strength of the underground movement within the Reich, but it does contain numerous valuable lessons for the outcasts from Hitlerism. Perhaps the foremost of these is the fact that a united opposition cannot be conceived and promoted in terms of the first person singular. If Mr. Cahen would succeed as a leader of the German political exiles, perhaps he will have to learn how to say 'We.' One wonders, too, how much the perpendicular pronoun has destroyed that might have been accomplished long ago." Leland Stowe

+ — Books p8 Ag 6 '39 950w

Reviewed by L. R. Lind

Boston Transcript p1 S 9 '39 650w

Reviewed by G. M. A. Grube

Canadian Forum 19:193 S '39 250w

Foreign Affairs 18:376 Ja '40 20w

"The book is uneven, not always sure of itself, but readable and enlightening. There are some minor errors. Herr Scheidemann, for example was never properly a 'Chancellor' but a 'President of the Ministry.' With Mr. Cahen's views on this or that aspect of the main trend of events the historian will dissent. The fact remains that it is an unusual memoir, written by a man who knows and has seen a great deal, whose talent is considerable and whose wits have not been dulled by time." G. N. Shuster

+ — N Y Times p9 Jl 2 '39 1100w

New Yorker 15:68 Jl 1 '39 50w

Pratt p24 autumn '39

"The dream of publishers is that rare and infrequent book which 'has everything,' attracting diverse readers and holding each of them on several levels of interest. It may be that Fritz Max Cahen's 'Men Against Hitler' is such a book."

Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 4 '39 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p498 Ag 26 '39 390w

Wis Lib Bul 35:185 N '39

CALAHAN, HAROLD AUGUSTIN. So you're going to buy a boat. 269p il $3 Macmillan

797.14 Yachts and yachting (W) 39-27527

Guide for yachtsmen about to purchase a boat. Information on judging character, construction, stability, rigging, motor and general condition is given. Illustrated with photographs and diagrams. Glossary.

Booklist 35:359 Jl 1 '39

"The author has a seemingly endless supply of nautical nuggets to bestow on his readers. This is his sixth book on the technicalities of pleasure boating and the wind has not yet let him up. He documents this book with many apt case histories. Some of it may strike experienced readers as something warmed over on the galley stove, but still enough fresh lore seeps through to sweeten the bilge. The most sea-wise yachtsman will find it reasonably useful and delightfully readable." H. T.

CALAHAN, H. A.—Continued
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 9 '39 480w

"Mr. Calahan has the unusual and valuable gift of writing lightly and amusingly about technicalities. His volume of advice on the vexed question of the purchase of a boat deals with the aspect from all its angles."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p518 S 2 '39 240w

CALDWELL, ERSKINE. North of the Danube [with phot. by] Margaret Bourke-White. 136p map $3 Duell

914.37 Czechoslovakia—Description and travel (W) 39-27306

Account of the author's travels in Czechoslovakia in the summer of 1938, written with sympathetic understanding of the people and with keen insight into the forces working for the downfall of the country. A feature of the book is the group of 64 fine photographs taken by Margaret Bourke-White.

Booklist 35:288 My 1 '39

"Mr. Caldwell has caught the land, its people and their problem. His prose has simplicity and dignity and the artlessness of fine writing. And throughout he preserves the inner harmony of his tragic theme. Then there are the sixty-four photographs by Miss Bourke-White. Without them this memorial fresco could never have attained its breadth of expression nor its fullness of power. Words cannot capture the breathless beauty of some of these pictures or convey their peculiar moving quality." Leland Stowe
+ Books p2 Ap 2 '39 1350w

"Only a perceptive and skillful person could penetrate as deeply into the heart of a foreign people as Erskine Caldwell does and make articulate their hopes and dreams. Margaret Bourke-White's photographs complement the text. They are the best work she has ever done." Margaret Clark
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 8 '39 450w
Christian Science Monitor p16 My 6 '39 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '39
Foreign Affairs 17:817 Jl '39 10w

Reviewed by Margaret Marshall
Nation 148:405 Ap 8 '39 550w

"One of the most extraordinary travel books I have ever read." Maurice Hindus
+ New Repub 98:284 Ap 12 '39 650w

Reviewed by Shepard Stone
N Y Times p9 Ap 2 '39 950w

"The photographs are as fine as the text and the whole book as praiseworthy as the authors' previous 'You Have Seen Their Faces.'"
+ New Yorker 15:86 Ap 8 '39 40w
Pratt p23 summer '39

"Although many of his sentences have proved politically prophetic, Mr. Caldwell does not emphasize politics. He is interested in the people, their customs, their thoughts, their attitude toward life and death and the threatened loss of liberty. And Miss Bourke-White has taken compassionate pictures of Czechoslovakia that will live long after the present frontiers of the Reich have been swept away. Now more than ever, perhaps, such a book is timely. It should be read by everybody who wants to know the Czechoslovakia that was; it reduces to poignantly human terms the pitiless operation of Machtpolitik." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 19:10 Ap 1 '39 240w
Time 33:75 Ap 10 '39 150w
Wis Lib Bul 35:101 My '39

CALDWELL (kôld'wel)

CALISCH, EDITH LINDEMAN. Fairy tales from grandfather's big book; Jewish legends of old retold for young people; il. by Henriette Strauss. 130p $1.50 Behrman's

398.2 Fairy tales. Legends, Jewish 39-22

"A book of Jewish legends retold for children—primarily doubtless for Jewish children but fascinating for any." Christian Century

---

Booklist 35:277 Ap 15 '39
+ Christian Century 55:1549 D 14 '38 20w

CALOGERAS, JOAO PANDIA. A history of Brazil; tr. and ed. by Percy Alvin Martin. (Inter-American historical ser) 374p $5 Univ. of N.C. press [22s 6d Oxford]

981 Brazil—History 39-15699

This one-volume history of Brazil begins with its discovery in 1498 and ends with the elections of 1926. The translator has brought the story down to 1937. Bibliographical notes. Index.

Christian Century 56:1046 Ag 30 '39 160w
Foreign Affairs 18:174 O '39 20w

"A scholarly Brazilian statesman does an honest, thorough job, a bit on the dull side."
+ — New Repub 99:316 Jl 19 '39 50w

"In translating the work of Dr. Calogeras, Professor Martin was confronted with serious difficulties which he describes convincingly in his preface. But he surmounted them gallantly. The result of his hard labors is a volume replete with color, substance and vividness of narrative." T. R. Ybarra
+ N Y Times p17 Jl 16 '39 850w

Reviewed by B. P. Adams
Survey G 28:757 D '39 50w

CALVERT, MRS MAUDE (RICHMAN), and SMITH, MRS LEILA (BUNCE). Advanced course in home making; il. by Mary Clemmitt. 569p $1.60 Smith, T.E.

640 Home economics 39-27180

Textbook for high school students, divided into six parts or units: Health for youth; Food and nutrition; Clothing for youth; The house; Youth and family life; Home management and community relations. Index.

Booklist 35:246 Ap 1 '39
J Home Econ 31:258 Ap '39 170w

CALVERTON, VICTOR FRANCIS. The awakening of America. 474p $3.75 Day

973.2 U.S.—History—Colonial period (W) (39-30894)

Social history of America from earliest settlements to the eve of the Revolution. "What this book tries to do is to reread American history in different terms—in terms of the ruled instead of the rulers. . . In general the approach can be described as Marxian. . . [It] is more of a social than an economic history. Although its primary object is to interpret the lives of the American people in terms of their divers and dissident economic interests, it aims to trace the evolution of those interests in political and social form. Its concern is with the populace rather than with kings, proprietors, governors; and it tries to deal with American history from that angle." (Pref) Index.

"There are defects in the work: instances of hurried and careless writing, repetitions, a few minor errors of fact, a few oversimplified interpretations, but they are surface blots, in comparison with the originality, insight, and significance of the major parts of the book. 'The Awakening of America' is of outstanding importance as a study of the origin and early growth of democracy in this country; a testimony to the integrity of our national tradition; a vindication of our faith in human values at a time when these are denied by half the world." E. S. Bates

+ — Books p7 N 12 '39 1150w

"Mr. Calverton seems to me to be moving about in a world which he but imperfectly comprehends. Much of his book is stimulating, but his colors are too primary, his drawing too coarse, and above all, his attitude too conditioned by contemporary jargon to make this study of early American life a trustworthy interpretation." H. M. Jones

— + Boston Transcript p1 N 4 '39 1000w

Canadian Forum 19:332 Ja '40 250w

Christian Science Monitor p18 N 15 '39 500w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins

Current Hist 51:5 D '39 70w

Reviewed by Leo Huberman

Nation 149:684 D 16 '39 900w

"In focusing attention on all the submerged, radical and minority groups, who were numerous even in our early colonial period, Mr. Calverton has rendered a service. . . However, it may well be asked if such a presentation does not distort the picture in a new direction, no more true than the old merely because it is different. Moreover, the author has been so anxious to find under dogs that I think he has distorted not only the picture but even the facts. . . This is my chief criticism of Mr. Calverton's book. Any one familiar with history may be grateful to him for the selection and assembling of much of his material, and in doing so concentrating attention on one aspect of this historical problem, but those not familiar with the facts could very easily get a false idea of what our history has been." J. T. Adams

+ — N Y Times p39 D 10 '39 800w

"A serious work, well documented and probably fruitful to future historians, it will certainly not be enjoyed by F.F.V.'s and Plymouth Rockers."

+ New Yorker 15:83 O 28 '39 60w

"Mr. Calverton is forced to indulge himself in a strange metaphysic of interpretation in order to explain New England as a conflict of of non-existent principles. Meantime the true story of the interaction between the ideas and the society, religion and economics, is crying to be done, and he turns aside from what he, or someone with his lights and his sympathies, might be fitted to do. Objection could be made to his treatment of every colony, yet even where his interpretation grows more clearly out of the facts, a succession of annoying errors makes it still suspect." Perry Miller

— + Sat R of Lit 21:6 D 23 '39 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 24 '39 50w

CAMBRIDGE ancient history; v 12, The imperial crisis and recovery, A.D. 193-324; ed. by S. A. Cook, F. E. Adcock and M. P. Charlesworth. 849p maps $10 Macmillan [35s Cambridge]

930 History, Ancient. anal Rome—History (23-11667)

"The concluding volume of the 'Cambridge Ancient History' covers the unquiet third century of our era, when the world of antiquity was in decline and the Middle Ages were struggling to birth. . . Between the earlier and later main narrative chapters there is an economic survey of the century, with a special treatment of Roman Britain by Professor Collingwood, and there are chapters on philosophy and religion, Christian and pagan, and on literature and art. The gradual convergence of Church and Empire forms the great theme which runs through the volume." Books

---

Booklist 35:328 Je 1 '39

"Every reader of these massive volumes retains in his memory impressions of altogether admirable narrative, characterization, exposition, analysis and synthesis. The editors have shown singularly good judgment, almost always, in assigning many of the greatest themes of ancient history to writers endowed with insight, brilliant gifts of style, and a sense of the enduring vitality of their subjects. . . The character-portraits are often of discriminating insight and clear-cut delineation. . . But there are many other chapters of comparable merit. . . I have said enough to indicate the abundance of entertainment as well as of instruction to be had in these volumes. Pleasure and profit are not always, however, happily mingled, and there are sections of the work, sometimes extending to many pages, in which the average reader will find neither." S. C. Chew

+ — Books p1 Je 4 '39 3400w (Review of series)

"Much of the volume makes excellent reading, but all of it is intended for the serious student of history rather than for the general reader." T. C. P.

+ Cath World 149:626 Ag '39 800w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 3 '39 180w

Reviewed by M. H. Shepherd, Jr.

J Religion 19:380 O '39 850w

"Few periods of ancient history suffer so much from the paucity and poor quality of the literary sources. From their chaff the contributors have extracted every grain of value and have ransacked the non-literary material with equal care. But for most of the period the inscriptions are few and uninstructive, and perhaps the most striking feature of the volume is the far-reaching conclusions drawn from numismatic evidence." Donald Atkinson

Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 25 '39 700w

Reviewed by F. S. Marvin

Nature 143:955 Je 10 '39 1600w (Review of series)

Reviewed by Naomi Mitchison

New Statesman & Nation 17:828 My 27 '39 800w

Reviewed by P. W. Townsend

Pol Sci Q 54:612 D '39 900w

"Professor Rand's dry comment on Aulus Gellius—'his prose shows a quiet absence of style, as befits so learned a man'—is unfortunately applicable to most of Rand's coauthors; you will find here none of the sweep and drive that Rostovtzeff, for instance, put into the narrative of the same events, even in a volume devoted to the more prosaic aspects of history. Accuracy (if you can get it) is the cardinal virtue of the historian; but is there any law compelling so many sound men to be dull?" Elmer Davis

Sat R of Lit 20:6 Je 10 '39 1650w

Reviewed by C. M. Bowra

Spec 162:676 Ap 21 '39 1000w (Review of series)

"The contributors are not in complete agreement on all matters. One of the great values of these histories, however, is the way in which they present the ascertainable facts, while giving due space to a variety of interpretations of debated topics. While some unusual discoveries in the field of archeology may necessitate certain revisions in the future, it is probable that 'The Cambridge Ancient History' is as definitive and permanent an account of its subject as it is possible to make." D. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 4 '39 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p232 Ap 22 '39 2500w

Reviewed by A. R. Bellinger

Yale R n s 29:199 autumn '39 1050w

CAMBRIDGE ancient history; volume of plates 5; to illustrate v 11-12; prepared by C. T. Seltman. 243p $4 Macmillan [15s Cambridge]

930 (23-11667)

"Volume 5 of plates is designed to accompany volumes 11 and 12 of the text. Its illustrations,

CAMBRIDGE ancient history; volume of plates 5—Continued
carefully selected and well reproduced, offer an illuminating commentary on Roman life and society as it was reflected in the architecture, sculpture, painting, pottery and other utensils, as well as in the medallions and coins so important for the study of imperial Rome." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 35:328 Je 1 '39

Reviewed by S. C. Chew
Books p1 Je 4 '39

"It is possible that much of this archaeological material in its photographic form will mean little to the average student unless he makes painstaking reference to the large text. With this reservation, there is no reason why the serialized plates of sculpture and architecture should not do much to endow the decline of Rome, if we call it such, with new visual life. A fine, and not too lengthy, running commentary accompanies the plates." E. B. Garside

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 6 '39 200w
Cath World 149:626 Ag '39

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 3 '39

Reviewed by M. H. Shepherd, Jr.
J Religion 19:382 O '39 50w
Nature 143:955 Je 10 '39

"The volume of plates is particularly good on architecture and the coins which provide so much historical evidence." Naomi Mitchison
New Statesman & Nation 17:828 My 27 '39 20w
Pol Sci Q 54:612 D '39 60w

Reviewed by C. M. Bowra
Spec 162:676 Ap 21 '39

"The plates have wider usefulness than as an adjunct to the historical narrative, and should appeal as much to students of the arts as to those for whom Roman civilization has a peculiar attraction." D. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 4 '39 120w
Times [London] Lit Sup p232 Ap 22 '39

Reviewed by A. R. Bellinger
Yale R n s 29:199 autumn '39 40w

CAMERON, DONALD CLOUGH. Murder's coming. 248p $2 Holt 39-21183

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p13 Ag 27 '39 130w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 S 2 '39 70w

"This is a first novel and more than a promising one. The characters in it are well drawn and the mystery remains a mystery until the end." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p15 Ag 27 '39 140w

"Pretty stirring and complicated enough to keep you up past your bedtime."

+ New Yorker 15:64 S 2 '39 50w

"Yarn is workmanlike but no masterpiece."
Sat R of Lit 20:18 S 2 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 10 '39 140w

CAMERON, EVELYN. Dead man's shoes. 275p $2 Doubleday 39-30546

Detective story.

"In this first novel Miss Cameron hasn't quite shaken her material into a masterpiece, but she does quite a lot at that, with the Parminters—a difficult tribe at best and enough to throw a veteran retailer of family sagas." Will Cuppy

+ Books p19 O 8 '39 140w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 O 21 '39 70w

"Although the story makes no claim to great originality, its suspicion is kept well balanced and its interest is well maintained." K. I.

+ — N Y Times p35 O 15 '39 100w

"First novel by a young woman with a clear, fresh style."

+ New Yorker 15:80 O 7 '39 50w

"Second murder in story rather needless, and family ramifications muddle yarn a bit. In other respects quite according to Hoyle. Average."
Sat R of Lit 20:36 O 14 '39 40w

CAMMACK, J. S. Moral problems of mental defect. 200p $2.25 Benziger [7s 6d Burns]

171 Ethics. Defective and delinquent classes. Inefficiency, Intellectual. Heredity

"Some aspects of the difficult problem of judging the moral responsibility of those who are congenitally defective are treated in this volume. The author summarizes the Catholic doctrine of moral imputability, gives the modern findings on the influence of heredity in the causation of mental defect, and most important of all, shows that the case histories of so called moral defectives do not support the idea of strict 'moral insanity.'" (America) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The moralist cannot afford to overlook this important contribution to the subject." J. C. Ford

+ America 61:383 Jl 29 '39 140w

"Obviously, the Catholic treatment of the question implies an adequate knowledge of theology, philosophy, medicine and to some extent, law. Both in respect of his equipment and of his method of treatment, the author qualifies. Some parts of the book may be too technical to engage the interest of the untrained reader, but then so difficult a subject could not be made universally attractive without sacrifice of its real value."

+ Cath World 149:637 Ag '39 140w

CAMP, RAYMOND R. All seasons afield with rod and gun. (Whittlesey house sports ser) 352p il $3.50 McGraw

799 Fishing. Hunting 39-32103

Chapters on hunting and fishing by the rod and gun editor of the New York Times. One section of the book is devoted to fishing, both fresh water and sea fishing being included; a second section is given to hunting; and a third to equipment.

Booklist 36:171 Ja 1 '40

Reviewed by R. P. Harriss
Books p8 D 31 '39 60w

"'All Seasons Afield' like all its printed brethren assumes that the rod and gun fraternity have not read a book before and are completely ignorant of what fish and game are like. What distinguishes these books from one another is that one will often have a paragraph or jot of information that another overlooked. Our fear is that someday someone will collect those odd items and write a book on hunting and fishing."

— Boston Transcript p7 D 9 '39 130w

"The writing is economical; it keeps moving. But the 'feel' of the sport is handed on in a really surprising degree." Robert van Gelder

+ N Y Times p2 D 24 '39 390w

CAMPBELL, MRS HARRIETTE (RUSSELL). The moor fires mystery. 281p $2 Harper [7s 6d Heinemann] 39-3402

Detective story.

Booklist 35:308 My 15 '39

"A tall tale with quantities of puzzlement." Will Cuppy
Books p18 F 19 '39 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
— Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '39 40w

"Comparatively a new-comer to the ranks of detective novelists, Miss Harriette Campbell may be accounted now one of the more serious and interesting writers in that genre. As a maker of puzzles she is ingenious; she has a real gift for narrative, her little detective is original, her characterisation is that of the writer who knows that to interest the intelligent reader a tale must be of living people." E. R. Punshon

+ Manchester Guardian p7 N 1 '38 130w

"It is sticky work, extracting the thread of criminal investigation from the treacle of romance in which it is embedded, but the plot itself is sound enough, and some people may lick their fingers with satisfaction." Ralph Partridge

+ — New Statesman & Nation 16:786 N 12 '38 110w

"A most absorbing story and beautifully done." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p28 F 26 '39 170w

"Consolidation of clues and motives by ivory cube device fascinating—also brilliant writing, likable people and deeply laid plot. For connoisseurs."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 F 18 '39 40w

"Most of the characters are exceptionally individual and well drawn, which shows up the one or two who come out of stock." Nicholas Blake

+ — Spec 161:534 S 30 '38 70w

Wis Lib Bul 35:112 Je '39

CAMPBELL, NEIL. Qualitative organic chemistry. 213p il $2.60 Van Nostrand [8s 6d Macmillan]

547 Chemistry, Organic. Chemistry, Analytic —Qualitative

"The aim of this book is to present the principles of qualitative organic analysis and to give some idea of the methods used in examining organic compounds. The book is intended primarily for students taking a course in qualitative work, but it is also hoped that it may be helpful to advanced students and research workers. The book is essentially a laboratory guide, but, as it is important that students should understand fully the chemical basis of the methods used, an explanatory chapter has been included." (Pref) General index; index of authors' names; and list of compounds.

"The book is intended primarily for students taking a course in organic qualitative analysis. It will prove useful and stimulating for short elementary courses in this field." E. H. Huntress

+ Am Chem Soc J 61:3240 N '39 360w

Chem & Met Eng 46:787 D '39 40w

CAMPBELL, OSCAR JAMES. Comicall satyre and Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida. (Huntington library publications) 246p $3 Huntington lib. [15s Oxford]

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Troilus and Cressida. Satire. English drama—History and criticism 39-1295

"The main purpose of this volume is to throw new light upon Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida. It seeks to establish a definite relationship between that puzzling drama and the plays of the period that were called 'comicall satyres.' Ben Jonson invented this term and applied it to three of his works: Every Man Out of His Humor (1599), Cynthias Revels (1600-1601), and Poetaster (1601). However, I have felt justified in treating, as though they had borne that label, at least two of Marston's works: Jack Drum's Entertainment (1600) and What You Will (1601). The thesis of this book is that these five plays constituted an attempt to prolong an artificially arrested development in the field of English letters of the late sixteenth century." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Campbell argues his case with a learning and a force which carries the reader further toward conviction than have most attempts to resolve this famous and difficult crux in Shakespearean scholarship." S. C. Chew

+ Books p22 Ap 30 '39 800w

"All who have been puzzled by Troilus and Cressida will find Professor Campbell's book well worth careful study."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p458 Jl 29 '39 300w

CAMPBELL, WALTER STANLEY (STANLEY VESTAL, pseud). The old Santa Fe trail. 304p il map $3 Houghton

917.8 Santa Fé trail. Frontier and pioneer life—Southwest (W) 39-21151

An intimate history of the Santa Fé trail. The author was born and has lived nearly all his life not far from the trail. "The reader will become for a while an eager Santa Fé pilgrim. He will see the caravan made up, the long strings of mules and oxen straining to the load, hear the vociferous persuasions of the teamsters, help roll the laden wagons out of bogholes, stand night guard against thieving Kaw and swooping Comanche; he will run buffalo and 'make meat,' listen to tall tales, some of them true, more invented for the benefit of greenhorns. He will make the acquaintance of some of the real heroes of the Old West—Carson, the Bents, Jedediah Smith, Stephen Watts Kearny, and Uncle Dick Wootton." (Christian Science Monitor) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:65 O 15 '39

"Had some learned committee deliberated to choose a man qualified to reconstruct the ways, manners and customs of the Santa Fe trailers a century ago, they could have hit upon no worthier man than Stanley Vestal. In this book he set himself the task of recapturing the feelings, the sensations, the hopes and fears of the trailers, which is a large order." C. J. Finger

+ Books p3 S 3 '39 850w

Reviewed by H. N. Smith
Boston Transcript p2 S 30 '39 600w

"Anecdotes fairly roll over one another; but this is anecdotal history at its best, history come to life. [The author] has not intended so much to add to knowledge—although he offers some new material, mostly from oral sources—as to add to understanding. And he has added to it, largely. This is the way people lived along the trail." K. C. K.

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 S 2 '39 650w

New Repub 100:377 N 1 '39 40w

"What is distinctive in his account is the admirable reconstruction of the facts and feelings of the life of the trail. To read his book is to realize that life as vividly as if you had seen it in a movie. . . The danger latent in his design, that the reader will feel personally conducted, like a sitter on a rubber-neck wagon, he has skillfully avoided. Obviously, he loves the Trail and knows it as well as one knows one's own sidewalk. His enthusiasm makes his knowledge infectious." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p5 S 3 '39 850w

"Mr. Vestal, who can whip up this sort of thing about as well as anybody, tells the story in terms of the actual experience of the traders who made the thousand-mile journey from Missouri to Santa Fe."

+ New Yorker 15:62 S 2 '39 40w

"It is not a long volume, and it does not make those incisive new contributions to knowledge of the Southwest in its heroic age that are to be found, for example, in the best work of E. L. Sabin; but within its limits it is a full book, and much of it deserves the adjective absorbing." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 20:17 S 9 '39 550w

Reviewed by L. G. Sigmund
Social Studies 31:43 Ja '40 200w

CAMPBELL, W S. —Continued

"Mr Vestal's idea in his latest book was 'to recapture the experience of traveling the Santa Fe trail,' and he has performed his mission in a thoroughly engaging fashion. Statistics and chronology have been conveniently placed at the back of the book. There are several excellent old pictures."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 S 7 '39 750w
Wis Lib Bul 35:185 N '39

CAMPBELL, WALTER STANLEY (STANLEY VESTAL, pseud). Professional writing. 338p $2.75 (8s 6d); text ed $2 Macmillan

029.6 Authorship 38-37252

"A manual planned to bridge the gap for writers who have had elementary writing courses but are not professional in technique or habits of thought. It advises about choice of subject, style, and reader appeal, as well as methods of writing, and gives samples of writing and exercises. Suitable for self-study or class use." Booklist

Booklist 35:168 Ja 15 '39
Wis Lib Bul 35:45 Mr '39

CAMPBELL, WILLIAM EDWARD MARCH (WILLIAM MARCH, pseud). Some like them short. 277p $2.50 Little

39-6107

Collection of twenty short stories about many types of people, most of them unhappy. Some of the stories have appeared in magazines. Contents: Geraldette; A haircut in Toulouse; The listening post; The toy bank; A sum in addition; The first dime; Runagate niggers; Senator Upjohn; A short history of England; Tune the old cow died to; Bill's eyes; The last meeting; Nine prisoners; Upon the dull earth dwelling; The shoe drummer; Sweet, who was the Armourer's maid; A snowstorm in the Alps; The funeral; A memorial to the slain; Time and Leigh Brothers.

"Apparently simple as these are, quite uncompromising and often more than a little bitter, they are quite unforgettable—sometimes uncomfortably so. This is largely due, of course, to Mr. March's dexterous management of a difficult form of writing, but his choice and arrangement of subject matter has also to be reckoned with. Above all, he never errs in saying too much or in pointing a moral." Iris Barry

+ Books p5 Ap 2 '39 700w

"'Bill's Eyes,' 'Memorial To The Slain,' 'Sum In Addition,' 'Tune The Old Cow Died To,' and 'Last Meeting' are as good as any stories you are apt to read anywhere: Interesting themes, credible and sometimes powerful characters, concentration of method, and solid feeling. But these are only five of 20 stories; the remaining 15 are mediocre or poor." M. S.

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Mr 25 '39 150w

"Mr. March has a good heart, a feeling for humor and an undiluted hatred for war. Chalk up on the other side of the slate that he often writes in a prose style like that of an educated robot."

+ — New Repub 98:231 Mr 29 '39 60w

"The opening story, 'Geraldette,' is feeble and one fails to understand why it was placed first. In general, the tales grow by leaps and bounds as you advance. This is a good collection containing a half-dozen remarkably fine short stories. This reviewer hailed Mr. March's 'The Little Wife and Other Stories' when it came out three or four years ago. There is no marked change. 'Some Like Them Short' can hold its head up and stick in the company of its predecessors. And that's high praise." F. T. Marsh

+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 26 '39 700w

"Several of the stories are highly competent and affecting, several are humorous, a few conform too closely to the recognized pattern of hard-bitten fiction in the unpopular magazines. On the whole a good collection."

+ New Yorker 15:86 Mr 18 '39 60w

"It is clear that March has learned something from Hemingway, as who has not? But he is far from being a derivative writer. He has something to teach as well, a highly personal quality of emotion, and affirmation. Such a story as 'The Listening Post,' a centering of the physical and spiritual catastrophe of war upon one lone spot on a shattered field, is told in terms at once passionate and mystical, terms Hemingway has never permitted himself but which only he can successfully dispense with. March has no fear of an expressed emotion. He knows, as in 'Nine Prisoners,' how to keep it free of sentimentality while rich in suggestion." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 19:10 Mr 18 '39 410w
Time 33:72 Mr 20 '39 230w

CANBY, HENRY SEIDEL. Thoreau. 508p il $3.75 Houghton

B or 92 Thoreau, Henry David (W) 39-27888

Penetrating and scholarly study of Henry David Thoreau. It is the author's thesis that Thoreau was not a woman hater, as he has so often been painted, but a frustrated "woman's man." The work also brings out a new interpretation of Thoreau's friendship with Emerson, and with Emerson's second wife, Lidian Jackson Emerson. Selected bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Canby's long-awaited biography of Thoreau is the first life of the Man of Walden which ever made that man plain to me. . . Nobody else has satisfactorily explained the man. Mr. Canby's long research into the details of his subject's life is buried, where sound scholarship should be buried, under the lucid surface of narrative, appreciation, and criticism. Ever distinguished, always easy, Mr. Canby has shown cause why he has been at his task these many years. He has thought so long and so well that line after line is an epigram." D. C. Peattie

+ Atlantic O '39 950w
Booklist 36:87 N 1 '39

"It will be a surprise if the fall publishing season brings a more lastingly important American biography than Mr. Canby's long-awaited 'Thoreau.' Let us say at once that here is one of the very best of recent literary biographies. And one of the most badly needed. . . [It is] a book that without any question will remain the standard biography of Thoreau for a long time to come." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p1 O 8 '39 2000w

"The book is a notable performance. It is not altogether flawless. The strength of Thoreau's style, Mr. Canby points out, is in the sentence, so that any essay by him resembles a brilliant conglomeration of crystals. Some of Mr. Canby's chapters have the disparate quality of Thoreau's rocky sentences. They are frequently excellent, but they mutually repel each other. They do not advance the biography. . . If one turns to the nobler pleasure of praising, one notes the lean, athletic style. Mr. Canby is not a great writer, but he is a very good one, and he has never written more trenchant prose. He has so packed his sentences that there are occasional confused constructions, but there is no superfluous fat in these pages, no merely verbal decoration." H. M. Jones

+ — Boston Transcript p1 O 7 '39 2000w

"The biographer's purpose has been to make both the man and his work live on in American consciousness. To this task Dr. Canby has applied an admirable reasonableness, inexhaustible patience—more patience possibly than all his readers will have—and a literary background that enables him to appreciate the old and understand new viewpoints." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 18 '39 850w

Reviewed by James van Zant
Churchman 153:20 D 1 '39 170w

Reviewed by Mason Wade
— + Commonweal 31:166 D 8 '39 450w

"Thoreau is more than the story of a great American; it is first-rate literary craftsmanship." Norman Cousins
+ Current Hist 51:6 D '39 50w

"I make bold to say that Dr. Canby's is one of the most accomplished and fascinating of American biographies. It has also the humanity and sensitiveness to literary values that a book on Thoreau ought to have." M. M. Colum
+ Forum 102:228 N '39 800w

"The many diverse and perverse Thoreaus are here for the first time put together, united, composed, into one unmistakable and authentic person. Mr. Canby has shown that the career he deals with, hitherto seeming no more to many of us than 'a confusion of trails in the forest,' had a clearly defined pattern, a persistent trend. Out of the shadows of print and the wraiths of inveterate misinterpretation he has drawn forth a substantial man, three-dimensioned, believable, and has placed him in the front rank of American prose-masters. It is a work of re-creation triumphantly done—and done, too, in the nick of time, considering how we shall need just the shining example of Thoreau in the crisis now upon us." Odell Shepard
+ Nation 149:388 O 7 '39 1500w

"Mr. Robert Spiller, who has read it in manuscript, says this book of Mr. Canby's on Thoreau is not only 'the sanest biography of Thoreau, but it is one of the sanest I have read of anyone.' No doubt Mr. Spiller is right, and this is why the book, despite its subject, is a little dull. . . This is not to say that, after the lapse of a good many years, a new biography of Thoreau was not in order, or that Mr. Canby has failed to take advantage of the information that has accumulated in the meanwhile. . . All the outwardness of Thoreau's life is here, all the homely details, all the good stories; and as a result one gets a richer sense than in the other biographies of such matters as Thoreau's appearance and personal ways. . . Of Thoreau the writer and the prophet, Mr. Canby seems to me not to have any searching interpretations to make." Newton Arvin
— + New Repub 100:308 O 18 '39 700w

"No lover of Thoreau could ask for a more complete or illuminating book. Let it be said at once that the dimensions of Thoreau have enlarged considerably and his vital heat gone up in the glass, although his stature remains where he raised it in his own scattered writings. It will be impossible now to dismiss him as misanthrope or skulker. . . Like a true scholar, Dr. Canby has separated Thoreau into his component parts. Like a philosopher and artist, he has put him together again with none of the cracks showing. . . The author of 'Walden' has long deserved this book." Brooks Atkinson
+ N Y Times p1 O 8 '39 2250w

"You may disagree, as I do, with one of Dr. Canby's basic theses and yet cheerfully welcome this book not merely as the best life of Thoreau now available but as a work in itself eminently sane, scholarly, and readable." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 15:73 O 7 '39 1650w
Pratt p22 winter '40

Reviewed by Irwin Edman
Sat R of Lit 20:5 O 7 '39 1000w

"The book seems destined to become the standard life of this great American. . . This biography leaves little to be desired. The author has paid the price for authoritative writing both in his long career as a writer and critic and in his research on the present task. What is more important, he has painted a portrait that has warm colors, subtle shadings, and the spark of life. Ample chapter notes, bibliography, and illustrations combine to make the volume permanently useful." F. G. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 8 '39 1350w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey G 28:693 N '39 500w
Time 34:110 O 16 '39 550w
Wis Lib Bul 35:214 D '39

"Of the three phases of Thoreau which command the greatest interest—as the amateur naturalist, the political and social philosopher of 'Civil Disobedience,' the master of language—Mr. Canby's biography is most adequate on the first. . . Beyond all specific defects, and granting that I have not cited enough minor virtues which spring from Mr. Canby's unquestioned devotion to his subject, the most unfortunate feature of this book is its prevailing tone. For its effect is mild and polite, neither of which Thoreau was." F. O. Matthiessen
— + Yale R n s 29:416 winter '40 1200w

CANFIELD, DOROTHY. See Fisher, D. F.

CANNAN, JOANNA, (MRS H. J. PULLEIN THOMPSON). We met our cousins; il. by Anne Bullen. 169p $2 Dodd [8s 6d; 5s Collins]
(W) [38-14586]

Two English children spend their summer holidays visiting their Scottish cousins, on an estate in the Highlands. At first there is war between the city bred "Sassenachs" and their sturdy relatives, but before the summer is over Antonia has caught a burglar, and John has saved the life of his youngest cousin, and the four have sworn the oath of Brothers-in-Blood.

Horn Bk M 15:36 Ja '39 190w

"Though the writing is just a little too studied in its attempt to get a child's unconscious humor, it is a genuinely amusing story, especially in its very convincing account of the children's initial warfare." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p12 Ja 15 '39 350w

CANNON, FANNY VENABLE. Rehearsal for safety; a book of safety plays; foreword by Edward J. McLaughlin. 132p $1 Dutton
614.8 Accidents—Prevention—Juvenile literature. Children's plays (W) 39-27110

Collection of short plays for children based upon recommendations of the National Safety council. Each play is concerned with a different kind of possible accident, and what to do about it. The staging in each case has been kept to a minimum.

Reviewed by R. A. Bolt
Am J Pub Health 30:96 Ja '40 170w
Booklist 35:237 Mr 15 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 My 14 '39 160w

"The plays are simple and will interest children."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 4 '39 20w

"In the teaching of safety a variety of approaches to pupil interest are desirable. The dramatic form is an effective method because it allows for a large measure of pupil activity. Rehearsal for Safety will be welcomed by teachers because it provides material on the subject in a form popular with children." Hannah Logasa
+ El School J 39:796 Je '39 180w

"It is deplorable that in the field of plays for children we have so many which go just this far, and no farther—which are written for a special purpose, but seem to lack any genuinely creative inspiration. However, there has not been enough material to supply the recent demand for plays on safety, and this book will help to fill the need." Josephine Smith
— + Library J 64:243 Mr 15 '39 130w
Pratt p19 autumn '39
Wis Lib Bul 35:118 Je '39

CANNON, MARIAN. San Bao and his adventures in Peking; il. by [the author]. 77p $1.50 Dutton

(W) 39-6486

This is the story of San Bao, a Chinese boy, who went to Peking on a Fair day with his father, got lost, made a new friend, and with sheer blundering luck found the money which had been stolen from his father's friend.

Booklist 35:292 My 1 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p5 Je 11 '39 310w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 80w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '39 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '39

Horn Bk M 15:164 My '39 90w

"One of the most appealing stories of foreign children which we have had in some time." A. L. Shea
+ Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 140w

"In its essential outlines the story is an appealing one, and the brilliant spectacle of the Chinese city in holiday mood is described graphically. It is, as a matter of fact, described almost too thoroughly, for the many details, picturesque as they are, weigh down the narrative without being an essential part of it. The author's illustrations, in black on alternating backgrounds of yellow and blue, have combined charm and vitality with a real feeling of the Orient." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 Mr 26 '39 310w

New Yorker 15:104 My 13 '39 60w

"Realistic story of China (no war!) with beautiful pictures. Unusual."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 8 '39 20w

"The text and the drawings—especially the latter—will give any young boy or girl a sympathetic introduction to Chinese life. The pictures are admirably vitalized and have action, charm and just the right amount of strangeness."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 2 '39 90w

Wis Lib Bul 35:219 D '39

CANTOR, NATHANIEL FREEMAN. Crime and society; an introduction to criminology. 459p $3 Holt

364 Crime and criminals. Justice, Administration of. Punishment. Prisons 39-10358

"This book presents both an analysis and an integration of the problems of criminology. While it is written as a textbook for college students, it will also be of interest to those engaged in the administration of criminal justice and crime prevention as well as to any intelligent adult wishing to learn the problems of criminology. . . This volume differs from the author's previous work, Crime, Criminals and Criminal Justice [Book Review Digest, 1932] in two important respects, viz., in the addition of much new material and in the principle of organization." (Pref) Indexes.

"The present reviewer has no particular quarrel with the point of view presented in this book. He has the feeling, however, that students need to get from their textbooks, not only some perspective or point of view but, even more important, an accurate summary of the knowledge in the field. Judged by these criteria this book is less satisfactory than some of the conventional books already in the field." G. B. Vold

Am J Soc 45:278 S '39 750w

"As a text this book should prove eminently successful. Its simple sentences, its clear definition of terms, its straightforward if somewhat abrupt logic, and its careful use of illustrative cases present phase after phase of the crime problem in twenty-one compact chapters, each of which merits close study." Blake McKelvey
+ Christian Century 56:738 Je 7 '39 440w

Reviewed by Rustem Vambery
Nation 149:472 O 28 '39 500w

Reviewed by H. E. Jensen
Social Forces 18:289 D '39 500w

"In a remarkable performance of authorship, Professor Cantor gives us at once a sound book for the student and persons unfamiliar with the problems of crime and its treatment, and a wealth of information for those who have labored long in the field. . . Here is an illuminating and most satisfying book for the student, the layman, the sociologist, the lawyer and the social worker." L. T. Stern
+ Survey 75:326 O '39 450w

CAPEK, KAREL. Travels in the North; tr. by M. and R. Weatherall. 269p il $2.25 Macmillan [7s 6d Allen, G]

914.8 Scandinavia—Description and travel. Norway—Description and travel

(W) [39-27237]

On his way north the author pauses long enough to give brief sketches of Denmark and Sweden, but the bulk of his book is devoted to Norway and particularly to the lands above the Arctic circle. The book is illustrated with numerous small line drawings by the author

Booklist 35:268 Ap 15 '39

"Briefly then, for those who like, by their own firesides, to plan a banquet of distant voyages Capek's book is the best of introductory caviar. For those who have eaten the hearty meal of Scandinavian exploration it is a final and delectable liqueur. But whoever is just starting out upon his actual and initial trip should be warned not to munch through the courses too literally, lest he finish with the sensation of having eaten his dinner backward." Agnes Rothery
+ Books p7 Mr 26 '39 1150w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Christian Science Monitor p10 F 18 '39 120w

"Delightful book, full of charm and gayety. . . [The author's] rare individuality shines through every page."
+ Living Age 356:299 My '39 80w

"That breathless, innocent style of Capek's, like that of a boy who has just seen something delightful and cannot rest till he has told you of it, makes the detail of Denmark, Sweden, and Norway glow with a vividness that hardly needs the jolly little sketches with which he liberally besprinkles his text." A. S. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 10 '39 390w

New Statesman & Nation 17:144 Ja 28 '39 360w

"A book of profound simplicity and moving beauty and sudden arresting thought. It is a book which brings the North's own strange gift of excitement in the very hands of quietness and which is mellow and ironic like the civilized mind itself. It is a rare and lovely book, 'exemplified,' as the title page puts it, with the author's own delightful drawings: a book to be treasured and gone back to again and again." K. W.
+ N Y Times p8 Mr 12 '39 550w

Pratt p24 summer '39

"Here, indeed, is the unspoilt wide-open eye for beauty, and in abundance the power to express it in words."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ja 7 '39 390w

CAPERS, GERALD MORTIMER. The biography of a river town; Memphis: its heroic age. 292p il maps $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press [16s Oxford]

976.8 Memphis, Tennesse 39-27481

A history of the town and city of Memphis from its foundation in 1819 to 1900, with a preliminary sketch of the history of the site—Chickasaw Bluffs—before the land speculators of the early west chose it for settlement. Tho written as a doctoral thesis, the book is intended for the general reader as well as the student of American history. Bibliographical statement. Index.

"The chronological arrangement, with what appears to be the dominant event or events of each period highlighted, gives a lively narrative and confirms the author's assumption 'that a scholarly work need not necessarily be a dull one'." C. F. Ware

+ Am Hist R 45:412 Ja '40 300w

Booklist 35:346 Je 15 '39

"Mr. Capers tells the story well. For him local history is national history placed under a microscope, and the insights thus revealed are illuminating to general reader and professional historian alike." E. S. Morgan

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 10 '39 270w

"Posing the local scene before the national one, using local instance to illuminate the national epic, Mr. Capers' compact study is a model of what the biography of a city should be. His book brilliantly substantiates his contention that an adequate biography of one of our key cities is likely to be more revealing of our national story than an adequate biography of even so important an American as, say, Theodore Roosevelt." H. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 My 20 '39 450w

CARAMAN, ELIZABETH. Daughter of the Euphrates; in collaboration with William Lytton Payne [introd. by Harry Emerson Fosdick]. 277p il map $2 Harper

B or 92 Armenian question (W) 39-20615

"As a young girl the author passed through the Armenian massacres of 1915-1919 in which all the men of her family were killed and all the women except herself and a younger sister were carried off by the Turks. Her memoirs not only cover this tragic period, of which there were few survivors among the sufferers, but give a vivid picture of life during the ten years preceding in a remote community in Kurdistan." Christian Century

Booklist 36:42 O 1 '39

"It is a dramatic and moving story beautifully told."

+ Christian Century 56:927 Jl 26 '39 80w

Christian Science Monitor p20 D 5 '39 450w

"Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick has written the introduction to this moving and dramatic life-story. It is told with simplicity and candor, and, to quote Dr. Fosdick's word, it is 'rememberable.'" Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p9 Jl 30 '39 430w

"Elizabeth Caraman's autobiography of her childhood in Turkey is an intensely dramatic account in which the reader's interest is compelled by the naiveté of the writing, by its biblical simplicity and sparseness of detail." Elgin Groseclose

+ Sat R of Lit 20:13 S 9 '39 550w

CARDOZO, BENJAMIN NATHAN. Law is justice. 441p $3 Ad press, ltd, 100 Grand st, N.Y.

345.4 Law 38-35935

"For many years to come, there is no doubt, students of American jurisprudence will find inspiration and gain deep insight by reading the opinions of the late Benjamin N. Cardozo. . . In Law Is Justice . . . there comes, in convenient brevity, comparatively speaking, the answer, if not the end, to the searcher's quest. Here we find, condensed in part, and amplified where the need exists, the essence and substance of what, for want of a better designation, may be termed the Cardozo theory of law and its application to human affairs." Christian Science Monitor

Reviewed by William Seagle

Ann Am Acad 203:230 My '39 230w

"Even the reader who discloses a 'working' knowledge of the law will find refreshment and deep satisfaction in the really picturesque and scholarly text presented. It may be that we all need a little closer contact with what so many regard as the abstruseness of the law. Justice Cardozo has clarified many of the forbidding depths. With the aid of Dr. Sainer it has been made easy to gain at least a practical understanding that, in fact, law is justice." F. L. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 N 7 '38 500w

CARFRAE, ELIZABETH. The past was a sleep. 250p $2 Putnam [7s 6d Mills & Boon]

39-17412

Pretty young Rosemary Ferriby didn't have the brains to be a teacher but she was very successful as a companion-nurse to the three young Kilndowns. But then Rosemary and the children's uncle fell in love. Tho Hilary was not yet divorced, things might have turned out all right, if Hilary had not been killed in an accident. Rosemary, to save her unborn child's name married another man, but years had to pass before the dead man's hand released her.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p9 Jl 9 '39 200w

N Y Times p15 Jl 9 '39 220w

CARLEN, SISTER MARY CLAUDIA, comp. A guide to the encyclicals of the Roman pontiffs from Leo XIII to the present day (1878-1937). 247p $2 Wilson, H.W.

016.2628 Encyclicals, Papal—Bibliography. Roman Catholic church. Pope—Bibliography (W) 39-13091

The encyclicals are arranged chronologically from 1878 to 1937—one to forty-four inclusive. Each is listed under its Latin title, followed by date of signature, with descriptive title in English. The texts are given, first in Latin, and then in the various translations. Summaries and commentaries follow texts. Indexes.

"A great and wearisome burden has been lifted from the shoulders of librarians of a certain sort, as well as of other researchers, who are called upon to furnish instantly various kinds of information about Papal Encyclicals. . . . All so thoroughly and carefully done, that it is at once evident that nothing but the most meticulous research could have produced this book." Henry Watts

+ America 61:309 Jl 8 '39 390w

Foreign Affairs 18:159 O '39 10w

Pratt p8 summer '39

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 130w

CARLETON, MRS MARJORIE CHALMERS. Lorinda. 351p $2.50 Dodd

39-22446

The story of Lorinda Gray and her son, Jonathan, from the time of his birth—about 1900—to the sinking of the Titanic. Lorinda had her own way to make in the world and she had thought she had learned to be hard—to use men and circumstances without compunction—but when Jonathan is taken from her the price of success seemed too high to pay.

"It is an interesting study of impulsive, quick-witted girlhood that Marjorie Carleton has written, and the story—especially the first half of it—is incisive and dramatic." Lisle Bell

+ Books p11 S 24 '39 260w

"Lorinda's success is too facile and her inner struggle too sparingly dealt with to evoke profound reactions. The author, however, does succeed in taking us back to the years of our memory when the Gods appeared kinder and human existence was spun on a simpler pattern." M. L. Rossbach

N Y Times p19 S 17 '39 300w

New Yorker 15:77 S 23 '39 60w

CARLETON, PATRICK. Buried empires; the earliest civilizations of the Middle East. 290p il maps $3 Dutton [10s 6d Arnold, E. & co]

913.3 Asia—Antiquities. Civilization, Ancient. Excavations (archeology) [39-17317]

A summary of what archeologists have learned about the history and customs of the ancient peoples who inhabited the modern kingdoms of Iraq, Persia, and Afghanistan, the shores of the Persian gulf, Baluchistan and the Indian province of Sindh. The period covered is roughly from 3000 to 700 B.C. Index.

Boston Transcript p5 Ja 6 '40 270w

"The author . . . has rightly avoided the offensive jargon to which modern scholarship is too prone; but many of his readers will regret that he has not helped them more to follow up points of interest. Occasionally, too, he breaks the sensible and instructive course of his narrative to insert a passage that is slangy, untrue, and does not make sense. There is a bad example on page 220. This does not make his excellent serious work more attractive." S. S.

+ — Manchester Guardian p5 Je 2 '39 430w

"If Mr. Carleton's narrative, excellent as it is, is open to criticism, it is due to the fact that it follows closely the tradition of earlier writers in devoting a preponderating attention to the personalities and achievements of the rulers, and to dynastic history, whereas recent studies have tended to show that the vital importance of Mesopotamia in the history of civilization lies in its contribution to the development of culture, rather than as a series of phases of 'history' in the narrower sense generally adopted."

+ — Nature 144:893 N 25 '39 250w

"Although the history itself is ancient, our knowledge of it is exceedingly recent, and it is Mr. Carleton's first-hand experience of excavations that inspires his book with such genuine enthusiasm. Much of what he writes has not been hitherto available except to the specialist, and Mr. Carleton's excitement about the revolutionary discoveries at Mohenjo-Daro in N.W. India communicates itself to the reader, as, with the help of good photographs, does his admiration for much of the art of his period, especially that of Akkad."

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:290 Ag 19 '39 100w

"Mr. Carleton makes even his citing of archaeological diggings interesting; and 'reconstruction' may be taken almost as a theme-word for his book. He calls it a 'textbook,' with mistaken modesty which does his achievement grave injustice. He writes with a rounded cognizance which makes a picture and vivifies a character; and to any one who has any interest in ancient history or archaeology this is certainly no textbook, but excellent reading, for its own sake."

+ N Y Times p8 D 31 '39 550w

Reviewed by W. V. Emanuel

Spec 162:1008 Je 9 '39 600w

"Mr. Carleton has brought together a large collection of material . . . and he has welded it into an admirable and very readable whole. It is not uncommon to find books of this kind on Mesopotamian antiquities written by willing but all-too-ignorant amateurs, whose love of their subject outstrips their knowledge: here, however, is a different class of book, and one which has been compiled by an author who knows his subject, not only from the archaeological side, but also from that other, the linguistic."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Je 17 '39 180w

CARLETON, PATRICK. No stone unturned; a comedy. 309p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Rich]

39-27307

A group of people gathered at an English spa for a vacation period, are joined by a young American, rather disillusioned on the whole by the homeland of his ancestors. At the spa Chester Haworth finds that the English can be delightful: he falls in love with a young English beauty; and just as everything seems to be working out well, it is discovered that one of their nice group is a murderer.

Booklist 35:290 My 1 '39

"Mr. Carleton's new novel is an agreeable and entertaining mixture, well flavored with bright dialogue and garnished with plenty of allusions to literature, art, history and current affairs for the benefit of those who prefer reading about characters not innocent of culture. It is smart, suave, well written. Mr. Carleton, in fact, is so deft and so generous with fun, irony, worldliness and excitement that it must seem ungrateful in a reviewer to wish that there were more depth and less brilliance." J. H. Friend

+ — Books p3 Ap 16 '39 700w

"No doubt, as the author in 'No Stone Unturned' remarked, a satirical writer could enjoy poking fun at the pomposity of Stagton Spa, but, to quote, such 'continued brightness gets rather trying after a time.' And so, we, for one, still prefer Patrick Carleton's historical physical contests to the satirical mental conflicts of his latest effort." M. P. Johnson

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 15 '39 310w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p7 F 28 '39 350w

"It is a 'comedy' distinguished not only by wit and original characterization but as a brilliant attempt to cope with the question of barbaric sadism let loose in a modern world." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p21 Ap 16 '39 950w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 15:76 Ap 22 '39 300w

"A light, almost a farcical story; it is written with [the author's] usual easy mastery, and yet there are in it curious hints that he is not quite at home in the world of comedy. Superficially, this is an agreeable entertainment. . . But the reader has the recurrent feeling that there are more serious pieces which do not fit into the texture of the book." Basil Davenport

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:15 Ap '39 600w

"The author of this book is the same Patrick Carleton who last year wrote 'Under the Hog,' a fine historical novel. 'No Stone Unturned' gives the impression of being a potboiler."

— + Springf'd Republican p7e My 7 '39 240w

"There is a murder in No Stone Unturned and an arrest and the complexities of several love affairs, but it is in the deftness of touch with which Mr. Carleton shows us the thoughts and emotions that lie below the surface that the real interest centres."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p153 Mr 11 '39 80w

CARLSON, CARL LENNART. The first magazine; a history of the Gentleman's magazine; with an account of Dr Johnson's editorial activity and of the notice given America in the magazine. 281p $3 Brown univ, Prospect st, Providence, R.I.

052 Gentleman's Magazine. Cave, Edward. Johnson, Samuel 39-5252

History of the Gentleman's Magazine, from the time when it was established in 1731 to the time of Cave's death in 1754. The work is based mainly upon original eighteenth-century sources. Bibliography. Index.

"The book is well written and shows familiarity with the activity of the period. It brings to life many of its intellectual interests as little else could. The author has been faithful to the evidence and spirit of the times, and he shows that the first magazine is as good a source of historical information as are its successors today." F. J. Hinkhouse

+ Am Hist R 45:462 Ja '40 230w

"Dr. Carlson has given us a fresh and important study of English literary history. His knowledge of his sources is obvious from the first opening of the book; his intelligent understanding of them and his unflagging interest in what they reveal are apparent." L. C. Wroth

+ Books p17 S 24 '39 1250w

"Readers may wish the author had related the magazine's history more closely to the social and political life of the time it so well reflected. But apart from this, Carlson's study performs a valuable service in introducing the first magazine and the leading eighteenth century periodical to modern readers whose interests are remarkably similar." E. N. Jenks

+ — N Y Times p2 Ag 13 '39 1450w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 20:18 My 20 '39 240w

"Mr. Carlson's book is not without a few small slips. . . Nevertheless this book contains some new information, and it reads easily. In its attention to the commercial side it is the best study that we yet have of an eighteenth century magazine."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p724 D 9 '39 500w

CARLSON, HENRY CLIFFORD. Basketball: the American game [action pictures by Sam André]. 189p $2 Funk

796.32 Basketball (W) 38-29087

A handbook on basketball by the head basketball coach of the University of Pittsburgh, an exponent of the "continuity" or "figure-eight" strategy.

Booklist 35:186 F 1 '39

"It makes good reading for older people as well as the young. For the latter it teaches the fundamentals and finer points of the game. Complicated plays of both offense and defense are illustrated by Dr Carlson; his methods and theories are fully explained and simplified so that they can be understood by anyone. . . For the spectators and old timers, it portrays how the game is played today."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 My 1 '39 170w

CARMER, CARL LAMSON. The Hudson; il. by Stow Wengenroth. (Rivers of America) 434p maps $2.50 Farrar

917.47 Hudson river (W) 39-27579

History, description, legends, and true stories about the people who have pioneered along the river, combine to make this study of the life on both sides of the Hudson, from its discovery to the present day. No index.

Reviewed by C. R. Woodruff

Ann Am Acad 207:243 Ja '40 350w

Booklist 35:377 Jl 15 '39

"Sixth in the American Rivers Series, Mr. Carmer's book differs from the rest, in mood as in text, just as the rest differ from each other. Like the others, however, it is a highly entertaining volume, best in its digging up really important history which in the past has for some unknown reason been relegated to files of old newspapers and to the columns of historical quarterlies." S. H. Holbrook

+ Books p1 Jl 2 '39 1250w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 26 '39 800w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk M 15:213 Jl '39 180w

New Repub 99:343 Jl 26 '39 50w

"Mr. Carmer has the common touch. He's as much interested in the people as in the patroons, more interested in folkways than in war and politics. Marrying history to travel and biography to geography, he has given us a splendid impressionistic picture of one of the great valleys of America, from the days of Father Jogues to those of Father Divine. It is greatly to be regretted that Constance Lindsay Skinner, who conceived and edited the Rivers of America Series, did not live to see this fine addition to her list come from the press." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p3 Je 25 '39 1400w

"Mr. Carmer contrives to be at once charming, learned, and sensible about one of the loveliest of our rivers." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:66 Jl 1 '39 270w

Pratt p24 autumn '39

"A corking book this. . . I commend it with enthusiasm, both as fruit of evidently long and exhaustive research con amore in documents and by first-hand investigation, and as exceptionally charming writing. . . The fine illustrations by Stow Wengenroth enrich it substantially. It's worth anybody's money and time." J. P. Gavit

+ Sat R of Lit 20:5 Jl 1 '39 1150w

Time 34:54 Jl 3 '39 550w

Wis Lib Bul 35:164 O '39

CARPENTER, SIR HENRY CORT HAROLD, and ROBERTSON, JOHN MACINTYRE. Metals. 2v 824;825-1485p $35 (£5 5s) Oxford

669 Metals. Alloys. Metallurgy 39-5584

"This monumental work is the labor of two distinguished professors of the Royal School of Mines, London. It deals with the industrially useful metals and alloys from the point of view of the relations between treatment, characteristics, and properties. Part I is general, dealing with microstructure, crystal structure, deformation, and fracture; Part II with the characteristics of alloys; Part III with properties of metals, including testing, oxidation, and corrosion; Part IV with casting and various treatments; Part V with the industrial ferrous alloys; Part VI with non-ferrous metals and alloys. There are 577 microphotographs and diagrams, and a bibliography of 633 entries." N Y New Tech Bks

"The work as a whole constitutes a most valuable synthesis to which, in this branch of science, it would be difficult to find a parallel. . . This is not a book to be relegated to library shelves, but should have its place on the desk or work-table. It is not a mere distributor of information, but a source of creative ideas and researches and therefore rich in consequences." A. M. Portevin

+ Nature 144:612 O 7 '39 1700w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:25 Ap '39

CARR, ALBERT H. Z. Juggernaut, the path of dictatorship; with 17 portrait drawings by Vivian Springford. 531p $3 Viking

321.6 Dictators. Europe—Politics (W) 39-27717

Studies of twenty dictators from Richelieu, Frederick the Great, and Bismarck, to Mussolini and Hitler. The dictators are divided into three groups: Dynasts; Revolutionaries; and Crisis-men. In his final chapters the author charts the path of dictatorship and its possibilities in America. Index.

Reviewed by F. M. Marx

Ann Am Acad 207:223 Ja '40 600w

Booklist 36:36 O 1 '39

"Mr. Carr has compiled a handbook on dictatorship which every thoughtful American can read with pleasure and profit whether he agrees with all the conclusions or not. . . It is a book to read and argue about and read again." Geoffrey Bruun

+ Books p5 O 8 '39 1000w

"The disturbing implications of dictatorship in the future and the interpretation of 'The Trend in America' will not serve to set your mind at ease. This splendid book will, however, give hours of interesting reading and will leave every reader a more intelligent citizen of this troubled world." Russ Nixon

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 23 '39 850w

"There is nothing slipshod in Carr's work. No bland generalizations, no superficial thinking mar his essays. The volume is painstakingly written, but it is lucid and convincing. The splendid diction, scholarly nature, and factual basis all make this an eminently readable book. The importance of these issues to anyone who calls himself a religionist is only too obvious. The book must not be ignored." C. H. Voss

CARR, A. H. Z.—Continued
+ Christian Century 56:1338 N 1 '39 700w
Christian Science Monitor p16 S 23 '39 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '39
Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:5 O '39 150w
Reviewed by Rustem Vambery
Nation 149:624 D 2 '39 420w
New Repub 100:223 S 27 '39 50w

"Here is fascinating reading for all who are interested in dictators—and who is not nowadays? . . Aided by a clear and lucid style, [Mr Carr] has turned out a volume which will be most welcome alike to laymen and specialists." T. R. Ybarra
+ N Y Times p3 S 24 '39 1050w
New Yorker 15:83 S 16 '39 40w

"The historical analysis which makes up the body of his book is not without a number of errors of fact, but no more than must be expected when so much ground is covered rather hastily. Though often wrong, Mr. Carr is so temperate that he does not seem wrong-headed. His last fifty pages, the most interesting part of his book, contain a brief systematic description of the generalized course of dictatorship in modern Western society, or, if you prefer, an outline for a sociology of dictatorship." Crane Brinton
+ Sat R of Lit 20:10 S 16 '39 800w
Reviewed by E. O. Hauser
Survey G 28:632 O '39 70w
Wis Lib Bul 35:182 N '39

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). The problem of the green capsule [Eng title: Black spectacles]. 286p $2 Harper [7s 6d Hamilton, H.] 39-12586

Detective story.

Booklist 35:380 Jl 15 '39

"A meaty tale, chock full of problems and done to a turn. It has everything most fans desire." Will Cuppy
+ Books p9 My 21 '39 300w
Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p3 My 20 '39 110w
Reviewed by E. R. Punshon
Manchester Guardian p3 O 20 '39 230w
Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 18:568 O 21 '39 300w

"In the hands of a less skillful writer than John Dickson Carr this story would probably have been a complete flop, for the plot is so unbelievably ingenious that most writers would have been unable to make it convincing. But Mr. Carr has done the trick and has scored another triumph for himself and for Dr. Fell." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p17 My 21 '39 140w

"Grand idea, beautifully told, with Dr. Fell, who luckily has been taking the waters at nearby Bath arriving at a solution."
+ New Yorker 15:96 My 20 '39 40w

"Most intricate and sinister puzzle in moons, worked out step by step with devastating logic. Explanation demands closest attention. Superbaffler."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 My 20 '39 40w

"Most intricate and sinister puzzle in months, worked out step by step with devastating logic. Explanation demands very close attention. Super-baffler."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 D 23 '39 50w
Reviewed by Rupert Hart-Davis
Spec 163:556 O 20 '39 30w
Time 33:88 Je 5 '39 30w

"Here is Mr. Dickson Carr in his most ingenious, learned and readable form. . . Mr. Dickson Carr should, however, beware not to make his characters too much alike. In this case all of them, including the three policemen, seem short-tempered, pig-headed and quick witted. But it is ungrateful to be hypercritical."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p553 S 23 '39 450w
Wis Lib Bul 35:113 Je '39

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). The problem of the wire cage. 296p $2 Harper 39-30765

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p18 N 5 '39 150w

"One is always sure of a good crime puzzle and of excellent entertainment when Dr. Fell is on the job." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p28 N 5 '39 180w

"Grand puzzle, and not a spy in the cast."
+ New Yorker 15:88 N 4 '39 50w

"Explanation of first murder amazing; that of second strains credulity. Background for both satisfactory and characters well-drawn. Good Grade-B."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 N 4 '39 50w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). The reader is warned. 306p $2 Morrow [7s 6d Heinemann] 39-23041

Detective story.

"Mr. Dickson's handling of the psychic material is something to watch—we may not tell you whether or not it's phony. A don't-miss item." Will Cuppy
+ Books p13 Ag 27 '39 180w
Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 S 2 '39 80w

"The ending of the book is a little weak with a too garrulous murderer explaining in a monologue, for the benefit of unseen listeners, exactly the how and the why of it all, but in the story as a whole Mr. Dickson displays an imagination as rich and varied as any expressing itself in the fiction of the moment." E. R. Punshon
+ — Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 8 '39 350w
Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 18:380 S 9 '39 300w

"In 'The Reader Is Warned,' the brilliant Carter Dickson is at his brilliant best." Kay Irvin
+ N Y Times p22 S 10 '39 250w

"Exciting idea spoiled by a pretty silly climax."
+ — New Yorker 15:64 S 2 '39 60w

"Scares wits outen reader with supernatural didoes, and then portly sleuth shows how simply—and unguessably—it's all done. First class!"
+ Sat R of Lit 20:18 S 2 '39 40w
Time 34:56 S 4 '39 50w
Times [London] Lit Sup p455 Jl 29 '39 320w

CARR, KATHERINE (COWIN) (MRS FRED RODELL). South American primer. 208p il maps $1.75 Reynal
980 South America (W) 39-27528

In something less than two hundred pages the author presents a picture of South American history, politics, and economic conditions, as a whole and for most of the individual states, concluding with observations on the present international situation, the Good Neighbor policy and Fascist propaganda. Index.

Booklist 35:362 Jl 1 '39

"Katherine Carr's excellent book tells more per paragraph and per page about the ten nations of South America than this reviewer has previously encountered in considerable more space. Likewise, it cuts through to fundamentals and is written graphically and intelligently throughout." Leland Stowe
+ Books p10 Je 25 '39 310w

Reviewed by Myles Rumford
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 29 '39 400w

"Mrs. Carr has the advantage of popular appeal, but her primer is blemished by inaccuracies due to stroking with too broad a brush." R. H. S.
— + Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 1 '39 150w

"Miss Carr has not written a big book, physically, but she has compressed more significant and pertinent information about South America, country by country, than might seem possible between the covers of a single work." Norman Cousins
+ Current Hist 51:4 S '39 160w
Foreign Affairs 18:174 O '39 20w

Reviewed by E. K. James
Living Age 357:98 S '39 300w

"A sound and sensible little study."
+ New Repub 99:230 Je 28 '39 50w

"The Franco jitters indulged in by the author of 'South American Primer' must not be allowed to cause underestimation of the rest of her book. It is a remarkably able work. And its author is by no means a gloomy pessimist in whom hope has perished." T. R. Ybarra
+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 16 '39 800w

Discussion by Hans Wolfgang
N Y Times p10 Ag 6 '39 350w
New Yorker 15:92 Je 17 '39 10w
No Am 248:202 autumn '39 100w

"The idea of this little volume is excellent, and from a purely literary standpoint, the execution is good. It suffers, however, from oversimplification in parts and a high percentage of misinformation in others, related in both cases to the author's apparent lack of knowledge of the field. The treatment of economic statistics displays a whimsical disregard for the facts, even when such facts are correctly portrayed in charts accompanying the text." H. J. T.
— + Sat R of Lit 20:19 Je 24 '39 380w

Discussion by Fred Rodell & H. J. Trueblood
Sat R of Lit 20:9 Jl 15 '39 850w

Reviewed by B. P. Adams
Survey G 28:756 D '39 160w
Time 34:64 Ag 14 '39 220w
Wis Lib Bul 35:143 Jl '39

"Swiftly, realistically, and accurately, Mrs Carr describes the South Americans, gives us some knowledge of their economics and politics, and excites to further reading." Hubert Herring
+ Yale R n s 29:398 winter '40 50w

CARREL, ALEXIS, and LINDBERGH, CHARLES AUGUSTUS. The culture of organs. (Paul B. Hoeber bk) 222p il $4.50 Harper [18s Hamilton, H]

611.018 Organs, Culture of. Tissue culture. Perfusion pump 38-18687

" 'The purpose of this book is chiefly to describe the technique of the cultivation of whole organs in the Lindbergh pump. The results of the experiments are mentioned only as a proof of the efficiency of the procedures used for keeping the tissues alive "in vitro." . . The techniques have been tested in over a thousand experiments during about one hundred thousand hours of perfusion.' Dr. Carrel has contributed the parts entitled 'Purpose and History of the Method,' 'Perfusing Media,' 'Preparation of Organs and Anatomical Regions,' 'Preparation of the Perfusion Pump, Installation of the Organ, and Starting Perfusion,' and 'Behavior of Organs Living Outside the Body.' Colonel Lindbergh is responsible for the divisions dealing with 'The Apparatus,' 'Assembly of the Apparatus,' and 'Inspection and Operation of the Apparatus During Perfusion.' Thirty-eight plates, each consisting of several figures, illustrate the text." Scientific Bk Club R

"The Carrel-Lindbergh perfusion method represents one of the most important technical advances in biology which has been made in recent years, so that the present volume . . . is extremely welcome." H. B. F.
+ Nature 144:95 Jl 15 '39 700w

"Although this is a highly technical book, its importance to the health of the human race makes it . . . a vital addition to the scientific literature of the times. Although it was written especially for those interested in the problems of anatomy, physiology, chemistry and pathology, even lay readers will find it a remarkable scientific record of the results already achieved and of the possibilities of this new and powerful instrument for biological research."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 9:2 Jl '38 440w

CARRINGTON, MRS ELAINE (STERNE). All things considered, and other stories. 245p $2 Messner

39-30336

Ten short stories all about rather simple people who demand little of life.

"There are ten studies in the book, done with warmth and simplicity." Lisle Bell
+ Books p22 N 19 '39 150w

"There are [some] peculiarities about these short stories that are difficult to explain until, on the back flap of the jacket, one comes upon the information that Mrs. Carrington is a writer of radio scripts, responsible for two successful serials that have been on the air for a long time. She is, then, accustomed to having her work 'interpreted' for her audience, and this may account for the fact that there are two ways of taking some of her stories. . . This fact may also explain the length of the stories—more words are used for the effects than most magazine writers require. On the credit side a freedom and individuality of expression may be discerned in this book. The style is not modish, but it seems free of debt." Robert Van Gelder
+ — N Y Times p28 N 12 '39 450w

CARROLL, EBER MALCOLM. Germany and the great powers, 1866-1914; a study in public opinion and foreign policy. 852p il $5 Prentice-Hall

327.43 Germany—Foreign relations. Public opinion—Germany. Europe—Politics 39-1097

Detailed account of German diplomatic history from 1866 to 1914. "The author makes no pretense at scientific analysis of German public opinion in relation to foreign policy. He is interested mainly in showing the nature of public discussions as indicated in newspaper articles. At times, conclusions are ventured, however, as to the relationships between government policy and press opinions." (Am Pol Sci R) The author is professor of history at Duke university. Index.

"The reader is impressed by the extent of the information on foreign policies made available to the German people. The view commonly held during the World War that the Germans had been kept in ignorance of the government's objectives and policies is not substantiated by this volume. It is understood, of course, that every government is cautious not to place facts before the people which will lead to a frustration of plans, and that Germany was no exception to this rule. Nevertheless, it appears that the German public was usually aware of major developments." N. L. Hill
Am Pol Sci R 33:321 Ap '39 420w

"In the opinion of the present reviewer, Professor Carroll has missed his opportunity in part because of a distinct hostility to Germany. While there can be no doubt that Professor Carroll has thoroughly investigated the sources, he presents Germany throughout

CARROLL, E. M.—Continued
in the worst possible light which the documents will permit. While the book has no polemic tone, the under-current of anti-Germanism is apparent in most of its pages." H. E. Barnes
— Ann Am Acad 204:191 Jl '39 490w
Foreign Affairs 17:809 Jl '39 10w

"Scholars may quibble over isolated points, as, for instance, certain views of Bismarck and the author's analysis of the Kruger telegram; but on the whole it should be admitted freely that this volume is one fit to stand on any carefully selected shelf of required reference books. One of the most important reservations, however, is that it should be read practically in whole and not in a hop-skip-jump fashion." Lloyd Eshleman
+ — N Y Times p12 Je 18 '39 320w

"Professor Carroll has not written the great epic of the Second Reich. No one can yet tell that story. . . . Ant work, to use professor's jargon, must precede works of synthesis and imagination. To that essential preliminary work Professor Carroll's book belongs. His years of work, his footnotes, his endless quotations, add up to a book which will be read by few, but these few will include everyone who writes on German history." R. J. Sontag
Sat R of Lit 19:16 Mr 18 '39 550w

CARROLL, ELEANOR ELLIOTT. Passport to Eden. 299p $2 Penn

39-10764

To save young Cynthia Spaulding from an extremely awkward situation, Pete Parmalee, ex-war-correspondent, marries her out of hand and takes her to Eden Acres, his home in the Virginia mountains. But Cynthia's troubles are still further complicated; she feels that Pete has married her only from pity. She is about to leave for Reno when a solution is found, and all ends happily.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p12 Je 4 '39 150w
Reviewed by M. P. Johnson
Boston Transcript p2 Je 17 '39 130w

CARROLL, LOREN. Conversation, please; a clinic for talkers; drawings by Ellen Hendrixson. 177p $1.75 Bobbs

374.1 Conversation (W) 39-27361

Sensible, humorously written book on the art of conversation—how to improve your brand, and how to avoid being a bore.

Booklist 35:299 My 15 '39

"The most interesting of the case histories show the conversational characteristics of some real people whom the author has known: Gertrude Stein's unexpected lucidity of phrase. Edith Wharton's 'stylized' conversation of ideas, and half a dozen others. It's a brisk little book—and never boring."
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 16 '39 320w

CARROLL, MOLLIE RAY. What is collective bargaining? 109p $1.75 Longmans

331.1163 Collective bargaining 39-28969

"Miss Carroll, who is pro-labor in sympathies and who also believes in the ultimate power of reason, explains the technical processes of collective bargaining, that is the drawing up of a definite policy with respect to labor by the employing group." (Boston Transcript) Index.

Booklist 36:144 D 15 '39
Boston Transcript p2 N 18 '39 40w

CARROLL, PAUL VINCENT. Plays for my children. 199p $2 Messner

822 39-27427

Six one-act plays for grades six to eight, by the author of The White Steed.

Booklist 35:334 Je 1 '39
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 Jl 2 '39 310w
Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p8 My 25 '39 310w

"The author of two fine adult plays produced in this country—Shadow and Substance and The White Steed—has turned his hand to the writing of plays for children with results that will be welcomed by the growing number of teachers and directors who search hopefully for well-written material."
+ Horn Bk M 15:228 Jl '39 230w

"Children eight to twelve with cultivated reading tastes will take delight in their subtle humor and abundant zest." Dorotha Dawson
+ Library J 64:519 Je 15 '39 50w

CARROLL, PAUL VINCENT. The white steed, and Coggerers. 190p $2 Random house

822 (W) 39-27112

Drama of modern Ireland. An honest but narrow young priest, sent to relieve the elderly, crippled Canon Lavelle, attempts to puritanize the parish. When things get too thick for the kindly Canon, a miracle brings back his ability to walk, and his assistant is thwarted. Included in the book is the author's one-act play about Easter Monday of 1916, entitled Coggerers.

Booklist 35:228 Mr 15 '39
Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p20 Ap 16 '39 140w
Boston Transcript p1 Mr 4 '39 170w
Dramatic criticism by E. V. Wyatt
Cath World 148:727 Mr '39 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '39

" 'The White Steed' is at once acting drama and literature. It is a better made play than 'Shadow and Substance,' [Book Review Digest, 1938] and its writing, though more down to earth, equally fine." Grenville Vernon + Commonweal 29:386 Ja 27 '39 550w (Dramatic criticism)

"In view of the fact that there seems to be some disposition to accept the author as the latest in the succession of Irish dramatists, it might be just as well to go on record with the opinion that, charming and effective writer though he is, Mr. Carroll is no John Millington Synge and no Shean O'Casey, but an amiable and facile popular dramatist whose gift for humor and eloquence of a typically Gaelic sort he finds it all the easier to exploit because his convictions and his enthusiasms are simple and readily accepted. Thanks to a certain naivete—both intellectual and emotional—which is obviously his, he can state with all the passion of a newly discovered conviction propositions which a profounder man would find it more difficult to get excited about, and in all sincerity devise theatrical situations which would be bound to arouse the suspicions of a more sophisticated mind." J. W. Krutch + — Nation 148:100 Ja 21 '39 600w (Dramatic criticism)
Reviewed by Lewis Nichols
N Y Times p18 F 26 '39 200w
Pratt p22 summer '39
Reviewed by John Anderson
Sat R of Lit 20:14 Ap 29 '39 150w
Reviewed by Rosamond Gilder
Theatre Arts Mo 23:309 Ap '39 30w

CARROLL, RUTH (ROBINSON) (MRS LATROBE CARROLL), and CARROLL, LATROBE. Flight of the Silver Bird; il. by Ruth Carroll. 95p map $2 Messner

39-29403

Two children, Peter and Jane, cross the Pacific from San Francisco in a clipper plane, to see their parents in southern China.

"There is great opportunity for a book of this kind. The present one is entirely acceptable, but we hope an Anne Lindbergh will one day do the theme justice for children." Irene Smith
+ Library J 64:842 N 1 '39 80w
Reviewed by Miriam Snow
Library J 65:122 F 1 '40 100w
New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 20w

"This birdseye view of the Pacific is told in easily read sentences which contain a surprising number of facts for the 8 and 9 year olds who are avid for details, and it will be read more for its informational value than for its narrative interest, which is weak." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p11 Ja 21 '40 250w
Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 16 '39 20w

CARSON, KATHARINE. Mrs Pennington. 312p $2.50 Putnam
(W) 39-27428

A novel of American family life; the scene a small town in Kansas, the time the eighteen eighties. Much of the action takes place during the June week when the Chautauqua Assembly comes to town.

Booklist 35:332 Je 1 '39

"Mrs. Pennington of Katharine Carson's novel is a valiant and touching figure. . . The four Pennington children are distinct and individual, and their varied problems and growing pains are deftly handled. Finally, whether or not you have had a chautauqua in your past, here is one you can still enjoy." Lisle Bell
+ Books p16 My 7 '39 300w

"An agreeable light novel."
+ Boston Transcript p3 My 20 '39 70w

"The story itself, covering the happenings to the Penningtons during one Summer, is pleasantly told. Based on the doings of ordinary people, it makes an ordinarily interesting novel with no claims to outstanding originality in material or treatment. The characterization of Mrs. Pennington, the plucky mother who was a good 'manager' (in the household sense) is the book's chief bid for distinction." Beatrice Sherman
+ — N Y Times p7 My 7 '39 550w
New Yorker 15:100 My 13 '39 40w

"Mrs Pennington's character, tolerant and sympathetic, gives a warmth to the various episodes which are otherwise too superficial and familiar to be of much narrative interest. The novel has neither the originality nor the penetration that would give it real distinction, but its homespun sincerity is genuine." G. S.
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 13 '39 230w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 18 '39 300w
Wis Lib Bul 35:145 Jl '39

CARTER, BOAKE. Why meddle in Europe? facts, figures, fictions and follies. 208p $2 McBride
327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. U.S.—Neutrality 39-21848

Facts and figures on why the United States should stay out of the present European war, with chapters on the cost of the first World war to the United States

---

Foreign Affairs 18:374 Ja '40 20w

"Unfortunately, Mr. Carter allows his at times fanatical hatred for the New Deal to lead him into such extravagant passages that the fundamentals of his subject are sadly neglected. The volume, in short, might be called a book-length editorial, aimed at the tone-deaf masses." J. H. S.
Sat R of Lit 20:19 Ag 26 '39 110w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 17 '39 420w

CARTER, CLEMENT CYRIL, and BRENTNALL, HAROLD CRESSWELL. Man the world over; drawings by Silvia Hay and Marion Rivers-Moore; maps by R. H. Sherbourn. 508p $3 Appleton-Century [8s 6d; also in 2v v 1 2s 9d, v 2 3s Blackwell]
910 Geography (W) 39-5389

An English textbook in geography, designed to give "a few simple facts . . . which will enable [its readers] to understand, at least in outline, other nations' problems and points of view." Extensively illustrated, with a map or picture on nearly every page. Index.

"This is probably a textbook in geography, when you come right down to it, though it seems too good to be true that schools should use such a book, so rich in human interest and so free from the moldy material that filled the geography books a few years ago."
+ Christian Century 56:354 Mr 15 '39 50w

"This is an admirable treatment of an important subject, and the book is to be recommended with one notable reservation. When one reads, for example, that 'France is capable (as we are not) of growing all her own food' the parenthetical clause may cause unnecessary alarm; this is an English book. And it is so completely and ubiquitously English that its value for transatlantic readers is lessened and its information sometimes ambiguous in detail."
+ — N Y Times p10 Ap 2 '39 360w

"Written so simply that a child of twelve could use it profitably, the book is intended for the adult whose recollections of school geography have grown dim and who wishes to refresh his memory on the broad aspects of the science of the earth. . . The maps and marginal sketches are well reproduced; the photographs, excellent in themselves, are somewhat blurred by the process used in their reproduction."
+ — Scientific Bk Club R 10:4 Mr '39 170w
Wis Lib Bul 36:14 Ja '40

CARTER, HERBERT DYSON. If you want to invent. 320p $2.75 Vanguard
608 Inventions. Patents (W) 39-27070

Advice on the subject of inventions, including material on the advantages of independent inventing and salaried inventing, markets, patents, and swindlers. Based upon the author's own experiences.

Booklist 35:218 Mr 1 '39

"A smoothly written and easily-read digest of [the author's] experiences."
+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 4 '39 30w
Reviewed by Adeline Macrum
Special Libraries 30:316 N '39

CARTER, JOHN FRANKLIN (JAY FRANKLIN, DIPLOMAT, pseuds). The future is ours. 208p pa 50c Modern age
627.1 Tennessee Valley authority. U.S.—Public works 39-28999

"[A] survey and defense of federal power activities as represented by the TVA, Bonneville and other great projects developed under the present administration." New Repub

---

Booklist 36:152 D 15 '39

"Jay Franklin's book is a brilliant and impressive demonstration of the importance of the Tennessee Valley Authority for the future of America. Drawing upon a rich store of economic and social understanding, he presents, with keen logic and fertile imagination, the TVA as a preview of the government of tomorrow." R. C. Pollock
+ Commonweal 31:247 Ja 5 '40 500w
New Repub 102:62 Ja 8 '40 40w

"A small, hard-hitting book in the new social-science convention."
+ New Yorker 15:123 D 16 '39 30w

CASSIDY, MICHAEL ARDAGH, and PRATT, HELEN GAY. Your experiment in living. 153p $1.75 Reynal

136.7354 Adolescence. Conduct of life (W) 39-27071

Advice for the adolescent on the subjects of growth to maturity and preparing for a place in the adult world. Partial contents: The beginning of your history; Your personality; Using new scientific knowledge; Getting along with your family; Adjusting to the sexual impulse; Charting your course; The institution of marriage.

Booklist 35:217 Mr 1 '39

"Any reasonable Penrod, or his little sister, will find this exposition of the art of adjusting oneself to the world's manners and customs interesting and useful. Their parents should read it, too, for it is easy to forget how very disturbing are, what seem to the grown-ups, the small problems of youth."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 18 '39 140w

"This book, while valuable for adult readers, may also be read profitably by those in later adolescence, for there is no reason why this necessary instruction and help should not be received directly. The authors have no special pleading, no moralizings to impose, no pet theories to advance. They speak frankly and intimately, and give friendly advice in a tactful way."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 F 6 '39 300w

Wis Lib Bul 35:47 Mr '39

CASSIDY, ROSALIND FRANCES. New directions in physical education for the adolescent girl in high school and college. 231p $2.50 Barnes, A.S.

371.7 Physical education and training. Girls 38-23116

"This 'guide for teachers in cooperative curriculum revision' is by the chairman of the department of physical education at Mills College. Her purpose is to show how physical education experiences may be used 'for orienting the adolescent in her daily living.' Part One, entitled 'Exploration,' attempts to describe the needs of the girl, the philosophy of education for democracy, and the present tools of physical education; Part Two, entitled 'Formulation,' discusses the development of a physical education program; and Part Three is devoted to a bibliography of sources for study." (J Home Econ) Index.

J Home Econ 31:116 F '39 110w

"Certainly in the field of physical education this book stands alone as a distinct type. Either despite, or because of, the use of language, the book is destined to create discussion. It is hoped that during these discussions leadership capable of translating the contents and the ideas into more understandable terms will be present. [The author] has attempted a difficult and a much-needed task. It does not seem presumptuous to predict that she will achieve the success of having written the most discussed book in physical education of a decade. The controversy bound to result should lead to a rethinking, a re-evaluating, and a restating of ideas with the end of redirecting programs of physical education to meet more adequately the needs of adolescent girls." M. E. Rugen

+ School R 47:469 Je '39 850w

CASSON, STANLEY. Sculpture of to-day. 144p $4.50 (10s 6d); pa $3.50 (7s 6d) Studio

735 Sculpture (W) [39-27439]

Short study of the sculpture of today, demonstrating its uses and purposes, and the approach of different living sculptors to the task. Illustrated with photographs showing the works of famous contemporary sculptors in Europe and America.

Booklist 35:327 Je 1 '39

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 10 '39 310w

"The choice of Mr. Casson to contribute the text to this book has been fortunate. He possesses a wide knowledge of his subject, sufficiently catholic taste, true critical insight, and an agreeably readable style—qualifications not always combined in experts who are called upon, as he has been in the present work, to interest and inform the layman in art. . . In the interests of the future amenities of our towns and villages it is to be hoped that this book may find its way on to the shelves of many of our local governors and administrators." L. B. Budden

+ Manchester Guardian p7 My 26 '39 900w

Pratt p13 winter '40

CASSOU, JEAN. Matisse. See Matisse, H.

CATHOLIC encyclopedia dictionary; comp. and ed. under the direction of Condé B. Pallen and others. 1100p il maps $6.50-$8.50; buck $10.50; ½ lea $12.50-$15; mor $25 c1929 Gilmary soc, inc, room 217, 226 E. Fordham rd, N.Y.

282 Roman Catholic church—Dictionaries

"This volume was reviewed, under the title The New Catholic Dictionary, in the Subscription Books Bulletin for October 1930 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. The publishers announce a change in the title to signify its connection with the Catholic Encyclopedia, whose editors sponsored the editorial work in this one-volume publication. The new price is noted above. There has been no revision." Subscription Bks Bul

Subscription Bks Bul 10:2 Ja '39 60w

CATLIN, GEORGE EDWARD GORDON. Anglo-Saxony and its tradition [Eng title: Anglo-Saxon tradition]. 344p $3 Macmillan [10s 6d Routledge]

901 Anglo-Saxon race. International cooperation. Security, International. Humanism. Civilization 39-23172

"Professor Catlin offers an interesting book in support of the thesis that out of common 'Anglo-Saxon' experience since the sixteenth century there has developed 'a Grand Tradition of human values' which the best minds have consistently identified with civilization proper. This tradition would appear to be endangered less by the overt hostility to it professed by the totalitarian States and philosophies of the present than by the manifest inability of its own heirs to grasp the implications of the situation in which they now find themselves. Professor Catlin proposes for their consideration a 'humanism' which is not misled by the support it receives from the history of the moral intellect into an attitude of sluggish contentment with the existing social and economic order." N Y Times

Reviewed by Geoffrey Bruun

Books p9 D 24 '39 700w

Boston Transcript p1 O 14 '39 180w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 56:1138 S 20 '39 850w

"Whatever else it may be Anglo Saxony and Its Tradition is a timely and effective offset to 'With Malice Towards Some' and 'England Expects Every American to Do His Duty.' George Catlin's newest book is an able and constructive work of logic and exposition." E. B. H.

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 O 19 '39 600w

"In everything George Catlin writes or says there is the quality of engaging freshness.

Especially is this true of [his] latest book. Anglo-Saxony and Its Tradition. Though his central idea—the need for a federation of nations—has been eloquently discussed before, recently by Clarence Streit in Union Now, there is a newness of approach in George Catlin's presentation and appraisal which lends arguments favoring the plan added effectiveness." Norman Cousins

+ Current Hist 51:2 S '39 700w

Foreign Affairs 18:368 Ja '40 50w

"In his brilliant analysis Professor Catlin does not, I think, give sufficient importance to the part played by economic class war within each nation as the prime motive of competing national armament and the war which it imparts." J. A. Hobson

+ — Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 1 '39 1050w

"There are many things which Prof. Catlin says that I do not agree with. Curiously enough, the main theme of my criticism would be that he is too hard upon the Soviet Union. . . On the other hand, I should have been less tolerant of the German Nazis than, in some passages, he appears to be. . . The main contentions of the book are stimulating; they form a valuable contribution to a current of opinion which has been growing in strength in recent times. The issues dealt with are of vital importance to ourselves and to the world. Those who appreciate that we are not going to find our way out of the present impasse without some hard thinking would do well to read this book with care." H. Macmillan

+ — Nature 144:398 S 2 '39 550w

"The book . . . is, despite a number of eccentric minor observations on the contemporary scene, a stimulating and purposive essay on themes worth wrestling with in these hours which may usher in the twilight of Western civilization." G. N. Shuster

+ — N Y Times p5 S 10 '39 1300w

"This is a crisis book. Most political writing today is, however, part of the literature of alarm. In our tired moments, we readers may feel that we are exhorted just a bit too often to gird ourselves for battle, and our hearts may not leap quite so high at the hundredth 'Either. . . Or. . .' But preaching is a lively part of the Anglo-Saxon tradition, and Mr. Catlin is determinedly in that tradition. Mr. Catlin is very persuasive about the concrete, cumulative character of what he calls our tradition of Humanism." Crane Brinton

Sat R of Lit 20:19 S 2 '39 900w

Social Studies 30:334 N '39 130w

"This must be one of the worst-written books of any merit published in recent years. Its author never resists the temptation to facile quotation, to polyglot jargon, to telegraphese, to preciosity. The result is not merely irritating, but baffling, for the style too often conceals the argument. And the flood of historical allusions is not only likely to be too deep, wide, and fast for the common reader, but likely to irritate the pedantic who will note more errors than they will think a reasonable allowance." D. W. Brogan

— Spec 163:153 Jl 28 '39 650w

"Mr Catlin's plan to save the world from catastrophe smacks too much of earnest yearning and too little of a realistic facing of facts. This is evident when he gives about as clear an explanation as could be desired to show why Germany and Russia might adjust their ideological disputes, and then dismisses the likelihood of such an alarming development as very slight. Where he confines himself to analyses of theories on matters like liberty and individual rights, it must be conceded, the author is on firmer ground, though he is obviously bent even there on proving his point both by the quotations he makes and the interpretations he gives them." Donald Derby

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 10 '39 700w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker

Survey G 28:760 D '39 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p474 Ag 12 '39 1800w

CATLIN, GEORGE EDWARD GORDON. The story of the political philosophers. (Whittlesey house publication) 802p il $5; school ed $4 McGraw

320.9 Political science—History. Philosophers (W) 39-30921

History of political thought from the Greeks before Socrates to the present day of Laski and Strachey. The work is filled with quotations from the works of the political philosophers who are under discussion, and with the ideas of the author, who is a post-War generation English liberal. Index.

"Easy to enjoy, but hard to define, George Catlin's work is at the same time a textbook, a survey for the 'Common Reader' (for whom the author does not conceal his utter contempt), and a personal document. It is of outstanding value in all three respects. . . Mr. Catlin is particularly unfortunate in his references to French history, French thought or the French language. . . But I have no desire to pour my copious notes into this brief review. A list of errata and oddities would obscure the essential point: that this is an able book, an honest book, a personal, indeed a passionate book." Albert Guerard

+ — Books p2 Ja 21 '40 1500w

"Littered with marble debris and mantraps, the Hall of Sociological Fame is one of the most dangerous buildings in the world for anyone to enter. Still, if you are willing to keep quiet while he is talking and to watch carefully when he flashes his lamp, you will find Professor Catlin a stimulating, if not always a safe, guide." Roger Pippett

+ — Living Age 357:596 F '40 300w

"Mr. Catlin's volume is amazingly erudite. In dealing with successive political philosophers it presents their biographies and their theories in judicious proportions. It is written with wit and humor and contains some arresting characterizations. . . It is learned, crowded, discoursive, allusive, but it is not always clear." Henry Hazlitt

+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 7 '40 700w

"Immensely informative, highly opinionated. Not too hard reading."

New Yorker 15:107 N 18 '39 30w

"A book which as a sober outline of political philosophy, as a student's guide to a vast and confused field, is not for a moment to be compared with Mr. George H. Sabine's masterly little book on the history of political theory. Yet for the reader who likes to ramble about uncharted ways, Mr. Catlin's book is like none other in existence. His scale is big enough to permit generous quotations from the originals; he has an easy lecturer's style; and he never feels too greatly tied down by the immediate job of tracing out a given philosopher's course, so that he is always free to wander off into pleasant and often profitable bypaths. . . His work is uneven, best on the eighteenth century and on men like Mill, spotty on Marx, worst, or at least most unfair on German idealism." Crane Brinton

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:7 D 23 '39 650w

Time 35:47 Ja 1 '40 70w

CAVE, SYDNEY. Hinduism or Christianity? a study in the distinctiveness of the Christian message. 240p $2 Harper [6s Hodder]

294.5 Hinduism. Christianity and other religions—Hinduism

"The author of this book, which compares Hinduism and Christianity, brings to his comparison a long period of residence in India where he had intimate contact with Hinduism, scholarly familiarity with the great literature of Hinduism, and a high respect for Indian culture. At the same time he is a noted Christian theologian who has written much on the Christian faith. . . In the course of the book he sets forth at length the Hindu idea of karma, contrasts the Hindu and Christian ideas of God, compares the Christian and Hindu ways of salvation by faith, and contrasts Hindu and Christian ethical ideals." Christian Century

CAVE, SYDNEY—Continued

"It is a book which a layman can easily enough read although it does rest back firmly upon a basis of thorough scholarship. It is to be hoped that equally thoughtful books comparing Christianity and other world faiths will be forthcoming." C. S. Braden
+ Christian Century 56:1504 D 6 '39 650w

"Probably without the slightest intention of doing so, Dr. Cave without mentioning New Thought, Christian Science and other organized phases of popular psychology and westernized orientalism, has given his readers one of the fairest, clearest and most reasonable philosophical and theological contrasts and comparisons between them and Christianity." A. L. Murray
+ Churchman 154:20 Ja 1 '40 230w

Reviewed by J. B. Pratt
J Religion 20:97 Ja '40 250w

Reviewed by Elizabeth McCracken
Living Church 101:7 D 6 '39 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Jl 15 '39 600w

CAVERT, SAMUEL MCCREA, ed. The church faces the world; studies in preparation for the Madras conf. of the Int. missionary council. 133p $1.50 Round table

261 Church. Sociology, Christian 39-13203

"The duties and opportunities of the church in the light of present social and economic conditions are discussed in thoughtful chapters by John C. Bennett, H. Richard Niebuhr, S. M. Cavert, J. H. Reisner, F. Ernest Johnson, L. Foster Wood, A. J. Muste, Benson Y. Landis, Allan Knight Chalmers and Luman J. Shafer." Christian Century

Christian Century 56:291 Mr 1 '39 50w

"This symposium . . . is a remarkable volume. . . . The separate papers are unusually integrated, as the writers met several times for discussion prior to making the final drafts. The committee in charge of setting up this commission of the Madras Conference is to be congratulated upon its selection of contributors." C. L. Willard, Jr.
+ Churchman 153:17 Je 15 '39 270w

CAVERT, WALTER DUDLEY. Story sermons from literature and art. 151p $1.50 Harper

252 Children's sermons 39-25420

"A collection of 70 sermons for young people, 58 of which are based on stories from incidents in literature or in the lives of great artists. The remaining sermons are general in character." Living Church

"The author has drawn upon a rich body of cultural resources, and his sermon-stories will be a valuable asset to any preacher—and that, of course, means practically every preacher—who has occasion to address junior audiences."
+ Christian Century 56:1241 O 11 '39 60w

"It is an excellent book, either for the clergy who preach special sermons to children or for the boys and girls themselves, who will read it with interest as a story-book." Elizabeth McCracken
+ Living Church 101:6 D 6 '39 50w

CAWLEY, JAMES S. Historic New Jersey in pictures. 96p map $3.75 Princeton univ. press

917.49 New Jersey—Historic houses, etc. New Jersey—Description and travel 39-12567

One hundred and sixty-eight photographs, with brief descriptive matter, showing historical buildings, monuments, canals, bridges, and natural scenery in the state of New Jersey. Map on endpapers. Index.

"The photographer has brought to his work not only a high degree of professional skill but a patent affection for the scenes before his lens." Allen Raymond
+ Books p9 Ag 13 '39 110w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 24 '39 70w

"The captions are suitably condensed and reasonably careful. Unfortunately the dates of some church edifices are omitted, and the date of the parish's founding is given rather than of the church building. However, there are fine pictures of old churches."
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 11 '39 360w

CAYTON, HORACE R., and MITCHELL, GEORGE SINCLAIR. Black workers and the new unions. 473p $4 Univ. of N.C. press [18s Oxford]

331.6 Negroes—Employment. Trade unions —U.S. 39-27580

"This work is a study of the economic status and industrial position of the Negroes as industrial laborers and of their participation in labor unions. . . Three industries have been chosen for examination: iron and steel, meat packing, and railroad car shops. Each of the above is studied as a 'type' case study of the position and role of Negro laborers both historically and in the rapidly shifting contemporary scene. . . The study is divided into five sections. . . The first three are statements concerning the history and contemporary changes in the industries chosen both as to the general working conditions, employer-employee relationship, and the special position and problems of Negro workers. In Section IV material is presented to show the attitudes toward the inclusion of Negroes in unions in a typically southern industrial community where race prejudice is presumably at its height. The final section of the book takes up the problem of union organization and the Negro community." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

"Here are shown patience, wide knowledge, absence of all easy bias, and a fine sense of responsibility to their colleagues and the society in which they live. . . This is a 'must' book, not only for special students of the Negro race, but for all who pretend to a serious interest in the labor movement and the probable future of our American democracy." J. R. Walsh
+ Ann Am Acad 206:199 N '39 700w

Booklist 35:374 Jl 15 '39

Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 16 '39 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '39

"No one who presumes to understand the labor problem can afford to miss a careful study of this book; no one who cares about peaceful race relationships can fail to study it; no one who presumes to be concerned about the future can afford to miss it. The problems which it presents factually are too serious to be passed by, either by employers, employees, unionists or statesmen." J. A. Lapp
+ Commonweal 30:301 Jl 14 '39 350w

Management R 28:251 Jl '39 80w

Reviewed by W. S. Meacham
N Y Times p5 Ag 27 '39 950w

Reviewed by H. J. Ruttenberg
Survey G 28:550 S '39 550w

CECIL, LORD DAVID. The young Melbourne, and the story of his marriage with Caroline Lamb. 276p il $3 Bobbs [10s Constable]

B or 92 Melbourne, William Lamb, 2d viscount. Lamb, Lady Caroline (Ponsonby) (W) 39-12957

Study of the evolution of character of William Lamb, Lord Melbourne, during the first forty-seven years of his life. He was the second son of that remarkable woman, Elizabeth Milbanke, Lady Melbourne, and husband of the ill-fated Lady Caroline Lamb. The biography demonstrates the influences of these two women on his life. The book closes just before the opening of the public career of Lord Melbourne. Index.

"Lord David Cecil is a kind of Lytton Strachey minor in the public school of English letters. He is not innocent of gush . . . but he has avoided the common error of imitating the Strachey manner. He has his own style, and his book is like an extended gossip column about the 'smart people' of the early nineteenth century." Richard Aldington

+ Atlantic O '39 700w

Booklist 36:42 O 1 '39

"It is refreshing to read a book like this whose author poses no world problems, debunks no great reputations, and attempts to prove no social theory—but is content to make the final years of the Whig regime vivid and alive in a style lucid and engaging, with a scholarship exact but unobtrusive." W. L. Willkie

+ Books p1 Ag 27 '39 2050w

"It is as much a diagnosis of the symptoms of decadence in an aristocracy as a personal character study; and for that purpose the subject is ideal." I. M. P.

+ Books p22 O 8 '39 180w

"One of the most distinguished biographies of the year." H. M. Jones

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 2 '39 1000w

"Like Lytton Strachey, in whose tradition he writes, the author aims to present a psychological portrait of his chief characters and succeeds admirably, for though he lacks Strachey's ironic innuendo and surface glitter, he possesses intellectual honesty of his own. . . This is a brilliant and satisfying work done with stylistic perfection." J. J. R.

+ Cath World 150:624 F '40 500w

"Far more interesting about human motives, movements and passions, as they color one another, than any novel, this is one of the most distinguished biographical portraits I have read for years." V. S. Pritchett

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 25 '39 380w

"The story of this marriage of incompatibles is told by Lord David Cecil with great charm in a Lytton Strachey style, purified from the worst vices of the master. It is as good as a novel; in fact it is a novel." A. J. P. Taylor

+ Manchester Guardian p7 F 24 '39 280w

"[The book] conveyed with discreet scholarship and ease, has invited a characteristic spate of encomiums in England and Harold Nicolson's laurel as the work of 'the best of all modern biographers.' Such superlatives defeat their purpose. The book is all that good sense, tact, and taste can make it, but if it illustrates the best of current biography, it means that the craft has again fallen on lean days, and has sacrificed in weight and historical substance what it gained some years ago in readability and charm. . . 'The Young Melbourne' derives more credit from its reference to a charming tradition and a restrained art than from its bearing on the world that Melbourne's last political office ushered into existence, and for which all his harrowing experiences in love and society left him unequipped." M. D. Zabel

Nation 149:249 S 2 '39 900w

Reviewed by Cuthbert Wright

New Repub 100:346 O 25 '39 420w

"Lord David Cecil is a writer with a singularly delicate and natural grace and an insight into the subtleties of character. His theme is therefore well suited to his talents. He has something new to say even about such well-worn topics as the adventures of Lady Caroline Lamb and the perversities of Byron." J. L. Hammond

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:175 F 4 '39 1500w

"Very often, and more so perhaps in the last few years, one feels there is no greater pleasure for the reader than a perfectly designed and executed biography, and Lord David Cecil's book is a heaven-sent example. Brilliant, beautiful, and utterly absorbing, it puts to shame so much shoddy verse and shameless fiction that one is inclined to rate present-day biography as the top of the writing art—when it is written, that is to say, by artists like Cecil." P. M. Jack

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 27 '39 1550w

"An acute psychological study, with the added charm of a well-done period piece. . . The book has many of the merits of Lytton Strachey. It is extremely well written, quietly epigrammatic, neat in its perceptions. Also, there are enough lords and ladies in it to satisfy even the London reviewers." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:58 S 2 '39 280w

"Lord David Cecil does not stoop to conquer the reader by magnifying the scandalous details of Lady Caroline's conduct. He tells them intimately and impartially, but what finally interests him is the fascinating character of Melbourne. . . 'Young Melbourne' is one of those sufficiently rare biographies which reach a high level both as art and as straight entertainment." Alexander Cowie

+ Sat R of Lit 20:14 S 2 '39 650w

"Lord David has written a consistently fascinating book: not for one moment does the interest flag as we encounter Lady Melbourne, Lady Bessborough, the Duchess of Devonshire, the adorable but impossible Lady Caroline, of almost equal importance to Melbourne in this book, Byron, admirably analysed and sketched in, and a dozen others. It is a book designed and carried out as a work of art." Bonamy Dobrée

+ Spec 162:184 F 3 '39 1250w

"The Young Melbourne is perhaps the best, certainly the raciest and most absorbing biography since Lytton Strachey's Queen Victoria."

+ Time 34:61 Ag 28 '39 900w

"This life of Lord Melbourne . . . is both a delightful and a distinguished contribution to modern biography. It can be safely said that anyone with any feeling for the past has here a major pleasure in store for himself."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p67 F 4 '39 1250w

"Only in one respect is 'The Young Melbourne' a little less than satisfying. The gap between the youthful William Lamb and the great statesman he became as Lord Melbourne is not quite completely closed for me. . . This is a small flaw which it is ungrateful to dwell upon. What the reader will remember is the clear characters, the pellucid flow of excellent writing, and the vivid pictures which make the brave and tawdry days of the Regency live again." W. C. DeVane

+ — Yale R n s 29:390 winter '40 1000w

CENTURY of social thought. 172p $2 Duke univ. [10s Cambridge]

901 Civilization—Addresses, essays, lectures.
Progress 39-16380

"A series of lectures delivered at Duke university during the academic year 1938-1939 as a part of the centennial celebration of that institution." (Subtitle) Contents: An evolving conception of general education, by C. H. Judd; One hundred years of economics, by H. G. Moulton; Religion in the last hundred years, by H. S. Coffin; Science and belief, by J. C. Merriam; Socio-cultural trends in Euro-American culture during the last hundred years, by P. A. Sorokin; Plan and performance, by Robert Moses; American juristic thinking in the twentieth century, by Roscoe Pound.

Reviewed by D. O. Wagner

Am Hist R 45:441 Ja '40 80w

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 25 '39 650w

CHADWICK, EVELYN MAY. Little orphan Willie-Mouse; a story and actual photographs of a real live woodmouse; phot. by Lynwood M. Chace. 53p $1 Little

38-32849

"A continuous story [is made] by arranging photographs of a real woodmouse, taken from blunt-nosed babyhood to maturity in a nest of his own, in chronological order, with a running narrative often adventurous." Books

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p7 F 12 '39 110w

"Very fine photographs of the life of a woodmouse from birth to self-sufficiency." H. L. Binsse
+ Commonweal 29:156 D 2 '38 10w

"Good for country and city children."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:21 N 19 '38 40w

CHAFFEE, ALLEN. Wandy wins! with il. by D. L. Mays. 195p $2 Random house [5s Murray, J]

39-5854

Further episodes in the life of Wandy, the Wild Pony (Book Review Digest, 1932.) He was turned over to an unkind boy when his owners went away to boarding school, was taught to race, was stolen, ran away, and finally was returned to Drake and Dooney.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p6 Je 25 '39 300w
Horn Bk M 15:170 My '39 30w

"Told with a reality and good sense which should please every reader." M. C.
+ Manchester Guardian sup xvi D 9 '38 110w

"This is an episodic little story, lacking the straight drive of a well-built narrative, and its chief interest lies in the intimate knowledge of horse nature and sound principles of horsemanship. As such it will appeal to young riders or to any 8 to 12 year old reader who loves animals. D. L. Mays catches the spirited actions of the gallant little pony in well-designed illustrations." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 Mr 12 '39 350w

CHALMERS, ALLAN KNIGHT. As He passed by. 157p $1.50 Abingdon

252 Jesus Christ—Friends and associates

39-21400

This volume of sermon-essays by the minister of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, contains "a set of character sketches of men who were neither disciples nor enemies of Jesus, those on the edge of the crowd or passing by." (Books)

"Dr. Chalmers's book is a delight. . . It is illumined by literary allusion, scriptural knowledge and sincere human feeling. By a most skillful use of the process of indirection, the author reveals with freshness and vigor the wonder of that Nazarene teacher who 'troubled men.'" J. H. Holmes
+ Books p31 D 10 '39 70w
Christian Century 56:1026 Ag 23 '39 60w

"A most unusual and appealing presentation." L. L. Riley
+ Churchman 153:18 O 15 '39 70w

CHALMERS, AUDREY. Parade of Obash; il. by [the author]. 78p $1 Oxford

39-23756

Another story of Obash, the baby hippopotamus. This time Obash gets out of the zoo and joins a parade. The results, at first disastrous, are in the end satisfactory.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 29 '40 100w

"There's plenty of nonsense in the story, and Obash is still appealing; but it seems a little more obvious than his first adventure, and not quite so spontaneous. This is a companion volume to the first, with the same kind of gay drawings, and is intended for young readers of six to eight years,—or for older readers to read to young readers." Josephine Smith
+ — Library J 64:712 S 15 '39 80w

Reviewed by Josephine Smith
Library J 64:846 N 1 '39 50w

"Obash will make new friends in this second story. . . The drawings show a gain in power and as usual this artist's sense of humor is in excellent working order. She understands the kind of fun that children like, and enjoys it with them. For children 8 to 10." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p34 N 12 '39 150w

CHALMERS, PATRICK REGINALD. Racing England. 158p il $5 Scribner [12s 6d Batsford]

798.4 Horse racing

"This interesting book on racing in England is mostly history gathered from other authorities, together with some of the author's own reminiscences. The author, well known on the racecourse in this country and in India and elsewhere, must have spent many hours reading the old writers on racing, and he may be congratulated on the manner in which he has sifted all that he learned." Times [London] Lit Sup

"The author, a famous turf authority, writes in the true tone of the track; his stream of anecdotes makes lively reading for any one and a reference work for writers, while many photographs and reproductions of old engravings are reinforced by unusually fine sporting prints in full color."
+ Books p8 D 31 '39 120w
Boston Transcript p2 S 2 '39 140w
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p427 Jl 15 '39 250w

CHAMBERLAIN, NEVILLE. In search of peace [Eng title: Struggle for peace]. 309p $3.50 Putnam [8s 6d Hutchinson]

327.42 Great Britain—Foreign policy. Europe—Politics—Crisis, 1938. Peace

(W) 39-27581

Collection of the chief speeches on foreign affairs of England's present prime minister, from May 1937, when he became Premier, to April 3, 1939, when he announced his intention to start rebuilding collective security. The speeches have brief explanatory notes by Arthur Bryant.

Booklist 35:374 Jl 15 '39

"Smug and dull as these pronouncements are, they form invaluable material not only for the momentous period with which they deal but for the objective study of the mind of the British middle class. You will search in vain for a trace of exceptional quality either in thought or expression here. There is not one telling phrase, not one original idea, not one sentence that distinguishes itself from the monotonous level of the rest." Vincent Sheean
— Books p3 Je 25 '39 1700w
Canadian Forum 19:263 N '39 200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '39

Reviewed by E. M. Lynskey
Commonweal 30:341 Jl 28 '39 600w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 50:1 Ag '39 1000w
Foreign Affairs 18:170 O '39 50w

Reviewed by Arthur Rosenberg
Nation 149:152 Ag 5 '39 700w

"I have no doubt after reading The Struggle for Peace of Mr. Chamberlain's complete sincerity. . . It is his disinterestedness in political principles which gives his pacifism its intensity and fervour. He hates the modern Leviathans with their panoplies of war, and longs to see them once more subservient to the needs of business. He has a moral detestation of war and war preparations because they upset the order and decency of capitalism and drive the statesmen to disregard the proprieties of the Budget, the peoples to thoughts of revolution. . . Of Mr. Bryant, who has added the links to the speeches, such nice things cannot be said. A bitter hatred of everything to do with progress inspires him to omit every fact which he cannot prevent. Lacking Mr. Chamberlain's moral fervour, he writes with the obsequious grace of a political toady. But perhaps he was well chosen for the task. Mr. Chamberlain's light shines more brightly in contrast to his oily smoke." R. H. Crossman

+ — New Statesman & Nation 17:864 Je 3 '39 1350w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p1 Jl 9 '39 1450w

"There can be very little doubt, as one reads these speeches, of the sincerity of Chamberlain's desire for peace, the motive which he claims has actuated his entire appeasement policy. Whether this desire is a pure Christian impulse or merely a hard-boiled recognition of the fact that a war, 'successful' or unsuccessful, would accelerate the decline of the British Empire, is something each reader must decide for himself. In any case, 'In Search of Peace' comprises an important series of documents for the serious student of international affairs." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 15:66 Jl 1 '39 170w
Pratt p25 autumn '39

"Those who have followed contemporary diplomacy with any care will find little new material here, for Mr. Chamberlain's addresses frequently reveal inadequate information, official bias, or studied ambiguity. The editor, Mr. Arthur Bryant, distorts the picture still further with introductory notes that praise but do not explain. The self-portrait offered in these addresses confirms both the best and worst that has been written about the Prime Minister." J. F. Green
Sat R of Lit 20:18 Jl 8 '39 310w

"It is a little hard to understand why this book should have been published at this moment. It appears over the name of the Prime Minister as baldly as Mein Kampf over the name of Herr Hitler. . . Nine-tenths of this oratory is given to the defence of a line of policy which one thought had been abandoned after the invasion of Czecho-Slovakia. This is a strange time at which to recapitulate all the soft assurances, the arguments in favour of conceding and condoning, which preceded and led up to that decisive event." Christopher Hobhouse
— Spec 162:916 My 26 '39 650w
Springf'd Republican p12 Je 30 '39 550w

"This volume is a valuable review of the foreign policy of the Government during this critical time. Each speech is prefaced by a brief note of the circumstances in which it was delivered. These notes are useful and necessary. But it is a pity that they should so often be marred by the flattest of clichés . . . and by easy scores at the expense of the Opposition speakers to whom the Prime Minister is about to reply. Greater editorial restraint would have kept these notes purely factual and objective."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p322 Je 3 '39 800w

CHAMBERLIN, FREDERICK CARLETON. Elizabeth and Leycester. 487p il $5 Dodd

B or 92 Leicester, Robert Dudley, earl of. Elizabeth, queen of England 39-25468

This book, according to the author's Foreword, is "the first attempt to replace Leycester in the position he occupied at Elizabeth's Court for the first thirty years of her reign, from 1558 to 1588, as the most prominent, most powerful and most famous man in all England." Index.

"Unhappily, Mr. Chamberlin is not content to end his work of rectification on page fifty and get on with his story. Right through to the bitter 'Final Word,' he interrupts his narrative by stopping to refute the statements of others. These digressions from the career of Leicester spoil a golden chance for the 'dramatic biography' the publishers claim this to be. . . However, a disorderly arrangement is not the only fault in Mr. Chamberlin's method. Although once a practicing lawyer, he fails to present a clear analysis of evidence. . . Yet the sheer bulk of Mr. Chamberlin's quotations supplies enough evidence to relieve Leicester of some of the charges made against him." W. H. Dunham, Jr.
— + Books p14 O 22 '39 950w

"At the outset let it be understood that Frederick Chamberlin is an out and out partisan of Robert Dudley, Earl of Leycester. Yet his book does not display the author as the sort of barrister who, having taken a case, bends all the evidence to serve his thesis. On the contrary, one's impression is that the author kept an open mind until the evidence became so overwhelming that the side he would be engaged on was determined for him. And the difference is important. We regard Mr. Chamberlin's book, documented as it is, and as the author means it to be, as a refutation of portrayals of Leycester as a buffoon, a fool and a gigolo." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p11 Ja 14 '40 850w

"A lengthy, dull, but apparently scholarly biography of Queen Elizabeth's chief counsellor."
New Yorker 15:80 S 23 '39 20w

"This is an interesting book, dramatic in purpose, setting, and personalities, and very readable. But Mr. Chamberlin has ventured upon dangerous ground. . . The world has long awaited the vindication of Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester. It is still waiting." W. M. Wallace
Sat R of Lit 21:11 D 30 '39 800w

CHAMBERLIN, GEORGIA LOUISE. Making the Bible live. 384p maps $3 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge]

221 Bible. Old Testament—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 39-14229

An "introduction" to the Old Testament for the general reader and for those, parents and teachers, who are trying to interest young people in the Bible. The various books are taken up individually or in groups but not in Biblical order. The emphasis is upon the portraits of human beings found in the Bible and their influence on the development of religious and social ideals. Index.

Boston Transcript p7 My 27 '39 50w

"The author possesses a deep reverence for the message and mission of the Bible and does succeed, in a fresh and interesting fashion, in making the Old Testament live. The author is seriously handicapped by lack of adequate space to deal with so extensive a subject, with the result that the book is only a brief introduction to the Old Testament. This feature, however, will commend it to the general reader."
+ — Christian Century 56:772 Je 14 '39 120w

"This book should help to bridge the gap between those who enthusiastically study the Scriptures without knowledge, and those who have given up studying or reading the Scriptures; for it makes use of modern knowledge of the Bible without losing enthusiasm or religious values." H. J. Simpson
+ — Churchman 153:14 My 15 '39 280w

Reviewed by Rittenhouse Neisser
Crozer Q 17:77 Ja '40 150w

"Miss Chamberlin . . . has had a long success in making the Bible live to children and to teachers of children. This is the fruition of her experience. Without the formal organization of an Introduction to the Old Testament she has achieved in a simple and very readable way what an Introduction undertakes to do. And without the obtrusion of critical method she has given the scholars' point of view. She has demonstrated that the critical study of the Bible is possible for young people and even for children and that the literature thereby gains rather than loses in moral and religious value." T. G. Soares

CHAMBERLIN, G. L.—Continued
+ J Religion 20:97 Ja '40 230w

CHAMBERLIN, WILLIAM HENRY. Japan over Asia. (Atlantic monthly press bk) rev and enl ed 463p il maps $3.50 Little

950 Japan—Foreign relations. China—Foreign relations—Japan. Eastern question (Far East) (W) 39-27582

"The original edition of Japan Over Asia [Book Review Digest, 1937, 1938] appeared shortly after the Japanese expansionist trend reached its climactic expression: the present war in China. . . In revising the book, anachronisms have been deleted and necessary links in bringing the narrative up to date have been inserted. One chapter has been dropped and three new ones have been added, dealing with the war, with the changes which war has brought about in Japan's internal political, economic, and social structure, and with Japan's chances of achieving its imperial dream. The revised edition was prepared after the conclusion of four years of residence in Tokyo as Chief Far Eastern Correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 35:382 Jl 15 '39
New Repub 99:260 Jl 5 '39 60w
Reviewed by E. O. Hauser
Survey G 29:35 Ja '40 70w

CHAMBERS, DANA, pseud. See Leffingwell, A.

CHAMBERS, SIR EDMUND KERCHEVER. Samuel Taylor Coleridge; a biographical study. 374p $7 (18s) Oxford

B or 92 Coleridge, Samuel Taylor [39-3037]

"In his preface Mr. Chambers claims no novelty of treatment, no discovery of hitherto unknown sources. The eight unpublished or little-known letters by Coleridge which appear in the appendix shed no new ray on the poet as we know him; nor do they reveal him in his best epistolary vein, except for a delightful passage about his son Hartley in a long epistle to Sara Hutchinson. The work of Professor Chambers has been mainly one of assembling and coordinating." N Y Times

"Little will be found in this chronicle that is new to the student who is acquainted with the immense amount of material that has been given to the world since J. Dykes Campbell published his biography of Coleridge fifty-five years ago. But this material has been hitherto scattered through some twoscore books and articles. It is here brought together for the first time and set out in impeccable order. The book, an expertly digested record of the external facts, will serve as an outline but it is not a real biography." S. C. Chew
+ Books p22 Mr 12 '39 800w
Reviewed by by B. I. Evans
Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 10 '39 400w

"The facts of Coleridge's life are set forth fully and competently. This is a useful thing to have done. It is necessary, however, to point out that this is all Chambers has done. His book is not so much a biography as a sketch for a biography. . . We miss in the book the organizing power of a thesis, a trend, a whole opinion, a consistent and real attitude. No sense of the subject's greatness or importance is conveyed." John Berryman
— + Nation 148:705 Je 17 '39 800w
Reviewed by Kenneth Burke
New Repub 100:163 S 13 '39 800w
Reviewed by Humphrey House
New Statesman & Nation 17:21 Ja 7 '39 480w

"On the whole, Mr. Chambers's biographical study of Coleridge will be valuable to scholars as a compendium of the dates and facts of the poet-metaphysician's life. Like a block of marble, carefully pointed for the guidance of the carver, the book, however, remains the raw material for the finished three-dimensional creation." Frances Winwar
+ — N Y Times p22 F 26 '39 1000w

"Sir Edmund Chambers has proved to be a most self-sacrificing biographer, content to deal with facts objectively, and in this limited capacity has succeeded admirably, for he has made a book that will be forever indispensable as a fund of information. He makes few attempts, except, one might say, in moments of forgetfulness, to deal with the sources, occasions, and qualities of Coleridge's poems or with the values of his political and philosophical views, or with his theological evolution. The book is not charming or exciting, as Coleridge himself was, and as an account of his life might be made without any departure from documentary evidence." G. M. Harper
Sat R of Lit 19:11 Mr 11 '39 750w

"As a statement of the salient facts, Mr. Chambers' book is painstaking, exact, and therefore of some use; but as a portrait of a most singular man, it is quite inadequate. The judgement is level and sensible, but the total impression is bleached; it lacks subtlety and sensitiveness, qualities indispensable to a writer on Coleridge." Edward Sackville-West
— + Spec 162:99 Ja 20 '39 90w
Times [London] Lit Sup p12 Ja 7 '39 700w
Reviewed by R. C. Bald
Yale R n s 28:855 summer '39 550w

CHAMBERS, FRANK PENTLAND. The war behind the war, 1914-1918. 620p maps $3.75 Harcourt [16s Faber]

940.3 European war, 1914-1918 (W) 39-22572

A history of the World war, particularly in its political and economic aspects. The arrangement is generally chronological, in each period the various states principally involved being treated separately. Bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by Jacob Van Der Zee
Am Pol Sci R 33:1102 D '39 500w
Booklist 36:41 O 1 '39

"Not only the extensive bibliography but the text itself reveals the wide reading of the author, who is distinguished further by his complete impartiality and constant striving for justice to all parties concerned. . . As a factual handbook, then, Mr. Chambers' book seems to me almost beyond reproach. . . In the larger field of analysis and interpretation the book is somewhat deficient. For one reason or another, the author seems to have avoided most scrupulously all temptation to strike out on a new tack." W. L. Langer
+ — Books p13 Jl 23 '39 1500w
Reviewed by L. R. Lind
Boston Transcript p13 O 5 '39 900w

"Although written from a British viewpoint the book is remarkably objective. It is especially enlightening on what went on inside Russia."
+ Christian Century 56:1076 S 6 '39 190w
Christian Science Monitor p18 N 4 '39 150w

"Though the attempt is an ambitious one, Mr. Chambers manages by the exercise of scholarly prudence to provide an outline considerably better than any other book I know in the same field. His book combines lucid method with a rich deposit of factual material. It is, therefore, a valuable addition to the student's library on contemporary history." G. N. Shuster
+ Commonweal 30:402 Ag 18 '39 350w
Foreign Affairs 18:372 Ja '40 20w

"This is a novel and rather breath-taking project. Mr. Chambers' pace is swift—he breaks his trail with an express engine. But in less than six hundred pages he has come admirably close to his goal." M. L. Elting

+ Forum 102:v S '39 170w

"Despite shortcomings, this book brings together a large body of valuable facts and is a useful contribution to the study of communities in war-time." A. J. P. Taylor
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 4 '39 300w

"'The War Behind the War' is an indispensable study of the past, and equally valuable as a warning against a possible future." R. M. Lovett
+ New Repub 100:165 S 13 '39 1050w

"[An] interesting, important and masterly analysis." Roger Fulford
+ New Statesman & Nation 18:26 Jl 1 '39 800w

"Mr. Chambers's book merits praise both as a performance and as a contribution. He absorbed a prodigious bibliography. . . Through this jungle of dogma and of both juggled and indigestible fact, Mr. Chambers has made his way carefully and objectively to a balanced, fair-minded general survey of each of the great countries at war." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 20 '39 1150w
Pratt p20 winter '40

Reviewed by B. E. Schmitt
Sat R of Lit 20:17 Ag 5 '39 750w

"A Canadian writer's book . . . adds little that is new but helps the general reader to interpret events and fill in the picture of what happened. The author, Frank P. Chambers, while establishing no important historical judgments achieves a readable, though not always organic, presentation of a confusing mass of data."
+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 28 '39 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p415 Jl 15 '39 700w
Wis Lib Bul 35:164 O '39

CHAMBERS, WHITMAN. You can't get away by running. 272p $2 Doubleday 39-8353

Mystery story.

"Simple but speedy." Will Cuppy
Books p13 Ja 15 '39 160w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '39 80w

"The story is told with considerable skill, and the setting is well suited to the theme." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 8 '39 220w
Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ja 7 '39 40w

"An exciting story in Mr. Whitman Chambers's best vein."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p253 Ap 29 '39 90w

CHAMBERS'S cyclopaedia of English literature: ed. by David Patrick; rev. and expanded by J. Liddell Geddie and J. C. Smith. 3v il $22.50; 25 per cent discount in the U.S.A. to schools and public libraries 1938 Lippincott [60s Chambers]

820.3 English literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc.

"This chronological encyclopedia, first published in 1844 in two volumes, contains discussions of English literary forms and periods, and biographical and critical articles on individual writers, with specimens of their works, bibliographical notes and occasionally portraits. A thorough revision appeared in 1901-03, with considerable rearrangement of the material and its expansion into three volumes. Further changes to bring the set up to date were made in a 1922 edition. . . The changes made to bring this edition up to date are apparently of the same type as those in the 1922 edition. The chief revisions appear in volume III which, in comparison with the 1901 edition, contains 24 additional pages of text in which 253 new writers are included. . . Many names have been added to the biographical sections for both English and American writers and to the 'Complementary lists of XIXth and XXth century writers,' which include briefer information about the less important authors. . . A completely revised index to the entire set appears in each volume." Subscription Bks Bul

Reviewed by B. I. Evans
Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 16 '38 440w (Review of v 3)

"The revision of the material covering the late 19th and the 20th centuries seems, in proportion to the broad scope of the work, sufficient to bring the set up to date, although more comprehensive discussion of the contemporary literature of the British overseas dominions and of the United States would have been desirable. Chambers's Cyclopaedia of English Literature, 1938, is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 10:18 Ap '39 420w
Times [London] Lit Sup p630 O 1 '38 50w (Review of v 3)

CHAMBRUN, CLARA (LONGWORTH) comtesse de. Cincinnati; story of the queen city. 342p il $3.75 Scribner

977.178 Cincinnati, Ohio 39-27897

A history of Cincinnati from its pioneer days to the present. The author, noted for her work in Shakespearean research, is a member of the Longworth family, long residents of Cincinnati and active in local and national affairs. Index.

Boston Transcript p1 O 28 '39 200w

"Madame de Chambrun is the descendant of a family that has been prominent in Cincinnati history since its pioneer days. Her wide acquaintance with the old families has afforded her access to hitherto-unused letters and documents. She writes intimately and charmingly of many facets of Cincinnati life. . . But her book in no sense lives up to the new standard for city biography which has been established by such books as Gerald Capers, Junior's, recent study of Memphis. It lacks concern for the relation of local to national history." Horace Reynolds
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 N 4 '39 600w

"An absorbing and timely history of Cincinnati that deserves to be widely read far beyond the city's boundaries." Richard White
+ N Y Times p2 Ja 28 '40 900w

"As history, this is uncritical, but as a sprightly record, particularly of Cincinnati's social and artistic life, a treasure trove. Well illustrated."
+ New Yorker 15:95 O 21 '39 50w

"In its reminiscences, its quotations from books and letters, its understanding of social and cultural background, this book is spirited and informing. Particular value is attached to the illustrations—or at least to the older ones. The author, however, is not always careful in details or even in phrasing. Nor are her historical interpretations infallible."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 15 '39 1200w

CHAMPION, WILLIAM MATTHEW, ed. Medical information for social workers; ed. with the assistance of the contributors from the faculty of Western Reserve univ. school of medicine, Cleveland, Ohio. 529p il $4 Wood [18s Bailliere]

616 Medicine. Social work 38-32830

"This book is based on a course of lectures given by the author and collaborators, who are specialists in the several medical fields covered, at Western Reserve University. The book . . . covers in a comprehensive way a wide range of the field of medical practice, taking up briefly most of the ordinary medical, surgical, obstetric, and pediatric conditions, and giving fuller discussion to diseases with greater social implications, such as tuberculosis and the venereal diseases." Social Forces

CHAMPION, W. M., ed.—Continued

"Throughout the book the reader is impressed with the simplicity of the language, the orderly presentation of the material, and the emphasis on the usefulness of the medical information to the social worker. It is only regrettable that some statements which are given as facts are not qualified." B. S. Coleman

+ — Am J Pub Health 29:400 Ap '39 440w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '39

"A little more specific discussion of medical organization in the United States, and of that part of medical ethics relating to the physician's relationship with his patient would be desirable, but even so, these chapters form a valuable introduction to a consideration of medical information, emphasizing as they do, before the student becomes engrossed in a mass of detailed information, the broader social, organizational, and historical aspects of the problem. The book should prove extremely useful as a text for courses in medical information, and as a source of reference for the practicing social worker." W. P. Richardson, M.D.

+ Social Forces 17:587 My '39 310w

CHANCELLOR, JOHN MILLER; TOMPKINS, MIRIAM DOWNING, and MEDWAY, HAZEL I. Helping the reader toward self-education. (Adult educ. bd. Publications in adult educ) 111p $1.25 A.L.A.

028.8 Libraries and readers. Education of adults (W) 38-27850

"The object of the book is to aid and encourage libraries, especially medium-sized and small ones, in developing some form of advisory service for readers." (Booklist) Contents: Introduction: reader guidance in libraries, by R. A. Ulveling; Day to day practice, by John Chancellor; Understanding the job—background material, by M. D. Tompkins; Understanding the reader, by H. I. Medway; How to judge readability, by John Chancellor. Index.

Booklist 35:75 N 1 '38

Pratt p3 winter '40

"A good brief survey of material available for reader help, including concise practical suggestions for techniques and excellent surveys of literature on this and related topics. Includes a good list on descriptive literature for specific vocations and types."

+ Special Libraries 30:137 Ap '39

CHANDLER, RAYMOND. The big sleep. 277p $2 Knopf

39-3293

Detective story.

"This unusual first novel can boast of an admirable hard-boiled manner, it contains several characters who will scare you with their extraordinary brands of wickedness, and the nightmare atmosphere is the real thing in spots. In our opinion, though, Mr. Chandler has almost spoiled it with a top-heavy cargo of lurid underworld incident." Will Cuppy

+ — Books p12 F 5 '39 180w

"A terrifically rapid thriller [which] has a cast of unbelievable yet real characters and plenty of logical deduction. The most important thing, however, is the unusual and super-powerful conclusion. It left us wonderingly breathless." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '39 110w

"It goes without saying that this first novel is something a good deal more than a who-done-it. If you have any feeling for subtle workmanship, don't give it the go-by."

+ New Repub 98:56 F 15 '39 70w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 17:910 Je 10 '39 50w

"Most of the characters in this story are tough, many of them are nasty and some of them are both. . . The language used is often vile—at times so filthy that the publishers have been compelled to resort to the dash, a device seldom employed in these unsqueamish days. As a study in depravity, the story is excellent, with Marlowe standing out as almost the only fundamentally decent person in it." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p20 F 12 '39 190w

"Pretty terrifying story of degeneracy in southern California by an author who almost makes Dashiell Hammett seem as innocuous as Winnie-the-Pooh. Recommended for readers whose imaginations know no bounds."

New Yorker 14:84 F 11 '39 30w

"Hammettic."

Sat R of Lit 19:20 F 11 '39 40w

Reviewed by Nicholas Blake

Spec 162:558 Mr 31 '39 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 150w

Time 33:63 Mr 6 '39 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p152 Mr 11 '39 80w

CHANDRASEKHAR, SUBRAHMANYAN. An introduction to the study of stellar structure. 509p $10 Univ. of Chicago press [50s Cambridge]

523 Astrophysics 39-8320

" 'The author, who is well known for his recent and elegant developments in theoretical astrophysics, was formerly Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and is now assistant professor at the Yerkes Observatory. The book is limited in scope to deal only with the structure of stars which are in equilibrium and in a steady state. Such model stars are, however, treated in considerable detail; and most of the necessary theorems and ideas are gathered together here, and presented in a unified manner.' " (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The material is throughout presented with enviable crispness and clarity of expression. The work will undoubtedly become an indispensable handbook for future researchers in this field. Nevertheless, one is compelled to think that they would find its size, and incidentally its price, more acceptable had the non-astrophysical portions been drastically reduced." W. H. McCrea

+ — Nature 144:130 Jl 22 '39 1000w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:19 Ap '39

CHANNING, MARK. The sacred falls; a novel of India [Eng title: Indian village]. 308p $2.50 Lippincott [7s 6d Hutchinson]

39-16109

This story of an Indian village in a period of transition between old ways and new, is strung on a thread of love story between a Hindu girl and a Moslem boy.

"It is not an easy task to make foreign manners and thought come to life, but Mark Channing has sketched his Indian village in clear, unhurried strokes. . . The armchair traveler will delight in getting under the surface of an Indian village. But any curious mind will have something to think about." M. C. Hubbard

+ Books p8 Jl 30 '39 600w

Reviewed by J. C. Beale

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 19 '39 550w

"The plot of 'The Sacred Falls' is nothing to raise one's blood pressure. . . What value and charm this novel has reside wholly in the authenticity of its atmosphere and in the sense which Mr. Channing gives one of how the Indian peasant really thinks, lives and feels . . . Knowing nothing of India, I should say that Mr. Channing is an unusually perceptive interpreter of its ways. Unfortunately, he is inclined to be a bit didactic and to go in for long passages of exposition which impede the flow of the story. This combined with the fact that he is certainly no stylist, gives a somewhat pedestrian tinge to an otherwise likable little novel." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p7 Jl 23 '39 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p237 Ap 22 '39 40w
Wis Lib Bul 35:186 N '39

CHANTAL, SISTER F. DE. See Frances de Chantal

CHAPEL, CHARLES EDWARD. Gun collecting. 232p il $2.50 Coward-McCann 623.44 Firearms. Collectors and collecting
39-27780

Advice on the collecting of guns, discussing what makes a gun valuable, how to identify guns, and how to classify and care for a collection. Contains directories of gun exhibitions, dealers, clubs, and a glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:62 O 15 '39

"It is useful, and will be of great help to beginners. It doesn't indicate that its author has done much original research and it seems to offer little that cannot be found in the works of other writers. But for someone who has fallen host to the gun-collecting bug and who has a lot to learn, 'Gun Collecting' will be of genuine aid."
+ — Boston Transcript p7 D 9 '39 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:55 O '39

CHAPMAN, EMMANUEL. Saint Augustine's philosophy of beauty. 114p $3.50 Sheed 701 Augustine, Saint, bp. of Hippo. Esthetics
39-13496

Study of the philosophy of beauty of St Augustine as evinced in his writings. In his effort to answer the question "what, then, is the beautiful, and what is beauty?" propounded in the Confessions, the author has put into order the responses found in his entire works.

"Excellent Afterword on Modern Painting and Augustine's theory of Art, the many selective modern books on esthetics referred to constantly, the convenient method of double notation, to Migne's Patrologia Latina and to a particular book of Augustine, the presentation of the Saint's thoughts in a rounded, systematic outline, make this work a scholarly and definitive study on Augustine's philosophy of Beauty." F. X. McCarthy
+ America 61:525 S 9 '39 340w

Reviewed by V. J. Bourke
+ Commonweal 30:166 Je 2 '39 160w
J Philos 36:666 N 23 '39 600w

CHAPMAN, FREDERICK SPENCER. Lhasa: the holy city; with an introduction by Sir Charles Bell. 342p il maps $5 Harper [21s Chatto]
915.15 Lhasa, Tibet. Tibet—Description and travel. Lamaism
[39-2454]

The author accompanied the 1937 British diplomatic expedition to Lhasa, and remained in the holy city for seven months. The first part of his book gives an almost day by day record of the journey into Tibet. The greater part of it, however, is devoted to an account of Lhasa, its history, the social, political and religious life of the inhabitants, its architecture and the countryside around it. Index.

Reviewed by H. M. Shaw
Books p12 Ja 7 '40 400w

"The politics are interesting, but better still is the picture of daily life in Lhasa. No other book on the subject in recent times is so packed with lively and sound material; it is magnificently illustrated and handsomely produced." V. S. Pritchett
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 21 '38 80w

"The book is full of good stuff. . . The pictures are splendid, especially the views of the Potala, which is one of the supremely beautiful buildings of the world: some of them, in colour, give well the effect of the clear Eastern sunlight and background of sky." W. H. D. Rouse
+ Manchester Guardian p5 D 23 '38 550w
New Statesman & Nation 16:1140 D 31 '38 230w

"Mr. Chapman has written a book which is both illuminating and entertaining, and has illustrated it with remarkable photographs. . . 'Lhasa: The Holy City' is certainly one of the most satisfying books which have come from Tibet for the general reader."
+ N Y Times p28 N 19 '39 550w
New Yorker 15:87 N 4 '39 40w

"The book is tantalising; it tells us very much and very nearly all we want to know about Lhasa. The photographs are ample and beautiful, evidently the work of a talented photographer; there cannot be too many pictures of the Potala, and there is one of the royal ponies in their stables which looks like a Chinese print. The author's style is fluent and firm, and there is much important information about Tibet and Tibetan society. But pervading the whole book is a feeling of lack of contact, lack of that sympathy with the Tibetans which tones all Sir Charles Bell's writing, of the sympathy of which one was continually aware when in the company of the late Mr. Williamson." Michael Spender
+ — Spec 162:62 Ja 13 '39 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p781 D 10 '38 750w

CHAPMAN, MARISTAN, pseud. of MARY and STANTON CHAPMAN. Clue of the faded dress; il. by James Daugherty. 237p $2 (6s) Appleton-Century 38-22820

Mystery story for young readers.

"Maristan Chapman certainly swings an admirable tale of a false accusation, puzzlement and all-around excitement among the little girls of Glen Hazard." Will Cuppy
+ Books p14 D 18 '38 220w
Times [London] Lit Sup sup xxxii N 5 '38 220w
Wis Lib Bul 35:36 F '39

CHAPMAN, MARISTAN, pseud. of MARY and STANTON CHAPMAN. Flood in Glen Hazard; il. by James McKell. 263p $2 (6s) Appleton-Century 39-4497

The Glen Hazard boys and girls, who have figured in other books of these authors, play their parts in the big flood. With the help of a short wave radio they save the relief train, and aid the Red Cross, both during the disaster and in the reconstruction work which follows.

"I read each one [of the Glen Hazard books] as a separate story, whereas the audience for which it is written no doubt carries on from one to another the personal affection it forms for characters that reappear, but I can interest myself in this one as much as I did in some of those at the outset." M. L. Becker
+ Books p7 My 28 '39 450w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 70w

"It is exciting reading, but it somehow escapes being merely sensational. It may even awaken some interest in the problem of flood control; for the description of the flood water sounds all too familiar. It has a feeling of validity to which older boys and girls will respond." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 64:517 Je 15 '39 130w
Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 15 '39 30w

CHAPMAN, MARISTAN, pseud. of MARY and STANTON CHAPMAN. Mystery of the missing car; il. by Alice Caddy. 236p $2 (6s) Appleton-Century

39-20773

Mystery story for young readers.

"The English in which the tale is told is sound and good enough to lift it clean out of the class of cheap adventure yarn." M. L. Becker

+ Books p7 D 31 '39 120w

"[The book] is pretty exciting, although any astute youngster over ten will not find a great deal of mystery in it. . . Educational as well as fascinating." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p3 S 23 '39 70w

"Older children who like the Glen Hazard stories will find this quite as enjoyable as the preceding ones, possibly a little easier to follow, but with so many of this series now on hand perhaps the librarian will wish to make a selective list of only the best of these Tennessee mountain tales." Florence O'Gara

+ Library J 64:761 O 1 '39 170w

" 'The Mystery of the Missing Car' is written in a spirited and dashing style. . . The Glen Hazard girls surpass themselves in this last series of their, by now, popular adventures."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup sup xxii N 18 '39 40w

CHAPPELL, MATTHEW NAPOLEON. Back to self-reliance. (Whittlesey house publication) 239p $2 McGraw

137.32 Self-reliance 39-31180

Advice addressed to Americans in general and American parents in particular, on the need of emotional maturity and ways of attaining it.

Booklist 36:193 Ja 15 '40

Boston Transcript p3 Ja 20 '40 90w

"The author, a psychologist, illustrates by many brief case studies. He is rather too sure that everyone else is wrong to permit complete assurance that he is right. However, allowing for the fact that he omits one side of the picture—the interdependence of men in the modern world where self-reliance does not solve the whole problem—his emphasis is wholesome and his argument stimulating. But mutual aid is just as important as self-reliance."

+ — Christian Century 56:1379 N 8 '39 100w

"In my opinion, ideals admirable in themselves are juxtaposed here with considerable psychological immaturity. The book is professedly non-scientific, but the author is apparently unacquainted with the classics of non-investigative psychology." Harry McNeill

— + Commonweal 31:230 D 29 '39 180w

CHARLES, J. B. Flowers and still-life; an anthology in paint. 112p il $2.50 (7s 6d) Studio

758 Flower painting. Still life painting

39-574

Sixteen flower plates in color, each with short descriptive note, and thirty pages of reproductions in half-tone of flower or still life groups. Most of the plates are of modern workmanship, but there are one or two from earlier painters.

Manchester Guardian p7 O 11 '38 150w

School Arts 38:6a My '39 80w

CHARLOT, JEAN. Art from the Mayans to Disney. 285p il $2 Sheed

704 Art. Art, American 39-24916

"A postscript to this book states that the text is 'made up of collected articles published from 1923 to the present. Those dealing with Mexico have been translated by the author from the original Spanish. . .' The articles range from an excellent discussion of Mayan art and its relation to the American scene, through to an interesting account of the work of Rivera, Orosco and Siqueiros and the difficulties encountered by these artists; and end with a chapter devoted to a 'Disney Disquisition.' " Commonweal

Reviewed by R. D. Feild

Boston Transcript p1 O 14 '39 230w

"Painters are seldom eminent as writers, which handicaps them as efficient critics, but Charlot, scholarly, broad, refined, and ironic, handles the English to which he was not born with impassioned crispness. Were he less choppy and less often involved, he would write really well. For, strange to say, he has a vocabulary and a richness of style far above those of the average art critic." J. W. L.

+ Cath World 150:248 N '39 480w

" 'Art from the Mayans to Disney' is a good book; it is full of ideas that are certainly not trite and that should prove beneficial to the reader. An artist can also find in it food for thought and perhaps a much needed stimulus to help in the development of an art that will be indigenous to this continent." Maurice Lavanoux

+ Commonweal 30:569 O 13 '39 450w

"One feels that all of the judgments expressed, besides being strictly the artist's own, are product of long and perceptive contemplation. And what he has to say is lovingly marshaled within the rhythm of a fine-grained, gently eloquent, consistently personal prose style." E. A. Jewell

+ N Y Times p22 D 10 '39 230w

Reviewed by Oliver Larkin

Sat R of Lit 21:18 Ja 20 '40 150w

CHAROL, MICHAEL (MICHAEL PRAVDIN, pseud). The mad queen of Spain; tr. by Eden and Cedar Paul. 276p il $3.50 Houghton [10s 6d Allen, G]

B or 92 Joanna, consort of Philip I, king of Castile [39-13716]

Biography of the daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella, who became known as Joan the Mad. She was married to Philip of Burgundy, was mother of two successive Habsburg emperors, and of four queens. Frustrated in almost everything she undertook, she was declared mad and was doomed to spend almost two-thirds of her life in prison. It is the author's contention that she was not nearly so mad as she has been painted. Chronological table, bibliography, index.

"M. Prawdin's book is a fascinating study of a manic-depressive, born in circumstances that developed her malady to the greatest advantage." Peter Quennell

New Statesman & Nation 17:24 Ja 7 '39 220w

"It is a thoroughly interesting story, and it is well told." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p9 Mr 26 '39 1300w

"This is the first full length biography of Joanna to appear in English, and therefore a book of some importance. It is, moreover, a serious and not unscholarly narrative, clearly and briskly written and competently translated, continuously interesting and sometimes exciting, without recourse to the devices of romantic fiction, usually respectful of the facts, and adding to them from the unpublished correspondence of Charles V. If this were a poorer book one would not regret so deeply that it has been distorted by a strained attempt to prove that Joanna was not really mad at all." Garrett Mattingly

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:13 Mr 18 '39 600w

Reviewed by John Marks

Spec 162:97 Ja 20 '39 370w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 7 '39 650w

"The author develops his thesis with skill, and his common-sense handling of some of the most exaggerated legends places them in a more reasonable light. His story is well articulated, his facts convincingly marshalled and the tangled web of Spanish and European affairs which serves as its background is both lucidly and picturesquely portrayed. The book holds one's interest from start to finish, and the translation, by Eden and Cedar Paul, is on the whole excellent."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p29 Ja 14 '39 500w

CHARTERIS, LESLIE. The happy highwayman. 273p $2 Doubleday

39-20168

Nine short stories relating some further adventures of the author's well-known hero, The Saint. Contents: The man who was lucky; The smart detective; The well-meaning mayor; The wicked cousin; The benevolent burglary; The star producers; The charitable countess; The mugs' game; The man who liked ants.

"Most impressive of the stories is 'The Man Who Liked Ants,' a scary piece about Dr. Sardou, a biological genius--and mad as a hatter, apparently; it shows Mr. Charteris laboring in a field where the interest doesn't depend upon the Saint's special mixture of charm and ruthlessness." Will Cuppy

+ Books p11 My 28 '39 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p3 My 27 '39 80w

"As a rule these stories have been highly entertaining though not precisely uplifting. The present collection of short stories is not so good. Not one of the nine stories is better than mediocre, and several of them are scarcely worthy even of that rating. Mr. Charteris might better have rested on his laurels until he had something worth while to offer." Isaac Anderson

— N Y Times p17 My 21 '39 90w

Sat R of Lit 20:20 My 20 '39 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p579 O 7 '39 40w

CHASE, MARY ELLEN. A goodly fellowship. 305p $2.50 Macmillan

B or 92 (W) 39-27971

Altho she is best known as a novelist the author has spent most of the years of her adult life as a teacher. These chapters of autobiography chronicle her experiences as a teacher in a rural school in Maine, in a midwestern boarding school, in schools farther west, and in the University of Minnesota and Smith college, with some account of her years as a student in Germany, and her university extension work and lecturing.

Booklist 36:132 D 1 '39

"This book is addressed to the thousands of teachers who come to their task 'as to a sport.' What Miss Chase calls 'the presumption always latent . . . in autobiographical narratives by those relatively unimportant' is not entirely exorcised from her pages, but it is greatly mitigated by her power to communicate a eupeptic enthusiasm for her profession. May she lead many of the same breed to see in teaching a vision of the good life!" G. F. Whicher

+ Books p3 N 26 '39 900w

"If you wish to forget for awhile war, neutrality and presidential elections, just hurry to the nearest bookshop for a copy of 'A Goodly Fellowship,' and if it doesn't first make you chuckle and then send you searching for a friend with whom to share it, you probably have something with an impressive-sounding name the matter with you and nothing can be done to raise your mental blood pressure." Constance Churchyard

+ Boston Transcript p4 N 11 '39 350w

Cath World 150:630 F '40 400w

Christian Century 56:1410 N 15 '39 100w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 16 '39 650w

"Any one who thinks teaching, especially the teaching of English, a drab and profitless occupation, should read this book, which is above all a tribute to the teaching profession. Mary Ellen Chase has the genius for clothing the dry bones of pedagogic precept with imaginative personality." E. C. Thompson

+ Churchman 154:21 Ja 15 '40 250w

Reviewed by H. C. White

Commonweal 31:207 D 22 '39 380w

New Repub 101:178 N 29 '39 40w

"Writing with the modesty of one who is always learning, yet with convictions by no means lukewarm, recalling her response to American life in greatly differing aspects from Maine to Montana, emphasizing always the teacher rather than the novelist in her own work, Mary Ellen Chase has produced a book of delightful remembrance and commentary. Although this volume is in a sense a sequel to 'A Goodly Heritage,' it can be fully enjoyed by itself." K. W.

+ N Y Times p6 N 19 '39 750w

Pratt p21 winter '40

"Believing, as I do, that there is no profession more adventurous, more exciting, more thrilling than that of teaching, it is a pleasure to read this autobiographical testimony. . . I have never read a book more refreshingly honest." W. L. Phelps

+ Sat R of Lit 21:6 N 11 '39 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 12 '39 950w

Wis Lib Bul 35:214 D '39

CHASE, STUART, and TYLER, MARIAN. The new western front. 196p maps $1.50; pa 75c Harcourt

330.973 U.S.—Defenses. U.S.—Economic conditions. World politics (W) 39-27113

Brief, popular exposition of the author's reasons for believing that the United States should keep out of European and Far Eastern conflicts. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:226 Mr 15 '39

" 'The New Western Front' is a plea for sanity in the midst of confusion. And, as far as it goes, it is itself an example of sanity. Every successive book of Mr Chase's is written with as much spontaneity as if it were the first work that rolled out of his typewriter." E. S. Bates

+ Books p4 Mr 26 '39 1200w

"As usual, economists and historians will find much to disapprove in Mr. Chase's simplification. But he is right enough to be read widely. His lucid book should serve as an effective antidote to the dangerous crusading spirit which Lewis Mumford has recently articulated in 'Men Must Act.' " G. K. Smart

+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 18 '39 450w

"I doubt whether another American writer today has the ability which Stuart Chase has to put his ideas in crystal-clear form. He has done it again in this instance with the highly involved and specialized subject of foreign relations. You may or may not agree with him, but at least there is no literate person in the country who will have the least difficulty in reading his book or in understanding what he is trying to say." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 56:642 My 17 '39 650w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 1 '39 500w

"The book does give factful reassurance, but the ultimate security of civilization involves much more than comes into The New Western Front." A. L. Murray

Churchman 153:17 Je 15 '39 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '39

Commonweal 29:592 Mr 24 '39 650w

Foreign Affairs 17:810 Jl '39 60w

Reviewed by Leo Gershoy

Living Age 356:296 My '39 400w

CHASE, S., and TYLER, M.—Continued

"This is an effervescent book, bubbling with vitality and overflowing with optimism in the ability of the United States to stay out of war. It will be useful as an answer to Mr. Lewis Mumford, even though it otherwise makes no contribution of vital importance to the contemporary debate on American foreign policy." E. M. Earle

+ — New Repub 98:201 Mr 22 '39 600w

"Mr. Chase talks a lot of nonsense of his own when he discusses the principles and present position of foreign trade, for example; but Mr. Chase is the kind of writer who, at his best, must be judged by his total effect rather than by the accuracy or logic of his individual statements. He displays here, at that best, his remarkable powers of exposition. No one has ever dramatized the political contrast between the United States and Europe more vividly than Mr. Chase does in his six-page opening chapter." Henry Hazlitt

+ — N Y Times p2 Mr 12 '39 480w
New Yorker 15:80 Mr 4 '39 30w
No Am 247:396 summer '39 130w

"The only front which Americans ought to defend is the shore line of the Western Hemisphere. So Mr. Chase argues in a rambling book full of brilliant phrases, with a few gaping lacunae in its usually sound reasoning. Most of the argument, as he is the first to admit, you have heard before if you follow the current debate on international relations; but you have seldom heard it said so well. And the opening chapter is his own—a chapter so striking and effective that the rest of the book is something of an anticlimax." Elmer Davis

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:6 Mr 4 '39 650w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 950w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring
Survey G 28:341 My '39 300w
Wis Lib Bul 35:60 Ap '39

CHELEY, FRANK HOBART. Little campfires; intimate chats by the firelight at the day's end. 248p il $1.50 Wilde

170 Conduct of life 38-36242

Brief inspirational talks for boys and girls. Each talk illustrates the point with stories, thus making the book interesting as well as of practical value.

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 7 '39 70w
Wis Lib Bul 35:217 D '39

CHENAULT, LAWRENCE ROYCE. The Puerto Rican migrant in New York city. 190p maps $2.25 Columbia univ. press [11s 6d Oxford]

325.27295 Puerto Ricans in New York (city) 39-1415

"The main purpose of this study of the Puerto Rican migrant in New York is to show some of the social effects resulting from the migration. Its purpose is also to show that a large increase in the population of Puerto Rico will result in a further movement of people from the island to New York, and to suggest some of the problems which such a movement might entail. This study deals with Puerto Rico itself only insofar as the island is a necessary background both for the causes which bring about the migration and for an understanding of the qualities and previous environment of the people who come." (Introd) Index.

Reviewed by R. F. Foerster
Am Econ R 29:195 Mr '39 90w

Reviewed by W. C. Lehmann
Am Soc R 4:868 D '39 150w

"A timely and significant contribution." F. J. Brown

+ Ann Am Acad 201:276 Ja '39 600w
Social Forces 17:594 My '39 190w
Special Libraries 30:98 Mr '39

"The authoritative and impartial treatment of the subject, as well as the orderly presentation of facts in clear, simple language, make the book extremely readable although the validity and accuracy of some of the statements could perhaps be questioned, notably those touching on certain important social and political movements in the island. . . The excellent, annotated bibliography should be carefully examined." R. E. Zubillaga

+ Survey 75:61 F '39 150w

CHENEY, BRAINARD. Lightwood. 369p $2.50 Houghton

39-30186

A story of post-Civil War days in Georgia and of the struggle of the farmers against a Yankee-owned corporation which was attempting to take the land away from them.

" 'Lightwood' is an intensely aggravating novel. The setting and the situation are sufficiently novel to attract the interest of the reader; the story holds the opportunity of being either a thriller or an epic of the inevitable defeat of poor and simple, but it is neither. In spite of pages of clarity and power, and all the details of struggle, conflict is never tightly joined nor conclusively resolved." Lorine Pruette

— + Books p10 O 29 '39 550w

"This is an uneven novel of class struggle in the piney woods of southeast Georgia during the latter part of the 19th century. . . There are, however, some fine passages of description, and the hopelessness of these people is well developed and sustained. The author knows his country and its people, even if he hasn't presented them as well as he might have." D. C. T.

+ — Boston Transcript p2 N 25 '39 220w
Nation 149:532 N 11 '39 40w
New Repub 101:178 N 29 '39 30w

"The crisp, pungent understatement, which characterizes the book adds immensely to its telling power. Where Mr. Cheney has erred, I think, is in over-complicating his story. The tale of Calhoun and his psychopathic woes hardly belongs in the same novel as the struggles of Micajan—nor does the elaborate legal contest which one finds it so hard to follow. 'Lightwood' is a superior novel of the South, exceedingly well written, but it seems to fumble a little and lack coherence. It just misses being a first-rate job." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p7 N 5 '39 750w
New Yorker 15:81 O 28 '39 50w

"The book is marked by certain unfortunate faults, some of construction and some of writing. . . The writing is not always successful, furthermore; the rendering of the farmers' Georgia speech in particular is stilted and unnatural. But all this aside, you can read the book with interest and at times even with excitement. 'Lightwood' seems to be Mr. Cheney's first novel—and it is no inconsiderable achievement." W. J. Gold

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:6 O 28 '39 350w
Time 34:70 O 30 '39 250w

CHENEY, MARTHA (SMATHERS) CANDLER (MRS SHELDON WARREN CHENEY). Modern art in America. (Whittlesey house publication) 190p il $4 McGraw

759.1 Painting, American. Art, American. Artists, American (W) 39-32479

Following a résumé of the situations of art in America before the rise of modernism, the author traces the development of art from 1900 to date. Ninety-six pages of illustrations accompany the text.

Booklist 36:171 Ja 1 '40

"This earnest, scholarly and richly illustrated essay on contemporary American art is a milestone in American art criticism. It proves once again—what every artist so frequently questions—that there are intelligent and creative art critics in America." George Biddle

+ Books p2 D 31 '39 750w

"She tells the story lovingly, in detail, with many perceptive touches, and with a fine respect for her subject—though one regrets her omission of such good contemporary painters as Leon Hartl, Milton Avery and Waldo Peirce. For the rest, one may only suggest differences of emphasis." Jerome Mellquist

+ — New Repub 102:27 Ja 1 '40 110w

CHEYNEY, PETER. The urgent hangman. 247p $2 Coward-McCann [7s 6d Collins] 40-1859

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p20 F 26 '39 110w

"It is all a trifle absurd; almost every incident is incredible. Why should a man carry his will about with him in his watchcase? None the less, one reads on to the end, protestant, unconvinced, but held." E. R. Punshon

Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 26 '38 210w

"Even though you may not ordinarily care much for hard-boiled detectives, you will probably learn to like Slim Callaghan." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p25 F 19 '39 120w

New Yorker 15:80 Mr 4 '39 40w

"Resourceful sleuth with heart of gold, nerves of iron, and tongue of brass does his stuff to slang obbligato. Mild thriller."

Sat R of Lit 19:16 F 25 '39 40w

"The narrative is exciting enough and yet is a good example of how a detective story may be written without littering the pages with a succession of corpses."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p529 Ag 13 '38 160w

CHIANG, MEI-LING (SUNG) (MME CHIANG KAI-SHEK), and others. See Women and the way

CHIANG, YEE. The silent traveller in London. 256p il $3.75 Scribner [10s 6d Country life]

914.21 London—Description. London—Social life and customs 39-15981

The author of The Silent Traveller; a Chinese Artist in Lakeland (Book Review Digest, 1938) has composed a similar book on London, in which he views the city, its parks, buildings, customs, and people. He sets down his impressions in prose and picture and at the same time gives point to his theme by comparing English customs with things Chinese.

Books p4 My 21 '39 320w

"Mr. Chiang Yee compares his book to 'chop-suey,' a Chinese dish of mixed up fragments more highly esteemed here than in China. It may be that, but it is harmonised by a piquant sauce of naïve humour and subtle observation. . . If any reader fails to learn much about London from this gentle, understanding and diverting visitor he will learn much about China, for Mr. Chiang Yee devotes many of his pages to the contrasts between the English scene and ways and those of his own country." J. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 D 9 '38 390w

"Mr. Yee is good on the Heath, the Parks, a snowfall and walking home by moonlight; many will like his references to Chinese poetry; now and then his observation of people is quietly arresting. And there are delicious water-colours, one of geese by the lake in Regent's Park, another of Trafalgar Square under fog. If that were all! But he goes on to sketch nondescript portraits of public men, to fill out essays with commonplaces on the seasons, men and women, West and East. It is a pity, for such ingenuousness very nearly spoils the charm of the book. As a painter Mr. Yee owes much to the tradition of leaving blank spaces in a picture: why not do the same with his prose?" G. W. Stonier

New Statesman & Nation 16:834 N 19 '38 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p810 D 24 '38 280w

CHICAGO. UNIVERSITY. Library Institute. Current issues in library administration; ed. with an introd. by Carleton B. Joeckel. (Studies in lib. science) 392p $2 Univ. of Chicago press [10s Cambridge]

025 Library administration (W) 39-27454

"Papers presented before the Library Institute at the University of Chicago, August 1-12, 1938." (Subtitle) Partial contents: The role of the board in library administration, by C. E. Sherman; Administration of branch systems, by R. A. Ulveling; The administration of technical processes, by Donald Coney; Administration of the public library of medium size, by Althea Warren; Problems of library finance, by J. B. Kaiser; Measurements in library service, by Leon Carnovsky; Personnel: the key to administration, by J. B. Kaiser; Practical publicity methods, by J. A. Lowe; People and libraries, by Douglas Waples. Index.

Booklist 35:323 Je 1 '39

"The volume is in our estimation one of the most fruitful yet to appear in the series known as 'The University of Chicago Studies in Library Science.' . . Not the least useful feature of the volume is the stimulating Introduction by Carleton B. Joeckel. . . Current Issues in Library Administration is, to say the least, a trail-blazing attempt to stimulate interest in a vital and heretofore almost ignored area of the vast field of library science." W. S. Hoole

+ Library J 64:510 Je 15 '39 1300w

"Since the publication of Learned's The American public library and the diffusion of knowledge, no work has come to this reviewer's attention with more of meat in it and more of stimulus for the administrator of a large public library than Current Issues in Library Administration. Though lacking the former's unity and comprehensive point of view, it brings the ripe judgment of many authors who are experienced in library administration or who, as teachers or students in other fields of public administration, have thought on problems of basic importance in the management of libraries." Carl Vitz

+ Library Q 9:514 O '39 1400w

Pratt p3 winter '40

"Every city official concerned with library administration as well as every public library administrator and trustee should have this collection of papers." B. S. Rossell

+ Survey 75:360 N '39 240w

CHILDE, VERE GORDON. Man makes himself. 275p il $1.75 Oxford

901 Civilization—History. Progress

"An archeologist, writing for laymen, vindicates the idea of progress by applying the economic interpretation to natural history, prehistory and ancient history." New Repub

Christian Science Monitor p18 Jl 18 '39 550w

New Repub 101:121 N 15 '39·20w

CHILDS, MARQUIS WILLIAM. This is democracy; collective bargaining in Scandinavia. 169p il $2.50 Yale univ. press

331.1163 Collective bargaining. Trade unions. Labor and laboring classes—Scandinavia (W) 38-27852

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"In this book Mr. Childs continues the good work commenced in his Sweden: The Middle Way. He is here giving more detailed information to the American public about how democracy works in 'the quiet corner' of Europe —from where no rumors of war and riots come to enlighten our people regarding the existence of those countries. Mr. Childs is more careful with respect to the information given and, therefore, less enthusiastic than in his former work." L. L. Unstad

CHILDS, M. W.—Continued
+ Am Econ R 29:171 Mr '39 360w

"Well written, the book has, however, much of the somewhat baffling quality of the author's earlier work on 'the middle way' in Sweden. The developments that constitute the background of the rise of organized labor in Scandinavia are summarized in a manner that deviates at several points from the story as told by Scandinavian writers, and the author shows no real familiarity with the native literature on his subject. In general, too, the place of labor in the story of increasing social legislation is stated in terms that claim too much or that are contradictory." J. H. Wuorinen
+ — Am Hist R 45:468 Ja '40 200w

"A very readable volume. The author has not been content with merely giving a description of the effective labor and employers' organizations, and of the machinery set up to facilitate the making of wage agreements and to give sanction to them. This he does, to be sure, in a masterly fashion in the first three chapters, which alone would make the volume a significant contribution. . . The underlying philosophies and the historical background of Scandinavian collective bargaining are, however, very admirably set forth along with the general outlines of the procedures for making and enforcing wage agreements." B. A. Arneson
+ Am Pol Sci R 33:133 F '39 500w

Reviewed by N. L. Sims
Am Soc R 4:419 Je '39 130w

"This excellently written book is recommended to all who are interested in Scandinavian questions and who have already read some other works about the economic affairs of the Scandinavian nations." E. T. H. Kjellstrom
+ Ann Am Acad 202:242 Mr '39 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '39

Reviewed by Andreas Elviken
Pol Sci Q 54:296 Je '39 750w

"Mr. Childs has written a fair, fine book. His attitude throughout is judicial and objective. Failures are described as well as successes. But on balance, the Scandinavian countries surpass most others in financial astuteness as well as in social reform. It is heartening, in a mad world, to find one corner where men of good will conduct their affairs with intelligence, tolerance, and deep human wisdom." Stuart Chase
+ Yale R n s 28:615 spring '39 1100w

CHITWOOD, OLIVER PERRY. John Tyler; champion of the old South. (Am. hist. assn. Publications) ltd ed 496p $4 (18s) Appleton-Century

B or 92 Tyler, John 39-22996

This political biography of the tenth president of the United States embodies an attempt to rehabilitate a statesman, who, the author feels, has long suffered from unjust criticism. Index.

Booklist 36:148 D 15 '39

"One of the most enigmatic personalities in American politics is John Tyler. Professor Chitwood has written, if not the definitive, certainly the most thorough and unbiased appraisal of the man and his public career that has yet been made."
Christian Century 56:1511 D 6 '39 100w

"Despite fundamental misconceptions and omissions, the book will serve a useful purpose. It brings again to the limelight the record of a much-maligned but exceptionally able President." H. R. Fraser
+ — N Y Times p10 O 22 '39 1150w

"Dr. Chitwood has combined in this volume several elements not too often found in a single work. His research seems to have been prodigious, judging from evidences, less obvious than usual, of the scaffolding of scholarship. But his perception of the meaning of John Tyler's life is more than surface. In a number of instances he has penetrated behind the facts to the truth. His attitude toward Tyler is not unduly adulatory but occasionally is sharply critical. And his picture of the chief period of Tyler's impact on American politics is one which needed to be put in print." G. F. Milton
+ Sat R of Lit 20:18 O 21 '39 550w

CHOATE, FLORENCE, and CURTIS, ELIZABETH. Absolute pitch; il. by the authors. 261p $2 Harcourt 39-23866

The heroine is a young girl, the daughter of a famous Russian soprano. When her mother comes to New York to sing at the Metropolitan, Thalia comes too, and helps to make things run smoothly in her mother's exhausting life.

"This is the best story for girls about backstage opera that I have read. . . If the climax of this story seems to break the realistic tone of the rest, remember how little, relatively speaking, falls to the vocal cords of the heroine in the last act of 'Romeo and Juliet.' . . The character of a boy violinist and the harnessing of its egotism so as to do the needed work of self-confidence rings absolutely true. The tale is up to date, authentic." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 N 26 '39 250w

"The back-stage world of the Metropolitan is colorful and convincing, but the climax of the story is highly improbable. That an unrehearsed fourteen-year-old could successfully step into a role stretches the imagination, but that artists and critics in the audience should not detect the change seems impossible. The story would have been better if Thalia had won her recognition in some more modest capacity." Eleanor Kidder
— + Library J 64:870 N 1 '39 150w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 90w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Easy to kill [Eng title: Murder is easy]. 248p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Collins] 39-22739

Detective story.

Booklist 36:89 N 1 '39

"Even if the fiend seems hard to swallow, 'Easy to Kill' contains some clever plotting and enough casting of suspicion to keep you guessing like mad." Will Cuppy
+ — Books p13 S 24 '39 200w

"Altogether the story must be counted as yet another proof of Mrs. Christie's inexhaustible ingenuity." E. R. Punshon
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 11 '39 330w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 17:908 Je 10 '39 340w

"One of Agatha Christie's best mystery novels, a story fascinating in its plot, clever and lively in its characters and brilliant in its technique." Kay Irvin
+ N Y Times p20 S 24 '39 200w

"Easy reading, but mystery addicts will be able to spot the murderer before Mr. Fitzwilliam does—a warning to all policemen never, never to fall in love."
+ — New Yorker 15:71 S 30 '39 40w

"Dunder-headed detective and far-fetched finish pretty nearly spoil story that has authentic Christie touch in the characterizations. Irritating."
— + Sat R of Lit 20:20 S 23 '39 40w

"I had no difficulty in spotting the murderer, though in Mrs. Christie's previous books I have seldom been within a mile of him. Still, the book opens very nicely, and the love-story is agreeably developed." Nicholas Blake
— + Spec 162:1102 Je 23 '39 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p343 Je 10 '39 220w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Murder for Christmas [Eng title: Hercule Poirot's Christmas]. 272p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Collins] 39-27171

Detective story.

"This is not the Belgian detective's best case, but it contains much of the Christie cleverness of plot and action." Will Cuppy
+ — Books p13 F 12 '39 200w

"Hercule Poirot does his usual neat job of unravelling murder. The perpetrator was a bit of a surprise, but perfectly logical. And it is a relief to find a crime solution in an English setting which has pace as well as atmosphere." Marian Wiggin
+ Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '39 110w

"In this kind of detective novel, depending almost entirely for its interest on accuracy of logical deduction from recorded fact and yet with the drama played out by recognisable human beings, Mrs. Christie remains supreme. One may grumble that she depends a little too much upon coincidence and manufactured effect . . . but how small are such blemishes compared with the brilliance of the whole conception!" E. R. Punshon
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 13 '39 280w

"Poirot has solved some puzzling mysteries in his time, but never has his mighty brain functioned more brilliantly than in 'Murder for Christmas.'" Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 F 12 '39 150w

"Slow start, interesting middle, rather incredible conclusion add up to entertaining but grade B Christie."
— + Sat R of Lit 19:20 F 11 '39 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p805 D 17 '38 350w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). The regatta mystery, and other stories. 229p $2 Dodd 39-16743

Nine mystery stories featuring Hercule Poirot and Mr Parker Pyne.

"Unless you are one of those stubborn fans who dislike short mysteries, these should serve your purpose nicely." Will Cuppy
Books p15 Je 25 '39 180w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 1 '39 180w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p6 Je 25 '39 120w

"Rather frothy but pleasant enough for summer-weekend reading."
New Yorker 15:88 Je 24 '39 20w

"Pretty good."
Sat R of Lit 20:20 Je 24 '39 40w

"All of this is highly entertaining for the reader. The facts as presented to these two incomparable investigators leave him utterly baffled; when it all becomes clear as day, the reader can only say, 'Now why didn't I think of that?' But he never does. Eight other stories, besides 'The Regatta Mystery,' from which the book takes title, are included, and all show Miss Christie at her best."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 2 '39 230w
Time 34:56 Jl 3 '39 20w

CHUGERMAN, SAMUEL. Lester F. Ward, the American Aristotle; a summary and interpretation of his sociology. 591p il $5 Duke univ. [30s Cambridge]

301 Ward, Lester Frank. Sociology 39-22560

Biography combined with a comprehensive study of the works of this American sociologist who died in 1913.

Reviewed by E. A. Ross and E. F. Guthrie
Am Soc R 4:859 D '39 1650w
Reviewed by J. P. Lichtenberger
Ann Am Acad 207:245 Ja '40 650w
Reviewed by C. A. Beard
New Repub 101:119 N 15 '39 750w

"The author has combined his admiration for Ward with his own vast learning in producing a very useful book to all who seek the betterment of society, and particularly to those who incline toward pessimism." R. M. Binder
+ N Y Times p10 O 15 '39 1450w
Sat R of Lit 21:20 Ja 27 '40 400w
Reviewed by Edgar Dawson
Social Educ 4:66 Ja '40 400w
Reviewed by E. R. Groves
Social Forces 18:296 D '39 1100w
Reviewed by W. R. Crawford
Social Studies 30:375 D '39 390w

"This book is, I think, required reading for all teachers, preachers and intelligent students of affairs. As an introduction to Ward's works it is quintessential, illuminating the study of history and of the social order. Incidentally it is a remarkable human document; exceedingly entertaining, instructive and inspiring reading." J. P. Gavit
+ Survey G 28:748 D '39 2500w

CHURCH, RALPH WITHINGTON. Essay on critical appreciation. 300p il $3.50 Cornell univ. press [10s 6d Allen, G.]

701 Esthetics [39-364]

"The philosophical argument of Dr. Church's book consists primarily of a subtle and original refutation of all forms of theory, whether presented in ancient or in modern guise, which refer back our aesthetic experiences to an undifferentiated 'Idea' which invests the enjoyed object with a facet of its radiance by means of 'participation.' The metaphysical virtuosity with which the argument is sustained is thereafter enhanced by a further suggestion that the original fallacy is generated by a theory of resemblance. . . Upon this metaphysical basis is developed a critique of painting and sculpture which only the expert in those fields can fully appreciate or appraise, but which, as philosophy, resolves itself into the contention that technique, form and immanent and referential expression are the categories which must be studied by him who would make his experience of beauty articulate and communicable." Times [London] Lit Sup

"The book contains many competent discussions of concrete aesthetic matters, with recondite illustrations from the history of art." Charles Hartshorne
Ethics 49:380 Ap '39 480w
J Philos 36:416 Jl 20 '39 400w
Times [London] Lit Sup p504 Jl 30 '38 650w

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Step by step, 1936-1939. 324p $4 Putnam [12s 6d Butterworth, T.]

940.5 Europe—Politics. Great Britain—Foreign relations (W) 39-27633

Collection of the author's articles on home and foreign affairs, which have been printed fortnightly from 1936 to the present. "They are at once a running commentary upon events as they happened or were about to happen, and a narrative of what we have lived through." (Pref)

CHURCHILL, W. L. S.—Continued

Booklist 36:5 S '39

"Not many political commentators would risk the republication of their necessarily fugitive and hastily considered comments in book form, for subjection to the harsh test of history; and fewer still, I imagine, would emerge from that test as successfully, on the whole, as does Winston Churchill." Walter Millis

+ Books p7 Ag 27 '39 1100w

Reviewed by G. K. Smart
Boston Transcript p1 S 16 '39 270w

Reviewed by G. M. A. Grube
Canadian Forum 19:194 S '39 700w

"This book sets out most tellingly how Winston Churchill's voice has been like an incessant foghorn in that 'moist, misty, fog-bound island.' It proves him so inveterately right on the most perplexing problems of the difficult period through which we have been passing that one wonders that he was not taken into the Government sooner." E. B. H.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 S 9 '39 550w

Reviewed by J. G. Kerwin
Commonweal 31:15 O 27 '39 600w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:2 O '39 350w

Foreign Affairs 18:368 Ja '40 40w

Manchester Guardian p7 Je 27 '38 160w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 149:325 S 23 '39 600w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p9 S 3 '39 1400w

New Yorker 15:63 S 2 '39 30w

"In his writing Mr. Churchill shows his usual literary skill. Even independent of the content, his pungent and lucid style affords the reader much pleasure." J. C. de Wilde

+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 S 16 '39 480w

Reviewed by Christopher Hobhouse
Spec 162:1137 Je 30 '39 650w

Reviewed by E. O. Hauser
Survey G 28:633 O '39 120w

"Among contemporary British politicians there are few if any who can match Mr. Winston Churchill for vigour and lucidity of utterance. He clearly enjoys himself more as an orator than as a writer; and even in print his speeches have a verve and sparkle which is missing in his journalistic work. But sufficient interest attaches to this collection of brief articles on foreign affairs, which have appeared in the Press at more or less regular intervals during the past three years, to warrant their republication in more permanent form."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p382 Jl 1 '39 700w

CHUTE, B. J. Blocking back; il. by Robert A. Graef. 226p $1.75 Macmillan

38-24911

Story of football and human relations in a modern boys' school. A wealthy new boy tries to usurp the football position of the school hero, but learns to cooperate instead.

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 30 '39 50w

"Written in modern slang prose of today without being cheap and will be popular with boys of sixth to eighth grades." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 63:890 N 15 '38 100w

CLAIR, BLANCHE, and DIGNAM, DOROTHY, eds. Advertising careers for women. 268p il $2.50 Harper

659.1 Advertising. Woman—Occupations

(W) 39-27583

"Twenty-two lectures on advertising vocations presented by the Philadelphia club of advertising women, setting forth the fields of opportunity to which advertising beckons women." Subtitle

Booklist 35:375 Jl 15 '39

"If the editors of this book had lower-cased some careers and capitalized others, the information would have been better balanced. . . Otherwise, the scope of the book seems fair." Dorothy Constantine

+ — Books p15 Jl 23 '39 450w

Springf'd Republican p12 N 23 '39 180w

Wis Lib Bul 35:140 Jl '39

CLARK, COLEMAN. Table tennis. 109p il $1.60 Prentice-Hall

794.7 Ping pong

(W) 38-29044

The author, a former U.S. table tennis champion, describes this game as "a skillful, vigorous, scientific sport which has taken its place alongside . . . tennis and golf." He devotes chapters to a history of the game, equipment, description of grips, strokes, and technique of play, and the organization of tournaments, leagues, and clubs.

Booklist 35:170 Ja 15 '39

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '39 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '39

CLARK, COLIN. Critique of Russian statistics. 76p $2.60 (6s) Macmillan

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions. Russia—Statistics

[39-32258]

"An attempt to test the accuracy of Russian statistics by comparing them with those of other countries and by examining their internal consistency." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by B. W. Maxwell
Am Pol Sci R 33:1137 D '39 100w

"The value of this book would have been increased—at least to the nonstatistical reader—if the author had made a brief summary of his conclusions." E. C. Helmreich

Ann Am Acad 207:263 Ja '40 350w

Foreign Affairs 18:169 O '39 20w

"Mr. Clark is an expert, but not a pedant. His merits and his brilliance are of a different order. His answers to the most important questions of the day do not always stand the test of time, but they represent sound and sober judgements on the currently known information. Speed and relevance are two of Mr. Clark's strong points, to which should be added an objective mind and an inexhaustible ingenuity in the choice of method." Ian Bowen

+ Spec 163:60 Jl 14 '39 650w

Reviewed by Alexander Kaun
Survey G 28:698 N '39 60w

CLARK, GEORGE NORMAN. Guide to English commercial statistics, 1696-1782; with a catalogue of materials by Barbara M. Franks. 211p 7s 6d Royal hist. soc. [English publication]

382.0942 Great Britain—Commerce. Commercial statistics

39-12942

"This book is not a history of English trade in the period which it covers, nor is it even a direct contribution to that history; it is a guide to the use of one class of materials, the statistical materials. It consists of three parts. First is an historical account of the origin, purpose, nature and value of the commercial statistics, for which Professor Clark is alone responsible. This is followed by the texts of some of the more important of the documents on which it is based, most of which were transcribed by Mrs. Franks. Lastly, there is a chronological list of the statistical materials themselves, with an explanatory note at the beginning. This list was prepared by Mrs. Franks under Professor Clark's direction." (Pref) Index.

"This volume should encourage serious investigations in this subject, simplify research procedure, and make possible more accurate knowledge of eighteenth century trade and commercial policy. . . There are a few minor blemishes in an otherwise admirable text. . . A few errors do not, however, impair a learned and able treatment of a difficult subject." E. H. Cawley

+ Am Hist R 45:127 O '39 300w
Eng Hist R 54:368 Ap '39 350w

CLARK, HARRY. . . . The first story of the whale; il. by [the author]. [32p] map $1.50 Houghton

38-39431

Picture-story book for the very young, describing the adventures of a bad-mannered whale.

"It is a neat little lesson in manners and may be read aloud with handsome sound effects." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ja 22 '39 190w

"It has the imaginative individuality some parents can get into made-up stories and it has fine, bold pictures in color." John Holmes

+ Boston Transcript p1 D 10 '38 50w

CLARK, JOHN MAURICE. Social control of business. (Whittlesey house publication; Business and economics publications) 2d ed rev 537p $5; text ed $4 McGraw

330.1 Business. Industry—Organization, control, etc. 39-27584

"A study of business as a social institution, that was first published in 1926 [Book Review Digest, 1926] and is now revised and brought up to date. New chapters deal with the activities of the government and the problems of business since 1930." (Booklist) Index.

"Some 'fly swatting' might be done by way of attacking isolated statements of the author; but these are immaterial and to be expected in a work of such general character. The book is one of exceptional value, not to be overlooked by serious students of current affairs." J. D. Larkin

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:1119 D '39 550w

"On the whole, Professor Clark's analysis is abstract and unrealistic. He makes no searching diagnosis, based on documentary evidence, of the condition of agriculture and labor, of the concentration of wealth, income, and economic power, of mass poverty, unemployment, and insecurity, of the exploitations of monopoly and finance capitalism, of the waste of natural resources, and of other defects in the economic order, which constitute the justification for governmental intervention. Intellectually, however, he is aware of these problems. . . His sympathy for the individualistic tradition and his distrust of popular government cause him to advocate a timid, mildly humanitarian experimentalism in which he himself seems to have little confidence." H. M. Gray

— Ann Am Acad 205:164 S '39 550w
Booklist 35:382 Jl 15 '39

"The reader will find in this volume few clear-cut answers to the numerous issues raised by the extension of Government regulation over the economic system. He will find, however, a judicious marshaling of arguments, pro and con, which will necessarily clarify his own thinking and opinions on these points." J. I. Bogen

Management R 28:374 O '39 500w

CLARK, SIR KENNETH. Leonardo da Vinci; an account of his development as an artist. 201p 68 il $5 Macmillan [21s Cambridge]

B or 92 Leonardo da Vinci

"It was the author of the present book who, four years ago, brought out a painstakingly annotated detailed catalogue of the Leonardo drawings at Windsor Castle [Book Review Digest, 1935]. . . In his preface Sir Kenneth ventured the hope that some day he might be able to offer a rounded critical study of Leonardo's work, and in the book at hand we find that hope realized." N Y Times

Booklist 36:66 O 15 '39

"Mr. Clark is undoubtedly equipped for the task. He is extremely well acquainted with the work of Leonardo and his contemporaries, and has already published an excellent catalogue of the da Vinci drawings at Windsor Castle. In brief, we might expect an important contribution. Nevertheless the book is disappointing, perhaps because its aim is unclear." Roberta Morgan

— + Boston Transcript p2 F 3 '40 600w

"In these Ryerson lectures the Director of the National Gallery, London, makes a living person of this great and versatile artist of fifteenth-century Italy. Whereas too often books on painters convey the air of having been made from other books, this study has a quality that comes only when a writer makes his subject his own. The result is an effect at once of ease and authority." E. C. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 30 '39 700w

"This is a difficult book to summarise, because it is so packed with lively information and ideas. I know of no one alive who writes better about painting than the Director of the National Gallery. He reminds us that it is possible to combine erudition with elegance; he is not interested merely in Old Masters, he cares profoundly for Art; and the result is a book that will instruct the learned, and delight the rest of us. The Cambridge University Press is to be congratulated on the production, which includes sixty-eight excellent plates. My only complaint is that a few necessary illustrations have been omitted." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:219 Ag 5 '39 1700w

"A mature, penetrating piece of criticism. . . From this study, as the argument proceeds, a sympathetic and convincing portrait of the man emerges. Far from representing the least of its virtues, that may be esteemed the book's most valuable service: most valuable, at least, for the public at large." E. A. Jewell

+ N Y Times p9 S 10 '39 1150w
New Yorker 15:71 S 30 '39 40w

"This brief biography of Leonardo as artist is the best book of its kind in English. It is based on lectures delivered at Yale, but this forensic origin is evinced only in an exemplary terseness and clarity. The style is sensitive and neat, free from that donnishness which impairs many English books on art. One feels an intelligent assimilation of French methods, but Sir Kenneth Clark's writing, in its quiet way, has more sap than its Gallic exemplars." F. J. M., Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 F 3 '40 250w

"What is lacking here in biographical fullness is more than balanced by the quality of the technical analysis, and in this department no one is better qualified than the present author. After sifting the evidence and clarifying the critical problems he is able to indicate in a convincing manner, and one might say, for the first time, the authentic works of da Vinci. The general reader will be agreeably surprised at the absence of professional terms. It is a book with a human touch and from it emerges Leonardo the man as well as the artist." F. G. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 1 '39 600w

"Secure in his 'groundwork' Sir Kenneth has made a use of it which will commend itself not only to the general reader—incidentally this is one of the easiest books on art to read we have ever come across—but also to everybody, whatever his degree of special knowledge, who thinks of art as a human exercise."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p433 Jl 22 '39 800w

Reviewed by S. L. Faison, Jr.
Yale R ns 29:392 winter '40 1100w

CLARK, MORTON GILL. Grace I give you. 281p $2.50 Morrow

39-11574

Character study of a characterless feminine member of New York society, whose days are an endless series of cocktail parties, love affairs, and bill evasions.

"This story manages to leave a bad taste in the mouth, as the author intended. But these people have been unmasked before, and by defter hands. So, though this New York version of the bedraggled fringe of society has a swift pace, it smells mustily of old files—say, the files of the early Aldous Huxley before he came to believe in the possible regeneration of Man." Muriel Chatain

— Books p8 Ap 23 '39 450w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 24 '39 90w

"Considered as a subject for fictional treatment, the characterization discloses that Charles's verdict on his wife was correct: Grace is a bore; and consequently the author has shown more courage than wisdom in delineating her for popular entertainment. Certainly few readers of either sex will follow the career of this cheap voluptuary with any other feeling than strong aversion. But that, no doubt, was what Mr. Clark intended." Drake de Kay

N Y Times p6 Ap 30 '39 650w

"A sort of case history, relentless though not quite credible."

New Yorker 15:122 Ap 29 '39 60w

"Mr. Clark has written what is called a 'woman's novel'; and probably none but women will read it. And yet, like many another 'woman's novel' its smoothness, ease, perception, and lightness make more earnest writing seem somewhat stodgy, as Grace herself shows up the frequent dowdiness of virtue." K. S.

Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 27 '39 220w

CLARK, RUTH ELVIRA. Sir William Trumbull in Paris, 1685-1686. 231p il map $3.50 Macmillan [12s 6d Cambridge]

327.42 Trumbull, Sir William. Protestants in France. Great Britain—Foreign relations—France. France—Foreign relations—Great Britain [39-12963]

"Sir William Trumbull was 'against his inclination' appointed English Envoy Extraordinary to France by James II at the end of 1685. Miss Clark has written a very detailed study of his short embassy—he was recalled in September, 1686—based upon his official correspondence in the Record Office, at Easthampstead Park, and elsewhere. The chief interest of his mission relates to the consequences of the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, which drove many Huguenots from France to England." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by R. H. George

Am Hist R 45:209 O '39 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p139 Mr 4 '39 120w

CLARK, SYDNEY AYLMER. Hawaii; map il. by Jacqueline Clark. 304p il $3.50 Prentice-Hall

919.69 Hawaiian Islands—Description and travel (W) 39-9216

This informal guidebook to the Hawaiian Islands, as vacation-land, is divided into three parts. "In the first part of the book, 'The Foreground of the Picture,' are suggestions on such topics as: What to See; Where to Eat; Where to go for Amusement; What to Buy and How much Money you should Spend. The second part, 'The Background of the Picture,' is a tapestry of local history and legend. . . In the third part, 'Yourself in the Picture,' the author takes you on a voyage of personal exploration." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 35:305 My 15 '39

"Comprehensively informative book, one of the most thoroughly useful of its kind."

+ Books p17 My 7 '39 170w

CLARK, SYDNEY AYLMER. Ireland on fifty dollars; il. by Edward C. Caswell [Eng title: Ireland on ten pounds]. (Fifty dollar ser) 226p map $2.25 McBride [5s Nicholson]

914.15 Ireland—Description and travel (W)

The author concedes that Ireland presents difficulties to one who must budget his traveling expenses, but by careful planning he shows how a successful and comfortable visit can be made within the limits of fifty dollars.

Booklist 35:207 F 15 '39

Books p12 Je 25 '39 180w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 21 '39 70ow

Times [London] Lit Sup p715 N 5 '38 100w

CLARK, THOMAS DIONYSIUS. The rampaging frontier. 350p $3 Bobbs

917.7 Frontier and pioneer life—Middle West 39-10115

"Manners and humors of pioneer days in the South and the Middle West." (Subtitle) Descriptions of the picturesque life and customs which grew up in the section of the United States between the eastern states and the Mississippi, during the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. Bibliography.

Reviewed by C. J. Finger

Books p11 Jl 2 '39 700w

"The picture is one-sided and therefore, though with the best will in the world to be otherwise, romantic. Mr. Clark's object was to draw 'a well-rounded picture of the life of the common man.' But the net effect, though absolutely true in detail, is in the mass misrepresentative. . . This is a handsome frontier to believe in and it is true enough, an energetic frontier, a frontier of high spirits and inextinguishable vivacity. And that is well enough. But where are the lives that the frontier broke?" Bernard De Voto

+ — N Y Times p5 Je 25 '39 1450w

New Yorker 15:79 Ap 22 '39 40w

"Mr. Clark tells his whole story in the refreshing colloquialism of the time. Every paragraph fairly reeks with backwoods talk. This feature is an extremely valuable one in that it brings to the present generation an authentic reproduction of backwoods language which was strong and often smelled of brimstone. . . The volume is well documented, and even the most critical will not find any appreciable number of errors in fact, although in a few instances the author may have been misled into using an unusual incident as an example of the usual. An index would greatly add to the usefulness of the work for the serious student." Everett Dick

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 Je 3 '39 650w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 28 '39 950w

CLARK, WALTER. Photography by infrared; its principles and applications. 397p il $5 Wiley [25s Chapman]

778 Photography, Infra-red 39-29974

"Dr. Clark, who is associated with the Kodak Research Laboratories, writes for the practical infrared photographer who is concerned with the commercial or artistic aspects of the subject or with its application in the scientific or technical fields, but who is assumed to have some acquaintance with the practice of ordinary photography. Underlying principles are explained in a simple way, and several chapters are devoted to general technique. Other chapters treat of special applications—examination of materials; use in medicine, botany, and palaeontology; photomicrography; atmospheric penetration; and optical characteristics of materials in the infrared." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Name and subject indexes.

N Y New Tech Bks 23:44 Jl '39

Reviewed by Adeline Macrum
Special Libraries 30:317 N '39

CLARK, WILLIAM HORACE. Railroads and rivers; the story of inland transportation. (Am. cavalcade ser) 334p il maps $3.50 Page

385 Transportation—U.S. Railroads—History (W) 39-27585

A popular history of inland transportation in America from the days when it was "a land without wheels" to the present. Early chapters deal with transportation on rivers and lakes, and a few paragraphs are given to modern air flights, but the bulk of the book is devoted to the building of roads and railroads. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. J. Petersen
Ann Am Acad 207:249 Ja '40 450w
Booklist 35:375 Jl 15 '39

"It is a very readable book, entertaining and informative at the same time, one that can be profitably enjoyed by everyone." Virginia Fletcher

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 15 '39 400w

"The evolution of American inland transportation from trail to rail is covered with some thoroughness in this latest addition to the American Cavalcade Series that was begun by Mr. Clark with a similar book on 'Ships and Sailors' about a year ago. . . An excellent job of illustration has been done with this book, not only with the photographs and prints, but with the several maps. There is also a good index." E. F. Allen

+ N Y Times p2 Jl 2 '39 750w

"The major values of this book are in its workmanlike account of the origin, operation, and vicissitudes of the great American railroad systems, east, west, and south. . . But this otherwise meritorious study is too sketchy in its treatment of the waterways of America, nor is it always exact. However, its sketch of 'the Indian-type canoe, the most graceful evolution of a small boat in existence,' is so well done as to make one almost overlook its faults." C. B. Firestone

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:7 Jl 15 '39 260w
Wis Lib Bul 35:139 Jl '39

CLARKE, DONALD HENDERSON. Millie's daughter. 309p $2 Vanguard

39-8241

Sequel to the author's earlier novel about the red-headed courtesan: Millie (Book Review Digest, 1930).

Books p14 Ap 9 '39 270w
Boston Transcript p3 My 6 '39 70w

"An old man from the mountains with second sight reads the proper morals into all this and untangles the characters, carrying much of Mr. Clarke's load of psychoanalysis. Though the pages of advice are made up of lazy writing, Mr. Clarke succeeds usually in keeping his story at a boil. The melodrama is catchy stuff, and the action is swift." Robert Van Gelder

N Y Times p7 Ap 9 '39 320w

CLARKE, EDMUND PALMER. Holiday hearsay; with decorations by Kay Hoppin. 144p $2 Independent press

917.42 New Hampshire 39-6007

A series of essays in praise of New Hampshire, the author's summer home. The articles first appeared in the Granite State News, of Wolfeboro Falls.

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 90w

"Mr. Clarke confesses that Holiday Hearsay exists partly because his Winnipesaukee was well received, but he insists—how truly is apparent on every page—that his fundamental motive was his love for his summer habitat. Anyhow he has made a pleasant addition to the rapidly growing list of appreciative essays on New Hampshire, and those who share his affection for that state will not stop to puzzle as to why he wrote, simply content that he did. For the real addict of the country presided over by the White Mountains, only second to the sport of trying to write about it as if it were Eden, is the sport of reading others who have so written." K. B. Murdock

+ New Eng Q 12:571 S '39 500w

CLARKE, FRANCES ELIZABETH, comp. Wild animals; great wild animal stories of our day. 335p $2.50 Macmillan

Animals, Legends and stories of 39-27718

Contents: My friends of the jungle, by William Beebe; Beaver, builder of empire, by W. H. Carr; The real cougar, by W. B. Conger; Monarch, by C. R. Cooper; "Thou shalt not kill—," by J. O. Curwood; Conserving our wild life, by J. N. Darling; The mole, by Alan Devoe; Koala, by H. G. Evarts; Lord of the trail, by Kenneth Gilbert; The strength of Iskwao, by Kenneth Gilbert; The truce of God, by Laurence Housman; The prisoner, by Madelon Lulofs; The fox, by George Manning-Sanders; The elephant remembers, by Edison Marshall; How to hunt the fox, by E. W. Nye; The first adventure, by Grey Owl; The monkey with the green pea-jacket, by L. S. Porter; Our disappearing fur-bearers, by E. A. Preble; The courage of the wild, by Archibald Rutledge; A watcher in the woods, by H. R. Sass; Avalanche Lily and her cubs, by F. M. Schmoe; Blackbear, by Samuel Scoville, Jr.; The wild life sanctuary, by D. L. Sharp; The black coyote, by M. M. Stearns; Ring tail's revenge, by C. W. Walker

Booklist 36:44 O 1 '39

"The authors have all had considerable experience with the animals of which they write. The stories are simply told, with attention to detail, but without too much idealizing of the subjects. Although most of the stories stress the unhappy lot of the denizens of the wild, a few humorous stories are included. It is difficult to pick one or two as better than the rest, for all 25 are on the same level of excellence. Each reader will find several to suit his taste." Virginia Fletcher

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 2 '39 310w

"Not a juvenile, but a book that will stimulate in any discerning reader a more intimate sense of his kinship with the animal kingdom."
Christian Century 56:1078 S 6 '39 30w

"The volume is packed with attractive stories over which one loves to linger, for it takes one directly into the mysteries and fascinations of animal life. Miss Clarke has rendered a real service to the cause of animal preservation by collecting these intimate biographies of the world's wild folk." A. F. Gilmore

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 9 '39 300w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 10 '39 240w
Wis Lib Bul 35:186 N '39

CLARKSON, PAUL STEPHEN. A bibliography of William Sydney Porter (O. Henry). ltd autog ed 161p $5 Caxton printers

012 Porter, William Sydney (O. Henry, pseud)—Bibliography 39-735

"Few other American authors, whatever their merits or demerits, have been honored with so elaborate a bibliography. It gives as full details as the most avid student or book-collector could desire about every published volume of the author's; a remarkable list, chronologically arranged, of the first appearance of each story in newspapers or magazines; an account of the 'collective editions' and dramatizations of the stories; and a lengthy enumeration of books and articles dealing with the author's life and work. The whole is completed with a full index, which turns out to be an index as well to O. Henry's own separate stories and books. Incidentally, too, much new biographical information is supplied." Boston Transcript

CLARKSON, P. S.—Continued

"Mr. Clarkson's bibliography of O. Henry is a broadly conceived, intensively executed study, sure to be of value to the literary historian of the time in which its subject so bravely held the stage. Perhaps it is a sort of homesickness for that era of great story-tellers which adds to our satisfaction in this thorough piece of work." L. C. Wroth
+ Books p25 Mr 26 '39 330w

"That Mr. Clarkson is not a professional scholar or bibliographer but a young lawyer makes his accuracy and exhaustiveness all the more noteworthy. He has done a fine job."
+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 18 '39 200w

"What is unusual about this bibliography is the exhaustiveness of the information given. . . Usually, Mr. Clarkson is the soul of caution and in listing misprints and dropped letters warns the unwary that they occur in every copy of the book in question, so that they may not be cited by point-snatchers. Such criticism as may be offered, in fact, is of a minor nature and concerned largely with lesser obscurities. Most important, as usual with bibliographies of American origin, is a lack of proper respect for signatures."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p64 Ja 28 '39 330w

CLARKSON, MRS ROSETTA E. Magic gardens; a modern chronicle of herbs and savory seeds; il. from the old herbals and ancient gardening books. 370p $3 Macmillan

635.7 Herbs. Gardens. Seeds 39-33274

Historical and cultural study of garden herbs, containing information on some two hundred plants, many of which date back to antiquity in their known usage. All of these plants are growing today in the author's garden at Salt Acres, on the Connecticut shore. Contains a descriptive list of noteworthy herbs, herb tables, and indexes.

Booklist 36:194 Ja 15 '40

Reviewed by W. H. Clark
Boston Transcript p1 Ja 13 '40 270w

"Mrs. Clarkson has a marvelous herb garden of her own on the Connecticut shore, and she is said, by those who know, to be the outstanding authority in this field where medicine, cookery and botany meet."
Christian Century 56:1512 D 6 '39 40w

"A notable and original contribution. . . This is not merely an 'herb book'; it is meant to be rather a foundation work for any gardener, yet a book of interest to the general reader and armchair Burbank who likes the thought of a garden or who loves to dream of the gardens of long ago."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 700w

CLASON, CLYDE B. Dragon's cave. 269p $2 Doubleday

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p32 D 3 '39 200w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p7 D 16 '39 50w

" 'Dragon Cave' is a worthy successor to Mr. Clason's other books." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p22 D 3 '39 190w

"Engrossing characters and a nice plot, with the murderer trapped by Theocritus Lucius Westborough."
+ New Yorker 15:123 D 16 '39 60w

"Extra neat deducing and suspenseful buildup —but criminal is shadowy and motive arrives on scene very late."
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:43 D 2 '39 30w

CLASON, CLYDE B. Murder gone Minoan. 304p $2 Doubleday

39-13362

Detective story.

"Remember Mr. Clason's 'The Man From Tibet' of 1937 or thereabouts? . . Mr. Clason handles his erudition even more deftly than he did before—doesn't sound a bit as though he had swallowed the encyclopedia, really it doesn't." Will Cuppy
+ Books p20 My 7 '39 320w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p3 My 6 '39 120w

"There is a good bit of archaeology in the book, but it serves chiefly as a scenic background, and you may take it or leave it. In case your interest in the ancient Minoan civilization should be aroused, you will find in the back of the book a bibliography to guide you in further explorations of a fascinating subject." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p17 My 7 '39 200w

"Fascinating background, boundless erudition, copious action—and screwy solution."
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:18 My 6 '39 40w

CLAYMORE, TOD. This is what happened [Eng title: You remember the case]. 301p $2 Simon & Schuster [7s 6d Nelson]

39-30381

Detective story.

Booklist 36:135 D 1 '39

"We liked part of it well enough. It dithers harmlessly along just short of comedy, in our opinion; but it all depends on the way Tod affects you." Will Cuppy
Books p13 O 22 '39 200w

"This book is a crime novel, and a good one. Only a very inattentive reader would be very much baffled by the problem of detection; but only a very ungrateful reader would care much." L. A. M.
+ Canadian Forum 19:166 Ag '39 170w

"Mr. Tod Claymore . . . writes with a brisk, a lively, and evidently a practised pen that succeeds well in amusing and entertaining the reader. But that reader must not expect Mr. Claymore to bother much about probability or characterisation or with any special ingenuity in the presentation of a problem." E. R. Punshon
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 My 9 '39 100w

"We like the book so much that we shall be waiting eagerly for more stories by the same author." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p26 O 22 '39 200w

"Amusing, sketchy story for readers who don't have to get their teeth into a plot and shake it to death."
+ New Yorker 15:96 O 21 '39 50w

"Wodehouse with dash of vitriol. Excellent characters, tremendous villain, really amusing chatter, and K.O. finish. Get it."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:36 O 14 '39 40w

"As a detective story it is not altogether convincing because there is an incident about finger-prints which is scarcely plausible; but as a thriller it is entertaining largely on account of the style in which it is written."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p253 Ap 29 '39 180w

CLEAVES, FREEMAN. Old Tippecanoe: William Henry Harrison and his time. 422p il maps $3.75 Scribner

B or 92 Harrison, William Henry 39-32515

A full, scholarly biography of an almost forgotten president. The author has spent several years in research in public documents, historical archives, and private papers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:175 Ja 1 '40

"Mr. Cleaves . . . is not entirely convincing as to the merits of his hero, but he has brought unusual talents to his task which go a long way toward justifying the painstaking and intelligent research regarding Harrison and his time which appears in every chapter. At least it can no longer be said that Harrison's obscurity and neglect are due to the absence of a first-class biography." Avery Craven

+ Books p5 Ja 21 '40 1600w

"Mr. Cleaves's book is full and readable. Though it adds little in substantive fact to the more analytical biography by Dorothy Burne Goebel, it is richer in detail, catches Harrison's personality more successfully and has a livelier feeling for the times. Its chief shortcoming is that, in spite of its accomplishment in evoking Harrison the man, some of the background issues do not come out at all clearly." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.

+ — Boston Transcript p13 D 14 '39 550w

Christian Science Monitor p20 D 6 '39 490w

"Both historians and the public generally should be grateful to Mr. Cleaves for supplying them with a readily obtainable and scholarly Life. The book will be essential to any library of American history. The author has had access to considerable manuscript material and his work is thoroughly documented. There are fifty pages of citations of sources and ten of bibliography. These are all segregated at the end of the volume and do not interfere with the flow of the narrative for the ordinary reader." J. T. Adams

+ N Y Times p3 N 26 '39 1350w

New Yorker 15:106 N 18 '39 40w

"Mr Cleaves's determination to let Harrison, as well as his enemies, speak for themselves, creates a spirit of confidence in the text that biographies often have failed to inspire. It is agreeable to find that Mr Cleaves also can speak for himself and rise in righteous wrath to smite other historians, even though he confines these forays to the limited arena in the back of the book. On the whole, Mr Cleaves's biography is an excellent picture of an outstanding American career and a valuable account of vitally important frontier conflicts."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 26 '39 1450w

CLELAND, MABEL ROSS (MRS KENNETH DE WITT WIDDEMER). See Widdemer, M. C.

CLEMENS, CYRIL. Chesterton as seen by his contemporaries; with introd. by E. C. Bentley; with original front. by Conrado W. Massaguer, and facsimiles. 188p $2.50 Int. Mark Twain soc.

B or 92 Chesterton, Gilbert Keith

"A collection of impressions of G. K. C. as recorded by many who knew or heard him, woven into a fairly continuous account of his life." Christian Century

Canadian Forum 19:230 O '39 130w

Christian Century 56:976 Ag 9 '39 20w

CLEMENS, CYRIL. My cousin Mark Twain; with an introduction by Booth Tarkington [Eng title: Mark Twain]. 214p $2 Rodale [6s Laurie]

B or 92 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne (Mark Twain, pseud) 39-2890

"In an informal, conversational fashion Cyril Clemens has here followed the course of Mark Twain's life by means of anecdotes. Some of the stories have already been told, others are the compiler's own discoveries. The frontispiece which is one of the book's three illustrations, is from a hitherto unpublished portrait, by an unknown artist, of 'Sam' Clemens at the age of 21." N Y Times

"A monotonous series of one-paragraph creakingly humorous anecdotes gathered by an uninspired Boswell. Reads like a turn-of-the-century jokebook, even to having double spaces between the paragraphs. Booth Tarkington has written a polite introduction."

— Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '39 40w

"A disappointing book. . . A superficial and unorganized work." J. R. McGillivray

— Canadian Forum 18:387 Mr '39 170w

Christian Century 56:1078 S 6 '39 50w

"This collection of anecdotes does not make a distinguished book, nor a very valuable one, but it is lively and pleasantly familiar, and thus becomes (in spite of some careless editing) a real addition to the Mark Twain library."

+ — N Y Times p3 F 5 '39 800w

"The book is disorderly; it has no arrangement, sequence, discrimination, or documentary support; it is not a biography and is devoid of criticism; practically all of its material is familiar and what isn't familiar is unimportant. I could learn to live without it but I suppose collectors will have to have it. It is a Mark Twain item and, at a guess, it is going to be a rare one." Bernard DeVoto

— Sat R of Lit 19:16 Mr 11 '39 480w

Discussion by the author

Sat R of Lit 19:9 Ap 8 '39 440w

Springf'd Republican p8 F 15 '39 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p587 O 14 '39 600w

CLEUGH, JAMES. Tuscan spring. 328p $2.50 Reynal [8s 6d Collins]

Botticelli, Sandro—Fiction 39-27114

A novel based on the life of Botticelli and picturing as his background the life of renaissance Italy.

Booklist 35:230 Mr 15 '39

"For varied reasons the readers of 'Tuscan Spring' will be numerous and the majority of them will obtain instruction as well as pleasure from a curiously sincere, if slightly high-colored, book." Iris Barry

+ — Books p10 F 26 '39 410w

Cath World 149:250 My '39 210w

"Mr. Cleugh has succeeded nearly, but not quite as well with his background as with his central figure. The portrait of Leonardo, and the many sketches of other historic figures are competently done. The Florence of Lorenzo the Magnificent, and of Savonarola, is touched in vividly; and if the excitement and the splendor, the volcanic burst of brilliance and genius that is the Renaissance, are not adequately suggested, the author has at least given us a brightly colored pageant that is, perhaps, sufficient for his purpose."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 D 28 '38 650w

Reviewed by G. Irwin-Carruthers

Manchester Guardian p7 S 20 '38 250w

New Repub 98:176 Mr 15 '39 40w

"Piercing and sensitive as he is in his excellent analyses of Botticelli's paintings, Mr. Cleugh does not quite succeed in winning one over to his hero. What he does do, and does admirably, is to present a lush, lavish picture, drawn with savor and relish, of Florence under the Medicis." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p21 F 26 '39 750w

New Yorker 15:67 F 25 '39 50w

Pratt p29 summer '39

"Mr. Cleugh has certain gifts and is genuinely in love with his subject. But he has so overcrowded his stage with the great and famous that his central character lives only by fits and starts. You will find a great deal of information about the Renaissance here—a great deal of information about Sandro Botticelli. But the demon, the passion, the glow that made 'The Romance of Leonardo da Vinci' unforgettably readable—these you will not find." S. V. Benét

CLEUGH, JAMES—Continued

— + Sat R of Lit 19:12 F 25 '39 600w

"The theme is certainly romanticized, but discreetly and tactfully, and though one is not always certain that the opinions expressed by the characters really belong to the fifteenth century, there is no overt anachronism."

Times [London] Lit Sup p665 O 15 '38 240w

Wis Lib Bul 35:113 Je '39

CLEWES, HOWARD. Sailor comes home. 248p $2 Norton [7s 6d Longmans]

39-12002

Story of a miner's family living in a seacoast mining village in Wales. Evan, the oldest son, has run away from home and for eight years the family has waited for his return—the mother hoping his coming will restore their good luck, the adopted daughter looking forward to marriage, the younger son knowing that only with hope of his return gone will he win the girl. When he does come, swift tragedy follows.

"What happens to Pa, to Thomas, to Sarah and Evan, but especially to Ma, is important because this novelist knows his people and writes well. One is not surprised that it has been made into a play for London production. With its simple settings, its many unusual bits of dialogue, its simple subtlety (if so paradoxical a phrase may be used), its extraordinarily human and life-like people and its dramatic quality, it reads much like a play in its present form." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p12 Ap 30 '39 370w

Reviewed by P. C. Eaton
Boston Transcript p2 Je 3 '39 240w

"The only false note is in the absurd figure-of-a-Communist made by the villain and scapegoat of the piece. It is a pretty grim and hopeless story, a cold gray night in a village almost dead; but I picked it up for light reading and didn't put it down." Otis Ferguson

+ — New Repub 99:78 My 24 '39 240w

"Sailor Comes Home describes the lives of poor people in a Welsh seaport, truly enough I dare say, but in a style which I can no more read than I can listen to someone playing the piano with one finger." Desmond Shawe-Taylor

— New Statesman & Nation 16:736 N 5 '38 60w

"Howard Clewes may not have composed a masterpiece; but within a somewhat limited sphere he has written a masterly novel. To misquote Grey, 'Sailor Comes Home' is one of those sharp and simple annals of the poor that stab one in a sensitive spot. None should read it who, facing life, is not also prepared to find life very frequently other than good." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p21 Ap 30 '39 800w

"Dramatic and well handled, but pretty grim."

New Yorker 15:122 Ap 29 '39 50w

"[This] is a depressing and somehow a disingenuous book, though written with all the sincerity in the world, for in the effort not to fleck his tragedy, Mr. Clewes has loaded the dice against his characters. They have no chance nor expectation of happiness nor any interior resources that will enable them to bear misfortune well. He is clearly within an author's rights in making the first postulate, but it takes a good deal of persuasion to convince a reader that the second is a corollary. Everything in the book is so drear, in fact, that the analytical powers of a Dostoievsky or a Conrad would hardly be wasted in showing that life was supportable on such terms. Yet analysis of any kind is just what we do not get. The method is exterior, dramatic, and when the book attains its violent climax the drama becomes melodrama." F. P.

— + Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 6 '39 270w

"The story is well told, but its color is too unrelieved for the average reader."

Springf'd Republican p7e My 21 '39 310w

Times [London] Lit Sup p697 O 29 '38 330w

CLINTON, DANIEL JOSEPH (THOMAS ROURKE, pseud). Man of glory: Simón Bolívar. 385p il map $3.50 Morrow

B or 92 Bolívar, Simón 39-30361

Biography of the liberator and dictator of Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Bolivia, and Peru. "As well as interpreting the man himself, the author hopes also, in view of the dangers that threaten the principles of democracy throughout the world today, to bring the reader a clear conception of that sympathy toward dictatorships which has always been inherent in Latin Americans, and thus to warn him how very formidable that danger is in the countries south of us." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:132 D 1 '39

"[The author] while not immune to it, has sternly tried to disentangle the magnetism of the man from his actual achievements, and to present not only the story of a remarkable individual, but to interpret 'that sympathy toward dictatorships which has always been inherent in Latin Americans,' and warn us 'how very formidable that danger is in the countries south of us.' In his complicated task he has succeeded admirably." Agnes Rothery

+ Books p2 O 22 '39 1050w

Reviewed by M. M. Colum
Forum 102:262 D '39 480w

"At first it might seem that a full-length biography of Simón Bolívar issued only ten years after Mr. T. R. Ybarra's masterly work of that kind could not fail to be superfluous. This is, however, most emphatically not true of the book which Mr. Rourke has just now given us. Without attempting to supersede the Ybarra book—to which Mr. Rourke makes courteous acknowledgment—this new biography of Bolívar succeeds in retelling his amazing life in a manner sure to command anew the interest and sympathy of all sorts of readers." P. A. Means

+ N Y Times p9 N 26 '39 1200w
New Yorker 15:95 O 21 '39 60w
Time 34:84 O 23 '39 450w

CLOETE, STUART. Watch for the dawn. 491p map $2.50 Houghton

(W) 39-27634

Story of South Africa and the struggle of the free Boers against the English, the time being about 1816. It is the story of Kaspar van der Berg, a young Boer of good family, and Aletta, the girl he loved. Because he had killed an English soldier Kaspar became a hunted man, escaping into the unexplored regions far from the white settlements. Eventually it was to these dangerous regions that Kaspar and Aletta retreated, in their attempt to build a home.

Reviewed by A. W. Smith
Atlantic S '39 400w
Booklist 36:8 S '39

"Stuart Cloete is an extremely fortunate man besides being a highly gifted artist. The African veldt is a territory few writers can lay claim to; it is Cloete's through inheritance and years of living in it. . . He is mature as an artist and mature as a man. After the last page is turned, one will go back to savor the talk and the philosophy of Coenraad, Christiaan, Ringhals, men who have lived and fought and been disillusioned and found their own answers to life." Rose Feld

+ Books p3 S 3 '39 1000w

Reviewed by E. B. Garside
Boston Transcript p1 S 9 '39 900w
Reviewed by Eleanor Godfrey
Canadian Forum 19:330 Ja '40 200w
Christian Science Monitor p10 O 21 '39 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '39

"Rather flamboyant in parts and distinctly juvenile in its admiration of violence, not to say brutality, 'Watch for the Dawn' is, nevertheless, a stirring tale of early days in South Africa." Charles Marriott
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 O 17 '39 250w
Reviewed by Nigel Dennis
New Repub 100:348 O 25 '39 400w

"It is a story as powerful as his earlier one of the 'Great Boer Trek': but it is a bigger, finer story, broad-based upon a far wider human sympathy and, though written barely two years later, showing a greatly matured judgment. A surer book in every way; as if Stuart Cloete, having tested himself and his capabilities, had dared to throw himself completely into the new work. It is as reticent as it is revealing and, both in reticence and in revelation, it is high literary art." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p6 S 3 '39 1200w

"'Watch for the Dawn' is really a superb Western with the locale—a most interesting one—shifted to South Africa. It has some grand fights, escapes, betrayals, a good cinema hero and heroine, an amply bloodcurdling witch doctor, and a black princess. Mr. Cloete writes well, with just a trace of slickness. If you liked 'The Turning Wheels,' you won't be disappointed in 'Watch for the Dawn.'" Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 15:58 S 2 '39 200w
Pratt p23 winter '40

"This is Kaspar's book. He is the typical Boer, in whom all the men of his race are amalgamated. . . It was their tragedy that they were too honestly independent to endure the not always unjust exactions of another well-meaning people. They and the whole of South Africa suffered for it. Out of their sufferings Mr. Cloete has understood and loved them, and has known how to pour that love into the pages of this book where it vibrates warm and alive. May he do it again and still again!" C. D. Abbott
+ Sat R of Lit 20:5 S 2 '39 600w

"In 'Watch For The Dawn,' the author has actually painted a background to his earlier novel of the Great trek, which may now be read with a fuller understanding of those forces —political and emotional—which culminated in the historic Boer migration of 1836. To those who may as yet be unacquainted with Mr Cloete's fine novels, it is recommended that 'Watch For The Dawn' should be read first, for it furnishes an excellent introduction to the people and country." L. C. Rich
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 10 '39 1000w

"The picturesque, the amorous, the philosophical and the thumpingly heroic are nicely blended in this new novel by the author of 'Turning Wheels.' It is popular stuff, with a wealth of wish-fulfilment for the reader beneath a grim exterior of history."
Times [London] Lit Sup p607 O 21 '39 900w
Wis Lib Bul 35:186 N '39

CLOUGH, SHEPARD BANCROFT. France: a history of national economics, 1789-1939. 498p $3.50 Scribner

330.944 France—Economic policy. France—Economic conditions 39-6613

A comprehensive survey of the subject by an assistant professor of history at Columbia University. Bibliography. Index.

"The author is keenly interested in political as well as economic theory and is thoroughly familiar with the political history of France. The long 'Bibliography and Notes' shows the depth and thoroughness of his research and is quite as interesting to the scholar as the text." A. L. Dunham
+ — Am Hist R 45:135 O '39 700w
Reviewed by J. G. Heinberg
Am Pol Sci R 33:720 Ag '39 180w
Foreign Affairs 18:164 O '39 10w

CLYNE, ROBERT W., ed. Engineering opportunities; foreword by Karl T. Compton. 397p il $3 (12s 6d) Appleton-Century

600 Engineering. Engineering as a profession (W) 39-27482

"This volume is a non-technical survey of engineering activities in industry intended to show some of the opportunities which exist to-day in the field of professional engineering." (Acknowledgment) Index.

Booklist 35:343 Je 15 '39

"While some of the contributors are inclined to pontificate a bit, the articles are for the most part extremely well-written, incidental proof of the growing articulateness of this class of professional man." P. C. Eaton
+ Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 230w
Eng N 123:78 Ag 31 '39 90w

"The young man who contemplates a career in engineering will be especially benefited by the information the book contains. Each field is described in sufficient detail to afford a practical understanding of its present condition and its future."
+ Management R 28:287 Ag '39 280w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:38 Jl '39
Pratt p10 winter '40

"Some of the information is specially American, but most of it is applicable anywhere. Some of the writers give a condensed but usually readable account of their speciality, and only add as an afterthought a few hints on how to enter it. . . The essays are in alphabetical order, hence architecture is No. 3 while building is No. 6; and fatigue of materials at No. 9 is a long way from mechanical vibrations at No. 26, but the index partly remedies this."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p567 S 30 '39 200w
Wis Lib Bul 35:141 Jl '39

COADY, MOSES M. Masters of their own destiny. 170p map $2 Harper

334 Cooperation—Nova Scotia. Education of adults. St Francis Xavier university, Antigonish, Nova Scotia 39-25969

An account, by the director of extension at St Francis Xavier University, of "the development of the program of adult education and economic cooperation sponsored by [the] University, in Antigonish, Nova Scotia." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 36:126 D 1 '39
Boston Transcript p9 Ja 6 '40 50w

"'Masters of Their Own Destiny' is written in a direct and simple style. It abounds in apt analogies and striking similes. Much has been written about the Antigonish movement in recent years. But none was so qualified to write about it as Dr. Coady. His life has been intertwined with it. Through it all runs faith in the common man." Aloisius Muench
+ Commonweal 31:15 O 27 '39 950w
New Repub 102:94 Ja 15 '40 40w

COAN, FREDERICK GAYLORD. Yesterdays in Persia and Kurdistan; foreword by Robert E. Speer. 284p il map $2.50 Saunders studio

B or 92 Missions—Persia. Missions—Kurdistan 39-18495

"Dr. Coan is now retired after a long lifetime of missionary work in Persia. He was born there of missionary parents who went out in 1849. His purpose in this book is to present 'the human and romantic aspects of a missionary's life.'" Christian Century

COAN, F. G.—Continued

Christian Century 56:547 Ap 26 '39 60w
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 22 '39 460w

COATES, ADRIAN. A basis of opinion. 462p $4.50 (16s) Macmillan

110 Philosophy. Semantics. Meaning (psychology) [39-5565]

"This book contains a lively critique of familiar philosophic standpoints because of their alleged 'metaphysical' and 'unhistorical' basis, together with a lengthy argument for the 'subjective pluralism' of the author. Mr. Coates gives an interesting account of his intellectual pilgrimage, beginning with an early admiration for the atheistic Shelley and terminating with his present 'Point of View,' and of how he found the seeds for the latter in Croce, Myerson, and Aristotle after wandering through what was to him the desert of philosophic literature." (J Philos) Index of persons.

"A bare synopsis does not do justice to the spirit of Mr. Coates' book or to its wide-flung contents. The development of his argument leads him to discuss a variety of topics, including logic, language, cause, perception, freedom, chance, purpose, truth, and historiography; and he seldom fails to make provoking and penetrating observations upon those he is considering. He advances his conclusions with considerable intellectual passion, without much formal apparatus and with a laudable attempt at clarity and intellectual integrity; and many of his comments illustrate that 'astringent scepticism' concerning human affairs which is extolled by him. On the other hand, the discussions are often long-winded and the book as a whole is much larger than its theoretical content warrants." E. N.

+ — J Philos 36:24 Ja 5 '39 550w

"Whether one agrees or not with his point of view, it must be admitted that Mr. Coates has written an interesting book and has much that is important to say with regard to the relation of language and logic." L. S. Stebbing

+ — Nature 142:657 O 8 '38 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p396 Je 11 '38 650w

COATS, ALICE M. The story of Horace; retold and il. by [the author]. [52]p $1.50 Coward-McCann [3s 6d Faber]

(W) 39-9214

Story of Horace, the ingratiating bear, who ate his way slowly but surely thru a whole family, from great-grandpa down to Little Lulu, because no one had the heart to shoot him.

"Alice Coats has given it the perfect pictures; Victorian as an antimacassar, jolly in color, stylized just enough to stand the necessary repetition, and, above all, with the right humor. . . Solid English critics went daft with delight over the book. Of course the whole thing would be ruined if Horace were not practically irresistible. He is." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ap 9 '39 350w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack
Boston Transcript p13 Je 29 '39 60w

"There is folklore quality in this tale, and Miss Coats's version and drawings have a fine absurdity and a vigorous humor. 'Horace' will find his most appreciative child audience among boys and girls of 9 and over. Adults, too, will enjoy this old favorite in such lively form." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 2 '39 90w

"The book has won a literary prize and some have called it a nursery classic; to us its humor is coy rather than honestly funny."

— New Yorker 15:104 My 13 '39 50w

"Cheerfully bloodthirsty folk story of a charming, voracious bear. Child psychologists may shudder, but children won't."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 15 '39 20w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON SHEAHAN). Five Bushel Farm; pictures by Helen Sewell. 152p $2 Macmillan

(W) 39-5776

Continues the adventures of Sally, the heroine of Away Goes Sally (Book Review Digest, 1934). Andrew Patterson, whose father's ship was four months overdue, was taken from Philadelphia to Maine, by the people who were caring for him. In Maine Andrew met Sally, and the two children played together happily, despite Andrew's anxiety over his father. Eventually, thru the kindly cooperation of Sally's family, Captain Patterson was located. The time is the early nineteenth century. For grades four to five.

Booklist 35:277 Ap 15 '39

"A pretty, poetic story of children in the wilderness when America was young." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 Mr 26 '39 450w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 40w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 30 '39 130w
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '39

"A thoroughly delightful and absorbing story with excitements and surprises and with a poem for every chapter."

+ Horn Bk M 15:171 My '39 160w

"The book has real charm and the tempo is that of a more leisurely day, pointed up with moments of excitement." M. R. Lucas

+ Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 120w

"In this book as in her others Elizabeth Coatsworth's style has a lovely simplicity. She has an instinct for the right word and an imaginative feeling for the New England country. Rarely in books for children do we find such excellent and sensitive characterization. . . Helen Sewell's illustrations, done in a style which resembles old steel engravings, have a charm and strength perfectly in keeping with the story." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 30 '39 470w
New Yorker 15:106 My 13 '39 60w

"There is a young heroine, as well as a young hero. The story is pleasantly told, and, with its atmospheric illustrations by Helen Sewell, the book helps the young reader to comprehend the charm and quaintness of the early 19th century."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 2 '39 90w
Wis Lib Bul 35:115 Je '39

COBBAN, ALFRED. Dictatorship; its history and theory. 352p $3.75 Scribner [12s 6d Cape, J]

321.6 Despotism. Dictators [39-25264]

"Dr. Cobban is an Englishman trained in the classical tradition of political theory. . . Dr. Cobban does not neglect economic factors in his analysis, but he is convinced that ideas do a work of their own in this world. 'The new totalitarian dictatorship is powerful,' he writes, 'not because it rules men's bodies, but because it controls their minds.' The origins of contemporary dictatorship he finds in early modern theories of the sovereignty of the state, and especially in those of Hobbes and Spinoza." Sat R of Lit

"A most painstaking and scholarly analysis, which, however, on account of the brilliancy and clarity of the style is easily within the reach of the general reader." Hans Kohn

+ Boston Transcript p13 S 22 '39 160w

"This is a profoundly interesting discussion important to all who want to understand the politics of their time." J. L. Hammond
+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 7 '39 800w
Reviewed by Rustem Vambery
Nation 149:622 D 2 '39 950w
Pratt p5 winter '40
Reviewed by Crane Brinton
Sat R of Lit 20:10 S 16 '39 750w

"The arrangement of the book is not quite satisfactory. The argument seems to be falling out of its frame—though it is easier to indicate the defect than to state how it should be put right. Indeed, the spirit of the book triumphs over all faults of presentation."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p351 Je 17 '39 600w

COCHRAN, LOUIS. Boss man. 271p $2.50 Caxton printers
39-30682

Continuation of the author's former novel Son of Haman (Book Review Digest, 1937). The period is that of the World war; the story deals with the misery of the sharecroppers in the deep South, and with the hold of Lije Smith upon them. The story ends with the death in the war of Elizabeth Fortenberry's son, and the near tragedy it brought to Lije Smith.

Books p10 O 29 '39 160w
Boston Transcript p2 N 18 '39 30w
Canadian Forum 19:301 D '39 80w

"It neither caricatures the owners nor romanticizes the lowly workers, but with fairness as well as sympathy depicts the scenes and, as far as fiction may, analyzes the conditions of that portion of 'the nation's number one problem.' "
Christian Century 56:1306 O 25 '39 80w
Reviewed by L. B. Salomon
Nation 149:586 N 25 '39 60w

"Mr. Cochran is not a craftsman. He writes, apparently, as the spirit moves. It is honest writing, true to the subject and the characters, but the reader is not sufficiently taken into account. There are dramatic scenes in plenty, but some are scamped, and in others he tries to do too much and leaves a lot of loose threads of action unexplained. There are conversations that go beyond their point, and unimportant characters frequently are given more space and attention than they warrant. These faults make confusing reading, and cause the novel to seem longer than it is." Robert Van Gelder
+ — N Y Times p22 O 29 '39 360w

"Presenting neither a beautiful nor by any means complete picture of the South, 'Boss Man' pictures one landlord and the tenants on his plantation. But there are as many landlords as plantations in the South, and their characters vary as widely as the Southern soil." E. H.
Sat R of Lit 21:21 Ja 13 '40 200w

COCHRANE, GORDON STANLEY. Baseball, the fans' game. 183p il $2 Funk 796.357 Baseball (W) 39-27429

Reminiscences of a famous major league catcher and manager, containing stories and anecdotes of other players, as well as some valuable hints on baseball technique. Glossary.

Booklist 35:326 Je 1 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '39
Reviewed by Eleanor Kidder
Library J 64:564 Jl '39 170w

"The anecdotes and humor of the book are not on a par with the technical comment. The writing is clear and adequate, except that at times there are very forced and conventionalized slang metaphors. But these criticisms are minor. This is a good book on baseball. It should definitely contribute to one's fuller understanding of the game. Also, it contains some remarkable action photographs." J. T. Farrell
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:16 My 27 '39 800w

COFFEE, LENORE, and COWEN, WILLIAM JOYCE. Family portrait; a play in three acts. 184p $2 Random house
812 Jesus Christ—Drama. Mary, Virgin—Drama (W) 39-27430

Interpretation in dramatic form of the life of Christ, altho he never appears on the stage. Mary, his mother, and the various members of the family, play their parts, and the influence of Christ upon his family during his lifetime and after his death, is shown.

Booklist 35:327 Je 1 '39

"Any attempt to elevate the language would have robbed the play of the reality which is essential to its purpose. As written, it is odd and charming and rises to moments of gentle but genuine beauty." W. P. Eaton
+ Books p11 Jl 23 '39 180w

"Clever and persuasive. The playwrights have been successful in achieving a contemporary viewpoint, so that at times one gets a flash and says, 'Why, of course, that's how Jesus must have seemed to his family.' Unluckily the family might have been almost any small-town family puzzled by an unusual member."
+ — Boston Transcript p3 My 20 '39 60w
Dramatic criticism by E. V. Wyatt
Cath World 149:89 Ap '39 500w
Reviewed by Lewis Nichols
N Y Times p17 Jl 30 '39 100w
Dramatic criticism by Rosamond Gilder
Theatre Arts Mo 23:318 My '39 1300w

COFFIN, ROBERT PETER TRISTRAM. Captain Abby and Captain John; an around-the-world biography. 375p il $2.50 Macmillan
B or 92 Pennell, Mrs Abby (Reed). Pennell, John Dunning. Seafaring life (W) 39-30624

Story of two Maine sea captains, Captain John Pennell and his wife, Abby. The book is based upon the Pennell diaries and other family papers, and presents a view of a shipbuilding, sailing Maine clan in the days of the clipper ships. Index.

Booklist 36:148 D 15 '39

"Mr. Coffin mentions, almost with a tear in his eye, the old hairwreaths the ladies used to make, devising marvelous flowers out of the hair of all their relatives. White hair, black, yellow and brown hair, coarse hair and fine, were carefully and cleverly woven into blossoms, the whole enclosed in a glass frame. . . Mr. Coffin's book is very much like one of those wreaths. He has woven in some strands of loving kindness from the lives of all the Pennells. They were all good, valiant people." William McFee
+ Books p6 N 12 '39 800w

"To the chain of literary events celebrating life in Maine, most of which links he has hammered out himself, Mr. Coffin adds one more, a very solid, a very hefty link. Maybe he hammered fast on some pages, and might better have beaten his ore to finer sentences; but after a while the plainness and the insistence of the diaries as he reports them becomes a strength of itself. An age went into the record." John Holmes
+ — Boston Transcript p1 N 18 '39 600w
Christian Science Monitor p10 F 3 '40 700w
Commonweal 31:291 Ja 19 '40 120w
New Repub 101:121 N 15 '39 20w

"It is a book both of the land and of the sea; in Mr. Coffin's pages the land reaches out into the sea, and the sea crawls and creeps up into the land. It is my guess that as time goes on, 'Captain Abby and Captain John' will become a minor American classic. Mr. Coffin has done other things much more completely his own, but he has done nothing else comparable to this in its valuable Americanism." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p9 N 5 '39 650w
New Yorker 15:87 N 4 '39 40w

COFFIN, R. P. T.—Continued

"It is a great pity that we have apparently lost as a literary form the long historical essay such as Macaulay wrote; for we too often see what might have made an excellent historical study padded out into a repetitious book—like 'Captain Abby and Captain John,' which, in its finished form, resembles one of those works of ancestral piety written only for circulation in the family." B. D.

Sat R of Lit 21:20 N 25 '39 260w

"Mr Coffin has written his story . . . with loving enthusiasm. If the book has a fault it lies in an enthusiasm which causes him to overemphasize and underline so much. The story in its bare outlines is so interesting that the 'exclamation points' he admits to adding seem unnecessary; and the lyricism of the writing, while often beautiful, may become a little overwhelming to the reader who has not been born in Maine."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 5 '39 650w

Time 34:72 O 30 '39 70w

COFFIN, ROBERT PETER TRISTRAM. Collected poems. 354p $3 Macmillan

811 (W) 39-8581

"The bulk of the book consists of poems chosen from [Mr Coffin's] eight previous volumes of verse. He prefaces the collection with a manifesto of his beliefs about poetry and life." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Booklist 35:303 My 15 '39

"This is such nice poetry, such decent poetry, that one would like to make much of it. If only wholesomeness were all . . . but then one thinks of Wordsworth's magic way with words, and Whittier's strong moral fervor, and Robinson's sly humor, and Frost's implications of loveliness. Mr. Coffin is a devotee of a sound tradition of realistic pastoral poetry, but as yet the increment that he has added to it is not profoundly distinguished, though it may be read, and even more listened to, with real pleasure." G. F. Whicher

+ — Books p3 Je 11 '39 650w

"Mr. Coffin's present popularity depends upon two things: clarity and melody. Both these qualities properly applied are aids to poetry. In Mr. Coffin's work it must be admitted that too often the clarity reveals a banal subject while the melody is simplified to the point of monotony. It is tiresome to read some 350 poems, the majority of which are built on couplets. As poetry, with a few notable exceptions, this book is not very successful. What Mr. Coffin's verse does do is to capture a great deal of the homely atmosphere of his favorite country: Maine." John Ritchey

— + Christian Science Monitor p11 My 20 '39 300w

"In a day when it is fashionable for poets to write in chipped or broken rhyme, or no rhyme at all, of darkness and disaster and revolution, it is a pleasure to come upon the collected works of a poet whose face is toward the light. These poems have significance not only for their fine craftsmanship, but for the joy they engender by striking chords of feeling common to all humanity." Jessica Powers

+ Commonweal 30:82 My 12 '39 250w

Reviewed by H. G. Leach

Forum 102:48 Jl '39 30w

"When he achieves, on the technical level, toughness and clearness; and when, in the sphere of content, he succeeds in being saving of emotion, Mr. Coffin is the local poet he idealizes in his preface. It is doubtful if he is, as yet, more than this." E. L. Forbes

+ — New Eng Q 12:553 S '39 900w

New Repub 99:288 Jl 12 '39 50w

"Robert Coffin, with his honest, homespun poetry, has woven something useful and noble into our national fabric. May his torch of native pine burn a long time." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p10 My 7 '39 320w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p18 My 21 '39 600w

"Mr. Coffin's poetic appreciations of Maine's people, scenery, weather, and folkways are vigorous, and frequently sensitive. His chief fault is sentimentality."

+ — New Yorker 15:80 Ap 22 '39 30w

"Robert P. Tristram Coffin's collected volume contains some striking things. More sentimental than Mr. Van Doren, his poetry is also more highly-colored, sometimes with fine pictorial effect. He knows New England farm life, loves the State of Maine, can paint a vivid portrait or crack the whip of a fine ballad measure. His fault is facility. His work is less even in merit than Mr. Van Doren's, his perception less acute. But he is an enjoyable American poet." W. R. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:18 Ag 5 '39 80w

Reviewed by Desmond Hawkins

Spec 163:301 Ag 25 '39 210w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 16 '39 50w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 9 '39 390w

Time 34:70 O 9 '39 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p599 O 14 '39 230w

COFFMAN, RAMON PEYTON. The child's story of science; il. by Frank C. Papé and Roy Anderson Ketcham. 246p maps $2.50 Putnam

500 Science—Juvenile literature 39-8736

Articles on various aspects of science, written for young readers. The material is based on the author's newspaper column, and deals with astronomy, geology, botany, zoology, with some material also on chemistry, physics, medicine, anthropology, meteorology, and criminology. Similar in style to the author's Child's Story of the Human Race (Book Review Digest, 1925). Index.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p7 Ag 27 '39 300w

"A well-equipped library has better reference material on all these subjects, but the book will serve as an introduction to science, stimulating the child with an inquiring mind to further reading. For twelve- to fourteen-year-old readers, but could be read aloud to children of eight who have an interest in science." Marian Herr

Library J 64:425 My 15 '39 90w

"Hardly more than individual sketches, the chapters nevertheless achieve a continuity which, with the accompanying drawings, gives an excellent panorama of scientific advancement. The book will be read in its entirety by many. We hazard a guess that it will also be used as a reference and supplementary reading for many a schoolboy and girl."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:4 S '39 210w

COHEN, OCTAVUS ROY. Strange honeymoon. 265p $2 Appleton-Century

39-17095

Judith Clayton could not gain control of her great fortune until she married. In order to circumvent a dishonest uncle she proposed to marry Alan Hughes, who had recently lost his money. Alan accepted, altho he did not love Judith. The working out of their difficulties makes the story.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p11 Je 25 '39 180w

"Tense moments, colorful characters, and sprightly dialogue are combined to make the reader forget the summer heat and the tedium of everyday life." Regina Madden

+ Boston Transcript p3 Jl 15 '39 200w

"If the reader can manage to stick through the monotony of the first half of the book, he will be rewarded with a bang-up ending." B. S.

+ — N Y Times p7 Jl 2 '39 240w

COHN, GEORG. Neo-neutrality; tr. from the Danish by Arthur S. Keller and Einar Jensen. 388p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

341.3 Neutrality. War. Sanctions (international law) 39-19485

"Dr. Cohn, distinguished Danish scholar and statesman, has produced a comprehensive study of neutrality that is of particular interest at this time. . . Dr. Cohn assails the traditional system of neutrality and the League of Nations type of collective security, and advocates a 'Neo-Neutrality' to combine the advantages of both. He argues that old-fashioned neutrality accepted war and belligerent rights too readily, and sought merely to limit the area of conflict without preventing or stopping the conflict itself. Attempts to name the aggressor and apply sanctions against him, on the other hand, likewise admit the necessity of war and even tend to increase its range. Neo-Neutrality provides for close international coöperation in peacetime toward the prevention of war, and in wartime toward defense of neutral rights and cessation of hostilities." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau
Am Pol Sci R 33:893 O '39 500w

"Certain statements are susceptible of challenge. For example, exception must be taken to the statement that the United States has adopted 'a policy of co-ordinating neutrality with participation in sanctions.' And the reviewer can find no justification for the assertion that the Kellogg Pact proclaimed 'the abolition of war.' The author has thoroughly acquainted himself with the European and American literature on neutrality and has made a distinct contribution of his own to the subject." F. M. Russell
+ — Ann Am Acad 206:174 N '39 450w

Reviewed by A. N. Sack
Columbia Law R 39:1463 D '39 700w
New Repub 100:223 S 27 '39 30w

"This discussion of Neo-Neutrality unfortunately remains too theoretical, neglecting the practical problems which might arise for either Denmark or the United States. Dr. Cohn provides a very stimulating analysis of the causes of war, which he defines as a disease of irrationality—almost group insanity—rather than the consequence of economic and political conflict. He discusses all the recent publications relating to neutrality, and approaches every problem critically but temperately. The text, which is excellently translated by Mr. Arthur S. Keller, is enhanced by a lengthy bibliography and index." J. F. G.
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:21 Ag 5 '39 300w

COLBY, MERLE ESTES. A guide to Alaska. See Federal writers' project, Alaska

COLCORD, JOANNA CARVER. Your community; its provision for health, education, safety, and welfare. 249p il 85c Russell Sage

309.1 Social surveys. Community life. Charity organization. Social work (W) 39-2286

"This is not a study of a particular community but a guide to the study of any community. It tells the investigator what to look for, indicates the kinds of facts that are significant with reference to the resources and organization of a community, and describes the methods of procedure in finding the facts." (Christian Century) The book replaces a pamphlet entitled What Social Workers Should Know About Their Own Communities, last revised by Margaret F. Byington in 1929, and now out of print. The book contains a list of agencies, bibliography, and a subject index.

Reviewed by W. F. Walker
Am J Pub Health 30:94 Ja '40 300w

Reviewed by Mona Fletcher
Am Pol Sci R 33:337 Ap '39 160w
Booklist 35:200 F 15 '39
Christian Century 56:59 Ja 11 '39 50w

"Miss Colcord has rendered an invaluable service to all who are interested enough in a community to see what it is. No community survey should be attempted without first reading this book and following the excellent outline it contains." C. L. Willard, Jr.
+ Churchman 153:16 Mr 1 '39 150w
J Home Econ 31:402 Je '39 60w

"It is not a technical work prepared for professional social surveyors but is addressed to 'non-professional or pre-professional students of social conditions.' Yet this volume will be of very great service to the technical social surveyor in suggesting many of the most obvious questions which people are asking regarding their communities. . . Finally, it deals with the agencies for community planning and co-ordination. It contains a very valuable list of the agencies working in this field and also a list of references to books, pamphlets, and governmental reports." S. C. Kincheloe
+ J Religion 19:293 Jl '39 280w
Pratt p8 summer '39

"Your Community is refreshing and stimulating in its simplicity of presentation; facts and information necessary in order to know one's community are clearly indicated. Since it attempts practically nothing in setting forth techniques, it is safely outside the realm of controversy." G. H. Lawrence
+ Social Forces 18:144 O '39 700w

"Miss Colcord does not address social workers directly. She writes for 'the larger public,' lay study groups, civics classes, and pre-professional social work students. . . Notwithstanding this warning, this reviewer suggests that the so-called expert professional consultant on community survey work take the volume along. . . It is difficult to review a book like this and fail to mention the service of the Russell Sage Foundation in making possible the painstaking research necessary to publish 'Your Community' and finally in offering it to the public at such low cost. Social workers, like other people, take much for granted but it seems timely to express appreciation to the foundation for its valuable contribution, not only in the volume itself, but in its price which makes its wide distribution possible." Pierce Atwater
+ Survey 75:124 Ap '39 600w

COLE, CHARLES BRADFORD. Tool making; toolroom tools and equipment, machine tools, heat-treating processes, production methods, production tools; includes working drawings. 413p il $3.50 Am. tech. soc. [17s 6d Lockwood, C]

621.9 Tools. Machine tools 39-9494

"The text is written so that the beginning toolmaker is led from the simple facts about his personal tools and the equipment which the shop provides, to the processes of the toolmaker's craft. This is done through the presentation of many typical jobs. The jobs are presented as finished working drawings and the tools which they represent may be made from these drawings. The information which the drawings supply, and the study of the drawings themselves, will make an important contribution to the training of any toolmaker. The section on Production Tools is especially valuable for the toolmaker with some experience." Pref.

Booklist 36:38 O 1 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '39
N Y New Tech Bks 24:31 Ap '39
Pratt p12 autumn '39

COLE, CHARLES WOOLSEY. Colbert and a century of French mercantilism. 2v 532;675p $10 Columbia univ. press [50s Oxford]

330.151 Mercantile system. France—Economic policy. Colbert, Jean Baptiste 39-11008

Study of the French mercantile policies of Colbert, chief minister of Louis XIV of France

COLE, C. W.—Continued
in the seventeenth century. Actually the history covers the period from about 1596 to 1683. Bibliography and index at end of volume two.

"It is the understanding of Colbert and of mercantilist principles as practised in France that is so essential for the Canadian historian, and only with that can he begin to comprehend the course of Canadian development in the colonial period. To the general reader this admirable work has likewise an appeal for it gives an intimate portrayal of the application and results of economic doctrines which have been unhappily too thoroughly revived in our own day under the guise of nationalist economics and autarchy." R. M. Saunders

\+ Canadian Hist R 20:431 D '39 230w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 56:1109 S 13 '39 850w

"Professor Cole, of Amherst College, has put all economic historians in his debt by his full-length study. . . Nothing so complete has been written in English, and even, it may be said, in spite of Boissonnade's work, in French. Colbert is a more sympathetic figure to the present generation than he was to the last, for he practised autarky, planning, industrial control, and all the approved virtues with extraordinary thoroughness." A. P. W.

\+ Manchester Guardian p7 Je 30 '39 220w

"Here is a professor who condescends to lucid and graceful English and, generally speaking, avoids the Teutonic habit of using nouns as adjectives. He indulges in a delicate taste for amusing incident, and to whatever page we turn we have the sense of wandering through a museum crowded with the curious details of life that was lived by people of flesh and blood once upon a time." P. W. Wilson

\+ N Y Times p9 S 17 '39 1300w

Reviewed by A. P. Usher
Pol Sci Q 54:605 D '39 850w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 13 '39 190w

Times [London] Lit Sup p745 D 23 '39 1650w

COLE, GEORGE DOUGLAS HOWARD, and COLE, MRS MARGARET ISABEL (POSTGATE). Double blackmail. 284p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Collins]

39-23867

Detective story.

"A diverting yarn providing quantities of fun at the expense of sober characters, a complex but workable puzzle with rising interest, some knockabout scenes at Monte Carlo and finally a demonstration of his skill by that reliable old party, Superintendent Henry Wilson, of Scotland Yard." Will Cuppy

\+ Books p19 O 8 '39 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 50w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 18:380 S 9 '39 60w

"The story has its interest as well as its humor. But it is badly built: its plot cracks open on two separate occasions, and entirely extraneous material is brought in to patch it up at the end. The Coles' story-telling in this book is far below their best standard." Isaac Anderson

\+ — N Y Times p18 N 26 '39 200w

"Slow, involved tale. . . Scotland Yard crashes through with a pretty hasty solution."
New Yorker 15:80 O 7 '39 30w

"Noteworthy for elegant spoofing and capital characterizations rather than mystery—though that's present, also murder and suicide."

\+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 O 7 '39 40w

"A marked improvement on Mr. and Mrs. Cole's last novel. It is original in plan and more carefully written than is the authors' wont."

\+ Times [London] Lit Sup p480 Ag 12 '39 200w

COLE, GEORGE DOUGLAS HOWARD, and COLE, MRS MARGARET ISABEL (POSTGATE). Mrs Warrender's profession. 334p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Collins]

38-29066

"The five stories in this volume all deal with adventures in detection by Mrs. Warrender, a gentle, mild-mannered, elderly lady who makes no pretensions of being a detective but who solves several cases which are too much for her son, a famous private investigator." N Y Times

Booklist 35:174 Ja 15 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p13 Ja 15 '39 430w

"The 65-year-old manages to solve five cases in a most charming manner, although her birdlike simplicity is a little too much if you read all the cases at once. Rather, the Coles have written a good book to be picked up at odd moments. As such, we find it helpful." Marian Wiggin

\+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '39 100w

"The stories, though offering ample opportunities for first rate detection, showed signs of carelessness in construction which must certainly have brought on the old 'irk,' had it not been for Mrs. Warrender's soothing presence. Particularly was this so in 'Fatal Beauty,' an admirably conceived story which suffers from the blemish of an unnecessary and unwanted death, and in which the feelings of at least one of the characters are unnecessarily trampled on." G. Andrew

\+ — Canadian Forum 19:30 Ap '39 310w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 16:228 Ag 6 '38 20w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '39 160w

New Yorker 14:76 Ja 14 '39 20w

"Smoothly written and expertly constructed short pieces, mainly involving poison, and slightly on tiresome side."

\+ — Sat R of Lit 19:19 Ja 14 '39 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p521 Ag 6 '38 230w

COLE, GEORGE DOUGLAS HOWARD, and COLE, MRS MARGARET ISABEL (POSTGATE). Off with her head! 252p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Collins]

39-11271

Detective story.

"Recommended largely for its perfect background. Now let's have more murders at Oxford." Will Cuppy

\+ Books p12 My 14 '39 420w

"The romance is not too obtrusive to be disturbing, and the individuals of the town are so carefully characterized that each member of the crowded cast is distinct. On the whole, a thoroughly satisfying murder." Marian Wiggin

\+ Boston Transcript p2 My 13 '39 130w

"Some may prefer the Coles in a less violent mood than that of severed heads packed in biscuit tins, but the university background is always amusing, the story is carefully worked out, and the characterization is uniformly good, every one of the numerous figures being well and clearly drawn." E. R. Punshon

\+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 13 '39 190w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 17:142 Ja 28 '39 130w

"The story is in the best Cole manner, especially in the beginning. There is a slight let-down toward the end, but not enough of one to matter very much." Isaac Anderson

\+ N Y Times p18 My 14 '39 170w

"There being not much doubt about killer's identity, one turns to atmosphere and background—and both prospects are pleasing. Minor Cole."

Sat R of Lit 20:20 My 20 '39 40w

Reviewed by Nicholas Blake
Spec 161:1134 D 30 '38 90w

"Mr. and Mrs. Cole's new story 'Off with Her Head' is disappointing for two reasons; first, it falls below their own standard, and secondly a mystery set in Oxford and written by a Fellow of University College and his wife raises hopes which are not realized. . . Inspector Fairford's abilities either as a detective or a suitor scarcely justify his poor manners."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p790 D 10 '38 150w

COLE, GEORGE DOUGLAS HOWARD, and POSTGATE, RAYMOND WILLIAM. The British common people, 1746-1938 [Eng title: The common people, 1746-1938]. 621p maps $4 Knopf [6s Methuen]

330.942 Great Britain—Economic conditions. Great Britain—History. Labor and laboring classes—Great Britain. Middle classes 39-27362

An attempt to provide a modern version of the rise of the English working class from the middle of the eighteenth century to the present day. Beginning with a survey of the eighteenth century England county by county, the workings of the forces which have changed England into its present urbanized society are traced. Interspersed with the economic history are political chapters written by Mr Postgate. Bibliography. Index.

"This is an interesting, well written and important book. Yet many who may be attracted to it by its title will be disappointed. In the preface its authors limit their history to economic and political topics; but they do not warn the reader that in their view the history of the British common people is concerned solely with 'working-class progress.'" F. A. Knox

+ — Am Econ R 29:568 S '39 420w

Reviewed by F. J. Klingberg
Am Hist R 45:389 Ja '40 370w

"[There] are small defects [but they] are not indicative of any general unreliability. Indeed, the later chapters of this book will prove of great value to students of contemporary British politics. The devotion of only fifteen lines to the development of broadcasting and the B.B.C. is surprising, but in general the summaries of economic and social developments since 1920 are remarkably well done." H. A. Marquand

+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:914 O '39 950w

Reviewed by S. M. Scott
Ann Am Acad 206:180 N '39 600w
Booklist 35:304 My 15 '39

"Mr. Cole and Mr. Postgate are both veteran writers on social questions. Within the two covers of this book they have brought together an immense body of factual material and have supplied an intelligible interpretation. The material is, at times, almost too voluminous, making the reading pretty heavy for the layman, for whom the book is clearly intended. But in the large they have done an excellent job. Their book is well grounded and convincing, and can be warmly recommended to all who are interested in the major social problems of our time." W. L. Langer

+ — Books p42 N 12 '39 1200w

"The volume should meet not only with admiration but with enthusiasm. . . It is not a book that will replace the political histories of the period: but both the student and the general reader will find it an enlightening and stimulating supplement to the more conventional descriptions of the developments of the past two hundred years." Edgar McInnis

+ Canadian Hist R 20:56 Mr '39 320w

"As a compact, unified history of industrial problems, approached from present-day conditions, this carefully compiled volume should rank as a standard work of reference for the sane and realistic reformer." H. J. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 O 28 '39 600w
Ethics 49:383 Ap '39 750w
Foreign Affairs 17:819 Jl '39 10w

"This is not a book for dessert reading, but its satisfying completeness and the real drama of its subject make it necessary reading for anyone interested in the present working-class movement and the present condition of capitalist organization. It is a book which offers the meat of solid facts to a passionate and seething world which sorely needs them." Katharine Scherman

+ Living Age 356:397 Je '39 550w
Manchester Guardian p7 N 18 '38 210w

"Here is a book which deserves a place on the shelves not far from the works of the Webbs and the Hammonds. Unlike those great partnerships, the authors have not opened up unexplored territory, but they have made a more thorough survey of the whole history of the British working classes than anyone else has hitherto attempted." Keith Hutchison

+ Nation 149:78 Jl 15 '39 700w

Reviewed by Leo Huberman
New Repub 100:54 Ag 16 '39 850w

"This [is a] masterly book. [It] is far and away the best available book on its subject. It leads the reader from the last Jacobite rebellion up to the present day, with all its disturbing uncertainties, so skilfully and so fairly that it stakes out a due claim to be an indispensable book." H. L. Beales

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:182 F 4 '39 800w

"The works of Mr. Cole have already been widely publicized in this country and it is sufficient to state that he is versatile, imaginative, competent and sincere, in everything from a detective novel to an Oxford lecture. He lacks only that rare gift of Mr. Postgate's, the gift of putting life and drive and compulsion into the reading of dry facts and complex interpretations. But the two men together make an excellent pair of writers for curious and eager readers in every walk of life." Lloyd Eshleman

+ N Y Times p17 Je 4 '39 1200w

"The title of this book is deceptive. We would not expect a work with so good a title to be so dull. We hope to learn about the common man, what he was doing and thinking, what myths he lived upon, what codes he accepted, and how he looked upon his equals and betters. To such questions and others we are given no answers. Rather the authors have offered thousands of details about what was done to the common man, the statutes and decisions and practices against his interest, the factory acts in his favor, etc. There are long pages about labor leaders and their quarrels with one another. If we had been told enough about them to make them characters in our memory we would not complain. We are given, however, much sound if unexciting economic history." Wallace Notestein

— + Sat R of Lit 20:16 My 13 '39 390w

Discussion by R. W. Postgate & Wallace Notestein
Sat R of Lit 20:9 Jl 15 '39 600w

"The real causes of disappointment arise, perhaps, from the very virtues of the book. For the most part the authors are fairly impartial, and not particularly stimulating. They are also brief and quite inclusive—and, therefore, necessarily superficial. The book does not thoroughly or satisfactorily answer many of the questions it raises nor does it stimulate. It should prove of most interest and value to non-specialists with some knowledge of British geography and history." George Woodbridge

Survey G 28:549 S '39 420w
Times [London] Lit Sup p3 Ja 7 '39 600w

COLE, LUELLA WINIFRED. Teaching in the elementary school. 518p $2.50 Farrar

372 Teaching. Teachers. Education of children
39-2370

Textbook dealing with "the precise needs of teachers now in service, as revealed through statements made by a total of 1,377 elementary school teachers." (Foreword) The book presents discussions of many of these problems. Index.

COLE, L. W.—Continued

Booklist 35:226 Mr 15 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '39

Reviewed by H. J. Otto
El School J 40:69 S '39 550w

"The plan of the book necessitates its emphasis on detail and predestines its use by teachers who adhere to the traditionally 'essentialist' pattern of elementary education. The book would be more useful to teachers in service than as a text in a college 'technique' course. . . However, if any prospective teacher is in doubt concerning the social, physical, intellectual, and personality requirements of a successful elementary teacher, Miss Cole's book definitely points out the problems to be faced before such teaching is selected as a vocation by a person of limited imagination and skill." E. K. Rolar
Social Educ 3:442 S '39 210w

COLE, MARGARET ISABEL (POSTGATE) (MRS GEORGE DOUGLAS HOWARD COLE), ed. See New Fabian research bureau. Democratic Sweden

COLEMAN, MRS MARY LOUISE. Bees in the garden and honey in the larder [il. with line drawings by Henry R. Diamond]. 132p $1.75 Doubleday

638.1 Bees. Honey (W) 38-29045

"A simple and practical record of beekeeping today; how to acquire a few bees; what to do with them; and . . . how to use that golden fluid, honey, the oldest of sweets." Pref.

"There is honey in the author's style as well as in her larder—recipes for honey soap, honey furniture polish, honey cocktails, and lots of honeyed philosophic asides. If you like that sort of thing, it's all very sweet."
Atlantic Mr '39 80w

Booklist 35:169 Ja 15 '39

"This little book . . . is a personal record—with delightful illustrations—and not a handbook; but for this very reason I think it may give other amateurs a better—certainly broader—preliminary introduction to beekeeping than technical pamphlets. . . The book is sound and helpful in all its practical information, and it is all the more useful because it gives some of the by-the-way pleasures that go along with beekeeping." Ruth Suckow
+ Books p28 Ap 2 '39 450w

"Mrs. Coleman writes with a bright humor that is not untouched by a really poetic quality. Henry R. Diamond's drawings are illustrative and engaging. The book has individual distinction and unusual charm."
+ N Y Times p4 Ja 15 '39 450w
Pratt p15 spring '39

COLEMAN, MRS SATIS NARRONA (BARTON). Your child's music. 180p $1.75 Day

780.7 Music—Instruction and study (W) 39-27308

A well-known teacher of music for young children discusses the phases of a child's music. "Your child will need music all his life. . . He will need the music of others, but most of all will he need his own musical expression. He will need the creative pleasures which music-making will bring him, the satisfaction of accomplishment, and the realization of his power in producing it. He will need the gratification of his sense of beauty and the development of his aesthetic taste which the making of good music will cultivate in him." (p. 3) Includes topics for discussion in parent study groups.

Booklist 35:286 My 1 '39
Horn Bk M 15:173 My '39 90w

COLLIN DELAVAUD, MARIE (MOREAL DE BREVANS) (MARIE COLMONT, pseud). The lucky vagabond; tr. by Maida C. Darnton; il. by Martha Lamb. 223p $2 Coward-McCann

38-29528

The scene of the story is the northern country of Auvergne. It describes what happened to little Mimi when she was taken to the home of some cruel aunts, and how she was rescued by Daniel, when she whistled Au Clair de la Lune.

Horn Bk M 14:305 S '38 90w

"The book is translated from the French and loses none of its beauty of expression in the translation. Although the appeal of this book will be limited, children of the elementary grades who can read well, might enjoy it." C. E. Scott
+ Library J 64:118 F 1 '39 190w

"At times the plot seems overdrawn, but it supplies the excitement many children crave with artistry and without sentimentality. The translation, though occasionally awkward, is far better than the one made of the author's 'A Winter Nightingale' [Book Review Digest, 1937] and even in translation the reader feels the beauty and individuality of this writer's style. Her characters are made amazingly real in a few words." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 22 '39 650w

COLLINGWOOD, ROBIN GEORGE. An autobiography. 167p $2.75 (7s 6d) Oxford

B or 92 Realism. History—Philosophy

"The name autobiography suggests senile maunderings about the brave days of old and all the titled people the author has met. Professor Collingwood is anything but senile and is not retailing tittle-tattle. This book is in fact his philosophical testament, written in case failing health does not allow him to develop his views fully and systematically. Negatively, it is an attack on the 'realism' now prevalent, which he considers has reduced philosophy to a futile parlour game. Positively, it is a sketch of a philosophy of history." Manchester Guardian

"In spite of [some] inexcusable extravagance, the book is to be recommended both for its intrinsic interest and for its estimate of the significance of the 'realistic' movement in British philosophy. Its estimate of the 'realistic' movement is surely not wholly satisfactory; but Professor Collingwood has seen some faults of 'realism' very clearly." S. P. L.
+ — J Philos 36:717 D 21 '39 350w

"This is a challenging and vital book. There is plenty of hard hitting all round, and in the last chapter a bout with the politicians. It is good reading, too, in spite of signs of hasty writing." A. D. R.
+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 15 '39 180w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 18:222 Ag 5 '39 1400w

"Mr. Collingwood has written the most interesting book that has come out of Oxford for some time. Himself a distinguished ornament of the Oxford scene, an eminent authority on Roman Britain . . . an active, and what is not always the case in Oxford, a publishing philosopher, he has yet remained a curious, aloof, somewhat puzzling figure. 'I wish to goodness you would come off the fence,' commented a former tutor of his, a still more professional philosopher, rather angrily. With this book the Professor has certainly come off the fence, and with a bounce that will resound." A. L. Rowse
Spec 163:262 Ag 18 '39 1100w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 12 '39 420w
(Reprinted from London Observer)

Times [London] Lit Sup p464 Ag 5 '39 700w

COLLINS, ARCHIE FREDERICK. Photography for fun and money. 391p il $3 (10s 6d) Appleton-Century

770 Photography (W) 39-3062

"The practice and theory of photography are here set forth with 135 diagrams and drawings as well as several half-tone illustrations. The book is intended for the amateur, who will find detailed, although simply written, instructions in the various fields, including color photography and moving pictures." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 24:27 Ap '39

"Mr. Collins tries to be all-embracing and succeeds only in turning out a superficial hack rewrite job. He has crowded in an immense amount of poorly digested and poorly organized material, thereby multiplying the opportunities for error. Inevitably the reader, after spotting a few such errors, begins to doubt the accuracy of the whole book."

— N Y Times p26 S 10 '39 120w

Wis Lib Bul 35:109 Je '39

COLLINS, NORMAN. Love in our time. 287p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Gollancz]

(W) 39-16405

Story of the first year of married life of Gerald and Alice Sneyd. They start out rather nicely, with a pseudo-Tudor suburban home, a yellow sports car, and firm intentions not to have a family just yet. Troubles thicken, however. Gerald's father dies and leaves a widow dependent on Gerald; the baby comes, the car must go; but eventually, with the understanding help of Alice's lovable old father, the story ends happily.

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

"A particular merit in this novel is that, while none of the characters is really particularly nice, yet one grows fond of them. . . . The instinct for life and for the decencies is so strong in these descendants of peasants and countryfolk that they ride out all storms but the last, and go down to death decently. Their innate kindness and generosity is virtue itself." Iris Barry

+ Books p8 Jl 23 '39 550w

"This young Englishman's story is beautifully conceived, timed and executed. Mr. Collins has the nicest sense of humor we have met in a long time, and it is amazing that he can be so pungent without once resorting to malice." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p1 Jl 22 '39 800w

"Any book which thus challenges the shallow, thoughtless, impractical, mode of life with which so many young couples seem to surround themselves has a salutary purpose in the end, even though (as in this case) it may contain elements which are distasteful to some readers. In so far as 'Love in Our Time' explores beneath the spurious semblance of security which marks the precarious suburban existence of Gerald and Alice Sneyd, it possesses definite value as a warning. As literature, it is less successful." M. W. S.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 12 '39 600w

"It was not a fortunate first year, but neither are the difficulties exaggerated. Gerald and Alice are ordinarily good portraits of ordinary people: Biddle, old Sneyd, and the Widow Sneyd are creations. The writing is economical and soberly felicitous. This is an honest, truth-telling novel." Harold Brighouse

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ja 17 '39 380w

New Repub 100:84 Ag 23 '39 40w

"Excellent light entertainment written in an easy style with a quiet and mature sense of humour." John Mair

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:94 Ja 21 '39 160w

"Here is a book about little people by a writer who loves them and knows how to describe them with gentle irony and philosophic humor. Excellent entertainment for midsummer afternoons." Drake de Kay

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 30 '39 700w

"A touching document about unimportant, everyday people."

+ New Yorker 15:59 Jl 29 '39 50w

"[The story] is not as grim as it may seem because of the way Mr. Collins has written it. The best way to put it is to say that he has distilled it into a soft, simple, and vaguely nostalgic speech until it sounds like an old lyric, sad but pleasant to the ear. It is, in this way, strongly English, in tone and setting, and in the characters, each of whom, to the most minor, is quaintly and lovingly penned in. Mr. Biddle, for example, Alice's father, stands out in full Dickensian panoply alive and gesturing and British as can be." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 20:13 Jl 29 '39 460w

"It is Mr. Collins' belief in the better natures of his characters that gives his book its distinction and its dramatic interest. We are acutely anxious about what is going to happen to Gerald and Alice because we feel a lively sympathy with them. In its naturalism, in its economy, in its humanity, this really is an admirable novel." Forrest Reid

+ Spec 162:142 Ja 27 '39 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p39 Ja 21 '39 270w

Wis Lib Bul 35:166 O '39

Reviewed by Ralph Thompson

Yale R n s 29:viii autumn '39 200w

COLLIS, MAURICE. Lords of the sunset; a tour in the Shan states. 326p il map $3 Dodd [15s Faber]

915.91 Shan states [39-9219]

The Shan states lying between Burma and China came under British control when British Burma was annexed in 1885. While their princes owe allegiance to the English crown the Shan states exist as isolated semi-independent principalities and they retain their oriental customs of past centuries. Mr. Collis has placed on paper the charm of this Arcadia whose aristocracy "carry manners to such a point of grace and consideration that they give the Shans a particular culture of their own."

Books p22 Ap 2 '39 220w

"Mr. Collis is an excellent writer, sensitive and engrossed in the things he likes to observe. His book is the work of a civilized sensibility." V. S. Pritchett

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 N 16 '38 500w

"Mr. Collis has written a charming travel-book." G. E. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 O 21 '38 330w

"To this little-known and lovely land, among these charming and exquisitely decorative people, Maurice Collis took with him the intellectual equipment not only of a writer but of a former British official in Burma. And he has written a peculiarly delightful book, from whose harmony of sheer enjoyment sound, nevertheless, some serious overtones."

+ N Y Times p8 F 12 '39 500w

"Mr. Collis is able to transmit to us the infinite charm of Lady Laughing Water, Lady Golden Softness, Lady Gliding Foam and the other Shan princesses, women as gentle, lovely and lovable as their names; and his book will afford a refuge for all who wish to escape for a few hours at least from the sick hurries, the divided aims, of the harassed and despairing world which we miscall civilisation." Archibald Lyall

+ Spec 161:918 N 25 '38 100w

"Lucid and delightful description of the country, which, although going through a transition stage, appears miraculously to be making the best of both worlds, the East and the West."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p664 O 15 '38 550w

COLMONT, MARIE, pseud. See Collin Delavaud, M.

COLUMBIA encyclopedia in one volume; comp. and ed. at Columbia university; Clark F. Ansley, editor in chief. 1949p 16p $17.50 c1938 Columbia univ. press [63s Harrap]

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

"A subscription edition of the Columbia Encyclopedia, which the Committee has not examined, is being sold by the P. F. Collier & son corporation, which states that the contents are exactly the same as those of the volume published by the Columbia university press. The binding of the subscription edition, which is priced at $17.50, to libraries $15.75, is a purple fabrikoid. Except for the addition of the 16-page supplement, the 1938 edition of the Columbia Encyclopedia is identical in content, as in format, with the volume reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin, October 1935 [Book Review Digest, 1935, 1936]. These supplementary pages are, at no additional cost, being bound into all copies of the encyclopedia issued since November 1, 1938. Owners of the 1935 edition of the encyclopedia may obtain the supplementary pages free from the bookseller through whom the main volume was purchased." Subscription Bks Bul

Reviewed by S. E. Morison
Am Hist R 45:233 O '39 140w

"Owners of the Columbia Encyclopedia should obtain the supplementary pages, as they add considerably to the usefulness of the original volume and are also serviceable as a brief survey of events of the past three years. The Columbia Encyclopedia, 1938 edition, is recommended for those who do not have the original edition."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 10:2 Ja '39 310w

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY. Library. Letters to Emma Lazarus in the Library; ed. by Ralph L. Rusk. 84p $1.50 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Lazarus, Emma 39-14112

Letters to a nineteenth-century American poet, born in New York, in 1849, of wealthy Jewish parents. In time she became known as laureate of the Jewish race. Among her friends, whose letters are included in this volume, are Emerson, Lowell, William James, James Bryce, Robert Browning, Edmund Gosse and others. Index.

Books p13 Je 11 '39 700w
N Y Times p20 Ag 20 '39 340w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 My 20 '39 1250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p494 Ag 19 '39 210w

COLUMBUS, CHRISTOPHER. The log of Christopher Columbus' first voyage to America in the year 1492; with il. by J. O'H. Cosgrave, II. unp maps $2; ltd autog ed $5 Scott, W.R.

973.15 America—Discovery and exploration
(W) 39-1903

Translation of the log of Columbus' first voyage to America, "as copied out in brief by one of his companions," Bartholomew Las Casas. It is here presented for young readers, with drawings on every page, illustrating the daily occurrences of the voyage.

Booklist 35:209 F 15 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p7 Ja 1 '39 200w

"A pleasant piece of printing, but neither the source nor the authenticity of the translation appears."
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 7 '39 20w

Reviewed by M. A. Whitney
Christian Science Monitor p8 Ja 26 '39 90w

"This book enlists immediate interest for its fine printing and bookmaking. A small boy with a love for ships and the sea would feel honored to receive it and a young man would place it among his choice books."
+ Horn Bk M 15:38 Ja '39 60w

"Invaluable to readers from ten years on as source material of the famous voyage. Absorbing reading, handsome format and illustrations."
+ New Repub 97:150 D 7 '38 20w

"Source material has seldom, if ever, been presented in so beguiling a fashion as in this handsome edition. . . The English version is as terse and workmanlike as any sailor could wish, yet there is drama implicit on every page." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 D 18 '38 320w

"Books of this kind are a great aid in creating an interest in books and reading among young people."
Social Studies 30:142 Mr '39 80w

COLVER, ANNE. Listen for the voices; il. by William Cox. 387p $2.50 Farrar

Emerson, Ralph Waldo—Fiction
(W) 39-18505

A story of Concord in the late 1840s. The principal characters are fictitious—Albert and Laura Shipman and their young daughter, the Hart family, Miss Caroline Moore—but the circle of celebrities who made Concord famous come into the story frequently and naturally as neighbors, acquaintances and friends. Bibliography.

Booklist 36:44 O 1 '39

"A truthful and unexciting narrative in which exaggeration is studiously avoided, and which, though it may move us to sympathy, never inspires pity or implies passion. . . Perhaps the book will send us back to Emerson or Thoreau after all. It could have no better result." H. F. Whicher
+ — Books p6 Jl 9 '39 500w

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 29 '39 550w

"The skillful merging of fictional characters with real ones is always a difficult problem, and Miss Colver, like many another, falls short of its solution; moreover, she lacks a sense of fine proportion in the selection of episode and conversation where her famous folk are concerned. Despite these minor disappointments, her book holds an intimate charm. To all lovers of the period the illustrated map of Concord will be a decided attraction."
+ — Cath World 150:369 D '39 110w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 5 '39 650w
New Repub 100:140 S 6 '39 40w

"It's nicely done to make a fine quiet novel of real worth. Miss Colver has brought in a lot of long quotations from the famous diaries and journals by way of sounding the key before each section and here and there. These are not pointed, merely indicative, enjoyable when you recognize them. But she's got in too many, especially toward the end. And occasionally you do feel that she is dragging in celebrities by their heels—just to be sure she gets them all in. Her paraphernalia is a little cocky, too, as she passes judgment on bibliographical material. But that's carping to point a tale, for this is sound story-making and the whole makes a fine novel." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 9 '39 1100w

"Interesting and appealing, in spite of the famous folk on every page."
+ New Yorker 15:67 Ag 5 '39 50w

"Miss Colver's novel of Concord, Massachusetts, about 1850, is that rare achievement, a fiction in which historical characters move with freedom and naturalness. Her Emerson is the human, often tender, Emerson of the recently-published 'Letters'; her brusque Thoreau is an eccentric, but no freak, plain-spoken but kind-hearted, much closer to the real man than Louisa Alcott's portrait in her novel, 'Moods.' . . Indeed, her real people, who are all incidental to the story, are more successful than the fictitious Concord families who carry the plot. These seem a trifle fabricated, with a moral in view, but this criticism does not apply to the village folk who help in the narrative." H. S. Canby

+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 Jl 29 '39 500w
Wis Lib Bul 35:166 O '39

COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE, and NEVINS, ALLAN, eds. The heritage of America. 1152p il $4; students ed $2.40 Little

973.082 U.S.—History—Sources (W) 39-27720

"252 documentary narratives or selections from them, from Leif Ericson to Franklin D. Roosevelt, well arranged and edited. The material, by no means conventional, traces, from an unusual angle, a profile of American history. Illustrated." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:41 O 1 '39

"Here is a magnificent volume of what is now history, written for the most part when the events were news—and not history—by participants or eye-witnesses in and of the events described." S. H. Holbrook

+ Books p3 O 1 '39 1600w

"Admirable as is 'The Heritage of America' and amply as it illustrates American life, it also illustrates the truth that conventions get established in particular fields of thought. If, a thousand years from now, all evidence concerning our civilization disappeared save the extracts in this book, the future inquirer could reconstruct from it a good many phases of our life, but some he would not reconstruct." H. M. Jones

+ — Boston Transcript p1 O 14 '39 300w
Cath World 150:635 F '40 150w

"This is a truly wonderful book. It defies description and review. It must be read—slowly and lovingly. It is illuminating and delightful, fascinating and instructive. It is a remarkable work. Scarcely less remarkable is the fact that, until now, we have had to get along without it." Francis Downing

+ Commonweal 30:565 O 13 '39 850w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:5 D '39 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting
Forum 102:iv D '39 250w

Reviewed by Charles Angoff
Living Age 357:288 N '39 550w
New Repub 100:377 N 1 '39 30w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p1 O 15 '39 1450w
New Yorker 15:71 S 30 '39 30w

"With any compilation, as with any anthology, it is infinitely easier to point out the occasional omission of favorite selections than to do the job oneself. And, where the job is concerned, Messrs. Commager and Nevins have done a fine one. Here is the stream, with its eddies and its turbulence, with queer straws floating in it and a few lasting landmarks—the stream of American history from the days of Leif to today. If you want to know something about it, this must be one of your books." S. V. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 S 30 '39 650w

"The scholarly eminence of the editors guarantees a discriminative selection of material from the great mass of sources. Because of the interest of the editors in the role of the plain people in the American scene, the extracts are readable, they abound in human interest, and they should appeal to the high school student and the general reader." J. I. Kreider

+ Social Studies 31:88 F '40 300w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 22 '39 200w
Time 34:75 O 9 '39 200w
Wis Lib Bul 35:213 D '39

COMPTON, RAY, and NETTELS, CHARLES HENRY, eds. Conquests of science. (Discovery ser) 378p il $1.75; text ed $1.20 Harcourt

508 Science (W) 39-3662

Twenty-two selections from books about science, chosen for reading by young people. Among the authors represented are: Cherry Kearton, William Beebe, David Starr Jordan, John Muir, Eve Curie, Paul de Kruif, Roy Chapman Andrews, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Raymond L. Ditmars. Glossary.

"A splendid piece of editing. . . There is not a dud in the book, which is tied into school work by suggestions for further personal experimentation and a good reading list. On the acknowledgments page a young reader finds that each of these articles is part of a book he will be glad to take out of the library, but as they stand they seem to have been written to appear in this place." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 S 10 '39 450w

"The selections are short and well chosen. Indeed, they are so well chosen, and each in its own right is so fascinating, that the book may unhesitatingly be recommended to the adult reader as most pleasant, as well as profitable, reading." M. F. Ashley-Montagu

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 23 '39 170w
Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 10w

"This is a good collection of true stories. It will serve to dispel many popular misconceptions about the world around us and is excellent reading for young and old. It will be most useful as collateral reading in any high school general science course and the references which it furnishes will open wide the door to broader reading in the natural sciences." W. M. Agar

+ Commonweal 30:483 S 15 '39 300w

"[The book] can be used merely for your own diversion. But with its glossary and selected reading list, it is also an excellent thing to hand on to the inquiring young." M. L. Elting

+ Forum 102:iii N '39 120w

Reviewed by Dorotha Dawson
Library J 64:905 N 15 '39 90w
Springf'd Republican p8 S 21 '39 140w
Wis Lib Bul 35:217 D '39

COMPTON'S pictured encyclopedia [ed-in-chief Guy Stanton Ford]. 15v il maps to libraries and schools fabrikoid $74.50 or $69.50 cash; buckram $69.90 or $64.90 cash c1939 Compton

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 39-3643

"This encyclopedia was last reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin in January 1935 [Book Review Digest, 1934 and 1935]. The 1939 edition embodies corrections, revisions and other improvements suggested in previous criticisms of the set and necessitated by the 'continuous revision' policy of the editors. A definite trend toward a more dignified style of presentation is observable in the elimination of many written down articles, catchy lead sentences, and chopped-up versions of literary classics. . . The material dealing with scientific, technical, economic and industrial subjects has been extensively revised, and such articles as Aeronautics, Agriculture, Banking and Irrigation are satisfactorily up to date. Recent political and social changes in many countries are discussed in some detail, as in the articles on Germany, Mexico and India. The revision of related subjects, as emphasized in the editorial policy of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia, has been consistently followed through in every instance which was checked by the reviewers, and necessary changes have been made in the Fact-index." Subscription Bks Bul

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 21 '39 450w

"The 1939 edition of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia shows definite improvement over that of 1935. In readability, range of subject matter, up-to-dateness and general usefulness, COMPTON'S pictured encyclopedia—Continued it ranks among the best in encyclopedias for young people. It is recommended for the home, school or public library."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 10:37 Jl '39 850w

"I do not like to review books I have not read, but I have read enough in these to make me vow to read them through before the year is out, clear my reviewer-conscience and to pleasure my mind and eye. I have never wished to be a child again, but if I could have a set of these books I should almost like to try it over. It is a far cry from Diamond Dick to Compton's." Read Bain

+ Survey G 28:694 N '39 800w

COMSTOCK, MRS HARRIET THERESA (SMITH). The road beyond. 276p $2 Doubleday

39-18658

When a wealthy uncle willed Merle Gerard an income, she left the New England rectory, ruled over by her autocratic father, and went to New York to work and to live her own life. Things went well for Merle, but when her brother, too, made his escape from the difficult home situation, Merle's troubles began.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p8 My 21 '39 250w

Reviewed by Virginia Fletcher

Boston Transcript p3 Je 10 '39 90w

" 'The Road Beyond' is pleasant going, moderately entertaining. But its young freedom-seekers are a shade too self-righteous." B. S.

+ — N Y Times p7 My 28 '39 200w

"The duality of intention on the part of the author in constantly trying to show individual development but resorting in almost every instance to forces outside the individual to bring about a solution, robs the work of any real significance. Mrs. Comstock writes of her characters with affection but they, like spoiled children, seem to be in need of more discipline and less pampering." G. G.

— + Sat R of Lit 20:18 Je 3 '39 220w

CONANT, JAMES BRYANT. Chemistry of organic compounds; a year's course in organic chemistry; rev. with the assistance of Max Tishler. 658p $4 Macmillan

547 Chemistry, Organic 39-11021

"Some rearrangement, the omission of old material and the addition of new, bring up to date a textbook first published in 1933." (Booklist) Index.

"This is a scholarly, well-written book, which should take a front rank position among the newer organic chemistries. It is refreshing to read a text which, like the present one, departs from the stereotyped." A. J. Hill

+ Am Chem Soc J 61:2567 S '39 220w

Booklist 35:382 Jl 15 '39

Chem & Met Eng 46:432 Jl '39 170w

CONANT, ROGER, and BRIDGES, WILLIAM. What snake is that? 163p il map $2 (7s 6d) Appleton-Century

598.12 Serpents (W) 39-27431

Identification manual of snakes found in the United States east of the Rockies. Index.

Booklist 35:325 Je 1 '39

Reviewed by R. L. Ditmars

Books p10 S 10 '39 460w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '39

Pratt p13 summer '39

CONFUCIUS. The Analects; translated and annotated by Arthur Waley. 268p $3.50 Macmillan [10s 6d Allen, G]

895.18 [39-5047]

"Mr. Waley's translation of the 'Analects' differs from those of Legge, Soothill, Couvreur, Wilhelm, &c., in that it represents an attempt to detach the 'Analects' from the 'scriptural' interpretation given to the text by Chu Hsi in the twelfth century, an interpretation which, except in small academic circles, is still generally accepted in the Far East. It is his purpose to tell the European reader 'not what the book means to the Far East of today, but what it means to those who compiled it.' Throughout the book he uses the term 'Confucius' in a conventional sense, to include 'the particular early Confucians whose ideas are embodied in the sayings,' it being his opinion that the 'Analects' contain very few, if any, authentic sayings of the Sage, who was a transmitter, rather than an originator, of thought." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

"The introduction and notes contain much that will be valuable chiefly to those who are versed in Chinese philology, but the interested reader who lacks this rare equipment will find them intelligible and the translation luminously clear."

+ Christian Century 56:515 Ap 19 '39 190w

Churchman 153:35 S 1 '39 60w

Ethics 49:392 Ap '39 250w

"The introduction does not maintain the high quality of the translation. It contains many things with which one must disagree and shows Waley's characteristic arbitrariness (cf. his treatment of Confucius's attitude to Heaven). The book lacks two highly desirable features not yet found in any translation: (a) always calling the same person by the same name, and (b) a biographical list of the many persons mentioned. Its footnotes are concise and illuminating—a really great merit—and there is an index, but this work needs a much fuller one." H. H. Dubs

+ — J Philos 36:557 S 28 '39 350w

"For the ordinary reader this is a good bedside book; for it is one to be taken in small doses, and chewed like a cud. It helps us not only to understand the great Chinese race but to regulate our own lives if we will take heed. But Mr. Waley is really speaking as a scholar to scholars; he has analysed the text with acuteness, and summed up its teachings, discussing also a number of technical terms. That part of the book I have not the knowledge to criticise, but the translator's reputation is enough to warrant it. In any case, he has given us a book of value." W. H. D. Rouse

+ Manchester Guardian p7 D 6 '38 500w

"This translation of the Analects is undeniably a book essential to every serious library, and a book which no cultivated person can afford to neglect. Confucius is a teacher of the first importance both intrinsically and historically, and here is the first English translation which attempts to present the original meaning of the Analects." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 16:780 N 12 '38 1300w

"This book of the wise teachings of Confucius, with its illuminating preface and profusion of notes, presents the path by which the European can most closely approach the thought of one of the world's greatest religious leaders." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p25 Ap 16 '39 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p806 D 17 '38 130w

CONGER, MARY DE PEYSTER RUTGERS MCCREA. See Vanamee, M.

CONGER, RAY MILTON. Track and field; il. by Katherine C. Tracy. (Barnes dollar sports lib) 94p $1 Barnes, A.S.

796.4 Track athletics (W) 39-27224

"This book has been printed from the plates of The Book of Major Sports edited by William L. Hughes [Book Review Digest, 1938], with the exception of the photographic illustrations which were supplied through the courtesy of The Free-Lance Photographers Guild." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 35:273 Ap 15 '39

"There are many athletic coaches as well as other persons who are primarily interested in only one sport, and these small books at a low price will help to meet their needs." J. R. Sharman

+ School R 47:553 S '39 90w

Wis Lib Bul 35:110 Je '39

CONKLIN, IRVING. Guideposts of the sea; phot. by the author. 95p map $2 Macmillan

627.9 Lighthouses. Navigation (W) 39-27363

Photographs and brief text explaining "modern aids to navigation and how they are cared for." (Subtitle) The author, who is in charge of the light at Los Angeles harbor, includes data on lenses, buoys, tenders, uses of the radio beam, types of fog signals, and duties of a lighthouse keeper.

Booklist 35:312 My 15 '39

"The force of pure fact properly presented proves itself in these well chosen photographs and plain text making clear to an outsider the most interesting features of certain modern aids to navigation. . . There is no sign that the vocabulary has its eye on any special age limit, or the style other aim than to tell, plainly as possible, what the author knows we want to know. As young people want to know practically everything, and are required by modern schools to find out something about it, they get the book first, but I would hate to be too old to like it." M. L. Becker

+ Books p5 Jl 9 '39 350w

Horn Bk M 15:227 Jl '39 100w

"Text both profitable and entertaining. Excellent photographs taken by the author." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 64:470 Je 1 '39 50w

Wis Lib Bul 35:193 N '39

CONNERY, ROBERT HOUGH. The administration of an N.R.A. code; a case study of the men's clothing industry; with a foreword by Lindsay Rogers. 211p $3 Public administration

338.4 U.S. National recovery administration —Codes. Clothing trade. Men's furnishing goods 38-16746

"A case study of the men's clothing industry. Dr. Connery reviews the organization of the NRA code authority in this industry, the administration of the code, the use of the label as a control device, and other related phases of the subject." (Management R) Published for the Committee on Public Administration of the Social Science Research Council.

Am J Soc 45:505 N '39 50w

Reviewed by Charles McKinley

Am Pol Sci R 33:129 F '39 420w

"In providing the inside story of the strengths and weaknesses of an efficient code authority, this study makes a significant contribution to our understanding of the problem of industrial self-government." G. W. Taylor

+ Ann Am Acad 202:227 Mr '39 480w

Management R 27:394 N '38 40w

CONNINGTON, J. J., pseud. See Stewart, A. W.

CONNOLLY, CYRIL. Enemies of promise. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 340p $2.75 Little [10s 6d Routledge]

820.9 English literature—History and criticism 39-8872

The earlier section of the book deals with modern literature, and the practitioners of two styles: the mandarin style, of which Aldous Huxley, Virginia Woolf, and Lytton Strachey are given as examples; and the vernacular style, with Ernest Hemingway, Wyndham Lewis, Gertrude Stein, and James Joyce as its leaders. The final section is devoted to a résumé of the author's youth and school days at Eton. Index.

"Like all really good books of criticism, it reveals its author's mind as sharply as a good poem or novel; and without being systematic in the great tradition of criticism, it is a work of such resplendent intelligence as to be worth a dozen more pretentious histories or manuals of contemporary literature." Alfred Kazin

+ Books p7 Jl 9 '39 550w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard, Jr.

Boston Transcript p2 My 13 '39 360w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 4 '39 270w

Living Age 357:99 S '39 130w

"The author writes well and honestly but with a certain breathlessness. The reader pants behind, never sure where he is going. The clearest and most entertaining section is autobiographical, a picture of life at Eton. . . [But] many will wish that this book with so many good moments had been built on a clearer design." B. I. E.

+ — Manchester Guardian p7 D 13 '38 300w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden

New Repub 98:348 Ap 26 '39 950w

"Readers who are satisfied with Connolly's survey of modern literature will perhaps smile indulgently when they reach part three, in which the author insists on presenting his credentials as a critic. It seems so unnecessary, considering the quality of what has gone before, but they will read on, thinking the serious part of the book is over and that they are being amused with childish things. That is the book as many people will read it. . . Connolly has written a really wonderful account of his school days and analysis of himself. In a charming footnote he suggests that those who are pleased with a book should send the author a small cash token. Many besides myself will purchase postal orders after reading the last 130 pages. They are the beginning of a great book." David Garnett

+ — New Statesman & Nation 16:771 N 12 '38 1550w

"A collection of searching and idea-packed literary essays, precisely noting the temper of current writing and pointing out the pitfalls that beset the beginning or the successful author. A large hunk of dull autobiography comprises the last third of this very original book; it should have been omitted."

+ — New Yorker 15:86 Ap 8 '39 50w

No Am 248:206 autumn '39 190w

Pratt p22 summer '39

"For the limited audience which enjoys reading literary criticism, this is an enjoyable and stimulating book."

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:8 Ap 1 '39 900w

"Mr. Connolly has [not] written a bad or a dull, book. His book is—at times—positively interesting, since Mr. Connolly is a very clever, astute man with a quick tongue. . . All the same, I confess I do find his book most interesting sociologically, as a specimen, as a piece from the war between the 90 per cent. art-gentleman and his gentility. It is good to see conscience at work in an art-gentleman. But I rather wish Mr. Connolly—since I enjoy his acuteness—had been to school elsewhere, after a different birth." Geoffrey Grigson

+ — Spec 162:27 Ja 6 '39 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p721 N 12 '38 600w

CONNOLLY, JAMES BRENDAN. Navy men; il. by Henry O'Connor. 310p $3.50 Day

359.0973 U.S.—Navy (W) 39-9628

Series of incidents about the United States navy, largely based on fact. It covers the period from 1898 thru 1918.

CONNOLLY, J. B.—Continued

"Written in a breezy, informal style with little regard to literary merit."
Commonweal 30:243 Je 23 '39 60w

"Most of Mr. Connolly's recollections are ancient history—trivial or retold history at that—but they are quietly entertaining, particularly where he tells of 'Teddy' and the old navy which Mr. Connolly knew quite well." H. W. Baldwin
+ N Y Times p2 Je 11 '39 400w

"An unpretentious book of journalism and personal narrative which achieves a good deal more than it intends." F. P.
Sat R of Lit 19:21 Ap 15 '39 330w

CONNORS, CHARLES HENRY, and TIEDJENS, VICTOR ALPHONS. Chemical gardening for the amateur; gardening without soil made easy. 255p il col pl $1.95-$2.70 Wise

631.58 Plants—Soilless culture
(W) 39-21225

"An attempt is made through the pages of this book to set forth a story on the culture of plants in 'artificial mediums' so that the reader may learn some of the methods which may be used, and the limitations and advantages of any one of the methods described. The book is written for the amateur who wishes to grow plants—in his home, sunporch, or improvised greenhouse, or in the open in a corner of the garden—by the use of solutions containing the mineral plant foods required by plants for growth." (Pref) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 36:84 N 1 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '39

"This is the first volume which stresses the need for sound general culture and good plant practice in chemiculture. Up to this time too many rank amateurs felt that here was a short cut to huge flowers and vegetables out of season, without labor." F. F. Rockwell
N Y Times p24 F 4 '40 180w

CONOVER, MRS CHARLOTTE (REEVE). Builders in new fields. 314p il map $3 Putnam

B or 92 Patterson, Robert. Patterson, John Henry 39-8606

Biographies of two Ohio Valley pioneers: Robert Patterson (1753-1827) soldier and early settler in Kentucky and Ohio; and John Henry Patterson (1844-1922) founder of the National Cash Register company at Dayton, and pioneer in the building of better ways of life in industry, education and politics.

"The whimsicalities of personal taste, the genius for administration, the domestic and religious background of this man [John Henry] Patterson deserve attention. With humor and insight, Mrs. Conover writes down this story from her personal observation, and one catches the contagion of a great adventure in human enterprise and a fine field of human endeavor." L. L. Riley
+ Churchman 153:17 My 1 '39 170w

"The author of the book is a lifelong friend and neighbor of the Patterson family and her work has been quite frankly a labor of love and a record of admiration. But its vital interest, of course, lies in the fact that it is rather more than that. The life story of Robert Patterson revivifies early pioneer struggles, ambitions and risks. The portrait of John H. Patterson is drawn not only in appreciation of his industrial achievements but also in recognition of his piquant individual characteristics, and his place in his day."
+ N Y Times p18 Ap 2 '39 500w

CONSTABLE, WILLIAM GEORGE. Art history and connoisseurship; their scope and method. 73p $1.50 Macmillan [3s 6d Cambridge]

709 Art—History. Art criticism. Art—Collectors and collecting [39-10816]

"Mr. Constable defines the field of the art historian, and enumerates methods for determining the period, place of origin, authorship, and historical importance of a given work of art. The author, who is Curator of Paintings at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, thoughtfully if somewhat arbitrarily delimits the sphere of activity proper to the historian of art in relation to those of the philosopher, the archeologist, the connoisseur, and the critic. To such traditional tools as documents, written and oral tradition, and the internal evidence offered by the work itself, he adds the more recently available scientific analysis by means of such instruments as the X-ray and infra-red photography, and estimates their usefulness in providing the raw material upon which critical and historical judgments can be based." Sat R of Lit
Sat R of Lit 19:19 Mr 4 '39 160w

"The whole essay is remarkable for its clear-cut distinctions, and is enlivened by several instances of the errors that may be made in the study of art."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p206 Ap 8 '39 180w

CONSUMER CREDIT INSTITUTE OF AMERICA, INCORPORATED. Advisory committee. Consumer credit and its uses; editor, Charles O. Hardy; coauthors, Fred H. Clarkson, Charles W. Coulter [and others]. 264p il $2.75 Prentice-Hall

332.7 Credit. Loans 39-3195

"This book brings together in simple, readable form what is reliably known about the more important consumer credit agencies. It is the product of a number of able professors who form the advisory committee of the Consumer Credit Institute of America. Dr. Charles O. Hardy of The Brookings Institute edited the individual contributions into a unified whole so that the book can be used as a text in economics or social courses, or as a ready means for quick orientation in its special field." (Survey G) Bibliography. Index.

"Any evaluation of a book must bear in mind the intended readers for which it is written. This book is written for use as a college text. . . Written. as it is, in a clear, concise style, it has achieved its aim as a text. The writer also sees a place for it other than as a text for use in colleges. The greatest need in the field of consumer credit is education of the users of consumer credit so that they may discriminate between ethical and unethical practices. Being easy to read and of a general nature, this book can help in that education through use in adult education or consumer coöperative courses." A. A. De Bard, Jr.
+ Am Econ R 29:178 Mr '39 550w

Reviewed by Rolf Nugent
Ann Am Acad 203:247 My '39 650w

"For the person who is closely connected with the consumer credit field or who desires to obtain a comprehensive picture of the small loan field, this book should prove valuable and enlightening. It defines loan organizations, outlines their spheres of operation, and examines the influence of consumer credit upon society. Among the helpful features of the book are an extensive bibliography and index."
+ Management R 27:429 D '38 160w

Reviewed by R. Neifeld
Survey G 28:37 Ja '39 400w
Wis Lib Bul 35:139 Jl '39

COOK, MRS ELSIE (PRENTYS) THORNTON-. See Thornton-Cook, E.

COOK, NILLA CRAM. My road to India. 463p maps $2.75 Furman

B or 92 India—Social life and customs
39-25312

Autobiography of the daughter of George Cram Cook, poet and director of the Provincetown players. Her childhood was spent shuttling back and forth between California and

Cape Cod, Iowa and Chicago, now living with radical parents, now with conservative relatives. At fourteen she joined her father in Greece and later went to India. Her years and experiences in India are the central theme of her reminiscences.

"Miss Cook's autobiography is, to speak frankly, one of the most chaotically written books that the present reviewer has ever read. Nilla darts here, there and everywhere; so do her thoughts and emotions and sentences and paragraphs. But that her years have been filled with zest and enterprise nobody can deny. One never knows what she will be doing next, but one enjoys her originality."

+ — Books p10 Ja 28 '40 200w

Reviewed by E. F. Allen
N Y Times p3 O 8 '39 480w

"As an account of unusual experiences and ideas and unfamiliar peoples and lands, the book has curious interest but it will leave the reader confused."
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 28 '40 550w

COOKE, FRANCIS B. Pocket cruisers. 240p il $5 Longmans [12s 6d Arnold, E. & co.]

797.124 Sailing. Boats and boating [39-16830]

"This book has to do with the purchase, design, outfitting, and sailing of cruising sailboats not exceeding three-ton displacement and with some of the author's interesting experiences. At the end of the volume are several folded plates showing plans." N Y New Tech Bks

"His nautical advice is of value on either side of the Atlantic, and the accounts of his own cruising in miniature craft will be read with pleasure by yachtsmen generally." E. B. S.
+ Boston Transcript p2 D 17 '38 220w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:12 Ja '39
Times [London] Lit Sup p775 D 3 '38 170w

COOKE, LE BARON. Poems. 189p $2 Humphries

811

Short lyric poems by a young American poet. "There is a wide and diverse subject range—a conversation between a grass-blade and a flower, a New England spring, a waitress, side-wheel steamers, actresses, a boy in circus season, poets and the things that matter to a poet." (Books)

"Possibly there is a little too much about poets in the collection. But these brief lyrics and epigrams have on the whole a nimble, honest wit; and they are simple, direct, quotable, as good newspaper and magazine verse should be."
Books p13 Ja 22 '39 120w

"One of the dwindling group of followers of the Imagists, Mr. Cooke has assembled (dedicated to Harriet Monroe, poet-editor, who encouraged his writing) what seems to be the culling from many years of contributing tailpieces to numerous magazines and newspapers. 'Poems' contains more than 150 verses, yet, scathing as such a statement may seem, one must admit, honestly, that no more than a dozen or so seem of sufficient merit to warrant their collection formally in a book." R. E. F. Larsson
— + Commonweal 29:333 Ja 13 '39 320w

COOLIDGE, DANE. Gringo gold. 249p $2 Dutton

Murrieta, Joaquin—Fiction 39-10637

The Mexican bandit, Joaquín Murrieta, is the hero of this story of California in the gold rush days of '49. Based largely on material given the author by a daughter of a Texas ranger who was captured during the Mexican war, and went to school with Murrieta.

Booklist 35:365 Jl 1 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p13 Ap 23 '39 200w

"While not exactly in the category of the romantic and picaresque novels of the Old West with which Mr. Coolidge has regaled his readers for many years, this story of Joaquin Murieta is quite as absorbing as any he has written. . . It is an absorbing tale because Dane Coolidge is a master of the story-teller's craft." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p16 Ap 30 '39 280w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 14 '39 290w

COOLIDGE, DANE. Old California cowboys; with phot. by the author. 158p $2.50 Dutton

917.94 Cowboys. California—Social life and customs (W) 39-13860

A companion volume to the author's earlier Texas Cowboys, and Arizona Cowboys (Book Review Digest, 1937, 1938). This volume, made up of more or less related sketches, is in three parts: Cowboys in California, Cowboys in Arizona, Cowboys in old Mexico. One of the author's chief interests is the differences in methods and behavior lying between American cowboys and Spanish and Mexican cowboys.

Booklist 35:378 Jl 15 '39
Boston Transcript p3 Je 24 '39 110w

"A good many Indians have bitten the dust at Mr. Coolidge's hands . . . but in this collection of sketches about cowboys and redskins he is careful not to overdramatize his subject. The romance is uncolored, and for that reason the book is likely to have a more lasting appeal to students of this phase of American life than to those who read stories about it for the kick they get out of them." E. F. Allen
+ N Y Times p17 Je 11 '39 450w
New Yorker 15:95 Je 10 '39 40w

"Splendid photographs by the author are in themselves a history of a race of men that may some day be wholly gone. Students of the American scene can well add this book to their collections. Though better known as a writer of fiction, Dane Coolidge is also a historical interpreter of one of the most colorful and glamorous sections of the new world."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Je 6 '39 550w

COOLIDGE, DANE. Wally Laughs-Easy. 249p $2 Dutton

39-20965

Western story.

Booklist 36:69 O 15 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p8 S 3 '39 100w

Reviewed by H. N. Smith
Boston Transcript p2 D 2 '39 140w

"The tale abounds in excitement and suspense. . . Yet it is a rollicking tale too, replete with humor as well as thrills, feuds, love and hate; and it is told with Dane Coolidge's wonted gusto and sureness of touch." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p16 S 3 '39 280w

COOLIDGE, DANE, and COOLIDGE, MRS MARY (ROBERTS). The last of the Seris; with phot. by Dane Coolidge. 264p $2.50 map Dutton

970.3 Seri Indians 39-27021

The Seris, a little-known tribe of Indians, once lived on Tiburon island in the Gulf of California, but now lead a poor existence on the nearby coast at Kino Bay. The authors made friends with the medicine man of the tribe, and from him learned much of their poetry, customs, and background. From the material thus obtained the book has been made. Index.

Booklist 35:220 Mr 1 '39

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner
Books p8 Ja 15 '39 440w
New Repub 97:380 F 1 '39 70w

COOLIDGE, D. and M.—Continued

"If there is a lapse of logic in the book perhaps it is in giving too much weight to heredity, too little to environment. One supposes that the ethnologists will read the ethnological reports of their academic peers and overlook this unpretentious volume. One supposes, too, that the general reader will pass the book by unless he happens to be interested in Indians. Yet there is much that is fascinating in it." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 15 '39 1050w

New Yorker 14:72 Ja 21 '39 40w

"This book describes a primitive, rapidly vanishing tribe of Indians in northern Mexico with the vividness and freshness we have come to associate with the Coolidges' work." O. La F.

+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 Mr 18 '39 90w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 15 '39 170w

COON, CARLETON STEVENS. The races of Europe. 739p il maps $7 Macmillan

572.94 Ethnology—Europe 39-10651

"The present book is offered to the College audience as a text in a specific branch of physical anthropology. In it an attempt is made to trace the racial history of the white division of Homo sapiens from its Pleistocene beginnings to the present. Although six chapters are specifically devoted to the study of skeletal material by consecutive cultural periods, the main emphasis is placed upon the racial identification and classification of living white peoples. If there is one consistent theme in this book, it is that physical anthropology cannot be divorced from cultural and historical associations, and that there is no such thing as 'pure' biology, at least in reference to human beings." (Introd) The author is assistant professor of anthropology at Harvard university. Bibliography. Indexes.

"The volume is a scholarly addition to our knowledge of the peoples of Europe. An extremely useful part of the book is found in 46 plates of type photographs, each with full descriptive data and accompanied by an unusually complete anthropometric and morphological tabulation. There is a well-written glossary of terms." W. M. Krogman

+ Am J Soc 45:284 S '39 900w

"While little important exception can be taken to those aspects of the book which deal with the description, distribution, and cultural affiliations of the European types, probably the weakest part of the work will be found in the interpretations of evidence which bears upon the question of origins and mixtures. This is not due to any lack of care in collecting and examining evidence, but to our general ignorance of the mechanics and dynamics of human genetics. . . [However] no sociologist who deals with the races of Europe can afford to overlook this book." John Gillin

+ Am Soc R 4:746 O '39 650w

Reviewed by Clark Wissler

Ann Am Acad 205:198 S '39 550w

Booklist 35:344 Je 15 '39

"It is an unquestionably important work, and by no means the sort of 'popular' book on race to which we are used. . . It is more an encyclopedia and thesis than the text book it is advertised to be, however, and it may be said in warning that writers quoting it will be apt to take as accepted anthropological opinion hypotheses which are original, and highly so, with Dr. Coon." W. W. Howells

+ — Boston Transcript p13 Je 22 '39 500w

Foreign Affairs 18:161 O '39 10w

Nature 144:767 N 4 '39 850w

Reviewed by Harold Ward

New Repub 100:82 Ag 23 '39 170w

Pratt p9 winter '40

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:2 My '39 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p567 S 30 '39 130w

COON, HORACE. American tel & tel; the story of a great monopoly. 276p $3 Longmans

384.6 American telephone and telegraph company. Monopolies 39-29428

"To provide an insight into monopolies, whether financial bigness is a detriment or a blessing for a country, Horace Coon traces the development of the Bell Telephone System. . . It is not so much a history of the rise of A. T. & T. as an analysis of the natural monopoly into which the telephone communication system has finally emerged and what it means from the standpoint of the stockholders, subscribers and employees." (Commonweal) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 36:144 D 15 '39

"His volume is limited in scope and rather superficial in treatment. Although the author's intention is neither to glorify nor expose, his practice occasionally falls short of this ideal. Mr. Coon's book, however, is useful and would merit far more attention if it had not appeared simultaneously with Dr. Danielian's more profound study." M. Y. Sweezy

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Ja 20 '40 60w

"The author has gleaned his material from many sources, but there lingers the thought that he approaches his work in the spirit of a physician conducting a post-mortem examination, as if a thorough investigation will reveal something wrong. He shows a marked sympathy for the suggestions advanced by Mr. Paul A. Walker, who headed the Federal Communications Commission investigation of A. T. & T. . . Mr. Coon advances the hypothesis that a full investigation of the institution on the order of the O'Mahoney Monopoly Investigation, which will give facts and figures, might reveal the necessity for reforms which can be achieved by more vigilant federal control. Apologists of the latter order will find ample material within the pages of 'American Tel & Tel' to supplement their talking points." J. B. Cooney

Commonweal 31:168 D 8 '39 430w

"It may be of value to the reader who looks for a rapidly moving narrative, enlivened by the 'color' of personalities and not too burdened with evidence and proof. But it is far too superficial to be of great use to the serious student of economics." H. F. Havlik

— + Nation 150:102 Ja 27 '40 70w

"Mr. Coon's story is superficial and is marred by a weakness for sitting on both sides of the fence." E. D. Kennedy

— New Repub 101:147 N 22 '39 220w

"As becomes a reporter's account, 'American Tel & Tel' neither glorifies nor muckrakes big business; it does not editorialize. For this neutrality Mr. Coon probably will be accused of sitting on both sides of the fence; certainly it will be alleged that his discussion is too superficial to come to grips with the inherent controversial issues. At any rate, his book will best give the uninitiated general reader a survey focused from his own perspective." E. V. Hollis

N Y Times p37 D 10 '39 200w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins

Sat R of Lit 21:6 D 16 '39 550w

"Mr. Coon offers a simpler and shorter story [than Danielian's] with vivid human interest values in sketches of men like Bell and Vail. It is easier to read, but perhaps less intellectually exciting than the brilliantly detailed fact masses, ordered with clarity and progression, on which Mr. Danielian plants his question marks." Leon Whipple

+ — Survey G 28:754 D '39 450w

Wis Lib Bul 36:12 Ja '40

COON, HORACE. Money to burn; what the great American philanthropic foundations do with their money. 352p $3 (15s) Longmans

361 Foundations, Charitable and educational (W) 38-27987

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 29 '39 550w

"Written with a good deal of liveliness, Mr. Coon's book is full of meat."

+ Spec 162:272 F 17 '39 300w

"Apparently written by a young man of the popular muckraking school, 'Money to Burn' is a somewhat highly colored criticism of the great philanthropic foundation. . . I myself recently made an intensive study of foundations. I can see no warrant for the implications in this book that their grants influence recipients in the realm of science, education, business or politics." I. H. Gerlinger

— Survey 75:93 Mr '39 430w

"The somewhat sensational title of this book is unfortunate, as it obscures the fact that what we have here is really a complete and valuable account of the various philanthropic foundations in the United States."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p238 Ap 22 '39 110w

COON, HORACE. 100 vacations costing from $50 to $500; a consumer's guide to holiday spending. 218p il $1.98 Doubleday

910.2 Travel (W) 39-27116

In outline form gives cost, itinerary, equipment, sightseeing hints, etc., for each of one hundred vacation trips varying from seven days at the New York World's Fair, to a Mediterranean cruise. No index; arrangement by cost.

Booklist 35:229 Mr 15 '39

"It is an amazingly varied, suggestive and useful book."

+ Books p25 Mr 26 '39 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '39

"This is a book of succinct, comprehensive, stimulating information which tells you how to spend a good vacation, and where, and in how much time, and for how much money. The variety is amazing—and alluring."

+ N Y Times p14 F 19 '39 320w

COOPER, ALFRED DUFF. See Cooper, D.

COOPER, COURTNEY RYLEY. Designs in scarlet. 372p $2.75 Little

364 Prostitution. U.S.—Moral conditions. Crime and criminals—U.S. (W) 39-7275

Records the results of a year's investigation of the prostitution problem in America. "For a year Mr. Cooper traveled by car across the continent vertically and horizontally, working 'sixteen hours' a day. He learned how easy it is to pick up a waitress in a roadside tavern; borrow a 'marihuana' cigarette from a high-school girl or boy; locate a small-town bagnio; embark upon, pursue, and conclude a career of prostitution. He discovered the ubiquitous haunts of degeneracy and the appalling degree to which it is practised. In his relentless search for case histories (he includes more than 200 in his narrative) he found a nation nowhere free of the festering sore of crime." (Sat R of Lit)

"This book is a shocker. It is for the most part a study of harlotry in its lower and more revolting aspects as it exists in America today. It makes exceedingly unpleasant and disturbing reading, as the author no doubt meant that it should. Mr. Cooper, however, is not a dull sociologist, on the one hand, nor is he a professional sensationalist, on the other. He is merely a highly competent, hard-headed journalist of long experience who has a knack for collecting information and writing it." Stanley Walker

Books p19 Ap 9 '39 650w

New Repub 98:288 Ap 12 '39 30w

"Based on exhaustive research and travel throughout the United States, with the cooperation of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other national and local agencies in similar fields, the work carries conviction. . . The book is disturbing to any reader, but to parents of children in their 'teens it is likely to carry terrifying implications. Readers who are capable of sober reflection will, however, bear in mind that while one abnormal case of delinquency receives wide publicity, a thousand normal, upright people are never heard of outside their own groups." E. F. Allen

+ — N Y Times p12 Ap 9 '39 600w

"Few pictures of moral degeneration have been more graphic than this painstaking analysis by Courtney Ryley Cooper." Robert Strunsky

+ Sat R of Lit 19:12 Ap 1 '39 450w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 26 '39 550w

Time 33:61 Ap 3 '39 260w

COOPER, DUFF. The second world war; first phase. 346p $2.50 Scribner [10s 6d Cape, J]

940.53112 European war, 1939-. Great Britain—Foreign policy. Europe—Politics (W) 39-34152

In this survey of Great Britain's relations with Germany and Europe from Munich to September 1, 1939, the author has reprinted his speeches and periodical articles together with connecting text explaining circumstances, intervening events, etc. The book opens with Mr Duff Cooper's speech of resignation as First Lord of the Admiralty. Index.

Booklist 36:212 F 1 '40

Reviewed by R. L. Buell
Books p4 D 3 '39 750w

Reviewed by R. H. Phelps
Boston Transcript p2 D 2 '39 280w

Reviewed by G. M. A. Grube
Canadian Forum 19:360 F '40 500w

Reviewed by R. A. Scott-James
Christian Science Monitor p18 N 3 '39 600w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:2 D '39 50w

Foreign Affairs 18:368 Ja '40 50w

New Repub 101:269 D 20 '39 50w

"The book, of course, suffers from the manner of its make-up; composed of disconnected articles and speeches, joined together only by brief explanatory statements of events or interpretations of the times, it is certainly no unified whole. . . But it gains also, even at the cost sometimes of repetitiousness and redundancy, in validity, in interpretive value, in sounding the cymbals of yesterday for that historian of tomorrow who may be seeking to write the symphony of the past." H. W. Baldwin

+ — N Y Times p16 D 10 '39 950w

"In this series of articles appearing at frequent intervals Mr. Duff Cooper writes as the candid critic speaking with special knowledge of public life but a little aloof from it. He has not the weight or the Demosthenic fire of Mr. Churchill, but there is good sense and cogency in his approach to critical problems." R. A. Scott-James

+ Spec 163:445 S 29 '39 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p558 S 30 '39 400w

COOPER, MARTIN. Georges Bizet. 136p $2.75 (7s 6d) Oxford

B or 92 Bizet, Georges 39-18864

"Mr. Martin Cooper traces the stages of Bizet's development, carefully describing each opera in turn and aptly illustrating points of style with short musical quotations." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Martin Cooper has written an excellent little book on Bizet containing all the information that one could desire about the man, the artist, and the musician. The work is critical without pedantry or sarcasm, and it is sympathetic without sentimentality or hero-worship. . . It is a pity to have to add that Mr. Cooper is guilty of the North-and-South fallacy. . . A critic who can discern true human qualities as Mr. Cooper can has no need of adjectival astrolabes to measure Latitude north and south." Jacques Barzun

COOPER, MARTIN—Continued
+ — Nation 149:108 Jl 22 '39 350w

"What is it that makes Bizet's best music so delightful, so infinitely unboring? . . Mr. Cooper has not posed this question directly, but the excellence of his little book (it is hardly more than a long essay) seems to me to lie chiefly in the fact that one puts it down feeling that its good sense, its tempered enthusiasm, and its sound musicianship have combined to answer the question satisfactorily. . . Mr. Cooper gives very full accounts of the operas, but elsewhere in the book I feel that a desire for brevity has led to cursoriness." Edward Sackville-West
+ — New Statesman & Nation 16:998 D 10 '38 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p802 D 17 '38 380w

COOPER, PAGE. All the year 'round. 371p il $2.50 Stackpole sons 641.5 Calendars. Cookery. Gardening 38-32143

A potpourri of recipes, gardening hints, suggestions for entertaining different types of people, menus for special days, etc.; one entry for each day of the year.

"The book makes a pleasant addition to the small but valuable equipment at the bedside of a guest room in the suburbs, while as an auxiliary cookbook it has a special place downstairs."
+ Books p20 D 11 '38 200w

"Diaries are seldom of interest save to the writer—or possibly to the law courts. But 'All the Year Round' is an exception to this rule. It may be said that this book is the reflection of a full and absorbing existence and that for this reason it may inspire others to live more richly." F. F. Rockwell
+ N Y Times p14 Ag 27 '39 160w

COPLAND, AARON. What to listen for in music. (Whittlesey house publication) 281p $2.50 McGraw 780.1 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation (W) 39-27073

This book, based on a series of lectures delivered at the New School for Social Research in New York city, "is designed to give the average adult, intelligent, ignorant music lover a sufficient initiation into the mysteries of musical composition to enable him to listen with pleasure and profit. . . In clear, simple English Mr. Copland . . . discusses the three planes of listening—the sensuous, the expressive, and the sheerly musical. He discusses the question of where composers get their ideas and what they do about them. He describes the four elements of music. He discusses tone color in a chapter on the orchestra that is a miniature masterpiece of communicative writing." (Yale R) Index.

Booklist 35:219 Mr 1 '39

"Mr. Copland says his say with an informal ease and a simple directness that are no less instructive because they happen to be uncommonly engaging."
+ Books p21 My 7 '39 550w

"Although the chapters are derived from a series of lectures, the style is conversational and has no air of classroom didacticism, in spite of the considerable amount of definition and analysis which must be traversed. Mr. Copland speaks as an enthusiast of music, elucidating its mysteries to others similarly minded but less well equipped, yet desirous of sharpening their perceptions. Emerging from the experience of a sensitive and searching artist, his information is vital and illuminating from its very directness." J. N. Burk
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 8 '39 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '39

"Books like Mr. Copland's are oases in the desert of subjective tommyrot." A. W. H.
+ Forum 101:vii Mr '39 300w

"Being articulate in the language of words as well as in that of music, Mr. Copland has written his book with conciseness and simplicity. He does not waste time on side issues, but plunges into the heart of his subject. . . Perhaps one of the most interesting chapters in Mr. Copland's book is devoted to the creative process in music. He brushes away the misconceptions that have made the composer a man of mystery to the lay public and that have constituted 'the composer's workshop an unapproachable ivory tower.'" H. H. Taubman
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 9 '39 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p378 Je 24 '39 180w

"'What To Listen For in Music' is by way of being a godsend to the uninitiated. For Mr. Copland possesses one invaluable qualification as a commentator. He is a composer. He writes about music from the inside. He is so familiar with the creative process in music that he is not impressed by it; and he knows his subject so thoroughly that he can be simple about it. . . Above all, no condescension, no sentimentalizing, no purple passages. A sound, commonsense, and still reverent discussion of a great art. The best book of its kind I have ever seen." Deems Taylor
+ Yale R n s 28:614 spring '39 600w

CORBETT, ELIZABETH FRANCES. Charley Manning. 371p $2.50 (8s 6d) Appleton-Century (W) 39-23757

The scene is the middlewestern town of Mount Royal. Charley Manning, whose history is the subject of the novel, is Mount Royal's leading bachelor. Wealthy, good-natured, willing to spend his energy and his money to help Mount Royal, Charley is never quite able to achieve happiness for himself. To the end Charley remains a bachelor, dependent on change of scene for his only real escape from boredom.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p14 S 17 '39 250w
Boston Transcript p2 S 30 '39 350w

"The novel proceeds at a leisurely pace to its semi-comic, semi-ironic conclusion. It has some amusing touches; Charley and Eunice have been well and carefully drawn, and the background neatly sketched in. If the long-drawn-out love affair between two people, both of whom seem to have been congenitally incapable of caring very much about any one except their individual selves is no more than mildly interesting, the story has a reality which, combined with the author's tolerant, gently amused manner, makes it at once a trifle cynical and reasonably entertaining." L. M. Field
+ — N Y Times p5 S 17 '39 550w

CORBETT, ELIZABETH FRANCES. The far down. 453p $2.50 Appleton-Century (W) 39-6111

Story of the large family of Tim Malone, and his pretty, lazy wife, living near the Old Soldiers' Home on the outskirts of a Middlewestern city. The time is 1877 and Tim is himself a veteran of the Civil war. After Tim's death the eight young Malones have to make their way in the world, but the fortunes of the two older girls, Madge and Tessie, are described in most detail.

Booklist 35:270 Ap 15 '39
Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p18 Mr 26 '39 210w
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 15 '39 80w

"There are no climaxes, no moments of strong emotion except briefly in Madgie's wedded idyl. The opening scene, showing the children of the staff of the Home and the young Malones riding to school together in the Home bus, has a brilliancy never attained during the rest of the narrative. Admirers of 'The Young Mrs. Meigs' and its companion novels will miss the sparkle that gave those books their success." W. K. R.

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 15 '39 650w

"The novel moves slowly, and at times a little laboriously, with fewer touches of humor than one would expect. . . Many of the minor characters are deftly sketched, including several of the old soldiers . . . but it holds no one who is likely to rival Mrs. Meigs in the reader's affections." L. M. Field

+ — N Y Times p20 Ap 2 '39 700w

"It is the spreading intertwined growth of family life, where a sudden outstretching on the part of one means movement and rearrangement for all, that gives the book its individual flavor. The gay, fact-facing daily living of ordinary people offers Elizabeth Corbett the best field for her talent, and she very wisely adheres to it." G. G.

Sat R of Lit 19:18 Ap 15 '39 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p301 My 20 '39 110w

Wis Lib Bul 35:113 Je '39

CORBETT, SIDNEY. The Gull-Flight sails again; il. by Bernard Westmacott. 328p $2 Longmans

39-31788

The five young people who figured in the author's The Cruise of the Gull-Flight (Book Review Digest, 1937) embark on another adventurous trip. This time their object is to rescue a boy from a remote West Indian island, and retrieve some hidden treasure.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p28 N 12 '39 350w

Reviewed by M. P. Johnson

Boston Transcript p2 F 3 '40 90w

"The characters, the five young people who make the voyage, their uncle and the other members of the party, are little more than names, but the description of the way of a ship at sea and daily life aboard a schooner is excellent and the best part of the book. The story follows 'The Cruise of the Gull-Flight' but is complete in itself. For boys and girls from 10 to 14." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p12 N 5 '39 160w

"A fascinating and thrilling story of a fine type for both boys and girls."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 180w

CORBIN, HAZEL. Getting ready to be a father. 48p il $1.25 Macmillan

618.2 Pregnancy. Fathers. Infants—Care and hygiene (W) 39-27483

Brief information on maternity care from the point of view of the husband. The choice of doctor, nurse and hospital, cost of having a baby, fitting the baby into the home, and how to help in its care, are discussed.

Reviewed by I. V. Hiscock

Am J Pub Health 29:1162 O '39 150w

Booklist 35:344 Je 15 '39

Christian Century 56:611 My 10 '39 30w

"Pleasantly written and attractively and helpfully illustrated."

+ J Home Econ 31:480 S '39 80w

Survey 75:360 N '39 80w

Wis Lib Bul 35:141 Jl '39

COREY, PAUL. Three miles square. 448p $2.50 Bobbs

39-27721

In his portrayal of a single farm family, during the years 1910 to 1916, the author has used for background the whole Iowan farming community in which they live. The book opens with the death of Chris Mantz; it continues with the description of the widow's struggle to keep her farm, and educate her four children.

Booklist 36:44 O 1 '39

"While the pace of this novel is slow and parallels too closely the unrelieved plains of the land it describes, it succeeds in developing the life of a family against the background of a rural community. What drama there is in the life of the Mantzes is that which comes to most humans and is accepted by them with the endurance implicit in their character. It is, in fact, Corey's toning down of his characters which robs the book of its highlights and peaks. At times it is extremely effective. His treatment of the affair between Andrew and the Farrel girl is excellent for its reserve which carries the twisted humor and tragedy of the situation to depths beyond the obvious." Rose Feld

+ — Books p2 O 1 '39 700w

"If honest reporting and sincerity of treatment were in themselves sufficient to make an outstanding novel, 'Three Miles Square' would be one of the hits of the autumn season. I have not recently seen a more direct and dispassionate picture of farm life. . . [But] this is apparently Mr. Corey's first novel, though he has written short stories, and possibly one of the things that stand in the way of unquestionable success is that the author is still feeling his way towards a satisfactory technique. He wants to dramatize a whole community and he has adopted the dramatic vignette as the best method of doing the job. But vignettes do not quite fuse into a living whole." H. M. Jones

+ — Boston Transcript p13 S 28 '39 400w

"Corey's writing is as forthright and honest as his characters. If he fails at all, it is in his attempt to make the story of the Mantzes a sort of farm epic. To do this, he arbitrarily lays out his nine square miles of Iowa and peoples them with enough types to cover most of American farm life. He plots the course of streams, juxtaposes people, and arranges the points at which the lives of the others cross the Mantz interest. This schematization does unnecessary violence to an otherwise fine novel." R. R.

+ — New Repub 100:316 O 18 '39 350w

"We have had in the past few years a number of honest and fairly impressive novels about farm life in the Middle West. This latest entry, Paul Corey's 'Three Miles Square,' stands head and shoulders above any of them. . . Mr. Corey has the novelist's sure instinct for interpreting life solely in terms of the people who are living it. It is mainly because the Mantzes themselves are so real, because we take such absorbing interest in their purely private struggles and ambitions, that 'Three Miles Square' strikes one as the best farm novel that has come along in many a day." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p7 S 24 '39 700w

New Yorker 15:70 S 30 '39 40w

"Paul Corey's first full-length novel is a quiet description of a way of life, rich in detail, sturdy in outlook. . . The manner of the writing has none of that nervous brilliance which we have come to expect of young writers whose theme is struggle and exploitation. Mr. Corey seems never to gesticulate or raise his voice. He is compassionate, gifted in insight, and well equipped with detailed knowledge of his scene." James Gray

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 S 23 '39 500w

CORMACK, MARIBELLE, and ALEXANDER, WILLIAM PRINDLE. Land for my sons. 311p il $2 Appleton-Century

(W) 39-9647

This "frontier tale of the American revolution," follows the fortunes of young Michael Marshall, surveyor and wilderness scout. Born in Pennsylvania of Scotch-Irish ancestry, Michael is busy building roadways to the west when war breaks out. He joins the American forces, fights in Washington's army, and because of an ancient friendship is sent to make contact with Cornplanter, the Seneca chieftain.

CORMACK, M., and ALEXANDER, W. P.—Continued

Booklist 35:334 Je 1 '39

"The latest work of these collaborators is far more important than anything they have hitherto done, so much so that it must not be left out of account by schools where American history is taught, when books are to be chosen for the library, or by any one providing for a boy or girl in the early teens the sort of fictional background that brings out the American Revolution. If not as a whole, surely in certain significant scenes that conflict does come alive in these pages." M. L. Becker

+ — Books p8 My 7 '39 600w

"Pleasant, but exceedingly light."

Boston Transcript p2 My 6 '39 100w

"Not only is the story a genuinely fine frontier tale of the American Revolution, but a splendid chronicle of a sturdy home builder with an indomitable spirit to clear lands for sons who were to come after him." M. A. Whitney

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 27 '39 220w

Horn Bk M 15:171 My '39 210w

"Few such vividly written, comprehensive, accurate stories about the Revolution have been written for the teen aged. The occasional confusion caused by Scotch dialect, by the many characters including thirty-three true historical ones, and by a secondary theme of westward migration can readily be forgiven." Miriam Snow

+ Library J 64:517 Je 15 '39 150w

"Battles to be fought, a message to carry from Washington to the Cornplanter through hostile Indian country, the dreadful Wyoming massacre . . . and the heart-sickening raid on the Six Nations under General Sullivan—these events are the solid framework of the book. Its texture is woven fine from vivid details of life among the exiled Jacobites, of the grim humor of backwoodsmen facing the ordered ranks of redcoats, of farmers laboriously casting homemade cannon for Washington, and of the enduring courage of the women-folk. There is indeed so much in this book, so many scenes and so many themes touched upon that the final impression is somewhat diffused, but so picturesque and human are its parts that the whole adds up to a rewarding sum total." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 My 7 '39 480w

New Yorker 15:107 My 13 '39 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p375 Je 24 '39 210w

Wis Lib Bul 35:113 Je '39

CORNE, MOLLY E. A magnet for murder. 254p $2 Mill

39-9940

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p19 Ap 30 '39 150w

"Rapid-moving and short enough to afford rousing entertainment for a couple of hours." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 22 '39 130w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '39 120w

"Featuring new and amazing way to kill at a distance. Major part of yarn too lurid to carry much conviction."

Sat R of Lit 20:30 Ap 29 '39 30w

CORNELL, FELIX M., and HOFFMAN, ALLAN C., eds. American merchant seaman's manual, for seamen, by seamen. 670p il maps $3.50 Cornell maritime press, 350 W. 23d st, N.Y.

656 Merchant marine—U.S. Seamen. Navigation (W) 38-29007

"This technical handbook, liberally illustrated, gives explicit information about the duties of merchant seamen. The range is from knots, wire splicing, deck seamanship, and the handling of small boats, to instruction in navigation, weather, ship sanitation and first aid, syphilis treatment, consular regulations, laws, and other pertinent subjects." Booklist

---

Booklist 35:153 Ja 1 '39

N Y New Tech Bks 23:61 O '38

Pratt p14 autumn '39

CORNELL, KATHARINE (MRS GUTHRIE MCCLINTIC). I wanted to be an actress; the autobiography of [the author] as told to Ruth Woodbury Sedgwick. 361p il $3 Random house

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (W) 39-27238

Simply told story of the stage career of Miss Cornell, from her early days in the stock company of Jessie Bonstelle to the present. The last section of the book is made up of a record of Katharine Cornell's career, in which the plays in which she has appeared are listed, with cast of characters for each, and leading press notices.

Booklist 35:268 Ap 15 '39

"In [this] autobiography, it is not a glamorous person who emerges but some one who in some indefinable manner is essentially native to the soil of America. . . That [Katharine Cornell] is a serious artist who spares no pains in perfecting her work is obvious in her book, but the pose of the 'artiste' is entirely lacking. She confesses to being very strong, to getting stage fright at a medal presentation, to being afraid of meeting Shaw, whose note to her is a gem in true Shavian style. This is the stuff that makes a person and not a myth." R. C. Feld

+ Books p2 Ap 9 '39 1100w

"For some reason one does not hear Katharine Cornell's voice in her autobiography as it is taken down for us. The personality which struggles through the mass of detail is friendly, enthusiastic with an understandable egotism and a willingness to put herself in the hands of her friends. . . She should have a better chronicler. It is still true, however, that both the subject and the manner of this autobiography give it definite value." Catharine Huntington

— + Boston Transcript p1 Ap 15 '39 650w

Christian Century 56:547 Ap 26 '39 130w

"The book should fulfill one of its main aims, to provide a word of encouragement to young people of the theater who cannot understand why they are not immediately successful when they go on the stage. There are handsomely printed portraits of the actress at various stages in her career."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 29 '39 440w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '39

"Miss Cornell's autobiography, as told to Ruth Woodbury Sedgwick, is very good talk of a special kind. Readers for whom brilliance, wit, and illumination of subject matter are the prerequisites of conversation will be disappointed in the book. The style is simple and direct. There are no novel or important ideas contributing to a larger understanding of the theater, the drama, or the art of acting. But for people who enjoy shop talk, talk of the expert technician telling spontaneously of his trade or craft, this book is a delight." Mina Curtiss

+ — Nation 148:537 My 6 '39 290w

New Repub 98:387 My 3 '39 60w

"It would be consummately silly, of course, to give this book the common tag of 'required reading' for every one who is interested in the theatre: it is instinctive and essential reading for all theatregoers, and it needs no 'must.' Yet though its material lies within the boundaries of the theatre, the book as a book has a wider scope. Natural, simple and uninvolved, sparkling with appreciative humor, and shrewd and wise, this is a spirited and revealing autobiography. Its candor is never bogged in self-consciousness. Its clear integrity is felt on every page. It is a fresh and straightforward self-portrait of our greatest actress." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 9 '39 1150w
New Yorker 15:106 Ap 15 '39 40w
Pratt p27 summer '39

"At its barest it is the record of a fine career in the theater. Most of us can fill in from our own memories. . . There will be time enough for her to write her real autobiography when she is no longer vividly living it; the past grows dim as Miss Cornell rehearses for the future. 'I Wanted to Be an Actress' is little more than an interim book; a recapitulation to date. It is the jottings for a book one day to be written. It is interesting and pleasant, but even now Miss Cornell is approaching in another play. Lay the book down. The reality is waiting." Richard Lockridge

+ Sat R of Lit 19:12 Ap 8 '39 550w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 23 '39 240w

Reviewed by E. J. R. Isaacs
Theatre Arts Mo 23:457 Je '39 1100w

CORNELL UNIVERSITY. Conservation in the United States. See Gustafson, A. F.

CORNER, GEORGE WASHINGTON. Attaining manhood; a doctor talks to boys about sex. 67p il $1 Harper [5s Heinemann]

612.6 Sex instruction (W) 38-13772

"A brief, nontechnical description of the reproductive organs and explanation of the sexual processes, written for high school boys. Sex conduct and sex disorders are sanely discussed." Booklist

Booklist 35:59 O 15 '38

"Brief, scientific and unsentimental; suitable to put into the hands of boys of Junior high school age and over."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:61 Ap '39

CORNER, GEORGE WASHINGTON. Attaining womanhood; a doctor talks to girls about sex. 95p il $1 Harper

612.6 Sex instruction 39-27851

Companion volume to the author's Attaining Manhood (Book Review Digest, October, 1939). "This book is intended to provide intelligent girls of high school age with a scientific account of sex and human reproduction." (Pref) The author, who is a doctor, is professor of anatomy at the University of Rochester.

"Because of the drawings the book may require some supervision."
Booklist 36:84 N 1 '39

"Admirably impersonal and scientific in tone. . . A book inquiring mothers will find most satisfactory to pass on to their daughters."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:212 D '39

CORWIN, EDWARD SAMUEL. Court over Constitution; a study of judicial review as an instrument of popular government. 273p $2.50 Princeton univ. press [11s 6d Oxford]

347.99 U.S. Supreme court. U.S. Constitution 38-29088

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by B. F. Wright, Jr.
Am Hist R 45:238 O '39 160w

"This volume, like the numerous others from the pen of Professor Corwin, is rich in historical material. But, as is so well illustrated in the opening pages of the first essay, the analytical materials are much more prominent and considerably more advanced than in most of his previous writings. . . To end on a note relating to style: it should be said that the book seems not as well written as several of Professor Corwin's other volumes. Having discharged this obligation, the reviewer hastens to add that this does not mean that the book is difficult to read. It reads easily but not as easily as Professor Corwin has made others of his books read." O. P. Field

+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:303 Ap '39 850w
Foreign Affairs 17:811 Jl '39 20w

"Corwin's essay offers a fresh interpretation of the arid controversy between states' rights and nationalism. And he does make out as persuasive a case as I have ever seen for the constitutional, administrative, and moral validity of a system of grants-in-aid. What is not so persuasive is his optimism that such a cooperative concept of federalism will be upheld by the Court." Max Lerner

+ — Harvard Law R 52:1033 Ap '39 1350w

Reviewed by Irving Dilliard
Survey G 28:341 My '39 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p124 F 25 '39 390w

CORWIN, NORMAN LEWIS. They fly through the air with the greatest of ease; drawings by Laszlo Matulay. 58p il $1.50 V. Orton, Weston, Vt.

792 Radio plays 39-15480

"[This play] was originally a radio script, written by Mr Corwin for his Sunday afternoon program, 'Words Without Music.' It was repeated in the CBS workshop, and subsequently selected for first prize by the 10th Institute for Education by Radio as the best program of the year. Inspired by Vittorio Mussolini's reported observation that the bombing of fleeing men was 'exceptionally good fun,' Mr Corwin's dramatization in poetical form of one such raid stirred a wide response among radio audiences." Springf'd Republican

" 'They Fly Through the Air' may add something to the art of radio production, but it adds nothing to the art of good verse."
Books p20 O 8 '39 250w

— Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 80w

"The writing has originality and force and shows an excellent command of the chosen medium."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 18 '39 300w

COSTON, HARRY ERNEST TOWNER. See Towner Coston, H. E.

COTCHETT, LUCRETIA EDDY. The evolution of furniture. 118p il $5 Scribner [12s 6d Batsford]

749 Furniture. Architecture [39-18190]

"The history of furniture, studied in terms of its evolution, becomes almost an epitome of history itself. It is such that Lucretia Eddy Cotchett has written. There is nothing fanciful or involved about it. She has stuck to her subject. But in the very act of making that subject plain she has given her readers a summary of the beginnings of Gothic architecture and a picture of medieval life; has followed the course and touched upon the significance of the Italian Renaissance and then of the Renaissance in France and in England." N Y Times

"This is a very fine book, clear, interesting, informative, and, as has been said, full of suggestions which reach beyond the arbitrary limitations of its subject into the whole field of life in which that subject had its part. And precisely those same terms can be applied to its really remarkable illustrations. They number 230; they are reproduced with a clarity which shows every detail of carving; they are exceedingly interesting, and both in their selection and their comprehensiveness they supplement the information of the text and add to the richness of its connotations."

COTCHETT, L. E.—Continued
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 29 '39 450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p109 F 18 '39 280w

COUDENHOVE, IDA FRIEDERIKE. Mary Ward; English tr. by Elsie Codd. 260p $1.50 (3s 6d) Longmans
Ward, Mary—Fiction 39-19532

Based upon two earlier biographies and some scattered works, this is a new story of the life and vicissitudes of Mary Ward. Born in 1585 of a good Yorkshire family, at twenty-one she became a lay sister in the Poor Clares, but later left to found a society of her own, with rules based upon those of the Society of Jesus. The order was subsequently suppressed, but after many tribulations was revived in the eighteenth century, and survives at present as the Institute of Mary.

Cath World 149:377 Je '39 240w

"I have no great taste for historical novels, unless they are of 'Cloister-and-Hearth' excellence; I am particularly depressed by most religious historical novels. So it was with a double prejudice that I began 'Mary Ward,' a prejudice very shortly dispelled by the skill of its writing and by the interest of its story."
+ Commonweal 29:558 Mr 10 '39 150w

COULBORN, RUSHTON. International security. See Laves, W. H. C.

COULTER, ELLIS MERTON, ed. The other half of old New Orleans. 108p il $2 La. state univ. press
917.63 New Orleans—Social conditions 39-7540

"This little book consists of a series of sketches published by the New Orleans Picayune during the years 1840 to 1842, with an introduction by Mr. Coulter, Professor of History at the University of Georgia. The sketches were selected by Mr. Coulter, but were written, he thinks, by George W. Kendall, one of the editors of the Picayune. The sketches are descriptions of characters brought into the Recorder's Court in that city." Am Soc R

Am Hist R 45:486 Ja '40 20w

"To the sociologist the sketches are interesting in that they picture the doings of the polyglot riff-raff of that city at a time when it was attracting to itself people from all over the world, some of whom behaved in a way which attracted the attention of the police. To the journalist it reveals the writing of an editor who did his own reporting, was blessed with a sense of humor, and saw the fantastic side of the behavior of the motley crowd of characters appearing in Judge Baldwin's court." J. L. Gillin
+ Am Soc R 4:869 D '39 160w

"Although as part owner of The Picayune, Kendall was undoubtedly in a position to write the articles that appear in 'The Other Half of Old New Orleans,' it is practically certain he did not. . . It appears almost certain that D. Corcoran was the author." E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p26 Ap 9 '39 650w

COULTER, JOHN GAYLORD. The story of modern France, 1610-1914; frontier of liberty. 458p maps $4 Bobbs
944 France—History 39-23669

An informal history of France from 1610 to 1914, written for the layman, and stressing the resistance of the French to oppression, and the influence of French ideas on the rest of Europe and on America. Index.

"He presents the story in a readable form for the general reader."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 11 '39 80w

"Mr. Coulter apparently does not feel that his American readers would be held by the sober simplicity of style of his originals, and he has deliberately sought to be chatty and informal, to entertain as well as to enlighten. His chief device is the epithet. . . But with all its excessive chattiness, the book does give a good bird's-eye view of three centuries of French history." Crane Brinton
+ — Sat R of Lit 21:16 Ja 20 '40 500w

COULTON, GEORGE GORDON. Medieval panorama; the English scene from conquest to reformation. 801p il maps $4; college ed $3 Macmillan [15s Cambridge]
940.1 Middle ages. England—Social life and customs. England—Civilization
(W) 38-29089

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"I doubt whether Medieval Panorama ought to be considered as what the publishers say it is, a book designed for everybody, for it presupposes far more knowledge of the medieval centuries than 'everybody' is likely to have. For students of the Middle Ages, however, it is one of the best single volumes to possess; and one of its readers at any rate is deeply grateful to Dr. Coulton for it." A. H. Sweet
+ Am Hist R 45:375 Ja '40 800w

"The present work is . . . unquestionably the most important and valuable single volume covering the entire medieval period which has been published in our generation. While it is limited primarily to English life and institutions in the Middle Ages, it gives us an admirable impression of medieval civilization as a whole." H. E. Barnes
+ Ann Am Acad 205:196 S '39 410w
Cath World 149:116 Ap '39 360w

"A long lifetime spent in studying medieval history and in writing books about it which reward the scholar no less than they charm the reader has prepared Professor Coulton for the production of this comprehensive survey of the whole pageant of medieval life. . . The book as a whole is an invaluable mine of information, as well as a piece of delightful historical reading."
+ Christian Century 56:186 F 8 '39 360w

"Dr. Coulton's books are notable for a definite tendency to belittle the accomplishments of the Middle Ages and make much of their faults. It is not surprising, then, that his chapter on medieval medicine is little better than a caricature of medical history during the period. It accords with the teaching of a generation ago but not with that of our time. . . According to all who know anything about the history of medicine, there was a series of magnificent advances, but Dr. Coulton seems to know nothing about them. The period that gave us the idea of contagion, of preventive medicine, of anesthesia, of antisepsis, surely cannot be said to lack progressiveness. The medieval people built up their medicine quite as effectively as they built their cathedrals, their great universities, the magnificent literature in every country in Europe, and everything else that they put their hands to. If the Cambridge professor does not adduce his facts and his inferences in other phases of medieval history better than he does with regard to medicine, his writing merits little recognition in the world of scholarship." J. J. Walsh
— Commonweal 29:666 Ap 7 '39 1450w
Pratt p26 spring '39

"Here is a book not only for the scholar, but also for the intelligent layman. Dr. Coulton has not attempted to write a 'popular' book. His notes and his index help to make the work one which will be useful to students of the Middle Ages. There is nothing, in this volume, of the annoying patronizing of the reader which we find in so many 'popular' books. And yet Dr. Coulton has made his story vital enough and clear enough so that the layman may read it with interest and with profit. It is, indeed, an important picture of the roots of contemporary English and American civilization." M. L. Zisowitz

+ Sat R of Lit 19:18 Ap 8 '39 500w

"The book is supplied with a wealth of authentic illustration, in picture as well as in text for which, no doubt, the publishers as well as the author deserve praise. The book is excellent both for high school and college courses dealing with the middle ages. It is extremely well written, simple, interesting, and stimulating." A. C. Krey

+ Social Educ 3:293 Ap '39 850w

Reviewed by O. G. Darlington
Social Studies 30:280 O '39 450w

COUPLAND, REGINALD. The exploitation of East Africa, 1856-1890; the slave trade and the scramble. 507p $10 Oxford [25s Faber]

967.6 Africa, East. Slave trade [39-18338]

"Professor Coupland gives an inside account of methods and maneuvers—some of them unselfish and humanitarian, others less creditable—whereby vast territories extending from Zanzibar in the South to the borders of Ethiopia in the North have been distributed among various European powers." Christian Science Monitor

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 8 '39 420w

"Like every first-class history—which Professor Coupland's work undoubtedly is,—his book tells more than its own story: it illustrates what is best and what is worst in British dealings with other nations." L. B. Namier

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 25 '39 550w

New Statesman & Nation 18:408 S 16 '39 320w

"An important contribution to the history of Europe in Africa."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p488 Ag 19 '39 1000w

COURLANDER, HAROLD. Haiti singing. 273p il map $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

784.4 Folk songs, Haitian. Negro songs

The author, during five visits to Haiti, made a collection of the Negro folk songs. His book contains words for nearly two hundred of them, some of the music, and a study of their relationship to the dances and ritualistic ceremonies brought over from Africa. Index.

"Valuable, well selected material, revealing the native culture and its relationship to the African motherland."

+ New Repub 102:93 Ja 15 '40 30w

" 'Haiti Singing' will disappoint only those who expect to be titillated by fictitious and highly seasoned travelers' tales of zombies and vodoun orgies, for its author has approached his subject in a truly scientific spirit." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p9 Ja 21 '40 1000w

COURT, WILLIAM HENRY BASSANO. Rise of the Midland industries, 1600-1838. 279p $5.50 (15s) Oxford

330.942 England—Industries and resources [39-12943]

"The interpretation of the English Industrial Revolution as a gradual development with roots running back deep into the sixteenth century receives one more confirmation in this scholarly monograph by Mr. Court, lecturer in the University of Birmingham. The book is in fact an essay on the slow and evolutionary nature of industrial change. Drawing his material from local manuscript collections and unpublished theses as well as travelers' reports and government archives, the author is able to show how industry imperceptibly grew up in the interstices of an agricultural society in the West Midlands (Warwickshire, Shropshire, Staffordshire, Worcestershire) and especially in the Birmingham district." Am Econ R

Reviewed by C. W. Cole
Am Econ R 29:133 Mr '39 500w

Economist 134:75 Ja 14 '39 100w

"An admirable piece of regional economic history."

+ Manchester Guardian p7 O 25 '38 170w

"There is a gap in the book. Mr. Court describes the social and technical background of the various industries, but he does not examine sufficiently the financial aspects of the industrial revolution. What were the credit arrangements, and who, in fact, financed the industrial revolution? Great landlords, small masters and even farmers all played a part in the necessary provision of capital, but the evolution of a financial system is not clear from Mr. Court's otherwise valuable study."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p63 Ja 28 '39 220w

COUSLAND, GILBERT. My little counting book. unp $1 (3s 6d) Collins

Photographs and counting rhymes, arranged in sequences, intended to aid in teaching numbers to the very small child.

"A photograph book for very little children should have a good reason for being, and uncommonly good reproduction for its pictures. 'My Little Counting Book' may be recommended on both points." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 Ap 30 '39 180w

"Mr. Cousland has done a series of 'My Little' books that are very popular in England. His device for teaching very small children their numbers is clever and his photographs are excellent."

+ Boston Transcript p1 F 11 '39 30w

COVE, JOSEPH WALTER (LEWIS GIBBS, pseud). Vanessa and the Dean; the ironic history of Esther Vanhomrigh and Jonathan Swift. 271p il $2.50 Funk [10s 6d Dent]

Vanhomrigh, Esther—Fiction. Swift, Jonathan—Fiction [39-10642]

Novelization of the relationship between Jonathan Swift and Esther Vanhomrigh, the Cadenus and Vanessa of Swift's longest poem. The final chapters bring Esther Johnson into the picture, and throw new light on the Dean's friend, whom he called Stella.

"Some of Swift's biographers have been heartless towards Esther Vanhomrigh, neglecting her except as an incident in the more important orbit of Swift's life. Mr. Gibbs restores the balance. . . His work, so admirably turned, may lead Swift to follow the Brontes to the stage and even to Hollywood." B. I. Evans

+ Manchester Guardian p5 S 2 '38 340w

N Y Times p3 O 22 '39 450w

"Mr. Gibbs, though a professional novelist, is most effective in this book when he is dealing with honest fact; the fiction he laboriously coins has a hollow ring. The book as a whole lacks great distinction. Its best qualities are compactness, generally clean workmanship, and readability." Alexander Cowie

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:19 O 28 '39 300w

"Although Mr. Gibbs is not so open minded that he does not imply that Vanessa was more sinned against than sinning, no one is likely to come to any fruitful decision by reading his novel. A novelist who does not understand the characters of his protagonists and is un-

COVE, J. W.—Continued
certain of their motives can hardly be regarded as a guide to human conduct." John Hayward
— Spec 161:381 S 2 '38 700w

"It is a first-class love story, fantastic, unusual and in parts historical. . . Mr. Lewis Gibbs has shown himself an excellent hagiographer and has given us the life if not of a saint certainly of a martyr."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p609 S 24 '38 550w

COVERT, MRS ALICE LENT. Return to dust. 294p $2.50 Kinsey
39-20479

A story of the Oklahoma dust bowl. The people of Blue Creek were making a brave fight against annihilation by dust, tornado, and discouragement. Five miles out of town Margaret Adams was waging her battle against all three, on a dust covered farm. Her burdens were increased by her too-easily discouraged husband, and an ailing baby. The climax comes during a tornado.

Booklist 36:68 O 15 '39

"It is rather a pity that the story of Margaret and John does not come up to the rest of the book, for Mrs. Covert knows her dust bowl, her dust storms and the problems, economic as well as personal, that they present." Rose Feld
+ — Books p8 Ag 27 '39 750w

"One need not compare this book with 'The Grapes of Wrath' to discover the gaucheries of the writing and the mishandling, through sheer lack of taste and imagination of a compelling and important theme." M. S.
— Boston Transcript p3 Ag 19 '39 200w

"This is a strong, well-made and moving novel. . . Don't dismiss it as another one of those novels or popular treatises or historical works in which the tragedy of waste land has been emphasized in order to make people conscious of a mighty problem that confronts us. . . [Mrs] Covert has written a fine true tale of the people who have to face the dust bowl in daily life." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 20 '39 850w

"It's a heroic struggle, and the author makes it human and interesting."
+ New Yorker 15:65 Ag 19 '39 50w

"A novel which scores a moderate triumph in spite of all the technical errors a new novelist could commit. The characterization is right out of the movies. . . There is a constant parade of cliché incidents, each indicating what the next turn in the story will be. . . One would think this enough to drag down any book; yet 'Return to Dust' is not dragged down. For if [Mrs] Covert's eye for character is faulty, her ear for speech is phenomenally keen. The incidents reported from life, even some of those invented, are illumined by her ability to grasp the interrelation of character and incident, to follow the emotional pattern of many types of minds. To this excellent piece of equipment she adds a considerable economy of words, and the combination sets before the reader a picture of men and women under dust more eloquent than a dozen elaborate reports in Fortune." F. P.
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:19 Ag 26 '39 270w

"This first novel by a young newspaper woman of Lawton, Okla., reads like an expanded scenario for the movies. It would seem to have been written with Hollywood in mind. The author employs time-worn screen devices in developing her plot and many of the characters are types which have been familiar to movie fans since the days of the old nickelodeon. Despite obvious weaknesses of plot and of character portrayal, this novel has interesting features. The author is to be commended for the excellent picture she draws of life in the dust bowl, and for her elucidation of the farmers' problems." L. C. R.
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 3 '39 1050w
Wis Lib Bul 35:186 N '39

COWARD, NOEL PIERCE. To step aside. 289p $2.50 Doubleday [7s 6d Heinemann]
(W) [39-31803]

Seven short stories by the English playwright and author of the autobiography, Present Indicative (Book Review Digest, 1937). Contents: The wooden madonna; Traveller's joy; Aunt Tittie; What mad pursuit? Cheap excursion; The kindness of Mrs Radcliffe; Nature study.

Booklist 36:214 F 1 '40

"Noel Coward, the man who can do everything, has written his first book of short stories. . . Of course it's good. In 'Present Indicative,' the best theatrical autobiography of our time, Mr. Coward proved that he can write books as well as plays, and his new stories are equally facile. Friends from his home town—London . . . have been writing that his first stories smack of Maugham and Evelyn Waugh and Katharine Mansfield. They do. But what of it? The models could not have been more wisely chosen, and when Mr. Coward gets into home territory—as in the stories 'Cheap Excursion' and 'What Mad Pursuit'—he is beholden to nobody and can take his rightful place with the best of them." B. A. Cerf
+ Books p7 D 3 '39 750w

"A perfect gift for your most sophisticated friend on Christmas. Apparently Mr. Coward is easily able to out-Maugham Somerset Maugham, and to over-Waugh the Waughs. That he can also be pretty good as a story teller in his own right, is shown in two of his explorations into various facets of modern life." Olga Owens
+ Boston Transcript p5 D 16 '39 550w

"Flippant sometimes, heavily solemn at other times, cruel in a way that is the reverse side of post-war sentimentality, boyishly jeering and unnaturally cheerful by turn, Mr. Coward might be described, if we wished to employ a phrase that has not yet been applied to him, as a quicksilver craftsman, for ever changing at top speed his method of approach, always restlessly ready to escape from the mood he has invoked in himself." Thomas Moult
Manchester Guardian p3 O 24 '39 250w

New Repub 101:270 D 20 '39 40w

"Though many call Shakespeare universal, Dr. Bowdler found him broad; and while some hold Mr. Pound inspired, others consider him raving. Mr. Coward, in his turn, has been called brilliant and profoundly human, and flashy and abysmally maudlin. The stories in To Step Aside lie somewhere between the two, for they sparkle without blazing and please without exciting. They are, in short, a most felicitous light entertainment." John Mair
+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:432 S 23 '39 340w

"Since Noel Coward writes frankly to amuse, it would be ridiculous to pontificate about him. One can quarrel with him, however, for not being sufficiently entertaining—a verdict, I think, which 'To Step Aside' deserves. These are shrewd stories, clever stories, but I would trade all seven of them—even 'What Mad Pursuit?'—for an hour in the theatre with Mr. Coward in charge." E. H. Walton
— + N Y Times p18 D 3 '39 800w

"Seven highly entertaining short stories in the Maugham manner, in a couple of cases almost as good as the master."
+ New Yorker 15:121 D 16 '39 40w

"What Mad Pursuit? is madly funny, and the most entertaining story in the book, though neither Aunt Tittie nor Mrs. Radcliffe is far behind it. All three of them are perfect entertainment; and the other stories in this collection, which are not perfect, are still, most emphatically, entertainment." Derek Verschoyle
+ Spec 163:448 S 29 '39 500w

Time 35:47 Ja 1 '40 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p549 S 23 '39 550w

COWDRY, EDMUND VINCENT, ed. Problems of ageing; biological and medical aspects; contributors: Edgar Allen [and others] a publication of the Josiah Macy, jr. foundation. 758p 121 il $10 Wood [45s Bailliere]

612.67 Age. Physiology 39-2027

"This volume on the process of ageing has been sponsored by the Josiah Macy Foundation in continuance of its interest in degenerative diseases and in the hope of focussing attention upon a problem which has far-reaching scientific and social implications for a society with a rapidly increasing proportion of older men and women." (Introd) "The book consists of twenty-five chapters, each prepared by an authority in a special field of knowledge. The biological aspects find particular emphasis in the chapters on ageing in plants, protozoa, insects and vertebrates. Chapters that follow on the ageing of the various organ systems and tissues are for the most part rather technical summaries of current anatomic and physiologic knowledge." (Survey)

"The level of writing is high and there is much information presented, so that the book necessarily forms a standard work of reference. The printers must be congratulated upon an excellent standard of production."

\+ Nature 144:995 D 16 '39 380w

"Dr. Cowdry has achieved signal success in assembling and editing this symposium by distinguished investigators. The volume is not one that can be read through from cover to cover, but every one interested in any aspects of ageing will find within its pages stimulating discussion and analysis, and a discriminating summary of current knowledge contributing to our understanding of the process it discusses." E. P. Boas, M.D.

\+ Survey 75:262 Ag '39 360w

COWLES, ALFRED, and others. Common-stock indexes, 1871-1937. (Cowles commission for research in economics. Monograph) 499p $6 Principia

332.6 Stocks 38-23937

"This volume summarizes a most useful and laborious research project relative to the investment experience of common stocks during the past 67 years. According to the author, the purpose of the study 'is to portray the average experience of those investing in this class of security in the United States from 1871 to 1937.' " Am Econ R

"The most significant contribution thus far made to the long-standing controversy over the relative desirability of common stocks and bonds as long-term investment media." J. C. Dolley

\+ Am Econ R 29:205 Mr '39 850w

"Will be useful for many years as a great storehouse of organized data on stock prices and related topics." J. L. Snider

\+ Harvard Business R 17:371 spring '39 280w

Reviewed by Irving Fisher

J Pol Econ 47:431 Je '39 850w

COWLEY, MALCOLM, and SMITH, BERNARD, eds. Books that changed our minds. 285p $2.50 Doubleday

804 Books and reading (W)

The purpose of this symposium was to discuss those books, chosen by a varied group of readers, which seemed to have been most influential in their effect on the thinking of leaders of contemporary opinion. The books chosen and the writers who have analysed them are: Freud and The Interpretation of Dreams, by George Soule; The Education of Henry Adams, by Louis Kronenberger; Turner's The Frontier in American History, by Charles A. Beard; Sumner's Folkways, by John Chamberlain; Veblen and Business Enterprise, by R. G. Tugwell; Dewey and his Studies in Logical Theory, by C. E. Ayres; Boas and The Mind of Primitive Man, by Paul Radin; Beard's Economic Interpretation of the Constitution, by Max Lerner; Richard's The Principles of Literary Criticism, by David Daiches; Parrington's Main Currents in American Thought, by Bernard Smith; Lenin's The State and Revolution, by Max Lerner; Spengler's The Decline of the West, by Lewis Mumford. The book concludes with an article by Malcolm Cowley: An afterword on the modern mind. Bibliography. Biographical notes on contributors. Index.

Booklist 36:173 Ja 1 '40

Reviewed by Milton Rugoff

Books p14 Ja 7 '40 1050w

"It is a volume which should appeal to those who are concerned about currents of thought in the modern world, notably in their practical application to politics and society, and it ought to appeal to those who look for more in their reading than the passive enjoyment of a 'story.' " H. M. Jones

\+ — Boston Transcript p1 D 2 '39 1100w

New Yorker 15:118 D 2 '39 20w

No Am 248:414 winter '40 240w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Sat R of Lit 21:14 D 2 '39 1000w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 31 '39 120w

COX, ANTHONY BERKELEY (ANTHONY BERKELEY, FRANCIS ILES, pseuds). As for the woman. 294p $2.50 Doubleday [7s 6d Jarrolds]

40-1222

Psychological novel involving a sadistic English doctor, his neurotic wife, and a young man, a patient of the doctor's, who falls in love with the doctor's wife, altho she is many years his senior.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson Library Bulletin 14:268 D '39

Reviewed by Crieff Williamson

Books p14 O 29 '39 320w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 40w

"Any reader who is unacquainted with Francis Iles and wishes to become so, should read this last book first. As an introduction to his work it is fascinating, as a development of his peculiar gift it has no exceptional merit." Eleanor Godfrey

\+ — Canadian Forum 19:297 D '39 250w

"The treatment is natural, swiftly moving, and at times frank to the point of indecency. The only other criticism I have to offer is that the last episodes . . . are a trifle too perfunctory and fail to provide the conviction we find elsewhere that Alan's adventure might very well have happened just as it is here described." J. D. Beresford

— Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 4 '39 250w

Reviewed by Edgar Johnson

New Repub 101:267 D 20 '39 150w

"Interesting and deftly told, this new novel is a very able study of character, a decided advance on its author's earlier work." L. M. Field

\+ N Y Times p34 O 29 '39 700w

New Yorker 15:81 O 28 '39 30w

"Mr. Iles's crisp, clear, exposé of the flatness of late adolescence is less amusing than embarrassing; it is uncomfortable reading for anyone who has ever been twenty-one. The chief reward for lingering on in 'As For the Woman' is the surprise ending. For the background, characters, and for the neat torture of the last fifty pages, the book is worth reading, in spite of the exasperation the two main characters arouse." K. S.

\+ — Sat R of Lit 21:20 O 28 '39 170w

"I am quite sure Mr. Iles could write a novel containing no sensational element. The opening scene when Alan is with his family, the scene when he discovers that he no longer cares for Kathleen—these, to my mind, are not only better, but more interesting than the erotic entanglement which so nearly proves fatal." Forrest Reid

COX, A. B.—Continued
Spec 163:158 Jl 28 '39 280w
Time 34:68 O 30 '39 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p451 Jl 29 '39 360w

COX, ANTHONY BERKELEY (ANTHONY BERKELEY, FRANCIS ILES, pseuds). Death in the House. 273p $2 Doubleday [7s 6d Hodder]
(W) 39-27680

Detective story.

Booklist 36:10 S '39

"Mr. Berkeley provides a highly ingenious plot and dazzling deductions." Will Cuppy
Books p12 Ag 13 '39 170w

"I might have been much more impressed by the curare killings if I hadn't learned a couple of weeks ago that artificial respiration was an excellent antidote. Evidently no one in Scotland Yard or in the House had ever heard of it." Marian Wiggin
— Boston Transcript p2 Ag 19 '39 110w

"A strange aberration on the part of our respected Mr. Anthony Berkeley." Ralph Partridge
— New Statesman & Nation 17:545 Ap 8 '39 30w

"To those who are thoroughly familiar with British politics the story will no doubt have added interest, especially in view of the element of political satire running through it, but it is open to doubt whether the average American reader will get much out of it, despite Anthony Berkeley's skill as a narrator." Isaac Anderson
— + N Y Times p10 Ag 13 '39 140w

"Pretty exciting and beautifully written."
+ New Yorker 15:68 Ag 19 '39 50w

"Expertly constructed, with old murder-agent used in new—and faintly ridiculous—fashion. Baffling no end, also extremely British. O.K."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 Ag 12 '39 40w

"Death in the House is badly overpitched, offering us a murder-method so fanciful that any schoolboy could crack it for six. This is a pity, because the set-up in general is excellent." Nicholas Blake
— + Spec 162:1102 Je 23 '39 80w
Time 34:56 S 4 '39 30w

"In his new novel Mr. Anthony Berkeley has evidently set out to show that a detective story dealing with politics need not be dull. If this is his intention, he succeeds admirably. . . . The weak points of the novel are to be found not in the plot but in its presentation. The story was apparently first written as a newspaper serial and it suffers from the circumstances of its origin."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p205 Ap 8 '39 330w

COX, REAVIS. The marketing of textiles. 367p maps $2 Textile foundation
338.4 Textile industry. Marketing 38-17474

"Published under the auspices of The Textile Foundation, this book contains an authoritative discussion of the nature of markets in general, followed by sections on the marketing of individual fibres, yarns, and cloths; the influence of styles and fashions on marketing; price problems and policies; and important problems common to textiles at all stages. The author is associated with the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliographies at end of most chapters.

"The field which the author has chosen is a large one, but he covers it in broad and telling strokes. His method of approach is somewhat elementary, however, and it should be emphasized that 'The Marketing of Textiles' is primarily a textbook rather than a study directed to experienced members of the industry. Nevertheless, the work should prove useful and informative to those who are actively engaged in the textile trades."
+ Management R 27:358 O '38 350w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:62 O '38

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Four frightened women [Eng title: Frightened women]. 303p $2 Knopf [7s 6d Heinemann] 38-29067

Detective story.

Booklist 35:174 Ja 15 '39

"Complications abound, all solved by the use of pictures, brainwork and plenty of drinks. A fast and fairly tough example of the younger fleshly school." Will Cuppy
Books p10 Ja 1 '39 250w
Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 7 '39 100w
Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 17:910 Je 10 '39 50w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p11 Ja 1 '39 130w
New Yorker 14:56 Ja 7 '39 60w
Sat R of Lit 19:18 D 31 '38 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 22 '39 180w
Time 33:27 F 6 '39 30w
Times [London] Lit Sup p285 My 13 '39 110w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Murder for the asking. 271p $2 Knopf 39-20964

Detective story.

Booklist 36:45 O 1 '39

"The author's straightforward, vigorous wordage helps a lot." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Ag 6 '39 210w
Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 12 '39 130w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 Ag 6 '39 140w

"Fine for those who crave the fast and furious."
New Yorker 15:56 Ag 12 '39 40w

"Well-oiled plot, some fancy sleuthing, crisp conversation, good characters—especially the thugs and cops—and extra super-charged conclusion. Class A."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 Ag 5 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 15 '39 240w

COXON, MURIEL (HINE) (MRS SIDNEY COXON). Family circle [Eng title: A great adventure]. 310p $2 Appleton-Century [7s 6d Hodder]
39-8613

Quiet story of family life in Victorian England, in which George Henty, a young architect, Frances, his charming wife, and their two children take the center of the stage.

Booklist 35:307 My 15 '39

" 'Family Circle' is a charming picture of middle-class society, of its ceremonies and its subdued display of emotions, and its slightly antiquated moral rigidity. It is not as vigorous as some of Miss Hine's novels, but it has flavor and humor." Lisle Bell
+ — Books p12 Ap 23 '39 320w
Reviewed by M. P. Johnson
Boston Transcript p2 My 6 '39 130w

"Muriel Hine can always be called upon to produce a thoroughly readable novel with a well integrated story and with characterization that displays an intimate and wise acquaintance with human nature in its less bizarre aspects. 'Family Circle' is all that plus the interest added by the autobiographical background." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 23 '39 700w

" 'Family Circle' is not an exciting novel by any means, but it is a pleasant one if you are interested in the milder problems of an earlier day." G. B.

Sat R of Lit 20:18 Je 3 '39 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p237 Ap 22 '39 110w

COYLE, MRS KATHLEEN. Immortal ease. 387p $2.50 Dutton

39-14384

Character study of Victoria Rising, a poetess of mixed Irish and American heritage. Born in Ireland, and living sometimes there, sometimes in America or France, Victoria develops from a shy, sensitive child, into a beautiful, uncertain woman, avid for life but fearful of its consequences. The impact upon her consciousness of the Emmots, an Irish family of rare individualities, is the most vivid thing in her rather hazy existence.

"It would be difficult to exaggerate the degree of sympathy and penetration which has gone to the making of this book. The one part of it which seems somehow out of key is its strange conclusion, which does not seem artistically true. 'Immortal Ease' is a strange novel as well as a wonderfully well executed piece of writing." Iris Barry

+ Books p2 Je 4 '39 750w

Reviewed by Virginia Fletcher

Boston Transcript p1 Je 3 '39 270w

"Written in Miss Coyle's curiously oblique, subtle style that is likely to disturb as many readers as it pleases."

New Repub 99:196 Je 21 '39 50w

"There are plenty of good things here. Kathleen Coyle is a sensitive, highly suggestive writer with a fine but dangerous gift for saying at every point more than she actually seems to put on paper. The reader's curiosity unquestionably is stirred.' Whether it is satisfied must remain a matter of opinion. . . The final effect of 'Immortal Ease' must depend upon the characterization of Victoria Rising herself. It is here that Miss Coyle's success is at least qualified. As a woman impressionable, generous, and greedy for life she is both credible and engaging. The present reviewer, who may be unduly skeptical, finds it hard to believe in her as a fatal beauty or as a poet of the distinction ascribed to her." Margaret Wallace

+ — N Y Times p7 Je 4 '39 700w

"Miss Coyle has handled her theme carefully, with taste and some skill."

+ New Yorker 15:94 Je 10 '39 50w

"The first thing to say about this novel is that it is extremely readable: provocative material illuminated by understanding and technical virtuosity. Kathleen Coyle is an accomplished writer. The second thing to say is that finally, from the point of view of literature, it is disappointing. . . But Miss Coyle knows how to build a novel. After the first hundred pages or so one is captured fast by the story. The characters have value in what they stand for apart from their complex three-dimensional selves. They are rich and beautifully defined. . . 'Immortal Ease' is a provocative, and therefore rewarding novel. . . One can be thankful for a novel so rich in humanity, a novel disappointing only in that it does not take its place in literature, in the deepest sense of that word." May Sarton

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:11 Je 3 '39 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 18 '39 410w

CRABTREE, JOHN ICKERINGILL, and MATTHEWS, GLENN EARL. Photographic chemicals and solutions. 360p il $4 Am. photographic pub.

771 Photographic chemistry 39-29090

"This work by two experts associated with the Kodak Company sets forth the fundamental principles and techniques of solution preparation and of photographic development. The requirements of the small as well as of larger users of photographic chemicals have been kept in mind, so that the book may be of service to amateurs, professionals, scientific investigators, and workers with x-rays, photofinishing, photoengraving, and motion pictures. There are numerous tabular data and formulas, a list of manufacturers of apparatus and supplies, and nearly one hundred illustrations." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

Booklist 35:186 F 1 '39

"In the field covered it may be considered a valuable contribution, backed by a wealth of research and experience. . . Whether the reader is a rank amateur or a large professional operator he should find the book a very satisfactory reference work and it should find a welcome place in his library." H. G. Knight

+ Chem & Met Eng 46:142 F '39 240w

"The book is simply written and clearly printed enabling the most inexperienced readily to understand its contents, but on the other hand it is by no means too elementary for the professional photographer or maker of photographic chemicals because of its detailed completeness and explicitness."

+ Chem & Met Eng 46:432 Jl '39 250w

"In the field covered it may be considered a valuable contribution, backed by a wealth of research and experience. . . Whether the reader is a rank amateur or a large professional operator he should find the book a very satisfactory reference work and it should find a welcome place in his library." H. G. Knight

+ Ind & Eng Chem 17:142 F 20 '39 240w

Reviewed by C. B. Neblette

J Phys Chem 43:810 Je '39 240w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:59 O '38

CRAIG, CLARENCE TUCKER. The study of the New Testament. 131p $1 Abingdon

225.6 Bible. New Testament—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 39-11037

"This brief Introduction to the New Testament has been written in the hope that it may help lay Christians attain a modern, historical understanding of the early Christian writings. It is designed for use in adult and young people's classes in the church school, for the guidance of pastors who wish to devote their midweek service to Bible study, and for a Standard Training School text. . . The chapters have been arranged for one quarter's study in the church school, or a unit of twelve lessons in a Standard Training School." Pref.

Booklist 25:358 Jl 1 '39

Boston Transcript p7 My 20 '39 150w

"A little book by an able scholar on a great subject. . . The bibliographies and other apparatus are ample and well selected without being discouragingly or confusingly copious."

+ Christian Century 56:418 Mr 29 '39 60w

Churchman 153:35 S 1 '39 100w

CRAIGHEAD, FRANK COOPER, and CRAIGHEAD, JOHN JOHNSON. Hawks in the hand; adventures in photography and falconry. 290p il $3.50 Houghton

799.25 Falconry. Photography of birds. Hawks. Owls 39-32102

Describes the adventures of two American youths, brothers, who make a hobby of training and photographing hawks. The text covers the years from their high school days, when they first became interested in birds of prey, to their trip west after graduation from college. The photographs are grouped together in the front of the book.

Booklist 36:172 Ja 1 '40

"The enthusiasm of the Craighead boys is contagious. Their burning love for the fierce-eyed, swift-winged birds of prey will kindle many a fire of understanding. Already there is a sanctuary in Pennsylvania known as 'Hawk Mountain,' where migrating hawks may not be killed." G. M. Sutton

+ Books p9 D 24 '39 550w

CRAIGHEAD, F. C. and J. J.—Continued

"Rarely do two young chaps, from their own researches and experiences, produce such an interesting and worthwhile book on so little known a subject as falconry. The young brothers Craighead are due to receive the commendation not only of venerable ornithologists but of adventuresome and nature-loving souls yearning for a nobler field of sport."

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 9 '39 50w

"The tale is told in a straightforward, factual style, the two authors alternating in the role of narrator, and an extra chapter at the end gives some sound advice on the procedure of photographing birds. Unfortunately, the Craigheads are unskilled in writing; they never quite manage to lift their narrative above the level of a mere recital of events and incidents. The material, which should be enthralling, thus suffers from a lack of adequate expression." L. J. H., Jr.

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:20 F 3 '40 220w

"'Hawks in the Hand' is illustrated by 57 excellent photographs taken by the authors during their years of study of American birds of prey. These illustrations are grouped together at the front of the book rather than opposite the pages in the text which offer their interpretation and story. This arrangement seems unfortunate, since the reader, becoming absorbed in the text, may not turn back." C. B. M.

+ — Springf'd Republican p8 N 7 '39 650w

Wis Lib Bul 35:212 D '39

CRANE, NATHALIA CLARA RUTH, and FEENEY, LEONARD. The ark and the alphabet; an animal collection. 44p $1.35 Macmillan

811 Children's poetry 39-31692

Two poets, one once a child prodigy, the other a Catholic priest, have collaborated to produce this animal alphabet with a group of poems beginning with "A is for Ahu, an Asian gazelle" and ending with the Zebra. Besides the normal twenty-six there are seven more "extras", on the peacock, the jackdaw, etc. The poems themselves are not the result of collaboration; the authorship of each however, is revealed only in the index.

"There is no joint authorship in any individual poem; but it is not very hard to tell who wrote which without reference to the index of authorship at the end of the book. Miss Crane's are apt to be the more elegantly ornamented, legend-embossed. Father Feeney's are simple, droll, warmly real."

+ Books p10 Ja 7 '40 200w

Cath World 150:507 Ja '40 250w

"Some of the poems in this 'alphabet of animals' were culled from the previously published verse of the two authors; the rest were written ad hoc. Most of them fall between being simple enough to please children (which is the ostensible purpose) and being clever enough to interest adults."

Christian Century 56:1475 N 29 '39 60w

New Repub 101:297 D 27 '39 50w

"Zoological verses, aimed at children but well over their heads, with moments of charm and some of queerness."

New Yorker 15:108 N 18 '39 20w

CRAVEN, THOMAS, ed. Treasury of American prints. spiral binding $3.95 Simon & Schuster

769 Etchings. Lithographs (W) 39-27722

Reproductions in aquatone of 100 prints, lithographs, and etchings by forty-nine artists, most of them Americans. "While this is an 'All-American' collection, a few of the artists represented contribute an exotic note. For example, George Grosz, German-born and a German until very lately. . . Unique also are the prints by the Japanese-born Yasuo Kuniyoshi. Though an American in spirit, and American-trained as an artist, his oriental inheritance is apparent in his delicate and somewhat elusive art. On the other hand, the landscape by Luigi Lucioni, Italian born whose progress has been notably rapid has the universality of the artist whose thoroughgoing conformity to firmly established principles is proof against the onslaught of new fashions." (Springf'd Republican) Short biographical and descriptive notes are added.

Booklist 36:39 O 1 '39

Reviewed by Constance Rourke

Books p10 N 19 '39 800w

"Mr. Craven, despite all his protestations, champions not America but merely that limited part of it which is composed of his own favorites." Jerome Mellquist

— Nation 149:326 S 23 '39 900w

— New Repub 100:320 O 18 '39 100w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist

New Repub 102:26 Ja 1 '40 150w

"The reproductive task has been admirably performed throughout, artists and public alike being thus well served. In the matter of selection, too, these hundred examples go to make up a very interesting gallery of prints." E. A. Jewell

+ N Y Times p3 S 10 '39 600w

"There's a slightly hysterical introduction by Mr. Craven, but the prints themselves are well reproduced and on the whole well chosen."

+ — New Yorker 15:104 O 14 '39 60w

Pratt p16 winter '40

"The purchaser of this book will have acquired superb reproductions of lithographs and etchings by living American print makers at a cost of less than four cents apiece, any one of which, detached from its binding and hung on his wall, will convey many if not all of the qualities of its original." Oliver Larkin

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 S 16 '39 360w

"The 49 are unquestionably artists of distinction and sterling merit and the prints here assembled are an excellent, and eloquent, demonstration of what American artists are doing by way of creating a distinctively American art."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 10 '39 650w

CRAVEN, THOMAS, ed. A treasury of art masterpieces, from the renaissance to the present day [with a foreword by Harry B. Wehle]. 591p il $10 Simon & Schuster

759 Paintings (W) 39-27783

Reproductions in color of 144 of the world's masterpieces of painting, covering in time from the thirteenth century to the twentieth. The plates are based upon new photographs taken from pictures in public and private galleries in Europe and the United States. Each plate is accompanied by a page of commentary.

"Despite the ballyhoo, good pictures do not necessarily make a good book. Mr. Craven remains a popular journalist with a clear, vigorous, and sometimes sympathetic style. There is nothing, however, in the selection of the pictures or in the comments accompanying each print which either can be considered an original contribution to the subject or justifies the pompous and extravagant claims for this book that the advertisers have succeeded in getting the public to swallow whole. . . Taken by and large, however, the book is an extraordinary achievement. One must look at it not so much as a document of art but rather as a personal gallery filled with a vivid and discerning exhibition of pictures suddenly made available for the private possession and enjoyment of the middle class." F. H. Taylor

— + Atlantic D '39 550w

Booklist 36:86 N 1 '39

"Mr. Craven is not only thorough but spirited and illuminating. Avoiding technical terminology and all pedantic expedients, he sets forth singularly exact and explanatory characterizations. . . [He] is discriminating. He does not 'gush,' and it is, by the way, obvious that he is not altogether at his ease when he approaches some of the extremists inserted for no very comprehensible reason at the close of the book. But that book, as a whole, is delightfully penetrating and stimulating. It is written with zest, and its enthusiasm is bound to communicate itself to the reader." Royal Cortissoz

+ Books p1 O 1 '39 1300w

"Mr. Craven [has not] been nice to El Greco, picking no examples from the Prado nor other rich Spanish collections. Nor do some of the publisher's prints measure up to extant examples, for one instance, the Fouquet, which we think is better in the 1934 version by Les Fils de Victor Michel at Paris. Yet what it lacks in consistency is made up by the editor's virtues of simplicity and remarkable powers of expression. His book is the one American publication of its type that we would place at the top of its class, and the editor's contributions add mightily to its popular value, as an addition of estimable worth to any library." W. G. Dooley

+ — Boston Transcript p1 O 7 '39 1000w

"The book is all characteristic of Mr. Craven. It could not be otherwise and be of much value. Here, rather than a synthesis of what many compilers have said, one may find out what one man who has given years to the study of art thinks about the world's best. So his book passes the final test of useful writing, as representing what has passed through one man's mind as seeming to him to be worth while. That others will differ with him on some of his conclusions, and upon some of his choices among the moderns, is beside the point. It is his book, and a valuable contribution to the art world."

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 18 '39 400w

Reviewed by Constance Rourke
Nation 149:528 N 11 '39 420w

"In the present reviewer's opinion, the color work in this new book is, viewed as a whole, very considerably above the average. Manifest care has been taken. Despite this, color values in many of the plates seem—in some cases palpably—to have suffered change in the process. Were such changes uniform throughout a reproduction, it might be argued that a species of equivalence, notwithstanding, exists; yet uniformity cannot be counted upon, so that the result may often involve a measure—now more, now less—of distortion. One should make haste, however, to emphasize the fact that in a comparative sense these color reproductions deserve very high praise. . . Thomas Craven, in assembling and commenting upon the work selected, has performed a very genuine service." E. A. Jewell

+ — N Y Times p3 O 1 '39 1000w

"Each print is attended by about five hundred words of vigorous commentary. Some of these notes are little masterpieces of compression. . . It is hard to praise too highly Mr. Craven's service to the public. And yet, just because this book is going into thousands of homes and will exert a tremendous effect on popular judgments, I think it only fair to point out that the phrase 'art masterpieces' can be applied with perfect justice to the great majority of Mr. Craven's selections but not to all of them." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 15:66 S 30 '39 1100w
Pratt p16 winter '40

"Thomas Craven's introduction, and his brief essay on each of the paintings reproduced, will provoke the layman's interest through a gift for the vigorous and trenchant summing-up of a personality or a school which is, or should be, the envy of more richly informed and more profoundly thoughtful critics. There are misleading over-simplifications." Oliver Larkin

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:5 S 30 '39 650w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 1 '39 550w
Survey G 28:762 D '39 100w

CRAWFORD, KENNETH GALE. Pressure boys; the inside story of lobbying in America. 308p $3 Messner

328.368 Lobbying. Corruption (in politics) 39-27853

The "pressure boys" of the title are lobbyists, "who may be peddlers of personal influence, paid propagandists or amateurs promoting causes in which they sincerely believe." In this book the author, a reporter on the New York Post, has gathered together stories of the operations of Washington lobbyists.

Booklist 36:82 N 1 '39
Reviewed by C. R. Miller
Books p38 N 12 '39 1050w
Boston Transcript p1 Ja 27 '40 170w
Christian Science Monitor p22 O 13 '39 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '39
Reviewed by Eliot Janeway
Nation 149:529 N 11 '39 1200w

"Mr. Crawford's book is timely and valuable. Some of its subject matter is poorly digested, and the writing suffers from too much journalistic verve. But the fact is that 'The Pressure Boys' is a forceful indictment of the property lobby." H. J. Bresler

+ — New Repub 102:157 Ja 29 '40 600w

"Had Mr. Crawford thrown out his chapters on the Dies committee and the 'Little Steel' labor war, which had little to do with lobbying but were a work-off of repressions, he would have had room in which to have rounded out the picture—as well as having space for an index, of which no book was in greater need." S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p5 O 15 '39 800w

"The Pressure Boys is a popular, often sensational, always entertaining, and largely undocumented exposé of the Washington lobbyists. Much of the material can be verified; much comes from the author's personal and vicarious experience in the national capital as a newspaper correspondent. Fantastic as some of the stories may seem, what is recorded in sober congressional investigations gives verisimilitude to the author's own observations." Phillips Bradley
Social Educ 4:65 Ja '40 250w

CREEL, HERRLEE GLESSNER. Studies in early Chinese culture; first series. (Studies in Chinese and related civilizations) 266p il $3.50 Am. council of learned societies [15s Routledge]

913.31 China—Civilization. China—Antiquities 38-20974

"Professor Creel is the author of The Birth of China [Book Review Digest, 1937], the first general presentation in English of ancient China in the light of recent excavation. . . The present volume contains three papers covering parts of the same field in rigorous detail instead of in the popular terms of The Birth of China. . . The three papers are the first of a large series intended to deal with pre-Confucian China and have to do with (1) Shang sources, (2) the Hsia, (3) the Shang." Am Hist R

"This will not be an easy book for non-specialists. . . But no one should become very far involved in problems of China's early civilization without digesting Studies in Early Chinese Culture." C. M. Wilbur

+ Am Anthropol 40:512 Jl '38 600w

"To the sinologist some of the arguments will seem dead issues. In general however, the debunking of our conventional histories of ancient China is most welcome. The general historian or teacher of history may be wearied if not lost in the mazes of minutiae and the bypaths of inconclusive argument. For such, The Birth of China, in popular and more read-

CREEL, H. G.—Continued
able form, offers the same degree of authority as is meticulously evidenced in these papers." R. S. Britton
Am Hist R 44:394 Ja '39 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p390 Je 4 '38 250w

CRISS, MILDRED (MRS G. L. CATLIN). Mary Stuart; young queen of Scots; il. by Rose Chavanne. 274p $2.50 Dodd

B or 92 Mary Stuart, queen of Scots (W)

Story of the life of Mary, Queen of Scots, from the age of five to her return to her own country after the death of her first husband, the Dauphin. For young people from twelve up. Bibliography.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p26 N 12 '39 350w
Cath World 150:382 D '39 120w

"The story is excellently told, and that is enough, for it's a thoroughly romantic story." H. L. Binsse
+ Commonweal 31:133 D 1 '39 20w

Reviewed by J. F. Carter
Library J 65:78 Ja 15 '40 170w
Living Church 101:8 D 13 '39 50w

"Colorful reading."
+ New Yorker 15:90 N 25 '39 30w

CROCKETT, LUCY HERNDON. Lucio and his nuong; a tale of the Philippine Islands [il. by the author]. [54p] $2 Holt
(W) 39-27432

Picture-story book about a young Philippine Island boy and the fierce water-buffalo which belonged to his family. This beast the boy tamed to the complete surprise of all concerned.

Booklist 35:334 Je 1 '39

"Miss Crockett is an artist who has lived in the islands, and her pictures are really the book. Two people have taken pains to tell me that these are true not only to the life but to the spirit of the place. . . Reproduced by some new mechanical process, they have the effect of very gay murals at which one is meant to look a long time, constantly finding new and humorous details at which to look and laugh. If the story were at all equal to them, this would be one of the most striking books of the season: as it is, it is one that makes me determined to watch out for anything this illustrator may do in the future." M. L. Becker
+ — Books p6 My 14 '39 500w

"This book, with its rich greens, browns and reds, its wealth of full-page pictures, brings a unique tropical picture book into a collection of the most interesting."
+ Horn Bk M 15:164 My '39 120w

"While the story is somewhat heavy and over-wordy, its defects are more than over balanced by the unusual and attractive illustrations, which, according to the publisher's announcement, are produced by a new manufacturing process. They are gay and colorful, full of fascinating detail and very successfully convey the atmosphere of the Philippines." Marian Herr
+ — Library J 64:469 Je 1 '39 140w

"If the climax does not quite equal its build-up the weakness of construction is amply compensated for by the vivid atmosphere which the story evokes. . . The pictures are striking and original in style." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p10 Je 4 '39 420w
New Yorker 15:104 My 13 '39 50w

CROFTS, FREEMAN WILLS. Antidote to venom. 322p map $2 Dodd [7s 6d Hodder] 39-3183

Detective story.

Booklist 35:232 Mr 15 '39

"We particularly enjoyed the conclusion in which everyone, in the last couple of pages, like Mary Pickford found solace in God. Rogues' Gallery wonders how often police officers turn to God." Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 28 '39 110w

"The tale is as ingenious and well constructed as any Mr. Crofts has devised, and is informed, one feels, with a more marked emotional strength." E. R. Punshon
+ Manchester Guardian p7 N 22 '38 300w

"We always know that French will corner his man in the end, but it seems more sporting to give the fellow a long start of 170 pages, and I think even French's staunchest admirers will be delighted to watch him burst into a sprint for a change." Ralph Partridge
+ New Statesman & Nation 16:784 N 12 '38 190w

"Those readers of detective stories who demand hard-boiled characters, swift action and snappy dialogue may as well pass this one by, for this is an Inspector French story, and neither the inspector nor his creator is ever in a hurry. There are other readers who like a story that is carefully and logically worked out, with due attention to every little detail that is pertinent to the narrative. It is for such readers that Freeman Wills Crofts writes." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 F 5 '39 220w

"Peerless."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:18 F 4 '39 40w

"We may feel that Mr. Crofts has not made the psychological interest intense enough to justify the comparative lack of detective subtlety, and that he underlines his moral too heavily at the end: but the story has a genuine novelty of treatment that must commend it." Nicholas Blake
+ — Spec 161:1134 D 30 '38 120w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 2 '39 140w
Times [London] Lit Sup p727 N 12 '38 180w

CROFTS, FREEMAN WILLS. Tragedy in the hollow [Eng title: Fatal venture]. 296p map $2 Dodd [7s 6d Hodder] 39-22445

Detective story.

Booklist 36:112 N 15 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p17 S 17 '39 150w

"Because of the meticulous attention given to the origin of the cruise idea and to the history of the ship after Stott purchased it, all the clues are present for inspection from the first of the book. The whole is a slow-moving but completely enthralling case." Marian Wiggin
+ — Boston Transcript p2 S 16 '39 100w

Reviewed by E. R. Punshon
Manchester Guardian p3 S 22 '39 170w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 18:728 N 18 '39 150w

"If you like such deliberate presentation and unraveling of mystery in a competently told story you will enjoy this newest exploit of Inspector French."
+ N Y Times p20 S 17 '39 200w

"Honest, straightforward tale, with a travelogue touch."
+ New Yorker 15:80 S 23 '39 50w

"Lengthy but interesting build-up, followed by methodical, unspectacular, and wholly satisfactory deduction à la francais. Slow but sure."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 S 16 '39 50w

"Fatal Venture contains another unsweetened slab of Inspector French's interminable activity. One cannot avoid feeling some affection for this gigantic bore: he is like a tame elephant that never forgets." Rupert Hart-Davis
— Spec 163:556 O 20 '39 30w

"The hypercritical may complain that Mr. Freeman Wills Crofts's new detective story is a trifle leisurely in its development and that its romantic patches have an old-fashioned air, but they will hardly deny that he is indeed an Old Master whose work still overshadows the products of most of the Bright Young Things."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p541 S 16 '39 300w

CROMWELL, OLIVER. Writings and speeches; with an introduction, notes and an account of his life by Wilbur Cortez Abbott, with the assistance of Catherine Dickson Crane; 4v; v 2, The commonwealth, 1649-1653. 806p il maps $5 Harvard univ. press [21s Oxford]

B or 92 (37-11692)

"This second volume treats the years from 1649 to 1653, when the commonwealth which came into being after Charles I's death on the scaffold held sway in England. Much of the text, both documentary and explanatory, is necessarily concerned with Cromwell's campaigns in Ireland, Scotland and England, and with the Dutch. . . The present volume contains a handful of illustrations and several maps which, from the standpoint of the cartographically minded reader, are an improvement over those in the previous volume. There is also an index which covers the two parts of the work so far published." (Springf'd Republican) For volume one see Book Review Digest, 1937.

Reviewed by J. T. McNeill
Christian Century 56:1509 D 6 '39 650w

"A scholarly work that makes delightful reading."

+ Social Studies 30:334 N '39 10w

"Issuance of the second volume of Wilbur Cortez Abbott's 'The Writings and Speeches of Oliver Cromwell' carries to its half-way mark an imposing production of modern scholarship. While the remaining two volumes will be awaited with much interest by historians, enough of Prof Abbott's work has now appeared to indicate that it will be, when completed, the definitive treatment of its subject."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 S 8 '39 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p592 O 14 '39 1950w

CRONIN, JOHN FRANCIS. Economics and society. 456p $2.50 Am. bk.

330 Economics. U.S.—Economic conditions 39-15312

A textbook for college students by the professor of economics at St Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, Md. "The first part of the book is descriptive, analytical, and critical; it covers such topics as factors affecting wealth and its distribution; individualism; legal phases of property, persons, and corporations; competition; prices; cycles; democratic economic systems; and authoritarian economic systems. In this and elsewhere [Dr Cronin] points out the ideals and teachings of the Catholic Church concerning our economic system. In the second part he deals with such special problems as labor, consumers, public finance, agriculture, international trade, money and banking, investment and speculation, and public utilities." (Social Educ) Teachers' bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Frank Harris
Am Soc R 4:900 D '39 90w

Reviewed by Meno Lovenstein
Ann Am Acad 207:233 Ja '40 450w

"Father Cronin is a skillful teacher as well as a compelling writer; and while a textbook ordinarily is no place for incisive propaganda, it may be said that the author does not hesitate to present his matter enthusiastically." J. H. F.

+ Cath World 150:243 N '39 280w

"It is a fine textbook, multum in uno, and I predict for it a useful life." J. P. Boland

+ Commonweal 30:190 Je 9 '39 600w

"One may question the nature of value; one may doubt whether rigidly high prices leave the economic system in a state resembling rigor mortis. But one will be stimulated by the author's views on the quantity theory of money, the causes of the business cycle, and the philosophical and critical approach to an understanding of our economic institutions. Recent federal legislation is well digested, integrated, and evaluated, and the style is excellent. It will merit use as a text where a non-traditional text is wanted." W. F. Mitchell

+ — Social Educ 3:514 O '39 550w

CROOK, WILBUR FLOYD. Do you want to become a banker? 179p $1.50 Stokes

332.1 Banks and banking. Profession, Choice of (W) 39-19731

"This volume is addressed to the young man who may have some serious thought of making banking his life work. It is not intended as a text-book, nor as a course in banking. It is written for those who need advice on the less tangible but most important factors of personal aptitude. The details cover an outline of the organization of banking, of the internal operation of banks, and of the work of certain departments." Pref.

Booklist 36:11 S '39
Wis Lib Bul 35:161 O '39

CROOKE, WILLIAM, ed. See Rouse, W. H. D. Talking thrush

CROSS, ARTHUR LYON. A shorter history of England and greater Britain. 3d ed 1004p maps $4.25 Macmillan

942 Great Britain—History 39-3675

New edition of a textbook first published in 1920, second edition in 1929. "In this third edition the author has endeavored to describe the chief events in Great Britain and the Dominions from 1929 as far as possible into the year 1938. The situation in Europe and in the Far East is still so chaotic that it does not seem advisable to attempt to describe in any detail the British relations to it. Again the author has sought to modify a few statements in the light of recent scholarship and to revise the bibliographies." (Pref. to the 3d ed) Index.

Booklist 35:235 Mr 15 '39
Social Studies 30:333 N '39 70w

CROSSMAN, RICHARD HOWARD STAFFORD. Plato today. 311p $2.50 Oxford [7s 6d Allen, G]

320 Plato. Political science. State, The 39-27075

After an introductory statement on Plato's general political ideas, the author considers what Plato would have said about British democracy, American education, the new deal, the modern family, communism, and nazism, and attempts to explain why Plato failed. The author is an Englishman, at present on the staff of the New Statesman and Nation. Bibliography.

"R. H. S. Crossman discusses with brilliance, wit, and considerable insight the probable reactions of the Plato of the Republic to modern institutions." T. I. Cook

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:346 Ap '39 440w

"This is a useful and stimulating book. If the book has weaknesses, it is because the author does not carry through the implications of his conviction of Plato's values as relative to his time and class. He tends to make mechanical analogies between the social problems of the Plato's day and problems of the present. And, in particular, the failure to see the questions raised by Plato in their concrete historical genesis leads directly to two major blemishes." A. D. Winspear

CROSSMAN, R. H. S.—Continued
+ — Am Soc R 4:734 O '39 550w
Booklist 35:217 Mr 1 '39

"It would take a man with [more] active imagination than Mr. Crossman's and a more brilliant wit, and much more assurance and expertness in the handling of dialogue, to do this job well. But, fortunately, this is not all he attempts to do. He had the wisdom to confine himself for more than half the book to the history of philosophy, in which he himself has received the training of an expert." Thomas Merton
+ — Books p15 Mr 19 '39 900w

"The book is brilliant, subtle and possibly double-edged. The chapters on Socrates and Plato himself have the depth of philosophy, the warmth of history and the smooth finish of excellent writing." F. X. C.
+ Cath World 149:758 S '39 460w

Reviewed by V. S. Chworowsky
+ — Christian Century 56:1075 S 6 '39 1000w

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon
Christian Science Monitor p10 F 8 '39 500w

Reviewed by Gordon Poteat
Crozer Q 16:304 O '39 240w

"Readers unfamiliar with Plato may find the work stimulating and amusing. Readers familiar with Plato will be struck by the dull and unimaginative temperament of Mr. Crossman's resurrected philosopher, by the misleading presentation of Plato's thought, and by the commonplace character of the author's criticism." Martin Gardner
— + Ethics 49:503 Jl '39 280w
J Philos 36:190 Mr 30 '39 600w

"Mr. Crossman would be the last to claim that he has written a profound book. But he has certainly written an extraordinarily stimulating one. Like every good Oxford man, he has Plato in his blood; and like every good Oxford man of the Left, he cannot help applying the large outlines of Platonic politics to contemporary issues, and gazing upon the results. In the outcome, his Plato appears as a kind of idealist fascist, full, it is true, of shrewd criticisms of the existing order but, at bottom, constrained to reject all the hopes upon which contemporary democracy is founded." H. J. Laski
+ New Repub 99:341 Jl 26 '39 600w

"Despite Professor Niebuhr's enthusiastic introduction, I cannot quite see what this book is intended to do and for whom. It gives a very good picture of Plato's relations to Athenian democracy, but, save as a form of poetic art, putting Plato down in the modern world and imagining what he would have said about it is a gratuitous undertaking." Irwin Edman
N Y Times p3 F 26 '39 480w

"The author, a young British labor leader and former Tutor in Philosophy and Fellow of New College, Oxford, has something here—no less than several hours of good entertainment for those who possess a genuine interest in Plato." R. B.
+ Sat R of Lit 19:22 Mr 25 '39 190w

Reviewed by R. A. Humphrey
Social Studies 30:280 O '39 700w

CROW, CARL. The Chinese are like that; drawings by Sapajou [Eng title: My friends, the Chinese]. 328p $3 Harper [9s Hamilton, H]

915.1 China—Social life and customs. National characteristics, Chinese (W) 39-7875

A description of the manners and customs of the Chinese, by the author of Four Hundred Million Customers (Book Review Digest, 1937). Partial contents: Competition self-restrained; Forty centuries of farming; The talented rickshaw coolie; Getting along with neighbors; There are no secrets in China; The futility of saving money; The land of flowers and sunrises; The folly of untimely death.

Booklist 36:65 O 15 '39

"Mr. Crow does not formulate many general principles; he writes graphically, his object is 'to make you see,' to realize the Chinese first as human beings. This produces easy and delightful reading. But if any one wishes to go beneath the surface, discover the social lesson, the material is there; and the implications are pertinent enough for Americans of this generation." Isabel Paterson
+ Books p5 S 24 '39 1000w

Reviewed by E. B. Schriftgiesser
Boston Transcript p10 O 7 '39 800w

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p3 N 4 '39 180w

"Mr. Crow's book of Chinese characteristics is worthy of a high place in any bibliography on China. He has brought the missionary classics up-to-date!" H. B. E.
+ Christian Science Monitor p20 O 6 '39 700w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '39
Foreign Affairs 18:383 Ja '40 20w

Reviewed by Lin Yutang
Living Age 357:390 D '39 300w

"Mr. Crow's style is fluent. His many themes are dealt with much as one might hear them from a Chinese story-teller. The matter may be light and the treatment sketchy, but the reader is carried along." E. W. M.
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 O 18 '38 300w

"A second book must lack something of the freshness and surprise of the first; and events have inevitably forced Mr. Crow's bubbling springs of affection into channels of partisanship. But the springs still bubble. The humor and observation are still spontaneous. The book and its drawings are gay and delightful. Even in wartime that is what they should be." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p5 O 22 '39 900w

"Mr. Crow is perfect when he's just setting one little odd fact after another. When he generalizes, he's not so good." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 15:76 S 23 '39 300w

"This book appears at a fortunate time. Its racy and readable chapters will call forth many smiles and some outright laughs, and leave every reader with a deeper and more appreciative understanding of the way one-fifth of mankind lives." T. A. Bisson
+ Sat R of Lit 20:12 S 30 '39 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p770 D 3 '38 250w
Wis Lib Bul 35:213 D '39

CROW, CARL. He opened the door of Japan [Eng title: Harris of Japan]. 275p il $3 Harper [12s 6d Hamilton, H.]

B or 92 Harris, Townsend. U.S.—Foreign relations—Japan. Japan—Foreign relations—U.S. (W) 39-27181

Biography of Townsend Harris, an American crockery importer, who, as a representative of the United States government in Japan, completed Commodore Perry's work of opening the door of the Far East by the negotiations resulting in the treaty of 1858. Bibliography. No index.

"Mr. Crow has presented in admirable fashion an interesting account of the one individual who, perhaps more than anyone else, actually opened Japan's closed door." Hugh Borton
+ Am Hist R 45:474 Ja '40 150w
Booklist 35:250 Ap 1 '39

Reviewed by Bradford Smith
Books p4 Mr 5 '39 950w

Reviewed by M. P. Johnson
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 25 '39 450w

"Carl Crow has written succinctly and entertainingly of this odd gentleman. . . We are in Mr. Crow's debt for recalling Townsend Harris and giving so brilliant an account of his adventures." D. G.

+ Cath World 149:373 Je '39 410w

"This is an amusing and illuminating book, necessarily less rich in personal observations than '400 Million Customers,' but definitely in the Carl Crow tradition." R. H. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 2 '39 480w

New Statesman & Nation 18:408 S 16 '39 300w

"Mr. Crow's biography will doubtless supersede the incomplete volume published by Dr. W. E. Griffis in 1895. It does belated justice to an extraordinary man. It is written interestingly, though in no very distinguished style. There may be some slips here and there. . . There ought to be an index. A little more attention might have been given to the situation in Japan in 1856 and after. But the job, as a whole, was worth while and well done." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p5 Mr 5 '39 1350w

New Yorker 15:79 Mr 4 '39 90w

"It was only because Mr. Crow once lived in Japan that he ever heard of Harris, and, his interest piqued, he came about to write the book—and a thorough and interesting job he had done, too, despite the fact that it lags in spots, and here and there meanders off the trail to drag in irrelevant bits of Oriental sidelights."

+ — No Am 247:396 summer '39 270w

Pratt p27 summer '39

"Carl Crow has made admirable use of his materials, notably the annotated journal of Harris prepared by Dr. Mario Cosenza. He has written a swiftly moving, full-rounded biography, which successfully blends scholarship with literary excellence." T. A. Bisson

+ Sat R of Lit 19:6 Mr 4 '39 600w

Reviewed by J. R. Hayden

Survey G 28:345 My '39 130w

Time 33:80 Mr 13 '39 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p177 Mr 25 '39 650w

Wis Lib Bul 35:102 My '39

CROWELL, MRS GRACE (NOLL). Songs of faith. 50p 50c Harper

811 39-9536

Collection of inspirational poems by a contemporary American writer of religious verse.

"A lovely little book of fresh and forceful religious verse by one of the best, and best known, of contemporary poets of religion."

+ Christian Century 56:517 Ap 19 '39 20w

"Mrs. Crowell's verses carry their usual fragrance of sunlit devotion. Her many readers will be glad to use and to give this little volume, in which are preserved the lines which have seen previous publication in widely read periodicals." M. L. E.

+ Churchman 153:34 My 15 '39 40w

Wis Lib Bul 35:100 My '39

CROWNFIELD, GERTRUDE. Cristina of old New York; il. by Marguerite de Angeli. 315p $2 Lippincott

39-10126

New Amsterdam in 1664 is the scene of this story of fifteen-year-old Cristina Vermeer. After Mynheer Vermeer's death and the departure of the older brother on a trapping expedition, the responsibility of the family fell largely to Cristina, who brought them safely thru a series of disasters.

Booklist 35:334 Je 1 '39

"The historical stories of Miss Crownfield are always careful in detail and romantic in plot; this time both combine to bring to life a turbulent year in the history of early New York. . . A great deal goes on, but the story holds together well, and it would be hard to remember any of it without remembering also the nature of history in the Manhattan of 1664. That means a useful story for a young reader." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 Ap 30 '39 420w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack

Boston Transcript p2 Je 10 '39 150w

"During the distressing days when New Amsterdam passed out of the hands of the Dutch and into those of the English, Cristina and her family have quite enough pain to bear but added to this, the author has introduced again spiteful and revengeful personal foes. This is characteristic of many of Miss Crownfield's books and, I feel, cheapens them." Sonja Wennerblad

Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 150w

Living Church 101:6 D 13 '39 50w

CROWNFIELD, GERTRUDE. Diantha's signet ring. 172p il $2 Crowell

39-25881

Tale of Williamsburg in 1718. The chief characters are Diantha, orphaned heiress, her unscrupulous guardian, and the young man who rescued her.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p24 N 12 '39 200w

Cath World 150:382 D '39 60w

Christian Century 56:1277 O 18 '39 30w

Churchman 154:35 Ja 1 '40 40w

"The plot is so unusual that grown persons will find it as absorbing as girls, and boys too will like it quite as much as any of their own special books."

+ Living Church 101:6 D 13 '39 40w

New Repub 101:238 D 13 '39 20w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 180w

CRUMP, IRVING. Our firemen. 243p il $2 Dodd

352.3 Firemen. Fire extinction. New York (city). Fire department (W) 38-37232

Account of modern methods of fire fighting, with vivid descriptions of acts of bravery, details of some great fires in New York city, details of the daily routine of a fireman's life, etc. Junior and senior high schools.

Booklist 35:159 Ja 1 '39

Pratt p34 summer '39

Wis Lib Bul 35:69 Ap '39

CRUTCHLEY, ERNEST TRISTRAM. G P O. (English institutions) 252p il $2.75 Macmillan [7s 6d Cambridge]

383.4942 Great Britain. Post office [40-1805]

This book, the first of a new series to be published under the general title of English Institutions, is a well illustrated, readable account of the numerous activities of the British Post office, which includes in its organization, the telephone, telegraph, and wireless services of the country. Index.

"It is an urbane, learned, and pleasantly anecdotal account of the great department which is the biggest employer in the country and the standing refutation of jeremiads about the inefficiency of State management. . . The reader will note that any tendency on Mr. Crutchley's part to write critically of Post Office management ceases about the year 1840. One can find, too, no suggestion that the Post Office has labour problems, that its workers have organised themselves in trade unions, or that they have lately been complaining with some success of inadequate pay. 'G. P. O.' has, in fact, the faults as well as the advantages of having been written by a public relations officer." J. M.

+ — Manchester Guardian p5 Ja 3 '39 340w

CRUTCHLEY, E. T.—Continued

"Mr. Crutchley has special qualifications for his task by virtue of experience. And as these qualifications are supplemented by a power for marshalling material, a lively style and a keen sense of humour, the result is a book well calculated to make an appeal to minds of all types. . . The general perspective and arrangement rises almost above criticism. The treatment is naturally permeated with an enthusiastic optimism and there is perhaps a tendency to dwell somewhat unduly on the virtues of the staff."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p15 Ja 7 '39 270w

CUDDIHY, ROBERT JOSEPH, and SHUSTER, GEORGE NAUMAN, eds. Pope Pius XI and American public opinion. 224p $1.50 Funk

B or 92 Pius XI (Achille Ratti) pope 39-10628

"A collection of tributes to and evaluations of the late pope culled from newspaper and magazine articles and from radio addresses, sermons and speeches made at the time of his death. The tributes represent all shades of opinion and all parts of the country." Christian Century

Cath World 149:762 S '39 80w

Christian Century 56:483 Ap 12 '39 40w

CULBERT, JANE FULLERTON, and SMITH, HELEN RAYMOND. Counseling young workers. 212p $1.75 Vocational service for juniors, 95 Madison av, N.Y.

371.425 Vocational guidance. Occupations. Profession, Choice of 39-2291

"Based on four years' work of counselors of the junior consultation service in New York City, which is maintained in connection with a public employment service, this book describes those principles which were found to be important in helping young people to solve their vocational problems. Tests are discussed, procedures described, and forms used in the service are given." Booklist

Booklist 35:226 Mr 15 '39

"Should be in the library of all who are engaged in practical junior counseling work." Elizabeth Morrissy

+ Commonweal 29:697 Ap 14 '39 180w

"Here is a carefully written, simple, and very readable statement of what goes on in the process of helping young people make intelligent plans about their vocational futures." J. H. Bentley

+ Survey 75:195 Je '39 400w

CUMMING, ALEX. Hardy chrysanthemums. 168p il $2.50 McGraw

635.9335537 Chrysanthemums 39-27310

Study of the history, varieties, culture, diseases and pests, propagation, and breeding of chrysanthemums. Special attention is given to the Korean hybrids. Index.

Booklist 35:285 My 1 '39

"Text and illustrations that are clearness and factuality personified. . . [The] author is one of our foremost scientific plant breeders as well as a practical professional grower of many years' experience." R. S. Lemmon

+ Books p13 My 14 '39 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '39

CUMMING, HENRY HARFORD. Franco-British rivalry in the post-war Near East; the decline of French influence. 230p map $3 (8s 6d) Oxford

949.6 France—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Great Britain—Foreign relations—France. Eastern question. Europe—Politics [39-4117]

"H. H. Cumming presents a brief survey of the rivalry of these two Allied Powers in the Near East from 1918 to 1923. . . After a short statement of Franco-British policy and interests in the Near East before and during the War, the author discusses, in summary fashion, the Allied secret agreements respecting Turkey, Palestine, Syria, and Mesopotamia; the first abortive peace with Turkey in the Treaty of Sèvres; the Greco-Turkish war; and finally the Treaty of Lausanne." Am Pol Sci R

"The earlier part of his work might have been reduced somewhat, since some of its subject matter had been covered before. Secondly, a final chapter bringing the analysis of Franco-British rivalry in the Near East substantially down to date would have been advisable. The rivalry did not end at Lausanne. As it is, however, Mr. Cumming has written a very useful brief volume which will be of value to students who desire to unravel the threads of international politics in a region which once more promises to be a center of intense rivalry and conflict among the European Great Powers. The author's bibliography adds value to his volume." H. N. Howard

+ — Am Hist R 44:948 Jl '39 310w

"A number of the author's conclusions do not seem adequately supported by evidence, and on the whole his work does not contribute a great deal to the literature of international politics in the Near East—a field which is sadly lacking in sound works in the English language." W. C. Johnstone, Jr.

Am Pol Sci R 33:143 F '39 280w

Reviewed by H. N. Howard

Ann Am Acad 203:226 My '39 360w

Foreign Affairs 17:447 Ja '39 10w

"This compact little book, written in the best tradition of American scholarship, is of special value to British readers because it is concerned with a period of stress and disagreement in Anglo-French relations on which British thought is reluctant to dwell. The book is based on a full study of the relevant documents, backed by some knowledge of the regions concerned. Its attitude throughout is expository and critical, and Mr. Cumming handles his material in a way that inspires confidence. But, like so many American students of international affairs, he is too ready to assume that Britain is always seeking to use the United States as her catspaw."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p654 O 15 '38 650w

CUMMINGS, DIANE. Figure skating as a hobby; foreword by John R. Tunis. 132p il $2 Harper

796.91 Skating (W) 38-35721

Intended for the beginner, this manual opens with a chapter on equipment and costs and one on plain skating, continuing with directions for the simple and progressively more difficult steps in figure skating. The appendix gives a list of skating clubs. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 33:129 D 15 '38

"There is really nothing new or original about the technical aspect of skating as presented, but it is sound and it is well backed up by an authoritative bibliography. Miss Cummings, herself, is a fairly recent convert to the enthusiasm of figure skating, but she is enabled thereby to treat her subject from the beginner's standpoint and to bring out points which the masters of the sport have forgotten long since. Therein lies a good deal of the charm of this small volume." R. L. Hapgood

+ Boston Transcript p2 D 24 '38 250w

Wis Lib Bul 35:11 Ja '39

CUMMINGS, HOMER STILLE. Selected papers, 1933-1939; ed. by Carl Brent Swisher. 316p $3.50 Scribner

340.81 U.S. Justice, Department of. Justice, Administration of. U.S. Supreme court 39-6319

"A selection from the papers of Mr. Cummings chosen to indicate the major activities and policies of the Attorney-General and the Department of Justice between 1933 and 1939. While his official and personal files were thrown open to the editor, Mr. Cummings himself had no share in the enterprise. . . The papers used are admittedly a collection of samples drawn from the unwieldy masses of material available. They comprise 'addresses, articles, letters and telegrams, reports, legal arguments, statements for the press, memoranda, briefs, opinions, orders, and testimony at legislative hearings.' . . The net effect is to give the reader a concrete impression of the work of the department during six critical years, and to emphasize the diverse character of the responsibilities borne by the Attorney-General and his staff." Am Pol Sci R

Am Hist R 45:481 Ja '40 50w

"The volume contains a brief biographical sketch of Mr. Cummings. The papers are woven into a coherent scheme and their significance effectively indicated by more than twenty notes by the editor into which is crammed historical and descriptive material of great value. Students of government should be grateful for this volume, brief as it is. It would be a fortunate thing if its publication should stimulate similar undertakings that would illuminate the work and policies of all of the major executive departments." R. E. Cushman

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:306 Ap '39 700w

CUMMINGS, HOWARD, and SACKETT, EVERETT BAXTER. Our schools. (American way ser) 216p il map $1.40 Harper

370.973 Education—U.S. (W) 39-27529

One of a series of textbooks designed for use in high school courses in social studies. This volume attempts to explain how the American educational system works, how the schools fit into society, and how the individual fits into the school system. Index.

Booklist 35:358 Jl 1 '39

"The style of Our Schools is adaptable to junior high school use. Professional phraseology is made quite intelligible, and only in the chapter on school management does one find content of a peculiarly technical nature. . . The set of introductory photographs at the beginning of each volume are interesting even if not conveniently arranged for study, and the Pictorial Statistics, with which The Use of Our Land is especially replete, are used to good account." K. B. Thurston

+ Social Educ 3:590 N '39 430w

Wis Lib Bul 35:139 Jl '39

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN. Murder at Deer Lick. 252p map $2 Dutton

39-24728

Detective story.

"Better not miss this vigorous and impressively told story. . . It's a decided novelty in bafflers, urged upon all long-suffering victims of the rubber stamp. The unusual characters alone are worth the price of admission and you'll find no smarter detecting than that of shrewd, illiterate Sheriff Jess Roden." Will Cuppy

+ Books p16 O 15 '39 100w.

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 O 7 '39 60w

"It will not interest every mystery fan, of course; the very usualness of its scene is a drag upon its action. But this reviewer, for one, hopes to meet Jess Roden again."

+ N Y Times p35 O 15 '39 120w

"Kentucky mountain lore, strong characters realistically drawn, killer with primitive motives and diabolical methods, enough rough gaiety, totally surprising end. Prime."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 S 30 '39 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 15 '39 160w

CUNNINGHAM, MRS CAROLINE, ed. Talking stone; being early American stories told before the white man's day on this continent by the Indians and Eskimos; selected and retold by [the editor] il. by Richard Floethe. 116p map $1.75 Knopf

398.2 Folklore, Indian. Folklore, Eskimo (W) 39-29583

Eighteen tales told by North American Indians and Eskimos before the white man came. They have not appeared in earlier collections for children, but have been chosen from source material.

"This is a work for an experienced and devoted translator, and Mrs. Cunningham has already proved her infinite capacity for taking pains in this field. Exercising this in her new work, she has made something that stands out among folklore books for young people. . . Entertaining for the ten-year-olds, it may prove to be an introduction to more serious study later." M. L. Becker

+ Books p30 N 12 '39 200w

"It is attractive in its make-up: the brown print of the type and illustrations give it an air of distinction. It is, however, an 'extra'—not a book for first purchase." Josephine Smith

Library J 64:712 S 15 '39 100w

"Though a number of the stories are to be found elsewhere, because of its readableness and charm 'The Talking Stone' will prove one of the most appealing collections for the children's own reading. For the story teller it provides popular material in very usable form. The book is distinguished in design." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 D 17 '39 250w

"Easily read folk-lore."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:21 D 9 '39 20w

Wis Lib Bul 35:191 N '39

CUNNINGHAM, EUGENE. Gun bulldogger. 248p $2 Houghton

39-4285

Western story.

Booklist 35:291 My 1 '39

"It's a superb tale compacted of action, mystery, suspense, alarms and excursions, and it's written in Eugene Cunningham's lean, clean, sinewy style, without any superfluous words. Of the hundred-odd writers of Western fiction whose work is known to this reviewer, none has any better or more stirring tales to tell than Cunningham, and none tells them more expertly." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p24 F 26 '39 240w

Wis Lib Bul 35:145 Jl '39

CUNNINGHAM, LOUIS ARTHUR. Of these three loves. 302p $2 Penn

39-11086

The setting is modern Eastern Canada. It is the story of Gillian Meade and the three men who loved her.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p17 Ap 9 '39 100w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p22 Ap 16 '39 160w

CURRIER, THOMAS FRANKLIN, ed. See Howell, E. Elizabeth Lloyd and the Whittiers

CURTISS, MRS ELIZABETH (MANGAM). Dead dogs bite. 308p $2 Simon & Schuster

39-10127

Detective story.

"This seems almost too mysterious at first, but it soon settles into a reasonable puzzle; and the conclusion is worth two dollars. The Italian atmosphere helps on the straightaways, too." Will Cuppy

+ Books p23 Ap 2 '39 220w

CURTISS, ELIZABETH—Continued
Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p3 Ap 1 '39 50w

"The murder plot with which this story deals is unnecessarily elaborate and wildly improbable, but the author may be forgiven all that because of the highly entertaining manner in which the tale is handled. The way in which Dr. Bunce twists the police around his fingers is alone worth the price of admission." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p21 Ap 9 '39 150w
New Yorker 15:80 Ap 1 '39

"Excellentissimo."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 Ap 1 '39 40w

"Those who like to match wits against the author will find plenty to occupy their talents for detection in this story, if, in the meantime, they can refrain from looking at the last chapter and seeing who is responsible for all the villainy afoot."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 21 '39 190w

CUSHMAN, MRS CLARISSA (FAIRCHILD). The other brother. 307p $2 Little 39-2607

The central figure of this story of college life is a sensitive, little-understood youth so completely over-shadowed by his family, both in college and at home that he is almost cheated out of the recognition and happiness that he deserves. Things shape, however, to bring a happy ending to the story.

Booklist 35:230 Mr 15 '39

"Both as character study and as story 'The Other Brother' is an excellent performance. It strikes us as about the best of her work that has appeared, warming and wise and flavored with an unobtrusive wit. . . A book that college people will particularly enjoy, and one that all readers will find entertaining." Lisle Bell
+ Books p9 F 5 '39 300w
Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '39 110w

"A better than average story of the narrow world of a college." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p23 F 12 '39 200w

"The author avoids awkward over-emotionalized situations, and tells a story that mingles adult psychology and sentimental interest."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 12 '39 300w

CUTHRELL, MRS FAITH (BALDWIN). See Baldwin, F.

CZERNIN VON UND ZU CHUDENITZ, FERDINAND, graf. Europe—going, going, gone! a sketchy book trying to give a rough explanation of Europe, its politics, and its state of mind, for the benefit mainly of Anglo-Saxons, politicians, and other folk with uncomplicated minds; ill. to make things easier, by Walter Goetz. 324p maps $2.75 Greystone [8s 6d Davies]
940.5 Europe—Politics 39-22770

"Two years ago, having written an amusing book, 'This Salzburg,' Count Czernin set out to write another amusing book about his travels in Europe and his impressions of people in this country and that. Having written it, he deemed it wise to burn it in Vienna on the day of the Anschluss; and in re-writing it he finds the subject changing under his hands—Austria, his native country, has gone; Czecho-Slovakia has gone; the 'bloodless war' is in operation; the gaiety is invaded by a seriousness which turns to deadly earnestness before he has done. But he has not discarded the humorous approach to his theme, and justifies his way of writing on the ground that it is most important, now more than ever, that we should try to see the screamingly funny sides of life's seriousness, for if we don't we shall probably sooner or later all have to go to the dogs." Times [London] Lit Sup

Booklist 36:86 N 1 '39
Books p12 S 24 '39 230w

"Count Czernin says things that are amusing to read aloud but disquieting to recall later. Since almost every paragraph is just one sentence long, it is with considerable swiftness that the reader gets through the first three-fourths of the book and comes bang up against the sobering final part." Sarah Chokla
+ Boston Transcript p1 S 16 '39 480w
Christian Science Monitor p20 N 17 '39 400w

"The last hundred pages are concerned with Germany where, in a manner meant to be flippant, he tells the tragic, pitiful, hateful story of Nazi rule, but the real serious purpose of the author breaks through, and in words of flaming conviction he calls on the democracies of the world to save its civilization while yet there is time. As we close the book we recall his words in the introduction when he apologizes for sounding callous about a cause for which his friends have died: 'Forgive me . . . but this is my way of fighting.' Yes, we can understand, and hope he will write for us again, sharing with us the sincerity, the courage, the wisdom that are his own." Mother Mary Lawrence
+ Commonweal 30:481 S 15 '39 310w
Foreign Affairs 18:369 Ja '40 20w
New Repub 100:167 S 13 '39 30w
New Statesman & Nation 18:194 Jl 29 '39 220w

"Remarks on Europe, its component parts, its history, its peoples, and its dictators, in a vein of mingled persiflage, irony, and anti-Fascist bitterness. Occasionally extremely witty."
New Yorker 15:79 S 9 '39 30w

"The reader may wish that Count Czernin had written it a year ago. Perhaps its humor, its clarity and, in its final pages, its deadly earnestness might have done more good. As it is, despite its coming after war, the work is worthy of a reading."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 8 '39 750w
Times [London] Lit Sup p366 Je 24 '39 700w

D

D'ABRO, A. See Abro, A. d'

DAHL, JOSEPH OLIVER. Menu making for professionals in quantity cookery. 214p $3 Dahls 641.57 Menus 39-12274

"A reference book for food executives in: hotels, restaurants, clubs, schools, fountains, tearooms, resorts, camps, cafeterias, hospitals and institutions." (Subtitle) Includes information about average prices, suggestions for combinations, but no recipes. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:344 Je 15 '39

"The author is so well known as writer, editor, and publisher in the restaurant and hotel field that the volume will be widely accepted on the strength of what the title page tells. It provides an amazing number of ideas for profitable menus in all types of food-service establishments."
+ J Home Econ 31:481 S '39 70w
Pratt p13 autumn '39

DAICHES, DAVID. The novel and the modern world. 228p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press 823 English fiction—History and criticism 39-29488

A consideration of fiction in an age of "transitional civilization." The author studies Conrad, Galsworthy, Katherine Mansfield, James Joyce, Virginia Woolf, and Aldous Huxley, and concludes that they have been forced to create their own private worlds, in order to escape the present disintegration of beliefs. Index.

Booklist 36:196 Ja 15 '40

"'The Novel and the Modern World' is a splendid example of intelligent literary criticism, integrated, informative, and useful in the best sense of that word."

\+ Boston Transcript p6 D 30 '39 200w

Reviewed by Robert Peel

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 13 '40 650w

Reviewed by Philip Rahv

Nation 150:77 Ja 20 '40 700w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden

New Repub 102:90 Ja 15 '40 1350w

"Superior but uneven studies. . . Mr. Daiches whittles out several new, and good, definitions Not formidably literary."

\+ — New Yorker 15:55 D 30 '39 40w

"Mr. Daiches's book reveals him as an excellent critic as long as he is working from the particular to the general, an implausible theorist when he tries to make writers conform to what he thinks they ought to be doing. All this suggests that the attempt to relate literature to life—an attempt which deserves every encouragement—is still in its pre-Baconian stage, and that it may begin to get somewhere when it takes facts more seriously than dogmas."

\+ — Sat R of Lit 21:8 Ja 27 '40 1300w

Discussion by the author & George Stevens

Sat R of Lit 21:9 F 10 '40 1200w

DALADIER, EDOUARD. In defense of France (Défense du pays) [Eng title: Defence of France]. 239p $2.50 Doubleday [7s 6d Hutchinson]

944.08 France—Politics and government. France—Foreign relations (W) 39-27784

A translation of the speeches made by M. Daladier during a year as Prime Minister from April 1938 thru April 1939.

Booklist 36:65 O 15 '39

"The volume is damaged by a misguided attempt to arrange the speeches in topical rather than chronological order (there was really never but one topic) and the introductory 'profile' by Yvon Lapaquellerie, though it has a Gallic charm, is inadequate. But the book, I think, will give most Americans a warmer view of and a greater respect for this son of the people, former history professor, soldier, and Radical politician, who now leads the French democracy in its great hour of crisis." Walter Millis

\+ — Books p4 S 24 '39 950w

"Unlike many collections of speeches, this volume has a freshness not due merely to its author's position in today's headlines. M. Daladier has the knack of turning concise phrases, creating clear formulas. Intelligent editing has helped him by exercising much of the verbiage of daily small-scale parliamentary wars, and leaving pungent paragraphs on the topics that still matter immensely." R. H. Phelps

\+ Boston Transcript p1 O 14 '39 500w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 11 '39 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '39

Foreign Affairs 18:375 Ja '40 40w

"The principal speeches made by M. Daladier since he became Premier in April, 1938, are not published in this collection in chronological order but according to subjects—finance, labour, foreign policy, and so on. This method is not helpful if one wishes to judge the 'Daladier experiment' as a whole, for the most interesting thing about Daladier has been his own evolution in the last eighteen months. It was an evolution, a growth, of both mind and character." A. W.

\+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Ag 25 '39 550w

New Repub 100:251 O 4 '39 60w

"The Daladier speeches of the last year are useful for reference, though in this book they are both badly arranged and poorly translated." A. W.

New Statesman & Nation 18:498 O 7 '39 140w

New Yorker 15:80 S 23 '39 10w

"M. Daladier never sounds cynical and he never sounds like a crusader. It is always France that he is asking Frenchmen to defend, but he never forgets that France means not only the lives, homes and properties of her citizens, but a certain humanity of outlook, a respect for the individual, for truth and for liberty. On occasion—as in his speech of March 29th this year—he has succeeded in sounding this note of idealism like a trumpet-call. . . M. Daladier makes up for his lack of brilliance and imagination by a very clear vision of a few common-sensical essentials." D. R. Gillie

\+ — Spec 163:190 Ag 4 '39 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p462 Ag 5 '39 500w

DALE, VIRGINIA. They waited for the night. 273p $2 Doubleday

39-8478

Novel of backstage life, showing the many troubles besetting actors, producers and all concerned in putting on a Broadway play.

"The author presents the intricate business of whipping a show into shape for Broadway with skill and fluency. It's entertaining and enlightening." Lisle Bell

\+ Books p9 Ja 22 '39 70w

"The author is evidently well grounded in theatrical misfortunes. Though few of the characters are so convincingly drawn as to wring your heartstrings with their troubles, it would be a callous reader who couldn't develop a genuine interest in the problem of whether this sorely beset show ever reaches its opening night. Of only secondary interest is the matter of Carla's love for her rather stodgy leading man."

\+ — N Y Times p22 Ja 22 '39 240w

DALGLIESH, ALICE, comp. Happily ever after; fairy tales; il. by Katherine Milhous. 60p $1.50 (5s) Scribner

398.2 Fairy tales (W) 39-27854

Seven well-known fairy tales, newly translated and illustrated. Contents: Cinderella, by Charles Perrault; Briar Rose—The Sleeping Beauty, by The Brothers Grimm; Hansel and Gretel, by The Brothers Grimm; The Princess on the Pea, by Hans Christian Andersen; Snow White and Rose Red, by The Brothers Grimm; Rumpelstiltskin, by The Brothers Grimm; Thumbelina, by Hans Christian Andersen.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p20 N 12 '39 130w

Cath World 150:376 D '39 40w

"A good introduction to the fine traditional folklore, which every child should know." F. B. Sloan

\+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 13 '39 40w

"All the stories are presented in new translations which bring to the dignity and romance of the old stories a simplicity of language and clarity of thought which make them very welcome to [fairy tale] readers. Not only are the stories high grade as to quality, but they are just right as to quantity as there are just enough of them for the younger reader finds too many stories a handicap rather than an incentive. . . A very genuine and much-needed contribution to the fairy tale shelves of any library." A. L. Shea

\+ Library J 64:903 N 15 '39 130w

DALGLIESH, ALICE. The young aunts; with il. by Charlotte Becker. 116p $1.75 Scribner (W) 39-7585

Story of an energetic pair of twins, Terry and Chris, who can think up things to do with endless variety. When their older sister's baby arrives the young aunts break their own record as excitement makers.

Booklist 35:292 My 1 '39

"The pictures are the work of an artist whose work is new to me, but one whose gifts for showing the special charm of healthy, fat and energetic babyhood will be generally recognized. There are so many of these ingenious and lovable drawings that one is kept chuckling all the time. We need family stories of today for children who love to find themselves and their surroundings represented in books in a likable light." M. L. Becker

+ Books p8 Mr 26 '39 450w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 100w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 31 '39 140w

"A fresh and entertaining story for little girls."

+ Horn Bk M 15:167 My '39 70w

Reviewed by M. R. Lucas
Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 80w
Manchester Guardian p6 Jl 21 '39 30w

"It is as engaging a record of a baby's first year as one could wish, built up out of details which only an affectionate observation of babies could supply, and punctuated by the unconscious humor which the irrepressible twins inject into even the most trivial of situations. Charlotte Becker has illustrated it with numerous drawings of a chubby, smiling baby and his active aunts which are entirely delightful." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 23 '39 260w
New Yorker 15:105 My 13 '39 20w

"The adventures of Dinkie and the young aunts Chris and Terry make a delightful story in tune with Miss Becker's illustrations, which are in color as well as black and white. As always, Miss Dalgliesh's characters are true to life."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 2 '39 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup sup vii Jl 15 '39 180w

DAMON, BERTHA (CLARK) (MRS LINDSAY TODD DAMON). Grandma called it carnal [il. by Julian Brazelton]. 289p $2 Simon & Schuster [7s 6d Joseph, M]

818 (W) 38-27988

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"A much wittier and wiser book than its facetious title might suggest. . . . [It] is reminiscent, in treatment, of Day's 'Life with Father,' but is much less convincing portraiture. It is a little too much documented, perhaps, and in the host of illustrations the essential pattern is lost. Slightly caricatured, Grandma Griswold emerges from the pages of her granddaughter's book an unforgettable and not wholly unsympathetic figure." Luella Creighton

+ — Canadian Forum 18:382 Mr '39 420w

"Miss Damon has a pleasant and easy style, and whether she is describing the oddities of her grandparent or the horrors of a village school she writes with such charm that she almost made me regret my own less austere childhood. But, considering it soberly, I don't think many of us would have enjoyed life with Grandma." John Mair

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:428 Mr 18 '39 180w

Pratt p24 spring '39

"Perhaps I linger too long on a light sweet record which many might describe as entirely unimportant. But I have not found it so. To accuse a writer of charm nowadays is practically to kill her stone dead, but Mrs. Damon has a grace of mind and pen which, both light and tender, does give the reader an easy, old-fashioned sense of being charmed along. But there is more than that here: there is sureness, concealed strengh. Beside the beautifully careful working-up of Grandma's personality there are grouped, barely stroked in in passing, a whole small world of unmistakably living men and women, all true to their time and place." Kate O'Brien

+ Spec 162:645 Ap 14 '39 600w

"Enthralling biography of a character of crystal and granite, a woman who found out how to live and who adored the daily adventure of being alive. . . . The saga of Juno the cow, the tale of the fermented raisins, the procession of the seasons in Grandma's company and the New England sketches of the men and women who filled up her background make this wholly delightful book one to keep and jealously enjoy."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p204 Ap 8 '39 550w

DANA, HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW. Handbook on Soviet drama. 158p $1.50 Am. Russian inst.

016.7920947 Theater—Russia—Bibliography. Russian drama—Bibliography 38-38796

Annotated bibliographies of books and articles on the theaters, plays, operas, ballets, and films of Soviet Russia, with lists of each appended. Index.

Booklist 35:199 F 15 '39

"No one seriously interested in the modern Russian theater can have anything but gratitude to H. W. L. Dana for the careful research he has done in preparing his 'Handbook on Soviet Drama.'" W. P. Eaton

+ Books p11 F 5 '39 70w

"For once a bibliography has appeared with annotations clear and descriptive enough to be really useful to a student of the subject in hand."

+ Theatre Arts Mo 23:234 Mr '39 240w

DANA, JULIAN. The Sacramento: river of gold; il. by J. O'H. Cosgrave, II. (Rivers of America) 294p map $2.50 Farrar

917.94 Sacramento river. California—History (W) 39-27898

This history of the river that flows from the foot of Mt Shasta down to the Bay of St Francis, tells of red men and Spaniards, of brown-robed Franciscans and rough forty-niners, of river captains and tillers of the soil, American settlers, Chinese and Japanese immigrants. The book is in five parts, roughly chronological: Red man's river; Conquest; Gold; The imperishable land; River days. Index.

Booklist 36:107 N 15 '39

"It is a book to read and to study, and the Cosgrave illustrations really illustrate." C. J. Finger

+ Books p7 O 29 '39 800w

Reviewed by Rex Miller
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 20 '40 600w
New Repub 102:125 Ja 22 '40 50w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p5 O 29 '39 1350w
New Yorker 15:87 N 4 '39 30w

"In telling the story of this greatest of California rivers, Mr. Dana has not been successful in attaining the standards set by Mr. Coffin. The region has been too recently settled to produce a Sacramentan race as the Kennebec has produced a Kennebeckian. But certainly Mr. Dana might have coordinated geographical and cultural factors more intimately than he has actually done. The book simply fails to make us feel the river intimately, as we come to feel the Kennebec." G. R. Stewart

— Sat R of Lit 21:12 D 30 '39 650w
Wis Lib Bul 35:213 D '39

DANE, CLEMENCE, pseud. (WINIFRED ASHTON). The arrogant history of White Ben. 363p $2.50 Doubleday

(W) 39-30693

Allegorical novel. The time is the 1950s, the place is England. White Ben, the scarecrow, comes to life, descends from his place on the hilltop, and becomes dictator of England, after the disastrous war when there were "no victors, only the vanquished."

"An exciting story, told with resonance of observation and poetic speech. And it is a parable no less noble for being disquieting as well as compassionate. . . Realism is blended here with strange enchantment, insight with irony, pity and terror; passion held under sure discipline. Its happenings are projected into tomorrow by a mind saturated in yesterday's history and today's perplexity and menace." John Patton

\+ Books p2 Ag 27 '39 950w

"Clemence Dane's life-long interest in fairy tales, her sense of the dramatic, and her consciousness of world peril have combined in a haunting story. It begins with innocence and simplicity, and ends as a penetrating critique on the nature of man and his destiny. . . This 'arrogant history' is extremely exciting, and profoundly disquieting in its implications. There is perfect balance between realism and fantasy. The poetic conception is beautiful; the allegory is complex." Olga Owens

\+ Boston Transcript p1 S 2 '39 900w

"As fantasy White Ben is a very dull bewildered scarecrow. . . Miss Dane has tried to escape the obvious by keeping her symbolism vague but the result is neither arresting for our imagination nor clarifying for our indignation." M. L. Ross

— Canadian Forum 19:229 O '39 300w

Cath World 150:368 D '39 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '39

"Miss Dane has written an absorbingly interesting novel, full of morals for the times, but it is felt that its purging effect would have been stronger if she had trusted more to her imagination and less to her intellect." Charles Marriott

\+ — Manchester Guardian p3 S 5 '39 450w

"Suffers from the atmosphere of unreality found in most prophetic novels, but is written with much power and common sense."

\+ — New Repub 100:224 S 27 '39 50w

"White Ben is too pedestrian to be fantasy and too unreal to be satire, while even some surrealist imagery does not console me for a wholesale slaughter of the unities. Miss Dane has done very much better than this." John Mair

— New Statesman & Nation 18:432 S 23 '39 240w

"Until its latter pages—where parallels are drawn too closely to be ignored—it would be possible to read this novel merely for the sake of its story and for the fascinating conceits which it provides. As it should be, Miss Dane's arrogant history is first of all a good yarn, told with an ingenuity which one cannot sufficiently praise." E. H. Walton

\+ N Y Times p7 S 3 '39 650w

"The fantasy is pretty heavy and overcarefully applied, while the satire on Fascism seems a little vague."

New Yorker 15:62 S 2 '39 30w

"White Ben is a bore. . . Are we to suppose that the people of England, having seen the collapse of one set of dictators, will immediately fall under the similar but less credible spell of a White Ben? Nobody could believe this and want to go on living; but this is what Miss Dane seems to want us to believe. . . The best one can say for 'The Arrogant History of White Ben' is that it has some good wasted writing in it, and that a lesser writer would be more easily forgiven for having written it at all." George Dangerfield

— \+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 S 2 '39 600w

"The book is neither quite fantasy nor quite satire—Miss Dane tricks herself into irrelevant sympathies, and as a narrative of revolution the world it describes is curiously empty—half a dozen characters and no pressure from the mob outside. The style is rather over-dressed for its subject—so many irrelevant dawns and sunsets, and jewels five lines long." Graham Greene

Spec 163:420 S 22 '39 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p549 S 23 '39 800w

DANIELIAN, NOOBAR RETHEOS. A.T.&T.: the story of industrial conquest. 460p map $3.75 Vanguard

384.6 American telephone and telegraph company 39-29705

"A non-muckraking 'social audit' of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 36:144 D 15 '39

Reviewed by M. Y. Sweezy

Boston Transcript p1 Ja 20 '40 550w

"Dr. Danielian's [book] is by far the better done and the more comprehensive; it bears the unmistakable marks of a skilled hand and an inquiring mind. Fortunately, the scope of the book is broad and the subject-matter well balanced; thus the treatment of the immediate problem of the control of the price of telephone service is not allowed to overshadow the less pressing but far more basic aspects of the A. T. and T. as an organization of economic and political importance." H. F. Havlik

\+ Nation 150:102 Ja 27 '40 1200w

"I do not altogether agree with Dr. Danielian's concept of the Telephone Company as a 'state within a state'—an idea expressed also in the statement that 'the Bell System . . . is a political organization of the first magnitude.' Admitting that the Telephone management is independent of the stockholders as a whole, I think that a small group of large stockholders keep the management under constant pressure to maintain earnings, dividends and the market price of the stock. But this difference of opinion does not alter the fact that 'A. T. & T.' is a penetrating analysis that no one interested in American economics can afford to miss." E. D. Kennedy

\+ — New Repub 101:146 N 22 '39 900w

"While the reviewer cannot agree with the blurb on the jacket to the effect that 'A. T. & T.' is as definitive a study as Ida Tarbell's 'Standard Oil,' he does consider it a major contribution to the education of social scientists and public officials who are seriously concerned with practical problems of regulating monopolies. It is too full of the biases and predilections of the author to be favorably compared to the poised and objective study by Tarbell. But it does for the specialized worker what Mr. Coon's 'American Tel & Tel' does for the general reader, increases his understanding of a very involved and pressing problem in our national economy." E. V. Hollis

\+ — N Y Times p37 D 10 '39 1500w

"This, the first over-all study of the big-corporation type from the viewpoint developed by Berle and Means, may turn out to be a classic. Cool, government-report style, and not too difficult if you're something of a fact-eater."

\+ New Yorker 15:83 O 28 '39 40w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins

Sat R of Lit 21:6 D 16 '39 550w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey G 28:754 D '39 450w

DANIELS, JOSEPHUS. Tar Heel editor. 544p il maps $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 (W) 39-29441

This first volume of the autobiography of Wilson's Secretary of the Navy, covers only the years of his life down to the 1890s—the life of a small boy in a southern town during the Civil war, education at Chapel Hill, and early experiences as a country editor and the first steps in a political career. Index.

DANIELS, JOSEPHUS—Continued

Booklist 36:175 Ja 1 '40

"This autobiography, now handsomely published by the University Press at Chapel Hill, refers only in asides to Cabinet offices and ambassadorships. Chronologically, it stops with Daniels's acceptance of a job under Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith in 1893. It is concerned mainly with life in Tarheelia during the dismal decades that followed the Civil War. For this reason it is caviar to the general. To savor it at all one must have been a villager in his youth; really to enjoy it one should have been, not merely a villager, but of a Southern village." G. W. Johnson

+ — Books p7 D 3 '39 1400w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones
Boston Transcript p4 D 23 '39 460w
Christian Science Monitor p20 D 16 '39 490w

Forum 103:vi F '40 200w

"Tar Heel Editor is as American as chewing gum in both context and style. Those who fail to read it will have missed an important facet of what is really America." L. B. Bloch

+ Living Age 357:494 Ja '40 480w

Reviewed by C. V. Woodward
New Repub 102:27 Ja 1 '40 490w

"The style and technique of the book are as distinctly American as its background. Here is no attempt at academic writing. Every paragraph is pure American journalese. Historical perspective does not bother Josephus Daniels. Apparently he knows little about it and cares less. The book is a kind of stream of consciousness of a man dipping into his past, using the colloquial language of his day without thought of its literary form, striving with almost painful, earnest honesty to tell the raw, unpolished truth, and succeeding really better than he knew." W. A. White

+ N Y Times p1 N 26 '39 1000w

"The general reader not interested in North Carolina affairs will find the local detail tedious, unless he goes on in sheer admiration of a memory which literally must hold in solution recollection of every person and incident of Mr. Daniels's early life. The book . . . is honest, straightforward, kindly. Mr. Daniels is not and has not been an intellectual liberal. But a genuine interest in the welfare of his fellow man, a warm sympathy, a desire to better conditions in the place and the world in which he lived, and courage made him a force for advancement." C. McD. Puckette

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:36 D 2 '39 700w

"The 'Tarheel Editor' at 77 has produced, out of the wealth of his informal and delightfully rambling reminiscences, a colorful human document in which may be found much of the social history of his state in the reconstruction era after the Civil war. At times there is repetition, for the story is told simply and artlessly without studied regard for form. But its interest grows upon one."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 24 '39 900w
Time 34:56 D 25 '39 450w

DANTON, MRS EMILY (MILLER) ed. The library of tomorrow; a symposium. 191p $2.50 A.L.A.

020.4 Libraries 39-27217

Contents: Looking forward, a fantasy, by F. P. Keppel; Responsibility of the library to continue the literary tradition, by H. M. Lydenberg; Libraries—the stronghold of freedom, by D. C. Fisher; National leadership from Washington, by C. B. Joeckel; Ideal library support, by M. J. Ferguson; Experimentation, by C. H. Milam; One for all, a historical sketch of library cooperation, 1930-1970, by R. B. Downs; Libraries and scholarship, by S. B. Mitchell; Extension of library service, by J. T. Jennings; Standards for the public library book collection, by C. B. Roden; The librarian of the future, by C. E. Rush; Housing tomorrow's library, by J. A. Lowe; The trustee of the future, by W. E. Marcus; The library's responsibility to the child, by L. H. Smith; School library service: 1970, by M. L. Batchelder; College and university libraries, by H. M. Wriston; Educating the community through the library, by Lyman Bryson; The library's part in developing the citizen, by R. R. Munn; The special library looks forward, by Ruth Savord; The future of the Library of Congress, by Herbert Putman.

Booklist 35:243 Ap 1 '39

"I have found these prophecies by twenty men and women interesting and stimulating. . . A captious critic can have a grand time tearing this book to pieces, especially one who assumes the role of a super-realist who dotes on facts and is confident that he has a firm grasp on the world as it is. Toward such a bold critic who cuts through the fog of dreams with his big sharp sword, I have the same feeling as I do toward a man who cannot enjoy Edward Lear's Jumblies 'who went to sea in a sieve, they did.'. . These writers in The Library of Tomorrow should inspire us to go boldly forward but they should have warned us that the march toward Utopia is not an easy one." C. H. Compton

+ Library J 64:550 Jl '39 700w

"As mass propaganda the book is unsound. The twenty contributors representing many kinds of library activities and the few specialists in related fields have been given their heads. Their views are sometimes conflicting, sometimes tentative; their style is sometimes charming, occasionally dull with the boredom of a conscientious attack on a worthy assignment, and once, I think, reflecting the glow of an angry man impatient with the follies of his fellows. This is not the carefully calculated attack on sensibilities that ear-marks 'Grade A' propaganda. There is a question, therefore, as to the success of the volume's future, for the layman of the required intelligence may already be aware of most of the book's contents." Donald Coney

Library Q 9:342 Jl '39 1050w
Pratt p5 autumn '39

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 20:8 My 13 '39 1250w

DARBY, ADA CLAIRE. Yonder the Golden Gate; a story of old San Francisco; il. by Laurence B. Haste. 341p $2 Stokes

(W) 39-20237

Written for older boys and girls. It is a story of the California gold fields, and a fifteen-year-old boy, Joe Beattie, who ran away from his Missouri home to make his fortune.

Booklist 36:17 S '39

"The latest of Miss Darby's lively and reliable historical stories has the same time and place as the recently published 'Long Wharf'. . . What keeps the story from being only the ups and downs of adventure is Joe's attitude to a younger boy he has befriended. . . It is the determination of Joe not to let his own nature harden out of all sympathy, that makes even a young reader take part in his struggle with himself and be glad that he conquers." M. L. Becker

+ Books p5 S 3 '39 350w

"Although the central figure is a boy the story is really intended for girls and this unusual idea of centering the interest in a fifteen-year-old boy should make this a popular book. There is a girl of the same age in the story and her interest in the orphan boy will hold the attention of our girl readers. Historical facts are well blended with the story of the boy's attempt to gather his pile of gold and return to his home in Missouri." R. W. Stewart

+ Library J 64:663 S 1 '39 140w

DARBY, J. N., pseud. See Govan, C. N.

DARBY, RUTH. Death boards the Lazy Lady. 275p $2 Doubleday

39-4496

Detective story.

"This first novel may show a few signs of youth and inexperience, yet it contains a goodly assortment of mystery tricks." Will Cuppy

+ — Books p13 F 12 '39 110w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 F 4 '39 180w

"The story is competently told, with due stress upon the jealousy and suspicion that exist among the various persons involved." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p20 F 12 '39 170w

"Passable."

Sat R of Lit 19:18 F 4 '39 40w

DARLING, FRANK FRASER. Wild country; a Highland naturalist's notes and pictures. 104p $2.75 Macmillan [10s 6d Cambridge]

591.5 Photography of animals. Nature photography. Natural history—Scotland [39-18849]

Photographs of scenery, birds, and animals of the Summer Islands off the coast of Scotland. The author, a naturalist, has written an accompanying text for the photographs.

"There is scarcely a page of 'Wild Country' that is not thought-provoking. . . The illustrations of 'Wild Country' are a delight to the soul. Well taken, well composed, and handsomely reproduced, they are a fine book in themselves. Some of them are superb." G. M. Sutton

+ Books p24 Ap 30 '39 500w

"There is real feeling and imagination in the camera work, and the picture of the fairies is the most convincing we ever saw."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 4 '39 50w

"The photographs are surely among the finest of their kind ever made. They have a strong literary quality, for they go beyond the mere record of visual impressions to evoke the emotional atmosphere that surrounds them. In this they are one with the text, which is written in a simple, effortless, and evocative prose." L. J. H., Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 19:22 F 25 '39 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p139 Mr 4 '39 150w

DARLINGTON, CYRIL DEAN. The evolution of genetic systems. 149p $2.75 Macmillan [10s 6d Cambridge]

575.1 Heredity. Variation (biology) 39-15696

"A survey of the entire field of genetics. . . Although written in an unusually clear style, the vocabulary is highly technical; it is a book for the serious student with some knowledge of the subject, rather than for the layman. Genetics is presented as 'the study of systems of heredity and variation, systems which rest on a basis of the chromosomes and are related to one another by processes of natural selection.' This study reveals that there are many such systems and that 'since the properties of heredity and variation themselves show heredity and variation under experiment they must, like other properties of the organism, be susceptible of selection and adaptation.' " Scientific Bk Club R

"A more comprehensive and intricate mass of material has been successfully analysed and integrated in this masterly exposition of Darlington's than in any other biological treatise of such small size known to the reviewer. The book is not to be recommended to those who are reluctant to read closely and to do a good deal of hard thinking." H. J. Muller

+ Nature 144:648 O 14 '39 1400w

"This slender, closely printed volume by the head of the cytology department of the John Innes Horticultural Institution is abundant proof of the vitality of the biological sciences in the University of Cambridge and its associated institutions."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 My '39 300w

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE. DARTMOUTH OUTING CLUB. The Dartmouth book of winter sports; ed. by Harold Putnam for the Club. 315p il $3 Barnes, A.S.

796.9 Winter sports (W) 39-29470

In celebration of its thirtieth anniversary the Dartmouth Outing Club has put out this book on the winter sports at Dartmouth College. The first section, written by Dartmouth's Swiss coach, Walter Prager, covers skiing. Speed and figure skating are covered in section two. The third section describes the famous Winter carnival. The skiing and skating sections are also published separately, at $1 each. Index.

Booklist 36:172 Ja 1 '40

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 20 '40 20w

Reviewed by Frank Elkins

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 14 '40 160w

DARWALL, RICHARD. Madcap's progress. 244p il $4.50 Stokes [18s Dent]

B or 92 Mytton, John [38-24725]

Biography of an eccentric English sportsman who was born in 1796, lived a highly individual life, and died of delirium tremens in 1834, after running thru most of his money and breaking his mother's heart. Illustrations are by contemporary artists. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Darwall shows a fine understanding of the virtues and vices of his subject." W. W.

Manchester Guardian p6 Mr 25 '38 360w

"Though Mytton rode, ate and drank prodigiously in Shropshire, though he married twice and twice stood for Parliament, though his practical jokes surpassed everyone else's violence, he is too childish a figure for genteel biography of Mr. Darwall's sort. . . Admiration, perhaps, such a subject needs from his biographer, but it should not be literary."

New Statesman & Nation 15:584 Ap 2 '38 260w

Reviewed by C. D. Abbott

Sat R of Lit 19:7 Ap 8 '39 290w

Times [London] Lit Sup p193 Mr 26 '38 2050w

DAUGHERTY, JAMES HENRY. Daniel Boone; il. by the author. 95p $2.50 Viking

B or 92 Boone, Daniel—Juvenile literature (W) 39-28970

Biography of Daniel Boone for young readers, which serves also as a study of the dynamic force of the American frontier. Illustrated with lithographs in color, by the author.

Booklist 36:155 D 15 '39

"Scarcely has the swing of the style caught up the reader before he is conscious that here is a distinctive and valuable contribution to biography for young people. An American hero appears against the true background of his time. The book is an act of true hero-worship, of the sort that loves so well it nothing extenuates. This, one feels, was the time. This, one is sure, was the man." M. L. Becker

+ Books p10 N 12 '39 400w

Reviewed by Ruth Page

Boston Transcript p7 D 9 '39 140w

Cath World 150:381 D '39 20w

"Here is a book, beautiful in its strength and virility, written and illustrated with imagination and a deep appreciation of the pioneer's part in the building of America." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 21 '39 320w

DAUGHERTY, J. H.—Continued

"It is Mr. Daugherty's first attempt at writing (so far as I know) and his most ambitious job of illustrating. The writing is swell, and the illustrating up to par. But his brain child is no more a children's book than would be a good piece of limburger cheese. Fine for adults. Provocative and handsome (adjectives that could never be used about Bakeless). But a strange diet indeed for the young idea." H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 31:132 D 1 '39 90w

"Mr. Daugherty has written his own text for the superb drawings he has made for Daniel Boone, and it is a text that bears reading aloud. It has pioneer flavor and authenticity. Only a pioneer at heart who has seen freedom at a crossroads could have reached back over a hundred years with so warm a hand-clasp for the Pioneer of the Wilderness. . . I rose from the reading exhilarated and eager to follow the trail of Daniel Boone as Mr. Daugherty did and recapture, as the youth of our time are sure to do, the zest for a free life in a world prematurely old with mechanical devices and educational theories. Yes, I think Daniel Boone the most important book of the year and I am glad that its publishers have given it a format and production in keeping with its content. It is a beautiful book in every sense of the word." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk M 15:293 S '39 480w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:47 Ja '40 160w

"A great book. It reaches back to the freedom, stillness, and danger of the untrod forests, beyond the borders of settlement. Its singing, muscular prose revives in full prime Daniel Boone as every child should know him, fearless, keen-eyed, full of merry tunes and long endurance. I have seen only two of the pictures but they are superb. The finished book will be an exciting event in every children's room." Irene Smith

+ Library J 64:839 N 1 '39 60w

Reviewed by Irene Smith

+ Library J 64:1002 D 15 '39 150w

New Repub 101:237 D 13 '39 20w

"Here are the main facts of [Boone's] gallant life, put briefly, without the native extravagance of the frontier, but they are arresting enough in themselves. We scarcely know from this narrative what he looked like, but we do know what manner of man he was. . . We know, too, what kind of a country it was which he helped to make, for James Daugherty writes of it with a deep love and a poetic appreciation of what it was and what it meant . . . and he has given full emphasis to it in his illustrations. In these the vigor which has always characterized his work is expressed with a firmer, surer touch than ever before to portray the strength, the high spirits and the gusty laughter of the frontier. This is a book to be loved and treasured by Americans of all ages." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 N 12 '39 400w

"The pictures are distinguished, and the text, because of occasional lapses into forced folksiness and grandiloquent cliché, just misses being so. Nevertheless, it has gusto and will give young people the feel of the wilderness days—the lonely trapper, the Indian in ambush, the settlers who were trail-breakers for 'a free people marching on.'"

+ — New Yorker 15:90 N 25 '39 70w

"James Daugherty has found a worthy subject for his restless, zestful talent, and one which he loves and understands with rare intensity. He tells the story of Boone and his times in tangy, eloquent prose. This canniest backwoodsman of them all, hunter, fighter, no-good farmer, becomes sturdy flesh and blood. Here is something real and authentic, touched with the splendor and loneliness of the vast American wilderness. Here is a feast of good red meat for young imaginations." Katharine Ulrich

+ Sat R of Lit 21:24 N 18 '39 150w

D'AULAIRE, INGRI, and D'AULAIRE, EDGAR PARIN. See Aulaire, I. d' and E. P. d'

DAVIDMAN, JOY. Letter to a comrade. (Ser. of younger poets) 94p $2 Yale univ. press [9s Oxford]

811 38-29092

Poems of intense social awareness by a young poet who was born and brought up in New York city and has taught English in the New York high schools.

Booklist 35:187 F 1 '39

"Joy Davidman's poems are important: not only because they show genuine ability, but because (as Stephen Vincent Benét has remarked in his foreword) they tell us much about the generation 'that knew the depression in its 'teens, the war not at all.'" Ruth Lechlitner

+ Books p2 D 25 '38 950w

Reviewed by Muriel Rukeyser

New Repub 98:146 Mr 8 '39 220w

"Miss Davidman's greatest facility is in disciplined verse—occasionally marred by false rhymes—but it may be that she promises most in the freer forms which, harsh and strained though they sometimes seem, are effectively harmonized with the material. Stricter craftsmanship, especially in the longer verse, and a more frugal selection would have done greater justice to the superior poems of this book, which is distinguished, on the whole, for its plasticity of technique, clarity of image, affirmative strength and flexibility of thought." Dorothy Ulrich

+ — N Y Times p4 Ag 6 '39 320w

"There is a veritable army of young poets each year trying to make the grade of the Yale Series of Younger Poets, and Miss Davidman has deservedly won out for 1938. Her first book is a big one—more than 80 pages heavily packed with rhymed and unrhymed verse and a great deal of promise. Its vigor and profusion are admirable, but nevertheless I feel disappointed; I had expected a better book. If the poet could have by some means condensed the poetic content into 20 pages or so, we might have had a remarkable first volume." Oscar Williams

+ — Poetry 54:33 Ap '39 480w

Reviewed by Desmond Hawkins

Spec 162:868 My 19 '39 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p599 O 14 '39 50w

DAVIDSON, ANGUS. Edward Lear, landscape painter and nonsense poet (1812-1888). 280p il $3.75 Dutton [15s Murray, J]

B or 92 Lear, Edward (W) [38-16859]

Biography of the English artist and limerick writer. "It is the portrait of a Victorian bachelor whose father lost his fortune, who trained himself to be a landscape painter, whose ill-health (asthma, bronchitis, epilepsy) forced him intermittently to leave England, who traveled abroad to Italy, Greece, Egypt, Jerusalem and India, on commissions from various wealthy and sympathetic patrons; who came to meet almost all the Victorian celebrities, from the Queen herself and her poet laureate down to the lowest of the upper middle classes." (N Y Times) Index.

Reviewed by David McCord

Atlantic D '39 450w

Booklist 35:379 Jl 15 '39

"Mr. Davidson has done an excellent job with this fantastic but touching hero, very properly avoiding the temptation to make him seem more imposing than he was, and curiously illuminating, with this small light, some singular facets of Victorian temperament." Iris Barry

+ Books p5 Je 25 '39 1200w

"Angus Davidson's biography is chiefly valuable for its unimaginative completeness. . . It happens that Lear's biographer has not made a very good book of this, because he has copied too slavishly from diaries and letters, depending on dates of departures and engagements rather than on mental and spiritual crises. But the biography is nevertheless a tragic one." John Holmes

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Je 24 '39 800w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

Christian Science Monitor p19 Je 29 '38 200w

"A most excellent, amusing, witty, and altogether charming biography which I recommend to everyone who has ever cared for the Owl and the Pussycat." David Garnett

+ New Statesman & Nation 15:835 My 14 '38 1400w

"How pleasant to know Mr. Lear! But no one nowadays seems to have been curious about knowing him, and this is his only biography. It is a factual little book which one is glad to add to one's library as a useful but rather remote reference to the author of The Dong with a Luminous Nose." P. M. Jack

+ N Y Times p2 Je 18 '39 1250w

"Lear is a fine example of a Victorian eccentric and Mr. Davidson does justice to him."

+ New Yorker 15:95 Je 10 '39 40w

"Although the chief value of Mr. Davidson's work is its carefully assembled information, the book is not without critical value. Nor is it without sprightliness. The reader is continually coming upon amusing and unsuspected data. . . But the book is more than a set of revaluations. It is a broadly human document." Louis Untermeyer

+ Sat R of Lit 20:5 Je 17 '39 700w

"Mr. Davidson's chapter on 'Lear as Poet and Painter' is, perhaps, the best part of a valuable book. It is hard to see how he could have done his work better. The biography is orderly and elegant; the illustrations are chosen tactfully—more than once with brilliance—the criticism, both explicit and implicit, sound and suggestive: an admirable book." Evelyn Waugh

+ Spec 160:813 My 6 '38 900w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 5 '38 600w (Reprinted from Manchester Guardian)

Time 33:85 Je 12 '39 500w

"Mr. Davidson's simply and pleasantly written book, with its well chosen illustrations, will certainly arouse fresh interest in Lear's personality, friendships and work. One wonders, indeed, whether a further collection of his letters, and, perhaps, some of his journals still remaining in manuscript, might not be well worth publication."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p309 My 7 '38 900w

DAVIDSON, ELIZABETH HUEY. Child labor legislation in the southern textile states. ltd ed 302p map $4 Univ. of N.C. press [18s Oxford]

331.3 Child labor. Child labor laws 39-16618

A survey of "the growth of the child labor reform movement in the South from its obscure beginnings in the 1880's through the failure of the federal amendment and the enactment of more or less satisfactory state laws." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"This is a first-rate piece of work—faithful in description and narrative, illuminating in interpretation, just in appraisal." Broadus Mitchell

+ Am Econ R 29:866 D '39 230w

"This is an extremely competent book. . . Much the best part of the book, in the reviewer's opinion, is the series of opening chapters on early Southern reform efforts and defeats. Here the wealth of concrete detail is admirable. The later chapters contain much less original material, and toward the end when the author is trying to cover a wide field rapidly, this reviewer feels a lack of perspective. But that after all applies to a very small part of the book. The bulk of the work is monographic and beautifully rich. The facts are abundant and the author has had the wisdom to let them speak for themselves." D. W. Douglas

+ — Am Soc R 4:766 O '39 300w

"The volume is an impressive record of a period of social transition, exhaustively documented." Tarleton Collier

+ Survey 75:292 S '39 280w

DAVIDSON, FRANK PAUL, and VIERECK, GEORGE SYLVESTER, 1918-, eds. Before America decides; foresight in foreign affairs. 318p maps $3 Harvard univ. press [12s 6d Oxford]

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations 38-31188

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by Dexter Perkins

Ann Am Acad 203:223 My '39 500w

"Let it be understood at once that this is no ordinary book. Its pen is facile, its forms concise, its arguments informed. That it has been edited by two young Harvard graduates who helped found in 'The Harvard Guardian' the first undergraduate journal of social science is significant of the mature manner in which young Americans are today attempting to understand the whirlpool of current events. Not since 1917 have we been so aroused over foreign affairs, and for those who wish to see what possible paths America might follow in the future handling of its foreign relations, this volume will prove a steadfast guide." Julian Bach, Jr.

+ Books p12 F 26 '39 1150w

"In publishing this book the Harvard Guardian, America's first undergraduate magazine in the social sciences, sets a high standard." D. M. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 N 9 '38 550w

Foreign Affairs 17:633 Ap '39 20w

Reviewed by H. D. Gideonse

J Pol Econ 47:902 D '39 210w

"Whether or not he concurs in all conclusions, the reader will recognize the sound reasoning behind them. The work contains an appendix of significant documents, and a worthwhile bibliography. Its editors and contributors have rendered a public service." L. M. Sears

+ Pol Sci Q 54:310 Je '39 550w

Springf'd Republican p8 F 3 '39 300w

"In a modest preface the editors, who are also editors of the Harvard Guardian, call the book 'an experiment in undergraduate editing.' Aside from a tendency to lean too heavily on what professors have to say (Major Eliot is the only layman included) about a subject which is essentially unacademic, there is little of the undergraduate about it. Breadth of view and catholicity of interest distinguish it, and if these are marks of undergraduate editing, let us have more of it." Mildred Adams

+ Survey G 28:293 Ap '39 320w

Times [London] Lit Sup p79 F 4 '39 120w

Wis Lib Bul 35:46 Mr '39

"A dozen very able papers by as many leading American students of the field. . . Indubitably, this is the rational, scientific, intelligent way to go about the formulation of a foreign policy. The contributions are thoughtful and thought-provoking, the points of view are judiciously varied, the arrangement is logical and shows a care and consideration for which the editors should be congratulated. Unfortunately, the one thing which fails to emerge from the volume is the faintest coherent idea of what American foreign policy either will or ought to be. Perhaps the judgment is cynical, but the discussion as a whole seems sicklied o'er with that curious blight which has weighed on innumerable meetings of Foreign Policy Associations, study groups, lecture courses, and editorial disputations, which have all addressed themselves so seriously to the great field of foreign affairs with such universally negative and baffling results." Walter Millis

+ — Yale R n s 28:630 spring '39 600w

DAVIDSON, LALLAH SHERMAN. South of Joplin; story of a tri-state diggin's [with phot. by Sheldon Dick]. 290p $2.75 Norton

331.7622 Lead mines and mining. Labor and laboring classes—Oklahoma 39-27855

An account of the labor war in the lead mining district of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma. The author, a woman journalist who had spent her childhood in the district and knew its people well, writes in an informal manner and with keen sympathy for the workers.

Booklist 36:82 N 1 '39

"Miss Davidson's point of view is that of the literary bystander. She is gifted with admirable powers of observation. She carefully rectifies and corrects her childhood impressions and the result is an unexcelled picture of the forgotten people of the chat. Politically and economically her study leads her to a high liberalism which is certainly tempered by a profound and logical sense of justice." C. J. Finger

\+ Books p12 O 22 '39 750w

"It is a terrible yet thrilling story. Its progress is personified in Zeck, who, beginning as pro-company—'we're one big family'—becomes a partisan of the C. I. O. when the terrorization becomes too much for his old-fashioned Americanism. In Zeck, Miss Davidson has created a character who would be real even if he were not. And through the whole book runs the flavor of a unique community." Margaret Marshall

\+ Nation 149:296 S 16 '39 1050w

Reviewed by George Milburn
New Repub 102:124 Ja 22 '40 900w

"There are many questions in 'South of Joplin' that go unanswered. Superficially the 'all-of-which-I-saw-much-of-which-I-was' narrative is convincing. The emotions are stirred that such things as the tri-state diggin's can be. Then come disturbing thoughts. Is this all? . . Just what is Miss Davidson trying to do? Certainly no cool, dispassionate report. A fictionalized account, in part anyhow, of little known labor strife? Or a contribution to the emotional literature of the class struggle? . . Such questions spell more reservations than 'South of Joplin' may deserve. Yet fast-moving and well-told though the story is, and valuable for its recording of folklore and local conflict, in the end it does not wholly satisfy." Francis Brown

\+ — N Y Times p9 S 24 '39 1000w
New Yorker 15:82 S 16 '39 40w

DAVIDSON, LEVETTE JAY, and BOSTWICK, PRUDENCE, eds. The literature of the Rocky Mountain West, 1803-1903. 520p $5 Caxton printers

810.8 American literature—Collections. West 39-27239

"Selections from over 50 old books, some of them rare, portraying the nature of the region and the history and romance of the migrations to that section between 1803 and 1903. A biographical and critical sketch introduces each selection. Presented under such groupings as fiction, true adventures, reports of explorers and journalists, reminiscences, essays, and humorous sketches." Booklist

Booklist 35:267 Ap 15 '39
Books p30 Ap 30 '39 190w
Springf'd Republican p10 My 12 '39 650w

DAVIES, ALFRED MERVYN. Clive of Plassey; a biography. 522p il maps $3.75 Scribner [25s Nicholson]

B or 92 Clive, Robert Clive, baron. India—History 39-21652

Comprehensive biography of Lord Clive, British statesman and general, who became the parliamentary politician and dictatorial Indian administrator. Index.

Reviewed by W. L. Langer
Books p4 N 19 '39 1300w
Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson
Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 600w
Reviewed by Nigel Dennis
New Repub 101:147 N 22 '39 420w

"In this fine book we have straight biography. Nothing is added to the record. Everything is included. Over authenticities of detail a historian is so uncompromising as to be dialectical. But Mr. Mervyn Davies is debarred from imagining supplementary situations and inserting fanciful dialogue into his scenario. Embellishments are not needed. For the narrative is full-blooded, written in inks red and black, and without whitewash. The pages overflow with a superabundance of audacities, heroism, chicanery, avarice, scandal and violence, culminating in the ultimate tragedy of suicide. The surprises are continuous, and adorned with sardonic humor." P. W. Wilson

\+ N Y Times p5 S 24 '39 1050w
New Yorker 15:83 S 16 '39 50w

"A thoroughly documented, readable narrative, pointed with acute analysis and comment. . . While Davies writes with enthusiasm, clarity, and insight, some readers may dislike the occasional loose historical generalizations and animadversions on contemporary affairs which have found their way into his pages. And, good as the book is, it might well have been shorter without destroying its value." Alexander Thompson

\+ — Sat R of Lit 20:16 S 16 '39 600w

"Mr Davies offers no entirely new evidence in his book. He does, however, examine the available materials on Clive's life more thoroughly than has been done heretofore, and his volume is an outstanding interpretation of the personality and the period with which it deals."
Springf'd Republican p10 O 5 '39 800w

"Solid, non-spark, thoroughly readable biography."

\+ Time 34:92 S 11 '39 400w

" 'Clive of Plassey' makes good reading and deserves to be read. But it is guided by a bias which, if one considers the difference of the literary forms, is almost as great as that which guided 'Clive of India.' "

\+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p152 Mr 11 '39 700w

Reviewed by T. C. Mendenhall, II
Yale R ns 29:414 winter '40 1200w

DAVIES, JOSEPH EARL. Fundamentals of housing study; a determination of factors basic to an understanding of American housing problems. 355p $2.85 Teachers college

331.833 Housing—U.S. 39-7085

"Intended for use with high school or adult groups, this volume is based on an analysis of recent housing literature and attempts to describe the kinds of shelter now available in the United States, the reasons for maladjustments in the production, distribution, and use of housing; and the types of housing reform advocated by housing authorities." (J Home Econ) Bibliography. Index.

J Home Econ 31:260 Ap '39 60w
Reviewed by A. W. Troelstrup
Social Educ 3:213 Mr '39 500w

DAVIES, OLWEN BOWEN (OLWEN BOWEN, pseud). Hepzibah among others: an omnibus; il. by L. R. Brightwell and Harry Rountree [introd. by May Lamberton Becker]. 3v in 1 342p $2 Putnam

39-9939

An omnibus volume made up of three children's books: Hepzibah, Young Yap, and Beetles and Things, all popular abroad. They are stories of barnyard, countryside, and garden animals and insects, each one endowed with a name and personality.

"Once in a long while a grown-up, remembering, brings [animals] back successfully to print; ten times to one they are not brought back successfully, and then the book is perfectly awful. The popularity of these stories in England, where they brightened the radio at Children's Hour, proves that they do not give children synthetic animals like those in perfunctory story books; these are honest little folk in feather or fur, carrying on brief and busy careers. Brief, because children cease so soon to think of animals in this way." M. L. Becker

+ Books p12 My 7 '39 400w

"School librarians looking soberly for books of facts about the habits of barnyard creatures, woodland folk, of 'beetles and things' will pass this by without a glance. . . Children will probably enjoy the adventures of Kathleen Cow, Gertie Grunter, Dorcas Donkey, and all the other plausibly named companions of Hepzibah Hen. They will enjoy the 'Young Yap' stories which are vaguely reminiscent of the classic Wind-in-the-Willows. And in 'Beetles and Things' there are especially enticing pictures of insects smoking pipes, carrying umbrellas, and wearing collars and ties. Accept it in the spirit in which it is written. Children will." Miriam Snow

Library J 64:425 My 15 '39 130w

DAVIS, CLYDE BRION. Nebraska coast; decorations by Edward Shenton. 424p $2.50 Farrar

(W) 39-27530

When the Civil war broke out, Jack Macdougall, a York state farmer, found that his anti-war sentiments were making himself and his family very unpopular among his neighbors and in consequence he joined the western migration. This novel, based in part on the experiences of the author's grandfather, tells the story of the Macdougalls' first decade or so in a Nebraska frontier town. It is also an appealing picture of the relationship between the father and a growing son.

Booklist 35:365 Jl 1 '39

" 'Nebraska Coast' is a good spectacle. It illuminates the rich pageant of inland transportation, a frieze on which wagoner follows packhorse, and B. & O. brakeman jostles riverman and canaller. If the narrative has few overtones, it has humor, speed, and good spitty colloquial idiom." Horace Reynolds

+ — Books p2 Je 18 '39 1050w

" 'Nebraska Coast' is a story of a splendid relationship, laid in a colorful and interesting setting. . . If there is any fault in this story, it is just that Mr. Davis does his job too well." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p1 Je 24 '39 850w

"As the story of a vigorous, imaginative man who receives his reward of happiness and security in full measure, pressed down and running over, 'Nebraska Coast' is one lusty shout from beginning to end, only too welcome in the midst of the grim Cassandra utterances of so many contemporary authors. Some readers may object to a few of its obstreperous episodes, to the one or two scenes of violence which are gruesome indeed, to the amount of profanity in the dialogue—but these elements are far outweighed by the fundamental wholesome vigor, the cleanness and honesty, which pervade the narrative and make it first-rate entertainment." M. W. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 15 '39 550w

"Some genuine Americana: chalk up Mr. Davis' outspoken hero as the best representative of the frontier of the sixties that one is likely to meet in fiction."

+ New Repub 99:260 Jl 5 '39 60w

"The author of 'The Anointed' and 'The Great American Novel' [Book Review Digest, 1937, 1938] has again written an authentic American story, familiar and colloquial, and filled with the robust accents of pioneer family life. The same illusion of effortless writing and the same sturdy sense of character creation and story progression that underscored Mr. Davis's appearance on the literary scene a few years ago are still very much in evidence, and the story he has to tell of Nebraska in the heady Sixties becomes as vivid and as intimate as the triumphs and indiscretions of one's next door neighbor." Stanley Young

+ N Y Times p6 Je 18 '39 850w

"Absolutely unlike the usual leaden frontier novel. Jack MacDougall, the central character is full of humor, sap, and fibre. A good job by a young novelist who improves with each book."

+ New Yorker 15:86 Je 24 '39 70w

"It is clear that Mr. Davis has done a great amount of background reading and there is plausible zest to many episodes like that of the buffalo hunt. If 'Nebraska Coast' seems less highly original and less distinguished than Mr. Davis's other books, 'The Anointed' and 'The Great American Novel—,' it nonetheless offers an amusing oblique view of the quiet corner where the pioneers did more chatting than building." James Gray

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:12 Je 24 '39 700w

Wis Lib Bul 35:167 O '39

"It is particularly interesting where it embraces specific historical detail. The characters are good; the story, while inconclusive, is entertaining." Ralph Thompson

Yale R n s 29:x autumn '39 180w

DAVIS, MRS EDITH ATWOOD, and MCGINNIS, ESTHER. Parent education; a survey of the Minnesota program. 153p $2.50 Univ. of Minn. [11s 6d Oxford]

649.1 Parent and child. Child study

39-28004

"Part I of this volume gives a careful analysis and summary of the information on child training acquired in child study classes in different parts of Minnesota by parents of children from 5 to 15 years of age and the effect of this on the parents' attitudes toward different behavior traits in their children as measured by tests given before and after the instruction. A bibliography of 65 references is included. Part II describes the parent education program at the University of Minnesota from 1925 to 1932, giving details of organization and methods of recording and handling data." (J Home Econ) Index.

Booklist 35:226 Mr 15 '39

J Home Econ 31:332 My '39 140w

DAVIS, FREDERICK CLYDE. He wouldn't stay dead. 278p $2 Doubleday

39-2931

Detective story.

"This is a lively example of the roundhouse school of art. Don't be put off by Mr. Davis's excruciating the-ripe-curves-of-her-body writing in the first chapter. He soon forgets that in the rush of events. But goodness, Mr. Davis, why all those swear words? Have a heart and think of some other kinds of emphasis. There are some." Will Cuppy

+ — Books p10 Ja 8 '39 250w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 7 '39 100w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 17:544 Ap 8 '39 60w

"The book offers such lively entertainment in the way of mystery and adventure that one wonders why the author saw fit to embellish it further with several episodes of the strip-tease order—episodes which are completely immaterial and irrelevant to the story." Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p20 Ja 22 '39 120w

New Yorker 14:56 Ja 7 '39 30w

"Plentifully supplied with plot, amazingly outspoken in spots, amusing, rapid, and packed with surprises—especially at end. Class A."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ja 7 '39 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p192 Ap 1 '39 120w

DAVIS, FREDERICK CLYDE. Poor, poor Yorick. 280p $2 Doubleday 39-30077

Detective story.

"Here we have slick deducing and much good fun." Will Cuppy
+ Books p10 Jl 30 '39 250w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 5 '39 90w

"This story follows the same pattern as the other Cyrus Hatch stories except that it is perhaps a little more complicated than the others have been. Unless you are very fond of the Hatch family, you may find this book rather tiresome." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p6 Jl 30 '39 120w

"Plenty of action, but pretty fantastic."
New Yorker 15:68 Ag 5 '39 40w
Sat R of Lit 20:18 Jl 29 '39 40w

DAVIS, HASSOLDT. Save me the sun; decorations by M. Meslin. 322p $2.50 Holt 39-30544

A young American couple, worried because their marriage seems to be breaking up, leave San Francisco and seek sanctuary in the South seas.

"I think Melville and Conrad and Stevenson and Jack London, in their so different ways, would all enjoy and pay their respects to this very, very modern romance. Times and tastes and manners change. But good story telling, so it be adult, is always . . . good story telling." F. T. Marsh
+ Books p3 N 5 '39 600w

"This novel will no doubt win the author an even wider circle of readers than his first publication, the non-fiction travel book 'Islands Under the Sun'; for here he has proved his ability to create character and tell a story that holds one's interest by dramatic incident and well-timed suspense. It is a well constructed tale, replete with episodes of tender sentiment and primitive passion. Through it all runs a vein of humor, occasionally Rabelaisian, but more often of the quiet kind that nets an appreciative smile." Drake De Kay
+ N Y Times p6 N 5 '39 650w
New Yorker 15:85 N 4 '39 40w

"Mr. Davis knows as well as loves his South Sea islands; but unfortunately when he writes about them, he makes them resemble the Latin Quarter. . . White characters and brown alike have a certain hollowness, as if the author were more interested in the looks of people than in their habitual gestures and cadences. Certainly his book does not bear out Michael's conviction that writing in exotic places is necessarily more creative or even more exotic than what can be done in drab old San Francisco." K. S.
— Sat R of Lit 21:20 N 11 '39 270w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 28 '40 180w

DAVIS, JOHN MERLE. Economic and social environment of the younger churches. 231p $1 Int. missionary council [2s 6d Edinburgh house]
266 Missions

"This fascinating book draws attention to an aspect of the missionary world that often escapes the attention of those 'interested in missions.' All over what was once the 'heathen' world there are now well-established Churches that have been functioning for many years. Some of these Churches are entirely self-supporting; some, with little or no white direction, are actively engaged in missionary work; native ministers, often native educated, are at work in a thoroughly native organization. All the problems of doctrine, environment, finance, methods of work that are familiar in the Old World are now becoming familiar in the New, varying in every country and district." Times [London] Lit Sup

"This very important monograph, prepared for the Madras Conference, has the unqualified approval of such experts in missions as Dr. A. L. Warnshuis and Dr. William Paton."
+ Christian Century 56:1379 N 8 '39 60w

Reviewed by A. L. Murray
Churchman 154:21 Ja 1 '40 120w

"One of the most valuable books on the missionary movement ever published." Elizabeth McCracken
+ Living Church 101:7 D 6 '39 60w

"It is impossible in a brief note to do more than thus briefly draw attention to this admirable book which was prepared for the International Missionary Council that met at Tambaram, Madras, last December; it is not too much to say that for many people it should throw an entirely fresh light upon the missionary work of the Churches."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p426 Jl 15 '39 130w

DAVIS, JOSEPH STANCLIFFE. On agricultural policy, 1926-1938. 494p $3 Food research inst. [12s King] 338.1 Agriculture—U.S. Agricultural administration—U.S.
39-5197

Selection of the author's addresses and writings on the subject of American agricultural policy from 1926 to 1938. Since 1921 the author has been a director of the Food research institute, and has had considerable research experience in the United States and abroad. Index.

"The clear style, which is characteristic of Dr. Davis' writings, whether he is addressing his fellow workers or a lay group, helps to fit the essays together in a single volume very effectively even though they were prepared originally for groups of a wide range of interest in and acquaintance with the problems under discussion. . . This book is useful as a reference on certain specific plans and as a source of ideas regarding the broader problems involved. Decided modifications in existing agricultural programs and perhaps replacement by entirely new programs, are in prospect. This volume deserves a prominent place in the reading list of those who expect to have a part in the formulation of these programs." O. B. Jesness
+ Am Econ R 29:368 Je '39 800w

"The author's clear style of presentation and his frank, positive views on the economic problems of agriculture make this book a very desirable and timely volume for all persons interested in the economic farm problem, and particularly for those persons who now wish to look at the problem somewhat in perspective." F. R. Yoder
+ Ann Am Acad 205:213 S '39 500w

DAVIS, JULIA (MRS PAUL WEST). Peter Hale; il. by Louis Wiesenberg. 247p $2 Dutton 39-20963

An English boy of twelve, Peter Hale, who landed in Jamestown in 1634, is the hero. An orphan, Peter was looking for an uncle in Boston. Before he reached his final destination Peter had lived for a time as hostage among the Indians, seen the Swedish settlement in Delaware, the Dutch town of New Amsterdam, and sailed as cabin boy on a Dutch ship.

Booklist 36:155 D 15 '39

"A good background book for our pre-revolutionary epoch." M. L. Becker
+ Books p13 N 12 '39 350w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p12 D 1 '39 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 15:389 N '39 100w

"The story is absorbing and vivid. Although a large part of the tale is laid in Virginia . . . one glimpses in Peter's subsequent adventures as he journeys toward his uncle, a contrasting picture of the other colonies—the peaceful Swedes of Delaware, the hearty Dutch and the stern Puritans. For older boys and girls." Florence O'Gara

+ Library J 64:761 O 1 '39 100w

"The pace which Peter sets keeps the reader scuttling through the pages at top speed, but Miss Davis has written more than an adventure tale. One can always depend upon this author for a sensitive interpretation of her material, and in her beautiful, clear prose she illuminates the period and indicates, ever so quietly, the ultimate progress of American history." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 S 3 '39 320w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 120w

DAVIS, MRS LAVINIA (RIKER). Hobby Horse hill; il. by Paul Brown. 270p $2 Doubleday

(W) 39-27311

A very correct city-bred young girl spends a summer with cousins in Connecticut. At first Terry finds it hard to get along with these youngsters to whom horses seem so important. But as the summer advances, Terry learns to understand the Wades, and they to respect her. In the end it is Terry who solves the mystery of the disappearance of a much-loved horse.

Booklist 35:293 My 1 '39

"It all makes a comfortable story, such as children around ten or twelve, who prefer their horse stories to be of the country-house type, will enjoy. The pictures by Paul Brown are in delicate outline, quite different from his usual dashing manner, but in their own way, as decorative." M. L. Becker

+ Books p15 My 7 '39 300w

"The disappearance of a valuable hunter adds a mystery to the story, and the eloquent line drawings by Paul Brown give it distinction in format. For libraries of all sizes everywhere and for children of ten and over." J. L. Sauer

+ Library J 64:380 My 1 '39 100w

"Wholly successful as a lively story of outdoor life, this has character values of which right-minded 9 to 14-year olds will heartily approve. Paul Brown has expressed the vigor and high spirits of both horses and children in clean-cut line drawings." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p11 Ap 9 '39 360w

New Yorker 15:106 My 13 '39 30w

Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 15 '39 20w

Wis Lib Bul 35:116 Je '39

DAVIS, ROBERT. Padre Porko, the gentlemanly pig; il. by Fritz Eichenberg. 165p $2 Holiday

Folklore—Spain 40-2007

Ten stories of the adventures of the Gentlemanly Pig, kindly Padre Porko, a famous figure in Spanish folklore.

"Courtly old Padre Porko in his red beret and green velveteen breeches appears to great advantage in Fritz Eichenberg's illustrations—a new friend to cherish and a book to buy!"

+ Cath World 150:376 D '39 110w

"No more timely or appealing book was published in 1939 than Padre Porko, and I predict long life and a growing appreciation of its quality." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk M 16:28 Ja '40 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk M 16:42 Ja '40 130w

"We owe Robert Davis a vote of thanks for collecting these stories and introducing this character, who will surely become a general favorite, especially among children from eight to twelve." Josephine Smith

+ Library J 65:123 F 1 '40 130w

DAVIS, SUSAN BURDICK. Old forts and real folks. 332p il maps $2 for sale by Brown's bk. shop, State & Lake sts, Madison, Wis.

977.5 Wisconsin—Juvenile literature 39-12097

"This is Miss Davis' second book about Wisconsin, her Wisconsin Lore for Boys and Girls having proved its usefulness over a period of years. The 'Forts' are Fort Howard, Fort Crawford, and Fort Winnebago, the 'Folks' the men and women who pioneered into Wisconsin territory one hundred and more years ago." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Booklist 36:130 D 1 '39

"Miss Davis has assembled a remarkable collection of illustrations, the stories are well told, and the whole is a welcome addition to library shelves."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:116 Je '39

DAVIS, WAYNE, ed. How to choose a junior college. 249p $2.50 Harper

378.73 Junior colleges 39-6201

"A directory for students, parents, and educators." (Subtitle) "The book has three main divisions. The first comprises the introductory chapters which try to interpret to students and their parents some of the common characteristics of junior colleges. The second section describes, in more or less detail, over two hundred private junior colleges, mostly residential. The third section presents the tabulated statistics of all junior colleges—over five hundred—statistics compiled by the executive secretary of the American Association of Junior Colleges and printed in the January 1939 issue of The Junior College Journal." (Author's introd) Index.

Booklist 35:264 Ap 15 '39

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 29 '39 20w

"Mr. Davis has performed a real service in preparing this directory. His annotations add greatly to both the interest and usefulness of the book." P. W. Paustian

+ Survey 75:264 Ag '39 310w

Wis Lib Bul 35:139 Jl '39

DAWES, CHARLES GATES. Journal, as ambassador to Great Britain; foreword by Herbert Hoover. 442p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Diplomatic memoirs. U.S.—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Great Britain—Foreign relations—U.S. 39-29442

General Dawes held the post of ambassador to Great Britain from the middle of 1929 until February, 1932, when he resigned in order to become president of the Reconstruction finance corporation. This volume gives a day-by-day account of his part in the affairs of those days. Index.

Booklist 36:175 Ja 1 '40

"This book is quite dull. The volume covers one of the most catastrophic periods in recent history. . . Marked by a violent deflation which threw millions out of work, caused bankruptcies galore and closed banks, the period has only a few constructive achievements to its credit, the most important of which was the London naval conference. The best part of this volume, from the historian's standpoint, is the account given by Mr. Dawes of this conference, seen from the vantage point of the London embassy." R. L. Buell

+ — Books p4 Ja 7 '40 1100w

Christian Century 56:1580 D 20 '39 50w

Churchman 154:35 Ja 15 '40 50w

Living Age 357:496 Ja '40 200w

New Repub 102:125 Ja 22 '40 30w

"General Dawes was not writing history when he put these notes in his files; and all that he recorded does not today have momentous importance. Those who wonder what an Ambassador to Britain does when not handling affairs of state will find this book a useful source of evidence." C. H. Grattan

+ N Y Times p7 D 24 '39 1350w

DAWES, C. G.—Continued

"Dawes had a gift for calling the turn, but he is probably the most discreet diarist who ever refused to betray a confidence."

New Yorker 15:122 D 16 '39 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 31 '39 850w

DAWES, CHARLES GATES. A journal of reparations; forewords by Lord Stamp [and] H. Brüning. 527p il $5 (21s) Macmillan

940.31422 European war, 1914-1918—Reparations. Germany—Economic conditions

[39-27723]

Diary of the chairman of the committee of experts who launched the Dawes plan on reparations fifteen years ago. The entries cover the period from January 2, 1924, to July 18th of the same year. Appendixes contain a Suggestion of Expert Inquiry, by Charles E. Hughes; various letters and telegrams relative to the work of the expert committees; and the official report of expert committees as submitted to the reparation commission. Index.

"The economics of the Dawes plan has been discussed fully by many authorities. It is the side-lights, the sequence, and sources of suggestions which lend interest to this book. It should be on the shelf of the students of this period and is neither replaced by nor can replace other discussions of a somewhat more technical character." E. L. Dulles

+ Am Econ R 29:822 D '39 700w

Reviewed by C. M. Frasure

Am Pol Sci R 33:929 O '39 300w

Reviewed by J. P. Young

Ann Am Acad 207:230 Ja '40 450w

Booklist 36:41 O 1 '39

"There is nothing sensational or even very important about General Dawes's diary. It has all the value of contemporary jottings and makes rather interesting reading. But it contains nothing much in the way of detail and could hardly be described as a significant contribution to the subject of reparations itself. What it does reveal, however, is the attitude of Dawes himself, the basic aim of his group and the method of procedure in compiling and formulating the famous report." W. L. Langer

Books p9 Ag 6 '39 550w

Christian Century 56:903 Jl 19 '39 110w

Reviewed by B. E. Nelson

Commonweal 30:521 S 29 '39 420w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins

Current Hist 50:4 Ag '39 500w

Foreign Affairs 18:160 O '39 20w

Reviewed by J. F. Dulles

N Y Times p30 N 5 '39 1650w

Sat R of Lit 20:21 S 2 '39 490w

"To read this book . . . is like a visit to a mausoleum. Here are the dried and dusty remains of something which, incredible as it may now seem, was once charged with life and movement and emotion. . . This record will be necessary to the historian, and may—who knows?—serve as a warning to statesmen." E. H. Carr

Spec 162:918 My 26 '39 650w

"The journal is written in a cool, businesslike style, as might be expected of a writer who admires common sense and clarity. It is, also, unaffected, and the author several times depreciates his own accomplishments as a member of the committee, though he does so without indulging in mock humility." D. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 30 '39 1050w

Times [London] Lit Sup p258 My 6 '39 490w

DAWSON, CHRISTOPHER HENRY. Beyond politics. 136p $1.50 (3s 6d) Sheed

261 Sociology, Christian. Church and state

39-8501

Five essays by a noted English Roman Catholic writer, dealing with the underlying principles of the conflict between democracy and the totalitarian states, the relationships of politics, religion and the community. Contents: Beyond politics; Politics and national culture; The totalitarian state and the Christian community; Considerations on the coronation of an English king; Christianity and politics.

Cath World 149:635 Ag '39 180w

"Many of these interesting ideas do not carry conviction to an American reader. The conception of dictatorship as precursor of something better than present democracies is at once fantastic and repellent. The 'soulless profit' motives inspiring the means of communications in democratic societies shocks the American reader not at all. When a thing including the dissemination of ideas is done for profit the doer or seller tries to flatter, satisfy or adjust himself to the buyer of his ware. When a thing is done in accordance with the requirements of an ideology the buyers' judgments, in principle, are unimportant. To state that 'mass opinion' is a tyrant more evil than the most authoritarian of dictatorships is to say what is totally unproved and unprovable. As I read history the statement is wholly invalid if 'mass opinion' means the consensus of the majority." J. N. Vaughan

Commonweal 29:723 Ap 21 '39 480w

"Beyond Politics is that very rare thing, a really helpful book." R. H. S. Crossman

+ New Statesman & Nation 17:378 Mr 11 '39 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p184 Ap 1 '39 600w

DAWSON, GRACE STRICKLER. California; the story of our southwest corner; il. by Loren Barton. 223p il maps $2 Macmillan

979.4 California—History (W) 39-9945

A book for young people, relating "California's history from the Indians and the explorers through the missions and the Spanish settlers, to the covered wagons, the gold rush, and today." (New Yorker)

Booklist 35:334 Je 1 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p3 Jl 2 '39 420w

"Although simple enough for fifth grade children to read easily, the book will also be read by older boys and girls interested in the subject." Marian Herr

+ Library J 64:470 Je 1 '39 100w

"The author has told her story simply, but with a feeling for the dramatic and picturesque moments that makes her book interesting to boys and girls of junior high school age as well as to younger children." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p11 Ag 6 '39 440w

"There has been better historical writing for children but this opens a new field, since most juvenile histories of America begin on the Eastern seaboard."

New Yorker 15:107 My 13 '39 50w

"A competent and sincere account of California from its days of Indian habitation to its present status. Agreeably instructive."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 8 '39 20w

"Miss Dawson writes entertainingly and informatively for young readers (or older ones, too) about the Pacific coast country."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 30 '39 250w

DAY, ALBERT EDWARD. The evangel of a new world. 160p $1.50 Cokesbury press

231.7 Kingdom of God. Evangelistic work

39-31572

"The author is a well known Methodist scholar and pastor. . . There are but five chapters. He begins with a story of the way the world has been disappointed in its long succession of Utopias, leaving it mystified and disillusioned. He then discusses the Kingdom of God with just enough Barthian influence to emphasize that after all this is God's world and it is

His Kingdom which is on the way. He then deals with the evangel of judgment and the evangel of hope, closing with a chapter on preaching the evangel." Churchman

Christian Century 56:1139 S 20 '39 70w

"This is great preaching, for the writer has prophetic unction. There are pages which stir one as would the voice of Phillips Brooks. It is a book with a great lift in it, and every clergyman of whatever school of thought will be stirred and moved deeply by reading it." H. J. Simpson

+ Churchman 154:20 Ja 1 '40 200w

DAY, DOROTHY. House of hospitality. 275p $2.50 Sheed

362.52 House of hospitality, New York. Sociology, Christian. Roman Catholic church—Charities 39-23962

"Miss Day, a former Communist organizer and agitator, was converted to Catholicism about the time of the hunger march of the unemployed upon Washington. She decided that the answer to Communism as a cure-all for the ills of the nation at that time was the application of Christianity to present realities. Aided and abetted by a tramp philosopher named Peter Maurini, she founded a monthly paper, 'The Catholic Worker,' and soon put its editorial program into application by establishing a house of hospitality for the poor, the hungry and the cold in her own home. . . Miss Day's book tells the story of this social phenomenon. It is written in the form of a diary and journal." Books

"Miss Day's book is one that demands reading by those who have lived through the great depression, whatever their faith or politics." Mason Wade

+ Books p27 O 29 '39 450w

"A book to be read and pondered and passed along—and then taken back to be read again." J. McS.

+ Cath World 150:242 N '39 700w

" 'House of Hospitality' . . . is a flawlessly written human document of compelling interest." Reynold Hillenbrand

+ Commonweal 31:138 D 1 '39 2000w

Reviewed by Elizabeth McCracken

Living Church 101:7 D 6 '39 90w

DAY, KARL S. Instrument and radio flying. 284p il maps $3.50 Air associates, inc, box 333, Garden City, N.Y.

629.13252 Radio in aeronautics. Aeronautical instruments (W) 38-30165

"This textbook on blind-flying, an expansion of an earlier booklet, is intended solely for prospective pilots who lack the services of a competent instructor or, having such, desire a supplementary guide. It deals simply but thoroughly with instruments, radio ranges and radio range flying, approach procedures, various tests, radio compasses, instrument landing, and procedures on airways. The author is Assistant Flight Superintendent of American Airlines, Inc." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 35:169 Ja 15 '39

" 'It is seldom that a book is received which gives such evidence of its preparation through actual experience in the field. For any pilot the book will serve as an indispensable handbook on subjects which have as their object greater safety in flying.' "

+ N Y New Tech Bks 24:3 Ja '39

DAY, PRICE. Well, about the penguin; pictures by [the author]. unp 75c Simon & Schuster 39-31272

The amusing adventures of Richard the penguin, who became an involuntary exile from home, but returned to his family in due time, bringing back a post card because he had not discovered about post offices.

" 'Well, About the Penguin' . . . will probably not be successful, for though the small and profuse drawings are interesting, the outlay and idea are, except for very young geniuses, too complicated for the group intended." Ruth Page

— Boston Transcript p5 N 11 '39 30w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 31:133 D 1 '39 30w

"There is no rhyme and less reason to this cheerful, conversational narrative, which for all its brevity is told with a masterly sense of narrative. Its humor is aided by the emphases given it by varying sizes of type and by the scratchy little drawings, which contain a good deal of comedy. The nonsense is of the incongruous variety which finds its fullest response from adults, but that, as 'Ferdinand' proved, is not necessarily an obstacle to the enjoyment of children." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p10 N 19 '39 190w

DAY-LEWIS, CECIL (NICHOLAS BLAKE, pseud). The smiler with the knife. 303p $2 Harper [7s 6d Collins]

(W) 39-30764

A vast conspiracy to impose Nazism upon England is exposed by Nigel Strangeways and his able wife, Georgia.

Booklist 36:151 D 15 '39

"Strong plot, lifelike people in incredible situations and continuous interest." Will Cuppy

+ Books p18 N 5 '39 180w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 N 25 '39 50w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p28 N 5 '39 160w

"Fantastic and hair-raising."

New Yorker 15:88 N 4 '39 40w

"Nothing mysterious here. Simply an extraordinarily well written and entertaining thriller with Britons triumphant over skulduggery. Exciting."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:19 N 4 '39 40w

"One cannot pretend that sui generis The Smiler with the Knife is quite as excellent as its predecessor, The Beast Must Die, but it is strongly recommended as an absorbing thriller with a dash of politics." Rupert Hart-Davis

Spec 163:554 O 20 '39 240w

Time 34:87 D 11 '39 40w

"An admirably written thriller, [which] may be unreservedly recommended to those who enjoy this type of novel."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p595 O 14 '39 220w

Wis Lib Bul 35:215 D '39

DEAN, DENNIS. The emerald murder case. 256p $2 Phoenix

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p21 Mr 12 '39 120w

"Mr. Dean's labor seems useless. He pulls illegitimate children out of closets, finds secret drawers and has a good time for himself generally. But his tricks are too obvious to be much fun for the average spectator." Marian Wiggin

— Boston Transcript p2 Mr 11 '39 90w

"When Boyce Wycherley, a detective who looks like a gigolo, solves the mystery the reader has two surprises: one the dénouement itself, and the other the fact that an inexpertly told story can become so interesting at the end." Kay Irvin

N Y Times p18 Mr 12 '39 120w

"Cleverly worked out affair, despite some allfired long narrating and surprise ending that cracks mystery code of ethics. Good."

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:16 Mr 11 '39 40w

DEAN, ELIZABETH. Murder is a collector's item. 266p $2 Doubleday 39-27264

Detective story.

Booklist 35:272 Ap 15 '39

"Elizabeth Dean goes right to the head of the class with this humdinger mystery—we understand it's her first, too." Will Cuppy
+ Books p20 Mr 26 '39 350w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 25 '39 500w

Reviewed by E. R. Punshon
Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 8 '39 120w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 18:380 S 9 '39 40w

"Highly entertaining." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 26 '39 200w

"Smoothly told story, with the author creating a grand character in Emma Marsh. Fast and funny."
+ New Yorker 15:88 Mr 25 '39 40w

Sat R of Lit 19:20 Mr 25 '39 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p455 Jl 29 '39 150w

DEAN, HARRY KENNETH. Utilization of fats; with a foreword by T. P. Hilditch. 292p il $6 Chemical pub. co. [15s A. Harvey, 17 Leathermarket st, London, SE 1]

665.2 Oils and fats 39-4807

"The advantages claimed for Dr. Dean's concise work on vegetable and animal oils and fats are the linking of fat structure to utilization, and the explanation of various phenomena from the standpoint of physical chemistry. Other features are information concerning fat-soluble vitamins, the biochemistry of fats, the latest methods of analysis, and a goodly number of references at the end of each chapter. Sections are devoted to such industrial uses as paint and varnish oils, soaps and fatty acids, pharmaceutical fats, cosmetics, lubricants, leather, sulphonated oils, wetting and emulsifying agents, and detergents." N Y New Tech Bks

"This new book by Dean is an excellent attempt to summarize in English the new developments in the field of fats and oils. It is unfortunate that cost considerations prevented more elaboration. . . Of special significance are the chapters dealing with blown, bodied, vulcanized and sulphonated fatty materials. . . There are extensive bibliographies for each section and copious reference to patents, the latter of which would be more serviceable to American readers had they referred to U.S. rather than to foreign patents." W. L. Abramowitz
+ Chem & Met Eng 46:232 Ap '39 310w

"This book will be valuable in any chemical library. It contains a vast amount of information which will be particularly helpful to the chemist in industry and should serve in a like capacity to the student interested in fats and oils." J. J. Vollersten
+ Ind & Eng Chem 17:214 Mr 20 '39 500w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:55 O '38

DEAN, ROBERT GEORGE. Murder most opportune. 268p $2 Doubleday 39-19159

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p15 Je 25 '39 150w

"The plot is very rapid and full of wonderful excitement, but it holds together beautifully. The solution was so simple that we spent sometime after finishing the book trying to find holes in it. Unless New York avoids daylight saving (that's a hint) there are none."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 1 '39 180w

"The story offers exciting entertainment well spiced with comedy." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p6 Je 25 '39 130w

"Sure, quick, humorous writing."
+ New Yorker 15:68 Jl 1 '39 40w

"While General Castillo lives, story moves at lively pace. His murder, unfortunately, removes book's star character. Sleuth good but colorless. Adequate."
Sat R of Lit 20:20 Je 24 '39 40w

DEAN, MRS VERA (MICHELES). Europe in retreat. 261p $2 Knopf

940.5 Europe—Politics—Crisis, 1938. Germany—Foreign relations (W) 39-27076

"The object of this book [is] . . . to point out some of the principal factors which . . . paved the way for the Munich settlement, and [to] indicate the part they may play in the future." (Foreword) The author is research director of the Foreign Policy association. Index.

Booklist 35:220 Mr 1 '39

"Mrs. Dean's crisp guide to the late unpleasantness should by no means be overlooked. She has a really remarkable ability to pack a maximum of complicated historical detail into a minimum of simple wordage; the flavor, as is likely to be the case with concentrated foods, may be a trifle dry, but the nutritive value is considerable. It's a short book, with a lot in it." Walter Millis
+ Books p4 Mr 12 '39 800w

Boston Transcript p3 My 20 '39 60w

Reviewed by G. McLure
Canadian Forum 19:300 D '39 300w

"Mrs. Dean not only possesses extraordinary resources in the way of information with the ability to present them succinctly and clearly, but she has written the coolest book of a hysterical period. As such, it deserves a special prize award of some kind. My main difficulty in reviewing it lies in the temptation to quote and quote and quote." Paul Hutchinson
+ Christian Century 56:575 My 3 '39 1000w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 22 '39 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '39

"Like many of the Foreign Policy Association publications which she has a hand in directing, Miss Dean's book shows an excellent grasp of the layman's needs. It is clearly and competently written, embraces sufficient background material to enable the average reader to orient himself comfortably, and strikes a balance between interpretation and factual information. The book is topicalized for ready-reference." N. C.
+ Current Hist 50:2 Mr '39 390w

Foreign Affairs 17:628 Ap '39 50w

"The diplomatic struggle between the status quo group and the rest of Europe since Versailles is retold excellently and briefly and with an admirable knowledge of the complicated forces at work in the hundred conferences which culminated in the Munich accord." Franz Hoellering
+ Nation 148:326 Mr 18 '39 220w

" 'Europe in Retreat' is a valuable addition to the literature which has been inspired by the four men who met at Munich and remade the map of Europe. . . Mrs. Dean has frequently received high praise for her work at the Foreign Policy Association. She now deserves it for her impartial book." Shepard Stone
+ N Y Times p14 Mr 19 '39 900w

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
Pol Sci Q 54:635 D '39 350w

Pratt p25 summer '39

"For the student of contemporary affairs who wants light without heat, here is an invaluable volume. . . It is a lucid, completely fair presentation, admirably written and well indexed." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 19:6 F 11 '39 550w

"Because of her cautiousness in deduction, much of what Mrs Dean has written will be just as true 10 years from now as it is today. This, together with her candor and honesty, distinguish 'Europe in Retreat' from the host of books written about the same general subject."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 9 '39 600w
Time 34:78 S 18 '39 30w

"More restrained in style than Mr. Armstrong's book, more acutely conscious of the historical forces that burst into view with such stunning effect on the latter's canvas, 'Europe in Retreat' is a discerning interpretation of the Munich Agreement, a handbook for all who would look behind to-day's headlines." A. W. Griswold
+ Yale R n s 28:825 summer '39 300w

DE ANGELI, MRS MARGUERITE. Skippack school; being the story of Eli Shrawder and of one Christopher Dock, schoolmaster about the year 1750 [il. in color by the author]. unp $1 Doubleday

(W) 39-27899

Story of the school days of a Pennsylvania Dutch boy, who lived with his family in a Mennonite settlement near Philadelphia in 1750. Based on the story of a real schoolmaster, Christopher Dock, who controlled his scholars with tact and kindness. Charming illustrations.

Booklist 36:116 N 15 '39

"The colored illustrations are of scenes in school, the decorations of lovely examples of fractur, giving the book unity as well as beauty." M. L. Becker
+ Books p13 N 12 '39 250w

"This is a perfect gift book for boys and girls and one they will cherish when much older." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 27 '39 120w

"Those who enjoyed Henner's Lydia will be interested in this book for its truth to the life the artist-author knows so well and depicts with such sincerity and charm." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk M 15:295 S '39 50w

"Surely these are the loveliest pictures Mrs. de Angeli has yet made for one of her books about children. . . There is a real bit of local history in the figure of Master Christopher, who taught the Skippack and Germantown children long ago, ruling them by kindness and love. But the boys are real, too, given to mischief, up to tricks, and full of active life, so the story is not a tame one." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 15:385 N '39 130w

"One of the best books of this author, fine in spirit as well as in the pictures and the telling." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 64:849 N 1 '39 50w

Reviewed by Irene Smith
+ Library J 64:999 D 15 '39 150w

"The story is simple to the point of slightness, yet it portrays in warmly human terms, easily grasped by children under 10, the roots of the Pennsylvania Dutch life which exists today, as 'Henner's Lydia' was a lovely reminder. The decorations are in the flowery style of the old fracturs which had a part in Eli's school-days, and if the larger illustrations have more delicacy than seems suitable for a story of a lad as vigorous as was Eli this is a minor matter in pictures as full of beauty and life as these." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p10 N 26 '39 250w

"A delightful book in appearance. . . Written for children under ten and based in part on historical record, it is outstanding among the scores of 'period' children's books."
+ New Yorker 15:88 N 25 '39 50w

"Nice little story."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:21 D 9 '39 20w

DEBEVOISE, NEILSON CAREL. A political history of Parthia. 303p map $3 Univ. of Chicago press [12s 6d Cambridge]

935.6 Parthia 38-10721

A study of the political history of the ancient kingdom of Parthia from its beginnings to its downfall in the third century A.D. The work is based on new archeological materials and evidence discovered since Rawlinson's work published in 1873, as well as on the classical references. The author has deferred treatment of the cultural history to a later volume. Index.

"Debevoise has read widely and has marshaled the evidence so that we have a good, consecutive story. The simultaneous appearance, however, of Tarn's The Greeks in Bactria and India [Book Review Digest 1938] makes much of the earlier part of Debevoise's book already out of date. The chapter on the Indo-Iranian frontier, for example, must now be thoroughly revised." C. A. Robinson, Jr.
+ — Am Hist R 44:682 Ap '39 200w

"Probably the fairest description of the volume is to call it a sober and painstaking representative of the 'old school' of historiography. By choosing the title of 'political history,' the author wished to free himself from the necessity of dealing with cultural, administrative, or structural aspects of the Parthian state, reserving these for a promised future volume. In the meantime, he makes no pretense of providing an interpretive background for the political events he catalogues. . . The work suffers from certain regrettable faults. If it has the major virtue of completeness . . . it lacks the finish which a book should show. Slips occur, mostly of a minor nature." C. B. Welles
+ — Class Philol 34:394 O '39 1000w

DECATUR, DOROTHY DURBIN. Two young Americans in Mexico. 273p il map 96c Heath

917.2 Mexico—Juvenile literature

(W) 38-25893

In describing the ten months which Jimmie and Harriet Stewart spent in Mexico, the book gives much geographical and historical information about the country. Table of contents may be used as index. Glossary. Grades four to six.

Booklist 35:192 F 1 '39

"The subject matter and the vocabulary of the book place it at the upper middle-grade level. While it is written in an interesting way, naturally a large number of proper names and of Spanish words add to its difficulty. The author has attempted to meet the vocabulary problem by including at the end of each chapter a glossary of Spanish and Aztec words. The book is enlivened by decorative designs and photographs illustrative of the material. The writer found it an interesting book to review, both because of the subject matter and because of the author's handling of the material. Children of the middle grades will find it an absorbing book, and it will be enjoyed by the whole family." G. E. Storm
+ El School J 39:794 Je '39 450w

DE CHANTAL, SISTER F. See Frances de Chantal, Sister

DEEPING, WARWICK. Bluewater [Eng title: Fantasia]. 424p $2.50 Knopf [8s 6d Cassell]

39-11412

Story of two contrasting English communities: Bluewater, a vacation spot for sophisticates; and Forge Farm, the attempt of an idealist to restore English agriculture and the homely virtues.

Books p14 Ap 9 '39 390w
Cath World 149:252 My '39 180w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p5 Ap 11 '39 230w

"It is unlikely that 'Bluewater' will attain the popularity of some of its predecessors.

DEEPING, WARWICK—Continued

Purely as a piece of story-telling it is not up to Mr. Deeping's best mark. As a novel of opinion, however, its entertainment value is fairly high. Mr. Deeping dislikes, among other things, cocktails, high-brow novelists, formal philosophy, mass production and women in business. Readers who agree with him, or who enjoy disagreeing, may be commended to 'Bluewater.'" M. W.

N Y Times p7 Ap 9 '39 500w

"As usual, Mr. Deeping is able to create his characters as he needs them and to imbue them with an easy sort of actuality despite their having to be types to suit his purpose. With his old sureness of timing, he turns and twists the plot dexterously and holds true love aloof until the moment is ripe. These later novels of Warwick Deeping may be slighter than the earlier ones we came to know him by, but they are all in the same vein and dedicated to the same purposes." G. G.

Sat R of Lit 19:19 Ap 8 '39 280w

"The plot contains a hearty fight for those who like to see people knocked about, some ugly scandal, and much talk of developing land. If there seems something inconsistent in the turning about of some of the characters, something unreal in the smoothness with which the Ford farm difficulties are ironed out, it all makes an entertaining yarn, with plenty of excitement, and warm emotions."

Springf'd Republican p7e My 7 '39 420w

"The whole story is fluently written and exceedingly easy to read."

Times [London] Lit Sup p201 Ap 8 '39 180w

DEEPING, WARWICK. Folly island [Eng title: Shabby summer]. 397p $2.50 Knopf [8s 6d Cassell]

39-29837

A beautiful young English widow, a nursery man facing bankruptcy because of a prolonged drought, and benevolent old Lady Vandeleur, who befriended them both, are the main characters.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p20 O 29 '39 350w

"Mr. Deeping has a strong sense of the physical world, apparent not only in the setting but in the undercurrent of suggestion that spiritual salvation is to be found close to nature in the simplicities of life. There is in his book a smell of fresh, clean earth." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 25 '39 190w

"Mr. Deeping has turned the greater part of his energies to lashing out at things in the contemporary scene which irk him intolerably. . . He writes like an angry man who sees much that is dear to him—secure and simple country living, for example—about to be destroyed and who finds no remedy at hand. He comes no nearer to a solution here than the general confession of faith: 'This may be a dear, silly old country, but I think it will be saved by its silliness. At least, I hope so.' His novel has, however, this merit, that it will provoke any reader who gets immersed in it to violent agreement or disagreement. There is no middle ground where Mr. Deeping stands, even on such minor issues as that perennial bête noire of his, the deadly little cocktail." M. W.

N Y Times p29 O 15 '39 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 19 '39 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p591 O 14 '39 320w

DEEPING, WARWICK. Martin Valliant. 270p $2 McBride

Romantic tale of England during the Wars of the Roses, relating the adventures of one Martin Valliant who began as a monk, but for the cause of a girl left his cloistered ways and became a mighty man-at-arms.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p15 F 26 '39 150w

"Martin Valliant's romance and his qualms of conscience prevent the story from being a mere rattling of swords. Corrupt conditions in church and politics—the two being allied—are abundantly revealed to the reader until the hero and his lady love escape to France."

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 19 '39 200w

DE FRANCESCO, GRETE. See Francesco, G. de

DEGEE, OLIVIER (JEAN TOUSSEUL, pseud). Jean Clarambaux; tr. by Elisabeth Abbott. 715p $3 Lippincott

39-30334

Long novel, autobiographical in form, describing the first forty years of the life of a Belgian, born in humble circumstances. Jean is seen as a precocious child in a little Belgian village, as a university student, a village schoolmaster, a noncombatant during the World war, and finally as a hermit, who has exchanged the flurry of ordinary existence for that of the ascetic absorbed in nature.

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

"Five-sevenths of this novel are repetitious and wearying because excessively personal, but in the 200 pages called 'The Storm' the author's preoccupation with himself is almost obliterated by his concern to recreate the life of a village in wartime Belgium; and here he gives the measure of his quality as novelist. I am quite ready to believe that there is no better record than this of what certain Belgian villagers suffered during the war. . . The translation is conscientious, smooth, and flexible, with a minimum of those minor lapses that are so difficult for a translator to control." Lewis Galantiere

+ — Books p9 N 12 '39 1450w

Reviewed by G. M. A. Grube

Canadian Forum 19:329 Ja '40 700w

Reviewed by Michael Sayers

New Repub 101:119 N 15 '39 500w

"It is both the strength and the weakness of the novel that it is unmistakably autobiographical. This is a story of humble village folk, by a man who was born and brought up as one of them, and who adds minute observation to sympathy in recalling the annals of their lives. . . The novel's argument lacks clarity and its personal story is told without much literary discipline. But the scenes and events of Belgian village life, in war and peace, make it a good book." Katherine Woods

+ — N Y Times p2 N 5 '39 750w

"A hero as passive as Jean is not apt to generate a very vital book. It is surprising, therefore, how interesting parts of Tousseul's novel are. It is not that he has much sense of character. What he does have is a beautiful feeling for landscape—the Millet touch—and a fine Flemish feeling for warm, cozy interiors. . . The great weakness of 'Jean Clarambaux' is the vagueness of the numerous heroines. Their relation to the hero never becomes clear. The love episodes take place in a kind of haze, which at first has its charm but gradually becomes more and more irritating." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 15:84 N 4 '39 500w

Reviewed by I. W. Athey

Sat R of Lit 21:14 D 23 '39 600w

Time 34:85 D 11 '39 30w

DEGLER, HOWARD EDWARD. Diesel engines: theory and design; a practical text on the efficiency of internal-combustion engines; thermodynamics of internal-combustion cycles; fuels, combustion, and combustion chambers; testing and performance; principles of engine design; and design of major engine parts. 270p il $2.50 Am. tech. soc.

621.436 Diesel engines (W) 39-4098

The author is professor of mechanical engineering in the University of Texas. "This book is intended primarily for the use of students, designers, and draftsmen. It was written with the assumption that the reader has a knowledge of the principles of mechanics, and a general acquaintance with the mechanism of some form of internal-combustion engine as used in the automobile, airplane, tractor, etc." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 35:265 Ap 15 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '39
N Y New Tech Bks 24:6 Ja '39
Pratt p15 summer '39

DEJONG, MEINDERT. Dirk's dog, Bello; with pictures by Kurt Wiese. 296p map $2 Harper 39-27724

Bello, a Great Dane, became a great problem after Dirk had rescued him from a ship wrecked on the coast of Holland. He was hard to feed and take care of, and Dirk's mother had all she could do to feed her children. Dirk's pathetic efforts to care for his pet make up this story for readers in grades six to nine.

Booklist 36:46 O 1 '39

"Humor, suspense and fine drawing of character mark the story. Kurt Wiese's pictures not only bring out these qualities but blow the winds of Holland across the pages. The use of the historical present, though consistently employed, will be objectionable to some people." A. M. Jordan

+ — Horn Bk M 15:385 N '39 100w

Reviewed by Irene Smith
Library J 64:842 N 1 '39 50w

"This is not only a delightful story of a boy and his dog but also a vivid picture of life and people in a village in Holland, for children ten to twelve. It is written entirely in the present tense which gives the style an odd but pleasant turn." Jean Stewart

+ Library J 65:37 Ja 1 '40 150w

"The characters have reality, and life as it is actually lived in a small Dutch fishing village makes a background for the tale. The style, however, is cumbersome and will discourage many children. Had the tale been pruned of characters, incidents and much talk, not essential to the story, it would reach a much larger audience of boys and girls." A. T. E.

+ — N Y Times p38 N 12 '39 160w

"The story of how Dirk works to earn food for the huge, hungry beast is both touching and humorous. Nice picture, too, of a Dutch fishing village."

+ New Yorker 15:89 N 25 '39 30w

DE KLERCK, E. S. See Klerck, E. S. de

DE LA MARE, WALTER JOHN, ed. Behold, this dreamer! of reverie, night, sleep, dream, love-dreams, nightmare, death, the unconscious, the imagination, divination, the artist, and kindred subjects. 714p $4.50 Knopf [21s; ltd autog ed 63s Faber]

820.8 English literature—Collections. Dreams. Imagination 39-27725

"An anthology of passages in poetry and prose which express or reflect upon the dreaming faculty or such associated themes as night and sleep, the unconscious and its fringes, the dream of love and of death, hallucination, the inward eye, fantasy, the artist, and the conflict of reason and imagination." (Manchester Guardian) Index of authors, of first lines of poems, and of plays and works in prose.

Booklist 36:40 O 1 '39

"Of the latest crop of anthologies now before me, the most distinguished by far is Walter de la Mare's Behold, This Dreamer, which has almost the merit of an original treatise. In fact, it at many points suggests Robert Burton's famous miscellany, 'The Anatomy of Melancholy.' "

+ Books p21 S 17 '39 300w

Reviewed by Jessica Powers
Commonweal 30:502 S 22 '39 400w

"The choice is exquisite and revealing. In all the pieces chosen there is a sense of mystery—a real mystery, not a spurious one." M. M. Colum

+ Forum 102:231 N '39 400w

"This is a rich and rare book which no reader of imagination can fail to treasure." H. I'A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 My 26 '39 200w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
New Repub 101:292 D 27 '39 1550w

Reviewed by Marie Scott-James
New Statesman & Nation 18:407 S 16 '39 500w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
N Y Times p2 O 15 '39 950w

"Nothing, of course, is duller than the recital of another person's dreams. But dreams, and the near cousins of dreams, when transmuted into high prose or fine poetry, can be far from dull. Walter de la Mare has made a perfect anthology, 'Behold, This Dreamer!,' to demonstrate the point." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:76 S 9 '39 480w

Pratt p17 winter '40

"At this particular time of overpowering world events such a book preserves for us the rarest imaginations of mankind. It is to be welcomed as a wellspring of true literature." W. R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 S 9 '39 410w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong
Spec 162:912 My 26 '39 650w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 17 '39 950w

"The arrangement in different sections is helpful but elastic, and the quality of the extracts, whether of whole poems or of fragments, is guaranteed by the fact that there is nothing in the book which failed to interest or to delight its editor, while the prose which mingles happily with the verse is as well and variously chosen from past or contemporary sources. . . This is a rare collection of such enchantments of awe and terror and heartaches as well as of delight, leavened with much good reflective and descriptive prose."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p326 Je 3 '39 2250w

DE LA MORA, CONSTANCIA. See Mora, C. de la

DE LA ROCHE, MAZO. The sacred bullock, and other stories. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 239p $2 Little [7s 6d Macmillan] 39-24305

Twelve short stories about animals, and in most cases, their relations with human beings.

Boston Transcript p1 N 18 '39 100w
Manchester Guardian p3 O 27 '39 180w

"Miss de la Roche is equally at home in fantasy and realism. . . There is also in her work a vein of earthiness, most notably seen in 'The Sacred Bullock.' . . With it all she can be as satisfyingly domestic as a cat lapping milk or a dog burying a bone. What she gives us is a picture of life—normal, decent life—shown through a many-faceted mind." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p24 N 26 '39 500w

"Twelve short stories . . . some entertaining, some curiously amateurish for a writer like Miss de la Roche, who has so triumphantly raised the white oak to the status of a family tree."

+ — New Yorker 15:102 O 14 '39 30w

"They are written in language so simple as to be almost trite, so that such sketches as 'April Day'—describing the doings of two dogs —which have no bone structure, decline into dull and pointless recitatives. The stories have not, however, been written for children, for the themes of at least three of them—'The

DE LA ROCHE, MAZO—Continued
Sacred Bullock,' 'The She Gull' and 'The Pony That Would Not be Ridden'—are psychologically quite unsuitable for the young."
Times [London] Lit Sup p553 S 23 '39 380w

DELAVAN, MRS MAUDE SMITH. A Rumelheart must roam. 262p $2 Stokes
(W) 39-27077

The further adventures of The Rumelhearts of Rampler Avenue (Book Review Digest, 1937). Mamma and the children settled down happily in their new home, but Papa was a wanderer. When no one would listen to his plea for the joys of the road, Papa walked off and took to the road. For five years he tramped while Mamma and the children grew happy and self-respecting in their little home. With the news of money in the family Papa returned, but only to find that his day as boss was over.

Booklist 35:223 Mr 1 '39
Reviewed by George Conrad
Books p12 Mr 12 '39 350w
Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p28 F 26 '39 200w

"In her present narrative, Miss Delavan plays upon the sentimental heartstrings of her admirers in a spirit calculated to make their tribe increase. This is a pleasant, friendly story." R. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 Mr 11 '39 130w

"The reader will enjoy the exasperating Rumelhearts—at least in a book."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 270w
Wis Lib Bul 35:65 Ap '39

DE LEEUW, ADELE LOUISE. Doll cottage [il. by Cateau de Leeuw]. 268p $2 Macmillan
(W) 39-27637

Lee Farrell, discouraged over her inability to paint, finds an outlet for her artistic instincts in creating original rag dolls, and makes a success of it. For grades eight to ten.

Booklist 36:17 S '39

"This book is not a manual on doll-making or a stimulus to this trade; it is a story a girl will read to find out what comes next." M. L. Becker
+ Books p24 N 12 '39 300w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 180w

DE LEEUW, HENDRIK. Flower of joy. 241p $2.50 Furman
178.8 Opium trade. Drug habit. Voyages and travels 39-22326

Sensational sketches of the author's investigations of the narcotic problem which he pursued in many countries: Egypt, British India, Persia, French Indo-China, Java, China, Japan, Germany, and the United States among them.

"Even without questioning Mr. De Leeuw's credibility, the reader finds himself wondering at some of the loose and undocumented statements. . . The author seems to have had unusual opportunities for observing the use and effects of drugs, as well as all the lurid concomitants, for his descriptions are vivid and arresting. In his indictment of conditions he covers pretty much the whole of the world, and devotes a chapter to showing that in the United States there is a narcotic situation that has reached alarming proportions." E. F. Allen
N Y Times p8 S 17 '39 550w

"There is much that is interesting in the book."
Sat R of Lit 20:17 Ag 26 '39 130w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 30 '39 450w

DELL, ETHEL MAY (MRS G. T. SAVAGE). Sown among thorns. 358p $2 Doubleday [7s 6d Cassell] 39-24727

Story of an English girl who gave up her chance of marriage with a dashing young captain, in order to take care of an invalid father, and thereby learned the real value of a more homespun love.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p22 N 19 '39 90w

"This is one of the author's most suffering novels. . . So the many admiring readers of Miss Dell's works have a special treat in store for them in her latest." C. D.
N Y Times p14 D 17 '39 240w
Times [London] Lit Sup p656 S 30 '39 70w

DE MEYER, JOHN (DANA BREED, pseud). Benjamin Franklin calls on the President. 90p $1.25 Washburn
973.917 U.S.—Politics and government. U.S.—Economic policy 39-10117

What would Benjamin Franklin think of modern inventions and the political state of the country if he should come to life again today? This short essay in political satire, written in the language of Poor Richard, attempts to answer the question. Franklin, after some difficulty, succeeds in reaching Washington, calls on President Roosevelt, and discusses with him the present economic situation of the United States.

"Mr. de Meyer's little book should provoke yells of delight from the unreconstructed and cause the lips of New Dealers to curl." S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p16 Je 18 '39 700w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 28 '39 420w

DE MILLE, WILLIAM CHURCHILL. Hollywood saga; with a foreword by John Erskine. 319p il $3.50 Dutton
B or 92 Moving pictures. Hollywood, California (W) 39-30221

In 1914 William De Mille accepted the invitation from his younger brother to come out to Hollywood, promising to stay three months. He remained there for twenty years. This book, with a few autobiographical touches, is mainly the story of moving picture development during those years. Index.

Booklist 36:129 D 1 '39

" 'Hollywood Saga' is delightfully genial in tone, it neither boosts the 'movies' nor despises them, and it pokes fun in a shrewd but well tempered fashion." Iris Barry
+ Books p9 D 31 '39 550w

"The motion pictures directed by William C. de Mille were never noted for the qualities which stamped those produced by his brother, Cecil B. de Mille. . . William de Mille seemed quite content to get along without spectacle and to depend for box office results on the quiet sincerity and humanness of his stories. Those same qualities which he gave to his screen productions mark his book 'Hollywood Saga.' " R. G. Doyle
+ N Y Times p18 O 22 '39 2000w
New Yorker 15:84 O 28 '39 30w
Reviewed by Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 20:6 O 14 '39 600w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 31 '39 850w

DEMING, DOROTHY. Penny Marsh: supervisor of public health nurses; il. by Dorothea Warren. 303p $2 Dodd 39-21175

Sequel to Penny Marsh, Public Health Nurse (Book Review Digest, 1938). "Penny Marsh is now in a large city receiving additional training as an assistant supervisor. A convincing picture is given of her experiences, and the plot has been successfully subordinated to the vocational interest. Sample report forms appear in the body of the text and the reader is given a broader view of the work of the public health nurses. A useful career book. Grades 8-10." (Booklist)

Booklist 36:73 O 15 '39

Reviewed by M. P. Johnson

Boston Transcript p2 S 9 '39 60w

"The story is not so well motivated as the first one, but it will be in demand wherever the other is popular. Office-report forms lend a text-bookish appearance to the format, which is otherwise attractive. . . For practical reasons the book has value for girls who may be interested in this vocation. Unusual credit is due the illustrator, Dorothea Warren, whose engaging sketches enliven a tale that threatens to drag with informational writing." Maude Adams

+ — Library J 64:806 O 15 '39 100w

DEMOS, RAPHAEL. The philosophy of Plato. 406p $3 Scribner

184.1 Plato 39-6948

The author states in his introduction that he has "aimed to reconstruct Plato's thought from his own works, ignoring almost altogether what Aristotle and the ancient scholars have reported Plato's doctrine to be. In this work, Plato means Plato's writings: the dialogues and, to a minor degree, the epistles. Furthermore, I have made no effort to draw a distinction between the Socratic and the Platonic elements in the dialogues, partly because the intent of this essay is not historical; but chiefly because, although I recognize that the influence of Socrates upon Plato is very great, I believe that that influence was assimilated by Plato and became part of his mind. The purpose of this book is not scholarly but interpretative; not to analyze or to verify the text, but to present Plato's thought as conveyed in the text." Index.

J Philos 36:605 O 26 '39 3750w

"Technically competent and attractively written."

+ New Repub 100:196 S 20 '39 40w

"The greatest value of Dr. Demos's book is to show that Plato, with the best of modern philosophy, is still able to implement the mind's relation to experience by means of a powerful and ironically ambivalent terminology." Howard Nemerov

+ N Y Times p2 S 3 '39 1150w

"A magnificent and admirable job—except that now some one needs to write the footnotes to 'The Philosophy of Plato' by Raphael Demos. In other words, this book, which attempts to systematize what inherently defies systematization, can serve only the professional philosopher already familiar with metaphysical jargon and cognizant of those other footnotes supplied by Descartes, Spinoza, Locke, Hume, Kant, Shorey, Dewey, Whitehead, Woodbridge, and the rest." R. B.

+ Sat R of Lit 20:21 Ag 19 '39 400w

DENNEY, REUEL. The Connecticut river, and other poems; with a foreword by Stephen Vincent Benét. (Ser. of younger poets) 67p $2 Yale univ. press

811 40-218

A first volume of poetry by a young American poet, a graduate of Dartmouth, now a teacher in the Buffalo high schools. Mr Denney describes himself as "a left wing opportunist."

"That a modern poet who has something to say may say it directly, and in skillfully handled metrical patterns, is demonstrated by Reuel Denney's work. . . Mr. Denney avoids the vagaries of oratorical sentiment and the distractions of politics. His range is comparatively narrow, but he does not write too much. He sees intelligently; but his real concern is, I believe, the shaping of what he sees into durable structure: the careful building of experience into a poem." Ruth Lechlitner

+ Books p3 D 31 '39 950w

"Skill in joining intellect to lyricism marks Denney's poetry as being better than so much that comes out. He himself seems to be a man among his kind, living much outdoors, reading well indoors, remembering and glorying in his native past, and singing in a voice all can understand and admire. 'The Connecticut River' is mature, clear, re-readable poetry, and, in its quiet way, genuinely American; so quietly that one feels proud of the product of our culture and our history. This is the sort of poetry, moreover, that time will not shake. A fine new talent has deservedly reached print." John Holmes

+ Boston Transcript p13 N 29 '39 500w

"A worthy newcomer in the Yale Press' 'Series of Younger Poets.' This is vigorous masculine poetry, intellectually vigorous as well as suggestive of physical strength and visceral stamina."

+ Christian Century 56:1475 N 29 '39 50w

"This is the most brilliant first book of poems to appear since 'In Dreams Begin Responsibilities,' but whereas Mr. Schwartz unevenly gyrated on the plains of heaven between the gods of form and meaning, Mr. Denney always keeps at least one foot on the ground. The result is less spectacular, certainly." Selden Rodman

+ Nation 150:103 Ja 27 '40 500w

"Assured simplicity; sustained lyric quality; unsentimental and intellectually strong."

+ New Repub 101:297 D 27 '39 30w

New Yorker 15:56 D 30 '39 40w

DENNIS, MARY BOARDMAN (CABLE) (MRS A. L. P. DENNIS). Mostly byways; here and there in Normandy. 194p il maps $2 Dutton

914.42 Normandy—Description and travel 39-9668

This book, combining the objectives of a guidebook and a volume of descriptive essays, carries the reader over the byways of Normandy to small villages and ancient towns and thru lovely countryside, making mention of old castles and churches, restaurants and good inns, short drives and longer ones. Index.

"From her home in Normandy, the daughter of George W. Cable sends forth a pleasant little book which should be suggestive and useful to American travelers in that delightful bit of the Old World."

+ Books p17 Ap 30 '39 150w

"Mrs. Dennis writes here from knowledge and affection to good practical result."

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 9 '39 280w

"France is a country which well repays loitering, and nowhere more than in Normandy. Even so enthusiastic a traveler as Mrs Dennis can do no more than touch upon the beauties and points of interest in passing, but her comment is always intimate and sprightly, and she gives the reader some feature to remember in connection with each stop."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 15 '39 600w

DENNIS, MARY BOARDMAN (CABLE) (MRS A. L. P. DENNIS). What to do with herbs; with an appendix of recipes. 91p $1.50 Dutton

635.7 Herbs 39-6035

Basing her work on her own herb garden in Normandy, the author describes the herbs found there, and outlines the use of each one. An appendix contains recipes for liqueurs, aromatic waters, vinegars, etc. Index.

J Home Econ 31:400 Je '39 40w

Springf'd Republican p8 Je 1 '39 370w

DENNISON, HENRY STURGIS, and others. Toward full employment. (Whittlesey house publication) 297p $2.50 McGraw 330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. Unemployment. Finance—U.S. Taxation—U.S.

38-31030

Each of the four collaborators, Henry S. Dennison, Lincoln Filene, Ralph E. Flanders, and Morris E. Leeds, is the president of a progressive industrial concern. They discuss means of dealing with unemployment and the possibility of long-range preventive measures by the government to be applied in the early stages of business recession. In its three parts the book deals with the proposal for fluctuating governmental activity and expenditures, fiscal policy and the business cycle, and a tax system to fit the economic objective.

Reviewed by G. S. Watkins
Am Econ R 29:190 Mr '39 490w

"It is certainly an encouraging sign when prominent business executives advocate public works for most of the unemployed in depressions. . . This book puts many academic economists to shame, for it contains more sound economics than most of the current textbooks." R. A. Lester
+ Ann Am Acad 202:213 Mr '39 550w
Economist 134:182 Ja 28 '39 170w

"The tone of the book is judicious and constructive. It is a substantial contribution in the study of cyclical instability." J. L. Snider
+ Harvard Business R 17:374 spring '39 450w
New Repub 97:211 D 21 '38 30w
Wis Lib Bul 34:196 D '38

DENT, JOSEPH MALLABY. The house of Dent, 1888-1938. jubilee ed 334p il $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Dent]

B or 92 Dent, J. M., and sons, limited. Publishers and publishing [39-9963]

The Memoirs of the founder of J. M. Dent and sons were first privately printed in 1921 and republished in 1928 with additional material by Hugh R. Dent (Book Review Digest, 1929). The additional material in this reissue now brings the history of the publishing house down to 1938. Index.

"One can see a whole age through J. M. Dent's life. His record is remarkable for its honesty, and incidentally he gives glimpses of many men of letters associated with his firm." B. I. E.
+ Manchester Guardian p7 N 4 '38 310w

"The book . . . is a record of a man whose interest in good literature combined happily with an interest in good business. The fascination of the book is as much in the portrait of the founder, as drawn by himself, as it is in the story of the famous business which he created."
+ New Statesman & Nation 16:846 N 19 '38 180w
Spec 161:744 O 28 '38 140w

DEPEW, ARTHUR M., comp. Cokesbury game book. 411p il $1.75 Cokesbury press

793 Games (W) 39-27078

More than 600 new games, mostly for indoor entertainment, and suggestions for leisure time activities. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:219 Mr 1 '39

"Leaders and workers with church, school, and playground groups will find it a useful reference book."
+ Boston Transcript p1 F 11 '39 40w

"Playful parents and fun committees in young people's groups will find welcome additions to their repertoires."
+ Christian Century 56:90 Ja 18 '39 40w
Wis Lib Bul 35:47 Mr '39

DE POLNAY, PETER. Angry man's tale. 355p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Secker & Warburg]
39-11567

An Englishman deserted by the woman he loves wanders around the island of Majorca, hoping to hear from her. There are no letters, and he gives himself up to endless argument with himself. Suddenly he is shocked into a semblance of life by getting involved in a murder inquiry, and eventually he marries the woman left widowed by that murder.

"There are interpolated bits of vaudeville in the book which indicate the author's excellent ability when he has something to write about. The native Majorcan officials are good. A spoof of a hunting party on a Spanish nobleman's place has real fun in it, and Mr. De Polnay's caricature of a psycho-analysis fan who drips frustrations, inhibitions and fixations is also a hilarious if slightly overdrawn affair. Mostly, however, you keep wondering why the characters don't go to work for their income, instead of drifting languidly about the landscape with their petulant, tired spirits." William Soskin
— + Books p12 Ap 30 '39 650w

"An extremely accomplished ironic comedy, related with a witty assurance that betrays nowhere the crude touch of the beginner. . . The character-drawing of the islanders and also of the English visitors . . . is nicely accomplished, and the setting, which shifts from Majorca to Portugal half-way through, is delineated with a delicate and vivid art. The tone of sophisticated and ironic comedy is adroitly preserved throughout, and the polished vivacity of the little story comes as a welcome diversion in these days of an almost unbearably forthright brutality." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p7 N 18 '38 350w

"Although the story is laid in pre-war Majorca, the background, like the neurotic's love life, is curiously bare. Talent wasted on an unimportant theme."
— New Repub 99:28 My 10 '39 50w

"Angry Man's Tale is a slight and unpretentious novel but, in what it sets out to depict, amusing and wholly convincing." John Mair
+ — New Statesman & Nation 16:1010 D 10 '38 150w

"The tale is ambitious and futile, circumstantial and negligible, realistic in design and false in motivation. It's trumpery rather well done." F. T. M.
— + N Y Times p7 My 14 '39 360w

"Written with a pleasing ironic detachment and in a style reminiscent of Hemingway's 'A Farewell to Arms,' though without the pathetic ending."
New Yorker 15:91 My 6 '39 40w

"It is a competent, well-turned book rather than an impressive or an exciting one, and it shows its author to be French in more than name, for it is written with an economy that is found more usually in French fiction than in English or American. . . When one wishes to be charitable towards a first novel, one calls it promising. 'Angry Man's Tale' deserves something better than such condescension, for Peter de Polnay has already proved himself a finished workman. His problem is that of finding material for his skill, not that of mastering his medium. Meantime, he has entertained us admirably without moving us, and the character of his entertainment suggests that his genuine wit and humor will probably dominate anything he may write." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 My 27 '39 600w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 30 '39 550w

"A first novel and an instructively artful one. . . The resolutely youthful in a brave new world will match their steps to its furiously blasé and melancholic jollity; those whose dancing days are past will conjure from the strain the sedately sentimental shades of bygone fashion. Lavender and chromium plate—these are the twin essences of the laconic and hard-boiled school, to which Mr. de Polnay apparently belongs. . . It is not mere cleverness that the author displays in elaborating the ironies of his tale, though he has cleverness enough and to spare. Nor is his unabashed comic sense, which is dashingly exhibited in several episodes, the best thing he has to offer. What gives the story salt and savour is a painfully honest and serious self-consciousness."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p739 N 19 '38 800w

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Any day now; il. by Mathias Noheimer. 134p $2.50 Black cat 39-2603

Story of the small Wisconsin town of Sac Prairie. "Renna Gluyk, almost morbidly heedful of her dead mother's wish and command that she marry money, refuses a young doctor and then spends the rest of her life in remorse for her beloved doctor, first married to another woman, then dead." (Commonweal)

"In reconstructing the speech and mores of a Wisconsin town two decades ago, Mr. Derleth is at his best, and in the character of the saloon-keeper, Renna's father, he has given us something exact and alive and worthy of the best prose writers. But Renna remains shadowy as do the others, although that is perhaps what Mr. Derleth wanted, for the dominant emotion of the book is one of nostalgia, and, if he does not always make you believe in his people, he does make you see and smell and hear the Wisconsin whose Germans were so badly torn in 1917." Harry Sylvester
+ — Commonweal 29:360 Ja 20 '39 360w

"Being an old plot, though a good one, the book would amount to little if Mr. Derleth had not invested it with special graces of atmosphere and style. The glamour which he conjures up . . . all has a kind of enchantment. His story, in a sense, is an elegy for lost beauty, a lament for the havoc wrought by time. As for his prose, though it is too measured, too metrical, and hence a little monotonous, it does have a distinction which is half the charm of the book. 'Any Day Now' is a very minor threnody." E. H. Walton
+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 1 '39 440w
Wis Lib Bul 35:27 F '39

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Man track here. 122p $2 Ritten house 811

"In a dozen or more books of prose and verse, August Derleth has written about his native state, Wisconsin. This, his second collection of poems, prolifically demonstrates once more his allegiance to the Wisconsin scene. Lovingly he observes all aspects of the countryside he knows so well—woodland, field and hill throughout the changing seasons." Books

"Love runs away with his art: he writes too much, revises too seldom. . . Several of the nature poems with a little pruning would be as memorably indigenous to the Middle West as Frost's to New England. Mr. Derleth does well with his portraits of Sac Prairie people. . . They draw much, it is true, from Edgar Lee Masters, but they are sketched with sensitive, individual strokes."
+ — Books p16 N 26 '39 200w

"It can be said that a poet of no mean stature has arisen on the prairie, and that his hymns of Wisconsin demand a hearing from all lovers of poetry in the true vein." M. W.
+ N Y Times p9 Ag 20 '39 300w

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Restless is the river. 514p map $2.50 Scribner
(W) 39-27856

Story of pioneer life in the Sac Prairie region of Wisconsin from 1839 to 1850. Count Brogmar, exiled from Hungary, comes to Wisconsin, hoping to grow grapes for wine making. His own exuberant nature carries him thru a long series of good fortune and misfortune, but his wife never forgets that she was a princess and accustomed to gentle ways of living.

Booklist 36:88 N 1 '39

"What is important, and good, in the story lies in the interwoven background details, incidents not so much personal as communal. These facets of land development, with attendant intrigues and none too savory politics . . . are necessary to a full picture of the era. Pervasively beautiful, slower to change, are the turning seasons on the prairie itself. But because of the non-selective, diffuse, sometimes lush writing (half as long, the book might be more effective) the significant is often lost among the insignificant, the good color of reality robbed by the synthetically romantic. For the authenticity of its background material, however, and its truly epic scope, 'Restless Is the River' may well be commended." Ruth Lechlitner
+ — Books p12 O 15 '39 550w

Reviewed by O. E. Schoen-Rene
Boston Transcript p1 Ja 13 '40 270w

"This third installment of his 'Sac Prairie Saga' lacks something of being as good a story as its predecessors."
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 11 '39 500w

Nation 149:586 N 25 '39 90w

"August Derleth's descriptive powers save this writing from complete barrenness. He has a botanist's knowledge of the flowering land of Wisconsin and takes a lyrical delight in conveying the natural glories and panorama of a virgin country. If his characters and his situations had in them any of the brilliance and illumination of the sunsets he describes so well, this over-long and understated novel would demand anything but harsh criticism." Stanley Young
+ — N Y Times p6 O 8 '39 500w
New Yorker 15:101 O 14 '39 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 12 '39 220w
Time 34:68 O 30 '39 280w
Wis Lib Bul 35:186 N '39

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Sentence deferred. 248p $2 Scribner 39-5475

Detective story.

"Judge Peck is a likable old fellow and the story—a tall one—toward the finish extremely so—should keep you awake." Will Cuppy
+ — Books p20 F 26 '39 170w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 4 '39 90w

"The story is ingenious and entertaining, but the author might well have spared us Judge Peck's long speech to the jury retelling what has already been told." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p28 F 26 '39 120w

"Small town background and characters especially well done. Neat legal tie-up tightens plot. Better grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 F 25 '39 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '39 160w

DERRICK, MICHAEL. The Portugal of Salazar. 168p $2 Campion bks, ltd, 140 E. 45th st, N.Y. [5s Sands]
946.9 Portugal—Politics and government. Oliveira Salazar, Antonio de 39-14475

Study of the state which the protagonist, ex-professor of political economy, is building in Portugal, describing origins, objectives, and actual operations.

Boston Transcript p2 My 13 '39 100w

"In this volume we are given a good portrait of Salazar—a Catholic to his finger tips, a trained scholar, a patriot, a wizard in finance." B. L. C.
+ Cath World 148:755 Mr '39 430w

DERRICK, MICHAEL—Continued
Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 30:520 S 29 '39 750w
Foreign Affairs 17:185 O '38 20w
Manchester Guardian p7 Mr 11 '38 230w
New Repub 99:196 Je 21 '39 40w
Reviewed by T. R. Ybarra
N Y Times p9 My 21 '39 1000w

"Despite its usefulness as an introduction to the theory of the Salazar corporative state, this book does not answer the many questions which the outside world has a right to ask. How effective is the new régime in practice and what does it offer for the future? Mr. Derrick gives no impression of first-hand familiarity with either the country or its leaders, and is content to quote extensively from the Constitution, Dr. Salazar's addresses, and the publications of friendly scholars. Since he omits details like the standard of living, trade balance, and public works, he must some day produce a much larger book on the achievements and defects of the new Portugal." J. F. Green
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:17 My 6 '39 500w

"The organization of syndicates and gremios is described, its articulation with the political framework of government is analysed. This work is clearly and competently done. The rest of the book can most profitably be skipped; it reads like a hotch-potch of leading articles from the Daily Mail with a slight leavening of the Universe."
— + Spec 160:549 Mr 25 '38 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p162 Mr 12 '38 380w

DESMOND, ALICE CURTIS (MRS T. C. DESMOND). The lucky llama; il. by Wilfrid Bronson. 64p $1.50 Macmillan 39-25706

Story of a pure white llama and the little Indian boy who rescued him from a condor, and made a pet of him.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p7 Ja 28 '40 50w
Boston Transcript p7 D 9 '39 50w

"Presents a pleasant story for young people and a picture of unfamiliar mountain life in Peru."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 17 '39 180w

DESMOND, ALICE (CURTIS) (MRS T. C. DESMOND). Soldier of the sun; a story of Peru in the days of the Incas; il. by Ernest W. Watson. 243p $2 Dodd 39-21148

Adventure story for young readers. The hero is a page to the Inca king, Huascar, and the action takes place in and around the city of Cuzco in the 1530s, when Pizarro's troops were invading the land. Glossary. Bibliography.

Reviewed by M. P. Johnson
Boston Transcript p1 S 30 '39 80w

"In this well-written book we get an excellent idea of the life of the Incas in their beautiful cities and of life as a peasant farmer working out a bare living on the terraces scattered through the Andes Mountains. Mrs. Desmond gives us a vivid picture of the conquest of Peru by the Spaniards and it makes a stirring tale for boys of twelve to sixteen years." R. W. Stewart
+ Library J 64:761 O 1 '39 150w

DEUCHER, SYBIL, and WHEELER, OPAL. Millet tilled the soil; il. by Dorothy Bayley. 96p $2.50 Dutton

B or 92 Millet, Jean François—Juvenile literature (W) 39-20729

Biography of the French artist, Millet, written for young readers.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 N 26 '39 150w
Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 90w
Cath World 150:379 D '39 60w

"Nine full page reproductions of Millet's most famous pictures add value and interest to this book which deserves a place on your book shelves." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 25 '39 450w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 15:389 N '39 70w
Reviewed by Marian Herr
Library J 64:872 N 1 '39 100w

"Dorothy Bayley's imaginative and sensitive drawings are beautifully reproduced and with the ten fine full-page reproductions of well-known Millet paintings make this an attractive picture book. It is a book that should stimulate interest in pictures and artists and one that boys and girls from 9 to 12 may well be encouraged to read and own." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 S 24 '39 220w

"Should charm anyone from eight years up. . . Dorothy Bayley has illustrated the book with lovely and touching pictures, and the reproductions of many of Millet's masterpieces will delight the entire family." Z. C. Durrell
+ Sat R of Lit 21:24 N 18 '39 150w
School Arts 39:6a N 4 '39 50w

DEUTSCH, BABETTE (MRS AVRAHM YARMOLINSKY). One part love. 86p $1.75 Oxford 811 39-29443

Fifty-three poems on contemporary subjects, especially peace, or the lack of it. Some of the poems have been published previously in the New Yorker.

Booklist 36:173 Ja 1 '40

"Eight years have passed since Miss Deutsch published her last book in verse, a long poem called 'Epistle to Prometheus,' [Book Review Digest, 1931] an ambitious work which I believe has never received sufficient praise. Something of the same warning of darkness enters the present volume, the same lights and shadows. There is greater variety of feeling and observation in her new work, and by the very nature of its selection from verse she has published in current magazines it displays wide ranges from light verse to occasional pieces, to portraits in verse, to commentaries on the events that have changed and darkened world affairs." Horace Gregory
Books p4 D 17 '39 1000w

"It is pleasant to record the growth of so gifted a poet as Babette Deutsch. The poems in 'One Part Love' reveal both a technical and a spiritual advance of a talent that was from the beginning well founded." J. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 20 '40 280w

"Acrid and expert craftsmanship, and the mark of a positive individuality; in brief, one of the best books Miss Deutsch has written."
+ New Repub 101:297 D 27 '39 40w
New Yorker 15:56 D 30 '39 20w
Reviewed by W. R. Benét
Sat R of Lit 21:16 N 25 '39 250w

DEUTSCH, HAROLD CHARLES. The genesis of Napoleonic imperialism. 460p $4.50 Harvard univ. press [19s Oxford]

944.04 Napoléon I, emperor of the French. France—History—Consulate and empire, 1799-1815. Imperialism 38-2656

"Basing his study upon an exhaustive examination of archival (French and Austrian) and printed sources and upon most of the relevant secondary literature, Professor Deutsch gives what is undoubtedly the best and clearest account, at least in English, of the foreign policy of the Napoleonic government from the Treaty of Lunéville of February, 1801, to the overthrow of the Third Coalition after Austerlitz in December, 1805." Am Hist R

"The volume is enlivened throughout with interesting, sometimes pungent, character sketches of oft-mentioned but little-known diplomats, and the index is well arranged. The viewpoints of the work are refreshing, the revised interpretations are amply fortified by source references, and the style of writing is pleasing. Professor Deutsch's book really is 'indispensable' to an understanding of European history in the nineteenth century." W. C. Langsam

+ Am Hist R 44:368 Ja '39 950w

"The reviewer unhesitatingly and unreservedly acknowledges that Dr Deutsch's scholarly and well documented presentation enriches the literature of an inexhaustible theme. The main objection has to do with the mosaic-like technique applied in describing the bewildering mass of moves and counter-moves, obscuring rather than clarifying the basic lines on which the opposing forces move. Currents and cross-currents are not sufficiently set off, and thus the book lacks the crowning touch of the historian's craftmanship." Karl Loewenstein

+ — Am Pol Sci R 32:756 Ag '38 1100w

Reviewed by J. M. Thompson
Eng Hist R 54:144 Ja '39 700w
Pol Sci Q 54:148 Mr '39 380w

DEVINE, EDWARD THOMAS. When social work was young. 163p $1.75 Macmillan

361.0973 Social work 39-15032

"Personal recollections of the time—some forty years ago—when organized charities, public relief agencies, social settlements, and others were developing what has come to be called social work." (Subtitle) The book begins with an account of the author's early life as background for the story of his career in social work during the nineties and early years of the twentieth century. Except for a final summarizing chapter the book concludes with an account of relief work after the San Francisco fire. Index.

Reviewed by I. V. Hiscock
Am J Pub Health 29:1269 N '39 70w

"That was the heroic age of social work, prepared for by the numberless gropings of the nineteenth century and culminating in a vision that seemed to point the way toward ending human misery. It is essential that the unique spirit of those days be caught and preserved for us; and only Devine could have done it." F. J. Bruno

+ Ann Am Acad 205:144 S '39 410w
Booklist 36:36 O 1 '39
Books p15 Jl 23 '39 370w

"A small but stimulating volume. . . Unfortunately Mr. Devine lacks a little the facility which other reminiscing social workers have sometimes had. He does not cite general principles in his wealth of experience, and frequently his recollections become simply memories rather than milestones on a steady path of progress in overcoming social problems. Nevertheless, one cannot help being stirred at the accomplishments of a life so fruitfully invested for human welfare." Robert Rutherford

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Je 24 '39 200w
Christian Century 56:743 Je 7 '39 50w
J Home Econ 31:644 N '39 80w

"It is a very direct book, easy to read. Like the author, it is substantial rather than brilliant." C. R. Barnes

+ Living Church 101:12 S 20 '39 440w
Springf'd Republican p10 Je 7 '39 750w

Reviewed by Homer Folks
Survey 75:194 Je '39 600w

DEWEY, JOHN. Freedom and culture. (Minton, Balch bk) 176p $2 Putnam

323.44 Liberty. Democracy. Culture

(W) 39-27972

Study of the conditions on which true democratic culture are based. The book, which was published in celebration of the author's eightieth birthday, is really a reaffirmation of humanism and liberalism, as traditionally understood.

Booklist 36:126 D 1 '39

"It is dramatically fitting that a philosopher who has always emphasized that recognition of problems is the beginning of wisdom should now come forward in time of crisis to face the central problem of our own day. It is also fitting that the latest work of the foremost exponent of American democracy, John Dewey, should be a fighting volume in defense of the values enshrined in that doctrine. To say that 'Freedom and Culture' lifts both problems and solution to new levels of meaning is hardly more than to say that it is written by Dewey." E. S. Bates

+ Books p2 N 5 '39 800w

Reviewed by E. T. Buehrer
Christian Century 57:178 F 7 '40 1050w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:6 D '39 30w
J Philos 36:688 D 7 '39 1450w

Reviewed by William Gruen
Nation 149:621 D 2 '39 1400w

Reviewed by Paul Weiss
New Repub 101:206 D 6 '39 140w

"John Dewey is eighty years old, but you would never know it from his new book. It shows an extraordinary alertness and awareness, qualities not always present in the books on contemporary social themes written by men half his age. If in the strictest sense 'Freedom and Culture' contains few ideas which are new to the Dewey repertory, this is more than compensated for by the clarity and brilliance with which his fundamental postulates are brought into line with problems of immediate relevance. Few oldsters and no youngsters can afford complacently to say that they will 'get nothing out of' 'Freedom and Culture.' It plumbs the fundamentals of the problem of democracy." C. H. Grattan

+ N Y Times p1 N 5 '39 1500w
New Yorker 15:95 O 21 '39 30w
Pratt p5 winter '40

Reviewed by Robert Bierstedt
Sat R of Lit 21:13 N 11 '39 1100w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 22 '39 600w

"The book is compact and crowded with thought, sometimes to the point of obscurity. Partly for this reason, and partly because of the abstractness of the style, it is not easy reading. Now and then one stumbles over an awkward or incoherent sentence. But the book rewards careful attention; it offers a pregnant statement of the democratic problem in terms of modern thought and in the light of contemporary experiments in government and social organization." H. E. Woodbridge

+ Yale R n s 29:388 winter '40 750w

DEWEY, JOHN. Intelligence in the modern world: John Dewey's philosophy; ed, and with an introd. by Joseph Ratner. 1077p $1.25 Modern lib.

191 (W) 39-27121

"Here are nearly eight hundred pages of selections from the widest ranges of John Dewey's writings, with some 280 pages of introduction and editorial notes. This volume gives us a comprehensive view of the whole of Dewey's philosophy. It has the merits of such inclusiveness and, of course, the faults of fragmentariness. Here the reader may discover glimpses, at least, of Dewey's interpretations of philosophy, science, society and the individual, nationalism and internationalism, education, psychology, ethics, logic, aesthetics, religion and the practical arts. No one else, either in America or elsewhere, has dealt with such a wide range of problems in this modern world, or contributed so forcefully to the development of an intelligent understanding of those problems." (Survey G) Index.

DEWEY, JOHN—Continued

"An exceptionally ingenious and informative volume, a tribute to the intelligence and expertness of Mr. Ratner as well as to the richness of Dewey's thought." H. W. S.
+ J Philos 36:585 O 12 '39 390w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
New Repub 99:51 My 17 '39 700w

Reviewed by Paul Weiss
New Repub 101:206 D 6 '39 140w

"Dewey's teachings have never been intended to produce 'Deweyites,' but to develop socially responsible human beings. This book should help enormously in promoting that end." J. K. Hart
+ Survey G 28:453 Jl '39 380w

DE WILDE, JOHN CHARLES; POPPER, DAVID HENRY, and CLARK, EUNICE. Handbook of the war; pictorial charts by Irving Geis, maps by Richard Ely Falconer. 248p $2; text ed $1.50 Houghton

940.53 European war, 1939- (W) 39-29444

Chapters on the military strength and war resources of Europe, illustrated with maps and pictorial charts. The authors are "experts of the Foreign Policy Association and Fortune." Contents: What they are fighting for; The geography of land war; Armed men; The war of attrition; The war of annihilation; Air: the new dimension; Ships and strategy; The sea front; The economic front; Can Germany be blockaded? Merchant shipping; Paying for the war; Propaganda; The defense of America; Index.

Booklist 36:174 Ja 1 '40

"This inexpensive book is so full of information that it might well have had a different title. It should be brought out at the end of each year as an annual. This is because, while the book contains such statistics and tabulated information as are customary in a handbook, the clear discussions of the problems of foreign policies, armaments, strategy, tactics and economics—war on land, in the air and on the sea—render this work more than a handbook. It is a brief treatise on the art of war. The authors are experienced writers who recently visited most of the countries of Europe in search of information. Careful research must have preceded the preparation of these discussions." W. C. Rivers
+ Books p5 D 10 '39 1250w

"The factual array is dense and yet supremely ordered. The trio of authors make no great claims for the oracular virtues of their volume. All they do is to point out possibilities. . . 'Handbook of the War' would be interesting reading even if the European powers were not at each other's throats. Somehow all these facts and figures do not have the direct bearing on the course of the war that one might expect. Unpredictable political and mass psychological phenomena render any predictions virtually impossible, except the prediction that capitalism as we now know it is crumbling. But the handbook is fine reading for all that." E. B. Garside
+ Boston Transcript p5 D 23 '39 280w

"For those who wish to follow the military minutiae of conflict, few guidebooks will provide a more satisfactory introduction than Handbook of the War. . . Perhaps the most short-circuited piece of compression is the simple declaration that 'for an understanding of the extension of the World War . . . one must look back to Versailles.' . . Such considerations aside, however, the handbook is a useful volume for those to whom the sound of cannon and the sinking of ships offer preoccupation in the study of the phenomena of 1939."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p20 N 29 '39 440w

New Repub 102:29 Ja 1 '40 60w

"A few ill-considered statements do not reduce the great value of this book as a compact and fascinating storehouse of information on all the most important aspects of the war. Armchair strategists cannot get along without it, and every one who has read it will follow his war news more intelligently." Henry Hazlitt
+ — N Y Times p3 D 31 '39 700w

"If this book had been published in September, it would have rendered superfluous a great many tiresome and hysterical newspaper articles. Published at the rim of December, it not only tells the reader practically all he will need to know about military operations till the opening of the spring campaign brings the inevitable change in methods, but it also furnishes a valuable check on all forms of propaganda and semi-propaganda." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 21:18 D 23 '39 440w
Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 22 '40 320w

DE ZOETE, BERYL. See Zoete, B. de

DHALA, MANEKJI NASARVANJI. The history of Zoroastrianism. 525p $5 (24s) Oxford

295 Zoroastrianism 38-20148

This volume by the Parsee high priest "describes early and later orthodox Zoroastrianism, attempts to place it in historical setting and sequence, and then carries on the story through the Pehlevi period, devoting the last hundred pages of the book to the periods of 'decadence' and 'revival,' the seventh to eighteenth centuries and modern periods, respectively." (J Religion)

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 7 '39 220w
Reviewed by T. C. Young
J Religion 19:250 Jl '39 500w

DIBELIUS, MARTIN, ed. The message of Jesus Christ; the tradition of the early Christian communities; restored and tr. into German; tr. into English by Frederick C. Grant. 192p $2 Scribner [8s 6d Nicholson]

225 Bible. New Testament—Criticism, interpretation, etc. Jesus Christ—Teaching 39-17214

The first part of this book contains a large number of excerpts from the Gospels and other parts of the New Testament re-translated and arranged under the headings: Early Christian preaching, The old stories, Parables, Sayings, Miracle tales, and Legends. The second part contains an explanation of the reasons for this arrangement and interpretations of the texts.

"Here are the results of Formgeschichte reduced to the most concrete and intelligible terms. . . Every student of form criticism must by all means make a careful study of this book."
+ Christian Century 56:773 Je 14 '39 90w

"The common complaint today is that the critics have thrown out the baby with the bath, and that the average Christian today, not knowing how much he may believe, simply does not read the Gospels at all. But why not put into the hands of the thoughtful Christian this book, and Easton's What Jesus Taught, and tell him that this is very likely the primitive tradition regarding what Jesus said and did. Such books could be read as devotionally as the New Testament in its canonical form, and with much greater profit, because they more likely present the true picture of what Jesus did and taught." W. L. Caswell
+ Churchman 153:17 S 1 '39 330w

"The appearance in easily readable form of the net results of one great form-critic's analysis of the gospel tradition is certain to be welcomed. . . One of the striking features of the book is the translation of the Greek texts. Dr. Dibelius had made his own translation into German, and Dr. Grant endeavors to keep the flavor of this translation, as far as possible, in his English rendering. Although this method has had the result of giving us often a remarkably fresh and attractive English version of the familiar texts, the idiom is sometimes forced, and opinion will differ as to whether Dr. Grant might not more wisely have relied more directly on the Greek." John Knox

+ — J Religion 20:98 Ja '40 150w

"If we ask who is to judge whether the passages as given here are really the original form of the stories, the only answer would seem to be 'Dibelius says so.' And if we ask how he knows, no answer would seem to be forthcoming except 'Form Criticism supplies the proof.'"

Manchester Guardian p8 Jl 18 '39 900w

"Such a method of classification and interpretation has its obvious dangers. In the hands of an unscrupulous person it can soon reduce the contents of the New Testament to a series of sayings and incidents selected because they happen to fit in with the author's pet scheme. Nor, at the best of times, can such an approach do proper justice to those legitimate claims of history and biography, which the Form Critics are all too ready to ignore. Dr. Dibelius does not escape from such pitfalls, though his more conservative and appreciative attitude to the original tradition has preserved him from some of the more radical conclusions advocated by his more liberal and coldly intellectual colleagues. Yet even so, there are times when he does not hesitate to remove rather freely what he regards as late accretions."

Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Jl 15 '39 650w

DICKENS, MONICA. One pair of hands; with a foreword by Compton Mackenzie. 300p $2.50 Harper [10s 6d Joseph, M]

647.25 Servants (W) 39-27973

The author, a great-granddaughter of Charles Dickens, grew tired of the social whirl and decided to earn her own living—as a cook by preference, a cook-general when necessary. In somewhat fictionized style her book tells the story of her experiences during eighteen months and in half-a-dozen different homes.

Booklist 36:132 D 1 '39

"Miss Dickens shows two personal traits Boz would have been glad to find still functioning in the third generation: dramatic temperament and genuine zest for life. She can find unforced enjoyment in the spectacle of life below stairs. Out of this material she could easily have made a gloomy book; she has made one that is cheerful, sometimes to the point of exuberance. It sometimes sounds more like 'Pickwick Papers' than many a novel that tried to sound like it. Miss Dickens does not try; this is the way she naturally looks at life, especially when she is looking down from a safe position on an upper level. So did Boz. The book deserves a place among Dickensiana." M. L. Becker

+ Books p17 O 29 '39 450w

Boston Transcript p1 O 28 '39 160w

Christian Science Monitor p10 D 16 '39 650w

"One recognises not only the servants, with their clichés and their conservatism, but the employers, of whom over a considerable period Miss Dickens had many. A study of this highly amusing, good-humoured, and penetrating book should do more for understanding of the servant problem than any number of essays on it, if only because it presents, with equal verve, the employer problem." M. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Je 13 '39 250w

"If there were no law of libel, we should still have to take her anecdotes with a pinch of salt; but they are very funny indeed—in an exuberant, slap-dash way they're well written—and their truth in substance is obvious." K. John

+ — New Statesman & Nation 18:21 Jl 1 '39 1000w

"All this makes a unique and delightful story, to whose 'exuberant vitality' Compton Mackenzie does well to point in his foreword. As Mr. Mackenzie goes on to suggest, the moral of Miss Dickens's experiment, also, is too plain to need any pedantic underscoring. But over and above its gay adventurousness, its variety of keen-eyed and blithe-hearted experience and its implicit challenge to reflection this book fascinates us too by its lively and unfamiliar detail."

+ N Y Times p8 O 22 '39 700w

New Yorker 15:94 O 21 '39 40w

Time 34:88 O 23 '39 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p293 My 20 '39 450w

DICKINSON, HENRY WINRAM. A short history of the steam engine. 255p il $3.50 Macmillan [15s Cambridge]

621.1 Steam engines 39-13297

History of the steps in the development of the steam engine. By using sources such as the engineering facts found in the Transactions of the Newcomen society, the author presents many details about the work carried out in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Illustrated with many drawings, photographs, and diagrams. Chronological table. Index.

"The book will delight equally engineers, historians and mechanically-minded laymen, and constitutes an important contribution to the record of industry and transport, as well as to the philosophy of our civilisation."

+ Economist 134:300 F 11 '39 100w

"This is the most important work on the history of steam engines published since 1908."

+ Nature 144:849 N 18 '39 500w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:30 Ap '39

Pratt p10 winter '40

Times [London] Lit Sup p62 Ja 28 '39 240w

DICKS, RUSSELL LESLIE. And ye visited me; source book for ministers in work with the sick. 247p $2.50 Harper

258 Sick, The. Medicine, Clerical 39-2571

"Previous to this volume the author has given us Meditations for the Sick, and in collaboration with Dr. Richard C. Cabot, When You Call on the Sick [Book Review Digest, 1936, 1938]. [In] this present volume . . . he writes as a member of that advance guard of physicians and ministers who are laying hold upon the science of psychology and psychiatry, as well as the science of medicine, in order the better to help those sick in body and mind. And Ye Visited Me is unique in its concern with clinical material. This latter is composed of the records of interviews by clergymen who came into the hospital as visitors. In the first half of the book these records are printed in a column parallel with a second, composed of many questions, by our author, on the interviews. In the latter portion the same scheme prevails except that Doctor Dicks, in column two, makes comments upon the clinical materials rather than merely asking questions." Crozer Q

"This is a most useful book for the minister, the theological student and the teacher in this field. In few places does the minister have so large an opportunity for helpful service to individuals in great need as in the sick-room. And this book will greatly aid the minister in this situation to be worthy of his office." C. T. Holman

+ Christian Century 56:186 F 8 '39 550w

Reviewed by W. M. Jefferys, M.D.
Churchman 153:18 My 1 '39 170w

Reviewed by W. R. McNutt
+ Crozer Q 16:152 Ap '39 240w

DICKSON, CARTER, pseud. See Carr, J. D.

DI DONATO, PIETRO. Christ in concrete. 311p $2.50 Bobbs

(W) 39-10762

Expansion of a short story of the same title which appeared in Esquire last year. In robust prose, at times amounting to a translation of Italian, is told the story of the Italian bricklayers in America. Paul, the hero, is twelve when his father is killed by the collapse of a flimsy building. With courage beyond his years the boy attempts to follow his father's trade in order to support his mother and his seven younger brothers and sisters.

"Of course the book is accurate, compassionate, and so on. But the miracle is that a man reared in obscure suffering with the sound of an alien tongue in his ears, without aid of any kind should demonstrate the sweet truth that intelligence and dignity are impartially bestowed in life's curious scheme." E. B. Garside

+ Atlantic S '39 550w

"There is abundant power in this writing. So, too, are there plenty of warmth, sympathy, pity, indignation, and the savors of full-blooded life. But the turbulent rush of the staccato prose, so choppy, adjective-crammed, and muddled with mixed metaphor, points of suspension, and unscrupulous epithet, will be hard navigating for many readers. There is no doubting the force of Pietro di Donato's material." J. A. Friend

+ — Books p4 Ag 20 '39 600w

Reviewed by Patricia Palmer

Canadian Forum 19:294 D '39 360w

"Pietro Di Donato writes about his people with the deep human understanding of a prophet, with the psychological insight of a learned soul-analyst, and with the literary skill of a seasoned professional at the ancient and honorable art of story-telling." K. M. Chworowsky

+ Christian Century 56:1203 O 4 '39 850w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott

Manchester Guardian p3 O 17 '39 220w

"The characters who vividly people the story are drawn from poverty-ridden New York construction workers and their families, transplanted Italians whom Pietro di Donato knows from his fourteen years as a bricklayer; and with his remarkable sense for words he has caught and crystallized their effervescent, volubly poetic speech with its imagery piquantly compounded of the soil, their work, and their theology. His own terse style, made telegraphic by personification and frequent omission of the article, throbs with reality, with the feel of brick and mortar, the smells of labor, the tang of sour wine and olive oil and red peppers. Only a man whose muscles and stomach have felt the fatigue and the hunger of hard manual labor can paint them with such blunt, convincing strokes." L. B. Salomon

+ Nation 149:223 Ag 26 '39 350w

"More than any other book I have read, this first novel conveys a genuine feeling about Italians in this country working and living together. . . Di Donato has at least two stylistic mannerisms that are worth noting. One of them, the frequent omission of articles preceding nouns seems in character with the rest of his prose style. The other, a little difficult for the reader not on speaking terms with Italian, consists of making the dialogue sound like a literal translation from the Italian. Undoubtedly, the purpose of this device is to suggest the flavor of the foreign language spoken by the characters; but although the results are often rich and poetical, sometimes the phraseology is unnecessarily rigid." Jerre Mangione

+ — New Repub 100:110 Ag 30 '39 550w

"Christ in Concrete is an unusual book and contains some effective writing, but it is too obviously intended for a certain sort of public. Have it bound uniformly with your Mirbeau and your Antonio Gallonio." John Mair

New Statesman & Nation 18:533 O 21 '39 350w

"Donato is the untutored sensuous artist, or rather that is the role he has chosen in this recreation of his own story. He is attempting to portray life and work as experienced by his own people and does not attempt to tackle mental concepts impinging on working people from the outside. It is the story of the job and the home and the family circle, in good times and bad, from the inside. . . Donato has told his own story here in the way of the artist as story-teller. But he's a writer; he has the gift. He will go on from here. There are enough unfinished stories right here to provide another volume while he is feeling his way around." F. T. Marsh

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 20 '39 650w

"Written in white-hot passion that is sometimes almost incoherent but for the most part is real and touching."

New Yorker 15:61 S 2 '39 60w

Pratt p23 winter '40

"A highly interesting, perhaps a significant, book. . . Reading 'Christ in Concrete' one thinks of that other Italo-American writer, John Fante, whose novel 'Wait Until Spring, Bandini!' appeared a few months ago. Like Fante, Di Donato is robust and full-blooded and passionate, now and then almost to the point of craziness; and also like Fante, he has imagination and a healthy sense of the source of poetry in the Italian. . . Di Donato has achieved something extremely difficult. He has translated the spirit of the Italian lyric conversation and colloquialisms into American speech, which strikes one as quite natural." Louis Adamic

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:5 Ag 26 '39 800w

"A passionate, humorous, pathetic story. . . Author di Donato's Italians speak a translated Italian, lyrical, bawdy tender, crude. . . With so much to recommend it, Christ in Concrete has one unfortunate fault—its occasional passages of impressionistic, Joycean rhetoric. But these passages are not structural. Without them, the book would be as solid as one of Author di Donato's brick walls."

Time 33:75 Ap 10 '39 200w

"The author has a coarse virility of phrase that is sometimes impressive and a turn of luscious dialogue—closely moulded to Italian forms of speech—where bawdiness or religious feeling is concerned that is acceptable enough. But there are also yards of rhetorical and overwritten stuff, lashings of the horrific and an excessively immature fondness for prose experiment. The first half of the book really exhausts his theme. After that Paul's intimations of sex, Veblen's classic, fortune-telling, Russia and religious doubt fall into a blurred and inconsequential pattern."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p611 O 21 '39 390w

Reviewed by Ralph Thompson

Yale R n s 29:viii autumn '39 150w

DIETRICH, ETHEL BARBARA. World trade. 458p maps $2.75 Holt

382 Commerce 39-3429

Study of the new and some of the older methods of control of international trade. The author, who is professor of economics at Mount Holyoke college, explains in detail import quotas, foreign exchange control, clearing and payment agreements, and free ports, and studies them as instruments in national policies. Index.

Reviewed by C. R. Whittlesey

Am Econ R 29:592 S '39 200w

"A most complete and understandable study. . . The value of the book is increased by a selected bibliography and by more than thirty tables and charts of pertinent economic facts. There are relatively few footnotes, in this case a minor criticism." C. M. Frasure

+ Am Pol Sci R 33:539 Je '39 280w

"This textbook has much merit. It is compact, up to date, filled with a variety of information, and written in a simple, elementary style. By and large, it is realistic and frank. . . No textbook can be quite complete, and probably none can be completely accurate. In this case one is inclined to question the desirability of entirely, though deliberately, omitting discussion of the classical theory of international prices and other theories of international economics. . . On the practical side, the treatment of international cartels and world trusts, and of foreign investments, seems to me very inadequate." John Donaldson

+ — Ann Am Acad 205:188 S '39 800w

Foreign Affairs 17:807 Jl '39 20w

Management R 28:72 F '39 60w

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 21 '39 480w

"The book is not exactly easy reading. But it is a concise and coherent reference work or textbook, and one which is extremely valuable in these days of newly hatched trade treaties, and the application of 'countervailing tariffs' and economic pressures of various kinds . . The chapter on colonial trade might be singled out for special mention. Other chapters explain clearly and adequately complicated matters like exchange control, most favored nation clauses, quota arrangements, export credit insurance and production restriction schemes." B. P. Adams

+ Survey G 28:505 Ag '39 330w

DIGBY, GEORGE. Down wind. 311p $3 Dutton [12s 6d Collins]

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. China—Social life and customs. Australia—Social life and customs

(W) 39-27433

Further reminiscences by the author of Goose Feathers (Book Review Digest, 1938). The first half of this volume is devoted to the author's years as a journalist in China; the second half to his experiences as a planter in Java, a rabbit-catcher in Australia, and, after a brief stay in New Zealand, as a nurse to a cargo of rams in a trip 'round the Horn.

Booklist 35:328 Je 1 '39

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

Books p9 My 28 '39 900w

"[Digby's] experiences in Australia . . . are set down with much detail that is reminiscent of our own frontier days. In New Zealand he obtained another newspaper job, but when he found that the editor's wife was the power behind the throne, he resigned. The story is highly amusing."

+ N Y Times p8 My 21 '39 550w

New Yorker 15:95 My 20 '39 30w

"No one can say that the story fails to move, but then, wind moves, too, and yet is sometimes merely dusty. It gets in the eye. 'Down Wind' gets in the eye but not in the mind. The reader who read 'Goose Feathers' may form the conclusion—which is almost inescapable—that the author has used the scraps that were left over from the first book and precious little else. This reviewer mentions here for the benefit of the reader as well as for Mr. Digby's ear that you cannot make two good omelets by putting the eggs in one and the shells in another." R. H.

— Sat R of Lit 20:21 Je 3 '39 220w

"Mr. Digby's style is lively and readable, though at times it shows the scar of journalism's heavy hand. Down Wind is a book that can be recommended to readers who do not demand too much and who enjoy breezy anecdotes and views on life." Anthony Powell

— + Spec 162:603 Ap 7 '39 360w

"Mr. Digby writes easily and lucidly, although occasionally he is betrayed into a sentence like 'he literally devoured her with his eyes.' But in a work of this kind revelation of character is more important than style. Mr. Digby certainly allows his readers to learn a great deal about him in the course of his 350 pages: not only about his actions but about his thoughts and feelings. It is a character worth study because it is not all of a piece."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p136 Mr 4 '39 390w

DINNEEN, JOSEPH FRANCIS. Pius XII, pope of peace. 281p il $2.50 McBride [8s 6d Cassell]

B or 92 Pius XII (Eugenio Pacelli) pope

39-27312

Timely biography of Pope Pius XII, the only pontiff who ever visited America. The author is a layman, a newspaper man.

Booklist 35:289 My 1 '39

"There is an atmosphere of discreet candor about the book which will be found refreshing, and the ancient dramatic effects coveted by good reporters are discreetly utilized. It is true that Mr. Dinneen's volume will disappoint those who delight in full-dress biography, and sometimes startle those whose reverence for historical accuracy has survived the demise of the New England conscience. To all such this treatise is not directed. But there are breezily written chapters about the contemporary Vatican scene, the routine of the pontifical life, and the troubled political atmosphere in which Rome lives." G. N. Shuster

+ — Books p10 Ap 23 '39 700w

Reviewed by J. L. Burke

Boston Transcript p1 Ap 29 '39 220w

"The book is poorly written, padded with irrelevant matter . . . and spoiled by a number of inaccurate statements."

— Cath World 149:762 S '39 130w

"The author of this first biography of the present pontiff is a Catholic newspaperman who covered the Vatican ten years ago. These qualifications, while quite exemplary, do not inspire the highest confidence. By his own admission, Mr. Dinneen's narrative evolved merely out of his own interest, 'the interest of an American reader in a pope who has caught the public imagination because he came to America, appeared in its cities.' It is sketchy and superficial; but it does succeed in capturing some of the personality of the new Vicar of Christ." J. J. O'Connor

Commonweal 30:133 My 26 '39 290w

"[The book] has been written hastily. It is unpretentious and colloquial; it stresses human interest; it is a layman's book for other laymen. And it is also carefully and reverently executed, and warm and outspoken in its tributes to Pius XII as the Catholic Church's courageous, expert and brilliant man of the hour. It is a good book, and it will probably be popular, as it deserves to be."

+ N Y Times p16 Ap 23 '39 480w

New Yorker 15:108 Ap 15 '39 10w

"Mr. Dinneen, being a newspaperman and a Catholic, keeps both feet on the ground, indulges in no flippancies or subterranean explorations, and writes with the decorum and ease beloved of city editors. It would be unwise to turn to this book for special information. Frankly written for the broad public, it is content to bring together facts already known but never codified in relation to the new Pope. The critic would be satisfied to accept that design and its execution without further ado, if Mr. Dinneen had taken greater pains with a hundred odd sentences which, as they stand, are unfortunately at variance with historical exactness." G. N. Shuster

+ — Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ap 22 '39 460w

Springf'd Republican p10 My 4 '39 210w

"Though it must not be taken as a text-book, this volume provides a spirited account of a perennially fascinating subject. Its author has little sense of verbal propriety. He is liable to write, with complete solemnity, of 'the responsibility and strain of being the Vicar of Christ on earth'; but generally he is bright and entertaining in a humourless way."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p510 S 2 '39 700w

DISNEY, DOROTHY CAMERON. The golden swan murder. 291p $2 Random house

39-25151

Mystery story.

Booklist 36:112 N 15 '39

DISNEY, D. C.—Continued

"Here's another winner by the author of 'Death in the Back Seat' and 'Strawstack'—even better than those memorable tomes, which put Dorothy Cameron Disney on the recommended list." Will Cuppy

+ Books p16 O 15 '39 160w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 O 21 '39 50w

"The story is well worth the attention of any mystery fan."

+ N Y Times p35 O 15 '39 200w

New Yorker 15:104 O 14 '39 50w

"Despite all its thrills and able writing, story wilts under poisonous miasmas of cinema colony and crew of unpleasant characters. Entertaining—at that."

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:36 O 14 '39 40w

Time 34:84 N 6 '39 20w

DISNEY, DOROTHY CAMERON. Strawstack. 293p $2 Random house

39-8477

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p17 Mr 19 '39 330w

"The telling is so convincing, in spite of attempts at germ killing and poisoning, that even the substituted relative is perfectly logical. But we'll let you discover all about that for yourselves. It is too good a book to spoil." Marian Wiggin

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 18 '39 130w

"Baffling enough but happily free from the hackneyed devices that annoy the reader even more than they puzzle him."

+ Christian Century 56:354 Mr 15 '39 20w

"Well-tailored, well characterized; fans who wish that Mary Roberts Rinehart would write more mysteries will find it their extra dish."

+ New Repub 98:204 Mr 22 '39 50w

"An absorbing story." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p27 Mr 19 '39 120w

"Well written, with plenty of detail and a careful avoidance of routine questioning."

+ New Yorker 15:88 Mr 18 '39 30w

"Good characters, breathlessly accelerating 'build-up,' shivery atmosphere, intricate plot, believable sleuth, and simple but totally unexpected solution. Brilliant."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Mr 18 '39 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 2 '39 200w

Time 33:64 Ap 3 '39 30w

"This is not one of those detective stories in which the reader can seriously be expected to work out the solution for himself. It depends too much on coincidence and the possession of gifts by the murderer and his friends so remarkable that one would have thought they would have enabled them to obtain their wishes by less drastic means. There is plenty of excitement in the story without undue sensationalism."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p505 Ag 26 '39 240w

DISRAELI, ROBERT. Here comes the mail [il. with 83 phot. by the author]. 117p $1.25 Little

383 Postal service—Juvenile literature

(W) 39-25026

Brief history and description of the activities of the United States post office department. For young readers.

Booklist 36:136 D 1 '39

"No book about the mail, many as we have had, has fired my imagination and stimulated my interest as this one has. . . There are excellent photographs, clear and well reproduced, apparently at every point possible. . . I can see how young people, to whom speed is a spur to reading, will go through this book more rapidly and remember more of it than they may have expected to do when they began." M. L. Becker

+ Books p13 N 12 '39 200w

"Adequate but not lively."

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:28 N 18 '39 20w

DISRAELI, ROBERT. Seeing the unseen; with photo-micrographs by the author. new rev ed 158p $2.50; educ ed $1.88 Day

578 Microscope and microscopy. Photomicrography (W) 39-27785

"A revised edition of a book which first appeared in [1933]. Portions of the text have been enlarged, rearranged, and rewritten. Many new photographs have been substituted and added; the illustrations are clearer." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1933.

Booklist 36:76 O 15 '39

"This excellent little volume is intended for boys and girls of the nine-to-12-year-old group. In a charming and informative manner Mr. Disraeli unfolds the mysteries of the microscopic world for the young reader. . . If a criticism may be made of this book, it is that the photo-micrographs have been too greatly enlarged. This has meant a loss of detail which might have been obviated without any damage to the appearance of the book. But it is an excellent little volume for all that." M. F. Ashley-Montagu

+ — Boston Transcript p2 O 7 '39 180w

DIVINE, ARTHUR D. (DAVID RAME, pseud). Wine of Good Hope. 511p $2.50 Macmillan

(W) 39-27206

This story of Tony Lemaire is the story of conflict between Tony's love for his South African home, Languedoc, and the family tradition that all the men of the line are wanderers. Tony's sister, equally obsessed with love for the home, manages to drive Tony away to seek adventure in all corners of the earth. In the end, however, with the help of a childhood sweetheart, Tony overcomes the wandering spirit and returns home.

Booklist 35:252 Ap 1 '39

"It is a fine piece of work, this novel, full-bodied, full-flavored, powerful and sensitive. It will be read and enjoyed as a romantic novel in the best tradition. But it will be remembered longest because of the artistic integrity of that part which has grown from its own loved soil." John Patton

+ Books p3 Ap 2 '39 900w

"Mr. Rame's South African women are good, but Tony Lemaire is never more than a puppet. However, David Rame was not trying to write another 'War and Peace.' He has used his own globe-trotting career to advantage. Barring a few cliches and repetitions of pet words and phrases, the story is beautifully written, its pace and color swift and tingling. In our opinion 'Wine of Good Hope' is a better book than 'And So—Victoria,' 'Salute to Freedom,' 'The World is Mine,' and even 'Anthony Adverse.' The gross tonnage of these best-sellers was a formidable one to overcome. Mr. Rame has not accomplished it by the number of words he uses, but by the original and eager way he packs them in." Olga Owens

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ap 1 '39 800w

Christian Century 56:581 My 3 '39 180w

Churchman 153:35 Jl '39 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '39

"A novel crowded with incident, color and the clash of character, and notable for its exceptionally good writing. This is in all respects a singularly satisfying and rewarding piece of fiction." Herschel Brickell

+ Commonweal 30:24 Ap 28 '39 350w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting

Forum 102:v Jl '39 90w

Nation 148:508 Ap 29 '39 300w

"The book bears the vivid and unmistakable imprint of intimate acquaintance with background. . . The characterization, especially of the more important members of the dramatic cast, the Lemaires and their friends, is outstandingly good." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 2 '39 1050w

New Yorker 15:78 Ap 1 '39 40w

"Although the writing is vivid and often sensitive, the story lacks the suspense and the sense for drama which are all-important to a travel novel."

No Am 247:397 summer '39 140w

Pratt p29 summer '39

" 'Wine of Good Hope' is written with genuine distinction. David Rame obviously has a love of words and exactness, but fortunately an even greater love of the soil, the sea, and the sound qualities in the heart of man. There is just enough gently mocking, intellectualized humor to quench the threatening sentimentalism of the love story and of Tony's search for his defaulting father. One wishes, however, that the hero's adventures were not so consistently squally. . . Such extravagances in so adult a novel are somewhat jarring. The quiet virtues of Rame's excellent prose and sound character study afford ample pleasure and excitement for the reader." R. A. Cordell

+ Sat R of Lit 19:5 Ap 1 '39 450w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 9 '39 490w

"It is done with conspicuous zest and restrained heroic feeling, and the excitement seldom flags. Best of all are the Cape scenes of the first half of the book, which carry a delicate nostalgic flavour and are finely balanced and harmonious in tone. The second half, despite its rich colour, is less satisfying. . . But the novel as a whole is vivid, vigorous, keen-witted stuff in what is surely the most lasting tradition of story-telling, and gives promise of still better things to come."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p339 Je 10 '39 800w

DIX, DOROTHY, pseud. (MRS ELIZABETH MERIWETHER GILMER). How to win and hold a husband. 268p $1.98 Doubleday

173 Marriage. Women 39-23843

Short chapters of advice on affairs of the heart by a famous columnist. Partial contents: Should teens marry? The ideal marrying age; When are you too old to marry? How to choose a good husband; What a man looks for in a wife; How to attract a husband; Lures men can't resist; Beauty vs personality; How to be popular; Why love dies; How to get along with your mother-in-law; Lift your spirits rather than your face; Grow old gracefully; Preventing divorce; What to do about the "other woman."

Time 34:66 Ag 14 '39 450w

Wis Lib Bul 35:182 N '39

DIXON, CLARICE MADELEINE. The power of dance; the dance and related arts for children. 180p il $3.50 Day

796.13 Dancing 39-9908

The author's thesis is that the teaching of dancing in modern schools should and can be integrated with other arts education. Much of her book is devoted to accounts of the development of dances and dramas by school children under her observation.

"This is a book of keen and practical interest in a wide educational field and it is profusely and informatively illustrated."

+ N Y Times p24 S 17 '39 250w

"While written around dance, the book might well find its way to the shelves of any person interested in sound theory and practice in the field of child art education."

+ Theatre Arts Mo 23:684 S '39 400w

DIXON, THOMAS. The flaming sword; il. by Edward Shenton. 562p $3 Monarch pub. co, 647 Trust co. of Ga. bldg, Atlanta

39-20781

"The author of 'The Clansman' writes a vehement melodrama depicting the destruction of American democracy by the red menace. This will be accomplished, if history carries out his predictions, primarily through communistic corruption of the black race." Books

---

"Whatever you may think of the story, it is not as wildly incredible today as it might have seemed a few short weeks ago."

Books p12 S 17 '39 150w

"Mr. Dixon is no doubt sincere and earnest in all intention. But the reader will very probably regard his novel as a nightmare melodrama, and will see in it the expression of a panic fear." K. W.

N Y Times p18 Ag 20 '39 550w

DOBB, MAURICE HERBERT. Political economy and capitalism. 360p $3 Int. pubs. [10s 6d Routledge]

330.1 Economics. Capitalism [38-11630]

"The book is a Marxian critique of orthodox capitalist economics, and a reaffirmation against all the critics of the Marxian theory of value and surplus value as a scientific approximation to fundamental reality much truer and more relevant to contemporary problems than all the algebra of the orthodox. The book embodies besides this general attack an acute restatement of the Marxian theory of crises, a penetrating chapter on the economics of modern imperialism, and a study, based largely on the Russian experience, of the principles governing the planned distribution of economic resources in a Socialist society." (New Statesman & Nation) The author is lecturer in economics at the University of Cambridge. Index.

Reviewed by Leo Rogin

Am Econ R 28:328 Je '38 370w

Reviewed by J. E. Moffat

Am Econ R 29:355 Je '39 1200w

Reviewed by Adolf Sturmthal

Nation 149:252 S 2 '39 240w

"It is not always easy reading; for much of [the book] is devoted to answering economists whose own writings are highly technical and abstruse. But Mr. Dobb makes a real effort to write plainly, and on the whole succeeds in this as well as his subject-matter will allow. Certainly his book deserves to rank as an important contribution to a controversy which has raged furiously for some time among trained economists, and is destined to rage much more furiously as soon as any real attempt is made to introduce Socialism in any advanced capitalist country."

+ — New Statesman & Nation 14:sup747 N 6 '37 750w

"It all sounds suspiciously like an economic Kingdom of Heaven just around the corner, easily attainable had we but a little patience. But even if in much of the concluding part of his book Mr. Dobb does more to provoke discussion than to allay it, there can be no doubt that the problems to which he would have us pay attention are those which are most in need of it." A. T. K. Grant

Spec 159:596 O 8 '37 650w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '37 650w (Reprinted from Times [London] Lit Sup)

"Mr. Dobb's onslaught on contemporary economic theory should be read by every intelligent student of contemporary politics, since it contains a very able statement of the Marxian criticism of current economic orthodoxy, and raises issues which go to the root of much of the disturbance in the world to-day caused by the clash of competing ideologies. The range of subjects covered is very wide, but there is a unity underlying the discussion, in so far as every chapter is a statement of the Marxist challenge to one or other tenet of modern economic science."

DOBB, M. H.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p770 O 23 '37 1000w

DOBBS, ELLA VICTORIA. First steps in weaving. 85p il $1 Macmillan
745 Weaving (W) 38-7881
Beginners' book on weaving, in which the terms, tools, and procedures of weaving are carefully explained. Takes up weaving as a school activity, also. Illustrated. Index.

"Discussion, directions, and illustrations are all clear and practical and adapt the book to either amateur weavers or elementary school teachers."
+ J Home Econ 30:415 Je '38 100w

"The many drawings showing weaving processes, types of looms and their construction, and threading patterns make this book inspiring and easily followed."
+ School Arts 38:2a My '39 100w

DOBIE, JAMES FRANK. Apache gold and Yaqui silver; il. by Tom Lea. 366p $3.50 Little 917.9 Southwest. Legends—Southwest (W) 39-11430
Stories of lost gold and silver mines in the Southwest. "At one time the Spaniards moved freely through all the rugged country from southern Chihuahua to Utah. They found the rich leads and mined them, tapping some of the finest mineral country in the world. Then bit by bit the Apaches and Yaquis turned against them, rose, and drove them out of all but a few central settlements. It was gold and silver that brought the white man among them. They had little use for the stuff, but they became determined to keep their destroyer from finding it. Out of that determination arises much of the suspense and mystery of Mr. Dobie's stories." (Sat R of Lit)

Booklist 35:267 Ap 15 '39

"This handsome and exciting volume is a valuable addition to that solid and highly respectable body of work which J. Frank Dobie has produced. . . [It] is an admirable book, one of the best of its sort to come out of the Southwest." Stanley Walker
+ Books p6 Mr 19 '39 950w
Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 1 '39 600w

"It is hard to describe the charm of this book. Possibly it lies in the fact that the gold and silver are just an excuse to get out into a man's country (for women have no more than a casual share in these narratives), of mountains, deserts, dangers, stars and occasional exaltation. Mr. Dobie loves the country, as he has shown in 'Coronado's Children' and other books, and he writes as a lover writes of his mistress. Tom Lea, his illustrator, has caught the spirit of the narrative admirably, possibly better in his black-and-whites than in his colored sketches." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 19 '39 1350w

"Mr. Dobie can spin them out better than average."
New Yorker 15:87 Mr 18 '39 30w

"He writes with just enough belief, just enough indication that there may be something in it, to tug at the interest of anyone at all susceptible to the dream of a cave full of ingots. Mr. Lea's excellent illustrations fit well with the spirit of the book. . . Mr. Dobie's accounts are alive with the space and color of his setting. This is good adventure stuff, an armchair treasure hunt with Apaches lurking behind the pages—which is where one wants them." Oliver LaFarge
+ Sat R of Lit 19:13 Mr 18 '39 430w

DOBSON, RUTH LININGER. Today is enough. 312p $2.50 Dodd 39-27064
Story of the young city-bred wife of a minister whose first charge is a parish in a small Indiana village. The plot follows the adjustments that Judy had to make not only to her marriage but to small-town ways of life.

Booklist 35:205 F 15 '39

"Ruth Lininger Dobson pays tribute to the virtues of small town living where warmth and simplicity and neighborliness are community bonds whose value does not depreciate." George Conrad
Books p8 F 5 '39 370w

"The author's treatment verges on the saccharine, but her kindly humor and sympathetic appreciation of the small town show a more charitable understanding of Main Street than is displayed by many of her contemporaries." L. E. Cannon
— + Christian Century 56:452 Ap 5 '39 220w
Churchman 153:34 Ap 15 '39 60w

"The pattern is simple and should have remained so, but under the still groping touch of the author it loses the clear detail of the outline. . . 'Today is Enough' shows a skillful hand for detail, especially in the description of the countryside and of country people. In the development of plot, however, the book falls down, suffering not only from lack of technique but from dearth of creative imagination." R. C. Feld
— + N Y Times p7 F 12 '39 500w

"An ingenuous, wholly undistinguished little novel, at its best with the farm and village people, at its worst with social problems, the brittle, brittle world of the gilded rich, and the more subtle forms of grammar." F. W.
— + Sat R of Lit 19:20 F 4 '39 110w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 12 '39 300w

DOCKERAY, JAMES CARLTON. Public utility taxation in Ohio. 200p pa $2.40 Ohio state univ.
658.1713 Public utilities—Ohio. Taxation—Ohio 39-1513
"[This] is a detailed discussion of the legislative and administrative problems of taxation of public service enterprises in the state of Ohio. Three of the chapters are devoted to the legislative history of public utility taxation in the state, while the remaining portions deal with such problems as valuation, apportionment, and the different types of taxes imposed on these enterprises." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by S. E. Leland
Am Econ R 29:626 S '39 280w

"The study . . . does not single out any particular utility, but adheres strictly to a policy of anonymity. This method of treatment was necessary because of the Ohio law of 1931 which made the utility records confidential in so far as they relate to intangibles and earnings data. It is unfortunate that it was necessary to resort to such treatment of the subject, weakening the effectiveness of the work and lowering its value. On the whole, however, the study, considering its limitations, is rather comprehensive and is a thorough piece of research." J. W. Manning
+ — Am Pol Sci R 33:330 Ap '39 390w

"The study is a contribution to information about practices in Ohio, but the critical reader may feel somewhat uncertain as to whether the ideal relationships pictured by the writer are indicative or only the result of limitations in the data. The failure of the study to relate the administrative policies and practices to the economic measures and results of utility taxation is disappointing." J. T. Madden
Ann Am Acad 204:220 Jl '39 650w

"The material should be of considerable value to the Ohio State Tax Commission, and perhaps to others closely identified with the state of Ohio. It does not pretend to be, and is not, a contribution to economic theory." S. Y. McMullen

J Pol Econ 47:894 D '39 700w

DODD, CHARLES HAROLD. History and the Gospel. 189p $2 Scribner [6s Nisbet]

226 Bible. New Testament—Gospels. Church 39-10625

"Since 1935 the author has been Professor of Divinity in Cambridge University, England. During the year 1935 he was the Shaffer Lecturer at Yale and the Ingersoll Lecturer at Harvard. The present volume contains the lectures delivered in 1938 at the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge, Mass.; Union Theological Seminary, New York; and the Andover-Newton Theological School. Doctor Dodd deals with the relation of the Christian faith to modern interpretations of history. History is examined from the point of view of the faith of the church." Crozer Q

Reviewed by S. J. Case
Books p20 Mr 12 '39 750w

Reviewed by W. A. Marzolf
Boston Transcript p7 My 27 '39 230w

Reviewed by E. W. Powell
+ Crozer Q 16:147 Ap '39 280w

Reviewed by E. C. Colwell
J Religion 19:295 Jl '39 300w

"In this book Dr. Dodd continues the good work begun in his 'Parables of the Kingdom' and 'Apostolic Preaching.' Readers who are acquainted with those books will know what quality to expect in this; they will not be disappointed. It is not a bulky volume, but it is a full one, so closely packed that it is not easy to summarise the argument." T. W. Manson

+ Manchester Guardian p5 D 30 '38 430w

"Professor Dodd's is a brilliant book; a lucid and most scholarly exposition of the standpoint of that new school of Biblical interpretation represented on the Continent by Karl Barth and in this country by the late Sir Edwin Hoskyns and the younger Cambridge theologians. It is a worthy successor to Professor Dodd's Parables of the Kingdom and The Authority of the Bible; and it explains, more clearly than any other book I know, the conceptions of eschatology, of kerygma and didache, of the nature of the Kingdom of God, which are the key ideas of modern Biblical thought. And yet its final effect is that of the story which turns out, after all, to be only another fairy tale." Bernard Blackstone

+ — Spec 161:820 N 11 '38 700w

"Admirably-written and pre-eminently sound book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p780 D 10 '38 800w

DODD, MARTHA ECCLES. Through embassy eyes [Eng title: My years in Germany]. 382p il $3 Harcourt [10s 6d Gollancz]

914.3 Germany—Social conditions (W) 39-27122

The young daughter of ex-ambassador Dodd records her experiences in Germany during the four years the family spent at the American embassy in Berlin. At first pro-Nazi, she describes her gradual awakening, and final disillusion with the new Germany, and adds characterizations of most of the Nazi leaders. Index.

Booklist 35:229 Mr 15 '39

"While her critical evaluations of the personalities she discusses may not be profound or lasting, they are interesting, nevertheless, because of their informal honesty. It is this same honesty which occasionally leads [Miss Dodd] to make comments which are more naive than shrewd. . . For its youth, its integrity, its indignation, its passion, 'Through Embassy Eyes' is an absorbing book." Rose Feld

+ — Books p5 F 26 '39 1250w

Cath World 149:382 Je '39 200w

"[The author's] own zestful personality, reportorial acumen and frankness of expression combine to produce some unusual 'angle shots' through the candid camera of her eyes. . . Her indiscreet chronicle will enrage the Germans, but it is both interesting and informing."

+ Christian Century 56:386 Mr 22 '39 330w

"This is an unimportant book, but it is an amusing one. It is very prejudiced, very feminine, and very well written—that is, in the portions dealing with people Miss Dodd has known personally. . . When Miss Dodd's personal sympathies are involved, she turns out most readable copy. . . Miss Dodd's superficiality is shown by her account of her short trip to Russia. She was already sold on the Bolsheviks when she went, and she saw nothing during her stay to shake her naive faith in the virtue of Stalin & Co. It is this closing of her mind to the broader, deeper aspects of men and events which limits her as a commentator on the days when Hitler first seized power. It is a pity, for she had a splendid opportunity to see things from the inside." Grenville Vernon

— + Commonweal 29:530 Mr 3 '39 270w

"Through Embassy Eyes is thoroughly warm and human." R. W.

+ Current Hist 50:7 Mr '39 360w
Foreign Affairs 17:814 Jl '39 30w

"An excellent and documented piece of informal history that should give some sleepless nights to reader and written-about alike." M. L. Elting

+ Forum 101:iv Ap '39 300w

"It is true that Miss Dodd's book suffers in spots from hasty writing and loosely-knit organization, but there is more than enough compensation in passages of keen political analysis, of remarkable descriptions, and of sheer lovely prose. There is something which may be called the American Spirit in the soul of this young lady, who, once she got her bearings in Nazi Germany, refused categorically to compromise with the repugnant ideals of Nazism gone bestial." L. L. Snyder

+ — Living Age 356:298 My '39 650w
Manchester Guardian p7 Je 6 '39 500w

"In the course of the narrative we see this young person developing, and as she endeavors to conjure up for us the people and scenes of the Third Reich, she herself comes alive—unprejudiced and thoughtful, saucy and companionable, ready to help, eager to discipline herself through freedom and to make fruitful for herself and others the incredible situation in which she suddenly found herself." Erika Mann

+ Nation 148:298 Mr 11 '39 1000w

Reviewed by Mildred Gilman
New Repub 98:228 Mr 29 '39 450w

"The collision of the American woman and Nazi Germany provides an imposing spectacle. The Nazi, on the whole, gets the worst of it. . . The result, naturally, is an enjoyable book. Fierce, naive, tactless almost beyond belief, honest, sensible, Martha Dodd extends the intellectual orbit of Chicago and Virginia to the Tiergartenstrasse. . . To have a heart in the right place and to write vivid ungrammatical English is all very well, but Miss Dodd goes on to pepper her book with sloppy misstatements." Alan Pryce-Jones

+ — New Statesman & Nation 17:580 Ap 15 '39 450w

"Before distilling what is relatively valuable from the 369 pages it is necessary to pour off the gossip, misinformation and aimless chatter which make a good deal of it sound like a sophomore's hastily written digest of the news headlines. Then there do remain some quite exciting pages, most of them of the sort a more inhibited person would have marked 'Not for release until after my death.' They are often very well written." G. N. Shuster

N Y Times p3 Mr 5 '39 490w
New Yorker 15:68 F 25 '39 30w

"[A] book, whose chatty—and often catty—gossip regarding journalistic and diplomatic

DODD, M. E.—Continued
circles in Berlin will doubtless interest many readers—while offending others." V. M. Dean
Sat R of Lit 19:6 F 25 '39 440w

Discussion by Mrs Howard Hosmer
Sat R of Lit 19:9 Mr 11 '39 110w

"Miss Dodd . . . gives an account of June 30th, 1934, which is well worth reading. In fact, there is plenty of life in her book; but there is also a doctrinaire petulance, and an almost extreme silliness, that tend to alienate the reader from her otherwise admirable conclusions." Con O'Neill
+ — Spec 162:682 Ap 21 '39 210w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 26 '39 1550w

"There is this to be said about Martha Dodd's book, no matter what we think of it, that no one else could have written it, and that it is interesting to know what life in Germany meant to the gifted and lively daughter of the American Ambassador. There is a curious kind of unself-conscious self-consciousness about her style, which makes her book disarming even when it is slightly impertinent and more than slightly indiscreet. Its generosity of purpose expressed with inexhaustible vitality by this young, intelligent American girl will endear it to many readers." A. M. Ascoli
+ — Survey G 28:347 My '39 200w

"Some of what Martha Dodd has to tell is worth listening to, and now & again she pokes the nodding reader in the ribs with a shrewd bit of prattle."
Time 33:79 F 27 '39 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p198 Ap 8 '39 280w

Wis Lib Bul 35:48 Mr '39

DODD, PAUL ALBERT, and PENROSE, ERNEST FRANCIS. The economic aspects of medical services; with special reference to conditions in California. 499p maps $3.75 Graphic arts press, inc, 914 20th st, N.W, Washington, D.C.

614.2 Medical economics. Medicine—California 39-4148

Comprehensive survey of the health insurance problem, which altho confined to conditions in California, contains much data relating to general conditions. The authors are on the faculty of the University of California. Bibliography. Index.

"This volume may be highly commended to all interested in medical economics and in planning for expansion and strengthening of health services. It is the first comprehensive study on a state basis, and should be of great value to all interested in developments through state and local programs." I. S. Falk
+ Ann Am Acad 205:145 S '39 410w

Booklist 35:325 Je 1 '39

"Comprehensive and thoroughgoing study."
+ Management R 28:142 Ap '39 40w

Reviewed by H. H. Darby
Nation 148:622 My 27 '39 500w

Reviewed by Abraham Epstein
New Repub 99:368 Ag 2 '39 500w

Reviewed by M. M. Davis
Survey G 28:342 My '39 250w

DODDS, MRS MYRTA HAZLETT. White camels of the singing sands; il. by Margaret Ayer. 149p $2 Crowell

Children in Arabia 39-10763

Two children, whose father was chief of a tribe of Bedouin Arabs, are the central characters. The boy helps to capture camel thieves, and later both children visit their cousins in the city of Hofuf, and see date palm groves, rice fields, pearl fisheries, and finally the Sultan's palace.

Booklist 35:350 Je 15 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p5 Je 11 '39 270w

Christian Century 56:645 My 17 '39 20w

"Remarkably fine pictures, in color and black and white, follow the adventures of these Arabian children and interpret accurately the life of the desert tribes. Mrs. Dodds writes authentically, for she has lived among these people." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 26 '39 130w

"The story interest is negligible; the chief value of the book is in its informational content. As there is usually a demand for books about the desert, this one may be useful. It is designed for children of the fourth to sixth grades, and is attractively illustrated." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 64:518 Je 15 '39 140w

"Mrs. Dodds has lived in the Near East; she knows the desert country and describes its people with respect and affection. . . An unaffected, genuine little story that boys and girls from 8 to 11 will enjoy." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 Je 11 '39 250w

Wis Lib Bul 35:190 N '39

DODDS, ROBERT ELIHU. Handicrafts as a hobby. 138p il $1.75 Harper

745 Handicraft (W) 39-12267

Instructions for making inexpensive things of leather, metal, cloth, paper, etc. Partial contents: Leather work and leather tooling; Handweaving as a home hobby; Coconut carving; Batik; Metal flowers; Bookmaking; Bead craft, etc. Index.

Booklist 35:376 Jl 15 '39

Boston Transcript p1 Je 10 '39 20w

Pratt p16 autumn '39

"Here is a unique collection of new handcrafts with hundreds of suggestions for fascinating projects. Here are countless new ways for teachers and craft counselors to make their classes interesting, inspiring and practical."
School Arts 38:9a Je '39 120w

Wis Lib Bul 35:109 Je '39

DODGE, MRS CONSTANCE (WOODBURY). Strange gods. 345p $2.50 Penn

39-23865

Jim Huntington, descendant of stern New England forebears, after a struggle with his conscience, decided against his father's and grandfather's role of preacher and became a scientist. Very early in that career Jim was crippled by a laboratory accident. The story is of Jim's struggle to carry on in spite of his handicap.

"You will find the bitter and the sweet of New England character in this sincere and touching story by Constance Dodge. . . The author has given vitality to her characters and her theme." Lisle Bell
+ Books p19 N 5 '39 220w

"The old-fashioned New England atmosphere gives the book a nostalgic, Victorian flavor. Some of its austerities seem overdrawn in a modern world and it is pretty long drawn out for sustained interest. But Aunt Abbie's humor and hard common sense are as refreshing as a cool breeze in the aridity of the hero's lengthy struggles with his conscience." Beatrice Sherman
+ — N Y Times p26 O 15 '39 240w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 24 '39 180w

DOERING, WOLF HENRY. See Döring, W. H.

DOLLARD, JOHN, and others. Frustration and aggression. 209p $2 Yale univ. press [9s Oxford]

301.15 Social psychology 39-6842

"The authors of this study present the basic postulate that aggression is always a consequence of frustration. By means of the anecdotal method and clearly arranged rationalization they point to manifestations of this sequence in almost every field of human behavior. They interpret aggression as assuming many forms and as being affected by other psychological factors. The latter are divided into four groups—those governing the strength of instigation to aggression, those related to the inhibition of aggressive acts, those determining the object toward which aggression is directed and the form the aggression takes and those related to the reduction of instigation to aggression." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. G. Boring
Am J Psychol 52:480 Jl '39 2300w

"This little book . . . is devoted to a defense of the statement that aggression is always a consequence of frustration and that frustration is always followed by aggression. The doctrine is accepted from a pronouncement of Freud which was later repudiated by him. The authors have chosen to defend his earlier statement and therefore reject Freud's retraction. The book is a product of what the authors call cooperative research. A number of illustrative instances are cited, but the authors insist that these illustrations are 'in no sense intended to constitute proof of the propositions thus elucidated.' The reader is asked to accept an unproved assumption, propounded by an author who has abandoned it, and supported by illustrations not intended as proof." Ellsworth Faris
— Am J Soc 45:595 Ja '40 1450w

Reviewed by H. D. Lasswell
Am Pol Sci R 33:1133 D '39 400w

Reviewed by Kimball Young
Am Soc R 4:576 Ag '39 1500w
Booklist 35:299 My 15 '39

Reviewed by Karl Menninger
New Repub 102:57 Ja 8 '40 420w

"From no angle is this book to be compared with the brilliant experimental work that the authors have done in the past." Livingston Welch
N Y Times p26 Ap 16 '39 550w

"This volume is refreshing relief from the usual words and inconclusive books written of late on human behavior. It is clear, definite and logical. Perhaps its outstanding merit is its application of the precision method. It uses the inductive-deductive reasoning method of science, with constant weighing of data found against hypotheses assumed." Adele Streeseman, M.D.
+ Survey 75:259 Ag '39 450w

DONALDSON, MCPHERRIN HATFIELD. Labor problems in the United States. 289p pa $1 Longmans

331.0973 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Trade unions—U.S. 39-8184

"This is one of a series of relatively small volumes issued under the general title of American Business Fundamentals. Included in the discussion are wages; hours and conditions of labor; collective bargaining; security of employment; the labor movement; employers' associations; the relation of government and the courts to the problems of labor relations; scientific management and personnel management; women and children in industry; prison, casual, immigrant and negro labor." Am Econ R

"Complete analysis of so wide a range of subject-matter is, of course, not possible within the limits of this book, but the author has done a very creditable job in the space at his disposal. The organizatien and arrangement could have been more logical. . . The treatment throughout is elementary but clear and interesting, supported by recent statistical data and careful documentation." G. S. Watkins
+ — Am Econ R 29:612 S '39 150w

"The organization of the book does not seem entirely logical, shuttling back and forth from one topic to another. Yet from this book the beginner may garner considerable information succinctly summarized and simply stated, with good tables, quiz questions, and references ready to hand for more detailed work. But it is hardly a text for the more mature or advanced student." B. M. Selekman
+ — Harvard Business R 17:363 spring '39 250w

"The book is enhanced in its value to the student by the notes to each chapter which should serve as a stimulus to further study. The appendices give tables of more important unions, charts by industries and affiliations, tables of strikes and lockouts, and a series of questions and research problems for each chapter. While it may be encyclopedic in its reading it should definitely fill its purpose for the twelfth year high school student or the lay reader in labor problems." E. A. Lissfelt
+ Social Studies 30:282 O '39 280w

DONATO, PIETRO DI. See Di Donato, P.

DONER, MARY FRANCES. Some fell among thorns. 377p $2.50 Penn

39-13361

Lyn Farnsworth, adopted daughter of a small town doctor, craved excitement and thought it could not be gained by marriage to a Great Lakes steamer captain. In one short year, during which she learned something about glamor first hand, Lyn changed her mind about her steamer captain and life in general.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p12 Je 4 '39 80w
Boston Transcript p3 Je 24 '39 90w

"The book is diverting Summer reading, with a round-trip variation on the poverty-to-riches theme, and the ending extremely happy if a little long delayed." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p7 Je 11 '39 280w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 20 '39 210w

DOORLY, ELEANOR. The microbe man; a life of Pasteur for young people; introd. by Pasteur Vallery-Radot; woodcuts by Robert Gibbings. 160p $1.50 Appleton-Century [4s 6d Heffer]

B or 92 Pasteur, Louis—Juvenile literature
(W) 39-7056

"The matter of this book has been taken . . . from La vie de Pasteur, by René Vallery-Radot." Foreword

Reviewed by W. W. Peter
Am J Pub Health 29:1053 S '39 160w
Booklist 35:293 My 1 '39

"The fresh approach and vivid presentation of the outlines of Fabre's career in 'The Insect Man' gave Eleanor Doorly an audience over night in America when that book appeared here directly after its success in England, where the author is a famous schoolmistress. This new book is better than the first one. It is, to my mind, the best brief life of Pasteur to give to young readers as a stimulus to further reading." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 Mr 26 '39 400w

Reviewed by E. M. Mack
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 29 '39 90w
Horn Bk M 15:170 My '39 30w

"Miss Doorly's enthusiasm may seem a little forced in places, her style a little too sprightly, intimate, and compelling, but the fact remains that a readable biography of a great scientist has been written." Miriam Snow
+ — Library J 64:519 Je 15 '39 150w

"An attractive story for children."
+ Manchester Guardian sup xviii D 9 '38 120w

"Miss Doorly's sense of proportion and her understanding of what appeals to young readers are admirable. Nowhere does the narrative flag, nowhere does it become too technical for the 10-year-old who is interested in the subject, although 'The Microbe Man' will please older boys and girls as well." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 30 '39 320w

DOORLY, ELEANOR—Continued
"Well and sympathetically written."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 Jl 15 '39 30w

"In the earlier chapters, dealing with his childhood in Franche Comté, the author is, perhaps, a little too fond of rhetorical questions about the boy's future greatness. As the story progresses, however, Miss Doorly's handling becomes surer, and her account of Pasteur's adult life and of his works, first with crystals, then with ferments and finally with disease germs and vaccines, is admirably suited to the audience she has in mind."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p788 D 10 '38 160w
Wis Lib Bul 35:117 Je '39

DORING, WOLF HENRY. Lifelike portraiture with your camera; tr. and adapted by L. A. Leigh. 108p il $2 Am. photographic pub. [5s Sands, Hunter]
778 Photography—Portraits (W)

Chapters on various aspects of photography: cameras; lenses; exposure; out-of-door work; artificial light; accessories; self-portraits; retouching; paper; composition; and mounting. Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 24:10 Ja '39

"A well-organized and workmanlike manual. . . The more than fifty portraits reproduced are closely integrated with the text and are made the more valuable by small diagrams of the lighting arrangements which accompany most of them." E. F. Hall
+ N Y Times p31 O 22 '39 50w

DORRANCE, WARD ALLISON. Where the rivers meet. 252p map $2.75 Scribner
917.7 Rivers—U.S. Canoes and canoeing. Mississippi valley 39-32516

The author, a professor in the University of Missouri, left his teaching for a time and went on a small-boat exploring adventure along the rivers which meet to form the Mississippi—the cockpit of our history as he calls this section. His book is a record of his journeys up and down the Missouri, the Illinois, the Ohio, and their tributaries, combined with memories of past events and descriptions of towns and villages on their shores.

Booklist 36:148 D 15 '39

"Mr. Dorrance has a feeling for words as well as for rivers and for the moving stream of history. This isn't a guide book in any sense. It isn't a travel book. It's a narrative, with impressions of what one man saw and felt and thought. I could wish that the author had not used the present tense so largely in his narration. It can become tiring, and there would seem to be no need for it in so leisurely a book. But once accustomed to the style, the reader has a rousing good story ahead of him, many good stories, well told by one who knows these places and these people." S. H. Holbrook
+ Books p2 N 19 '39 1000w

"His book is lively and honest and sometimes a little silly." D. A.
Boston Transcript p1 N 25 '39 140w

"Mr. Dorrance combines Thoreau's intense feeling for the personalities of beasts and birds and Carl Carmer's appreciation of racy, backwoods life with a gift for vivid phrase—'Night that is velvet as a horse's nose.' 'Whirlpools that smack like alligators turning in a tank.' A travel book that makes you think of Stevenson's 'Inland Voyage.'"
+ New Repub 101:149 N 22 '39 50w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
N Y Times p2 D 31 '39 750w

"Aside from the sectional pride that seems excessive in a volume that should have national appeal, Mr Dorrance has written an unusually pleasant and informative book, one that will likely be remembered by a reader much longer than a cut-and-dried account of a canoe journey."
+ — Springf'd Republican p8 N 15 '39 650w
Wis Lib Bul 36:15 Ja '40

DOS PASSOS, JOHN. Adventures of a young man. 322p $2.50 Harcourt
(W) 39-27434

"This is a novel written out of a mood of disillusionment. . . Glenn Spotswood is a very earnest, idealistic youngster, conditioned to championship of the underdog by a vaguely liberal father who lost his professorship at Columbia because of his opposition to our entry into the World War. He was seduced by 'Das Kapital' at a tender age, and soon after college enrolled as a member of the Communist party. His story is one of progressive disillusion and frustration in the revolutionary movement, to which, in its objectives, he remains faithful to his death." N Y Times

"John Dos Passos's new novel is perhaps the most thoughtful and realistic portrait of the radical movement that has so far been produced by an American writer. . . Fanatics will dislike the book and damn its author; others, appreciating its sincerity and understanding, will have cause for gratitude." Philip Rah
+ Atlantic Jl '39 600w
Booklist 35:332 Je 1 '39

"What is most significant in the novel is not Glenn's march to perdition, but the cold ferocity by which Dos Passos drags him from pillar to post. . . It has that distant tone which Dos Passos cultivated so brilliantly in 'U.S.A.,' as if everything rumbled back at the reader, and what one saw were gestures in shadow and what one heard the pulsations, rather than the words, of human speech. For Dos Passos irony itself has become the supreme style; the cold, methodical ferocity of his prose, with its light, bitter thrust, its extraordinary pliability and ease, becomes a cackling solemnity. The book really trembles with an internal disgust. Dos Passos has always disliked most of his characters, but here his characteristic repugnance and exasperation yield to pure hatred." Alfred Kazin
Books p3 Je 4 '39 1100w

"There are technical flaws in this meticulously ironic parable of mankind in America through the last three decades. So thoroughly are Dos Passos's characters dominated by their limitations—and by the institutions of profit and power directly consequent upon these limitations—that they are held inexorably in mesh. Impinging upon each other so schematically, they are perfect cogs devoid of that dramatic friction which tradition has led us to expect as generating the illusion of life. . . The total effect is profoundly dispiriting and sterile, and non-propagandistic." E. B. Garside
Boston Transcript p1 Je 3 '39 1600w

"In the second half of his new novel, Dos Passos reaches what I think is the peak of his writing to date. . . Although the novel is not autobiographical to any extent, I think it is the measure of Dos Passos's own disillusionment. It is not a particularly orchestrated prose that Dos Passos writes. . . Mostly they are an unbeautiful people he writes about and they speak a fearful language, from the patter of the neo-psychology of the '20's to the everyday jargon of the streets. In telling of them in their own language, Dos Passos has merely stewed them in their own juice. It seems to me there can be no other explanation of the style. . . This is the best book John Dos Passos has given us." Harry Sylvester
+ Commonweal 30:163 Je 2 '39 650w

"Mr. Dos Passos should not take too seriously the personal onslaughts made upon him by Party critics. . . Neither should Mr. Dos Passos take seriously the lavish praise heaped upon his book by his new political comrades. . . Adventures of a Young Man, viewed objectively, is an indifferent book, in parts good and in parts extremely bad. He has written far better books, and he will probably write far better books." Charles Angoff

+ — Living Age 357:96 S '39 550w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p7 Je 20 '39 380w

"Mr. Dos Passos's book is rich in observation; it contains vivid scenes; it provides an interesting hero. Among other things, Glenn's work as an organizer in the coal fields is one of the most convincing things of its kind I have read. But though one may grant the book many of the attributes and virtues of fiction, one cannot grant it the proper breadth of fiction, or allow that it proceeds out of a strictly fictional impulse. What Mr. Dos Passos has unfortunately ended up by writing is not so much a novel as a highly sectarian tract. He is not in sympathy with the Communist Party, and his book is plainly a means for him to express his feelings about the party's leadership, its methods, and the role he conceives it to have played in Spain." Louis Kronenberger

+ — Nation 148:648 Je 3 '39 750w

"A book that reads more like other people's novels than anything Dos Passos has written. Everything depends on the hero; and Glenn Spotswood is simply not interesting or strong enough to carry the burden of the story. Indeed he is presented in such a way as to make the title seem singularly inappropriate. These are not the adventures of a young man, as they seem to the young man who was having the adventures. . . That isn't the fashion in which any young man would present his own career; it is the bitter judgment of middle age. Yet the fault of this honestly and painfully disillusioned book is that it isn't disillusioned enough." Malcolm Cowley

+ — New Repub 99:163 Je 14 '39 2000w

Reviewed by John Mair
New Statesman & Nation 17:984 Je 24 '39 500w

"As the expression of a state of mind, 'Adventures of a Young Man' is clear-cut, conclusive in its mood of negation. It has bite, point and substance. As a novel, it marks no advance for Mr. Dos Passos, except possibly (and this may not have been the result of conviction) by way of its approach to the handling of a contemporary social theme through the medium of strongly personalized experience rather than through the unwieldy collective approach." J. D. Adams

+ N Y Times p6 Je 4 '39 700w

" 'Adventures of a Young Man' will hardly rank among Dos Passos' top-flight books. For one thing, it utilizes material overly familiar to anyone who has read a few score Sensitive Young Man novels, from Sherwood Anderson to Thomas Wolfe. Then, too, its subject matter is either well worn or too markedly designed to appeal to the connoisseurs of revolutionary intrigue, whether they be genuine Leftists or drawing-room debaters. I got the impression—and I didn't enjoy getting it, for I think Dos Passos is among the very best writers we have—that this book was hastily done." Clifton Fadiman

— New Yorker 15:86 Je 3 '39 800w

No Am 248:204 autumn '39 100w

Pratt p27 autumn '39

"By comparison with the three novels that go to make up the trilogy of 'U.S.A.,' 'Adventures of a Young Man' is admittedly slight. But it is most important to the student of Dos Passos, for it clearly shows the trend of his mind. . . Communists (specifically, the communists of the Stalin persuasion) will say that Dos Passos is a renegade and a sell-out, a 'Trotskyist' like his hero, Glenn Spotswood. But in Glenn's boyhood friend, Paul Graves, we find a clue, I think, to the workings of Dos Passos's mind. Paul Graves is the undoctrinaire 'man of good will,' a humorous fellow who gets on with what he has to do and exploits nobody. . . And in Paul's kind lies the hope of the world. Possibly Dos Passos perceives that; if so, 'Adventures of a Young Man' is a 'Farewell and Hail' and not, as will be said in many circles, a 'Hail and Farewell.' " John Chamberlain

Sat R of Lit 20:3 Je 3 '39 5200w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien
Spec 163:27 Jl 7 '39 500w

Reviewed by R. J. Conklin
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 11 '39 1050w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 30 '39 220w (Discussion)

"Few readers will deny that Dos Passos has dramatized his latest political views in a racy story, or that they are sincere. But his characters are one-dimensional. In the career of a novelist, Adventures of a Young Man reads like a minor pamphlet."

Time 33:86 Je 5 '39 500w

"Unlike so many novelists during the past year or two who have contrived a tragic ending for their hero in Spain, Mr. Dos Passos does not fake tragedy here. His high sincerity is apparent all through. Yet this is not one of the best of his books. In concentrating upon left-wing quarrels and controversies he has bleached the story of colour. The women in it, too, except for the pertly Russian Gladys, are all curiously stilted. It seems probable that he is still too near the subject of the novel to give it satisfying shape and balance."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p355 Je 17 '39 500w

DOUGHERTY, JOHN WOLFE. Pottery made easy. 179p il $2.25 Bruce pub.

738 Pottery 39-27313

"Brief chapters on the history of pottery and its problems and possibilities as a craft introduce the detailed, step-by-step instruction sheets for making, decorating, and glazing pottery. The book is the result of 15 years of work in ceramics in the industrial arts department of Oakwood high school, Oakwood, Ohio; it is intended for junior and senior high school use, as well as for self-instruction. Well illustrated with photographs." (Booklist) Bibliography.

Booklist 35:286 My 1 '39

N Y New Tech Bks 24:28 Ap '39

"The book is arranged in the order of class projects. It would be of interest, however, to the individual craftsman and with its many practical as well as beautiful illustrations should prove a useful guide."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:110 Je '39

DOUGLAS, CHARLES EDWARD. Last word in prophecy: a study of the Revelation of St John the Divine. 640p $7.20 Morehouse [18s Faith press]

228 Bible. New Testament—Revelation 39-16330

"Mr. Douglas is convinced that the symbolism of Revelation cannot be interpretated aright apart from a fuller knowledge of the history of ancient apocalyptic science than is provided by the works of the Old Testament prophets. He believes that the necessary information can be found among the scanty remains of Assyrian, Babylonian and Hebrew literature. From a study of these sources he reaches the conclusion that Revelation represents the final form of a 'Pattern-in-the-Mount' which was readjusted from generation to generation in accordance with changes in scientific and religious theory." Times [London] Lit Sup

"The reader will be aghast at the erudition displayed in this volume. . . The student who works patiently through it will amass an extraordinary knowledge of all manner of curious lore and will learn many remarkable facts about ancient religions. He will, however, not find his understanding of Revelation correspondingly furthered." B. S. E.

Living Church 101:12 Jl 19 '39 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p46 Ja 21 '39 140w

DOUGLAS, LLOYD CASSEL. Disputed passage. 432p $2.50 Houghton

(W) 38-29093

An eminent neurologist, noted for his sarcastic comments, discovers among his students a young man who is brave enough to defy him and earnest enough to work his way to the top. Despite the bitter personal antagonism between the two, they work together on a basis of mutual respect, until eventually they no longer dispute the passage with each other.

Booklist 35:190 F 1 '39

"Acclimated to the haze of allegory with which Lloyd C. Douglas has suffused most of his fiction, his host of readers may need a few moments to adjust their imaginations to a story that is wrapped in no misty mantle, and one that can be told without shadowy symbols, white banners or green lights. Perhaps they will miss the trappings, but it seems to us that 'Disputed Passage' is far more dramatic without them, and that the characters who appear here are more closely related to reality than most of the figures his previous books have portrayed." Lisle Bell

Books p8 Ja 15 '39 550w

Reviewed by Charlotte Bassett

Boston Transcript p1 Ja 21 '39 300w

"The story, skillfully constructed and still more skillfully written, labors under the difficulties which beset any story built around a formula and peopled with characters as obviously designed to personify predetermined types as are the figures in an allegory. They never quite come to life. But Douglas makes them talk so well that the illusion of life is pretty constantly maintained, except that Dr. Forrester rather overplays his part to make sure that not even the dullest reader will miss the point. And the story moves straight on with fine tempo and a succession of good situations."

+ — Christian Century 56:123 Ja 25 '39 380w

"Disputed Passage is all that a good novel should be. The characters are clear-cut, the situations are artistically drawn, the conversations are brilliantly and wittily supplied and the whole story is on a high level of interest." T. F. Opie

+ Churchman 153:17 F 15 '39 160w

"Mr. Douglas writes with a vigorous pen, but is mercifully chary of indulging in the unintelligible colloquialisms of the slice-of-life school." Wilfrid Gibson

+ Manchester Guardian p7 F 10 '39 500w

"Readers with a high quotient of sophistication will not become seriously involved in the conflict of the mind against the heart in this novel. For those of more open natures, Mr. Douglas, who was a minister for thirty years, tells a story of the triumph of love in all its manifestations." R. C. Feld

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 15 '39 650w

New Yorker 14:75 Ja 14 '39 50w

Pratt p31 spring '39

"Although in 'Disputed Passage' Mr. Douglas preaches a great deal about self-discipline, he does not achieve that discipline of language that produces a good prose style. He writes always with the loud pedal down: when he is in doubt about which adjective to select, he uses both, or more; in his frequent employment of such colloquialisms as 'canned,' 'ritzy,' 'binge,' 'show up,' etc., he achieves frumpishness rather than familiarity. But Lloyd Douglas is a canny novelist who knows his public. 'Disputed Passage' will probably be the first best seller of the Happy New Year." R. A. Cordell

— + Sat R of Lit 19:12 Ja 21 '39 650w

Time 33:59 Ja 16 '39 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p108 F 18 '39 100w

Wis Lib Bul 35:28 F '39

DOUGLAS, LLOYD CASSELL. Doctor Hudson's secret journal. 295p $2.50 Houghton

(W) 39-27975

After the success of his novel, Magnificent Obsession (Book Review Digest, 1930) the author received thousands of letters about the journal of Dr Hudson. The present book purports to be that journal in full, decoded by Robert Merrick. In it is the explanation of the origin of Dr Hudson's philosophy of life and its application.

Booklist 36:133 D 1 '39

"It is inspirational sweetness and light, and one must admire the skill with which it is wrapped in words and persuasively packaged." Lisle Bell

Books p22 N 19 '39 200w

"No reader and admirer of Magnificent Obsession should miss this."

Christian Century 56:1410 N 15 '39 70w

"Mr. Douglas feels that this book should be regarded, not as a sequel to 'Magnificent Obsession,' but as a kind of overture. It can be read without bewilderment by those unfamiliar with the earlier volume, and not inconceivably it may add more ciphers to the impressive sales figures of its predecessor. And speaking of ciphers, for readers who like puzzles there is some additional amusement in unscrambling the encoded facsimile page of Dr. Hudson's journal." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p25 N 19 '39 600w

Reviewed by M. S. Ulrich

Sat R of Lit 21:10 D 16 '39 900w

DOUGLAS, OSCAR BERRY, and HOLLAND, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. Fundamentals of educational psychology. 598p il $2.50 Macmillan

370.15 Educational psychology 38-8923

"Divided into four parts: (1) 'The Subject Matter and Scientific Bases of Educational Psychology,' (2) 'Environment and Heredity,' (3) 'Learning,' and (4) 'Measurement in Educational Psychology.' The treatment of each of these four heads consists, for the most part, in a review of classical experimentation, with inferential discussion." (El School J) Index.

Reviewed by W. T. Root

Am J Psychol 52:155 Ja '39 120w

"A book which merits serious consideration. . . . The authors have been unusually successful in translating the technical findings of experimentation into language that students can understand. . . . Attention should be called to the comparative paucity of illustrations from actual classroom situations, combined with a reliance on the student's inferential ability which borders on the optimistic." F. F. Powers

+ El School J 39:232 N '38 210w

DOUGLAS, PAUL HOWARD. Social security in the United States; an analysis and appraisal of the federal Social security act. (Whittlesey house publication) 2d ed 493p $3.50 McGraw

331.2544 Insurance, Unemployment—U.S. Insurance, State and compulsory. Old age pensions. Social security act, 1935 39-2957

In his preface the author says: "In preparing a second edition of this book, I have somewhat altered the sequence of material which originally appeared in Part III and have made a few minor changes. I have also written additional chapters giving the progress of events in 1936, in 1937 and in the early part of 1938, respectively." For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1936.

Reviewed by E. M. Burns

Am Econ R 29:428 Je '39 360w

Am J Soc 45:297 S '39 20w

Reviewed by C. A. Kulp

Ann Am Acad 202:204 Mr '39 650w

Booklist 35:235 Mr 15 '39
Books p17 F 5 '39 10w
Reviewed by Michael Mayer
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 4 '39 400w

"For use by the lay reader and casual student of social security, the palm goes to Mr. Stewart's book as an indispensable point of departure. M. Douglas's revision is a valuable complement to it. The advanced student must still return to Epstein and to Rubinow." R. R. R. Brooks
Nation 148:383 Ap 1 '39 310w

"There is an excellent discussion of how best to utilize the huge reserve created by payroll taxes so as to avoid a deflationary influence during periods of recession."
+ New Repub 98:203 Mr 22 '39 50w

"The continued story of social security related in the second edition of Paul H. Douglas' Social Security in the United States is at the same time comprehensive and incomplete. Two new chapters, tagged rather loosely onto those of the earlier edition, carry developments from the enactment of the Social Security Act in 1935 to mid-1938. . . But, while Professor Douglas touches all the major problems, he seems to fall short of the generalization implicit in the whole situation represented by the various problems." Harry Malisoff
+ — Pol Sci Q 54:469 S '39 650w
Survey 75:197 Je '39 20w

DOUGLAS-IRVINE, HELEN. Fray Mario; with a woodcut front. by Clare Leighton. 218p $2 (6s) Longmans

Villegas, Micaela—Fiction 39-27378

Fray Mario, the unwanted son of a Spanish aristocrat mother and a vagabond father, was an uncouth person all his life. After some dissolute escapades, he was sent to a Franciscan mission in Lima to become a monk. Cast out by his superior, he sank so low that he was forced to earn his living as a minstrel among the riff-raff of the city. His final regeneration came thru a famous actress and courtesan. The period is the eighteenth century.

Booklist 35:307 My 15 '39

"Doubtless weary months of research went into this little book. The result is creative in an unusual way, with the simplicity and wholeness that befit a work of art." Mary Ross
+ Books p2 Ap 30 '39 1050w
Reviewed by Peggy Lamson
Boston Transcript p2 Je 10 '39 230w
Reviewed by Eleanor Godfrey
Canadian Forum 19:128 Jl '39 210w
Cath World 150:124 O '39 180w

"It is artfully done, and the story has a fundamental spiritual reality, even though, factually, it be untrue." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ap 6 '39 500w

"A fragmentary story, beautifully and skillfully wrought into a harmonious pattern." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 30 '39 1100w

"A simple and moving love story told with great restraint, 'Fray Mario' promises to remain with the reader long after more flamboyant tales are forgotten." L. J. Halle, Jr.
+ Sat R of Lit 20:13 Ap 29 '39 290w
Reviewed by Forrest Reid
Spec 162:684 Ap 21 '39 430w

"Much beauty, much romance, much pathos are to be found in this small volume. Miss Irvine has done well to let the letters, diaries, and other documents tell the story, for they make it live as story form could hardly do. The material has been so well arranged that there is no confusion. Everything is clear, and the result is like that of a sparkling gem." M. D.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 30 '39 650w

"Sentences as well turned as hers are not to be rated cheaply, and there are probably readers who will find in her graceful flow of words the 'exquisite quality' to which reference is made on the wrapper. Others, however, less enamoured of the sensation of walking on polished marble, may think the book altogether too prettified. . . Miss Irvine rings the changes very skilfully on the imaginary literary sources of the tale. It is her prose style, however—or, with more accuracy, her diction—that is the making of this short novel."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p201 Ap 8 '39 390w
Wis Lib Bul 35:145 Jl '39

DOWD, JEROME. The life of Braxton Craven; a biographical approach to social science. 246p $3 Duke univ. [15s Cambridge]

B or 92 Craven, Braxton. Duke university. Trinity college 39-14366

Biographical study of a North Carolina teacher, lawyer, and soldier. Craven, born in 1822, was an orphan who went as a child to live with a family of North Carolina Quakers. His early ambition "to make men" led him in 1851 to turn Union Institute, at Trinity, N.C., into a normal school, and later to add a training school for ministers. By 1859 it had developed into a four-year college, of which Craven was president for many years. Trinity college is now Duke university.

Reviewed by E. V. Stonequist
Am Soc R 4:909 D '39 230w

"Jerome Dowd, well-known for previous sociological works, has written a most lively monograph. It is possible that he has also, in some restricted measure, fulfilled his larger intention of getting at the feel of a certain period in American education."
+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 10 '39 270w

"Here is a wonderful life which is source-material not only for social science, as the author says, but for American cultural history. . . The vital story is an illuminating section of social history as well as the picture of a great personality."
+ Christian Century 56:644 My 17 '39 100w

"At times more apotheosis than estimate, and more effusive than judiciously critical, the study is nevertheless an illuminating presentation of an interesting period in American education and a revelation of a valiant figure in the field of education. . . This story is well worth reading for its insight into a strong character and for its revelation of the sacrifices necessary to bring about certain essential developments in education in the South."
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Je 5 '39 330w

DOWDEY, CLIFFORD. Gamble's Hundred; with decorations by Edward Shenton. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 367p $2.50 Little

(W) 39-27531

Historical novel of Tidewater Virginia in the early eighteenth century. The hero is a surveyor, employed by a self-made man of great wealth, whose estate of Gamble's Hundred gives the title to the book.

"This is likely to prove a popular novel. . . Altogether it is a good story, opening up new territory and certain to make many a reader revise his notions of the South in the old days." R. M. Gay
+ Atlantic Jl '39 550w
Booklist 35:365 Jl 1 '39

"The history is authentic and the action convincing, but the characters are two-dimensional and the story brittle." H. S. Commager
+ — Books p4 Je 18 '39 1200w
Reviewed by E. G. Trigg
Boston Transcript p13 Ag 3 '39 490w

DOWDEY, CLIFFORD—Continued

"It is unfortunate that the fictional aspects of the book do little to bolster the indubitably excellent theme. The characters are types, rather than individuals, and the incidental narration of the unsavory, and at times incomprehensible, romance between Christopher Ballard and Evelyn Frane will alienate some readers. Mr. Dowdey's best efforts are once more shown in his ability to delineate a detailed backdrop, to portray scenes of action, and to depict the emotions and impulses of massed groups. As a novelist, however, he is prone to indulge in sentimental clichés, occasional coarseness, and stereotyped situations, which dangerously undermine the potential value of his books. It is as a good reporter, first of all, that Mr. Dowdey can lay claim to his greatest distinction." M. W. S.

— + Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 17 '39 450w

"An immensely readable and well-integrated tale of historical value and literary merit." E. A. Murphy

+ Commonweal 30:323 Jl 21 '39 300w

New Repub 99:230 Je 28 '39 50w

Reviewed by Margaret Wallace

N Y Times p6 Je 18 '39 750w

"A run-of-the-mill costume novel."

New Yorker 15:91 Je 17 '39 60w

"A stimulating novel, with sharply drawn contrasts of character, 'Gamble's Hundred' is better unified than 'Bugles Blow No More' [Book Review Digest, 1937] and more swiftly written." S. V. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 Je 17 '39 700w

"As a romantic love story, the book is ordinary. As a dramatic presentation of conflict, it is vigorous, and carefully written." M. D.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Je 25 '39 550w

DOWELL, ELDRIDGE FOSTER. History of criminal syndicalism legislation in the United States. 176p pa $1.50 Johns Hopkins

331.8862 Syndicalism. Criminal law. Industrial workers of the world 39-13181

"A voluminous manuscript is compressed into a thin volume of text. . . The condensation nevertheless gives a very complete account of legislative activity directed toward 'criminal syndicalism' from its inception in 1917 down to 1933. Only incidental attention is paid to administration or judicial construction. It is significant that 'the great bulk of this legislation came after the armistice, in the post-war period of economic unrest' and red hysteria." (Am Pol Sci R) Indexes.

Reviewed by Charles McKinley

Am Pol Sci R 33:713 Ag '39 350w

"Dr. Dowell has performed a useful service in this careful study of the laws, their asserted purposes, the manner of their enactment, and attempts to repeal or amend them. . . This study seems to be accurate and inclusive, as far as it goes." George Soule

Harvard Law R 52:1376 Je '39 900w

DOWNES, MRS ANNE (MILLER). So stands the rock. 341p $2.50 Stokes

39-20249

Vermont in the horse and buggy days forms the background of this novel. It is the story of Jessie Perkins, the descendant of many generations of New Englanders, a beautiful woman, but firm as the rock foundations of her native state, and of her marriage to the laughter-loving Angus, of mixed Scotch and Irish ancestry.

Booklist 36:68 O 15 '39

"This is a first novel of high promise and unhackneyed treatment." Lisle Bell

+ Books p6 Ag 20 '39 370w

Reviewed by Olga Owens

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 12 '39 500w

" 'So Stands the Rock' would have stood some rewriting. As the story goes on, it grows hurried and crowded, and in the last chapters the real essence of the scenes is not distilled; so that one feels, not a mounting tension of suspense, but a disposition on the part of the writer to wind it up and have it done with. On the other hand, it should be said that there are no lapses in the variety of incidents and the animation of the style. Not for an instant does the book ever grow dull. . . Mrs. Downes's work is good enough to deserve to be bettered, as it can be by the addition of subtlety and patience to her vigor and fertility." W. K. R.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 8 '39 470w

"In the absence of information to the contrary, one takes this book to be a first novel. Yet 'So Stands the Rock' has a maturity and mellowness of feeling one rarely associates with first novels. It might be described as a story of local color, since it certainly illuminates and makes real to the reader a corner of Vermont. . . We put 'So Stands the Rock' aside with the conviction that this is the way novels of local color ought to be written." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 13 '39 700w

Sat R of Lit 20:20 Ag 19 '39 190w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 17 '39 300w

Wis Lib Bul 35:167 O '39

DOWNEY, SHERIDAN. Pensions or penury? 113p $1 Harper

331.252 Old age pensions. U.S.—Economic conditions 39-27618

The junior Senator from California presents arguments in favor of the Townsend plan for pensions for the aged.

Reviewed by William Withers

Am Econ R 29:892 D '39 90w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 5 '39 100w

"His discussion ignores the often made charges that the plan is unworkable in practice, is inequitable class legislation and must inevitably lead us to disastrous inflation."

— New Repub 100:167 S 13 '39 40w

Reviewed by E. F. Witte

Survey 75:358 N '39 700w

Wis Lib Bul 35:161 O '39

DOWNING, J. HYATT. Hope of living. 311p $2.50 Putnam

39-6114

The central character of this story of the early years of the present century in South Dakota is a woman, Anna Walrod, married to a stolid husband who has no ambition for advancement. Anna's resolution to better their situation is successful, and she becomes a farmer in her own right, aided by a kindly German neighbor, and her lover, a young doctor.

Booklist 35:270 Ap 15 '39

"This is a sound novel of American people and American soil. It is not brilliant; but it is fair and honorable. Here is a new realistic novelist of distinction and promise." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p10 Mr 12 '39 460w

"Anna Walrod is a courageous and admirable figure, and it is a perverse reaction, perhaps, for one critic to feel both sympathy and pity for the ugly Jake. After all, he had not bargained for such a disdainful wife, 'a' pesterin' and a' naggin' ' at him all the while. Certainly her intelligent cruelty equalled his animal brutality. The fact that Mr. Downing can arouse so heated an opinion, even if it is not one of his own designing, is in itself a tribute to his promising talent." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 8 '39 400w

"'Hope of Living' represents a tremendous technical advance over Mr. Downing's earlier book—so much so, indeed, that one's temptation is to overpraise it. Though not in itself a novel of any great distinction, it undeniably is a good and consistent performance. Beyond doubt it marks Mr. Downing as a writer who is going to be worth watching." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 12 '39 700w
Sat R of Lit 19:20 Mr 18 '39 280w
Wis Lib Bul 35:65 Ap '39

DOYLE, HELEN (MACKNIGHT). Mary Austin: woman of genius. 302p $3 Gotham house

B or 92 Austin, Mrs Mary (Hunter) (W) 39-29445

Altho Mary Austin was twenty-seven when the author of this book first knew her, the study covers the whole of her life with intimate detail. It is the account of a lonely, frustrated woman, whose essential courage was her best ally, and who followed her instinct to write until she found success.

Booklist 36:175 Ja 1 '40

"Mrs. Doyle writes with honesty, sincerity and beauty and has an understanding heart. But it is a feminine heart, proud of the achievements of its heroine and gentle with her shortcomings as a human being. . . Sympathetically written as it is, this book does not bring Mary Austin to life. Her robust personality eludes these pages. The facts are here but the summations are softened." S. L. White

+ — Books p2 D 24 '39 1600w

"[Mary Austin's] autobiographical records are grimly convincing, her best descriptive writing is magnificent, but such of her fiction as attempts the portrayal of deep emotional relations is a failure. Yet Mary Austin's personality makes the present book readable." DeLancey Ferguson

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 23 '39 400w

Reviewed by M. L. Eglinton
Churchman 154:21 Ja 15 '40 400w

"Dr. Doyle makes no attempt to conventionalize or 'prettify' her portrait of this 'woman of genius,' and her book is strong in interest as it is warm with sympathy."

+ N Y Times p32 N 26 '39 400w

DOYLE, WILSON K. Independent commissions in the federal government. 106p $1.50 Univ. of N.C. press [7s Oxford]

353.8 U.S.—Executive departments 39-20977

Study of certain independent government commissions—The interstate commerce commission, National labor relations board, and The national mediation board, all of which have administrative control. They are examined as to powers, required procedures, and possibilities of influence by those higher up. Bibliography. Index.

"Compact and effectively written volume." L. D. White

+ Ann Am Acad 207:219 Ja '40 450w
Booklist 36:61 O 15 '39

DRAKE-CARNELL, FRANCIS JOHN. Old English customs and ceremonies. (English countryside ser) 120p il $3 Scribner [7s 6d Batsford]

914.2 England—Social life and customs 39-7990

"The ancient ceremonies described, with [more than one hundred] excellent photographs, include the election of Mr. Speaker (begun without speaking), the election of Lord Mayor and his many privileges, the avoidance of fingerbowls where royalty is a guest, Maundy money, the Thingwald, the St. Cross dole, Hungerford Hocktide and King Neptune on the Equator, which the author regards as a variant of Beating the Bounds." Times [London] Lit Sup

"There has not been a book like this since 'Curious Survivals,' Dr. Williamson's account of old customs, brought out in England in 1924 in a revised edition, and far less successful then than this one is now. For the peculiar fascination of such a work is in the proof it offers, not only of the antiquity of many English rites and customs, but of their lively state at the present time—and for this, nothing is better evidence than many photographs taken in the act and just off the camera. There are so many in Mr. Drake-Carnell's survey that the text has to meander around them."

+ Books p9 My 21 '39 350w
Manchester Guardian p7 D 20 '38 220w

"England has 'a greater wealth of ceremony and tradition' than any other country, this author says. He has served travelers well in this book and its pictures, a real guide and 'Remembrancer.'"

+ N Y Times p12 F 19 '39 320w
Times [London] Lit Sup p818 D 24 '38 120w

DRAPER, ARTHUR L., and LOCKWOOD, MARIAN. The story of astronomy. 394p il $3 Dial press

523 Astronomy (W) 39-6021

A popular but authoritative account of the discoveries of astronomy from earliest times to the present. The authors are members of the staff of the Hayden planetarium in New York city. Index.

Booklist 35:285 My 1 '39

Reviewed by James Stokley
Books p13 Je 18 '39 300w

"The authors show a remarkable adeptness in circumventing technicalities through the medium of crisp analogies and clarifying illustrations, and for this reason, the book should enjoy a wide popularity. This reviewer found it as exciting as a detective story." L. G.

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 15 '39 250w

"The background of the story is treated as history, liberally peppered with astronomical facts simply told. The photographs included are some of the finest astronomers have taken, literally the cream of the great observatories. But it is definitely a book for the uninitiated, those with only a casual interest, for it only scratches the surface in the telling of beginnings, of how astronomers use their tools, and of the make-up of the universe. . . All things considered, 'The Story of Astronomy' may be considered a well-balanced 'primer' for the uninitiated of all ages." H. B. N.

Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 23 '39 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '39
N Y New Tech Bks 24:19 Ap '39

"In the hands of two assistant curators of the Hayden Planetarium, the difficult subject of astronomy becomes matter for an exceedingly interesting story. And though it is made sufficiently simple for the lay mind to understand and enjoy, it is never robbed of its mystery. . . The book is written with grace as well as directness and authority; and although the subject cannot be made completely easy, it is presented here with a rounded skill which touches the imagination and beckons the mind to activity."

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 9 '39 440w
New Yorker 15:96 Mr 11 '39
Pratt p11 autumn '39

"'The Story of Astronomy' is written in a lucid style in which the technical terminology, although treated familiarly, is defined so as to leave no gaps in explanation. For persons interested in a general popularized survey of astronomy, this book provides interesting reading." Fletcher Watson

+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 27 '39 310w

DRAPER, A. L., and LOCKWOOD, M.—Cont.
"It is the kind of volume that one interested in the sky can read with pleasure and profit. The book is attractively illustrated and occupies a place among the best and most readable accounts of astronomy which have recently appeared."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 Mr '39 300w

"A book for laymen, scientifically exact, but written with imagination."
+ Survey 75:197 Je '39 40w

DRAPER, MRS DOROTHY (TUCKERMAN). Decorating is fun! how to be your own decorator [pref. by Mrs Theodore Roosevelt, jr]. 244p il $2.79 Doubleday
747 House decoration (W) 39-27532

Suggestions for home planning and decoration by a professional decorator. She shows how women can decorate their homes, expressing their own tastes, and at little expense. Among the subjects discussed are awkwardly shaped rooms, walls and doors, how to economize on floor coverings, upholstered furniture, wood furniture, a hobby room, and cool ideas for summer.

Booklist 35:360 Jl 1 '39

"This is a cheerful and amusing volume in which the author throws to the winds many of the established shibboleths of her trade and tackles all sorts of decorative problems with ingenuity."
+ Books p21 O 8 '39 250w

"It answers a huge variety of questions with a blithe spirit as well as with professional competence. . . This is a practical book and, at the same time, it emphasizes the fun of decorating by always giving the reader's own fancy full play. It is illustrated with photographs and line drawings and has a six-page bibliography."
+ N Y Times p14 My 21 '39 340w

DRAX, PETER, pseud. See Addis, E. E.

DRUCKER, PETER F. The end of economic man; a study of the new totalitarianism; with an introd. by H. N. Brailsford. 268p $2.50 Day [8s 6d Heinemann]
940.5 Fascism. Europe—Politics 39-12570

The author of this book, a Viennese, was for a number of years on the staff of the Frankfurter General Anzeiger, finally as editor in charge of politics, economics and finance. In 1933 he moved to London and now lives in the United States. This book is a philosophical examination of the failures of socialism and capitalism and of the reasons for the apparent successes of the totalitarian states. The author predicts the downfall of Western civilization unless the democracies can formulate, quickly, a society based on a "noneconomic concept of Free and Equal Man."

Booklist 36:41 O 1 '39

"Like a cool shower on a sultry summer's day, this book descends upon the reader as a pleasant relief from the countless volumes that have labored unsuccessfully to explain Fascism away." Julian Bach, Jr.
+ Books p6 Ag 6 '39 1250w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 17 '39 650w

Foreign Affairs 18:160 O '39 80w

Reviewed by J. A. Hobson
Manchester Guardian p7 Je 13 '39 500w

"Considered as an exclusive explanation, it seems to me that Mr. Drucker's theory is so abstract as itself to need explaining. Numerous details of his argument, too, seem questionable. Yet, as H. N. Brailsford says, this book constantly challenges a restatement and revision of the reader's own opinions." C. T. Schmidt
+ — New Repub 99:110 My 31 '39 850w

"'The End of Economic Man' . . . is undoubtedly the most challenging and penetrating analytical study of the totalitarian State that has appeared in this country since the publication of E. B. Ashton's admirable volume 'The Fascist: His State and His Mind.' Mr. Drucker has succeeded in injecting in the much overworked and often tedious discussion of fascism remarkable vigor and freshness, and his brilliantly written book is certain to be read with sustained interest, even though one may not agree with the author. For, to the reviewer at least, not a few of Mr. Drucker's opinions appear to be open to the most serious objections." M. T. Florinsky
+ — N Y Times p4 My 21 '39 1000w

"A brilliant book." Eli Ginzberg
+ Sat R of Lit 20:5 My 6 '39 750w

Reviewed by Honor Croome
Spec 162:1007 Je 9 '39 650w

"Mr. Drucker is one of those writers to whom almost anything can be forgiven because he not only has a mind of his own, but has the gift of starting other minds along a stimulating line of thought. There is not much that needs forgiveness in this book, but Mr. Drucker tends to be carried away by his own enthusiasm, so that the pieces of the puzzle fit together rather too neatly."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p306 My 27 '39 650w

Reviewed by Hajo Holborn
Yale R n s 29:175 autumn '39 1000w

DRURY, AUBREY. California: an intimate guide. exposition ed 592p il maps $3.50 Harper 917.94 California—Description and travel 39-4994

Revised edition of a book first published four years ago (Book Review Digest, 1935). "Libraries having the original edition will not need this reprint, which has six pictures of the Fair and twelve pages of descriptive matter added." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 35:275 Ap 15 '39

"This new edition contains a dozen up-to-date pages on the Golden Gate International Exposition and half a dozen photographs of the buildings and grounds. Its chief value, however, lies in the material originally published. The thousands of visitors who will come to California this year to see the Fair will find the book still the most carefully compiled, most painstakingly thorough and most readable book ever written on the State of California from one end to the other." J. H. Jackson
+ Books p21 My 7 '39 100w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p24 Ap 30 '39 90w
Wis Lib Bul 35:63 Ap '39

DU BOIS, ARMAND BUDINGTON. The English business company after the Bubble act, 1720-1800. 522p $5 Commonwealth fund [21s Oxford]
658.1 Corporation law. Corporations—Great Britain. Colonial companies 38-23375

"In the present volume an attempt has been made to describe the vicissitudes of the English business company after the great financial crash of 1720, and to trace the growth of legal doctrine respecting both the incorporated and the unincorporated enterprise during the remainder of the eighteenth century. The year 1800 is, of course, a more or less arbitrary point at which to conclude our inquiry, but it carries us far enough beyond the first phases of the Industrial Revolution to observe the beginnings of certain trends that were to become important in the succeeding century." (Author's foreword) Bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by N. S. B. Gras
Am Econ R 29:607 S '39 500w

Reviewed by W. R. Scott
Am Hist R 44:889 Jl '39 850w

Reviewed by J. J. Robbins
Am Pol Sci R 33:546 Je '39 180w

"Mr. DuBois has not merely written an important book; he has indicated how the economic history of eighteenth-century company enterprise must be approached. He deserves good disciples who will carry his excellent work still further." E. A. J. Johnson
+ Ann Am Acad 203:245 My '39 750w

"Mr. DuBois is to be congratulated upon the production of what is at the same time a monument of scholarly research, and, for historically-minded lawyers a very readable book. The bibliography is imposing, and the index exemplary." M. S. Amos + Harvard Law R 52:542 Ja '39 1000w

DU BOIS, THEODORA. Death dines out. 236p $2 Houghton 39-19157

Detective story.

Booklist 36:45 O 1 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 30 '39 260w

"It's a nice story, full of nice neat corpses and, as any DuBois book, it has a terrific pace and plenty of excitement." Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 5 '39 70w

"Theodora Du Bois has again demonstrated that she knows how to write a mystery story that is both baffling and entertaining. Best of all, each book of hers seems to be an improvement on those that have gone before." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 30 '39 150w

"Nice plot marred by some rather chummy writing."
+ — New Yorker 15:68 Ag 5 '39 40w

"Old standby curare is weapon in two killings at Atlantic Coast resort, but for once it's properly handled. Satisfactory."
+ Sat R of Lit 20:18 Jl 29 '39 40w
Time 34:63 Ag 7 '39 40w
Wis Lib Bul 35:167 O '39

DU BOIS, THEODORA. Death tears a comic strip. 235p $2 Houghton 39-4495

Detective story.

"Dr. McNeill turns up some interesting medical details and arrives at the answer in a startling manner. A sort of charade mood hangs over the doings, so that you may read about the awful Dowds without getting jitters." Will Cuppy
Books p20 F 26 '39 150w

Reviewed by Marian Wiggin
Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '39 80w

"Theodora DuBois has lost none of the narrative skill that she displayed in her other books." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p28 F 26 '39 120w

" 'Maddeningly complicated' case involves batch of ebullient and likable characters, slick tricks with dope, and surprise solution. A-1."
+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 F 25 '39 40w
Wis Lib Bul 35:50 Mr '39

DU BOIS, WILLIAM EDWARD BURGHARDT. Black folk: then and now. 401p maps $3.50 Holt 572.96 Negro race (W) 39-17726

"An essay in the history and sociology of the Negro race." (Subtitle) It is an outline study of Negro culture—languages, music, sculpture, dance, and folklore in Africa, and of the race in America. The author is professor of sociology in the Atlanta university. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. B. Reuter
Ann Am Acad 206:217 N '39 300w

"Vivid, close-packed presentation of Negro history. . . Dr. Du Bois has gathered together all the important material available and with it painted a picture far-reaching in time and space and in its sociological implications of the basic significance of the color line in every national and international aspect of economic exploitation and imperialism which harasses the world today. The result is a book rich in the dramatic values of individual and social struggles in the main currents of ancient and modern history." C. G. Stillman
+ Books p12 Je 25 '39 1550w

"This book is worth the attention of thoughtful readers, whether they are specifically interested in the Negro question or not. Incidentally, Professor Du Bois has overlooked one of the strongest arguments against racial inferiority, namely, this book itself. In it, a man of color has proved himself, in the complex and exacting field of scholarship, the full equal of his white colleagues." Barrett Williams
+ Boston Transcript p1 Je 24 '39 700w

Reviewed by K. A. Johnstone
Canadian Forum 19:160 Ag '39 750w
Cath World 150:122 O '39 600w

"This is an admirable work of synthesis and temperately reserved scholarship." H. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 21 '39 450w

"There are points where Professor DuBois lays himself open to disagreement. But they are not serious or numerous enough for mention in limited comment. The balance is too heavily in his favor on the merit side." Theophilus Lewis
+ — Commonweal 30:279 Jl 7 '39 800w
Foreign Affairs 18:372 Ja '40 30w

Reviewed by O. G. Villard
Nation 149:202 Ag 19 '39 850w

"The most important contribution of the book is the breadth of treatment of its subject. Ordinarily, there is a tendency for those who write of the Negro to restrict themselves to the country which they are considering, but in this work Africa, the West Indies and the United States all figure, and the early indigenous cultures of Negro folk no less than the later developments of the life of Africans in the New World and Africa itself. Time depth and geographical breadth—both are essential if the Negro problem is to be understood for what it actually is and for what it is graphically depicted in this book; a world problem, with which all peoples, whatever their racial affiliations, must be concerned if they are to assure their own best future development." M. J. Herskovits
+ New Repub 100:55 Ag 16 '39 700w

"Dr. Du Bois has given America some of his own poetic feeling for the destiny of his race, and he has had a thoughtful audience. He has made the 'now' of the Negro seem brighter by his latest book, which is one of the most complete essays in the history and sociology of the Negro which has been written in the English language." W. S. Meacham
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 2 '39 1450w

"Dr. Du Bois' material will be new to most whites, and his viewpoint a needed corrective."
New Yorker 15:91 Je 17 '39 40w

"The canvas is a large one and not without defects of detail. A survey of Egyptian history and of African mankind cannot be made adequately in ninety-two pages. . . More adequate source references might have strengthened the book's array of facts. But the cumulative effect of the book is impressive. No one can leave it without a deepened sense of the part the Negro peoples have played and must play in world history." H. J. Seligmann
+ — Sat R of Lit 20:18 Jl 29 '39 550w

"Commendable for its high degree of scholarly consideration of a subject mistreated by both white and black writers. It would be too much to say, as well as too much to expect, that Prof DuBois has given even an entirely dispassionate history of his race. As a scholar of notable attainments he has tried to construct a history; as a leader of Negro thought he has tried to point out how that history would have been different had it not been for certain things done by a white world. It can be said, however, that he has above all tried to compile and correlate neglected facts, and the result for the most part is a valuable and illuminating essay on what Negroes have done since the beginning of history, what has been done to them, and their hope for the future."

DU BOIS, W. E. B.—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 18 '39 125Ow

Reviewed by E. R. Embree
Survey G 28:503 Ag '39 500w
Wis Lib Bul 35:140 Jl '39

DUCHARME, JACQUES. The Delusson family. 301p $2.50 Funk
(W) 39-27587

Quiet chronicle of a French Canadian family, first on a Quebec farm, and later in Holyoke, Massachusetts. Jean Delusson arrived in Holyoke in 1874 and went to work in the mills. He prospered and in time sent for his family. As the children grew up and began their several careers, financial comfort for all the family was assured. After Jean's death, the family moved to a farm not far from Holyoke, and their peaceful existence was marred only by the death of their mother.

Booklist 35:380 Jl 15 '39

" 'The Delusson Family' is a quiet chronicle, imbued with homely reality." Lisle Bell
Books p8 Je 25 '39 400w

"It is primarily the family Mr. Ducharme is interested in, and his style tallies with his subject—plain, unassuming, if at times a little repetitious." Frank Wood
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 29 '39 500w

"This slow moving history of a French-Canadian family in New England has the dullness of authenticity. That it should be dull is a pity for the sincere and observant interest of the author in his subject is admirable and occasionally moving." E. G.
Canadian Forum 19:335 Ja '40 150w

"The tale is told without sentimentality, but with such sincere and tranquil beauty that the simple characters become very real." K. B.
+ Cath World 150:244 N '39 250w

"The novel reads like historical fiction put together from, or at all events based on, letters, memoirs and family history. It is simple, clear, nowhere distorted by sensational material; and it has the heart-warming attractiveness of an apparently genuine human document. . . It is a first novel that makes no great pretensions; but it is one that many people are going to love." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 2 '39 950w

"There is material here to make a novelist's fingers itch. . . What this novelist has done with the material is another matter. It is careful, appropriately simple in treatment, at several points rising to vivid narrative; yet generally inexpert, undramatic; incomplete as a picture of life and sometimes awfully dull as a story." K. P. Kempton
— + Sat R of Lit 20:6 Jl 15 '39 500w

"Those who crave excitement in their fiction will not find it here. Mr Ducharme set out to tell a story of quiet, simple people and has done his work sympathetically and honestly. Although his narrative style and his presentation of characters might be more skilful, he is to be thanked for introducing the reading public to a group that has made relatively few appearances in fiction."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 2 '39 550w

DUFFIELD, ANNE. Karen's Memory. (Arcadia house publication) 304p $2 Godwin [7s 6d Cassell] [39-17097]

"Sweden is the land in which Anne Duffield sets her story, and the character and outlook of the Swede are the basis of her plot. Chloe Sheriff, against the advice of her family marries Lars Torvaldsen and tries to live the life demanded of her by her Swedish entourage. The result is disastrous and Chloe runs away to England with her baby girl." Times [London] Lit Sup

"An entertaining novel, with interesting glimpses of home life and family traditions in Sweden." Lisle Bell
+ Books p22 N 19 '39 200w

"The interest of this book lies in its descriptions of Sweden and the Swedish character and customs rather than in the actual plot itself which works up to a climax that is psychologically unconvincing."
Times [London] Lit Sup p317 My 27 '39 70w

DU GARD, ROGER MARTIN. See Martin du Gard, R.

DUGGAN, EILEEN MAY. Poems; with an introduction by Walter De La Mare. 65p $1.50 Macmillan [5s Allen, G] 821 39-27024

A volume of lyrics from the pen of a New Zealand poet. "At their best, these poems reveal an absolute control of words, as far as this is possible, in their writer's central meaning. And that being so, the expression may appear on occasion awkward, rough, even violent. It is never false or borrowed. . . An apparently complete simplicity may half-conceal a lifelong and intense heed and delight in what she is writing about. We have to listen if we are to catch her overtones. There is little that is obscure, nothing cynical, nothing acidly critical of her fellow creatures, or shallowly propagandist." (Walter De La Mare in Introd)

Booklist 35:202 F 15 '39

Reviewed by Shaemas O'Sheel
Books p19 F 26 '39 270w

"Walter de la Mare, in his introduction to the volume, supplies its best immediate review. He discusses with his peculiar competence that essence of delight which is the prevailing beauty of the book, its sovereignty of words, its poetic impulse, its New Zealand birthplace." S. M. M.
+ Cath World 147:756 S '38 170w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 25 '39 190w

"Readers who have singled out the sometimes homely but always haunting lyrics by Eileen Duggan scattered during the past few years in our Catholic magazines will seize upon this little collection with something like excitement. It is undoubtedly one of the poetic events of the year —and best of all, a rich prophecy for the years ahead." Katherine Brégy
+ Commonweal 28:193 Je 10 '38 240w

"Miss Duggan is a poet of feeling and a poet of thought, and a poet of that fusion of the two that marks imagination and makes by its intuitive seizure and ordering of words imagination's language. In one or two poems, 'Endurance' for one, there are passages where the thought weighs down the feeling; the imagination has flagged, and the language takes on heaviness. . . But Miss Duggan often rises to ecstasy, well understanding its nature." Charles Powell
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Mr 1 '38 380w

"Though she lives in the Antipodes, New Zealand to be exact, Eileen Duggan, as a poet, knows neither time nor space. I do not recall having encountered her work before. But it is exceptional. There is not a great deal of it, fewer than three-score-and-ten pages. But her lines are spun gold and ivory. . . Eileen Duggan is a poet with whom the future will have to reckon." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 16 '39 480w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 20:18 Ag 5 '39 160w

Reviewed by William Plomer
— Spec 160:1064 Je 10 '38 120w
Times [London] Lit Sup p120 F 19 '38 380w
Wis Lib Bul 35:100 My '39

DUHAMEL, GEORGES. In defence of letters; tr. from the French by E. F. Bozman. 248p $2.75 Greystone [8s 6d Dent]

808 Authorship. Books and reading. French literature—History and criticism 39-27241

This volume of essays by a French novelist is divided into four parts: "The first part only is devoted to the serious changes in our modern culture, and to the new forces that threaten the life of the book and the supremacy of the printed word, which is the sign in our time of effective thought. . . The second part is devoted to deontology, or the science of obligations. The reader must not look for a treatise, but for miscellaneous reflections on the life of writers, the relations of the writer to his public and his colleagues, and to his work and his profession. The last two parts of the book are concerned, one with the art of the novelist of the twentieth century, the other with certain characteristics of French literature and humanism." (Pref)

Booklist 35:267 Ap 15 '39
Boston Transcript p3 Je 24 '39 50w
Cath World 150:249 N '39 350w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 27 '38 650w

"As far as he goes the author is sound in his criticism of the times. He fails to see that left to itself the classical tradition is a dying tradition, that it cannot stand up against the onslaught of new comforts and effortless amusements in a day when leisure time is so largely divorced from impersonal economic activities. The classical tradition indeed is dying, but M. Duhamel does not see why it is dying or indicate how it can resist the new vitalism of opposing collectivist forces." Edward Skillin, Jr.
+ — Commonweal 29:612 Mr 24 '39 470w

Reviewed by M. M. Colum
Forum 101:213 Ap '39 450w

"This book brings to mind Somerset Maugham's excellent The Summing Up. It, too, deals with the writing craft primarily from the artist's point of view and abounds in shrewd observations and magnificent stretches of autobiographical honesty; it also contains a goodly portion of taffy, the only difference being that in Mr. Maugham's book the taffy comes near the end, while Dr. Duhamel, a member of the French Academy, gets it off his chest at the beginning. . . One hopes that Dr. Duhamel's book will have the wide reading it richly deserves, especially among beginning writers, for in the literary world one cheap immorality sometimes spells death." Charles Angoff
+ — Living Age 356:196 Ap '39 550w
Manchester Guardian p5 S 6 '38 260w

"Duhamel's book is exactly what, according to Duhamel, a book should be: it induces reflection. It misses its highest purpose because, although it appears in book form, it is not quite a book. It is a series of very brief essays, usually well under a thousand words, not integrated into a single work. It is very intelligent and very stimulating journalism; it is not quite literature. The Defence of Letters needs and deserves a better-organized, a more sustained effort." Albert Guérard
+ — Nation 149:225 Ag 26 '39 550w

"Duhamel appeals mildly to his already considerable public. He is smug and uneasy at the same time. That is not to say that In Defence of Letters is worthless; indeed, those who have enjoyed his novels will find this private record —a mixture of reminiscence and opinion—delightful. He is the type of Academician whom only the French seem to produce—the Academician with talent. Dignity, wit, charm, critical sympathy, cultured alarm—Duhamel has all these; but he has set out to strike a blow, and it falls light as a feather."
+ — New Statesman & Nation 16:322 Ag 27 '38 240w

" 'In defence of Letters' is a deposition, written with that precise and witty clarity that seems to be possible only to French commentators, presenting the dangers that he fears. . . It is a revelation of the precise and cool qualities of the Gallic intellect to note with what equanimity and lack of fireworks Duhamel presents the picture that really troubles him so greatly. He knows how to reflect." Herbert Gorman
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 19 '39 650w
Pratt p22 summer '39
Sat R of Lit 19:8 Mr 11 '39 310w

"M. Duhamel is a publisher as well as an author, and he has therefore a closer insight into the actual machinery of literature. Censorship, the export of books, royalties on library circulation, the competition of radio and cinema, and the difficulties of the bookseller, are some of the themes that M. Duhamel embroiders with his good sense and feeling for professional dignity. It is all good 'shop' talk, enlivened with personal anecdotes and delivered by a man who is at once informed and decided in his opinions. Those who enjoy a bookish conversation with a man of considerable charm will find much to please them in In Defence of Letters."
+ Spec 161:244 Ag 5 '38 100w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 19 '39 850w

"A highly interesting, if discursive work."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p429 Je 25 '38 600w
Wis Lib Bul 35:142 Jl '39

DULLES, ALLEN WELSH, and ARMSTRONG, HAMILTON FISH. Can America stay neutral? 277p $2.50 Harper

341.3 U.S.—Neutrality (W) 39-23626

The authors "have put together their present book by using certain sections from their 'Can We Be Neutral?' of 1935 [Book Review Digest, 1936] and adding a running history of neutrality legislation and experience since that date, finishing off with an appraisal of the various proposals that have been put forth for protecting American neutrality. Their book is a lawyer's brief into which emotion intrudes only they hint at their conception of the 'ultimate' American interest in the current war." (N Y Times) Chronology, bibliography and index.

Booklist 36:82 N 1 '39

"The book, valuable though it be as a guide to the practical complexities of the debate, more or less avoids the broad issue which seems to be emerging behind the immediate oratory. . . And this basic issue Messrs. Dulles and Armstrong, perhaps because they are themselves so wholly engaged on one side of it, do not clearly bring out." Walter Millis
+ — Books p7 O 15 '39 1050w

Reviewed by R. M. Blagden
Boston Transcript p2 D 2 '39 800w
Foreign Affairs 18:373 Ja '40 70w
Manchester Guardian p3 N 17 '39 70w
New Statesman & Nation 19:22 Ja 6 '40 230w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
N Y Times p3 O 15 '39 900w

"Calm, sensible, and untheoretical, this discussion may help you to make up your mind."
+ New Yorker 15:103 O 14 '39 30w

Reviewed by S. B. Fay
Sat R of Lit 21:3 N 4 '39 2500w

Reviewed by A. F. Whyte
Spec 163:690 N 17 '39 420w

"[The authors] can formulate neutrality questions in clear-cut language and they have background knowledge. Yet, in spite of the academic competence, of their presentation,

DULLES, A. W., and ARMSTRONG, H. F. —Continued their book is as near being up to the minute as it is possible for a book to be."
+ Springf'd Republican p12 O 6 '39 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p664 N 18 '39 850w
Wis Lib Bul 35:182 N '39

DULLES, JOHN FOSTER. War, peace and change. 170p $1.75 Harper [7s 6d Macmillan]
341 International law and relations. Peace. War 39-854

The reason that war has so long been tolerated as a method of settling international disputes is that no procedures are available whereby changes in international relations can be made effective to meet changing conditions without resort to force. The procedure, Mr Dulles argues, implies the application of two principles, one ethical and the other political. "We cannot remove force and leave a vacuum. We must first know the nature and significance of that which we would remove."

Reviewed by Vernon Van Dyke
Am Pol Sci R 33:929 O '39 300w
Reviewed by E. S. Bates
Books p10 Jl 2 '39 300w

"At a time when pessimism and confusion reign in discussions of world affairs, the publication of a hopeful and constructive book dealing with international problems is something of an event. . . The virtue of this book lies in its endeavor to reach a solution of the problem of war by examining its origins and causes and in its urgent plea that the lessons of past wars be learned and applied today. . . Many who read the remarks of this international lawyer and student of world affairs will consider Mr. Dulles' literary energies misdirected. They will hardly question his sincerity, but they will charge that, in the present crisis, he is aiding those who would make force the sole arbiter of our destinies. This reviewer tends to concur in that view and finds the author's reasoning somewhat repellent." G. A. Warp
Christian Century 56:157 F 1 '39 600w
Reviewed by C. J. Friedrich
Commonweal 29:668 Ap 7 '39 650w
Foreign Affairs 17:628 Ap '39 80w
Reviewed by J. A. Hobson
Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 11 '39 600w

"There is much wisdom in this book. . . If the evil forces now at work in international affairs are too powerful to be met and overcome at this juncture, Mr. Dulles's book is still of considerable value because its contribution to the art of domestic government is substantial." Chester Rohrlich
+ N Y Times p16 F 5 '39 1250w

"Books on the causes of war and the possibilities for peace are likely to be composed of either pyrotechnic oversimplifications or closely reasoned abstractions applied to current world problems. In the former category falls the vast array of panacea proposals; in the latter, the rare, careful analysis of the most vital and baffling issue confronting humanity today. To this scanty literature Mr. Dulles has made a notable addition. . . His is not a particularly novel doctrine, nor does it promise quick results. It is by no means adequate in meeting some of the questions raised by current, conflicting ideologies and economic interests. But it is a clear, able, and honest analysis of a problem which must be solved if civilization is to survive." D. H. P.
+ Sat R of Lit 19:20 F 4 '39 380w
Spec 163:298 Ag 25 '39 490w

"Mr. Dulles writes throughout in the matter-of-fact style which reflects his determination to keep both feet firmly on the ground. He eschews rhetoric and emotion. Never will he allow his readers to forget that he is a cautious American lawyer whom experience has taught that it is well to aim low in order to achieve something. Only when the book is finished does the reader begin to appreciate its richness in constructive ideas and its profound insight into human nature."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p334 Je 10 '39 950w
Wis Lib Bul 35:60 Ap '39

DU MAURIER, ANGELA. The perplexed heart. 278p $2.50 Doubleday [7s 6d Joseph, M] 39-15268

Tale of an English female Don Juan, whose story is told partly in her own words, partly in those of a devoted cousin. The scene shifts from England to Italy, then to Cornwall, and ends in Paris.

"Miss Angela du Maurier essayed a brave task in attempting to set this heroine before her readers. Though she presents her clearly, the character seems too futilely masochistic to gain more than clinical interest. Such people do exist; they are invariably adored and tended by solider friends; they invite just such calamities and almost invariably die regretted. But if Verona was some thing more than a foolish and self-destructive automaton, the author does not quite make this apparent." Iris Barry
Books p8 My 28 '39 650w

"This book is in our opinion a horror. . . Miss Du Maurier's scenic background is invariably lush and romantic. . . The only wholesome suggestion in the whole book is that of Kit, who says that Freddie should have turned his wife over his knee. We wish that he could have spanked Miss Du Maurier, too." Olga Owens
— Boston Transcript p1 My 27 '39 400w
Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p7 F 21 '39 330w
New Repub 99:140 Je 7 '39 50w

"Miss du Maurier's book is a competent piece of work, interesting and well written, with a definite charm of its own. . . Any one who yearns for the days when yellow-backed French novels were certain to tell of lovely ladies shattered by love will find 'The Perplexed Heart' reminiscent of that genre—brought quite up to date by its modern setting, anglicized by a degree of restraint, and smoothly told in sophisticated yet sincere style." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p7 My 28 '39 650w

"Has a 'Green Hat' flavor. If you are nostalgic for 'The Green Hat,' perhaps you will like this."
New Yorker 15:94 My 20 '39 60w

"Lacking her sister's gusto, Miss du Maurier is not able to write a successful romance; nor has she the subtlety to analyze a psychological situation. Therefore, although often titillating in episodes, Verona's story soon becomes a monotonous chronicle. . . Verona's story is as dreary as the vengefully virtuous could wish. But though her rake's progress is indeed a moral tale, its moral is too early and too easily comprehended, and the rake herself never engages the reader's sympathy." K. S.
— + Sat R of Lit 20:19 My 20 '39 240w

"Miss Angela du Maurier does not write very well—this is her first novel, and it is crusted with clichés of thought and phrase—but she has a young gusto for narrative, and such as her conventional characters are, they have their own conventional life in them. . . There are some young and lively touches in the handling of the unreal story, there is something kindly in the author's inexperienced tone which suggests that a more serious theme might receive just treatment from her." Kate O'Brien
— + Spec 162:364 Mr 3 '39 180w

"This is a first novel by a member of an extremely talented family. When she is older she will no doubt be wiser and able to laugh at her temerity in essaying a theme in which bathos sits so very near to pathos."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p119 F 25 '39 290w

DUMOND, DWIGHT LOWELL. Antislavery origins of the Civil war in the United States. 143p $2 Univ. of Mich.

326 Slavery in the U.S.—Anti-slavery movements 39-21131

"This volume containing the lectures given by Professor Dumond at the University of London on the Commonwealth Foundation, 1938-39, is a companion study of Professor Barnes' The Antislavery Impulse, 1830-1844 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. . . Mr. Barnes centered his study about Theodore Dwight Weld. . . Mr. Dumond, a collaborator with Mr. Barnes in the editing of the Weld-Grimke letters, centers his lectures about James G. Birney, who may be said to have taken up the torch for the anti-slavery cause after Weld retired. . . It is, therefore, with the latter phase of the anti-slavery movement that Mr. Dumond deals in this volume." Christian Century

"Altogether this is a provocative and stimulating book, not well balanced, nor entirely impartial and objective, and certainly far from conclusive in its arguments, but thoughtful, arresting and eloquent. Whether it is persuasive or merely plausible will depend largely upon the attitude of the reader." H. S. Commager

+ — Books p12 Ja 28 '40 1100w

"The contribution of the combined researches of Professors Barnes and Dumond is not only that they have unearthed an astonishing collection of new sources, but that in their skillful use of these new materials they have laid the foundations for the necessary rewriting of the fascinating story of the anti-slavery conflict in America." W. W. Sweet

+ Christian Century 56:1506 D 6 '39 700w

"There are many people who feel that the causes of the Civil War have been so thoroughly probed and so definitely judged that not much more remains to be said on the subject. Dr. Dumond's book will make such folk scratch their heads and start thinking again. It will stimulate new ideas along several lines." P. S. Klein

+ Social Studies 31:38 Ja '40 450w

DU MONT, JULIUS. The basis of combination in chess. 218p il $3 McKay [7s 6d Routledge]

794.1 Chess 39-32808

Study of chess plays in which the author takes each piece in turn and gives numerous examples of combinations, beginning with simple plays, and working up to complicated moves. Index.

Booklist 35:248 Ap 1 '39

"This book deserves to achieve wide popularity. It forms an excellent introduction to the beginner before he goes on to the more difficult questions of strategy and positional play. . . Even the experienced player will be astonished by the wealth of brilliant sacrifices displayed; and to the uninitiated they will afford an insight into the beauties of the game that should inspire enthusiasm."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p698 O 29 '38 120w

DUNCAN, DOROTHY. You can live in an apartment; decorations by Douglas Hilliker. 248p $2 Farrar

647.92 Apartment houses. Home economics (W) 39-20482

Suggestions for the apartment dwellers, either those new to apartment house living, or hardened members of the class. Subjects for discussion include signing the lease, convenience of the neighborhood, moving, decoration, budgeting, organized housework, servant problem, cooking, entertainment, etc. Bibliography. Index.

"Although some have accepted necessity with a graceful air of resignation and many others have grumbled openly at the host of petty inconveniences so inseparable to apartment living under the best of conditions, Mrs. Duncan shows how it can be done with the minimum of unpleasantness and the maximum of comfort and even certain pleasure all its own." R. A. Chace

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 29 '39 180w

"A lively and helpful little book. . . 'You Can Live in an Apartment' is not too personal, but it is just personal enough. It has urbanity, in both the derivative and the usual sense of that word. It is an excellent book of its kind."

+ N Y Times p9 Ag 27 '39 440w

"It is a volume concrete enough in its suggestions to be of practical assistance, sound and sensible, covering not only the desiderata for a comfortable habitation but some general hints for gracious living. . . A well-chosen bibliography and an index add value to a useful book." A. L.

+ Sat R of Lit 20:21 Jl 29 '39 120w

DUNCAN, KUNIGUNDE. Blue Star. See Fellows, C.

DUNCAN, WALTER JACK. First aid to pictorial composition. 121p il $2.50 Harper

740 Composition (art) 39-30314

Written for art students, this book is designed to fill a gap felt by the author to exist in the literature of art study, already well supplied with books on drawing and painting. Beginning with the simplest methods of composition he lays down the rules of balance and line illustrating them with frequent examples embodied in the text, in the form of diagrams and reproductions from the works of ancient and modern masters. Index.

Booklist 36:129 D 1 '39

"Once the student has been initiated into these mysteries of composition, all painting takes on new interest and significance. Truly a valuable little book, for art classes, club courses, and for personal reading and self-improvement."

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 N 7 '39 170w

DUNCAN, WILLIAM CARY. Golden hoofs; the true story of an amazing mare; il. by J. Louis Lundean [and contemporary prints]. 159p $2.50; ltd de luxe ed $7.50 Lippincott

798.4 Goldsmith Maid (race horse). Horse racing 38-36486

Story of the race horse, Goldsmith Maid, for seven years queen of American trotters.

Booklist 35:153 Ja 1 '39

"Mr. Duncan's account, frankly a sentimental tribute, is crammed with facts and harness-racing lore, being not merely the history of his heroine but an entertaining chronicle of the heyday of 'horse-trots.'" R. P. Harriss

+ Books p15 F 12 '39 450w

"She was a famous trotting horse of the 1860's; not only that, but 'the most amazing race horse of all times', if this book is to be believed. Born Nellie, later called Mamie, she won fame as many an actress has under a stage name, as Goldsmith Maid. She raced once in Milwaukee on Sept. 6, 1870, and, although she was past her prime, her performance was the sport topic of the day the country over. As her story is told here she becomes a personality and the book a contribution to sporting history."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:11 Ja '39

DUNCOMBE, FRANCES. Hoo! hoo! DeWitt! il. by Jean Lamont. 32p $1.25 Holt

39-31801

Picture story book about a baby owl who disregarded his mother's advice and tried to make friends with the daytime animals.

"The pictures, its chief feature, have unusual traits: they are for the most part on velvet-black backgrounds, some on dark gray. Against this night birds, rabbits and chipmunks stand out with curiously statuesque effect, almost as if carved in soap-stone... The scenes follow the story closely, as a very little child demands." M. L. Becker

DUNCOMBE, FRANCES—Continued

+ Books p12 N 12 '39 150w
Cath World 150:374 D '39 50w
New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 20w
Sat R of Lit 21:34 D 2 '39 30w

DUNHAM, CLARENCE WHITING. The theory and practice of reinforced concrete. 529p il $4.50 McGraw

693.5 Concrete, Reinforced. Concrete construction 39-14101

Textbook on concrete for the student and the practising engineer. The first part of the book is intended as an elementary course in design; the remainder of the book is for the advanced course. The book sets forth the theories underlying the design of reinforced concrete construction and the basic requirements and procedures. Index.

Booklist 36:3 S '39

"Deserves high rank in its field."
+ Eng N 123:60 O 26 '39 170w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:37 Jl '39

DUNN, MRS ELIZABETH (CLARKE). The moon to play with. 274p $2.50 Morrow

39-25562

Story of a trip across the Atlantic in a big liner, during which an actress wangled a big movie contract, and a glamor girl (who didn't feel the part) fell in love with the brilliant doctor whose ambition was to practice in a small town.

"To paraphrase the old cockney song, 'it's not so much what she says but the witty way she says it,' that makes this novel as lightly delectable as a piece of Napoleon pastry and not one half so cloying." F. H. Bullock

+ Books p8 O 1 '39 500w

"Everything in this book happens aboard the luxury liner Queen Victoria within the five days of her fast crossing from Southampton to New York. Such circumstances practically guarantee that the story will have glamour, romance and pace. More than that, it is lightly and pleasantly told with abundant conversation that amiably drifts from persiflage to sentimentality and on to wisecracking." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p23 O 1 '39 280w
New Yorker 15:77 S 23 '39 50w

"There is a lot of amusing incident and chatter in 'The Moon to Play With,' but neither characters nor action are especially convincing, and the misunderstandings which make up the plot are artificial and ultimately rather tiresome." K. S.

— + Sat R of Lit 20:21 O 7 '39 100w

DUNN, ESTHER CLOUDMAN. Shakespeare in America. 310p il $3.50 Macmillan

822.33 Shakespeare, William. U.S.—Intellectual life 39-30566

"An incredible amount of information on Shakespeare in every conceivable relation to the cultural history of the United States has been here expertly packed between two covers. The stage history of Shakespearean performances at various periods and in various sections of the country supplies the core of the book. But among other topics discussed in approximately chronological sequence are these: the reading or ownership of Shakespeare by Colonials during the first century after the settlement; the citation of Shakespeare by Washington, Franklin, Adams and other Revolutionary worthies; parodies of familiar passages from the plays in social and political satire; comment on Shakespeare in American magazines; Shakespeare as taught in schools and colleges; the use of Shakespeare by Emerson, Thoreau, Alcott, Whitman and Lincoln; Shakespearean editing; the Baconian theory." Books

Booklist 36:129 D 1 '39

"Miss Dunn is aware of the social implications of her subject, and her constant emphasis on them gives her book more than literary importance. It would be unfair to anticipate any of the surprises that her pages hold in store, but an examination of the illustrations alone will convince any one that her treatment of Shakespeare's vicissitudes in the New World is not stodgy. It would be hard to pick out a better recent example of genuinely scholarly investigation effectively prepared for a popular audience." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p16 N 19 '39 750w

"In tracing the history of Shakespeare in America the author has unraveled one important strand in the nation's intellectual life."

+ Christian Century 56:1441 N 22 '39 220w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 20 '40 900w

"Although Miss Dunn writes for the average reader, lighting up her history with plenty of anecdotes, she painlessly injects much erudite information."

+ New Repub 101:149 N 22 '39 40w

"The whole makes a picture of almost bewildering, and certainly of extremely interesting, variety. Shakespeare, one knows, could have followed it all, entered into it and enjoyed it. A comment of Miss Dunn's on the nineteenth century could be taken as the text for her book: 'He would have loved his conglomerate public.' "

+ N Y Times p4 D 3 '39 550w

"Miss Dunn's work is a welcome one, valuable alike to students of Shakespeare and lovers of the theater." Otis Skinner

+ Sat R of Lit 21:12 O 28 '39 1000w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 O 28 '39 550w

Reviewed by Rosamond Gilder
Theatre Arts Mo 24:73 Ja '40 500w

DUNNE, JOHN WILLIAM. The new immortality [introd. by J. B. Priestley]. 157p $2 Harper [3s 6d Faber]

237.2 Immortality. Space and time [38-39296]

"This little book is intended to supply the general reader with a more or less popular account of the theories about time and the self which Mr. Dunne has developed in considerable detail in his previous works, 'An Experiment with Time' and 'The Serial Universe.' " Nature

Reviewed by W. M. Malisoff
Books p20 N 5 '39 850w

Reviewed by R. M. Chisholm
Boston Transcript p13 Ag 31 '39 700w

"I do not think Mr. Dunne has been just to himself in 'The New Immortality.' The treatment is scrambled and has the feeling of hasty writing. But its suggestiveness is unimpaired. Those who are interested would do well to follow the author's advice and skim this book first, turning back then to his earlier works. When they have been digested it will be time to return to the deeper inspection of the new immortality." C. E. West

+ — Manchester Guardian p6 O 14 '38 850w

"Even if Mr. Dunne's general theory were intelligible and true, he produces no cogent positive reason for holding that the higher-order observers would survive the death of the body. He is content to argue, by what seem to me to be quite unconvincing analogies, that the burden of proof lies on anyone who doubts this. However this may be, if the theory is self-contradictory, as I believe, it can lend no support to any conclusion." C. D. Broad

— Nature 142:1052 D 17 '38 600w

Reviewed by H. J. Forman
N Y Times p16 D 3 '39 1000w
New Yorker 15:80 S 9 '39 30w
Times [London] Lit Sup p608 S 24 '38 280w

DUNNE, JOHN WILLIAM. St George and the witches; il. by Lloyd Coe [Eng title: Experiment with St George]. 206p $2 Holt [6s Faber]
39-25042

Tale of St George and what happened to him after he had slain the dragon and married the princess.

"Since I revelled in 'Undine,' I do not remember delighting so completely in a romance with a magic background. . . You can be any age you like in order to enjoy it, and it would be a fine book to read aloud—to the right listeners." Evelyn Sharp
+ Manchester Guardian sup x D 1 '39 150w

"It is material which parents generally make the mistake of shielding their children from, but it is the sort of story children like, and the triumph of rather ordinary people over the appalling and incalculable is reassuring rather than the other thing. The illustrations are unusually good, solid and dramatic." Anthony West
+ New Statesman & Nation 18:838 D 9 '39 150w

"Lloyd Coe has exactly caught the spirit of the tale in his pictures and surely no one has ever drawn a dragon in flight more convincingly. For children of 10 and on, and for adults as well, who enjoy a clever and amusing bit of fantasy." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p20 N 12 '39 200w

"Outstanding."
+ Sat R of Lit 21:34 D 2 '39 30w

DUNSANY, EDWARD JOHN MORETON DRAX PLUNKETT, 18th baron. Mirage water. 78p $1.75 Dorrance [7s 6d Putnam]
821 39-3322

Collection of poems, some of them inspired by travel in the Orient, others by sights and sounds of nature.

Reviewed by John Craft
Books p10 My 28 '39 90w

Reviewed by M. G. Cohen
Canadian Forum 19:126 Jl '39 140w

"Music of words, whimsicality of thought, and a keen sensitivity to exotic beauty, some of which he has glimpsed in the Orient and some at home on sunny mornings or wet nights, make every poem of Lord Dunsany's arresting and some of them memorable."
+ Christian Century 56:291 Mr 1 '39 40w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 1 '39 280w

"Gentle conceits in gracious rhythm." + Forum 101:240 Ap '39
Times [London] Lit Sup p742 N 19 '38 170w

DUPLAIX, LILY. Pedro, Nina and Perrito; lithographs by Barbara Latham. [48p] $1.50 Harper
(W) 39-21789

Simple story book of the daily life of two New Mexican children, which ends in a long awaited fiesta.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 N 19 '39 280w
Cath World 150:373 D '39 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk M 15:378 N '39 30w

"This is an authentic glimpse into the daily life of an unfamiliar section of the country, and children of picture book age, as well as older ones up to nine, will find it interesting." Josephine Smith
+ Library J 64:903 N 15 '39 90w
New Repub 101:236 D 13 '39 10w

"The author describes the daily life of the children and their parents with a warmth and kindliness that shows she knows and understands the country and the people, and the many fine pictures show every step in the story. . . The full-page lithographs in six colors and those in black and white are arresting and together with the story make this sunlit country very real. A picture-story book that children from 5 to 8 will find highly satisfying." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 O 22 '39 280w
New Yorker 15:87 N 25 '39 20w
Wis Lib Bul 35:188 N '39

DUPUY, RICHARD ERNEST. World in arms; a study in military geography. 103p il maps $2 Military service
355.47 Military geography (W) 39-27857

Graphic presentation of the military, naval, and air strength of all the important countries of the world. Outline maps, symbols, and figures show at a glance these statistics as of August 1, 1939.

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Atlantic Ja '40 60w
Booklist 36:82 N 1 '39

"The author has used good judgment in devising and carrying out his plan. This inexpensive and valuable book will be of great use to persons who study the progress of the wars in Europe and in Asia." W. C. Rivers
+ Books p29 N 26 '39 250w

"The data are so fresh and so authoritative that readers will find the book a useful companion to every daily paper and news broadcast."
+ Christian Century 56:1210 O 4 '39 220w

"An indispensable reference book for all who want to study the course of the war more closely."
+ Living Age 357:393 D '39 60w

"This admirably conceived little book is a compendium of information hard to assemble and to digest for the average soldier and hard to find for the average layman. . . In general, the figures given are presented with the thorough accuracy and careful estimation that have come to be expected of Major Dupuy. . . But there are many of these figures with which some commentators will not agree; the maps, because of their necessarily limited size, show merely salient features and not the details one could wish for, and there are some omissions—probably due to the haste with which the book was rushed to the printer. . . But, despite these criticisms, 'World in Arms' is a volume that is unique, and it should be a welcome addition to the library of an intelligent citizen." H. W. Baldwin
+ — N Y Times p3 N 5 '39 550w
Pratt p7 winter '40

"This unique volume is of the utmost value in following the moves of the present war in Europe. It will be equally valuable no matter how far the war may ultimately spread, for all the lands and waters of the world find adequate treatment in its pages." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 21:20 D 30 '39 300w

DURANT, WILLIAM JAMES. The story of civilization; 5v; [v] 2, The life of Greece; with an introd. on the prehistoric culture of Crete. 755p il maps $3.95 Simon & Schuster

901 Civilization—History. anal Civilization, Greek (35-10016)

The second volume of Dr Durant's monumental history of civilization is "a history of Greek civilization from the beginnings, and of civilization in the Near East from the death of Alexander, to the Roman conquest." (Subtitle) For first volume see Book Review Digest, 1935. Index.

Booklist 36:86 N 1 '39

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Books p1 D 10 '39 1200w

"A large, handsome book, written in the grand manner, exceptionally comprehensive and rich in detail, which is as good as anything Durant has yet done." R. M. Chisholm

+ Boston Transcript p1 N 18 '39 140w

"The book challenges the criticism of the experts. Their voracious appetites for Greece have been fed on Grote, Bury and Mahaffy. This volume is not for him who must determine whether the poets who compose Homer lived before or after Mycenae. He cannot quibble over the translations of Euripides by Gilbert Murray. Paul Shorey contended Professor Murray outran the idea of Euripides. Well, for you and me, who must take our Greek drama at secondhand, such faults do not mar a book that is so eminently suited to the needs and tastes of one who comes almost virgin-minded to the great feast of Greek life and literature." E. C. Richards

+ N Y Times p2 N 26 '39 1750w

"Only another historian can judge adequately this vast 755-page synthesis of Greek history and culture, but immediate tribute must be paid not merely to the immense learning which has gone into the making of the book but to the ease of its style and particularly to Dr. Durant's gift of concise, epigrammatic statement. There is no side of Greek life that is not developed, often in great detail. . . The book is aimed at the general reader, but not offensively so. The illustrations are excellent." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 15:78 O 28 '39 200w

"This is a dramatic and at times an exciting book. Will Durant has undertaken to tell, in popular fashion, the whole story of ancient Greece from prehistoric days to the Roman conquest. It is a large order, but Durant knows the subject and writes beautifully and enthusiastically. . . So far as the book has any fundamental weakness, it lies in occasional false premises, which are themselves the product of not keeping abreast of recent research. . . This it is which more than once lends an air of unreality to 'The Life of Greece' —a book which, nevertheless, is the best of its kind." C. A. Robinson, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:5 O 28 '39 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 29 '39 1000w

Time 34:82 N 20 '39 1050w

DURFEE, BURR; MCMORRIS, HELEN, and MCMORRIS, JOHN. Mateo and Lolita. 63p il 92c Houghton

Children in Mexico 39-19158

Picture-story book about two little Mexican children, describing some of their daily life and customs. Could be used as a supplementary reader.

Booklist 36:73 O 15 '39

"An excellent account of rural and village life. . . The children's pleasure in their simple possessions, affectionate family relationships, and interested acquisition of folk lore make a winning little story." Vivian Lindberg

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 50w

"The book is slight and uninspired, but will be useful." E. G. Mullan

Library J 65:37 Ja 1 '40 70w

"Excellent for the purpose."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:26 N 18 '39 20w

DUSHAW, AMOS ISAAC. The man called Jesus. 379p $2.50 Revell

232.9 Jesus Christ—Biography 39-24412

"Not so much a restudy as a retelling of the life of Jesus as a series of incidents drawn from the four Gospels. Questions as to the historical accuracy of any of the narratives in the Gospel text are not even raised. The comments and interpretations are simple and, for the most part, rather obvious. The author has constantly in mind the values of the incidents and sayings for our own time." Christian Century

Christian Century 56:1277 O 18 '39 60w

Churchman 153:35 N 15 '39 70w

DUTTON, RALPH, and HOLDEN, ANGUS HOLDEN, 3d baron. The land of France. 152p il maps $3 Scribner [8s 6d Batsford]

914.4 France—Description and travel

An informal guidebook. In their Introduction the authors say: "The selection of subjects which have been chosen for inclusion may appear rather arbitrary at first sight, but there is in fact an underlying principle. We have endeavoured to give a general indication of the character of the different districts by describing the towns or countrysides which seem to us most typical of them, and which seem best to convey to a reader their particular 'atmosphere.' At the same time, we have where possible concentrated rather on lesser-known places than on the world-famous tourist centres." Index.

"The illustrations alone offer a worthy reason for the possession of this book, if one is interested in the subject. Whistler's 'Summer at the Plage' is reproduced in color as the frontispiece, and there are 130 photographs, varied, beautiful and informative."

+ Books p29 N 26 '39 250w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 11 '39 30w

Manchester Guardian p5 Ag 8 '39 170w

"The authors tell us which places they have liked, give us scraps of history that have specially struck them, interest themselves in wine, food and men as well as in monuments, and make sardonic, simple-seeming comments of a very French sort. Their architectural taste makes the book particularly useful for the planning of a tour." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 18:152 Jl 22 '39 550w

"This book takes you across France, pleasantly, and willy-nilly you are seeing a country that has a just philosophy of living, the only earnest of democracy... The book is not exhaustive, of course, but it is richly selective and truly informative. For the authors are not concerned with the tourist centers but with the real France."

+ N Y Times p18 O 1 '39 270w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 1 '39 250w

"The authors of 'The Land of France' may perhaps be remembered by a very useful little book on the French chateaux open to the public. Their knowledge of France is exceptionally wide and must be the fruit of visits extended over many years. Their criticism is often acute."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p447 Jl 29 '39 450w

DWIGHT, ALLAN. Kentucky cargo; il. by Harvé Stein. 256p $2 Macmillan

39-30076

Exciting story for older boys. It is a tale of the Ohio and Mississippi in 1795. River pirates, dishonest Spanish agents, rogues and heroes, all take part.

Booklist 36:240 F 15 '40
Churchman 154:35 Ja 1 '40 10w

"This book is notable because it is an exciting story which has for its background an important historical event of which most Americans are ignorant. . . Readers of historical fiction will find this to be a fast-moving story." Sonja Wennerblad

Library J 64:1000 D 15 '39 120w

"A fine tale of adventure. . . The characterization is for the most part elemental, but seldom are plot and background knitted together so tightly in a historical story, for the river life, boisterous, romantic and hazardous, is not merely background, it is an integral part of the action." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 N 19 '39 320w

"No matter how thrilling the episodes in 'Kentucky Cargo,' they remain within the range of probability. 'Kentucky Cargo' is an excellent book for boys of 12 to 16."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 130w

DYER, GEORGE. Adriana [Eng title: Mystery of Martha's Vineyard]. 294p map $2 Scribner [7s 6d Heinemann]

39-7082

Garret Marriner inherited from his uncle the most nearly perfect small yacht in existence—as well as some apparently worthless stock in a mysterious company: The Sea Reduction corporation. Tho he had never been on a sailboat in all his twenty-two years, he took a couple of days' instruction in the art of managing a boat and then left Plymouth Harbor en route for Tahiti—or somewhere. Naturally he did not get very far before running into adventure—storms, romance, international intrigue, etc.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p17 Mr 19 '39 290w
Boston Transcript p1 Jl 1 '39 330w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 18:96 Jl 15 '39 80w

"A swift and entertaining story." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p25 Mr 26 '39 200w

"Pleasant, fresh adventure story involving a Princeton graduate; a beautiful girl, a Scottish deerhound, a dead Japanese, and an out-and-out cur. Mr. Dyer, author of the Catalyst Club mysteries, has chosen Vineyard Sound for his scene of action. Recommended for sailing enthusiasts."

+ New Yorker 15:88 Mr 25 '39 40w
Pratt p28 autumn '39

"There should be many people who will enjoy this story for the locale alone. . . Nearly as many readers will find it a comforting narrative because of its authentic and fervid concern with sailing and navigation. A third and even larger audience should consist of those who have never raised a spinnaker or spent a vacation in Nantucket, but who relish a well-told tale of adventure with just the right flavoring of romance."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:4 Ap 1 '39 180w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 20 '39 350w
Times [London] Lit Sup p359 Je 17 '39 330w

E

EARLE, HUBERT POTTER. Blackout; the human side of Europe's march to war. 290p il $2 Lippincott

940.53 European war, 1939—Personal narratives

The author is a Harvard undergraduate, a son of ex-Governor Earle of Pennsylvania. He sailed for Europe on June 28, 1939, and came back to America in September. During his stay he served on the embassy staff in Paris, and his memories abound in tales of the people he met on his travels around Europe on the verge of war, people who drifted in and out of the embassy, and those he met in the course of his social engagements.

Reviewed by Joseph Barnes
Books p7 Ja 21 '40 200w
New Repub 102:29 Ja 1 '40 50w

EARLY, ELEANOR. Adirondack tales; decorations by Virginia Grilley. 247p $1.75 Little 917.4753 Adirondack mountains (W) 39-27435

Descriptions of the author's wanderings thru the Adirondacks. The guidebook features of the book are spiced with retold legends, anecdotes, and sketches of such celebrities as Ethan Allen, Trudeau, Stevenson, Melvil Dewey, and Gene Tunney. Index.

Booklist 35:328 Je 1 '39
Books p15 Je 25 '39 150w

"Miss Early's lively curiosity makes her collection of Adirondack stories quaint and amusing. They are excellent examples of human interest stuff and their inclusion in her guide book explains their popularity. Unfortunately Miss Early sometimes slips into babyish expressions that are irritating. No doubt this lapse is due to her custom of writing informally and personally as though all her readers were her good friends. It is difficult to be vivacious, instructive and unpretentious all in the same breath." Margaret Clark

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Je 3 '39 220w

"Miss Early has written several light-hearted books of guidance and gossip which had substance, gayety and real charm. Readers who have enjoyed her best work (the present reviewer is one of them) should be prepared for flat disappointment here on all three counts."

N Y Times p17 My 14 '39 310w

EARLY, ELEANOR. Lands of delight; decoration by Virginia Grilley. 214p map $2 Houghton

917.29 West Indies—Description and travel. Venezuela—Description and travel. Caribbean sea (W) 39-33444

"A cruise book to northern South America and the Caribbean." (Subtitle) Index.

Booklist 36:197 Ja 15 '40

Reviewed by Olga Owens
Boston Transcript p6 D 30 '39 250w

"Eleanor Early fairly bubbles over, as always, with good humor, good stories and good travel advice."

+ N Y Times p30 D 10 '39 250w
Wis Lib Bul 36:15 Ja '40

EAST, ROBERT ABRAHAM. Business enterprise in the American revolutionary era. 387p $4.25 Columbia univ. press [19s King]

330.973 U.S.—History—Revolution—Finance. U.S.—Economic conditions 39-2808

The Revolutionary war and its demands produced a group of embryo American capitalists. This study shows "how the Revolutionary economic forces promoted business 'freedom' and opportunity and thus forged out of the colonial materials the stuff and personalities which made inevitable a more modern business age." Bibliography. Index.

"This book does a real service for the economist as well as the historian. It brings together material which, seen as a whole, illumines an important period in American history and gives a significant picture of a capitalist-entrepreneurial class in the making." H. M. Larson

+ Am Econ R 29:365 Je '39 400w

EAST, R. A.—Continued

"Mr. East has given us both a useful compilation and a stimulating synthesis. His factual errors are few. His style, though somewhat prosaic, has the merits of clarity and restraint." J. O. Wettereau

+ Am Hist R 44:924 Jl '39 650w

"In studying the economic and commercial aspects of the revolutionary period the author has dealt with an important but neglected body of material. His statements are fortified at every point by meticulous documentation, including many references to documentary sources. This is a substantial and expert piece of historical research."

+ Christian Century 55:1338 N 2 '38 160w

Commonweal 29:417 F 3 '38 550w

"The results of the author's widespread and painstaking search through a mass of unpublished material, to which he gave especial attention—though extensive use was also made of printed sources—constitute the chief contribution of the study and should prove valuable to those who subsequently have occasion to delve into the relatively neglected economic history of this period." C. W. Wright

+ J Pol Econ 47:285 Ap '39 600w

Management R 28:72 F '39 40w

EASTERBROOK, W. T. Farm credit in Canada; foreword by H. A. Innis. 260p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [11s 6d Oxford]

631.1 Agriculture—Canada. Agriculture—Economic aspects. Agricultural credit 39-25980

"This essay is a study in Canadian agricultural history. It is an attempt to trace the influence of factors in Canadian economic development which have been of most significance for problems of farm credit. A history of farm credit up to the advent of provincial lending agencies in 1917 has been sketched as a background to a study of government intervention since the war. . . Although a complete history of the financing of agriculture is beyond the limits of this book, it is hoped that a study of strategic factors over a long period and over a wide area will be of assistance in placing farm credit problems in perspective." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by C. D. Long, Jr.

Am Econ R 29:372 Je '39 200w

Reviewed by J. G. Herndon, Jr.

Am Pol Sci R 33:535 Je '39 410w

"Not only for the technical reader but for the general reader, this book is recommended as a good study in Canadian economic history. It is also a valuable contribution to the understanding of a Canadian problem that is already urgently pressing." J. S. Allely

+ Canadian Hist R 20:76 Mr '39 550w

Reviewed by L. J. Norton

J Pol Econ 47:756 O '39 400w

EASTMAN, FRED. Men of power. 5v v 3-4 il ea $1.50 Cokesbury press

920 (38-5117)

Volume three in this series contains "sixty-minute" biographies of Benjamin Franklin, Ralph Waldo Emerson, George Fox, and Charles Darwin; volume four, biographies of Lincoln, Tolstoy, John Burroughs, and Graham Taylor. For volumes one and two see Book Review Digest, 1938.

Booklist 35:203 F 15 '39 (Review of v 3)

Booklist 36:149 D 15 '39 (Review of v 4)

Christian Century 56:124 Ja 25 '39 60w (Review of v 3)

Christian Century 56:1276 O 18 '39 60w (Review of v 4)

Churchman 153:34 Mr 1 '39 150w (Review of v 3)

"Perhaps it is the author's interest and experience in the field of the teaching of the drama which accounts for the vivid, swift-moving sketches which make up these volumes. At all events, he reveals a keen gift for presenting the high-lights of action and thought which make fascinating reading about great characters. There is nothing of the catalogue method which makes so much biographical writing boresome." James van Zant

+ Churchman 153:20 D 1 '39 80w (Review of v 4)

For those who find the reading of biography stimulating and pleasant, here is a big value for little money." C. T. Holman

+ J Religion 19:406 O '39 220w (Review of v3)

EASTMAN, MAX, ed. An anthology for the Enjoyment of poetry. 329p $3 Scribner

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections (W) 39-27978

This anthology of poems is designed to accompany the new edition of Mr Eastman's Enjoyment of Poetry. The poems are grouped under the heads: Things and their colors; Beyond reality; Riding with time and action; Vessels of emotion; Adventures in ideas. Indexes of authors, first lines, and titles.

Booklist 36:130 D 1 '39

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p21 Ja 21 '40 100w

"Substituting the word 'sensibility' for the outlawed word 'taste' and applying this faculty to Mr. Eastman's selections, the reader recognizes good, bad, and indifferent work. At times these poems creak with sentiment, are stiff with rhetoric, or fall flat from their very fullness of 'life.' Mr. Eastman has not entirely rejected the moderns; here are Hopkins, T. S. Eliot, Yeats, Spender, H. D., Edith Sitwell, and James Joyce (in their clearer moments). But Mr. Eastman tends to reject the truly dramatic poem in favor of the melodramatic, the metaphysical in favor of the 'fanciful,' the 'mystical' in favor of the ghostly, the satirical poem altogether. He chooses descriptive and emotional verse with some authority, since poetry of this kind falls in best with his general theories." Louise Bogan

New Yorker 15:79 O 28 '39 600w

Pratt p17 winter '40

Springf'd Republican p7e O 15 '39 360w

Wis Lib Bul 35:184 N '39

EASTMAN, MAX. The enjoyment of poetry, with other essays in aesthetics. new & enl ed 317p $2.50 Scribner

808.1 Poetry. Esthetics (W) 39-27901

This volume contains a reprint (only one sentence in the preface has been changed) of Mr Eastman's first book, The Enjoyment of Poetry (Book Review Digest, 1913) together with some other essays also previously published elsewhere. Other essays: What poetry is, The history of English poetry, Art and the life of action, Art and propaganda, Art and biology. Index.

Booklist 36:114 N 15 '39

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker

N Y Times p21 Ja 21 '40 100w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan

New Yorker 15:79 O 28 '39 160w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 15 '39 550w

Wis Lib Bul 35:184 N '39

EBENSTEIN, WILLIAM. Fascist Italy. 310p $2.50 Am. bk.

945.09 Italy—Fascist movement 39-17316

"Presents a unified view of the Fascist State as an integrated complex of institutions, policies, and aspirations." (Social Studies) Bibliography. Index.

"In terms of its data, the book appears to be accurate—as accurate as possible in the face of severely and consciously restricted information. And this ought to be a greater merit than the avowed impartiality that so frequently cloaks serious distortions of data." C. T. Schmidt

+ Ann Am Acad 207:225 Ja '40 400w

Reviewed by Gaetano Salvemini
Nation 150:134 F 3 '40 150w

Reviewed by S. B. Clough
Social Educ 4:69 Ja '40 450w
Social Studies 30:335 N '39 20w

"The author's data and his interpretations of the Fascist regime help to give the reader a background knowledge of the system. The work is a textbook and supplies the necessary details."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 1 '39 850w

EBERHART, MRS MIGNON (GOOD). The chiffon scarf. 301p $2 Doubleday (W) 39-27747

Detective story.

Booklist 36:45 O 1 '39

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 S 10 '39 160w

"There is something about a Mignon Eberhart mystery that gets me down. Probably it is the overwhelming way in which she works to make her atmospheres horror-laden. . . I find it very hard to believe that anyone could whisk a wedding party headed for the south over the mountains into a Western dude ranch and get away with it as easily as Jim Cady did. The plot is too transparent to need such an elaborate preparation for solving." Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 S 16 '39 90w

"This is a fairly exciting and extremely sentimental story of the established Eberhart type. Love conquers all. And one of love's first victims is common sense. From the moment when hero and heroine first gaze deeply into each other's eyes intelligence forsakes him and she behaves as if she were not quite bright. Moreover, since the hero must be blameless, in spite of all the evidence against him, simple elimination makes the mystery easier to guess. But it's a good story, in its own lush way." K. W.

+ — N Y Times p26 O 22 '39 140w

"There are more romantic complications than international ones in this polished tale. Superb, but with one or two red herrings to annoy the reader."

+ — New Yorker 15:84 S 16 '39 40w

"Sleuthing not astounding but suspense extra tense. High-test."

+ Sat R of Lit 20:19 S 16 '39 50w
Time 34:71 O 2 '39 40w

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE. A family to raise; pictures by Else Bostelmann. 93p $2 Holiday (W) 39-27436

Realistic nature stories for young readers, about the upbringing of the young opossums, mice, snapping turtles, screech owls, coyotes, and wild duck.

Booklist 35:335 Je 1 '39
Cath World 150:375 D '39 70w
Horn Bk M 15:223 Jl '39 130w
New Yorker 15:108 My 13 '39 40w
Wis Lib Bul 35:193 N '39

ECKERT, RUTH ELIZABETH, and MARSHALL, THOMAS OLIVER. When youth leave school. (N.Y. (state). Regents' inquiry into the character and cost of public educ. Studies) 360p $3 McGraw

373.747 Education—New York (state). Educational guidance. Students. Education, Secondary 39-28377

This volume of the published findings of the Regents' inquiry into the educational output of New York state schools is devoted to the problems of youths just finishing or withdrawing from school. Index.

Booklist 36:70 O 15 '39

"Certain emphases in interpretation of the data will, in the opinion of the reviewer, be questioned by public-school workers. The repeated criticisms of the high school's shortcomings appear little tempered by appreciation of current obstacles in obtaining employment, even in the case of well-qualified adults. The criticisms of the general high school seem severe in the light of guidance and placement results obtained by the vocational schools, which specialize in the guidance function. . . Let there be no mistaking, however, the value which this thoroughgoing study of the problems of our high-school youth has for administrators, teachers, and lay members of educational boards. . . The book will be widely useful in classes in secondary education and in in-service courses for high-school teachers." P. R. Pierce

+ — School R 47:627 O '39 950w

Reviewed by E. W. Knight
Social Educ 3:433 S '39 110w

"This report is a painstaking one. It is of value not only to New York, but to schools throughout the country. . . The report points out instances and shortcomings that may be used by educators for evaluation and rededication. Every teacher imbued with the desire to assist youth will find this volume a stimulating and challenging one." I. A. Eckhauser

+ Social Studies 30:376 D '39 500w

ECONOMIC program for American democracy, by seven Harvard and Tufts economists: Richard V. Gilbert [and others]. 91p $1 Vanguard

330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. U.S.—Economic conditions 38-38012

"This program grew out of a series of discussions on the economic problems facing America held in Cambridge, Massachusetts, during the winter and spring of 1938. Those taking part in the discussions and collaborating in drafting conclusions and recommendations were younger Instructors in Economics at Harvard University and Tufts College, students doing graduate work in the Economics Department at Harvard, and Fellows and Consultants in the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration." Pref.

"This sort of presentation does much to bridge the gap between involved economic theory and actual public and private business policy. Many a layman (and many a student) who will never read Keynes or who cannot understand him can derive no little benefit from a reading of this book. This is true whether or not the reader agrees with the authors' conclusions and recommendations." H. M. Teaf, Jr.

+ — Am Econ R 29:359 Je '39 440w

Booklist 35:184 F 1 '39

"No matter what one's judgment of their economic conclusions, the value of such informal discussion groups is obvious. . . One wishes that the authors had here dealt more seriously with the future distribution of income which seems bound to result from the increase of the debt, just as at other points one wishes that factual evidence or reasoned demonstration had been attached to the somewhat

ECONOMIC program for American democracy —Continued

debonair assertions which occasionally pass for proof of a controverted point." Elizabeth Donnan

Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '39 220w

Foreign Affairs 18:163 O '39

Reviewed by H. D. Gideonse

Pol Sci Q 54:266 Je '39 700w

Reviewed by Eli Ginzberg

Sat R of Lit 19:18 Mr 11 '39 650w

EDDINGTON, SIR ARTHUR STANLEY. The philosophy of physical science. 230p $2.50 Macmillan [8s 6d Cambridge]

530.1 Physics—Philosophy. Science—Philosophy

"This book contains the substance of the course of lectures which I delivered as Tarner Lecturer of Trinity College Cambridge in the Easter Term 1938. The lectures have afforded me an opportunity of developing more fully than in my earlier books the principles of philosophic thought associated with the modern advances of physical science." (Pref) Partial contents: Scientific epistemology; Selective subjectivism; The scope of epistemological method; Epistemology and relativity theory; Epistemology and quantum theory; The concept of analysis; The concept of structure; The concept of existence; The physical universe; The beginnings of knowledge; Index.

Booklist 36:194 Ja 15 '40

Reviewed by W. M. Malisoff

Books p25 D 10 '39 1700w

Reviewed by Nels Ferre

Boston Transcript p1 F 3 '40 360w

"This book is well written, but is not 'popular' in the usual sense, containing many technicalities beyond the reach of the average layman. It is a significant contribution to philosophical thought." R. C. Miller

\+ Churchman 154:22 Ja 15 '40 150w

"This is an interesting and thought provoking book. . . . Unfortunately, much of the argument is inspired by the necessity of circumventing Cartesian dualism, and this makes one wish for a more thorough understanding of the synthesis of matter and spirit according to the age-old Catholic tradition." W. M. Agar

\+ — Commonweal 31:230 D 29 '39 650w

"Granting the helplessness of giving mind a local habitation and perhaps a better name, a book like Eddington's is a spiritual necessity. It serves at the least the purpose of revealing what science really is—something that is concerned with the structure of reality, but not at all with the substance of reality, something that makes it necessary to wonder what that substance is and what it means in man's relation to the universe." Waldemar Kaempffert

\+ N Y Times p1 D 24 '39 1800w

"It is sometimes stated that there is no 'philosophy of science,' but only the philosophy of individual scientists. Even if that were true, and this book contained only the personal philosophy of Sir Arthur Eddington, it would be well worth recommending. It is probable, however, that the views here expressed would meet with the hearty approval of the great majority of physicists and therefore its title may be taken as appropriate of its content. Although intended for 'the general reader,' it is not a book for an hour of relaxation, into which one may lightly dip or through which one may gently skip. But to anyone who will give it the time and thought it deserves, it will prove a veritable mine of information and an unusual stimulus for further contemplation."

\+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:2 D '39 490w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad

Spec 163:826 D 8 '39 900w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 31 '39 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p712 D 9 '39 1600w

EDDY, CLYDE. Voyaging down the Thames. 317p il maps $3.50 Stokes

914.22 Thames river. England—Description and travel (W) 38-37501

"An intimate account of a voyage by rowboat and river steamer down the Thames, from its lonely source at Thames Head in the Cotswold Hills, 250 miles across England, to its mouth at Nore Lightship in the North Sea, forty miles below London." (Pref) The historic associations of places along the river's course, from Roman times to the present, are noted, and there are 39 full-page reproductions from photographs. Index.

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 28 '39 50w

"From [his journey] Mr. Eddy has brought some beautiful photographs and written a charming book. Clyde Eddy, it may be remembered, navigated the rapids of the Colorado several years ago, and wrote a book called 'Down the World's Most Dangerous River' to tell that adventurous story. His new book is not an adventurous story: its events are leisurely, engaging, sometimes picturesque but always enjoyable; its style is graceful, spontaneous, often contemplative; its excitements are from history; and it is from start to finish a book of contentment and appreciation."

\+ N Y Times p34 N 20 '38 220w

Wis Lib Bul 35:26 F '39

EDDY, GEORGE SHERWOOD. Revolutionary Christianity. 229p $2 Willett

261 Sociology, Christian. Christianity (W) 39-27588

Contents: What is Christianity? The original sources; The Apocalyptic element in the New Testament; The kingdom of God; The meaning of Christ; Bipolar religion: Personal and social; Evolution or revolution; The present world situation; Christianity in the modern world; Religion in a revolutionary age.

Booklist 35:373 Jl 15 '39

"Like a small boy disappointed after a picnic one puts down this volume of Sherwood Eddy's. Not that there is not plenty of meat in it, for there is, and solid meat too. . . I cannot conclude this review without trying to make clear the exceeding worth of this volume. It may be that this approach will do more to win nominal Christians to a realization of the essentially revolutionary nature of Christianity than a still more revolutionary presentation might. I hope the personal disagreement expressed at one point will not keep any from realizing that the volume has immense value." G. M. Stockdale

\+ — Christian Century 56:770 Je 14 '39 900w

Reviewed by L. L. Riley

Churchman 153:17 S 1 '39 240w

Reviewed by W. R. McNutt

Crozer Q 16:308 O '39 130w

"This is not a great book, in any sense. It is a useful book, and it will stir the reader to a renewed concern for the social implications of the traditional Christian faith, even if he disagrees with much in Dr. Eddy's statement of the faith and in his suggested program of action." W. N. Pittenger

\+ — Living Church 101:15 S 13 '39 320w

EDDY, MARY OLIVE, ed. Ballads and songs from Ohio; introduction by James Holly Hanford. 370p il $5.50 Augustin

784.4 Ballads, American. Folk songs, American 39-25130

"Despite the notion that the flat Middle Western States are poor hunting grounds for the bagging of ballads, Miss Eddy has collected versions of 25 of the English and Scottish popular ballads and almost 300 European and native American folk songs not in Child. . . In an interesting preface Miss Eddy reminds us of the diversity of Ohio's pioneer population. That diversity is reflected in the songs the settlers brought with them and bequeathed to their descendants. Civil War ballads, cowboy laments, game songs, songs of the California gold rush, temperance songs, Quaker songs, Injun songs—almost any kind of song you might wish for is here, as often as not with its tune." Christian Science Monitor

---

"These Augustin songbooks grow more interesting as they go on. This one gets riches from a region not generally considered good ballad ground. But Miss Eddy, born in Perrysville and teaching in Canton, Ohio, could be sure of the confidence of aged ballad singers, a prerequisite for her purpose. Outsiders must work . . . behind a screen of local agents; Miss Eddy went straight to old folks unafraid of being thought absurd or backward. They sang for her and brought out faded books of manuscript: they even gave her daguerreotypes of themselves 'in their singing days,' whose reproduction is a pretty feature of a well made volume."

+ Books p44 N 12 '39 250w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds

Christian Science Monitor p10 D 16 '39 550w

EDDY, MYRON FISH. Aeronautic radio; a manual for operators, pilots, radio mechanics. 502p il $4.50 Ronald

621.3841914 Radio in aeronautics 39-9619

"This copiously illustrated work by the chief instructor in aircraft radio at the Stewart Technical School is built around the requirements of the Federal Communications Commission and of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and explains in detail the actual approved usage of existing aeronautic radio equipment for both communication and special purposes, such as course guidance and instrument landing." N Y New Tech Bks

---

Booklist 35:359 Jl 1 '39

N Y New Tech Bks 24:28 Ap '39

EDEN, ANTHONY. Foreign affairs. 366p $3.50 Harcourt [12s 6d Faber]

327.42 Great Britain—Foreign relations. Europe—Politics (W) 39-27639

Collection of Mr Eden's speeches on foreign affairs from his maiden speech on air defence, in 1924, to his speech in New York in December, 1938. In his preface he says it is "a faithful record of political developments in the earlier stages of a challenge which is showing its real character more clearly with every week that passes." Index.

Booklist 36:5 S '39

Reviewed by Walter Millis

Books p1 Ag 13 '39 1550w

"For those who would attempt to understand the minds of British statesmen an important book has appeared. It is Mr. Anthony Eden's 'Foreign Affairs.' . . His book gives the reader an excellent insight into the minds of those who would 'muddle through.' Not only the psychology of that policy but its disastrous effects as well are quite evident." Michael Mayer

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 12 '39 400w

Christian Century 56:1046 Ag 30 '39 140w

Reviewed by A. L. Murray

Churchman 153:16 S 1 '39 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '39

Reviewed by Norman Cousins

Current Hist 50:1 Ag '39 1000w

Foreign Affairs 18:380 Ja '40 40w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting

Forum 102:iv S '39 100w

New Repub 100:139 S 6 '39 40w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p3 Ag 13 '39 1250w

"The book offers further proof that all Englishmen make good speakers and all speeches make dull reading."

New Yorker 15:66 Ag 19 '39 60w

"The prevailing tone of Mr. Eden's discourses is the youthful idealism and moral fervor for which he became famous in Geneva and London as champion of collective security. There is frequent reference to the horrors of war which young Captain Eden experienced in France, and to the hopes for a braver new world which his generation thought that they had created. Most of his orations, however, seem notable for style rather than substance."

Sat R of Lit 20:18 Ag 12 '39 370w

"Mr. Eden has done well to republish these speeches. They reveal, as perhaps nothing else can within the confines of a single volume, the difficulties with which he had to contend, his achievements, and the character of one who is obviously deeply concerned for the future of his country and of mankind. These speeches are in the best tradition of British statesmen." Ronald Cartland

+ Spec 162:778 My 5 '39 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 13 '39 650w

Reviewed by E. O. Hauser

Survey G 28:633 O '39 90w

"The manner of the speeches . . . is remarkably uniform and remarkably characteristic. One and all, they are sincere, forthright, free from the slightest trace of ambiguity or guile, unrhetorical, perhaps a little unimaginative, never shocking the reader by a fall from grace but never delighting him by an unexpected or illuminating turn of phrase."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p258 My 6 '39 550w

EDGE, SIGRID A. Books for self-education. 95p pa 75c A.L.A.

016 Bibliography—Best books. Self culture (W) 38-29049

"A briefly annotated list of books 'not for the expert but for the person who, because of gaps in education, loss of the habit of reading, or unfamiliarity with certain subjects, desires easy, readable approaches to many fields of knowledge'; compiled on the basis of recommendations from many librarians. The headings under which the books are grouped are: 'Success in Daily Living,' 'Cultural Background,' 'Successful Home Life,' 'Earning a Living,' 'Social and Economic Problems,' and 'Biography and Travel.'" J Home Econ

---

Booklist 35:167 Ja 15 '39

J Home Econ 31:332 My '39 80w

"Many of the titles suggested are too difficult for any but the exceptional person. In fact, many of them were listed by Miss Tompkins for the higher-grade reader. This, however, is not the fault of the compiler. It is rather an indication of lack of more suitable material and also of the many factors which may offset lack of technical reading ability and enable an adult to enjoy a book which would otherwise be too difficult for one of his degree of formal schooling. For these reasons and for differing ideas concerning simplicity in reading few people will ever agree on any selection of this nature. The usefulness of this one lies in the fact that it brings fairly recent and readable material together under subject, and it is the result of actual practice in selecting this type of reading for adults. It is also the sort of list the average person would like to own and check for his own reading." A. M. Farquhar

+ — Library Q 9:351 Jl '39 800w

Wis Lib Bul 35:139 Jl '39

EDGERTON, HAROLD EUGENE, and KILLIAN, JAMES RHYNE. Flash! seeing the unseen by ultra high-speed photography. 203p $3 Hale

778 Photography, Instantaneous. Stroboscope 39-29490

The author and his associates worked for some years to perfect a stroboscope by which ultra high-speed photography could be developed. The book describes something of this mechanism, and contains many photographs demonstrating its principles.

Booklist 36:195 Ja 15 '40

Reviewed by R. F. Crandell
Books p8 D 3 '39 1250w

"Never before has man really known what happened to the machines he built when they were operating at higher speeds than his eye could follow. . . 'Flash' will help us understand, and in the understanding will fascinate us as it opens the door to a world never before seen by human eyes." H. B. Kane

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 6 '40 600w

"Groups of Dr. Edgerton's pictures have been published in newspapers several times during the past few years. But this whole book of them, covering the fields of nature, sport and industry, is a compilation of magic and of things undreamed, calculated to excite the most sluggish mind." E. F. Hall

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 14 '40 700w
Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 D '39 320w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 190w

EDLUND, SIDNEY WENDELL, and EDLUND, MARY GARLICHS. Pick your job—and land it! 300p il $3 Prentice-Hall

331.1152 Applications for positions. Man marketing clinic, New York (W) 39-3092

For several years the authors have conducted a Man Marketing clinic with the object of helping men and women to get jobs by "selling" themselves. This book gives a summary of the methods they have found successful—the portfolio, letters of application, advertising, etc.

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 21 '39 20w
Management R 28:376 O '39 60w

EDMAN, IRWIN. Arts and the man. 154p $1.75 Norton

701 Esthetics 39-28972

"A short introduction to aesthetics." The book is a revision of the author's The World, the Arts, and the Artist, originally published in 1928.

Booklist 36:153 D 15 '39

"This unassuming little book manifestly belongs to the world of art, and is itself a work of art. But Irwin Edman does not set himself apart, like a Pharisee of culture. The kingdom is freely open to all men of good will, save the unfortunate who have been 'connoisseured out of their senses.'" Albert Guerard

+ Books p6 D 10 '39 1550w

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow
Christian Science Monitor p12 D 23 '39 450w

"If the essay can be called an art form, Arts and the Man is certainly in a healthy state, for it fuses effectively the instrumental and the beautiful. It is a useful instrument, an introduction to art and philosophy that sends the reader to art itself, and it is written with a quiet lucidity and sincere love of beauty that give it the repose and balance and some of the perspective and refreshing quality of art itself." Mildred Boie

+ Forum 103:v F '40 400w

"This is a most serviceable primer. In spite of a certain archness of manner—the coyly punning title is a fair example—it leads the reader pleasantly and competently through his five-finger-exercises: The Arts without Tears. The method is appreciative rather than critical, and the theory of esthetics is as conventionally comfortable as an ancient dressing-gown. And as uncontroversial." D. F.

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:19 D 16 '39 210w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 D 2 '39 400w

EDMAN, IRWIN. Candle in the dark; a postscript to despair. 88p $1.25 Viking

901 Civilization. Philosophy (W) 39-28973

In this small book Professor Edman attempts to find an answer to the question: "What can we do to keep sane in a world gone mad?"

Booklist 36:143 D 15 '39

"This is a book to be read slowly, turning the phrases under the tongue, considering the ideas which express so much meaning in so small a compass. . . It would be difficult to criticize the purpose of 'Candle in the Dark,' although its argument raises many points where dispute seems in order. . . Professor Edman was writing his loving tribute to hope at the time that Poland was being invaded; we need it less at the moment when Finland is resisting, but doubtless times will come again soon when we shall need to see again a candle shining across the abyss." Lorine Pruette

+ Books p10 D 17 '39 550w

"Here is a fine, brave, sensitive book, containing in its eighty-eight pages of exquisitely wrought prose the very message we need today. Dr. Edman is no romanticist; he gives us relentlessly the causes for our despair and avows that only by facing them squarely can we have hope." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 154:17 F 1 '40 180w

" 'Candle in the Dark' is a charming, well-written little book, especially welcome at the holiday season for its wisdom and cheer." John Cournos

+ — N Y Times p9 D 3 '39 600w
New Yorker 15:119 D 2 '39 20w
Pratt p4 winter '40

"In this brief book, in passages poetic and passionate, Mr. Edman has done more than set up a straw mood to knock down. Nevertheless he does make the darkness deeper, it seems to me, than most men in America in this hour feel it to be. He writes, I suspect, for men whose hopes were higher to be flung down so far. But as a testament of faith in a time of trouble, he has written a book which may help the hearts and save the faith of many who share his trouble and his hopes." Jonathan Daniels

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:6 D 2 '39 450w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 D 2 '39 550w
Wis Lib Bul 36:15 Ja '40

EDMAN, IRWIN. Philosopher's holiday. 270p $2.75 Viking [10s Constable]

814 (W) 38-27920

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"A pleasant book for a leisure hour, witty, entertaining, and always interesting. If, in spite of the author's disclaimer, autobiography keeps creeping in, no reader will complain." G. M. A. Grube

+ Canadian Forum 18:381 Mr '39 340w

"Professor Edman . . . feels that biographies have been done to death by every possible type of man and woman, and therefore he tries to harden himself against adding to the list. Practically, however, he does succeed in painting a good self-portrait of a philosopher on holiday—intelligent, scholarly, tolerant, witty, kindly." B. L. C.

+ Cath World 149:119 Ap '39 210w
Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '39

"The whole book is friendly, human, wise, and tempting. Some readers may feel at times that the professor carries kindness almost too far; but they have taken him at the wrong moment. He asks for the after-dinner mood." B. S.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 18 '39 220w

New Statesman & Nation 17:838 My 27 '39 220w

Special Libraries 30:66 F '39

"For once a wholly delightful book, witty, urbane, amusing and at the same time cultivated, learned, wise." C. E. M. Joad

+ Spec 163:59 Jl 14 '39 1100w

"This captivating work . . . numbers among its many charms the merit . . . of remaining wholly recalcitrant to categorization and classification."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p212 Ap 15 '39 700w

EDMINSTER, ALLEN W. Gardening as a hobby; drawings by Eugen H. Petersen. 184p il $2.50 Harper

635.9 Gardening (W) 38-18723

Practical material on flower gardening in New England, New York, and New Jersey. Subjects discussed are: Location and color harmony; Soil preparation and plant foods; Plant propagation; Coldframes and hotbeds; Insects and diseases; Annuals; Perennials; Roses; Bulbs; The lawn; Plant lists. Index.

"Especially compact and intelligent, with clear, full listing and good cataloguing. A lot of useful ground is covered in a small book, even including such newfangled ideas as glass wool for winter mulch and the Boyce Thompson method of chemical propagation."

+ Atlantic Mr '39 70w

"If you want straight facts clearly presented, here they are. That, to our notion, is what an avowedly informative volume should do." R. S. Lemmon

+ Books p8 D 18 '38 80w

Reviewed by F. F. Rockwell

N Y Times p26 F 4 '40 40w

Special Libraries 30:66 F '39

Wis Lib Bul 35:25 F '39

EDMUNDS, MURRELL. Between the devil. 288p $2.50 Dutton

39-20958

A story of labor strife in a small Virginia mill town, told from the point of view of a young minister who, coming into the town to "save souls," finds he must do battle on economic and social fields first.

"Mr. Edmunds generally writes with commendable economy and dispatch. Nevertheless, the narrative carries no more conviction than a class B movie, which it resembles. Its characters are types, not people, and they fill their roles in the plot much too patly." W. J. Gold

— + Books p8 Ag 13 '39 550w

Reviewed by H. E. Rossell, Jr.

Boston Transcript p1 Ag 19 '39 310w

"A harsh, angry novel, but not so compelling as it might be."

New Repub 100:168 S 13 '39 40w

"Back in 1901, Mary E. Wilkins Freeman wrote a novel of a New England mill town called 'The Portion of Labor.' That has always seemed to me a great novel. 'Between the Devil,' though a much slighter work, reminds me of it. It's a good tale, a sound tale and a true and moving one." F. T. M.

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 27 '39 360w

"A thorough, documentary study. We call it that rather than a novel, for its values are purely social and explanatory. As a novel it would have to be criticized for its writing, which is flat and undistinguished by any sort of literary personality, and for its creaking mechanical structure. But these things matter very little when we choose to regard the story as a straight report of one battle in labor's long war for recognition." N. L. H.

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:20 Ag 19 '39 260w

EDWARDS, JAMES G., pseud. See MacQueen, J. W.

EDWARDS, LOVETT FIELDING. A wayfarer in Yugoslavia. 272p il maps $2.75 McBride [8s 6d Methuen]

914.97 Yugoslavia (W) 39-27314

Town by town, the author relates the story of his travels in Yugoslavia, discoursing on the scenery, history, architecture, the people, their customs and their food. Maps on endpapers. Index.

Booklist 35:288 My 1 '39

Books p25 My 7 '39 200w

Reviewed by F. S. Ambrose

Boston Transcript p2 My 13 '39 110w

"Odd names are as meat and drink to this Englishman. . . His book is full of names which are entirely strange to most readers, and packed with detail which needs to be followed with some care. But it is well and clearly written; its maps are helpful; its sixteen photographs are informative as well as picturesque. The book's interest is not only pertinent but haunting and human."

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 23 '39 480w

"A pleasant narrative."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p223 Ap 15 '39 160w

EDWARDS, NEWTON. Equal educational opportunity for youth; a national responsibility. 189p maps $2 Am. council on educ.

379.12 Education—U.S. Education and state. School finance. Educational surveys

39-27533

"A report to the American youth commission" consisting of a detailed study of the variations in the financing of education among states and communities, and the resulting differentiations in educational opportunity thruout the United States. Contains maps and statistical tables. No index.

Booklist 35:358 Jl 1 '39

J Home Econ 32:42 Ja '40 80w

"The educational profession owes the American Council on Education, the sponsor of the study, a debt of gratitude for its continued leadership and interest in vital problems affecting the welfare of the schools of the nation." L. L. Chisholm

+ School R 47:785 D '39 750w

EGE, MRS NEZAHET NURETTIN. Turgut lives in Turkey; il. by Theresa Kalab. 230p map $1.50 Longmans

Children in Turkey 39-27640

Story of modern Turkey for young readers. Turgut is a Boy scout, living in the city of Istanbul, and his family and friends come in for their share of the story. The picture of daily life and customs among the better classes is spiced with a slight mystery. Glossary.

Booklist 36:17 S '39

"If American children around ten do not, within the next six months, know more than their elders about life in Turkey, it will be because this book has not yet come their way. It is a story of the sort that means to get as much active information about a foreign country into a child's book as possible; its success, judged on that basis, will be hard to match. . . The book has the prime advantage of being written from the inside." M. L. Becker

+ Books p5 Ag 6 '39 650w

EGE, N. N.—Continued

"The story is satisfactorily plotted and well illustrated, and the printing especially suited to young eyes." Vivian Lundberg

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 100w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 13 '39 100w

"The author, very naturally, is anxious to present her country and its people at their best and shows interesting contrasts between the old and the new, but the book is written in a didactic, choppy manner. However, it is valuable for knowledge conveyed, and the slight mystery might make it more interesting to some." Sonja Wennerblad

+ — Library J 64:904 N 15 '39 70w

"Accurate but over-loaded."

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:27 N 18 '39 20w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 10 '39 200w

EGERTON, F. CLEMENT C. African majesty. 348p il $3.75 Scribner [18s Routledge]

916.711 Bangangté. Kamerun, French

39-20058

The author, an English publisher and a student of anthropology under Malinowski, spent several months in the French Cameroons, most of the time living in the hut of the king of Bangangté. The book is in two parts, the first gives an account of the trip to Bangangté, the second, and longer part, describes the life there. Index.

Reviewed by M. C. Hubbard

Books p2 Ag 20 '39 750w

Reviewed by George Herzog

Boston Transcript p2 S 2 '39 380w

Manchester Guardian p7 D 13 '38 330w

"Informative as is the author's account of a society largely pagan, his remarks on their character and on French methods of administration, both in relation to future development, are even more illuminating. They are those of a well-balanced and careful observer. . . Mr. Egerton writes lightly and easily; but no reader of his book should allow himself to be misled into thinking that what he has to say is not deserving of most careful and mature consideration."

+ Nature 143:179 F 4 '39 500w

New Repub 100:196 S 20 '39 70w

"Mr. Egerton will probably not persuade many of us to plan for a vacation in Bangangté, or in neighboring Africa. But his book, while being an exceptional contribution to social knowledge, is absorbing reading for any one, whether scientifically minded or not. 'African Majesty' is worthy of more than a casual glance. A very human narrative executed with urbanity." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 13 '39 600w

New Yorker 15:55 Ag 12 '39 50w

"In spite of a few thin spots, occasional chronological confusion, and a somewhat scanty attention to the natural history of the region, this remarkable work is a lot more than an ordinary travel book. It is one which has that force capable of making readers, without knowing why, conscious of an approach to human life likely to let new light in upon their own lives. Evidently that is what Mr. Egerton wanted to do for himself, and he must have succeeded." Raymond Holden

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:5 Ag 5 '39 500w

"If 'African Majesty' is supposed to be a book of travel and a serious anthropological study, it is not precisely Mr Egerton's fault that it falls somewhat short of being either. There isn't much about travel. . . There is little startling about the people he studied. . . What distinguishes Mr Egerton's book is a superb collection of about 125 pictures of African life, and an excellent study of an African king."

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 6 '39 550w

Time 34:60 Ag 7 '39 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p90 F 11 '39 550w

EGLOFF, GUSTAV. Physical constants of hydrocarbons; 4v; v 1, Paraffins, olefins, acetylenes and other aliphatic hydrocarbons. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 416p $9 Reinhold [45s Chapman]

547.2 Hydrocarbons (39-7977)

"This book is the first of four volumes which will give values for the boiling point, melting point, density, and refractive index of the pure hydrocarbons. Volume I covers the paraffins, olefins, acetylenes, and other aliphatic hydrocarbons." Ind & Eng Chem

---

"The introduction to the present work is particularly helpful in its clear and complete description of the scheme of organization of the data and the review of the Geneva system of nomenclature for hydrocarbons. The limitations of the data and of the methods of interpolation are treated fully. However, data on each series are not available continuously to the highest member and become spottier with the unsaturates." J. H. Boyd, Jr.

+ — Chem & Met Eng 46:374 Je '39 300w

"There are a number of statements in the introduction to Volume I to which this reviewer does not subscribe. . . However, Dr. Egloff is to be highly complimented on the accomplishment of this work and on his generosity in placing this tabulation of properties of hydrocarbons at the disposal of all technologists and scientists. In addition to giving a valuable bibliography, one of the important services rendered by such a compilation of properties of chemical compounds is to indicate what data are lacking and what substances need to be studied." F. D. Rossini

+ — Ind & Eng Chem 17:389 Je 10 '39 900w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:24 Ap '39

EINAUDI, MARIO. The physiocratic doctrine of judicial control; with an introd. by Charles Howard McIlwain. 96p $1.50 Harvard univ. press [6s 6d Oxford]

320.15 Physiocrats. Courts—France. France—Constitutional law. Economics—History

38-29392

"Examines an aspect of physiocratic theory which has been generally neglected, that is, the restraint exercised by the judiciary over the executive. For reasons arising out of the condition of France in the eighteenth century, the physiocrats looked to the royal power to introduce their reforms, and thus they elaborated their theory of 'legal despotism.' But the powers of their prince were not to be unlimited, for they were to be subject ultimately to the control of the judges. Signor Einaudi seeks to prove that this was an integral part of their theory, and not an after-thought introduced 'to stay the hand of a prince previously endowed with unlimited powers.'" Eng Hist R

Reviewed by C. F. Mullett

Am Hist R 44:979 Jl '39 360w

Reviewed by W. S. Carpenter

Am Pol Sci R 33:146 F '39 490w

"Signor Einaudi's study is careful and exhaustively documented, but he does not convince the reader that the previous neglect of this aspect by other writers was not due to its comparative insignificance in the body of physiocratic doctrine. . . Within the limits prescribed by the author himself the book is valuable, and serves as a supplement to his own more general work in Italian on 'judicial control.'" D. W.

+ Eng Hist R 54:369 Ap '39 250w

EINZIG, PAUL. Economic problems of the next war. 146p $2.50 (7s 6d) Macmillan

330.19355 War. European war, 1914-1918—Economic aspects [39-16309]

"Dr. Einzig examines in detail the various aspects of war economy, and makes a series of suggestions as to how the mistakes made in the economic sphere during the last war could be avoided. He discusses the reorganisation of production and consumption, the adjustment of foreign trade to war requirements, the budgetary and monetary policies to be pursued, and other matters." Publisher's note

---

Reviewed by Alzada Comstock
Am Econ R 29:573 S '39 320w

Reviewed by F. K. Mann
Ann Am Acad 206:207 N '39 800w

"Dr. Einzig's effort is a simply written, first-rate summary of the problems that every power preparing for war must take into account. One misses, however, a clear statement of the methods that democratic countries might adopt in order to secure more rapidly the degree of preparation required in order to meet the war economies already in existence in Italy and Germany." Eston Maxwell

\+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 15 '39 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '39

Foreign Affairs 17:808 Jl '39 40w

Manchester Guardian p7 F 17 '39 160w

Reviewed by Adeline Macrum
Special Libraries 30:315 N '39

"It is all done in a hundred and fifty pages, and it is all written so that he who runs may read, without benefit of previous training in economic theory or more than an ordinary general knowledge of economic institutions and their working. There is no attempt, as the author explains, to produce a comprehensive handbook of war economy; he is concerned to 'study some of the broad problems and suggest tentative solutions.'" Honor Croome

\+ Spec 162:184 F 3 '39 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p82 F 11 '39 160w

EINZIG, PAUL. World finance, 1938-1939. 307p $3 Macmillan [12s 6d Routledge]

332.4 Economic conditions. Currency question [39-17073]

Brings up to date the author's previous books World Finance, 1914-1935, and World Finance, 1935-1937 (Book Review Digest, 1935, 1937). "This book will probably be subject to criticism on the ground that it is too political for a book which purports to describe financial developments. Considering, however, that during the year under review the political factor has become more important in the sphere of international finance than all the other factors put together, the introduction of political arguments into a volume of current financial history requires no apology." (Pref) Index.

"The book is an interesting survey, but the author has allowed the intensity of his convictions to become too evident." D. C. Cline
Ann Am Acad 206:208 N '39 600w

Booklist 36:36 O 1 '39

Reviewed by C. N. Stabler
Books p10 Ja 28 '40 750w

Foreign Affairs 18:160 O '39

"World Finance, 1938-9, is well up to the standard of its predecessors; beautifully clear, logically arranged, neatly balanced between narrative and analysis, and written with a liveliness which makes the technicalities of exchange control as exciting a subject as the political developments with which they are linked." Honor Croome

\+ Spec 163:226 Ag 11 '39 800w

"Dr. Einzig has performed a useful service in bringing up to date his widely known international financial year-book."

\+ Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Je 17 '39 270w

ELDON, CARL WILLIAM. England's subsidy policy towards the Continent during the Seven years' war. 178p pa $2 The author, c.o. Drexel inst. of technology, 32d & Chestnut sts, Philadelphia

942.072 Seven years' war (French-English). Great Britain—Foreign relations. Finance—Great Britain 39-704

"As stated in the preface, this study 'explains why patriotic Englishmen thought it better to hire foreign troops for the defense of England and the prosecution of the war in Germany than to depend upon British soldiers. . . It reveals to some extent the diplomacy of a little-explored subject and throws light upon the domestic angle of the subsidy policy.' For the most part, it is based upon the Newcastle and Hardwicke manuscripts in the British Museum and upon materials in the Public Record Office." Am Hist R

Am Econ R 29:134 Mr '39 50w

"Making money may be an innocent occupation, as Dr. Johnson averred, but it is also rather uninspiring, and when the absence of political idealism is also considered, any account of eighteenth century policy is likely to suffer somewhat in consequence. Professor Eldon has not transcended these difficulties, and added to this there are numerous misprints and awkward constructions in the book, and an index is also lacking. Aside from these considerations and within the limits of English source materials, this is a careful work of scholarship that forms a valuable addition to a difficult and neglected aspect of eighteenth century history." S. H. Nulle

\+ — Am Hist R 45:210 O '39 260w

ELECTRIC AND MUSICAL INDUSTRIES, LIMITED. Electron optics; compiled and written by O. Klemperer. 107p il pa $1.75 Macmillan [pa 6s Cambridge]

535 Optics, Electronic [39-11551]

"An introduction to the study of electron optics. While written mainly for graduate students, the development of the subject almost from first principles extends its usefulness. The cardinal points of electron lenses determine their behaviour and properties. These are deduced on the basis of field plots, and the parallel optical concepts are neatly worked into the scheme. Other important chapters deal with aberrations and magnetic lenses, and a final chapter is devoted to applications." Nature

---

Reviewed by George Glockler
J Phys Chem 43:815 Je '39 120w

"[Mr Klemperer] has performed a difficult task very well indeed. His choice of subject-matter as well as his method of giving examples of immediate practical applications of theory should prove most stimulating to all his readers." L. Jacob

\+ Nature 144:402 S 2 '39 130w

"Klemperer's Electron Optics represents not only an excellent introduction, in condensed form, to this new science for workers in allied fields, but also, at the same time, contains much interesting information for the specialist in electronics." E. G. Ramberg

\+ R of Scientific Instruments 10:295 O '39 400w

ELIOT, GEORGE FIELDING. Bombs bursting in air: the influence of air power on international relations. 173p $1.75 Reynal

623.74 Aeronautics, Military. U.S.—Defenses. International law and relations (W) 39-27534

"This book is a study of the effect of air power on present European conditions, and of the essentially different character which air power assumes when regarded from the point of view of the defense of the United States. . . The discussion of America's interest in air power is, in a sense, an amplification and particularization, in the light of recent developments, of the views expressed by the writer on that subject in The Ramparts We Watch [Book Review Digest, 1938 and June, 1939], with special attention to the growing importance of long-range aviation to this country." (Introd) Index.

ELIOT, G. F.—Continued

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Atlantic Ja '40 100w
Booklist 35:359 Jl 1 '39

"A sound and sensible monograph on air power." Walter Millis
+ Books p3 Je 18 '39 950w

Reviewed by A. H. Harris
Boston Transcript p3 Ag 12 '39 230w
Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 10 '39 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '39

"Straightforward, concise, Bombs Bursting in Air is a valuable handbook and guide to air power in the next war." Norman Cousins
+ Current Hist 50:4 Jl '39 700w
Foreign Affairs 18:159 O '39 40w
Living Age 356:591 Ag '39 150w

"Major Eliot's new book is hardly the aeronautical equivalent of Mahan that its subtitle suggests. It is no treatise, but rather a short—and if superficial still admirably clear—handbook on air power for the middle-class trade; reading time, one hour and forty-five minutes." Eliot Janeway
— + Nation 149:21 Jl 1 '39 900w

Reviewed by John Chamberlain
New Repub 100:51 Ag 16 '39 1100w

Reviewed by Leslie Neville
N Y Times p4 Je 11 '39 1050w
New Yorker 15:95 Je 10 '39 30w

"Major George Fielding Eliot, who by past writings appears to be able to make military matters plain to the American people—a most difficult task—deals with the question of air power with marked success. . . One may disagree with certain of his conclusions, but it appears that in general he has pointed out with clarity what we must do in the future to be safe. Air power is one growing factor whose place and might is hard to judge. Major Eliot in this short book has made a start." J. H. Burns
+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 Je 17 '39 550w
Wis Lib Bul 35:141 Jl '39

ELIOT, GEORGE FIELDING. The ramparts we watch. 370p maps $3 Reynal
355 U.S.—Defenses (W) 38-28945
For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by J. W. Thomason, Jr.
Atlantic S '39 220w
Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '39
Foreign Affairs 17:633 Ap '39 50w

Reviewed by A. R. M. Lower
Pacific Affairs 12:318 S '39 1100w

"As this is Major Eliot's first important venture into the field of military criticism, he naturally enough reveals some faults. He is a little credulous in saying, as he does, that the whole course of human history reveals that armaments do not breed war. His historical background is not all that it might be. . . Despite these minor defects, The Ramparts We Watch is destined for a large and important place on the shelf of indispensable books in American history and politics. . . It is commended to every student of public affairs and to every citizen who has the welfare of the nation at heart in these times that try men's souls. Because of Major Eliot and his work, it can no longer be said that the United States is lacking in a first-rate military critic." E. M. Earle
+ — Pol Sci Q 54:98 Mr '39 900w
Pratt p9 spring '39

"Only an intelligent public opinion, based upon national self-interest, will produce a balanced program for defense. The book furnishes essential data for such a program." Hampton Anderson
+ Survey G 28:242 Mr '39 650w
Wis Lib Bul 35:25 F '39

"This book is a timely and well-written warning against American participation in European quarrels." C. C. Tansill
+ Yale R n s 28:622 spring '39 800w

ELIOT, THOMAS STEARNS. The family reunion. 131p $1.50 Harcourt
812 (W) 39-27242

A drama in verse which tells a modern story with overtones of Greek tragedy. The various members of an English family are gathered to celebrate the birthday of the dowager and to await the return of the eldest son who has been for many years abroad. He returns, only to leave again at the bidding of the fates in search of release from the knowledge of a secret crime.

Booklist 35:267 Ap 15 '39

"In every way this is a disappointing performance. The drama is lost in philosophical disquisition, and the poetry fails to exhibit what Mr. Eliot calls 'auditory imagination' to the same degree as his previous work. There are several fine passages of small dramatic value, and many less fine which remind us, rather gratuitously, that 'whatever happens began in the past, and presses hard on the future.'" Babette Deutsch
— + Books p6 Je 4 '39 750w

"Written in the free unrhymed verse form of Murder in the Cathedral with a groundwork of hexameters and an inclination toward weak endings such as 'I wonder how many we will be for dinner,' Mr. Eliot has re-created a Greek tragedy in an English country house. At first it seems almost to be an Eliot parody but the crowding ideas behind the rhythmic power of the verse soon raise it to great drama." E. VR. W.
+ — Cath World 149:628 Ag '39 420w

Reviewed by Edward Shillito
Christian Century 56:1072 S 6 '39 900w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 29 '39 190w
Churchman 153:34 My 15 '39 60w

Reviewed by H. G. Leach
Forum 102:48 Jl '39 10w

Reviewed by Delmore Schwartz
Nation 148:676 Je 10 '39 1000w

" 'The Family Reunion' seems to me a better play than 'Murder in the Cathedral,' better integrated, less of a charade. This time the subordinate characters are real persons, fuller, more differentiated, more sympathetic; and the ideas behind the play are fused into the action and the characters; it is difficult (and this is as it should be) to divorce the theme or the moral from the play itself." Louis MacNeice
+ New Repub 98:384 My 3 '39 1100w

"It seems to me that what poets and playwrights have been fumbling at in their desire to put poetry into drama and drama into poetry has been here realized. It is this kind of play, designed first for the theatre and then expressed in terms of clear, dramatic poetry, that has the best chance of survival. If one were to add an opinion to this description it would be to say that this is the finest verse play since the Elizabethans." P. M. Jack
+ N Y Times p2 Ap 9 '39 1050w

"The writing is as clear as crystal. The whole thing, the view of Eliot's latest metaphysical murkiness, is an amazing piece of work." Louise Bogan
+ New Yorker 15:103 Ap 15 '39 600w

"The poetic diction probably does well enough—for a play. The metrics are execrable, except in the light of the same qualification. They are not too tight but too loose, which means, nevertheless, that they do not really encroach on the prose feeling of a realistic play, and are quite prepared to abdicate entirely if necessary. There is just occasional poetic language independent of drama, or in set and undramatic speeches." J. C. Ransom

Poetry 54:264 Ag '39 2050w

Pratt p22 summer '39

Reviewed by Sherman Conrad

+ Sat R of Lit 19:12 Ap 1 '39 550w

"T. S. Eliot's latest verse play deals with the timeless problem of human destiny. Perhaps the most striking thing about the beautiful cadenced diction in which the play is written is its absolute naturalness, its lack of all verbal tricks and mannerisms. . . This work adds notably to Mr Eliot's stature. No one else could have written quite such a play. A few more such works as his recent pair of dramas and this poet, critic, and dramatist will cease to belong to a clique, and take a place among those who have wide appeal both to their own generation and to generations yet unborn—a part of popular English and American literature." R. J. Conklin

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 2 '39 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p176 Mr 25 '39 650w

"Mr. Eliot's experiment in domestic drama is an even more decisive technical triumph than 'Murder in the Cathedral,' not because it contains actually better verse but because the problem to be solved was more difficult and he does well with it. . . [However] I find no verse here so memorable as parts of 'The Rock' and 'Murder in the Cathedral,' but that was, no doubt, Mr. Eliot's intention. He had to be extremely careful in this piece not to pitch any passages so high as to make them seem verse interludes in a prose context. A brilliant feat; but if my own feelings can be trusted, the least satisfactory of Mr. Eliot's long poems." F. A. Pottle

+ — Yale R n s 28:836 summer '39 950w

ELIOT, THOMAS STEARNS. Old Possum's book of practical cats. 46p $1.25 Harcourt [3s 6d Faber]

811 Cats—Poetry (W) 39-33125

Collection of humorous poems about cats of many varieties.

Cath World 150:508 Ja '40 120w

Manchester Guardian p3 O 27 '39 50w

"Mr. Eliot successfully avoids the usual vices of children's books, archness and cuteness; for his cats are practical cats, cats engaged in getting something purposeful done or undone; and the genres of Edward Lear are emulated skilfully. One merely doubts the universality of appeal." Delmore Schwartz

+ Nation 149:737 D 30 '39 700w

Reviewed by Chauncey Hackett

New Repub 101:266 D 20 '39 600w

"Delightful Learish verse on very English cat characters, with flashes of superior, donnish satire."

+ New Yorker 15:107 N 18 '39 20w

"If you like nonsense, or cats, if your ear appreciates verse-forms that with equal ease can echo Poe, Kipling, or their own cater-wauling, read Eliot. Then pick out your favorite feline. 'Macavity: the Mystery Cat' is already spoken for. You can't have him." Marion Strobel

+ Poetry 55:221 Ja '40 80w

Reviewed by Amabel Williams-Ellis

Spec 163:842 D 8 '39 60w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 26 '39 300w

"As a literary curiosity, Old Possum's cat book rates high. The verses, which show a perfect skill, are profoundly Anglican, closer in spirit and allusion to Edward Lear and Lewis Carroll than to any U. S. humor. In some of them Eliot goes kittenish in a big way, recalling that suspect, sissified element in Lear and Carroll which sets U. S. teeth on edge. Yet latent in other of Possum's poems is enough ferocious fancy and parody to knock the spots off most cat books and most child verses."

+ — Time 34:87 N 20 '39 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p578 O 7 '39 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup sup i D 16 '39 1050w

ELLIOT, GERALDINE. The long grass whispers; il. by Sheila Hawkins [with a foreword by Margaret Read]. 132p $2 Putnam

39-23641

Animal tales of Central Africa, retold for young readers. They relate how the animals live and talk, how the leopard got his spots, what makes the frogs eyes pop out, etc.

"Sheila Hawkins' illustrations are as 'delightful and full of laughter' as are the adventures of Kalulu, the Rabbit, and Kamba, the tortoise." M. P. Johnson

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 30 '39 100w

"There is something refreshing about this collection of folk tales. . . The stories were related to the author by an old Ngoni man, whose grandmother had told them. They are full of humor, which is reflected in the drawings by Sheila Hawkins. Children from seven to ten will enjoy reading this collection." Josephine Smith

+ Library J 64:805 O 15 '39 90w

Reviewed by Mary Stocks

Manchester Guardian sup ix D 1 '39 200w

"These tales have the keen delight in animal tricks and ways, the natural humor, common to folklore the world over, and as such will please children who have not outgrown the conviction that animals do think and talk. Unfortunately the vocabulary is a little elaborate, and the tales smack more strongly of the English school room than of Uncle Remus's pungent wisdom, but the total effect is brightened by Sheila Hawkins' illustrations, drawn in a merry mood, as pleasing to the eye as they are amusing." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p26 N 12 '39 240w

ELLIOT, MRS KATHLEEN MORROW. Jo-yo's idea; with il. by Roger Duvoisin. 115p $2 Knopf

39-27858

Life on the Island of Madura, off the coast of Java, is the background for this story of Jo-yo. He was a very forgetful boy until he conceived the idea of training his father's two bulls for the annual race. Then nothing could stop him until he won the prize.

Booklist 36:90 N 1 '39

"Mrs. Elliot's work grows steadily stronger and her stories show greater body and substance. The quality of her style, too, is grateful to the ear when read aloud as Jo-Yo's Idea deserves to be for its humor as well as for its picture of an unfamiliar part of the world." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 16:45 Ja '40 180w

"This is probably an accurate picture of the life and people of the South Sea Islands. Certainly it is not one that is pleasant. The book, with illustrations by Roger Duvoisin, is attractive in format, but the story will have very limited appeal. Recommended only for large library collections." E. G. Mullan

Library J 64:904 N 15 '39 100w

"The book is distinguished in design and Mr. Duvoisin's pictures in warm, glowing colors match the vividness of Mrs. Elliott's style. A welcome addition to books about child life in other countries." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 D 3 '39 330w

"Amusing story, beautiful pictures."

+ New Yorker 15:88 N 25 '39 30w

ELLIOTT, GEORGE ROY. Humanism and imagination. 253p $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press [11s 6d Oxford]

144 Humanism. Imagination 38-38646

The essays, most of which have previously appeared in periodical form, are identified with the critical creed of Babbitt and Paul E. More though bringing out some of its limitations. Contents: The divergence of humanism and the spirit of poetry; Irving Babbitt as I knew him; Paul E. More and the gentle reader: Stuart Sherman and the war age; On religion and humanism; Life dramatic; Emerson's "Grace" and "Self-Reliance"; Notes on civilization and Christianity; A rumination on the face of nature; A reflection on the nature of symbols; Index.

Reviewed by W. M. Frohock
Commonweal 29:499 F 24 '39 300w

"It is a treat to read a book written by a man who is at once scholarly and prophetic. The structure of the book is based upon the author's treatment in Part I of Paul E. More and Irving Babbitt, and in Part II of Emerson. Here, in true scholarly fashion by means of comparison and analysis, the humanism of these men is viewed and criticized. For students of American thought this approach should be valuable and stimulating." R. V. Wells
+ Crozer Q 17:84 Ja '40 230w

Reviewed by F. I. Carpenter
New Eng Q 12:558 S '39 370w

"This volume, for all its sober scholarship becoming to a humanist, is a fighting plea for 'a new deal in ideas,' and in particular the ideas of Babbitt and More." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p17 Ja 29 '39 500w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenckes
Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 7 '39 1150w

ELLIS, CLIFFORD, and ELLIS, ROSEMARY. Modelling for amateurs. (How to do it ser) 79p il $3.50 (7s 6d) Studio

731 Modeling (W) [39-27250]

Instructions with illustrations on casting and modeling in clay. Toy animals, puppets, and masks are described in the process of being made.

Booklist 35:274 Ap 15 '39
N Y New Tech Bks 24:26 Ap '39

ELLIS, HAVELOCK. My life; autobiography. 647p il $3.75 Houghton

B or 92 (W) 39-27979

This autobiography was begun more than forty years ago, and finished only a few weeks before the author's death. It gives a very full account of his early years, and of his marriage to Edith Ellis. Index.

"My life is a book worthy of study. Though it may appear to many as an outline of provoking justifications, fundamentally it remains, like its predecessors of the ages, an apologia pro domo sua. It offers a mass of valuable material which sheds light on the perennial question of the relationship between neurosis and creative work." Gregory Zilboorg
+ Atlantic N '39 850w

Booklist 36:132 D 1 '39

"The total effect of the autobiography is that of a very egocentric account of a mind by no stretch of the imagination of the first order and of a spirit never remotely of the first quality. To take a deep breath, to utter large transcendental phrases is not to be profound. To say 'my life was a harmony' is not to prove it. As for the writing itself, it is hard from the evidence in this book to know why even a few could ever have regarded Havelock Ellis as a great stylist. . . The frankness, as things go these days, will bother nobody. But the smug 'spirituality,' the sentimental sensuality, the Browning club—pre-Raphaelite Fellowship of the New Life comments on love, the pompous pulling of littleness into bigness will irritate." Irwin Edman
— Books p3 N 5 '39 2000w

"For all his candor, there is something terribly distressing about this nobly whiskered savant's dry, sterile, probing attachment to [his wife]. It does not seem to help that he himself realizes his deficiencies. And it is doubly distressing because Ellis's capacity for pain by no means equals his capacity for love." E. B. Garside
Boston Transcript p13 N 10 '39 1100w

"While it is possible that the revelations in My Life will be a help to some people, it seems to me the help will be in the direction of a conviction that any old prosy marital relationship is better than this experimental stuff." M. M. Colum
Forum 102:258 D '39 1600w

Reviewed by Karl Menninger
Nation 149:618 D 2 '39 1600w

"At first reading one is terribly disappointed in this book: partly because of its lack of depth and self-awareness, partly because of the limitations of character which it discloses. On reflection, however, Ellis's observations bear up well: for if this is not the autobiography one might have expected from a twentieth-century admirer of Rousseau—Ellis thought Rousseau the most important influence since Christ—'My Life' has still the claim of a great human document, written from the heart. It is essentially the history of the central failure of his life: his marriage with Edith Lees. Out of that failure, in all its ramifications, came no small part of his wisdom." Lewis Mumford
+ — New Repub 101:265 D 20 '39 1400w

Reviewed by E. G. Richards
N Y Times p5 N 12 '39 1050w

"Serenely honest, graciously written record of a wise and tender man, last of the great Victorians."
+ New Yorker 15:90 N 11 '39 60w

"They who seek inside information about Ellis's books will find very little here, but they who seek to get close to the complex of dreams, fears, hopes, agonies, bewilderments of one of the gentlest, most charitable, and most useful men of the last hundred years will discover in this volume an unfailing source of genuine inspiration and a vast reservoir of beauty."
+ No Am 248:413 winter '40 200w

"The story of his marriage . . . is woven of ironies so terrible and so poignant that they carry the reader beyond criticism, beyond judgment, into the region of humble tears which only great books ever touch. But there are times when it seems in danger of turning into a joke book. . . There are formidable paradoxes in this bewildering book. . . The one that goes hand in hand with you from the first page hinges on Ellis's complete lack of humor. The faculty was not even vestigial in him, it simply did not exist, and in the first third of the book, before the tragedy of his marriage is apparent, his most heartfelt solemnities reduce the reader to uproarious laughter. . . Do not miss this book. It is instinct with the insoluble mysteries of men and women. It is a deep well from which everyone will bring up what he can, but something surely, that bears on the insoluble mysteries of human greatness." Bernard DeVoto
Sat R of Lit 21:10 N 4 '39 3750w

"From the standpoint of style the present volume does not add to Ellis's prestige in the field of belles-lettres. It lacks incisiveness. There is a vast amount of trivial detail unbecoming the last will and testament of so prominent a man. Style depends on ideas and convictions, and these are noticeably absent. If autobiography is real life, as Mr Ellis puts it, and his motive in writing is to help others to achieve 'the supreme art of living,' this autobiography falls short of its mission. At best it can be regarded as one more case history to be added to his famous sex studies." F. G. B.
Springf'd Republican p10 N 22 '39 650w

Reviewed by Ordway Tead
Survey G 29:35 Ja '40 300w

Time 34:80 N 6 '39 460w

"This naked self-revelation is one of the most tragically beautiful stories ever told, one transcendently rich in understanding and misunderstanding, in frankness and honesty, in grasp and helplessness, by a mind as magnanimous as it was magnificent." Sydney Greenbie

+ Yale R n s 29:409 winter '40 1200w

ELLISON, EARL JEROME. The prisoner ate a hearty breakfast. 218p $2 Random house 39-10760

Young Shannon Light, one of the post-War generation, wanted to become an artist but not the "sissy" kind. He had talent and good prospects, but when his girl died after an illegal operation, life dealt him a severe blow. He carried on for a time, had some curious and bizarre adventures, but was eventually defeated.

"The author's resolution to write his first novel in the style popularized by James M. Cain and John O'Hara was a happy choice for, although he is not as tough as Cain or as adept as O'Hara, the style suits the subject very well, and 'The Prisoner Ate a Hearty Breakfast' is a well made, simply described, violent but extremely sensitive book." F. J. Feldkamp

+ Books p7 My 14 '39 700w

"Most of the action is fast and moving, but the characters are rather shopworn and the style a lesser variation of Hemingway and Cain."

New Repub 99:56 My 17 '39 50w

"I think Mr. Ellison has assembled more ingredients in a shorter space than any of his predecessors in the field. And he has kept his hard-boiled, sob-in-the-throat, toughly sensitive and sensitively tough melodrama swinging along in expert fashion. After you think it over, of course, it is all mildly preposterous; but, by golly, it keeps you going till the last black line is crossed." F. T. Marsh

N Y Times p7 My 14 '39 450w

"Interesting but disjointed."

New Yorker 15:100 My 13 '39 50w

"Out of similar material Cain can construct plausible, expert melodrama; O'Hara, at his best, considerably more than that; but Mr. Ellison's gallimaufry of action has no significance in itself, and acquires none from occasional shots of sophomoric 'philosophy.' " G. S

— Sat R of Lit 20:20 My 6 '39 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 9 '39 280w

ELLSBERG, EDWARD. Men under the sea. 365p il $3 Dodd

627 Diving, Submarine. Salvage (W) 39-27859

Accounts of the salvaging of the S-51, the work on the S-4, and the rescue from the Squalus of Lieutenant Naquin and his thirty-two comrades. Includes descriptions of the "bends" and other undersea diseases.

Booklist 36:84 N 1 '39

"There is high adventure down below, as is proved on practically every page of this narrative. Even the chapters devoted to diving records, diving equipment, and diving difficulties are alive with illustrative anecdotes. The technical coverage of salvage diving is complete, but the style is utterly non-technical; nor does Commander Ellsberg alienate readers who happen to be better informed by over-explanation." R. F. Armknecht

+ Books p6 O 8 '39 2000w

" 'Men Under the Sea' is written in a direct, rapid style and should afford a great deal of pleasure to those who like red-blooded literature."

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 4 '39 120w

Cath World 150:505 Ja '40 500w

"If the risks are great, so are the rewards. . . It is Commander Ellsberg's deft balancing of these two breath-taking components that defies the reader to find a stopping place anywhere in the book." H. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 O 25 '39 550w

Reviewed by Otis Ferguson

New Repub 101:147 N 22 '39 350w

N Y New Tech Bks 24:54 O '39

"Commander Ellsberg's . . . information, obviously, is completely authoritative. His style is a pliant instrument that permits him to credibly dramatize these detailed accounts of daring rescues, of the necessities that resulted in invention, and of the recovery of sunken treasure."

+ N Y Times p4 O 8 '39 750w

New Yorker 15:103 O 14 '39 50w

"Commander Ellsberg happily combines two very effective qualities. First, his personal participation in the submarine salvage diving, so that his report is direct and first-hand. Second, his possession of what Kipling held as so rare a quality—when the man of Achievement does not have to wait upon the man with the Words. The author has an easy, flowing, yet dramatic style, combined with the ability to write telling and convincing dialogue." William Beebe

+ Sat R of Lit 20:6 O 7 '39 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 22 '39 2000w

ELLSWORTH, PAUL THEODORE. International economics. 529p $4 (18s) Macmillan

380 Commerce. Economic policy. Commercial policy 38-23746

Textbook for upper class students in a Liberal Arts course. The author is associate professor of economics at the University of Cincinnati. "Mr. Ellsworth discusses the development of the international trade theory and the history of the modern point of view on international economics. The significance of governmental policy in the sphere of international economic relations is analyzed." (Management R) Index.

"If one agrees with the author's prefatory statement that 'this volume can make no claim to originality,' one recognizes that the volume achieves not only the goal of a 'systematic and well-ordered text,' but also the 'somewhat more ambitious task' of a theoretical grounding and an education in international policy for upper division students. Professor Ellsworth's book is more inclusive and in general more exhaustive than the comparable (and very excellent) works of Harrod and Whale. The inclusiveness, it is true, occasionally entails a cost of rather tenuous treatments, as for example, of commercial treaties and tariff bargaining. . . Upon the stock-in-trade subjects of international-trade theory and policy, the author has written lucidly, agreeably, and with sound judgment; but he has also incorporated recent theoretical advances, such as the general-equilibrium approach to international prices, the income-adjustment theory of transfers, monopoly, discrimination, and monopolistic competition analysis, and the defensible residuum of Keynes's apology for protection. Certain matters of detail are, of course, open to question." H. S. Ellis

+ — Am Econ R 29:116 Mr '39 850w

Reviewed by E. M. Patterson

Ann Am Acad 203:236 My '39 320w

Foreign Affairs 17:631 Ap '39 10w

"This book is to be commended for its recognition of the importance of short-term capital movements in adjustment processes. Likewise the classification of 'earnings on investments' as a 'service' item seems to be sound. On the other hand, the reviewer feels that too much emphasis is put on the importance of 'secondary' inflation and deflation in the mechanism of adjustment. Again, the analysis of adjustments to changes in demand and supply conditions fails at times to note the possible effects of induced variations in the rate of international investments and in dividend payments. Teachers of undergraduate courses may possibly find that the discussion has been put on too high a level even for upper-division students. That, however, can be determined only by actual classroom use. In any case there is no question that Professor Ellsworth has written an excellent survey of the theoretical aspects of international trade and commercial policy—a book that could well be used in graduate as well as undergraduate courses." A. J. Duncan

ELLSWORTH, P. T.—Continued
+ — J Pol Econ 47:296 Ap '39 420w
Management R 27:430 D '38 40w

ELMER, MANUEL CONRAD. Social research. 522p $3 Prentice-Hall

307.2 Sociology—Methodology. Social work. Research 39-7613

"It is the purpose [of this book] to present the problem of social research, calling attention to the use which may be made of specific research methods and the necessary interrelation of different methods in an adequate study of any social research project; in other words, to present to the student the trends in the development of social research, the outstanding experiments in developing particular types and methods, and their application to the analysis and explanation of social causation. While some space has been allotted to the subject of research techniques, it has been done from the viewpoint of indicating their use rather than of presenting the information which would come under the designation of the mechanics and tools of social research." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by H. F. Gosnell
Am Pol Sci R 33:1116 D '39 400w

"The contents of the volume are a strange mixture of ponderous abstract statements, quotations from other authors, and excerpts from research reports. The treatment is eclectic in the chaotic sense. One does not feel that the author is ruling his material. . . These faults will make the book confusing to the beginner in social research and irritating to the advanced student. . . One of the merits of the book is the author's frequent warning against mere fact-gathering or 'counting research.' Another is that it makes the student aware of many types of social research. Not only are various projects described and excerpts from their statements of method or their findings given, but there are carefully prepared bibliographies at the end of each chapter." R. C. Angell
— + Am Soc R 4:726 O '39 450w

"Dr. Elmer has written a text that should prove very useful to those who are in any way interested in social research. . . The book covers a wide range of topics. . . Although the wide variety of subjects covered is a valuable feature of this book, this fact also constitutes its chief weakness. The treatment of a number of the topics has been extremely compressed because of the limitation of space. . . The book is written in a simple and readable style." C. F. Schmid
+ — Ann Am Acad 205:151 S '39 350w

Reviewed by M. J. Hagood
Social Forces 18:287 D '39 450w

ELSTOB, PETER. Spanish prisoner. 320p $2.50 Carrick

946.08 Spain—History—Civil war, 1936-1939—Personal narratives 39-5913

Personal narrative of a young English aviator who went to Spain to fight for the Loyalist cause, but thru some misunderstanding was arrested as a spy and spent several months in prison.

"What this harrowing experience did to [the author's] political convictions, if any, the author does not reveal. His book, however, will stand on its own merits as a human document and a revelation of what war is behind bars. Now that he has a wife like Medora it would seem that he came out of it all extremely well." Leland Stowe
+ Books p6 Mr 26 '39 1100w

Reviewed by Frank O'Flaherty
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 8 '39 410w

"Strangely enough, it is one of the easiest and pleasantest books to read about the Spanish war; Mr. Elstob has an even, humorous temper, and tragedies, as he recounts them, do not depress." A. W. J.
+ Manchester Guardian p5 S 1 '39 290w
New Repub 98:388 My 3 '39 50w
New Yorker 15:87 Mr 25 '39 40w

"Mr. Elstob's story is emotional and moving. . . If the book falls far short of 'The Enormous Room' in descriptive power and style, yet it has recorded vivid experiences in a simple, direct way." J. B.
Sat R of Lit 19:19 Mr 25 '39 330w
Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 24 '39 240w

"The book is of value chiefly as a study of life under the constant fear of immediate death."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p486 Ag 19 '39 430w

ELTON, OLIVER. Essays and addresses. 275p $2.50 Longmans [7s 6d Arnold, E. & co]

804 Literature

Collection of essays and addresses on various aspects of literature. Contents: Style in Shakespeare; The present value of Byron; Robert Bridges and The Testament of Beauty; Alexander Pushkin; Chekhov; Karel Capek: short tales and fantasias; Karel Capek: later novels; Reason and enthusiasm in the eighteenth century; The nature of literary criticism; George Saintsbury; James Fitzmaurice-Kelly. Index.

"These [essays] are all valuable introductions to the men they treat of. Professor Elton is adept at combining with his estimate of a writer an enticing compte rendu of the writer's contribution to letters. . . Two personal estimates of George Saintsbury and James Fitz-Maurice Kelly bring a humane and scholarly book to its appropriate conclusion." Basil de Sélincourt
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 7 '39 260w
New Repub 102:189 F 5 '40 30w
Times [London] Lit Sup p666 N 18 '39 600w

ELWIN, MALCOLM. Old gods falling. 412p $3.50 Macmillan [15s Collins]

820.9 English literature—History and criticism. Authors, English 39-24343

"Mr. Elwin offers in this book a survey of popular English literature between 1887 and 1914. It is his contention that the period was dominated by Humbug, Prudery, and Respectability, that writers who did not compromise with the conventions had little chance of success in an age that worshiped Rider Haggard, Hall Caine, Conan Doyle, Marie Corelli, and Mrs. Humphry Ward." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

"Malcolm Elwin, as literary historian, is an entertainer. He's an eclectic, happily not aged enough to be mellow; an iconoclast, too informal and breezy to be pedantic; always prejudiced but never didactic. He's a guerilla fighter who ducks the battle to lead his cavalry against those now straw men, ghosts of the armies that won Marston Moor and Naseby. A stout warrior against the Puritans, of whom there are few left save for the straw dummies he picks up and bats down again, he's an engaging and well informed, a rare, raconteur." F. T. Marsh
+ — Books p6 Jl 16 '39 1100w

Reviewed by R. A. Chace
Boston Transcript p3 Jl 22 '39 500w

Reviewed by E. K. Brown
Canadian Forum 19:195 S '39 1000w

Reviewed by J. G. E. Hopkins
Commonweal 30:463 S 8 '39 260w

"Mr. Malcolm Elwin has written the most entertaining book about fiction that has appeared for some time. He has a theory, a commonplace one, but that does not matter. He makes some incursions into rather splenetic political criticism, and these may be forgiven, for when he is writing about individual writers he is as lively as he is illuminating." B. I. E.

+ Manchester Guardian p7 Jl 18 '39 240w

Reviewed by Nigel Dennis

New Repub 101:26 N 8 '39 300w

"That not everybody will agree with Mr. Elwin's appraisals is nothing against him. He cannot away with The Brook Kerith, and thinks Esther Waters Moore's masterpiece. He has a perfect right to his opinion. Many people regard Rider Haggard as a far better public servant than romancer; few will think Guy Boothby worth the three or four pages Mr. Elwin devotes to him. But the chief controversy is likely to arise about the extremely high place he assigns to John Galsworthy, who may almost be called the hero of his book. It is in the chapters on Galsworthy that the book is most happy: indeed, it becomes actually charming, and one reads it with the ease and admiration which are always stirred when a writer has a theme exactly to his mind. But this does not mean that Mr. Elwin convinces." E. E. Kellett

New Statesman & Nation 18:24 Jl 1 '39 600w

"The upshot of Mr. Elwin's young and lively book is to convince us, against his argument, that we had better still follow the 'well-trodden' tracks of the earlier critics. He has added very little to the lives and reminiscences of the period save a beautiful belief that we are freed from all the Victorian obsessions with respectability, prudery and humbug, and at the beginning of a 'golden age of fiction.' Alas, we are in an age of friction, from which Mr. Elwin cannot begin to free us." P. M. Jack

N Y Times p2 Jl 23 '39 1100w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd

Sat R of Lit 20:13 Jl 1 '39 750w

"On the whole, he is fair, and gives his subjects their due, so that the whole is a book which will certainly be useful to students of the period, though not contributing anything very new to the subject."

Times [London] Lit Sup p323 Je 3 '39 500w

EMBREE, EDWIN ROGERS. Indians of the Americas; historical pageant; il. by Howard Grieg. 260p maps $2.75 Houghton

970 Indians (W) 39-24953

A simply written account of the Indians of America, their history, manners and customs under ancient civilizations, their conquests by the Whites, and their present status. After a chapter on the probable origin of the American Indians the book takes up in turn the Mayas, Aztecs, Incas, and finally the Indians of North America—on the Western plains, in the East, and in the Southwest. Index.

Booklist 36:107 N 15 '39

"For the first time, Edwin R. Embree's 'Indians of the Americas' provides a general survey which any one can read with pleasure and accept as sound. . . Hereafter whenever some one asks 'about the American Indian' I shall gratefully refer him to Mr. Embree's book." Oliver La Farge

+ Books p8 D 24 '39 700w

"The anthropological material is carefully studied—for the former director of the Rockefeller Foundation and president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund could not afford to do anything in an unscholarly way—and the discussion of the white man's treatment of the Indians, though brief, is intelligent and sympathetic."

+ Christian Century 56:1277 O 18 '39 120w

Reviewed by K. C. Kaufman

Christian Science Monitor p14 N 18 '39 650w

"Inside the limits of a comparatively small book Mr. Embree has presented a subject of large scope and great importance. It is difficult to see how he could have done a better piece of work on the task that he set himself. Into it he has woven a compelling story and a sympathetic interpretation of the Indians' customs and ideals." E. F. Allen

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 14 '40 1050w

"'Indians of the Americas' is interesting, competent, and instructive. In treatment, while lacking the complete detachment of a scientific report, it avoids at the same time the usual pitfalls of romanticism and sentimentality. It can be thoroughly recommended as a non-technical lay introduction to the subject of the American Indian." C. S. C.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:22 D 30 '39 350w

Springf'd Republican p6 O 23 '39 250w

Reviewed by Maria Chabot

Survey G 28:763 D '39 450w

Wis Lib Bul 35:214 D '39

EMELEUS, HARRY JULIUS, and ANDERSON, JOHN STUART. Modern aspects of inorganic chemistry. 536p il $9 Van Nostrand [25s Routledge]

546 Chemistry, Inorganic [39-4780]

"This work has been designed to give a review of some of the important developments which have taken place in inorganic chemistry during the past two decades and to relate these developments to the science as a whole. The authors have departed from the common practice of discussing the elements group by group, on the basis of the periodic classification. It is their view that, for the reader who already has a working knowledge of the periodic system, it is more illuminating to deal with related compounds and special topics, which provide, as it were, a cross section of the subject. Much that is accessible elsewhere has been omitted, and has been replaced by new work which, for the most part, has not found its way into the standard textbooks." Ind & Eng Chem

---

"The subject matter is presented in clear, readable form, and the book as a whole supplies that which the student of inorganic chemistry has long wanted. Not only should the book prove of particular value to teachers, graduate students, and research workers whose main interest is inorganic chemistry, but also to their fellow workers in other fields of chemistry." Raleigh Gilchrist

+ Ind & Eng Chem 17:614 S 20 '39 250w

Nature 143:742 My 6 '39 350w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:53 O '38

"Honours university students and research workers will find the book of great value. It is well indexed and adequately provided with references to original papers."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p499 Jl 23 '38 120w

EMERSON, RALPH WALDO. Letters [1813-1881] ed. by Ralph L. Rusk [pub. with the aid of the Albert H. Wiggin fund]. 6v il $30 Columbia univ. press [£7 7s Oxford]

B or 92 39-12289

These six volumes contain 2,584 letters, many of them never before published. "In the half century since Emerson's death interest in his letters has inspired the publication of half a dozen partial collections, beginning with Charles Eliot Norton's well-known edition of the Carlyle-Emerson correspondence. All these collections, however, and all the biographical studies besides, have not made available more than 500 letters printed in full and less than 300 printed in part. Prof Rusk catalogs in all over 4000 letters by Emerson, of which some 1200 known to have been written but not now recoverable are merely mentioned and 509 already printed elsewhere are listed. A complete and literal text is given for 271 letters hitherto printed in part and for 2313 never printed before. In addition the footnotes refer to or quote from several thousand unpublished letters to Emerson, including many from members of his family and from men and women of literary or political importance." (Springf'd Republican) Index at end of volume six.

EMERSON, R. W.—Continued

"It is not likely that any contribution to the field of American letters for some years to come will prove of more lasting value than this publication of Emerson's letters. Professor Rusk has done a distinguished and highly effective piece of editing. Not only has he explored every conceivable nook and cranny for Emerson letters but he has succeeded also in securing photostatic copies of nearly every item. This has made it possible, probably for the first time, to transfer an extensive correspondence to the printed page with literal exactness, keeping spelling, punctuation, and capitals as in the original documents." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p1 My 28 '39 1800w

"Tribute is undoubtedly due to Mr. Rusk, whose years of patient labor have resulted in so monumental a work of literary scholarship. Barring some bewilderment on the part of the reader as to the rationale of the system by which the editor has abridged or omitted certain letters, Mr. Rusk's edition will meet general approval, approval the more richly deserved in view of the magnitude of the task." H. M. Jones

+ Boston Transcript p1 My 20 '39 1750w

"This is a noble body of material, edited with every resource of careful and competent scholarship and published in a form worthy of the contents." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 56:798 Je 21 '39 950w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 24 '39 850w

Reviewed by Norman Cousins
Current Hist 51:5 D '39 50w

Reviewed by H. B. Charlton
Manchester Guardian p7 Je 27 '39 850w

Reviewed by K. B. Murdock
New Eng Q 12:767 D '39 3000w

Reviewed by Van Wyck Brooks
New Repub 100:78 Ag 23 '39 2250w

"Not many events in the history of American literature have been more important than the publication of these long-awaited volumes. For here is a large body of writing from the pen of America's foremost writer, most of it hitherto unknown to ordinary readers and inaccessible to scholars, laid before us by expert and devoted labor in a format little short of magnificent. Here is a work to be greeted as a classic at the moment of its appearance, and one which generations of students will find indispensable. Here is a performance boldly planned and triumphantly achieved, of which America has every reason to be proud." Odell Shepard

+ N Y Times p1 My 28 '39 1900w

"Masterfully edited, printed, and bound."

+ New Yorker 15:102 My 13 '39 20w

"The publication of R. L. Rusk's monumental six-volume edition of Emerson's letters is an outstanding event in America's literary history. The editorial work itself is a superb example of painstaking and skill." Townsend Scudder, III

+ Sat R of Lit 20:3 Je 10 '39 3950w

"To anyone who has the patience for sustained reading and the pocket to support his tastes this intimate and fascinating revelation of the mind of America's greatest man of letters may be commended. . . With the help of the extensive notes, often very readable in their own right, the reader may feel the quality and purpose of these letters almost as the correspondents themselves felt them. One may come close in these pages to Alcott, Carlyle, Margaret Fuller, Greeley, Hawthorne, Norton, Parker, Sumner, Thoreau and many others; for with the help of an exceptionally detailed index it is possible to trace any person or topic with a minimum of effort. One may come to know the Emerson household almost as though one boarded there. Above all, one may have the unforgettable experience of communing with the gentle, serene, questing mind of our own saint and seer, and that experience would justify the publication of many volumes." G. F. Whicher

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 14 '39 900w

Time 33:82 My 29 '39 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p388 Jl 1 '39 2550w

Reviewed by S. T. Williams
Yale R n s 28:849 summer '39 1550w

EMERSON, SYBIL. Pigeon House inn [pictures by the author]. 152p $2 Crowell

Children in France 39-21788

Pleasant story for eight to twelve-year-olds, describing a summer spent in Normandy, in which some children from Paris discover a treasure in an old pigeon house.

"As the best story to show little American children how little French children live in Paris is unquestionably Miss Emerson's 'Jacques at the Window,' [Book Review Digest, 1936] which came out in 1936, it is well that the author-artist kept on and in the present book brought back the same characters in a provincial French setting. . . The outline drawings, touched with colored crayon, have the robust, juicy look of the landscape of Normandy, the beauty of its architecture, the homely human solidity of its peasants, the sweetness of small French children on their good behavior." M. L. Becker

+ Books p30 N 12 '39 250w

Christian Century 56:1110 S 13 '39 10w

"It is a charming story with lovely pictures. . . Boys and girls may broaden their horizons when they read about the sturdy fisherfolk who live on the seacoast of France, the background for the happy holidays of this lively group." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 27 '39 90w

Churchman 153:24 D 15 '39 10w

"Miss Emerson tells a simple, refreshing story. . . She has made the scenes and people of Normandy real and fascinating by her many lovely pictures." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk M 15:386 N '39 70w

"The author is an artist, and it is hard to choose between her charming and observant drawings and her pleasant story." F. C. Durvell

+ Sat R of Lit 21:28 N 18 '39 70w

Wis Lib Bul 35:219 D '39

EMMONS, WILLIAM HARVEY, and others. Geology; principles and processes. 2d ed 451p il maps $3.75 (21s) McGraw

550 Geology 39-3186

New edition of a textbook first published in 1932. "The book has been reset and the material rearranged; chapters have been expanded, and a chapter on sediments and realms of sedimentation has been added." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 35:235 Mr 15 '39

"The original or first edition of this book was an excellent text, but this new and thoroughly revised edition includes many improvements. It well embodies the mature experience of the members of a department of geology who have cooperated effectively in the presentation of an elementary course in physical geology." L. M. Gould

+ J Geol 47:778 O '39 150w

ENCYCLOPEDIA Americana. 30v il maps heavy red buckram, light-weight blue buckram $150 and up, depending on binding; special discounts to schools and libraries c1939 Americana corp, 333 N. Michigan av, Chicago

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 39-10411

"Earlier editions of the encyclopedia have been evaluated in Mudge's Guide to Reference Books, sixth ed., and in the Subscription Books Bulletin, January 1932 and October 1936 [Book Review Digest 1934, 1936]. . . In general the revisions [in this edition] are of the same type as those in the 1936 issue, though more extensive. New topics of recent importance have been added, existing articles on certain subjects have been completely or partially revised, and minor errors in previous printings have been corrected. Space for the new material has been provided by the omission or condensation of older articles. Revisions appear to be most extensive in the fields of science, technology, industry, social sciences and biography. . . Bibliographies show revision to correspond with that of the text and frequently also in the case of articles whose text is unchanged. . . Among the illustrations there are numerous excellent new plates which in most cases replace less up-to-date and significant pictures. On the other hand most of the portrait plates which formerly illustrated the biographies have been eliminated." Subscription Bks Bul

"While the new material and minor changes bring much of the encyclopedia essentially up to date, the unevenness of the revision is often apparent and is likely to prove sometimes confusing to the user. . . While the 1939 issue of the Encyclopedia Americana is greatly improved by the revisions of the past few years, it is not an essential purchase for libraries which have the issues of 1932 or later. The Encyclopedia Americana, 1939, is recommended for libraries and individuals wishing to make a first purchase and for those needing to replace worn copies of earlier issues."

\+ — Subscription Bks Bul 10:51 O '39 1000w

ENCYCLOPAEDIA Britannica; a new survey of universal knowledge. 14th ed 24v il maps duro buckram, with first signature of each volume on special heavy paper, to libraries and schools $185 (20 per cent discount to libraries and schools); Britannotex $159.75 c1939 Encyclopædia britannica

032 Encyclopedias and dictionaries [39-1138]

"Reviews of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, 14th ed., original issue of 1929 and revised issue of 1936, have appeared in the Subscription Books Bulletin for January 1930 and October 1936 [Book Review Digest, 1934, 1936] in Mudge's Guide to Reference Books, sixth ed., and in Reference Books of 1929 by Mudge and others. Two printings have been issued during 1939. That examined for this review was copyright January 10, 1939. . . With this issue the publishers announce that they contemplate no new numbered edition of the encyclopedia. The set is revised to a certain extent with each reprinting. The accumulated revisions, since the Britannica was last reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin, consist for the most part of changes in existing articles, some being expanded; they include also a few short new articles; e.g., George VI of Great Britain; Landon, Alfred M.; Committee for industrial organization; and Townsend plan. Room has been made for the new material by condensing older articles, shortening or deleting bibliographies, or, in a few cases, by inserting new lettered pages, such as p.848E and p.848F in the article on the United States of America. Minor errors in previous issues have been corrected." Subscription Bks Bul

"Libraries which have earlier issues of the 14th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, especially the issues of 1932 and later, will not need this latest one, although it is, of course, improved by such revisions as those indicated. The 1939 issue of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is recommended for libraries and individuals who wish to make a first purchase or to replace copies of earlier printings."

\+ Subscription Bks Bul 10:53 O '39 650w

ENGLE, PAUL. Corn; a book of poems. 105p $2 Doubleday

811 (W) 39-27484

A volume of poems, in various metres, styles, and lengths, by the author of American Song (Book Review Digest, 1934). After several years abroad Engle has returned to his native Iowa and for the most part finds life there more satisfying than elsewhere.

Booklist 35:346 Je 15 '39

"Whether or not Engle is moving forward in his thinking must be left to each reader to determine. It is without a doubt, though, that his expression has quieted down in keeping with his more meditative spirit. His poetry is more conventional in metre, more controlled in imagery. The really distinguished pieces are short ones. . . The longer, more ambitious poems read unevenly—sometimes unimprovable, sometimes expansive and prosaic." Kerker Quinn

Books p3 Je 4 '39 800w

"It is a good book. Better even than 'American Song.' It is a good book because it contains poetry by a poet writing about things he knows and understands. It is better than good because it is poetry felt deeply, transmitted with a sure and moving line. The craftsmanship is adequate, the imagery fresh, and arresting."

\+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 17 '39 310w

Reviewed by H. G. Leach

Forum 102:48 Jl '39 10w

"In a rich volume—much of which might, incidentally, be entitled 'Home Thoughts From Abroad'—Paul Engle abandons very completely the wordy confusion and the almost turgid wrathfulness of 'Break the Heart's Anger' to return to the earlier manner which showed such promise in 'American Song.' It is a happy thing for all concerned. The lover of fine poetry is given a book of it, which, though not faultless, is far above the general contemporary average." T. C. Chubb

\+ N Y Times p4 My 28 '39 400w

"Engle's [background] is that of the brilliant young Rhodes scholar whose second book was so much overrated by its critics as to lead to an equally mistaken reaction in the case of his third. He is largely the defeated expatriate, the cosmopolite, returned home early to lick his wounds. In his style, carefully massed for effect, are to be found echoes of MacLeish and the grave lyricism of Housman." J. G. Fletcher

\+ — Poetry 54:342 S '39 450w

"For the first time there is an indication of concern with craft, approach to style. 'March' and 'Windy Night' are not only the best poems Paul Engle has written, they are the first completely successful ones. And, significantly, they are the shortest. Which is not to say that Engle has mastered his medium. . . But for all that, 'Corn' is a better book than its author's first two. Less pretentious, more honest, quieter, it quickens our hope that the Whitman tradition may still give the Wallace Stevenses and Delmore Schwartzes competition." Selden Rodman

\+ — Sat R of Lit 20:17 Je 3 '39 440w

ENGLISH, GEORGE LETCHWORTH, comp. Descriptive list of the new minerals, 1892-1938; containing all new mineral names not mentioned in Dana's System of mineralogy, 6th ed, 1892. 258p $3 (18s) McGraw

549 Mineralogy 39-6353

"Lists all the new English names, giving for each the original citation and, wherever possible, information concerning crystal system,

ENGLISH, G. L.—Continued
form, color, hardness, specific gravity, chemical composition, chemical formula, and locality of occurrence." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 35:285 My 1 '39
J Geol 47:560 Jl '39 140w
Nature 144:958 D 9 '39 650w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:26 Ap '39

ENGLISH watercolours. (Iris bks) 10p $3 Oxford

759.2 Water color paintings

Reproductions in color of twelve water colors by Turner, Girtin, Cotman, Constable and Bonington. The brief text consists of a critical essay on the pictures and artists by Laurence Binyon, late keeper of prints at the British museum.

Booklist 36:152 D 15 '39

Reviewed by Royal Cortissoz
Books p3 D 17 '39 40w

Reviewed by F. W. Coburn
Boston Transcript p6 D 9 '39 230w

"These new color albums of Swiss manufacture fairly deserve their ambitious title, the Iris Books, for at a moment when the market is flooded with crude or merely plausible color reproductions we find here, instead, color plates of most refined execution and as near facsimiles as our present resources permit." F. J. Mather, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 21:12 D 9 '39 130w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 26 '39 50w

ENGSTRAND, STUART DAVID. They sought for paradise. 272p $2.50 Harper

39-27860

Story of a group of Swedish immigrants who came to America under the leadership of a fanatic, Erik Jansson, who had proclaimed himself the prophet of God. This story of the communistic settlement in which they lived, centers in the story of Nils Nilsson and Helga, the girl he loved.

Booklist 36:88 N 1 '39

"It is a good story in itself, but one wishes it had been better done. Mr. Engstrand is a fitful writer. His descriptive passages move along smoothly enough, but he has not yet mastered the art of dialogue. Speeches have touches of unnaturalness; here they are much too formal, there they overstate the feeling or situation. The historical background is interesting enough, but occasionally he oversteps his ability when he adds to it the fiction necessary to make a historical novel." Theodore English

+ — Books p14 O 15 '39 450w

" 'They Sought For Paradise' is an interesting and powerful book. It misses greatness, perhaps, by a mistake in emphasis. But it is a fine piece of historical writing, simple and sincere, which is charged with the spirit of a young and growing land. It will certainly increase Mr. Engstrand's stature as a novelist of the Middle West." D. C. Thompson

+ — Boston Transcript p1 N 4 '39 550w
New Repub 101:178 N 29 '39 40w

"The tale is a mature love story, beginning in Old Sweden and ending with the founding of what would be now an old Swedish-American family. It's alive and human, plain and forthright. But Bishop Hill had more to it than Mr. Engstrand gives us. And Eric Jansson, who became something of a charlatan, did not start out so." F. T. Marsh

+ — N Y Times p21 O 8 '39 500w
New Yorker 15:77 O 7 '39 30w

"Throughout, Stuart Engstrand writes with an unadorned directness and an earnest conviction that is appealing. But his theme could —and should—have been deepened by a more serious examination of the insanity that inspired the prophet and his followers." James Gray

+ — Sat R of Lit 20:14 O 7 '39 400w
Wis Lib Bul 36:16 Ja '40

EPLER, STEPHEN E. Six-man football; the streamlined game. 251p il $3 Harper

796.33 Football 38-31263

"This book attempts to give the general reader and spectator an idea of what the six-man game is and to be useful to the player, coach, official, and administrator who require specialized knowledge." (Pref) The author originated the game in Nebraska in 1934. Classified bibliography. Index.

Booklist 35:94 N 15 '38
Wis Lib Bul 35:110 Je '39

ERMARTH, FRITZ. From East to West; a traveller's reflections on politics and peoples. 145p pa $1.25 priv ptd The author, c.o. Univ. of Okla, Norman, Okla.

909.82 World politics. Nationalism and nationality 39-7428

"Apparently the fruit of a world tour, this record is not concerned with the experiences of travel but with the political and cultural problems of the peoples visited. Into 145 closely packed pages the author condenses much history as well as interpretative comment upon Japan, China, India, the Near East, and the European situation." Christian Century

"The book is not uninteresting, and the author seems to understand the clash of political, social, and economic forces characterizing the modern world. But his argument in favor of a kind of universal 'Cliveden set' policy which will result in peace, prosperity, and an ordered world is not at all convincing." B. W. Maxwell

— + Am Pol Sci R 33:728 Ag '39 120w
Christian Century 56:291 Mr 1 '39 80w

ERNST, MRS MARGARET (SAMUELS). In a word; drawings by James Thurber. 252p $2.50 Knopf

422 English language—Etymology. Humor (W) 39-27726

Two hundred and fifty English words are traced back to their obscure beginnings and then brought up to date in sprightly fashion. Over sixty of the words are further clarified by the addition of Thurber's drawings.

Booklist 36:37 O 1 '39

"It's clear Margaret Ernst knows a lot about words. One wonders how she explains their meanings to children—which she has done—for this volume is peculiarly an adult book. And if her definitions do not make things clear to you, James Thurber's sixty-three very Thurberish drawings will." Rose Feld

Books p12 O 8 '39 600w

"Trained philologists will yawn over the text of the volume, which is old stuff to them. Persons unacquainted with the vagaries of the language may get some pleasure out of the book, which makes the same appeal as the brain teasers in 'Information Please.' Whether you are philological or not, however, you are bound to be amused by the Thurber drawings, which have their usual wild lunacy." H. M. J.

+ — Boston Transcript p2 S 9 '39 110w

"To one and many, this book of words is excellent entertainment, particularly precious in these days of strain when words are so often used to inflame and to destroy." Nicolas Slonimsky

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 7 '39 700w
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '39

"Fascinating material, but the fun is all the author's. It isn't scholarly. It is over the heads of the nursery, but in its arch and impossible humor, its wooden sense of word values, it certainly got its start there. Worth owning for its 63 illustrations by James Thurber."

New Repub 100:195 S 20 '39 70w

"A gloriously funny book; and we use the adverb descriptively and not merely for emphasis. What we mean is that the humor of Margaret Ernst's text and James Thurber's drawings, in this book of word derivations, is, as the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary puts it, 'illustrious' and 'entitling to brilliant and lofty renown;' also 'intensely delightful.' "

+ N Y Times p11 S 10 '39 360w

New Yorker 15:80 S 9 '39 40w

Pratt p8 winter '40

"The book is refreshing and painlessly instructive." Basil Davenport

+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 S 30 '39 400w

"I could once have called this a vegetable and silly book and I should have been praising it, because it was a lively and happy idea to have produced so carefree a book about such complicated things as words. If the Thurber drawings have been left until last, it is because many of them could well stand on their own as brilliant cartoons. They are, however, indubitably part of the book, epitomising with astonishing ease and wit the many meanings of the words they illustrate." H. B. Mallalieu

+ Spec 164:54 Ja 12 '40 450w

Springf'd Republican p6 O 2 '39 280w

"The book is not a spoof—not a 'phoney.' The etymologies are genuine and pellucidly displayed. The comments are amusing; rarely does one feel that the effort of facetiousness is too ferociously sustained. In small doses it is delightful medicine for gloomy minds; nor need one be a scholar to enjoy it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p752 D 30 '39 390w

ERSKINE, MARGARET. The limping man. 279p $2 Doubleday

39-4284

Detective story.

"Margaret Erskine may be listed as a find for this first novel. She wins half the battle with a stirring and scary first chapter, keeps interest going throughout and winds up with that rare item, an exciting conclusion. Four casualties in all, against a sinister background. Get your copy." Will Cuppy

+ Books p13 Ja 15 '39 220w

"Septimus Finch is not too careful about toe-treading. The conclusion is a bit obvious, no doubt, but the rest of the story offsets that." Marian Wiggin

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '39 90w

"The story has many of the elements of a fine mystery yarn. The trouble is that it is just a little too mysterious. The detective jumps to conclusions with a celerity not always justified by facts in so far as they are revealed to the reader." Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p16 Ja 8 '39 160w

New Yorker 14:56 Ja 7 '39 40w

"Keen eyes may spot killer very early in tale but convolutions of plot and spooky background hold interest to finish. Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ja 7 '39 40w

ERTZ, SUSAN (MRS J. R. MCCRINDLE). Big frogs and little frogs. 363p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Hodder]

(W) 39-2388

Fifteen short stories, widely varied as to subjects, and ironic in treatment. Contents: Big frogs and little frogs; Vulnerable; Whither thou goest; Natural enough; Black and scarlet: You got to live; The awkward situation; Little journeys 1, 2, 3, 4; Hansi; Two birthdays; So this is Europe; Something in the air; Be yourself; On the rock; "Family man".

Booklist 35:230 Mr 15 '39

Reviewed by Iris Barry

Books p8 F 5 '39 430w

"Uncommon versatility and excellent craftsmanship characterize the work of this cosmopolitan artist, who is equally familiar with the French mind or the American scene. . . Dry irony, rather than actual humor, gives these stories pungency." Olga Owens

+ Boston Transcript p1 F 11 '39 300w

"That a writer of sensibility such as Miss Susan Ertz would be influenced by the new modes when she turned to the short story was unthinkable. Nor was she, and the reader who also has sensibility is grateful; for the fifteen tales she has collected in 'Big Frogs and Little Frogs' are authentic art mainly of the traditional kind. . . Without in any way impugning her individuality, we would rank Miss Ertz as the English equivalent of the late Mrs. Edith Wharton." Thomas Moult

+ Manchester Guardian p7 O 4 '38 450w

New Repub 98:84 F 22 '39 40w

"A smartly provocative collection of stories, very worldly and cosmopolitan in flavor, very readable, full of glittering tricks and devices. There is not a single humdrum tale in the lot. Neither, I might add, is there one single story which is not in one way or another showy and artificial." E. H. Walton

+ — N Y Times p7 F 5 '39 550w

"Expertly written and interesting throughout."

+ New Yorker 14:67 F 4 '39 50w

Pratt p31 spring '39

Sat R of Lit 19:19 F 11 '39 270w

"This is a competent and agreeable collection of superior magazine stories."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p617 S 24 '38 220w

Wis Lib Bul 35:50 Mr '39

ERTZ, SUSAN (MRS J. R. MCCRINDLE). One fight more. 407p $2.50 Appleton-Century

(W) 39-25441

Complicated story of a tangled family situation in which a man of seventy-eight plays the part of deus ex machina.

Booklist 36:110 N 15 '39

"The telling of the whole tale is an ingenious and smooth performance; the book is as lively as a cricket. Somebody somewhere is undoubtedly at this moment thinking to himself what a delightful movie it would make." Iris Barry

+ Books p6 O 29 '39 650w

Christian Science Monitor p12 D 9 '39 450w

"A book which can scarcely be ranked among its author's best." L. M. Field

N Y Times p24 O 29 '39 650w

"Amusing here and there."

New Yorker 15:82 O 28 '39 60w

Pratt p23 winter '40

"Miss Ertz writes clearly, pleasantly, carefully; she analyzes with especial interest the difference between the domestic attitudes of the English, the French, and the Americans. Unfortunately, she tends to insist that her characters strike these attitudes, and maintain them too consistently. Therefore, in spite of all the plot complications, and the author's smooth skill, the book is curiously wooden." K. S.

+ — Sat R of Lit 21:42 D 2 '39 200w

Time 34:86 D 11 '39 20w

Wis Lib Bul 36:16 Ja '40

ESHER, REGINALD BALIOL BRETT, 2d viscount. Captains and the kings depart; journals and letters [1910-1930] ed. by Oliver, viscount Esher. 2v 307;315p il set $7.50 Scribner

B or 92 Great Britain—Politics and government 38-35241

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by A. L. Cross
Am Hist R 44:904 Jl '39 420w

"It is not a particularly important story. There are no earth-shaking revelations. But no one can read these books without being highly entertained and at the same time gaining a new insight into the personal, often importantly personal, relationships that determine the course of world affairs. Their intimate, day-by-day record brings to life the diplomats, generals and politicians who really ran the World war." John Bakeless
+ Commonweal 29:444 F 10 '39 550w

"These two volumes . . . will prove useful to historians. His revelations on the political rôle of George V are particularly illuminating."
+ Foreign Affairs 17:641 Ap '39 40w

"Odds and ends of the 'Journals and Letters' are similar to fragments of a mirror reflecting the universe. They reflect the author's universal knowledge, the clarity of his spirited mind, his sense of beauty, in short, the divine spark which never fails to evoke the delighted response of those who indulge in the real pleasures of life. Whatever else Viscount Esher was —a statesman, a highly educated soldier, an author, a court official, a witty critic—his memoirs reveal him as artist. 'The captains and the kings depart,' but an artist's work is immortal." Rustem Vambery
+ Nation 148:154 F 4 '39 800w

"Though it contains some interesting personal sidelights on European as well as American statesmen, it really contributes very little to the understanding of the times. Where it should be clarifying, it is charming; and where it should be incisive, it is mellow."
No Am 247:190 spring '39 170w

ESSAY annual, 1939 [ed. by] Erich A. Walter. 310p $2 (8s 6d) Appleton-Century

814 American essays (33-15673)

"A yearly collection of significant essays, personal, critical, controversial, and humorous." (Subtitle) Partial contents: One man's meat, by E. B. White; America's medieval women, by P. S. Buck; American women are coming along, by Grace Adams; The old sewing room, by I. M. Tarbell; The place of the humanities in American education, by H. M. Jones; Mr White on Mr Coolidge, by Clifton Fadiman; "Government" vs. "Business", by Stuart Chase; Mind raid precautions, by Christopher Morley; The sock hunt, by Ruth McKenney; Freedom, by D. C. Coyle; The future of the American city, by Lewis Mumford. Bibliography.

Booklist 35:377 Jl 15 '39

Reviewed by E. B. Garside
Boston Transcript p2 My 20 '39 490w

ESTCOURT, DORIS. Little elephant comes to town; il. by M. K. Mountain. 119p $1.50 (3s 6d) Oxford

39-8130

Picture-story book for young readers, about a pigmy elephant, "a little bigger than the very biggest kind of dog." Jinx had a good brain, and when he escaped from the circus, he had a thoroly good time.

"Any child able to read the story—or to listen to it—is likely to envy Dan and Mary the possession of such a pet. The colored pictures are two pages wide, taking in spirited city groups and a caravan encampment in the country." M. L. Becker
+ Books p6 Ap 16 '39 280w

Reviewed by H. E. Bates
New Statesman & Nation 16:990 D 10 '38 80w

ESTERLINE, JOHN WALTER. Graphic routes to greater profits. 320p il $3 Esterline-Angus co, Speedway city, Indianapolis

658 Recording instruments 38-37234

"This book describes the use of graphic meters in connection with power, machines, processes, labor and products. The text is enhanced by numerous illustrations of graphic meter charts and the operations they record." Management R

"The book should be a readable and valuable addition to the library of every plant engineer."
+ Chem & Met Eng 46:232 Ap '39 140w
Management R 27:394 N '38 30w

ETS, MRS MARIE HALL. The story of a baby. 63p il $2.50 Viking

612.64 Embryology, Human. Infants 39-27642

Accurate scientific information, with illustrations, on the growth of the human embryo from conception to the time of the baby's first smile. "Wholly objective in treatment, this book will be useful in school libraries and in parents' collections. It should be read aloud by adult and child together." (Booklist)

Booklist 36:17 S '39

"The silly advertising of the publishers ('a first book for any child') remains silly. But for parents with some sense who really want to give a rational answer to sissy's and buddy's question, the book can be a godsend . . . if they use their brains." H. L. Binsse
+ — Commonweal 31:133 D 1 '39 350w

"Need for such a book is only too evident. . . Of picture-book size, with an arresting drawing on every page showing different stages of growth, we can think of no other fact book so likely to hold the affection of a young family. Doubtless there are many grown-ups as well to whom this information will be new and wonderful." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk M 15:304 S '39 200w

"The introduction seems a bit vague. The last portion which tells of the baby's birth, his care in the hospital, his homecoming and finally of his family's joy in his first smile is superbly done. An outstanding book in its field and one which deserves consideration by all libraries." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 64:762 O 1 '39 200w

"The illustrations are outstanding and delightful. They are not idealized and show how queer and senile a fetus looks. A newborn baby is beautiful only to his parents, but Mrs. Ets has caught the quaintness and appealing helplessness that clutches at the heart of most adults. Just how young a child would understand the text remains to be seen. The book will be an interesting experiment for parents as well as children and must certainly prove a forerunner to the inevitable questions concerning conception, which an intelligent child has every right to ask and certainly will ask."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 10:4 S '39 420w

"The format and the author's approach suggest that this book is designed for rather young children. . . This book does not seem to me to cover the real needs of the small child which have little to do with actual knowledge but which represent, rather, his need for reassurance that his interests are legitimate and that he can come with them freely to his parents. However the book should serve a very useful purpose for parents because of its generally sound attitudes and information." S. M. Gruenberg
Survey 75:356 N '39 170w
Wis Lib Bul 35:194 N '39

EULENSPIEGEL. Eleven merry pranks of Till the jester; freely narrated by Erich Kästner; with 10 il. in colour and many drawings by Walter Trier; tr. into English by Cyrus Brooks. 47p $1.25 Alliance bk. [3s 6d Imperia]

Retelling for young readers of eleven of the pranks of the Belgian jester, Till Eulenspiegel.

"Last year Mr. Jagendorf successfully retold thirty-seven of Tyll's exploits in 'Tyll Ulenspiegel's Merry Pranks' (Vanguard) with drawings by Fritz Eichenberg. Mr. Jagendorf's book delights children from 10 years on; Mr. Kastner's book is for younger children. Readers of all ages are charmed by Walter Trier's pictures, their soft, clear colors, their medieval atmosphere, their hearty gayety and humor suggestive of Breughel. The text is less satisfactory than Mr. Jagendorf's because it so often betrays by its stiffness that it is a translation. But the pictures are so pleasing and this hero is so popular with children that we are grateful for these simple retellings which are enjoyed by children of 8 and 9 before they are quite ready for the Jagendorf volume." A. T. E.

+ — N Y Times p32 N 12 '39 200w

"It is full of humor and will please children. Kindergarten to grade 5."

+ Wis Lib Bul 35:192 N '39

EUWE, MACHGIELIS. From my games, 1920-1937; tr. and with introductory notes by F. Reinfeld. 234p il $2.75 Harcourt [10s 6d Bell, G]

794.1 Chess 39-4432

A collection of seventy-five chess games, annotated by a former chess champion. All are games which the author has played.

Booklist 35:248 Ap 1 '39

"The annotations are admirably full and lucid, and err if at all on the side of impartiality. . . His play is marked by profound knowledge of strategy, logical simplicity, and remarkable coolness and courage. In addition he is one of the best teachers that the game has known. The games are all too few, and we look forward to another collection in a few years' time."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p714 N 5 '38 110w

EVANS, ABBIE HUSTON. The bright North. 85p $1.75 (8s) Macmillan

811 38-19997

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"Miss Evans is instinct with the essence of poetry, although perhaps she is rather too new to the practice of her art always to display herself to the best advantage. One looks forward with pleasure to her next collection." P. H.

+ N Y Times p18 Ap 30 '39 150w

"Miss Evans has the advantage, shared by few unestablished poets, of knowing both what she wants to say and how she wants to say it. . . Her themes are to be found in Wordsworth and many a poet since. From the same tradition comes her general technique of blending reflection with eye-on-object description. It is the tone of her statement that sets her apart. In order to convince us of her sincerity and enthusiasm and receptiveness, she assumes a defiant, challenging, almost vociferous tone that sometimes strains author and reader alike. Striving, perhaps, for Emily Dickinson's vigor and immediacy, she falls short through lack of control and variety. Nor has she Emily Dickinson's shrewdness in making words suggest more than they say or in testing imagery for effect. . . But the blemishes in Miss Evans' verse have by no means spread over all the pieces included in this volume." Kerker Quinn

+ — Poetry 53:339 Mr '39 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p238 Ap 22 '39 100w

EVANS, JOAN. Chateaubriand; a biography. 380p $4 (12s 6d) Macmillan

B or 92 Chateaubriand, François Auguste René, vicomte de [39-23903]

A biography of this French nobleman, man of letters and politician, whose life spanned the last years of the Monarchy, the Revolution, Empire and Restoration, and ended with the coup d'etat of 1848. The author has based her work on Chateaubriand's Mémoires d'outre-tombe, even to the extent of almost literal translation of certain passages. Select bibliography. Index.

"Miss Evans has accomplished what she set out to do. She has distilled into one readable volume as complete an account of Chateaubriand the man as most readers could desire, and one which it is not necessary to know his works to enjoy. In doing so she has also provided illuminating glimpses of many other interesting people, from George Washington to Sainte-Beuve, and contrived to give sympathetic portraits of the various ladies Chateaubriand disillusioned without making him seem a monster of egotism." James Orrick

+ — Books p2 Jl 16 '39 900w

"Miss Evans' style has a wit and sharpness which repays the leisurely reader. She entertains no illusions about Chateaubriand, yet she does not give herself up to smart cracks. Rather, she writes with rare understanding, and her book is full of such clever brief 'portraits' as would have been applauded in the 18th century salons." Sarah Chokla

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 12 '39 220w

"Miss Evans's life of Chateaubriand is the kind of book that fills one with surprise and dismay. Not that she has any cause to blush for it. People want biography of this type (I suppose they do, for the supply is increasing and uncomplained-of); Miss Evans has produced what they seem to want, and that with very little offence. Her book is intelligent and sympathetic, fairly humorous, not badly written. It is neither supercilious nor cheap. It is extremely well informed. There is nothing wrong with it, except the whole idea, and the assumption that 'classics' are unbearable at first hand." K. John

New Statesman & Nation 18:564 O 21 '39 750w

"Joan Evans has written a loving life of her writer and the result is a biography that gives as clear a picture of the subject as has yet been written." Herbert Gorman

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 16 '39 1550w

"Miss Joan Evans' 'Chateaubriand' seems to me to be a work of sheer supererogation. She apparently fell in love with her hero and she shows him as he wanted to be seen. . . Miss Evans sees him as the Regency beau, so handsome, so eloquent, just too, too divine." Ernest Boyd

— Sat R of Lit 20:11 S 16 '39 170w

"Miss Evans's book is a labour of love and piety. Its chief charm is her feeling of nearness to her subject—she writes of him as of a talented and delightful acquaintance; its main defect the almost complete lack of any critical or analytical point of view. From the resources of a copious bibliography she has compiled a lucid and well-written narrative; but an essay in straightforward story-telling the book remains. Chateaubriand's character is described with its high-lights and its shadows, but there is little attempt to analyse its composition. And, though Miss Evans indicates Chateaubriand's predominant place in contemporary French and European literature, the precise quality of this genius is left unanalysed."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p351 Je 17 '39 650w

EVANS, JOAN. Taste and temperament. 128p 48 pl $2.75 Macmillan [10s 6d Cape, J]

701 Esthetics. Temperament [39-21236]

"A brief study of psychological types in their relation to the visual arts." (Subtitle) Contents: The theory of the temperaments; Psychological types; Taste in the fine arts; The practising artist; Index. Illustrations grouped at end of book.

EVANS, JOAN—Continued

Reviewed by R. M. Ogden
Am J Psychol 52:648 O '39 600w
J Philos 36:670 N 23 '39 450w

"In detail one could quarrel with Miss Evans for ever, but the fact that one feels inclined to do so is a proof that she has struck a fruitful vein in art criticism. She may be working the vein backwards, or against its natural grain, or merely clumsily, but she has certainly written a book to make the reader think." Eric Newton
+ — Manchester Guardian p7 Ap 18 '39 420w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer
New Statesman & Nation 17:294 F 25 '39 1550w

"This little gem of scholarship by an honorary fellow of St. Hugh's College appears as one of the most promising among recent contributions to the psychology of art." R. B.
+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 Je 24 '39 220w
Times [London] Lit Sup p310 My 27 '39 440w

EVANS, MAURICE. G. K. Chesterton. 157p $1.75 Macmillan [5s Cambridge]

B or 92 Chesterton, Gilbert Keith [39-22365]

"A study of the personal philosophy of G. K. C. as he expressed it continually in his writings; a glimpse, therefore, of the creeds of the generations through which he carried his crusade, and of his cheerful, but rational and vigorous opposition to them." Publisher's note

---

"This is the Le Bas Prize Essay for 1938. It has the faults and merits of all prize essays, honors theses, and seminar papers. Its primary fault is that it has no place in the scheme of things. For the Chesterton lover or the Chesterton student it is neither deep nor thorough enough. As an introduction to Chesterton's works it is too pedestrian. . . Yet in [its] compactness lies the chief merit of the book. It adheres to a single line; it interprets all of Chesterton's work as propaganda for orthodoxy. As a result the organization of the essay is simple and direct and the thought, though somewhat over-simplified, always clear." O. E. Schoen-Rene
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Jl 8 '39 130w
Cath World 150:123 O '39 320w

"In evaluating his subject as a Christian apologist, Mr. Evans becomes a trifle deprecatory, but the book is on the whole judicious. It is only fair to say that not a little of the interest and charm is attributable to the numerous quotations from the works of G. K. C. that appear in these pages." J. G. E. Hopkins
+ Commonweal 30:302 Jl 14 '39 150w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét
Sat R of Lit 20:17 Ag 12 '39 500w

"Mr. Evans has done his task as well, perhaps, as it could be done by concentrating on the doctrines, and leaving out the man and his setting—but that is to leave out the greater part." R. A. Scott-James
Spec 162:1054 Je 16 '39 900w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 4 '39 650w

"Mr. Maurice Evans has a chapter, and one containing some of the best pages in his essay, on his author's highly personal and striking style, where [he] writes critically and well. But most of his essay is exposition, in which 'Orthodoxy' is the book which has been of most use."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p308 My 27 '39 650w

EVANS, ROBERT CRISPIN. An introduction to crystal chemistry. 388p il $4.50 Macmillan [18s Cambridge]

548 Crystallography. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical [39-21263]

" 'The title hardly does justice to a work which seeks to co-ordinate both the physical and the chemical properties of crystal structures with the four recognized types of interatomic bindings. A critical survey of authoritative data culled from a wide field provides the framework for a lucid account of fundamental principles: the Bohr atom in correlation with the periodic classification of the elements; the interatomic forces which stabilize specific atomic groupings; the lattice theory in relation to metals, alloy systems, ionic compounds (which include the silicates) and the empirical, often dubious "molecule".' " N Y New Tech Bks

---

"The present book is an excellent introduction to this field. . . It is very evident that the author has put in a great deal of care and thought in the organization of the material. . . The book is very readable, and the figures and printing are clear. It can be highly recommended as a textbook or for reading by anyone interested in the present status of the structural chemistry of solids." B. E. Warren
+ Am Chem Soc J 61:2570 S '39 320w

"Dr. Evans has assuredly written a volume which should never be far away from the mind and elbow of the serious student of the subject." F. I. G. Rawlins
+ Nature 144:6 Jl 1 '39 200w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:37 Jl '39

EVE, ARTHUR STEWART. Rutherford; being the life and letters of Lord Rutherford; with a foreword by Earl Baldwin. 451p il $5 Macmillan [21s Cambridge]

B or 92 Rutherford, Ernest Rutherford, 1st baron 40-1827

An authorized biography by a friend and colleague of many years. The book, a straightforward chronological account of Rutherford's life and works, is couched for the most part in non-technical language and contains many excerpts from Rutherford's personal correspondence with family and friends as well as from his letters to fellow workers and his speeches. Index.

Reviewed by H. N. Gardner
Boston Transcript p13 D 29 '39 170w
Christian Science Monitor p24 D 7 '39 500w

Reviewed by M. L. Elting
Forum 102:iv D '39 100w

"An extremely valuable feature of Professor Eve's biography consists in the extensive quotations from Rutherford's letters. Of especial interest are those written home to New Zealand when he was a young research worker in Cambridge. He wrote good letters and candid ones, both about himself and his environment, and they provide admirable material for the building up of a full picture of Rutherford 'in the round.' . . Those who know him only at the height of his career, in the Manchester and Cavendish Professorship periods, will greatly relish this self-told account of this first and decisive step to greatness." P. M. S. Blackett
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 7 '39 800w
New Repub 101:241 D 13 '39 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 24:61 O '39

"Professor Eve declares in his preface that his aim was 'to hold up a mirror in which Rutherford may reveal himself, just as he was in lectures, books, papers, speeches, portraits, letters and casual talk.' The result is a biography of which Lord Rutherford would undoubtedly have approved. Yet we wish that Professor Eve has injected more warmth, more life and blood into his own paragraphs. The letters and other records that constitute the bulk of this biography need interpretation of a human kind." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ — N Y Times p5 N 19 '39 1950w

New Yorker 15:107 N 18 '39 30w

"The most interested readers of this biography will be physicists and their fellow scientists, all of whom are admirers and distant imitators of its subject. Nevertheless, the book can be highly recommended to the layman who would like a glimpse into the mind of a man whose whole life was governed by a consuming interest in taking nature to pieces." G. R. Harrison

+ Sat R of Lit 21:11 N 25 '39 400w

Scientific Bk Club R 10:3 D '39 320w

"The official biography of Rutherford does all that one could reasonably ask of it. It is written unportentously, with admiration, affection and knowledge; where possible, Professor Eve modestly suppresses his own personality, and lets his subject speak for himself. . . . To anyone who knew Rutherford even slightly, the letters are fascinating; and the book will give real pleasure to a great many people in the scientific world. But to anyone who did not know Rutherford? There I have a certain doubt. To gain anything like a full impact from this biography perhaps one needs to start with a vivid sense of the man himself. There is a danger that, to other readers and to posterity, the whole life may seem just the success story of a great scientist." C. P. Snow

+ Spec 163:512 O 13 '39 800w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 24 '39 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p573 O 7 '39 850w

EVERETT, EDWIN MALLARD. The party of humanity. 370p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

052 Fortnightly Review (periodical). Liberalism. English literature—History and criticism 39-16136

A study of Victorian liberalism as it was reflected in the Fortnightly Review during the editorships of George Henry Lewes and John Morley, from 1865 to 1874. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. M. Jones

Boston Transcript p1 Je 10 '39 550w

"Mr. Everett, the latest historian of those innocent and hopeful times, has written a carefully documented study which bears some of the marks of the doctoral dissertation but which is happily superior in its organization and its maturity of style. He deals with the early years of the Fortnightly with scholarly understanding and with a consciousness of the ironies of history." C. F. Harrold

+ Sat R of Lit 20:7 Je 3 '39 650w

EVERS, HELEN, and EVERS, ALF. Frankie [pictures by the authors]. [57p] 50c Rand NcNally

39-2712

Picture-story book for very young readers about a little brown puppy with an ever-wagging tale.

"A little book that will be a welcome addition to an 'easy book' collection. The type is large and clear and the illustrations in black, white and brown are humorous and attractive. It is good value for the price." E. G. Mullan

+ Library J 64:244 Mr 15 '39 160w

"Helen and Alf Evers are past-masters at concocting just such a brief little story without an unnecessary word or phrase, and the humor, as genuine as it is unassuming, is completely realized in their illustrations." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p12 Mr 12 '39 210w

New Yorker 15:104 My 13 '39 20w

EVERS, HELEN, and EVERS, ALF. Mr Scrunch [pictures by the authors]. [48p] $1 Rand McNally

39-23864

Kindly Mr Scrunch became very wealthy inventing things for human beings, but his animal inventions were not so successful. This picture story book describes what he did about it.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p8 N 19 '39 150w

Cath World 150:373 D '39 70w

"A jolly book which young and old will enjoy."

+ Churchman 154:35 Ja 1 '40 20w

"This is a nonsense story with a spontaneous fun that pleases 6 to 10 year olds. The cover picture with its crude colors does not do the book justice. The other pictures in soft black, red and blue, have liveliness and humor; the amazed faces of the animals when subjected to Mr. Scrunch's inventions are particularly well done." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 28 '40 240w

New Yorker 15:86 N 25 '39 40w

EVES, CHARLES KENNETH. Matthew Prior: poet and diplomatist. 436p il $4 Columbia univ. press [20s Oxford]

B or 92 Prior, Matthew 40-2409

Matthew Prior, English poet and diplomat, was born in 1664 and died in 1721. Of humble parentage, which he was often at some pains to deny, he rose to be an important figure in English politics during the reigns of William III and Queen Anne. The present biography was written in an attempt to present a life of Prior without disparaging either his character or his attainments. Bibliography. Index.

"Through research in the public records and private family papers Mr. Eves has brought to light a great many details about the career of Matthew Prior that were unknown to his earlier biographers. He has drawn a full-length portrait with more sympathetic understanding than they did. And he has subjected Prior's poetry, both grave and gay, to a careful and illuminating analysis. It is likely that the volume which is the result of these scholarly inquiries will remain the definitive biography and critical estimate for a long while to come."

+ Books p40 D 3 '39 400w

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison

N Y Times p10 Ja 14 '40 850w

EWEN, DAVID. Men and women who make music. 274p il $2.75 Crowell

927.8 Musicians (W) 39-27437

"This book portrays fifteen great interpreters of music who enrich so immeasurably the life of music-lovers in this country." (Pref) Contents: Kreisler; Toscanini; Paderewski; Flagstad; Melchior; Hofmann; Heifetz; Lehmann; Schnabel; Ormandy; Casals; Szigeti; Gieseking; Pinza; Menuhin; Index.

Booklist 35:330 Je 1 '39

Reviewed by Peter Bowdoin

Books p12 Ag 27 '39 90w

"David Ewen is well equipped to undertake this task. He writes easily and well, fusing interesting facts with his own keen appreciation of contemporary artists. Although he has tried to vary his presentation of the fifteen musicians with whom he deals, the general plan of each sketch remains somewhat too constant, with occasional monotonous results."

+ — Boston Transcript p3 My 27 '39 150w

Christian Century 56:582 My 3 '39 50w

"Mr. Ewen's treatment of the varied figures is bright, colorful and informative. He has managed to compress the essential facts of each life, to give some intimate details of each artist's personality and to convey something of the qualities that distinguish each as a musician. If he had allowed himself more space for any or all of his subjects he would undoubtedly have probed more deeply into the artistic philosophies and individualities of these men and women." Howard Taubman

EWEN, DAVID—Continued
+ — N Y Times p3 My 14 '39 480w
New Yorker 15:95 My 20 '39 30w
Wis Lib Bul 35:110 Je '39

EWEN, DAVID, and EWEN, FREDERIC. Musical Vienna. (Whittlesey house publication) 321p il map $3.50 (12s 6d) McGraw 780.94361 Music—Vienna. Musicians. Vienna 39-13454

Review of music and musicians in Vienna beginning with Gluck in 1748 and closing with Franz Lehár. As a background for the brief biographical essays on the musicians of the period upon whom the city left its impress, the authors have outlined the political history of Vienna. The illustrations are grouped at the end of the book. Selected bibliography. Index.

"In the studies of the various composers the authors provide us with little if anything that is new, but the familiar facts are reliably reported and the reader's interest is warmly stimulated, but for the composers, not for Vienna. . . Much as Gluck may have learned in Vienna, he made his reputation in France. The lives of Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert were tragic. They all died in misery, their genius inadequately recognized. To impart these facts, as the authors had to do, was to imply no criticism of Vienna. They could have argued, had they wished, that Vienna, even when it was least sympathetic to genius, was on the whole more nearly sympathetic than any other place would have been. Musical genius for over a century has been attracted by that charming city; the authors would have done us and posterity a service if they had told what was the attraction." John Erskine
Books p2 My 28 '39 650w

"There is much musical history in this book, as well as an awareness of the roots of cultural development. Only the towering figures can be treated in any detail. Otherwise the writing leans toward swift impression and broad brush strokes, but these do not disguise the penetration of the authors' approach. Add to the virtues of the book an exhaustive bibliography and a lively set of illustrations." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p8 Je 4 '39 650w

"The Ewen brothers offer a shrewd mixture of scholarship and sentiment, their account of the waltz-writing Strausses being especially fine."
+ New Yorker 15:95 My 20 '39 60w

"While the plan is laudable, the execution still falls short of standards established in other fields of the history of art. . . The bibliography alone will convince the initiated that this book was put together in haste. Yet with all its faults, 'Musical Vienna' may prove helpful and informative to a goodly number of people accustomed to the narrow field of musical appreciation, for it will teach them that music is a part of our cultural life, and not a pastime to be indulged in after dinner." P. H. Lang
— + Sat R of Lit 20:12 Je 10 '39 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Je 17 '39 130w

EWING, CORTEZ ARTHUR MILTON. The judges of the Supreme court, 1789-1937; a study of their qualifications. 124p map $2 Univ. of Minn. [9s Oxford]
347.99 U.S. Supreme court. Judges (W) 38-28601

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

Reviewed by C. B. Swisher
Am Pol Sci R 33:128 F '39 280w

"Here is a most interesting little book. . . The material presented is definite and concrete, and as to certain matters, quite unanswerable." C. E. Clark
+ Ann Am Acad 202:219 Mr '39 600w

"Mr. Ewing works within definite limits and does not overstep them; he studies the manner of the judges' appointment, geographical representation, ages, education 'formal, political and legal' of them all. The data is presented concisely and clearly, illustrated by a series of attractive graphs and tables. In this way the book is a mass of information and a number of general principles of development emerge."
+ Canadian Forum 19:33 Ap '39 170w
Harvard Law R 52:1036 Ap '39 130w

"As the purpose of the book is wholly admirable, its material important, and its approach factual and unbiased, it becomes a matter of real regret that the treatment seems at times distinctly inadequate." C. L. Lord
+ — Pol Sci Q 54:311 Je '39 480w
Special Libraries 30:137 Ap '39
Wis Lib Bul 35:24 F '39

EWING, MRS IRENE R., and EWING, ALEXANDER WILLIAM GORDON. Handicap of deafness. 328p il $4.50 (12s 6d) Longmans
371.912 Deafness 39-5129

"This book deals with the scientific study of the social and educational effects of deafness; the measurement and assessment of any remaining power to hear, and the development, through training and skill, of its use; the value of lip-reading and methods of learning to lip-read; the efficiency, characteristics and use of hearing-aids of various types and their suitability for patients suffering from different forms and degrees of deafness; the principles which underlie the education of totally, severely and partially-deaf children." Am J Psychol

"The book is scientifically sound, pedagogically wise, well illustrated, and socially helpful. It is by all odds the best book now available for its purpose. And it comes at the psychological moment when the invention of audiometers and introduction of hearing aids has done for the ear what the fitting of glasses did for the eye years ago. This book should be in the hands of every superintendent and principal of schools and parents who are concerned about the hearing of their children. It should be sold at the news stands because it contains news and aids for young and old who suffer from loss of hearing. I have only one criticism, and that is of the price and would suggest to the publishers that if they cut the price in two they would make an excellent investment." C. E. Seashore
+ Am J Psychol 52:157 Ja '39 220w

"As a full and authoritative account of the management of deafness this book will be a valuable guide for all interested in the disability." G. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p5 S 6 '38 240w

"There is in existence no other book dealing so thoroughly and so informedly with the problems of deafness—partial or complete—and with the methods that have been devised for lessening the handicap of the deaf. . . Apart from its immediate interest and value, this is a book to be preserved for reference."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p573 S 3 '38 110w

EWING, SCOTT PRESTON. Soil corrosion and pipe line protection. 277p il $2.50 Am. gas assn.
620.1122 Pipe. Corrosion and anti-corrosives. Soils (engineering) 38-33939

"This volume is offered as a collection of information relating to the subject of the corrosion of underground piping systems and its prevention. It is largely the result of sifting and collecting in an organized manner the vast amount of information heretofore published on the subject. The demand for this information in convenient form has been widespread, and it is hoped that this book will be helpful to the engineers and operators of underground piping systems." Pref.

Reviewed by R. S. McBride
Chem & Met Eng 46:232 Ap '39 280w
Reviewed by W. F. Rogers
Ind & Eng Chem 17:67 Ja 20 '39 500w
N Y New Tech Bks 23:44 Jl '39

EXAGMINATION of James Joyce; analyses of the "Work in progress." ltd ed 194p $2 New directions

823 Joyce, James 39-15835

"Essays, explanations, obscurations, and analyses of 'Finnegans Wake.' They were written some years ago about only part of the book, and are helpful to that extent, though often high-flown and theory-ridden. The contributors: Samuel Beckett, Marcel Brion, Frank Budgen, Stuart Gilbert, Eugene Jolas, Victor Llona, Robert McAlmon, Thomas McGreevy, Elliot Paul, John Rodker, Robert Sage, William Carlos Williams." (New Yorker) London edition (Faber and Faber, limited, 1936) has title: Our exagmination round his factification for incamination of Work in progress.

"A very competent collection of essays on Joyce's new book, written, uniquely enough, when 'Finnegans Wake' was still called 'Work in Progress' and was appearing serially in 'transition.' There's some pretty fascinating stuff here, too, relative not only to the 'Wake' but to modern literature in general. Of course, there are 14 people represented, all talking, more or less, about the same thing, and consequently the volume is uneven and frequently repetitious." John Conley
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 10 '39 500w
New Yorker 15:92 My 6 '39 80w

E-YEH-SHURE. See Abeita, L.

EYRE, EDWARD, ed. European civilization, its origin and development, by various contributors. 7v v 7 maps $6.50 (21s); set $38 (£6 6s) Oxford

901 Europe—Civilization. Civilization. Europe—History (35-1413)

"This volume in the monumental series under the editorship of Mr. Eyre brings to a close the whole history of European civilization. The previous volumes have covered prehistoric man, Rome and Christendom, the Middle Ages, the Reformation, Economic History of Europe since the Reformation, Political and Cultural History of Europe since the Reformation. The present volume includes the history of Europe chiefly in its contacts with non-European peoples and in its colonial enterprises." (Christian Science Monitor) For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1935-1938.

"Setting aside the omnipresent and deplorable bias of treatment, we find much that is informing in this volume, and not a little that is entertaining, for in general it is written with more liveliness than its predecessors. A great deal of familiar ground is retraversed; but the grand stories of exploration, expansion and colonization bear retelling even when they by no means reflect credit upon white men." S. C. Chew
+ — Books p23 O 1 '39 800w
Reviewed by W. Y. Elliott
Christian Science Monitor p10 O 14 '39 1150w
Foreign Affairs 18:368 Ja '40 20w
Manchester Guardian p7 Je 6 '39 250w
Social Studies 30:335 N '39
Times [London] Lit Sup p517 S 2 '39 500w

EZEKIEL, MORDECAI JOSEPH BRILL. Jobs for all through industrial expansion; with il. by Guy Rowe. 313p $2 Knopf

330.973 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Industry and state—U.S. U.S.—Economic policy (W) 39-27025

The author, economic adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture, sets forth a nation-wide plan for industrial expansion which not only suggests methods of organizing and planning industry for full production but also offers a definite political and administrative procedure for putting the program into operation. Index.

"Proposals for economic planning have rarely been presented as persuasively as in Dr. Ezekiel's latest book. Critics as well as friends of centralized economic control will find the scheme outlined of considerable interest." Henry Oliver
+ Am Econ R 29:375 Je '39 550w
Booklist 35:200 F 15 '39
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '39

"There is no doubt that Mr. Ezekiel's proposal is stimulating and that it might furnish a lever which would break the present deadlock. Before it is accepted, however . . . [certain] difficulties should be frankly faced and intelligently considered. . . But whatever the ultimate verdict, Mr. Ezekiel has made a most stimulating suggestion which needs to be pondered by all Christians who desire both liberty and abundance." P. H. Douglas
+ — Commonweal 29:497 F 24 '39 600w

"Ezekiel has written a straightforward and altogether admirable exposition of what could be done by this democracy if it could organize its resources." Eliot Janeway
+ Nation 148:407 Ap 8 '39 650w

"It is an excellent book. Mr. Ezekiel approaches our basic economic problems with a very simple and refreshing preconception: the way to produce more is to produce more. His plan for accomplishing this is in the main sensible, straightforward and extraordinarily well presented." P. M. Sweezy
+ New Repub 98:311 Ap 19 '39 1000w

"Dr. Ezekiel is not just another crackpot. He is not a crackpot at all, but a government economist who worked his way into the brain trust (if that institution can still be said to exist) by long and arduous application of a brilliant mind to practical problems. His ideas have importance in that they are likely to be listened to in Washington, at least at the executive end of Pennsylvania Avenue." R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p15 F 12 '39 1300w
New Yorker 14:58 Ja 28 '39 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 29 '39 650w

"In these fifty odd pages of analysis, the author reveals an amazing knowledge of the practical, day-by-day workings of the American economy that renders this section alone a 'must' for people often bewildered by the conflicting views reflected by New Dealers themselves. If 'Industrial Expansion' is not the answer, it is at least one answer, honest and fact-facing, and commands the attention of all who believe that free rational inquiry and sober discussions are to be preferred to the strident dogmas of the slogan slingers, reading from left to right." Herbert Harris
+ Survey G 28:345 My '39 500w

F

FABELL, WALTER C. Nature was first; il. by Margaret Ayer. [32p] 50c Grosset

39-13754

"Before oiled silk kept the rain from spoiling our clothes, ducks were waterproofed: boys on a hike may have to take along a water-bottle, but not the camel: the cactus does for travelers in our American deserts what the water fountain does for children in our parks. In many matters like this, and with the co-operation of uncommonly good pictures for the purpose, Mr. Fabell keeps a small reader interested and leaves him likely to look at a number of natural objects more respectfully." Books

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 Ja 7 '40 140w

"Gay and informing illustrations are in keeping with the simple but interesting text. Grades 3-5."
+ Wis Lib Bul 35:188 N '39

FABRICANT, SOLOMON. Capital consumption and adjustment. 271p $2.75; to subs gratis Nat. bur. of economic research [12s Macmillan]

339.3 Capital 39-983

"This study of the National Bureau of Economic Research of the records of capital consumption and capital adjustment in the United States since 1918 is part of the Bureau's investigation into capital formation and the national income. Capital consumption is defined as the current value of all durable goods used up in the current production of commodities and services, while capital adjustment includes the value of durable goods used up in other ways and value changes arising from revaluations of existing durable goods." Times [London] Lit Sup

"The task of gathering all available data, assembling them in useful groupings without losing essential detail, and noting their limitations has been performed thoroughly and skillfully. Footnote citations to sources and elaborate notes and appendices explaining techniques accompany the careful description in the text. . . It is to be hoped that the interpretation of the material, begun here in so interesting a manner, will be extended in showing what these data, either alone or in conjunction with other data in the income-capital studies, contribute in solving important questions of economic analysis. The usefulness of the volume is considerably lessened by failure to provide an index." Carl Shoup
+ — Am Econ R 29:386 Je '39 650w
Management R 28:34 Ja '39 50w
Times [London] Lit Sup p254 Ap 29 '39 80w

FACTS; the new concise pictorial encyclopedia; editor-in-chief and Am. ed, Nella Braddy; British ed, Lawrence H. Dawson; European ed, Richard Friedenthal; introd. by John Erskine. new rev ed 1271p maps $1.79 c1938 Garden City pub. co.

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

38-27685

"This is a revised edition of a four-volume set reviewed under the title Facts, the New Concise Pictorial Encyclopedia, in Subscription Books Bulletin, April 1934 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. The new one-volume trade edition, according to the publisher, incorporates in one alphabet all of the original text together with the material, edited and brought up to date through May 1938, which has appeared in the form of annual supplements to Facts. . . The chief revisions apparently consist in the systematic addition of dates of death to biographical entries whose subjects have died during the past four years and the incorporation of political changes in articles on important countries, such as Austria's annexation by Germany, Burma's separation from India, Ethiopia's conquest by Italy, etc." (Subscription Bks Bul) Cover title: New Concise Pictorial Encyclopedia.

"In this new inexpensive form the volume may be of interest to public libraries as a supplementary reference work. It seems best adapted, however, to use as a handy desk tool by individuals desiring a brief presentation of outstanding facts in many fields, and for such purpose it is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 10:4 Ja '39 400w

FADIMAN, CLIFTON, ed. I believe; the personal philosophies of certain eminent men and women of our time; ed, with an introd. and biographical notes. 429p il $3.75 Simon & Schuster

190 Philosophy, Modern (W) 39-27643

"Between the covers of 'I Believe' are the intimate credos of twenty-one eminent novelists, philosophers, explorers, economists, humorists, scientists, anthropologists and other expert men and women of our day. There are in addition seventeen brief restatements of belief by contributors to the original 'Living Philosophies' published in 1931." N Y Times

Booklist 36:1 S '39

"In 'I Believe' there should be something for any reader who approaches the problems of contemporary life with the seriousness of these writers. Many times in this volume we find individual writers taking different approaches to the same view, that it is necessary to combat fascism as a threatened enslavement of the human race. . . Although there is much gravity here, there is little pessimism." Lorine Pruette
+ Books p3 Ag 20 '39 1150w
Reviewed by H. M. Jones
Boston Transcript p1 Ag 12 '39 1050w
Reviewed by E. A. Havelock
Canadian Forum 19:259 N '39 600w
— Cath World 150:365 D '39 550w
Reviewed by A. F. Gilmore
Christian Science Monitor p15 N 18 '39 1050w
Reviewed by G. E. Shipler, Jr.
Churchman 154:20 Ja 1 '40 300w
Reviewed by J. N. Vaughan
Commonweal 31:170 D 8 '39 250w

"I Believe has something of interest to every reader worthy of the name, and it is compelling enough to direct him toward that most interesting of all occupations—an attempt to find out what he himself really does or can or must believe." M. L. Elting
+ Forum 102:iii O '39 400w
Reviewed by John Chamberlain
New Repub 100:136 S 6 '39 1150w

"This new series of living philosophies should not be missed. Among them are the intimate beliefs of some of the best intellectuals of the age. Coming at a time when so many of the values of our civilization are threatened and so many people don't know what there is left to believe, these credos, for the most part simply and beautifully written, may be a generous source of inspiration and intellectual stimulus regardless of one's own way of life." Christopher Janus
+ N Y Times p2 Ag 20 '39 1450w

"The most brilliant writing is Santayana's, though its cool, poised exposition of his overbred skepticism seems free from all human emotion. Perhaps the most passionate writing is Pearl Buck's rich, warm affirmation of life. Thomas Mann is wise and a little vague. E. M. Forster is witty and a little skeptical. So is James Thurber. Jacques Maritain is devout and a little smug. Havelock Ellis's famous

'harmonious conflict' seems inadequate to explain a remarkable career, and Jules Romains' famous unanimism I either don't understand or can't accept." Louis Kronenberger

+ — New Yorker 15:53 Ag 12 '39 550w

Pratt p4 winter '40

Reviewed by Robert Bierstedt

Sat R of Lit 20:13 Ag 26 '39 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 20 '39 1500w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey G 28:630 O '39 950w

FAGERBURG, FRANK BENJAMIN. Is this religion? 191p $1.50 Am. Bapt.

252 Sermons. Christianity 39-16214

A book by the pastor of the First Baptist Church, Los Angeles, in which the writer asks and answers such questions as: Is religion a bargain? Is religion a gamble? Is religion wishful thinking? Is religion a prop for the weak? Is religion realistic?

"In my opinion the book will be worth most, not to ministers who seek new stimulation, but to laymen who are not philosophical and to whom trite quotations or illustrations will be fresh. There are such people in every church; to them the book will be of real help. But I doubt if preachers will find here either new grist for their mills or striking models of preaching." J. B. Thompson

Christian Century 56:1409 N 15 '39 700w

"Such a book is capable of a fine work of clarification for many ministers, and of being a veritable boon to a generation of young people vexed by such questions. My wish that it may have a very wide reading is really a prayer." W. R. McNutt

+ Crozer Q 16:308 O '39 150w

FAHNESTOCK, MRS MARY (SHERIDAN). I ran away to sea at fifty. 247p il map $2.50 Harcourt

910.4 Voyages and travels (W) 39-27183

The mother of the two Fahnestocks who sailed half-way around the world in their schooner Director and wrote about their experiences in Stars to Windward (Book Review Digest, 1938) tells her own story. She joined her sons in Tahiti and left them a year later in Suva, while she came home partly by freighter, and across the Atlantic in the steerage.

Booklist 35:250 Ap 1 '39

"You must read it for yourself! It would really be impossible in a review to capture the inimitable flavor of Mrs. Fahnestock's book." Frank Strealght

+ Books p5 Mr 19 '39 550w

Christian Century 56:323 Mr 8 '39 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '39

"You won't enjoy this book much unless you like a completely personal emphasis in travel and adventure; but you'll find it good reading if you do."

N Y Times p18 Mr 19 '39 460w

"Through all her travels, the author retained her zest for seeing things and meeting people, and this spirit she has succeeded in putting in her book. For armchair travelers as well as for those who have visited these same places or hope to visit them, the book should have lively appeal."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 22 '39 600w

Wis Lib Bul 35:111 Je '39

FAIR, A. A. The bigger they come [Eng title: Lam to the slaughter]. 281p $2 Morrow [7s 6d Hamilton, H.]

39-12733

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p10 Ja 8 '39 210w

"One of the madder books we have met, with a you-can't-put-it-down frosting." Marian Wiggin

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '39 90w

"The reader will scarcely learn to admire any of the characters in this story, but he will have to admit that they lead exciting lives." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p16 Ja 8 '39 120w

"The author tries pretty hard to sound tough. Easy reading if you can take it."

New Yorker 14:76 Ja 14 '39 30w

"A grand bunch of characters—male and female—racing tempo, extraordinarily clever plot, realistic romance, and rapidfire repartee. Rich and rare!"

+ Sat R of Lit 19:16 Ja 7 '39 40w

Time 33:27 F 6 '39 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p253 Ap 29 '39 280w

FAIRCHILD, FRED ROGERS; FURNISS, EDGAR STEVENSON, and BUCK, NORMAN SYDNEY. Elementary economics. 4th ed 2v 701;692p map ea $2.50 Macmillan

330 Economics 39-12590

"New material includes sections on the concept of imperfect competition, recent changes in banking, tariff agreements, and labor problems. Statistics have been brought up to date." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest, 1936. Index at end of each volume.

"The authors have made many changes and additions, particularly in the chapters on value, which have been worked over with care, to 'incorporate the concept of imperfect competition as an integral part of the theory of price.' It is unfortunate that the concept was not extended to the theories of wages and interest, but that has been done in few of the recent texts. A considerable amount of new material has been added at various points, and most of the statistical material has been brought down to date." John Ise

+ — Am Econ R 29:811 D '39 90w

Reviewed by R. T. Bye

Ann Am Acad 207:231 Ja '40 260w

Booklist 35:382 Jl 15 '39

Reviewed by D. W. Harr

Social Studies 31:46 Ja '40 250w

FAIRCHILD, HENRY PRATT. People: the quantity and quality of population. 315p il $3 Holt

312 Population 39-29622

A popular exposition of present trends in population, their possible causes, and possible means of changing them. Index.

"Professor Fairchild has a keen, parrying intellect in dealing with even dry facts and figures, and he never sins in dullness. He transmits readily to his reader the fascination the subject has for him." E. L. Van Alen

+ Forum 102:v D '39 400w

"This is a book to make one think and to give one perspectives. It does that admirably. The best proof of Dr. Fairchild's genial wisdom is that it does not add to the world's always plentiful store of dogmas." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p10 N 5 '39 1150w

Springf'd Republican p10 N 14 '39 800w

FAIRCHILD, HOXIE NEALE. Religious trends in English poetry; v. 1, 1700-1740, Protestantism and the cult of sentiment. 612p $5 Columbia univ. press [25s Oxford]

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism. Religion in literature (39-12839)

"As the first of five volumes in which Professor Fairchild proposes to set forth in full detail the relations between poetry and religion from 1700 to our own times, the present work is designed 'to investigate the degree and quality of poetic response to religious thought and feeling in the first half of the eighteenth century,' and, more particularly, to trace the connection between Protestantism and that 'cult of sentiment' which the author believes to have been the chief source of the Romantic movement." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Indexes.

FAIRCHILD, H. N.—Continued

Reviewed by Thomas Merton
Books p17 Jl 23 '39 650w

"I have obscured under generalities the magnificent variety and richness of the volume. Most of the poets cited are unknown to present-day readers. Not a dozen names of the 130 are familiar as poets. Some known before, like Toland and Desaguliers, are new in the role of poet. But this host of unknowns, individually undistinguished, in the aggregate are worth better acquaintance. The author gives ample extracts as well as summaries and biographical data. For his introduction to these forgotten worthies, many thanks." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 56:902 Jl 19 '39 850w

"This book cannot be taken at a gulp; section for section it makes tedious reading, but upon reflection it appears interesting and stimulating." J. G. E. Hopkins

+ — Commonweal 30:261 Je 30 '39 490w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton
Crozer Q 17:79 Ja '40 300w

"This work, for the occasional reader as well as for the student, for the theologian as well as for the amateur of bad verse, is a treasure-mine." D. F.

+ Sat R of Lit 20:20 Ag 19 '39 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p30 Ja 20 '40 2750w

FAIRLIE, GERARD. Bulldog Drummond on Dartmoor. 268p $2 Hillman-Curl [7s 6d Hodder]

(W) [38-21167]

Thriller involving thieves, a strangler, and the secret of Moreland Hall, where the Cavaliers hid their jewels in the time of Cromwell. Bulldog Drummond makes a comeback and gets into action in time to solve a few mysteries.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p13 Ap 9 '39 160w

"The entire adventure is in the best Bulldog Drummond tradition." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p27 Mr 26 '39 160w
Sat R of Lit 19:20 Mr 25 '39 40w

"The plot, we are told was originally 'Sapper's'; he was working on it with Mr. Gerard Fairlie when he died. That Mr. Fairlie has made a thoroughly good job of finishing it off may in part be due to the fact, to which both authors have publicly attested, that Sapper based on Mr. Fairlie his conception of the character of Bulldog Drummond."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p497 Jl 23 '38 90w

FAIRMAN, CHARLES. Mr Justice Miller and the Supreme court, 1862-1890. 456p il $4.50 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Miller, Samuel Freeman. U.S. Supreme court. U.S.—Constitutional law 39-24930

"The volume is not a formal biography of Justice Miller, but a critical examination of his most important constitutional opinions, and a study of the court during the years of his service from 1862 to 1890." Books

"If Mr. Fairman is to be criticized it is, I think, for the structure of his volume. Though the book is not designed to be a biography of Miller, his work and personality are its central theme. That being so, the reader would have been grateful had Mr. Fairman early in the volume described in more detail the justice's personal and professional traits... But the volume as a whole is an important addition to the literature of American legal history. Mr. Fairman consistently maintains a sane perspective; he has not been dazzled by institutional dignities, nor has he rebelled against the institution and indulged himself in the luxury of contempt of court. He has given a scholarly and understanding account of an important era in our constitutional history, and has painted a colorful portrait of the judges who helped make that history at once as sordid and as creditable as it was." M. De W. Howe

+ — Books p23 N 19 '39 800w

Reviewed by J. F. Stone, Jr.
Boston Transcript p1 N 18 '39 130w

"Mr. Fairman's biography is one of the most interesting and instructive contributions to our constitutional history that has appeared in recent years. It adds another to the short list of justices whose biographies have been adequately presented... If the presentation is somewhat lacking in showmanship or art, the lack is more than atoned for by its sincerity and integrity." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Times p5 D 17 '39 1550w

"Prof Fairman is equally at home in the law of the cases, in the political and economic climate of the times, and in the writings and correspondence of his subject. He writes with a vigor and incisiveness that enhance the skilful and sympathetic record he has here given of one of the great Americans of his day." P. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p12 N 24 '39 400w

FAIRMAN, SEIBERT, and CUTSHALL, CHESTER SHERMAN. Engineering mechanics. 267p il $2.75 Wiley [13s 6d Chapman]

620.1 Mechanics, Applied 38-18880

An elementary textbook for a basic course for sophomore and junior engineering students. "The course is one of general mechanics as applied to engineering, and includes statics, dynamics, friction, energy, balancing, impulse, impact and gyroscopic action. It is intended for students who have had a training in mathematics up to the integral calculus, and for such as have this preparation it offers a clearly stated exposition of the subject with a discreet mixture of problems of the practical and the academic types." (Nature) Index.

Eng N 122:74 Mr 30 '39 60w
Nature 143:419 Mr 11 '39 200w
Pratt p11 spring '39

FANTE, JOHN. Ask the dust. 235p $2 Stackpole sons

39-31197

Young Arturo Bandini comes to Los Angeles determined to win fame and fortune as a writer. After dreary months of poverty and hardship he begins to find himself as a writer, but in the meantime he falls in love with a little Mexican waitress, and this proves to be a bitter experience for them both.

"Ask the Dust realizes to the full the quizzical wonder inherent in Saroyan's fragmentary writings, and recognizes the cruelty of man's lot besides. Fante strikes home as surely as Halper in The Foundry, or Swinnerton in Nocturne, to use two divergent analogues. The love of Camilla for Sammy and her disintegration when it is not accepted would start tears from a stone. Fante must have lived this out at some time. And now that he has written his Werther, let us hope fervently he can go on to another Faust." E. B. Garside

Atlantic D '39 500w

"Less effective and less entire than the earlier 'Wait Until Spring, Bandini' (but presumably almost as rich in autobiographical material) this new book carries considerable impact and, despite so much that is painful, contemptible, ugly in its subject matter, it leaves the reader in a state of speculation and interest. What will this young author's next book be like? He has a quite unexpected sense of humor and any one who could write as he does here of the earthquake or of Camilla with her new dog or of Vera's visit to the hero's room is a man of mark. But meanwhile the reader in search of sweetness and light is warned." Iris Barry

Books p9 N 12 '39 750w

"This is a strange novel, one which is most emphatically not recommended for reading by the young, or even by the old who dislike sordid pictures of immorality. Let no reader write in indignation that his or her tender feelings or moral sentiments have been violated because he or she has read 'Ask the Dust' as a result of this review. . . Yet in many ways it is quite an extraordinary piece of work, and a very Catholic piece of work at that." H. L. Binsse

+ — Commonweal 31:140 D 1 '39 270w

Nation 150:80 Ja 20 '40 300w

"A rapt, inventive story that turns out to be less vital than the early chapters had led one to expect."

+ — New Repub 101:214 D 6 '39 30w

"It is a novel both for the reader and the writer of a young novelist gaining the experience to write a novel. It is a novel experience. But on the whole, novels about novelists, particularly young novelists, make a tour de force rather than a naturally interesting story." P. M. Jack

+ — N Y Times p7 N 19 '39 800w

"Told in a well-managed, colloquial prose, but doesn't add up to much. Not as interesting as Mr. Fante's 'Wait Until Spring, Bandini.'"

New Yorker 15:89 N 11 '39 60w

"We think Saroyan will like this book very much. It is a sign either of his influence or of the appearance of a kinsprit; it is no disrespect to either man to suggest that Bandini is a character cut wholly out of Saroyan's cloth. And of course that same volatile charm is here, the naive, new-born colors of a world freshly made up as though it had not already existed. It is charming, it is fantasy, and it isn't real. . . To our own way of thinking, Mr. Fante has done enough of this. It is past spring now, and time for Bandini to feel the really great pangs of mortality." N. L. R.

Sat R of Lit 21:20 N 25 '39 220w

FARGO, LUCILE FOSTER. Activity book for school libraries; drawings by Helen F. Gleason. 208p $2.50 A.L.A.

027.8 School libraries (W) 38-29051

Concise instructions for a series of pupil activities which "center in the school library." The material has been gathered from books, periodicals, pamphlets, and clippings, and is presented with public and school libraries of all sizes in mind. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 35:167 Ja 15 '39

"The clever line drawings with stick figures interspersed throughout the book are pertinent and amusing. The total emphasis of the book is toward the junior and senior high school level, but the elementary school librarian will not want to be without it. . . Miss Fargo's book has the potentiality of aiding librarian and teacher to make activities relating to the library those which, in terms of progressive education, will lead to mental, social, and emotional growth for the pupil." Gretchen Westervelt

+ Library J 64:28 Ja 1 '39 600w

"The illustrations throughout the book are attractive line drawings with stick figures drawn by Helen F. Gleason. The book is written in such a simple, popular, and nontechnical style that it could be read by the boys and girls in getting ideas for their library projects. School librarians, public librarians, and teachers will find much of practical value in this volume. Although planned for those schools teaching by means of an activity program, it will be helpful in all schools regardless of size or of type of curriculum." M. H. Lowell

+ Library Q 9:524 O '39 550w

FARIS, ROBERT E. LEE, and DUNHAM, HENRY WARREN. Mental disorders in urban areas; an ecological study of schizophrenia and other psychoses. 270p maps $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [12s 6d Cambridge]

614.15 Insanity. Chicago—Social conditions. Cities and towns 39-3557

A study of the "relationship between mental disorder and certain aspects of social life. . . The first chapter discusses the growth of the city with its resulting natural ecological organization. The following seven chapters present data showing the distribution patterns of nine major psychoses in Chicago and also the relationships found between these data and selected social phenomena. Chapter IX gives data of a similar nature for Providence, Rhode Island. The final two chapters attempt to present a theoretical point of view by which the facts may be interpreted and also several hypotheses which appear to fit the facts but which can only be substantiated or rejected on the basis of additional research." (Author's pref) Selected bibliography. Index.

"The book is clearly written. The work involved has been enormous in amount and apparently done with great care. The whole thing represents a further general picture of the characteristics of city growth and development. However, it hardly seems possible that such a painstaking piece of work could be done on so many people and yet yield so little knowledge about any one of them." J. S. Plant

+ — Am J Soc 44:999 My '39 550w

"The book is replete with interesting data and thought-provoking information. It is done with thoroughness, and scientific honesty characterizes the study. It should be welcomed by psychiatrists as well as sociologists, and will form an important part of that ever increasing body of knowledge which it is hoped will sometime give us a better understanding of the real nature of mental disease." A. W. Stearns

+ Ann Am Acad 204:223 Jl '39 600w

"A very competent and scholarly piece of sociological research."

+ Christian Century 55:1069 D 28 '38 80w

Reviewed by I. S. Wile, M.D.

Survey 75:230 Jl '39 370w

FARJEON, JOSEPH JEFFERSON. Death in fancy dress. 312p $2 Bobbs

Mystery story.

39-24580

"A tender minded yarn, a tiny mite silly in spots." Will Cuppy

Books p14 Je 4 '39 100w

"Seldom, if ever, has Mr. Farjeon's skill as a teller of mystery tales been displayed to better advantage." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p6 Je 4 '39 200w

"Taken separately, the stories of various merry-makers are interesting. Lumped together, they don't make too much sense. Foggy."

Sat R of Lit 20:18 Je 3 '39 40w

FARJEON, JOSEPH JEFFERSON. Seven dead. 321p $2 Bobbs [7s 6d Collins]

[39-12584]

Detective story.

"One of the slickest puzzles this author has ever invented. We found the story plumb full of mystery interest and first-class sleuthing, though Inspector Kendall says he does nothing but just get on with his job." Will Cuppy

+ Books p24 N 19 '39 200w

FARJEON (far'john)

FARJEON, J. J.—Continued

"There are many puzzling elements in the case, and they all add up to as strange a story as you would hear in many a long day. With Jefferson Farjeon doing the telling, you may be sure that the tale is well told." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p37 N 12 '39 120w

New Yorker 15:108 N 18 '39 50w

"First class."

+ Sat R of Lit 21:21 N 11 '39 40w

"The book will not add to the author's reputation."

Times [London] Lit Sup p221 Ap 15 '39 40w

FARKAS, ADALBERT, and MELVILLE, H. W. Experimental methods in gas reactions. 389p il $7.50 (30s) Macmillan

533.7 Gases—Analysis. Gases, Kinetic theory of

"Within recent years the study of the kinetics of gas reactions has assumed a prominent rôle in chemistry. One of the consequences of that development has been the appearance of a large number of monographs dealing with every aspect of the subject. Nearly all texts, as is natural, are confined to a discussion of the results of experiments rather than to the methods whereby the data have been obtained. The present book is an attempt to remedy the matter and repair an obvious omission. It is designed mainly to give a reasonably complete account of the methods of investigating all types of gaseous reactions, together with sufficient theory in order that there should be the minimum gap between theory and practice. While it is intended that the beginner will benefit from the work, the text is arranged in such a way that it may serve as a book of reference for those chemists and physicists engaged in dealing with gas reactions, with high vacua or with any investigation where a knowledge of the preparation and handling of gases is required." (Pref) Indexes.

"One's guess is that graduate students should welcome this book with open arms, and that more mature research workers should find it of considerable inspiration and assistance. Although by its nature it will serve chiefly as a reference work for the solution of specific problems, nevertheless a straight through reading gives a fine conception of general possibilities, and may, as in the case of the reviewer, furnish suggestions for improvement of technique in unexpected places." J. C. Morris

+ Am Chem Soc J 61:2568 S '39 550w

Chem & Met Eng 46:726 N '39 60w

"This treatise will become a standard work and a necessary reference book for all physicists and chemists engaged in conducting experimental researches with gases. Its usefulness is enhanced by the fact that the authors have had actual practical experience with many of the devices and apparatus described, and are therefore well qualified to point out the limitations, defects and advantages of alternative methods of procedure." D. L. C.

+ Nature 144:268 Ag 12 '39 600w

N Y New Tech Bks 23:39 Jl '39

FARMER, HERBERT HENRY. Healing cross; further studies in the Christian interpretation of life. 222p $2.25 Scribner [6s Nisbet]

252 Sermons [39-6250]

"A collection of sermons, the last group of which bears the title given to the book. They are described as 'Further Studies in the Christian Interpretation of Life', which suggests that they were written to be read rather than preached—some of them have already appeared as articles in the Christian World. There is a somewhat artificial grouping into four parts under the headings 'Christ the Way', 'The Severity Which is Good', 'The Goodness Which is Severe', and 'The Healing Cross'." Churchman

"This is not popular preaching, it has too many deep tones. The personal note, the evangelistic appeal are here, and the meticulous clarifying of deep points in the Scriptures. These sermons are likely to endure for their solid qualities." R. K. Morton

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 22 '39 170w

Reviewed by W. R. Cremeans

Christian Century 56:451 Ap 5 '39 210w

"There is good Christian teaching here for the layman who cares for volumes of sermons, and preachers will find Dr. Farmer fruitful in suggestion." F. J. M.

+ Churchman 153:34 Mr 1 '39 120w

FARMER, LAURENCE, and HEXTER, GEORGE JACOB. What's your allergy? 234p $2 Random house

615.57 Allergia [39-31740]

Study of different forms of allergies, their causes, and the advances made in knowledge about them. Contains a chapter on diagnosis and treatment. Index.

Booklist 36:170 Ja 1 '40

Boston Transcript p5 N 11 '39 30w

New Repub 101:149 N 22 '39 40w

"A valuable and highly interesting exposition." M. S. Ulrich

+ Sat R of Lit 21:10 D 30 '39 800w

FARRAR, GUY B. Feathered folk of an estuary. 152p pl $3.75 Scribner [10s 6d Country life]

598.2 Water birds. Photography of birds

"[In this book] we encounter the river Dee, the home of countless ducks and geese, of peregrine falcons, of myriads of ' "little people" of the estuary' known among ornithologists as dunlins, ringed plovers, oyster-catchers and curlews, all of them intimately described by a gunner and photographer who has become a devoted 'bird-watcher.' " Books

"A beautiful book. . . Decidedly the most important contribution the book has to make is its photographic illustrations. Without exception these are superb. . . I do not like the author's attitude toward gulls. . . The author sometimes makes inaccurate statements." G. M. Sutton

+ — Books p15 S 17 '39 480w

Manchester Guardian p7 D 16 '38 330w

"Interesting and well-written little book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p154 Mr 11 '39 220w

FARRELL, JAMES THOMAS. Tommy Gallagher's crusade. 91p $1 Vanguard

[39-25041]

A long short story depicting the character and background of one of those young men who stand on city street corners selling anti-Semitic literature.

"Farrell's book . . . has implications that may well make any civilized reader flame with rage or grow heartsick with despair." Milton Rugoff

+ Books p6 O 15 '39 950w

" 'Tommy Gallagher's Crusade' is the finest kind of tract, in a period when such writing is returning to its own. It is not analytical, but that is not necessarily within the scope of a polemic. On the other hand, the tone is mordantly quiet and detached. There is a feeling of absolute psychological accuracy about the portrayal." E. B. Garside

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 14 '39 350w

Reviewed by Barry Byrne

Commonweal 31:82 N 10 '39 300w

Reviewed by L. B. Salomon

Nation 149:686 D 16 '39 140w

New Repub 101:241 D 13 '39 60w

"Tommy Gallagher will not get anywhere in the United States. But he's a representative lad. He's a product of a poisonous spirit that is abroad throughout the world. Farrell knows him and understands him. The little story is worth your time." F. T. Marsh

N Y Times p18 N 12 '39 320w

New Yorker 15:94 O 21 '39 40w

"It is not only not a pretty picture, it is definitely a sinister one. You will recognize its authenticity. Farrell has been writing about Tommy Gallagher for years, and he pierces with ease to the essential, confused currents that fill Tommy's mind. That is the really fearful aspect, the muddy compound of lies, dreams, ignorance, repressions, resentments, fears, that make the mental life of the Tommy Gallaghers. Into about ninety pages Farrell has packed not only a clear picture of our most dangerous contemporary symptom, but a wonderfully clear diagnosis as well." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 20:13 O 14 '39 250w

Time 34:84 D 11 '39 60w

FARRINGTON, EDWARD IRVING. The gardener's almanac. (Mass. horticultural soc. Gardener's lib) 141p il $1 Hale

635.9 Gardening 39-27370

Month by month thruout the year this little book points out what should be done by the devoted gardener, to flowers, vegetables, fruits, trees and shrubs, insect pests, etc. Index.

Booklist 35:309 My 15 '39

Reviewed by R. S. Lemmon

Books p11 Je 18 '39 100w

Springf'd Republican p8 My 11 '39 130w

FARRINGTON, EDWARD IRVING, ed. The gardener's travel book; ed. for the Massachusetts horticultural society. 390p il maps $2.50 Hale

716.2 Gardens. U.S.—Description and travel. Canada—Description and travel (W) 39-1551

Lists alphabetically by state and town interesting gardens, trees, parks, wild flower displays, blossoming fruit trees, and flower exhibitions in the United States and Canada. Contains lists of gardens open to members of various garden societies; a list of United States national parks with outline data; and selected bibliographies. Copiously illustrated. Maps.

Booklist 35:219 Mr 1 '39

"A useful guide. . . . Those who plan to browse around a bit this year will do well to include a copy of Mr. Farrington's book in a convenient part of their luggage, for it will save them from missing a lot of things that they really ought to see." R. S. Lemmon

+ Books p13 My 14 '39 150w

Reviewed by W. H. Clark

Boston Transcript p1 Mr 18 '39 270w

Springf'd Republican p6 My 15 '39 300w

Wis Lib Bul 35:61 Ap '39

FARRINGTON, EDWARD IRVING. The vegetable garden. (Mass. horticultural soc. Gardener's lib) 139p il $1 Hale

635 Vegetable gardening (W) 39-27371

A guidebook for the gardener of a small vegetable plot in a city backyard or empty suburban lot. The first chapters give detailed instructions on the planning and preparation of the plot. Individual crops are then discussed, and finally there is an outline of things to do month by month. An appendix contains miscellaneous information, and planting tables. Index.

Booklist 35:309 My 15 '39

Reviewed by R. S. Lemmon

Books p11 Je 18 '39 50w

" 'The Vegetable Garden' was formerly issued as 'The Back Yard Garden' [Book Review Digest, 1918]. It has been completely revised and new charts and illustrations have been added. It is a work of special value to the amateur who has limited time and space in which to cultivate his garden."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 My 11 '39 160w

FARSON, NEGLEY. The story of a lake. 461p $2.50 Harcourt [8s 6d Gollancz]

(W) 39-4168

Study of the life and character of an American newspaper correspondent. The story begins and ends on the shores of a Canadian lake where Tony Lynd had gone to recover from the shock of his wife's death, and the efforts of a vicious young Englishwoman to wreck his life. The middle section of the book describes the adult years of Tony's life.

"It is no sentimental, came-the-dawn ending Mr. Farson gives us, and Tony's final decision regarding his relationship with Flick proves the realistic, honest basis of the novel. More than an excellently worked-out drama, 'The Story of a Lake' is a merciless treatment of some of the most disrupting forces of modern life, forces which are not readily discernible to a merely casual writer." David Tilden

+ Books p6 Mr 5 '39 1300w

"Mr Farson writes in a clear, journalistic style, but without a feeling for words. He delineates his characters inadequately on their first appearances and afterwards, except for several instances, does not trouble himself to fixate their physical beings in the reader's mind." B. R. Sears

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Mr 11 '39 360w

Reviewed by C. M. Neale

Commonweal 29:670 Ap 7 '39 360w

"Vigorous and various, this novel is an always interesting study of human lopsidedness." Harold Brighouse

+ Manchester Guardian p7 D 6 '38 500w

New Repub 98:112 Mr 1 '39 80w

"There are hundreds of characters, some very vivid and alive, and others not so very vivid and alive; and the plot moves against an enormous panorama." John Mair

New Statesman & Nation 16:888 N 26 '38 100w

"Noisy, garish, spectacular, easy to pillory, and, because it is sincere and honest according to its lights, very easy to like, to enjoy; this is to most of the current novels as a Saturday night in a lumber town is to a quiet Sunday in Old Lyme." Robert Van Gelder

+ N Y Times p6 F 26 '39 900w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 15:65 F 25 '39 800w

"A vivid, sophisticated novel for those who like the modern pace." C. McD. Puckette

Sat R of Lit 19:12 F 25 '39 380w

"There are hosts of minor characters, comic American senators, comic 'Bloomsbury,' hustling journalists, &c. There is the pageant of world affairs as a pressman sees them, there is some informatory stuff on American labour and land troubles. There is a lot of love-making and a lot of whiskey. . . There are pleasant descriptions of life on the lake, and some ironic character sketches of the types assembled on its shores. The book, though it goes on too long and ends awkwardly, will be found entertaining by many. But the writing is slapdash." Kate O'Brien

Spec 161:974 D 2 '38 280w

Reviewed by R. W. Neal

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 19 '39 1000w

Time 33:63 Mr 6 '39 190w

"The story rattles along in easy, unhesitating fashion, and, though, there is not a great deal beneath the surface, all of it is very readable. The lakeside scenes, in particular, are vivid and refreshing. But the trouble is that Tony does not, so to speak, lead anywhere. . . It is neither clear nor specially sympathetic. And it remains a truism, albeit one that is commonly ignored nowadays, that half the battle in a novel is the creation of a genuinely sympathetic character."

FARSON, NEGLEY—Continued
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p753 N 26 '38 440w

FAST, HOWARD MELVIN. Conceived in liberty. 389p map $2.50 Simon & Schuster 39-27589

A grim, realistic picture of the American army during the winter spent at Valley Forge. The story is told from the point of view of a private, a man from the Mohawk valley, who after incredible hardships, tries to desert, is caught, tried and punished, goes back to the ranks, and wins some measure of success at the battle of Monmouth.

Booklist 35:380 Jl 15 '39

"Altogether, what we have here is a picture of one of the Revolutionary episodes less well known to fiction, told with rude vigor and blending with historical veracity, in spirit if not always in detail, the uglier and the finer sides of war. It is a book which achieves something and promises more for its author's future." David Tilden
+ Books p2 Je 25 '39 850w

" 'Conceived in Liberty' is very like any of the Great War, Civil War, Spanish War or Chinese War stories that have made mud, blood and monotony the almost daily fare of novel readers for 20 years. Take away the machine guns, poison gas, airplanes, Japanese, and Sergeant Quirt, and what have you? A familiar dugout story, only this time George Washington is just outside." Olga Owens
— + Boston Transcript p2 Jl 1 '39 950w

"Human nature rather than history is Howard Fast's field. In presenting these harassed human beings without any heroics he makes us all the more respectful of the price paid for American liberty."
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 8 '39 600w

"Mr. Fast has enviable qualities of mind and imagination. His choice of theme and his method of development are enough in themselves to demonstrate that. But something more is needed to bring this method to its highest pitch of effectiveness. A novelist has to be, like Crane and Remarque, more than half a poet in order to accomplish the necessary identification of reader and narrator. Howard Fast, able though he is, falls still somewhat short of this distinction." Margaret Wallace
+ — N Y Times p7 Je 25 '39 650w

"At last an American historical novel both short and shrewd. . . There is a note of quiet and thoughtful patriotism, rather refreshing after the orotundities of some recent cloak-and-sworders."
+ New Yorker 15:67 Jl 1 '39 70w

"In spite of its hectic overwriting, 'Conceived in Liberty' has points. It is an honest attempt to tell a great story from the reverse of the conventional point of view. It may give some people an inkling of the facts behind heroic inscriptions. And Mr. Fast will bear watching, as soon as he gets the lightning-bugs out of his style." S. V. Benét
— + Sat R of Lit 20:11 Jl 1 '39 600w

"Mr Fast's book is intensely moving in spots, made more so perhaps by the very simplicity of its prose. Many of its descriptions are amazingly vivid. It is a fast-moving story, though with time to be a little bawdy in places, and the characters seem more real than those in many more pretentious books."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 16 '39 490w

"The characters, mostly men, live with a hard masculine vigour. The prose, too, is tight and hard. The distress of the experience harshens every page, but the bravery equally inspires, and the latter impression finally prevails."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p657 N 11 '39 260w

FAULKNER, WILLIAM. The wild palms. 339p $2.50 Random house
39-1750

Two stories without apparent connection. The first describes the flight from responsibility of a young New Orleans doctor and a married woman, and their months of passionate happiness, closing with the woman's death, after an abortion. The second is of a moronic convict, sent out on rescue work during a great Southern flood, and his experiences with a pregnant hill woman whom he rescued. It ends with the convict's return to his only haven, the prison.

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin
Books p2 Ja 22 '39 1500w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard, Jr.
Boston Transcript p1 Ja 28 '39 650w
Christian Century 56:387 Mr 22 '39 130w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p5 Ap 6 '39 440w

Reviewed by R. M. Lovett
Nation 148:153 F 4 '39 700w

"Except that both of them end in the Mississippi state prison, there is no logical connection between the two stories. . . By putting two stories into the same book, Faulkner is saying that some people fight and die to create their own precarious world, whereas others will perform deeds of physical courage, even heroism, in order to escape from the need for moral effort. The tall convict is the ideal soldier for a fascist army. Thus, the fable is effective, but it would have made a better novel if Faulkner had interwoven the two themes in counterpoint instead of merely setting them side by side. Story A is so tense and somber with a sense of predestined doom that I found it very hard to read. Perhaps it will be equally hard to forget. My only complaint against Story B is that it half-uses a lot of outlandishly fine material and ends too soon." Malcolm Cowley
— + New Repub 97:349 Ja 25 '39 1000w

Reviewed by John Mair
New Statesman & Nation 17:427 Mr 18 '39 850w

"To say that 'The Wild Palms' is the clearest and simplest of Faulkner's novels is not, of course, to say that it is the clearest and simplest novel in the world. . . But it seems destined for those who want to read him, who have liked his simpler short stories, and who have found 'The Sound and the Fury' too difficult and 'Sanctuary' too shocking. Except for a forbidden word or two and an occasional shudder of blood this is the novel that should explain Faulkner to them and incite them to the reading or rereading of the earlier, more esoteric work—either that, or they will leave him alone. It is very good Faulkner, not the best, but an open example of this sensational talent—genius if you like, I should not gainsay the word—in story-telling." P. M. Jack
+ N Y Times p2 Ja 22 '39 1250w

"It would be silly to deny that there are extraordinary pages in this book—you'll discover them for yourself—but the net effect seems to me remarkably unmemorable. I am not convinced by the story of Charlotte and Harry that the modern world (I gather this is the moral) holds no place for love, nor am I convinced by the tribulations of Charlotte and Harry that love and suffering can be equated. . . After a while this brutality becomes merely ludicrous; one begins to feel not only that Mr. Faulkner is trying his darndest to see how much misery he can make his characters stand but also that he is trying to see how much misery he can make his readers stand. It's an interesting game, but nearer to old-fashioned melodrama than to literature." Clifton Fadiman
— New Yorker 14:68 Ja 21 '39 1250w

Pratt p31 spring '39

"Some readers may find it an exhilarating game to straddle the backs of two stories simultaneously; others may feel that the exercise is merely annoying and unnecessary. For my part, I am convinced that neither story gains anything from the enforced union, and I am fairly sure that both are losers. The emotional sweep of the one is interrupted by the almost purely physical action of the other; and the final phase of the convict's history is less compelling than it would have been had it not been made to follow one of the most powerful and affecting scenes, or series of scenes, that William Faulkner has ever written. . . William Faulkner's style has seldom served him better than it has in many passages of this novel. It often serves him badly, and he would do well to note the fact. Too often he displays a perverse liking for syntactical complexity; for a needless, unorganized, and unrewarding complexity. . . William Faulkner has a great talent and a great deal to say. He should say it in the best way of which he is capable." B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 19:5 Ja 21 '39 1400w

Sat R of Lit 19:8 F 11 '39 900w (Discussion)

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien

Spec 162:645 Ap 14 '39 260w

"That the novelist be an able stylist is not imperative (and only occasionally does Mr Faulkner rise to the level of a distinguished style) but he should at least write clearly throughout his work—and he should have the ability to discriminate significant and material details from those that merely gum up the thought and the mechanism intended to transmit it." R. W. N.

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 29 '39 1200w

Time 33:45 Ja 23 '39 650w

"It is a disturbing sort of performance, with something of nightmare quality about it. If it were not for the stormy intensity of light, the vividly evocative power of many of the scenes, the tale might seem extravagant and highfalutin. But Mr. Faulkner cannot be dismissed in this way. In his own strained fashion he is a cunning story-teller of the descriptive variety, and there are episodes in 'The Wild Palms' that have a grim, concentrated force of suspense."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p161 Mr 18 '39 800w

"What is fairly clear is that the reference, so to speak, of his book is limited by the peculiar kind of material involved. Most readers will feel nothing but distaste for, or at best a morbid curiosity in, the characters, for these are people oddly restricted and bound down. . . The Wild Palms is a work of distinctly 'special' meaning, and yet it would be a mistake to call it either commonplace or banal. In most respects it is so far from commonplace or banal, indeed, as to be arbitrary and eccentric." Ralph Thompson

Yale R ns 28:viii spring '39 280w

FAY, JAY WHARTON. American psychology before William James. 248p $2.50 Rutgers univ.

150.973 Psychology—History 39-13495

"Mr. Fay's study fits into three sharply defined periods—the period of theological and moral philosophy (1640-1776)—the period of intellectual philosophy during which the Scottish philosophy of Thomas Reid and Dugal Stewart dominated American philosophical thought (1776-1861) and lastly—'the period of British and German influence' . . . (1861-1890). . . Over one-half of the book consists of quotations which are supposed to serve as abstracts of the philosophers under consideration. . . The book contains 46 pages of notes and a chronological table of American works and foreign sources pertaining to the three periods mentioned." N Y Times

"There is some value in calling attention to the forgotten theorists exhumed by the author, but their complete history (if it is ever composed) will need to be written by someone with a mastery of the history of American philosophy and theology, since nearly all of them were talking about souls to be saved as well as described." H. A. L.

J Philos 36:390 Jl 6 '39 230w

"The book deserves consideration, since it is a scholarly and painstaking piece of labor . . . but it is difficult and even tedious for the general reader to follow." Livingston Welch

N Y Times p12 Jl 9 '39 750w

Pratt p6 autumn '39

FEARING, KENNETH. Dead reckoning; a book of poetry. 56p $1.25 Random house

811 39-538

For descriptive note see Annual for 1938.

"On all counts it seems to me that Fearing's 'American Rhapsodies' will stand among the best poems written during the last two decades. In 'Dead Reckoning' Fearing continues to see what is alive and real, and what is dead or dying; and to record what he sees in terms that are simple, vital and recognizable to a contemporary. Like ideographs in a running telegraphic framework his poems flash the news of our time." Ruth Lechlitner

+ Books p25 Ap 2 '39 750w

"The timeliness of these verses is at once their virtue and their flaw. They are so immediately of the moment . . . that it is hard to believe that they will last, and certain that they will become as obscure in their references as a good deal of Villon. Their power derives from the same source. The pity and the terror of this age have more eloquent spokesmen but none more vehement." Babette Deutsch

Nation 149:201 Ag 19 '39 550w

"It would not be hard for a political and literary conservative—and the reviewer feels himself to be something of both—to shoot it full of holes. Self-consciously left-wing it is, overtough, sometimes needlessly cacophonous and noisy—the lyre of poetry has been ousted by the steam riveter. But it holds the intense, original and angry writing of a man who sees vividly and feels vividly and who has set down the things he has thus seen and thus felt with an angry and effective tongue. It is not pleasant, and it is not musical, but it may well be the way that vivid poetry will be written in the immediate." T. C. Chubb

+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 30 '39 240w

"It is true that Fearing has serious limitations. Intellectually and emotionally he has still to reach maturity. The profounder, ever-perplexing questions, sub specie aeternitatis, that have occupied such men as Rilke, Eliot and Yeats, have awakened little interest in him. At times he even seems unaware of their existence. But within his limitations he is an authentic poet. He has wit and sympathy and understanding; his best work possesses remarkable vigor and speed as well as sensitivity of rhythm and phrasing. As much can be said of very few poets writing today." T. C. Wilson

+ — Poetry 54:26 Ap '39 850w

Pratt p21 autumn '39

FEARING, KENNETH. The hospital. 279p $2 Random house

39-21567

In short chapters, each under the name of the protagonist, the author traces a few hours in the lives of a group of doctors, nurses, patients, and maintenance men in a huge hospital. The focal point of the story is the effect upon the great system of the few minutes when the power is turned off by a drunken janitor.

FEARING, KENNETH—Continued

"One might guess that this is a novel by a poet. It has the economy of word and phrase and the beautiful explicitness which poetry demands even more rigorously than prose." Mary Ross

+ Books p4 S 3 '39 850w

" 'The Hospital' is a remarkable book and you ought to read it as soon as you can take time out for a single-sitting job. For that is the way you will have to read it once you begin." Mark Schorer

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 16 '39 400w

Nation 149:355 S 30 '39 210w

"There is some good lean writing in the book, and something like a staccato prose poem in the sections leading up to the last delirium of Dr. Gavin. The people are likely, too—but they don't stay with you long, being swallowed up in numbers. The hospital itself remains longer. That the hospital is finally an empty shell results from the fact that the novel both tries to include too much life and fails to get enough in." Otis Ferguson

+ — New Repub 100:195 S 20 '39 250w

"Exciting and dramatic as is the story, it is Fearing's treatment which calls for highest praise. He has the poet's gift of expression and condensation and, within the compass of a few pages, creates the pattern of a life. While his sympathies are broad enough to take in all human weakness, he is particularly concerned with those whose lives, metaphorically speaking, are spent in the world's basement. For them he has tenderness and for those who keep them there a stinging bitterness. The end of the book is not happy, but it is a realistic tying up of human threads." R. C. Feld

+ N Y Times p6 S 3 '39 750w

"Entertaining, as medical novels are likely to be, but a little overwrought and not pointed enough."

+ — New Yorker 15:77 S 9 '39 50w

"Probably no hospital has ever known such concentrated drama as Author Fearing packs in. But the distortions of his pictures resemble far more those produced by a microscope than defective mirrors."

Time 34:52 S 4 '39 600w

FEARN, MRS ANNE (WALTER). My days of strength; an American woman doctor's forty years in China. 297p il $3 Harper

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Hospitals—China. China—Social life and customs (W) 39-5377

Autobiography of an American woman physician, who graduated in 1893 and went out to China to open up the Women's Hospital in Soochow. The account of her forty years as a physician in China is spiced with human interest tales and wit and humor, whether she is describing epidemics, floods, or her campaigns against barking dogs and mosquitoes.

Booklist 35:289 My 1 '39

" 'My Days of Strength' is crammed with the dramatic episodes one associates with the life of an adventurous physician and also with China; the fact that Dr. Fearn's life has embraced both gives the story double measure. It is of more than usual interest both as the record of the life of an unusual woman and an insider's chronicle of a vast and changing country and a people whom she finds, fundamentally, not so very different from ourselves." Mary Ross

+ Books p3 Ap 23 '39 1200w

Reviewed by R. H. Stafford

Boston Transcript p3 Je 24 '39 180w

New Repub 98:387 My 3 '39 60w

"This is, of course, far from being 'just another book about a doctor.' Its interest lies in what its author tells us of China, and in what she is herself." Katherine Woods

+ N Y Times p9 Ap 16 '39 1050w

"A refreshing variant in medical autobiography. . . Dr. Fearn is first class."

+ New Yorker 15:106 Ap 15 '39 50w

Pratt p25 autumn '39

